Kerry says he'd put bin Laden on trial for murder

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — John Kerry said Friday he would put Osama bin Laden on trial in U.S. courts rather than an international tribunal to ensure the "fastest, surest route" to a murder conviction if the terrorist mastermind is captured while he is president.

and in Pennsylvania," where planes hijacked by al-Qaida operatives crashed Sept. 11, 2001, Kerry said in his first interview as the Democratic presidential nominee. The Saudi-bred terrorist is suspected of plotting attacks that have shed blood across the globe, not just in the United States, Kerry suggested he would place the highest priority on avenging American deaths.

government doesn't come close to clearing that hurdle," he said. Vaught, supervisor of the Humboldt-Tolyabe National Forest, said all but the last quarter mile of the road is open to travel. The last stretch has never legally been rebuilt since the flood because it could harm bull trout in violation of the Endangered Species Act, he said. But he said Eickhof and others took it upon themselves to try to clear the way.

geted some of the most secure buildings in Tashkent, killing two guards at the Israeli embassy, injuring seven at the general prosecutor's office and two at the U.S. Embassy, Foreign Ministry spokesman Ilkhom Zakrirov said.

A group that claimed responsibility for the March-April violence, which killed 47 people, said on an Islamic Web site that it was also behind Friday's attacks, which it said were in part carried out because of the trial. The claim, which could not be verified, was from the Islamic Holy War Group and was signed by "your brother in Bukhara: Mohammed al-Fateh." Some of the defendants in the trial, which began Monday, are from the central region of Bukhara.

Pools

Continued from A1. and spas. "And that's only a fraction of what's out there," said Michael Beach, epidemiologist with the CDC's Division of Parasitic Diseases. "There are definitely a lot more cases than we have reported. We believe some of the biggest outbreaks are in pools."

federal agency show that more than 1,800 pools had to be immediately closed after inspections found obvious health violations that put swimmers at risk, such as not having enough disinfectant to kill germs in the water. The CDC analyzed 22,131 inspections conducted two years ago and found that 54 percent uncovered one or more pool safety violations, everything from filtration to chlorine problems. "That's a shocking number for us to see — those are clearly violations that mean, 'Everybody out,'" Beach said. Government health officials are urging pool operators and swimmers to do more to prevent the spread of disease. They are pressing for more regular inspections and better staff training — and encouraging swimmers to stay out of the pool when they have diarrhea.

"We all kind of knew something was going to happen," he said. Langway and his wife, Tauna, have a 1/2-year-old son, Tanner, and are expecting their second child.

Embedded Journalists

For the next week, reporter Sandy Miller and photographer Ashley Smith will file daily reports from the Dona Ana Base Camp in New Mexico — just across the Texas border — here they're embedded with the 2-118th Brigade Combat Team. The base camp is part of Fort Bliss, where the soldiers began their deployment a month ago.

Senators hold first hearing on 9-11 findings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the Sept. 11 commission urged senators Friday to embrace their politically sensitive proposals for massive changes to the nation's intelligence structure, warning that bureaucratic wrangling leaves America dangerously vulnerable to another terrorist attack.

The unusual hearing — coming during summer recess on Capitol Hill — focused on two of the commission's most complex proposals: the creation of a new national counterterrorism center and a new national intelligence director to oversee the 15-agency intelligence community.

Lee Hamilton, vice chairman of the Sept. 11 commission, testifies before the Senate Government Affairs Committee on Capitol Hill, Friday, as the committee opened hearings on the 9-11 commission's final report.

"We have concluded the intelligence community is not going to get its job done unless somebody really is in charge," said Lee Hamilton, the Democratic vice chairman of the commission. "That is just not the case now, and we have paid the price."

Thomas Kean, the commission's Republican chairman, described a litany of failures by the intelligence community in the months preceding the 2001 terror attacks against New York and Washington. He attributed failures to a profound lack of coordination across intelligence agencies.

"No one was the quarterback," no one was calling the plays," Kean said. He said that in the proposed reorganization, "each agency needs to give up some of their existing turf and some of their authority."

Kean said an assertion by recently departed CIA Director George Tenet that it will take five years to reform intelligence was "unacceptable."

However, Kean and Hamilton praised reforms already undertaken by FBI Director Robert Mueller, who has sought to transform the bureau's priority from criminal investigations to counterterrorism.

But Kean worried what might happen if Mueller and his top deputies leave, saying he was fearful the bureau would revert to its historical emphasis on chasing white-collar criminals, mobsters and bank robbers.

"A lot of the FBI would like to go back, if you would, to breaking down doors again," Kean said.

Senators pledged to quickly but thoughtfully consider the commission's proposals.

"We must react with speed but not in haste," said Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, the chairwoman of the Governmental Affairs Committee. She also urged lawmakers to "be bold but not reckless" in considering changes that will lead to what she described as a "fundamental overhaul of our intelligence structure and a sea change in our thinking."

The committee's ranking Democrat, Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut, promised that. "We're going to get this job done and get it done with unprecedented thoroughness and speed."

Collins said she supports the idea of an intelligence director, though has questions about how the office would be set up.

"Massive reorganizations are always controversial," Collins said. "While turf battles abound in Washington, for the American people it is results that count. Power struggles for authority and responsibility — however well motivated — cannot be allowed to doom needed reforms."

Reputed mobster faces life in prison for crimes

NEW YORK (AP) — Bonanno crime boss Joseph Massino was found guilty Friday of racketeering and other charges, including having a role in the slaying of the man who let FBI agent "Donnie Brasco" infiltrate the family.

Betrayed by his ex-best friend and seven other mob turncoats, Massino was also convicted of arson, extortion, money-laundering and other charges as the jury convicted him on every count. The once-powerful mob boss and close friend of late

Massino, 61, a former 400-pounder known as "Big Joey," stood impressively in Brooklyn federal court as the jury read the litany of guilty verdicts was read.

'Results matter,' president counters

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — President Bush launched his counterattack against John Kerry on Friday, saying his Democratic rival has spent 19 years in the U.S. Senate with "no signature achievements."

President Bush waves to reporters as he leaves the White House on Friday to begin a campaign trip to the Midwest.

"My opponent has good intentions, but intentions do not always translate to results," Bush told thousands of supporters who repeatedly interrupted his remarks with standing ovations. Over and over, Bush repeated a new refrain: "Results matter."

Appearing at a baseball stadium at Southwest Missouri State University, Bush said that during eight years on the Senate Intelligence Committee, Kerry voted to cut the intelligence budget but had no record of reforming America's intelligence-gathering capability. Problems with the intelligence agencies have been blamed for many of the failures surrounding the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. Bush also said Kerry has no significant record for reforming education or health care.

The president said that

Kerry and running mate John Edwards consistently oppose reforms that limit the power of Washington and leave more power in the hands of the people.

"This week members of the other party gathered in Boston," Bush said. "We heard a lot of clever speeches and some big promises. After 19 years in the United States Senate my opponent has had thousands of votes but very few signature achievements."

Bush also mounted a defense of his record, saying that Kerry would erase gains made in the past four years in the economy and U.S. security.

"We are turning the corner and we are not turning back" in the war on terrorism and on issues from improving education and health care to maintaining the tax cuts he has put in place, Bush said.

"They're going to raise taxes, we're not," Bush said of Kerry.

Kerry, Edwards start bus campaign

BOSTON (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee John Kerry plunged into the general election and embarked Friday on a coast-to-coast campaign swing through 21 states aimed at convincing millions of undecided voters that he will stand up for ordinary Americans.

"Ninety-seven days, lets make it happen," Kerry, coming off his acceptance speech Thursday night, told hundreds of supporters gathered at the early morning rally overlooking Boston Harbor.

After vacationing for a week and trailing slightly in the polls, Kerry said Bush also was back campaigning Friday, taking a swipe at Kerry by telling battleground state voters that when it comes to choosing a president, "results matter."

Kerry guns for 'W'

George Bush, you have a problem.

John Kerry made that resounding claim Thursday night with an acceptance speech that was smartly written and powerfully delivered. Even its length of 50 minutes worked in its favor because Kerry used the time to touch every base he had to reach.

That he left the podium looking drenched and spent was a testament to the forcefulness of his message.

Thursday night was a far different John Kerry. It was a huge moment, and he rose to the challenge of explaining himself and his vision better than I thought he would or could.

In doing so, Kerry met the litmus test of a nominee — he came across as presidential. In one hour and 50 minutes, he showed himself as someone who cannot be dismissed as a pretender. It is now possible to imagine him sitting in the Oval Office.

tainly be reflected in the polls. The game is on. The speech, in content if not in delivery, surely had its flaws. It often lapsed into vast, sweeping promises that will be impossible to keep. Especially on domestic issues, Kerry painted a picture of a benevolent government that solves virtually every problem man has. Only the rich and job-exporting corporations better watch their backs. Everybody else looks to be in line for a new government subsidy.

Those promises, coming a day after running mate John Edwards described an agenda that seemed socialist in its commitment to equality, mean the GOP is certain to continue pounding the Dems as big-spending liberals. But Kerry proved he's ready to return fire. As a result of long, persistent and costly effort by some neighbors near the site of Glanbia Cheese Co.'s Gooding plant sprayfield, our Department of Environmental Quality will be requiring very substantial setbacks. On top of that, some level of wastewater treatment will be required before Glanbia puts wastewater through its irrigation system. The whole community will benefit by a lowered level of risk to the public health, reduced odors and a lowered risk of groundwater pollution.

Now it is time for our state agencies and Legislature to deal with the dairy lagoon sprayfield problem and get on with the job they're paid to do of protecting the public health, safety and welfare. We cannot and should not always count on a few individual citizens like those Glanbia neighbors to fight our battles where we all benefit.

LETTERS

State must deal with dairy lagoon sprayfields

For decades, substantial setbacks have been required wherever liquid waste from municipal or industrial sources is applied to farm ground through pressurized irrigation systems. One of the problems: aerosolized pathogens — airborne pathogens in the waste that can drift off the application site and pose a risk to public health. Many other harmful substances in liquid waste are a concern, depending on the source. Contrary to popular belief, it does not take dust or ashing of the waste with the wastewater to be exposed. Science, not emotion, has justified setbacks from the outset.

Yet today, all over Idaho, there is widespread disposal of liquid dairy lagoon waste through irrigation systems with no setback requirements. The Idaho Department of Environmental Quality does not seem to have this potential problem on its radar screen. In response to a public records request, the agency could not identify the genetic composition of dairy lagoon waste. Neither could the Idaho Department of Agriculture, although it did look at the "nutrient value" of lagoon water spread on crops for nutrient management plan purposes.

I wonder if our state agencies would sit back with approval if the average homeowner disconnected from the city sewer system and irrigated lawns with liquid waste.

Some U.S. Department of Agriculture research scientists in Maryland are finally looking at the problem. That is encouraging. On the other hand, based on the decades-long support in the scientific community for sprayfield setbacks where municipal or industrial wastes are applied, it seems prudent to follow that science now rather than later where large-scale dairy and hog operations are concerned.

As a result of long, persistent and costly effort by some neighbors near the site of Glanbia Cheese Co.'s Gooding plant sprayfield, our Department of Environmental Quality will be requiring very substantial setbacks. On top of that, some level of wastewater treatment will be required before Glanbia puts wastewater through its irrigation system. The whole community will benefit by a lowered level of risk to the public health, reduced odors and a lowered risk of groundwater pollution.

Now it is time for our state agencies and Legislature to deal with the dairy lagoon sprayfield problem and get on with the job they're paid to do of protecting the public health, safety and welfare. We cannot and should not always count on a few individual citizens like those Glanbia neighbors to fight our battles where we all benefit.

Simpson has it all wrong on state amendment

Your story of July 29 carries the headline, "Simpson carries legislature: leave gay marriage issue to Congress." Simpson has this one backward.

The law of marriage in America was part of our English heritage of the common law. The rules of common law and some statutory law became the law of the colonies. After independence, it was the law of the states, and the law of marriage is a part of this package. Never has marriage been, nor should it be, an issue of federal law. James Madison, often called the father of the Constitution, understood this principle when he declared in Federalist Paper 45, "The powers delegated ... to the federal government are few and defined. These which are to remain in the state governments are numerous and indefinite." The law of marriage has always been a matter of state law and has no place under federal jurisdiction.

The issue has come to a head because of the unrealized fear that the U.S. Supreme Court may follow the lead of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and declare that same-sex marriages are constitutionally protected. In Massachusetts, the court found that state law, not the federal constitution is the basis of its decision. Although the fear is well founded, Simpson misses the mark by declaring that an amendment to the Idaho Constitution to define marriage is not important; rather, it is crucial.

Marriage is not best protected by an amendment to the U.S. Constitution. To do so only makes the definition of marriage a matter of federal constitutional law and invites meddling from the federal courts. The better approach is for Congress to exercise its Article III, Section 2 powers to remove marriage entirely from the appellate jurisdiction of the U.S. Supreme Court and all inferior federal courts. At this point, each state is empowered as the arbiter of the law of marriage, as it should be. It becomes crucial for all states, not just Idaho, to have a provision in the state constitution defining marriage as a union only between one man and one woman. Had this been in place in Massachusetts, the "gay marriage" decision could not have been made.

Simpson has done several things right recently, such as voting against funding for the United Nations. He does, however, need a refresher course in U.S. constitutional law.

Nothing wrong with that, either, as long as he doesn't forget that fear can be a potent weapon in a nasty world. To assume, as too many in his party want to, that better diplomacy is all that's needed is dangerously naive.

CONVENTION SKETCHBOOK

Dems stand united - for now

BOSTON — The Democrats covering their convention here that their party has eliminated most of its internal differences. That is true, unless you count the gap between the party's head and its heart.

The head — the platform and the policy ideas embraced by John Kerry and John Edwards — belongs to the New Democrats, the group that 20 years ago founded the Democratic Leadership Council that became the political base for Bill Clinton. But the heart of the Democratic Party — its activist base, the people who actually turn out the votes that elect Democrats — is still found in organized labor, the feminist and environmental movements, the minority groups and the wealthy liberals who finance the movements they have launched to help defeat President Bush.

This gap, acknowledged on both sides, is nothing new. It goes back to the Mondale and Dukakis campaigns of 1984 and 1988 and it survived the Clinton-Gore years to emerge once again at this Kerry-Edwards convention.

It shows in startling clarity when you ask: What do Democrats really believe? The answer for the activist heart of the party is suggested by a Boston Globe poll of a cross-section of 400 delegates. As the Globe reported, 80 percent of them say they opposed the decision to start a war in Iraq and 95 percent oppose it now. Unlike Kerry, 62 percent support gay and lesbian marriage. Almost nine out of 10 describe themselves as supporters of gun control.

Similar surveys at earlier Democratic conventions have confirmed that the activists — the people who have done enough work in their communities and states to claim a delegate badge at their reward — are not only to the left of the American public but more liberal than the candidates who will nominate in primaries representative of a broader swath of Democratic supporters.

Kerry, who voted to give Bush authority to take on Saddam Hussein, easily dispatched the challenge of anti-war candidates Howard Dean, Dennis Kucinich and Bob Graham. Then he filled out his ticket with Edwards, who had voted the same way he had. Unlike the delegates, they say that American troops should remain in Iraq as long as it takes to stabilize its democracy. On that — and on a variety of domestic issues — their policies reflect the views of the DLC and its think tank, the Progressive Policy Institute.

Originally, some key DLC leaders backed Joe Lieberman, a former DLC chairman, for the nomination. But when he faltered, they had no problem switching to Kerry, who had been active in their group as well. Edwards was not a DLC member, but only because he saw that Lieberman and Kerry had a better claim on its support. His policy views are perfectly compatible with the groups.

At first, the longtime president of the DLC, says confidently that "the debate within the party is over and we have won." Except, it isn't.

Outside this consensus are the groups on the left — pressing for immediate action on the war, universal health care, the environment, labor reform, civil rights enforcement and women's issues — and, as from concealed, those who have the power and the money" to mount the grass-roots campaigns that Kerry, Edwards and most other Democrats need.

Their chief is more visible than ever, since many of them have created a formal alliance called America Coming Together. While the DLC uses its small staff and modest budget to pump out policy ideas and influence lists, ACT has become a $100-million-plus tiger, with thousands of field workers and modern computers, all focused on finding and motivating potential Kerry-Edwards voters.

Between now and November, the Democratic nominees will benefit from the muscle of ACT and the minds of the DLC. Concerned only that they will expect to see a tug of war between the two sides on the staffing of his administration and the policy agenda. Which will come first — a big health care plan or moves to reduce the budget deficit?

Such debates plagued Clinton in his first two years, until he came own squarely on the DLC as decrying his decision to run a "people" versus the powerful" campaign cheered on by the activist groups.

So there are no divisions among the Democrats — except, one that will matter most if they again own the White House.

Downsizer's Club makes strides locally

To follow up Jami Whited's nice article in the July 27 issue, I would like to say more about water conservation with the Downsizer's Club.

We have had four experts speak to us this month of July. Phil Schutte, who has a bachelor's degree in landscape architecture and works with Kelley Garden Center, told us how to design our yards to conserve water. His helpful hints included drip irrigation, watering shade trees and plant groupings and types.

Steve Paulsen, restoration ecologist with Conservation Seeding and Restoration Inc., was wonderfully informative about drought-tolerant native plants, what to choose, how to group them and seed them.

Howard Neibling of the University of Idaho Extension Service gave us a tour of his property, demonstrating several types of drip-irrigation systems and their uses for low-water management.

Joe Webster of the Twin Falls Canal Co. gave us surprising information about the city's ditch system and how we can use it to water our lawns and gardens with canal water.

Our August schedule includes four more experts. We will have tours with Bill Eberhart to see plants that use less water; Cary Moore, whose beautiful yard is 85 percent downsized with hardscaping and drought-resistant plants; and LaMar Orton, who is xeriscaping five acres with plants from the desert. Finally, we will hear from Martha Carlson, landscape designer, about designing for specific water use.

The Downsizers invite the public to come every Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. to the new City Council chambers at 305 Third Ave. E. For these excellent speakers through October and meet us for tours at the four locations. Call me for information at 733-9213.

Deceit catches up with Utah woman's husband

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — By all accounts, Mark Hacking was fun to be around and loving to his wife. He wanted to be liked and respected and, like his father, to become a doctor.

But years of deceptions are catching up to Hacking, a 28-year-old former nightshift hospital orderly who has become the focus of police in the disappearance of his wife, who vanished as they were packing to move to a medical school where, it turns out, he wasn't enrolled.

And friends and co-workers are recalling moments when they believe Lori Hacking discovered her husband's propensity for lying. Not only was he never accepted to a North Carolina medical school, he had dropped out of college, even though he kept textbooks spread open around his apartment.

Detective Phil Eslinger said police are trying to build a "rock-solid" case, but they lack one important piece of evidence that had cadaver dogs working a municipal landfill this week.

"We need a body," Assistant District Attorney Bob Stott said Friday.

Mark Hacking often hung out at a neighborhood store — refilling sodas, eating hot-dogs and smoking Camel menthols — when his wife was at work and he was supposedly attending classes or studying for medical exams.

Clerks say he asked them never to reveal his cigarette habit to his wife. He told them he was a therapist.

Like his wife, Mark Hacking is a Mormon who isn't supposed to smoke.

His history of deceptions, petty and grand, took family members by surprise when they started unraveling last week, says his father, Douglas Hacking, a pediatrician.

"We didn't see it coming," he said. "We got completely blindsided by it."

Mark Hacking was taken to a psychiatric ward a day after the search for his wife began, after he was seen running around at night naked in sandals outside a motel where he'd taken a room.

Doctors are trying to "sort out what is going on in his mind," his father said. The family hired a noted Utah defense lawyer, D. Gilbert Athay, who was seen at the University of Utah Neuro-psychiatric Institute as recently as Thursday. Athay will confirm only that he has spoken several times with Hacking.

Mark Hacking never was on track to become a doctor, nor is he a therapist. State records show he is a licensed health care assistant, a job he resigned July 23 that is being advertised at the University of Utah. The job posting says health care assistants start at $8.42 an hour and must be available for odd work hours.

Records show Lori Hacking, a 27-year-old stockbroker's assistant at Wells Fargo, graduated with a bachelor's degree from the University of Utah in 1999. She put her plans to pursue an MBA on hold until her husband could graduate from medical school.

Once, in 2000, a friend of Lori's recalls her confiding that Mark Hacking "just lied to me" about having enrolled one semester at college, both Salt Lake City daily newspapers reported Friday.

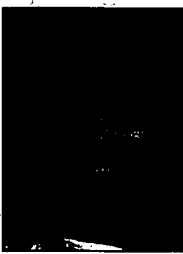

But it is believed to be a bigger lie that left Lori Hacking stunned and sobbing on Friday, July 16, three days before her husband reported her missing.

Her colleagues say she had been trying to make some arrangements at the North Carolina-Chapel Hill schooling. They believe an administrator was returning a call that day to say her husband wasn't enrolled there. A private woman, Lori Hacking didn't share her grief with co-workers, but took up their suggestion to leave work early.

Later that night, she showed up with her husband at a going-away party at her boss' mountain cabin, betraying no sign of distress. She was last seen by friends Sunday night, July 18, and failed to show for work the next morning at 7 a.m.

Mark Hacking has told police his wife didn't return from a sunrise jog July 19, but his timeline is falling apart.

Police don't believe Lori Hacking ever was sleeping at a city park and doubt his claims he jogged the route before reporting her missing. They say he was cross-town at a store buying a new mattress at 10:23

Lori Hacking a.m. before alerting police at 10:49 a.m. Police have recovered the old mattress from a trash bin in their neighborhood.

Senators thump Cowboys in first round

IDAHO FALLS — Nobody said this would be easy. The Twin Falls Cowboys AA American Legion took a step back in their pursuit of a state championship Friday morning, losing to the Boise Senators 18-5 in seven innings in the opening game of the 2004 State AA Baseball Tournament.

But with a 1-0 lead, that spring was erased in the top of the third when the Senators started their onslaught.

The Senators broke the game wide open in the top of the sixth after Carr plunked his sixth batter of the game, Matt Sherman.

Most importantly for the Senators, pitcher Joey Zubizarreta was able to pitch a complete game, saving his eighth-inning life for their second game.

That's huge for us," Taylor said. "We were going to bring our No. 2 in if it was close, but Joey is an asset to us. He's 11-0 in his season so far, but he's a mentally tough kid and nobody his high."

After a few close calls in recent years, it's a place B.J. Christenson is looking to finally stand upon at the 2004 Burley Idaho Lions Spudman Triathlon, which begins today at 7 a.m. at Riverfront Marina in Burley.

Christenson, a Heyburn native who is now the head track and field and cross country coach at NAA Westminster College in Salt Lake City, finished sixth overall at the Spudman in 2001, third in 2002 and second a year ago.

Christenson said, "The swim is fast. The bike and run are pretty flat. There's not a lot of big, steep hills or sharp turns."

"I've slowly improved," he said, then added with a chuckle, "Natural progression says this year I have to improve one more spot."

Over 900 competitors have entered this year's Spudman, which saves an Olympic distance of 51.5 kilometers in all. Athletes will start out with a 1.5k swim that begins at Riverfront Marina, goes past Crow and Goats, and finishes up at Scholar Park at 8 a.m.

Heyburn native hopes to reach Spudman summit

Getting to the top would be nothing new to Christenson. He received the National Junior College Athletic Association's best time in the steeplechase during 1999-2000 at the College of Southern Idaho when the school still had a track and field team and later went on to run track and cross country at the University of Utah, from which he graduated in 2003.

Ramirez rips Phillies with homers

CHICAGO (AP) — Aramis Ramirez hit three home runs and the Chicago Cubs rallied to beat Philadelphia 10-7 Friday, sending the slumping Phillies to their fifth straight loss. News were installed Friday to keep concrete pieces of Wrigley's upper deck from falling onto fans.

Brian Henkel holds helmets for sale at Wrigley Field on Friday in Chicago. The Cubs on Friday morning got the go-ahead from inspectors to continue playing at the stadium. The city had threatened to close the 90-year-old ballpark because of fears raised by three recent reports of falling concrete.

Brewers 3, Mets 1

ATLANTA — Marcus Giles had three hits and drove in the go-ahead run, and Atlanta knocked New York's 12th loss in 17 games.

Mike Hampton (7-0) pitched four-hit ball over seven innings, and John Smoltz got his 24th save.

Andrew Jones had two hits and an RBI for Atlanta, which beat Steve Trachsel (9-6).

Expos 9, Marlins 0

MIAMI — Livan Hernandez pitched a three-hitter and Brad Wilkerson and Nick Johnson homered to help Montreal spoil Hector's third return from the disabled list.

Berkett (4-6), who had been out since July 6 because of torn skin on his right middle finger, led off only three innings, allowing four runs on six hits, including Wilkerson's two-run shot in the second inning.

Brewers 5, Pirates 0

MILWAUKEE — Doug Davis allowed four hits in seven innings, and Brad Lidge pitched a two-run double to lead Milwaukee over Pittsburgh, which before the game dealt pitcher Kris Benson to the New York

Mets for infielder Ty Wiggington and two minor leaguers. Davis (10-9) snapped a personal three-game losing streak with the help of two double plays.

The Brewers chased Sean Burnett (5-3) in the third with five runs on three hits, a hit batter and a throwing error by the rookie left-hander.

Astros 2, Reds 2

6 innings, suspended CINCINNATI — Houston's Jeff Bagwell singled home the tying run moments before a third rain delay resulted in a suspended game in the sixth inning.

Saturday with the score tied at 2 and two Astros on base in the top of the sixth. The regularly scheduled game for Saturday will then follow.

American League

Blue Jays 3, Devil Rays 0

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Josh Towers won his fourth straight start with seven innings of two-hit ball, and Josh Phelps homered twice to help the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays 3-0 Friday night.

Towers (6-3) walked just one and struck out four before Vinny Chulk worked a hitless eighth and Jason Frasor pitched the ninth for his 13th save in 14 opportunities, holding the Devil Rays to two hits for the second time this season.

Yankees 2, Orioles 1

NEW YORK — Kevin Brown gave the Yankees a big boost by pitching into the seventh inning in his first start in more than seven weeks, and Alex Rodriguez homered and drove in two runs in New York's 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles on Friday night.

On the night before baseball's trade deadline — with speculation swirling about whether the Yankees will be able to strike a deal with Arizona for Randy Johnson — Brown gave New York an impressive outing.

Brown (8-1), activated from the disabled list before the game after being sidelined since June 10 with a lower back spasm and an intestinal parasite, allowed one run and four hits in 6 1/3 innings.

He struck out five and walked two, throwing 88 pitches. New York Yankees first baseman Jason Giambi has been diagnosed with a benign tumor, but is expected to return to the team later this season after undergoing treatment.

The Yankees announced Friday night that Giambi will be placed on the 15-day disabled list and will be treated immediately. The team, citing privacy issues, declined to divulge where the tumor is or what type of treatment Giambi will undergo.

Red Sox 8, Twins 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Bronson Arroyo threw seven-plus sharp innings, Gabe Kapler drove in three runs and the Boston Red Sox ended Minnesota's four-game winning streak with a 8-2 victory on Friday night.

Arroyo frustrated the Twins, allowing two runs off eight hits and striking out eight. He looked nothing like the pitcher who lost six straight between May and June. And the Twins looked nothing like the team that swept the Chicago White Sox this week to take first place in the AL Central.

Boston's meanwhile, remained 7.5 back of the New York Yankees, who beat Baltimore, in the AL East.

Arroyo (4-7) made his first start since last week's bench-clearing brawl at Fenway Park with the Yankees. The fight started after Arroyo hit Yankees star Alex Rodriguez with a pitch and led six players being suspended and/or fined.

Tigers 5, White Sox 4

DETROIT — Bobby Higginson drew a tiebreaking, bases-loaded walk with two out in the eighth inning to help the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 5-4 Friday night for Chicago's sixth straight loss.

The game was delayed an hour and a minute after three innings because of rain. Damaso Marte (4-4) loaded the bases in the eighth. Alex Singleton, Carlos Guillen singled with one out and Rondell White walked with two out to load the bases. Marte then walked Higginson on a 3-2 pitch.

Mets get jump on trade deadline

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets made two big moves a day before baseball's trade deadline, getting pitchers Kris Benson and Victor Zambrano on Friday while other contenders angled for the likes of Randy Johnson, Larry Walker and Steve Finley.

"It's kind of a relief just to get it over with. It's been a tough day," Benson said after Pittsburgh sent him to the Mets. "If there was a team I'd be excited to go to, it would be them."

Los Angeles seemed poised to make a couple of moves before Saturday's 4 p.m. deadline for deals without waivers. Catcher Charles Johnson and pitcher Brad Penny could be headed to Los Angeles, and catcher Paul Lo Duca might wind up in Florida.

Finley could go from Arizona to a West Coast club, although the main focus on the Diamondbacks involved Randy Johnson.

The Yankees desperately want the Big Kruk, but did not seem to have the right package of prospects to get him — and Arroyo said he did not appear inclined to trade him to New York. Anaheim, Los Angeles and maybe even San Francisco also are interested in the five-time Cy Young winner.

With closer Billy Wagner on the disabled list, Philadelphia bolstered its bullpen by acquiring two relievers: Felix Rodriguez from San Francisco and Todd Jones from Cincinnati. The Phillies sent outfielder Ricky Ledee to the Giants, giving them a left-handed hitter to help Barry Bonds.

Dave Hansen joined the San Diego Padres, who got him from Seattle for minor league pitcher Jon Luber.

The Marlins were looking to add a lefty reliever, and it probably will be Lo Duca and Ben Encarnacion from the Dodgers.

The teams were waiting for approval from the commissioner's office Friday night on a six-player trade that would include Lo Duca, Encarnacion, reliever Guillermo Mota, pitcher Brad Penny and first baseman Hee Seop Choi.

Lo Duca and Encarnacion would go from Los Angeles to Florida. The Marlins would send Penny, Choi and a minor league prospect, possibly pitcher Brad Murphy of Double-A Carolina, to the Dodgers.

Williams knocks

Tyson out

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mike Tyson was knocked out in the fourth round Friday night in a career trade that would include the fighter who once was the most feared heavyweight of his era.

Unheralded British heavyweight Danny Williams landed a career-opening jab with Tyson sprawling into the ropes, perhaps ending his career with the same kind of fury that Tyson once unleashed on other fighters.

The fighter once called the baddest man on the planet went down from a final right hand, then laid helplessly along the ropes, blood streaming down his face. He tried to get up to beat the count, but fell down again and the fight was waved to a stunning close at 2:51 of the fourth round.

The fight was a free-for-all from the opening bell, with Tyson landing some huge left hooks early, only to take punishment himself when Williams got over his initial stage fright and began brawling himself.

Tyson won the first three rounds, but Williams was landing well to the head and when he began throwing punch after punch with Tyson near a neutral corner, Tyson couldn't answer back.

Fighting in Muhammad Ali's hometown before a big crowd that cheered his every move, Tyson tried with every punch to score the kind of spectacular knockout that would make him a heavyweight contender once again at the age of 38. But Williams wouldn't go down and then came back with shocking suddenness to win.

Spudman

Continued from B1 can expect to swim fast times. The water temperature is currently 68-71 degrees and the swim current aided. "I think everyone likes the downstream swim," said Fritz Wonderlich of Twin Falls, who finished third in the men's 50-54 age group last year and 34th overall.

Some of the best action, however, will take place when the athletes aren't even technically racing. According to some competitors, the transition zones hold the key in creating an edge over the competition. "If you're in a close race with someone else and they have a good transition, it's so, between the swim and the bike, they'll get away from you," said Heather Ramsdell of Twin Falls, who placed 18th in the women's 25-29 age group a year ago. "It's really hard to make up that time." Experience also pays off in the transition zones. "Some people you see are really good at it. Wonderful said, 'There's no wasted motion.' And it's not always wet to slip out of a wet, skintight wet suit after a long swim. 'You'll see some people spraying their ankles and wrists with cooking oil, something like PAM, just to help them get their suits off,' Ramsdell said. "But for me, I have no real technique." After the swim, athletes will do their best Lance Armstrong impersonations during the 400 bicycle ride, the longest leg of the race. The cyclists will ride through Declo before turning around 20 kilometers from the starting point. The course is fairly flat out and back, with just a few rolling hills at the turnaround. But competitors from far away should be wary. The elevation is 4,250 feet, leaving many sucking wind when they finally pull into Riverfront Park. The race concludes with a 10k run. The run begins with a short, steep hill and then levels to a mostly-flat course. Athletes will run on country roads and canal banks. The total covers 70 percent of the course with the rest gravel. "It's just a good and fun race," Ramsdell said. "There's so many people involved so it's exciting."

Cowboys

Continued from B1 now have to win six straight games to take the title of best AA team in Idaho. "We have a long road for us," Studemeier said. "But I don't think these guys will pack it in. We'll get some rest and prepare for the long road."

"Somebody has to make it to the championship from the losers bracket, hopefully it's us." Despite their struggles, the Cowboys did show flashes of the power that had been lacking through the district tournament. Besides Robertson's home run, Alex Hill and Brandon Christiansen both connected on long balls.

Christiansen's solo jack flew the center field fence, traveling over 420 feet. He led the Cow-

2004 American Legion AA State Tournament. Friday's games: Boise Senators 18, Twin Falls Cowboys 5, 7 innings. Saturday's games: Twin Falls vs. Lewis-Clark, 10 a.m. Pocatello vs. Idaho Falls, 1 p.m. Boise Senators vs. Treasure Valley, 4 p.m. Boise Gems vs. Riley Creek, 7 p.m.

ball. Both Joey Santa Maria and Devin Weaver pulled two RBIs, while Cooper Blane went 3-for-4 with two RBIs. While the Senators will face the familiar Treasure Valley Stars from Area B Saturday, the Cowboys will face the Lewis-Clark Twins in a loser-out game at 10 a.m. Saturday morning. The Twins gave up five runs in the top of the eighth to fall behind 13-9 before coming up two runs short of tying the game in their remaining two innings.

Picher Chris Butler took the loss, but went 3-for-5 with a double, a triple, and three RBIs in the loss.

Bucs As promised, wide receiver Keenan McCardell was a no-show when the Tampa Bay Buccaneers reported to training camp. McCardell is scheduled to earn $2.5 million this year and $2.75 million in 2005. But after making 84 catches for 1,174 yards and eight touchdowns last season, the two-time Pro Bowl selection wants to be paid closer to the average salary for No. 1 receivers in the NFL a year ago, that was about $4.4 million.

Vikings Minnesota signed first-round draft pick Kenechi Udezue to a five-year contract, allowing the defensive end from USC to avoid a training-camp holdout. Udezue, selected with the No. 20 pick, tied for the NCAA lead with 16.5 sacks last season for the co-national champion Trojans last season. 49ers San Francisco agreed to with all five of its remaining unsigned rookies, including first-round pick Rashawn Woods. Woods, a receiver from Oklahoma State selected 31st overall, got a five-year deal after missing camp the opening day of training camp. Just his only offensive lineman from Alabama chosen in the second round, got a four-year deal.

Titans Tennessee agreed to terms with tight end Ben Thomas and defensive ends Travis LaBoy, Antwan Odum and Bo Schobel, the last of their draft picks to sign.

Bears Brian Urlacher, Chicago's Pro Bowl middle linebacker, will miss most of training camp with a hamstring injury, although the team expects him back for the regular-season opener.

Geathers (defensive end) and Stacy Andrews (offensive tackle) agreed to three-year contracts.

Lions Detroit began training camp without receiver Roy Williams, the team's first draft pick. If Williams misses the start of practice Saturday, it will be the first time the Lions have had a significant holdout since Bryant Westbrook, their first-round pick in 1997, was late to camp.

Jaguars Also coming to terms with Jacksonville were linebacker Daryl Smith, running back Greg Jones, linebacker Jorge Cordova and wide receiver Ernest Wilford. Smith was a second-round choice out of Georgia Tech, Jones a second-rounder from Florida State, Cordova a third-rounder from Nevada-Reno and Wilford a fourth-round choice from Virginia Tech.

Packers Green Bay signed cornerback Joey Thomas of Montana State, its third-round draft pick. That leaves only first-rounder Ahmad Carroll and sixth-rounder Corey Williams unsigned. Carroll is a cornerback and Williams a defensive tackle.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Mountain bike race planned for Aug. 7

WHIT KNOCK CHALLENGE mountain bike race will be held Aug. 7-8 in Mackay. The White Knob, sponsored by Inter-mountain Orthopedics, is the longest-running mountain bike race in the Northwest and is a NORBA Classic.

For the second straight year, the format will be a stage race that includes the traditional mountain bike cross-country race along with head-to-head sprints and short-track races.

On Aug. 7, cross-country racers will take off from Main Street at 10 a.m. at 9-mile event that features 2,300 feet of elevation gain. After circling behind the old mine in the Lost River drainage, cyclists will rush down through a boulder-strewn canyon brushing along the river on the outskirts of Mackay. The total distance is 19 miles for all race categories.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in all more than 30 race categories. The top six cyclists in each category also receive points towards the overall three-stage championships.

Beginning at 4 p.m. on Aug. 7, cyclists will be placed in brackets for head-to-head sprints in the City Tourist Park. It will be a double-elimination tournament.

The final event will occur on Aug. 8, beginning 9:30 a.m., as racers gather on a dirt track at Crystal Lake.

Beginner racers will do a 15-minute short-track race. Spectators will see 20 minutes of elite, semi-pro and pro riders for race for 25 minutes.

according to the annual league preseason poll announced recently at the 2004 Sun Belt Conference Football Media Day.

Idaho was picked to take ninth in the nine-team league. Utah State is picked sixth.

Mean Green running back Mike Cobbs, the 2004 Sun Belt Offensive Player of the Year, and defensive end Adrian Awason were named the Pre-season Players of the Year for the league. The poll and team rankings were done by a panel of media coaches, sports information directors and media.

Idaho sophomore offensive lineman Hank Thierien was named to the 2004 Sun Belt Conference Football Preseason All-Conference Teams.

Isinbayeva breaks pole vault world record

LONDON — Yelena Isinbayeva broke her own pole vault world record Friday, clearing 16 feet, 7 1/2 inch at the London Grand Prix meet at Crystal Palace.

Isinbayeva equaled the mark of 16-5 she set five days ago in Birmingham, England.

It's the fourth time in five weeks the women's world pole vault record has been broken.

USC is No. 1 in coaches' football poll

NEW YORK — Southern California was picked No. 1 in the ESPN/USA Today preseason poll, a spot the Trojans were denied at the end of last season by the Bowl Championship Series.

Adrian Ferguson recently confirmed Clemens' application and said he has not yet been accepted for enrollment. Ferguson said the university probably would not be able to offer Clemens an athletic scholarship because no basketball scholarships were currently available.

Clemens' claims that he was paid by former coaches at Missouri are at the center of a still-unresolved NCAA investigation.

European track meets wary of Marion Jones

ATHENS, Greece — A pair of prestigious European track meets are giving the cold shoulder to Marion Jones, worried that the doping scandal might taint the Olympic gold medalist.

Meet directors in Zurich, Switzerland, and Linz, Austria, normally would be the first to showcase track and field's biggest star in the buildup to the Athens Games. But they said Friday they are wary of having Jones participate in their events.

Jones being investigated by the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, although she has not been charged with drug use and reportedly has denied using performance-enhancing substances.

Jones has not competed since July 16, when she finished last in her qualifying heat in the 200 meters at the U.S. Olympic trials. She dropped out of the 200 the following day, citing fatigue.

Pronger re-signs with St. Louis Blues

NEW YORK — Defenseman Chris Pronger signed a one-year, $10 million contract Friday to stay with the St. Louis Blues, who had denied using performance-enhancing substances.

Jones being investigated by the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, although she has not been charged with drug use and reportedly has denied using performance-enhancing substances.

Pronger, the NHL's MVP four years ago, scored a career-high 52 goals last season and ranked second among league defensemen with 54 points.

Meanwhile, Bonk got a three-year deal from the Canadiens. He had 12 goals and 32 points in 67 games for Ottawa. Terms were not disclosed.

Idaho picked last in Sun Belt football NEW ORLEANS — North Texas was picked to win the Sun Belt Conference football title for the fourth year in a row

Senior Games jump starts bowling season

TWIN FALLS - The 2004-05 bowling season is fast approaching. League Secretaries are contacting their league members with starting dates. Some will be in full swing by fair time, others won't start until after the fair. A lot depends on how many weeks you are signing up for or how soon you want to complete the season next Spring. If you did not bowl on a league last year, sign up at your local bowling center and they will assist you.

The first big upcoming event is the Magic Valley Senior Games. Now here, for anyone over 50 years of age, is an event for you. Pinochle, Assisted Living Walk, Half Marathon, Party Bridge, Duplicate Bridge, Bocce, Arthritis Water Aquatics, Track & Field, Swimming, Golf Bicycle, Tennis and most of all BOWLING!

On the bowling side, there are six events, set up for nine squads over for four days, Aug. 26 - 29 at the Bowldrome. There are 4 person Teams, Mixed Doubles, Men's Doubles and Ladies Singles. On top of that there is six age divisions, 50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-75 and 75 and older. Gold, Silver and Bronze Medals will be awarded in each age group in each event. Age divisions in the Team and Doubles events will be determined by the youngest member on the team.

Registration fee is $15 which includes the picnic at noon on August 28 and a T-shirt. Bowling fees are $7.50 per event. August 12 is closing entry date and for entries received thereafter there will be an additional $5 fee.

Another event that rather draws my attention: "Bowling Pin Throw!" How many times have you wanted to get that 7 or 10 pin that just doesn't want to fall and throw it as far as you could? Well, during the Senior Games they are holding a bowling pin throwing event.

City tests light coordination

By Rebecca Meany
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As he cruised through mid-morning traffic Friday, Bruce Christensen differed from other drivers in an unusual way: He had no destination.

As a traffic engineer for the Idaho Transportation Department's District 4, Christensen was driving up Blue Lakes Boulevard and back down again, looking to see if traffic signals were coordinated with each other based on a predetermined rate of vehicular speed.

One light in particular was slowing him down.

"Hey Rod," he called on his cell phone to Rod Mathis, an assistant city engineer. "We're at Falls right now and the left turns aren't able to get through. And we've been getting caught at quite a few red lights."

The goal of his driving back and forth — counting cars, checking speeds? Reducing the time it takes motorists to get from point A to point B.

"Over the past few years there have been concerns with timing issues and coordination between them," said Bob Humphreys, a senior transportation planner with the transportation department. "We are working with the city to make changes and adjustments to them."

Christensen and city employees have been driving up and down Blue Lakes, monitoring signals and, if necessary, tinkering with their timing from back at home base. Synchronization plans are being looked at for intersections of Blue Lakes and Falls, Caswell, Filer, Heyburn and Addison Avenue.

Shortly after his morning drive, Christensen and the others working on the project determined there was a major time clock problem at two of the Shoshone Street signals. That, in turn, may have been affecting the Blue Lakes signals.

Humphreys said it's not merely a matter of setting the signals to let the flow of traffic travel at the posted speed limit. "The posted speed is if traffic isn't interrupted at all," he said.

"There are traffic interruptions where Engineers have to consider myriad factors in trying to coordinate signal timing, including time of day, day of the week, pedestrian activity, turning vehicles, types of trucks and RVs using the road and speed of traffic.

All that must be figured in to each intersection's signals, and each signal must be coordinated with the others.

A semi-truck heads southbound through the Caswell Avenue intersection on Blue Lakes Boulevard in Twin Falls on Thursday. The city has been testing a new signal timing system along the busy road in hopes of improving traffic flow.

Peak time is between 12 and 1 p.m. and levels off very slowly during the afternoon. The city is unusual in that it doesn't experience morning or evening rush hours.

In addition to timing engineers are testing the elimination of the green left turn arrow at some intersections during particular times of the day.

By taking out the protected left turn arrow during low-volume traffic times, traffic is optimized, said Lee Glaesemann, lead engineer for the city of Twin Falls.

Side street traffic, too, will be reduced by one minute, he added.

During certain, lighter times of the day, signals at Blue Lakes and Falls, Blue Lakes and Filer and Blue Lakes and Caswell will not have left turn arrows.

With the new system, city workers can program signals remotely by going through a local area network.

Previously, they had to go on location to the intersection computer to make manual adjustments.

In the future, the city hopes to make use of a traffic responsive system, which selects different timing plans based on traffic volume, adjusting automatically to the flow.

With up to 34,000 vehicles using Blue Lakes Boulevard on an average day, the system will never be flawless.

"There are limits to what we can do," Christensen said. "We just have to make sure we've done everything we can."

Ingenuity highlights Lincoln County Fair

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — A small motor home village can be seen off to the side of the Lincoln County Fairgrounds.

That's the place Judy Rlenstra has called home for a week every summer for the past 20 years.

She's been a leader in 4-H for so long that she recently was inducted into the organization's Hall of Fame.

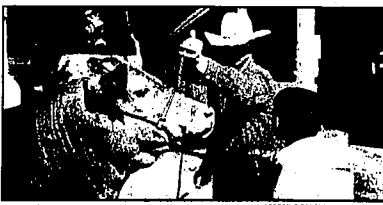

This year, her granddaughter took a little glory herself. "I won my first trophy," Qulana Welborn said, touting her goat project.

She also won "Top of Class" for her "Liking Your Best" project and boasts 12 4-H projects entered in this year's fair.

As she modeled the outfit she assembled for the modeling demonstration at the fair, it wasn't clear who was more proud of her achievement — her or her grandmother.

"We went to the Idaho Youth Ranch and found the outfit," Rlenstra said. "The outfit was $4.50, the shirt was 50 cents, the shoes were a dollar, the necklace was 25 cents and the earrings were 50 cents," she said.

Burley takes possession of Simplot plant

By Chip Thompson
Times-News writer

BURLEY — It's official, the city of Burley now owns the former J.R. Simplot Co. processing plant in Heyburn.

The city Council held a special meeting Friday and authorized Mayor Jon Anderson to sign several documents transferring ownership of the 276-acre facility, which includes 1.1 million square feet in 20 buildings, to the city.

Anderson went directly to Land Title and Escrow and signed the papers when the meeting adjourned just before 1 p.m.

The plant, which includes the idle industrial sewage treatment facility in Burley, is appraised at $22 million, according to documents read to the council by City Attorney Randy Stone. The city will pay $11.143 in closing costs and title insurance, Stone said.

"What a deal," Anderson told the council, citing that $11.143 was a good price for a $22 million property.

Among the documents Anderson signed was a lease agreement with J.R. Simplot Co. for continued use of the frozen food distribution center, machine shop, transportation facility, steam plant and adjacent land used for access to the buildings.

The company will lease the failities for three years at $100,000 per year with the option for six one-year renewals, Stone said.

Council members expressed relief at completing the transaction.

"What a moment in day," Councilman Curtis Mendenhall said. "We've been working on the Simplot thing for almost six years."

Councilman Dennis Curtis, who played the greatest role in securing the donation, said he wanted to thank the people at J.R. Simplot Co. who spent countless hours and millions of dollars to make the donation a reality.

Forest officials balance safety, fun

ANGELUS OAKS, Calif. (AP) — When Kevin Nolden stopped at a store in the San Bernardino National Forest, he asked a friend and a friend could take some target practice, the woman behind the counter had a quick answer: no more.

"That's nuts," said Nolden, 20, who had come from nearby Yucaipa with his new rifle because he didn't want to pay to use a shooting range.

"If this place burns up, it suits me more," said the woman, Patti Dickerson, whose family owns the store a few miles from mountain areas where fires burned 160,000 acres last year. "You guys know that one of last year's fires was started by a bullet?"

It's the kind of exchange that's becoming more common in the San Bernardino forest, where the National Forest Service and tens of thousands of acres in the foothills were closed as of Monday because of intensely high fire danger from drought and heat.

Shooting is forbidden in all but three designated ranges because spent bullets started several fires in recent years. Further up the mountains, popular camping and hiking areas remained open. But some complain the new rules and other forest restrictions across the Southwest are blocking their right to enjoy the outdoors.

On her way to swim in a creek with her kids and their friends,

Shelley Borynack said the San Bernardino closures seemed especially unfair because her family likes to set fires to cook when they camp. Instead they had to camp in tents. They were disappointed by past shutdowns when fires threatened the area.

"My husband and my sons hunt, and it's kind of hard because the year before last, we paid for all the hunting gear, all the tags, the licenses. We paid for a rifle and then right before the season started, they closed down," Borynack said.

Forest officials said the latest restrictions were essential to prevent a wildfire as devastating as fire season draws. Southern California last fall that blackened more than 750,000 acres, destroyed 3,650 homes and killed 24 people.

Their fears were heightened by fires earlier this month that burned about 50,000 acres and destroyed nine homes in the region. The blazes were unprecedented this early in the fire season.

"It's a week-to-week thing — we'll do what we have to do," said Forest Service spokesman Dave Reider. "We're sorry about the inconvenience, but a little inconvenience is not much compared to a 50,000-acre fire. You have to balance the risk."

Officials said areas of other national forests could also be closed as fire season draws on. They are particularly concerned about the sprawling San Bernardino forest, where hundreds of thousands of trees killed or weakened by drought and insects are expected to fall like Arrowhead and Lillywood.

While it's fairly common for forests across the nation to restrict open fires, it is unusual for all or part of any forest to be shut down completely. The decision is up to officials at each forest, and closings usually occur only in extreme conditions, said Rose Davis, a spokeswoman for the National Interagency Fire Center.

San Bernardino is currently the only national forest to be partly shut, though campfires were banned in some Arizona and New Mexico forests in May and June.

There are no current plans to shut down any national parks, but officials are closely watching the situation, said Steve Husar, fire management officer for the Pacific West Region.

Many of the closed areas in the San Bernardino forest are places hikers and campers wouldn't likely go anyway because of the summer heat, said John Monsen, regional organizer of Sierra Club's Southern California campaign to protect forests.

"I think the Forest Service is being very smart in doing this," he said.

Still, some business are worried about losing customers, and a number of visitors said they should be trusted on forest land.

Man who helped dad kill girl won't get parole

COBUR D'ALENE (AP) — Parole has been denied to a northern Idaho man convicted of helping his father kill a young girl four years ago.

The state Commission on Pardons and Parole rejected the parole request of Cody Merritt, 20, because he was sentenced to only five years in prison for his role in the death of 14-year-old Carissa Benway and has done little to get counseling while imprisoned.

"My biggest fear is he is going to come out of prison without any help after participating in a gruesome and nasty criminal act," said Kootenai County Sheriff's Sgt. Brad Maskell. "I fear he doesn't grasp the weight of the crime."

Merritt's father, David "Coo" Merritt, 51, was sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole for raping, killing and beheading Carissa during a camping trip the Merritts took over the Fourth of July holiday in 2000. David Merritt pleaded guilty to the murder in a deal to avoid execution.

His son, who was only 16 at the time and had dated Carissa, was convicted of helping his father in the killing and then concealing the crime. Authorities say he took part in the murder to earn a black rose tattoo, the symbol of a brotherhood of killers. During his parole hearing earlier this month, Merritt told the board he intended to have the tattoo removed. Maskell said he heard that before.

"I fear for what kind of felon he will be when he's released," the officer said. "I would like to think the state is making available to him some kind of mental counseling."

Ollie Craven, the board's director, said members had the same concern. "He needs a lot of help before he gets out," she said. "What's frightening is the short sentence he got."

Washington nuclear power plant undergoes emergency shutdown

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Washington state's only commercial nuclear reactor remained closed for several weeks as technicians tried to determine why an automatic shutdown system failed to work properly Friday.

The emergency officials said there was no release of radiation and no danger to the public.

It was not immediately known when the Columbia Generating Station reactor would be restarted.

The failure triggered an alert in which state agencies prepared to respond if needed to help Benton and Franklin counties near the Hanford nuclear reservation.

But Brad Peck, spokesman for the reactor's operator, Energy Northwest, said the reactor was stable and the alert was canceled at 11:57 a.m. about two hours after it was declared. The reactor, which produces power for the Northwest electricity grid, would remain out of service until crews determine what caused the problem, he said.

Energy Northwest spokeswoman Heather McMurdo said lights on a control panel showed that 1100 of 1185 control rods did not fully insert into the reactor during the shutdown.

The rods, which control the reactor's operation, were inserted manually about 10 a.m., she said.

Backup systems operated correctly and the alert could have been canceled when the control rods were manually inserted, but plant operators wanted to err on the side of caution, McMurdo said.

"It was conservative for us to have remained in an alert status," she said.

Rob Harper, spokesman for the Washington state Emergency Operations Center, said that although there was no threat to the public, the center at the National Guard's Camp

Murray was activated, as called for under the plant's emergency plan. The center deactivated shortly before 1 p.m., he said.

The state Department of Health dispatched a field team to take air samples and soil readings as a precaution, he said.

State officials originally said the shutdown occurred during a test, but Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials later said it occurred during normal operations.

NRC spokesman Ken Clark in Atlanta said the reactor automatically shut down after a high-pressure indication about 9:25 a.m. It was then that equipment indicated some control rods were not fully inserted, he said.

Plant operators will try to determine what caused the high pressure indication and whether the control rods were slow to drive fully into the reactor core, or there were problems with indicator lights, Clark said.

Spud Festival will bring movies, music to Idaho

BOISE (AP) — Hollywood is a long way from Driggs, Idaho.

But actress Dawn Wells, best known for her role as Mary Ann on Gilligan's Island, is trying to bring the two worlds a little closer with the Spud Film and Music Festival.

"My goal is not to get millions of people here, but to have it grow. The quality of what we're doing is special and it's very important for me to have it done right," Wells said.

The event, nicknamed Spud Fest and sponsored by the Idaho Potato Commission, features 34 new films, live bands and appearances by celebrities such as Danny Glover, Wells' dad. All the films are family-friendly and every evening one film will be shown at the Spud Drive-In in Driggs. The festival is scheduled to run Tuesday through Saturday.

"The actress, who has lived in the region for years, hopes the festival will draw the film industry to Idaho."

"Everybody's always looking for locations. Grand Teton is famous for being in every commercial known to man. Film scouts come and look, but we just don't get the films for a variety of reasons. The festival provides exposure," she said.

"The whole country is trying to keep the film industry in the United States now, but Idaho only made a million from the industry last year, with only one or two films made. Bringing films can help with saving the environment; giving youth an occupation and help nourish this part of the country," Wells said.

Meanwhile, ticket sales will help Wells turn her Idaho-aho Full-Actor's Boot Camp into a full-blown institute where students earn college credit, she said.

"There are no film studios in Montana, Wyoming, or Idaho, so this will provide an opportunity for youths to learn the trade so that when films come here, they can work," Wells said.

The nonprofit institute offers college credit through a partnership with Stephens College in Missouri, she said, and teaches actors how to break into the film industry.

But the institute does not have a building of its own — right now it shares space with a private company, she said. Besides money raised by the festival, Wells is seeking federal grants and private donations for the school.

Charles Lewis Hartgrave - Kimberly

Charles Lewis Hartgrave, 74, of Kimberly, passed away Friday, July 23, 2004, at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls, surrounded by his loving family after a courageous battle with leukemia.

He was born Dec. 16, 1929, in Elsmere, Neb. The son of Lewis and Velma Hartgrave. He served in the Army during the Korean Conflict and spent most of his time in Germany. Charles married Margie June Oxon on May 26, 1954 in Oxon, Neb. They spent 50 years of their lives together. From this union they were blessed with three children.

Charles and Margie's marriage began in Ainsworth, Neb., where he worked in the lumber yard. They then moved to Idaho, settling in the Murtaugh area in 1960, where he worked as an irrigator and farm hand. In 1974 Charles was employed by Mogan-Lindsay bean warehouse in Kimberly, which changed ownership several times during the years; he retired in 1995. In 1982 Charles and Margie moved to Kimberly. He enjoyed gardening, hunting, fishing and spending time with his family. He was always willing to lend a helping hand. He also enjoyed visiting with the neighborhood children and keeping their bicycle tires pumped up. Charles always made time to stop and visit with people. He attended the Crossroads United Methodist Church in Kimberly. Charles is survived by his wife, Margie of Kimberly; his sons, Charles Lefroy (Susan) Hartgrave of Twin Falls and Roger Alan (Necia) Hartgrave of Kimberly; and one daughter, Margie Lynn (Daren) Backer of Kimberly. He is also survived by six grandchildren, David (Jennifer) Hartgrave, Victoria (Joel) Eisenberg, Austin Hartgrave, Mathew (Shannon) Hartgrave, Mark (Laraine) and Jennifer Eastler, and four great-grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters. He was preceded in death by his parents and one sister.

Charles was a great husband, dad, grandpa and friend. He will be missed by all who crossed his path.

At his request no services will be held. The family suggests memorials to the Mountain States Tumor Institute, 190 E. Bannock, Boise, ID 83712-6297. Cremation was under the direction of Park's Magic Valley Funeral Home and Crematory of Twin Falls.

Gordon Lyle 'Sam' Thomas

Gordon Lyle "Sam" Thomas, 69, a former Twin Falls resident and businessman, passed away on Wednesday, July 28, 2004, due to an accident while working on his ranch in Malad, Idaho.

He was born Sept. 13, 1934, in Malad, a son of Robert Lewis and Juanita Miranda Stowe Thomas. Sam graduated from Malad High School, where he was active in football, boxing and baseball. He then attended Snow College and played football there, as well.

He married Josie Hyde on May 25, 1956, in Downey. Sam managed Chevron stations in Utah and Idaho. He lived in Twin Falls for several years where he and Josie raised their children and he operated Sam's Chevron on Addison Avenue. In 1979, Sam pursued his lifelong dream of returning and operating the Thomas Family Ranch. He built a home there, where he and Josie have since resided. Sam worked hard on the ranch to make a living. Sam's dedication and hard work has been an inspiration to his children and grandchildren, who loved him. Family and friends alike will recall many memorable times spent on the ranch with Sam and Josie.

He is survived by his wife of Malad; two sons and two daughters, all living in Twin Falls; and five grandchildren: Thomas, Robert Brent (Pam) Thomas, Kathy Jo (Don) Barnes and Denise Thomas; nine grandchildren, Sammy Jo (Mike) Mogenson, Darcy (Lyle) Hancock, William Jean Thomas, Kody Thomas Barnes (currently serving in the U.S. Marine Corp in Iraq), Tracy Lynn Thomas, Josh K. Barnes, Robert Lewis Thomas, Gordon Lee Thomas and Austin Lyle Thomas; one great-grandson, Gage Gordon Thomas; three brothers, all of Malad, Darrell Thomas, Monte (Alice) Thomas and William (Ruth) Thomas; three sisters, Norma Thomas of Malad, Lorraine Starkey of Nampa and Nola (Bill) Coats of Battle Mountain, Nev.; and a very special family friend, Jimmy Lash of Jerome.

He was preceded in death by his parents and one brother, Robert Grant Thomas. A funeral service will be held 12 noon on Monday, Aug. 2, 2004, in the Malad LDS 3rd Ward Chapel, 400 N. 200 W. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday evening at the Horsley Funeral Home, 132 W. 300 N., Malad, and from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Monday at the funeral home. Burial will be in the Malad City Cemetery.

Court: Informants may be used to get search warrants

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals reversed a lower court decision suppressing evidence in the case against a Bingham County man accused of drug trafficking. The decision means the state may use evidence collected in a drug bust against Jeffrey William Chandler, who also faces a charge of drug trafficking from his arrest on April 3, 2003. According to court documents, state police Detective Kyle Fullmer spoke with confidential informants on three occasions and received information about drug deals happening at Chandler's residence.

Fire damages home

TWIN FALLS — Fire officials were called to the 100 block of Burley for a report of a structure fire.

Three engines, one command rig and 11 personnel arrived at the scene around 6:40 p.m. Thursday, said Battalion Chief Dick Capps of the Twin Falls Fire Department.

He declined to release the owner's name.

The fire started in the kitchen from a pan being left on the stove, Capps said.

No one was injured in the fire. The house sustained $20,000 worth of damage. Damage to the home's contents was estimated at $5,000.

The house is not habitable, Capps said.

Firefighters got the blaze under control around 7:40 that night.

Jerome fire rating will improve in October

JEROME — A ratings bureau has upgraded the city of Jerome. The improvement should mean a decrease in insurance premiums to local businesses, industries and residents, according to a news release issued by the city of Jerome.

The new rating goes into effect Oct. 1. The Idaho Survey & Ratings Bureau Inc. reviewed information on the city provided, and upgraded the city's fire rating from a 4 to a 3, the release said. A 1 is the best possible rating a city can achieve.

Fire ratings are based on a number of elements, including alarm systems, the number and type of local firefighting apparatus, training, manpower, water system capabilities, fire inspections and more.

"The improvement to the city's overall fire rating is quite an accomplishment," Jerome Mayor Charles Correll said in the press release. "Chief (Jim) Auckler and the members of the Jerome City Fire Department have always been dedicated to providing the highest level of fire protection

Fed offers feed help because of drought

TWIN FALLS — National assistance will be available to livestock producers who have been affected by drought.

The Idaho State Department of Agriculture said that Idaho livestock producers will be eligible for a national feed assistance initiative, the Nonfat Dry Milk Livestock Feed Assistance program, according to a news release issued by the department.

Feed assistance is available only to foundation herds of beef cattle, buffalo, sheep and goats. Blaine, Camas, Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Mindokka and Twin Falls counties are among those eligible for aid.

Idaho has been allocated 42,842 pounds of dry milk, which includes a roll-over from last year's allotment, the release says.

The deadline to enroll in the program is Oct. 28, 2004. Information is available at www.idahoag.us, or by contacting Mary Symms-Pollot by phone (208) 332-8538, by fax (208) 334-2879 or by e-mail msymms@idahoag.us.

Summer residents from Arizona plan hike

TWIN FALLS — Arizona residents spending the summer in the Magic Valley area are invited to join a hike on the canyon rim at 8 a.m. Monday.

Participants will meet at the Buzz Angleton Visitor Center on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. Breakfast will follow at 9 a.m. at IJOP across the street from the visitor center.

Tire burnout contest draws crowd in M-C

By Tammy Walquist
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Tires squealed and rubber flew during the Hot July Nights burnout competition held in the old Rite Aid parking lot Friday night.

During the burnout competition, competitors spun their tires trying to produce the most smoke — and the most crowd response.

Just down from where all the rubber and smoke were flying, the Show and Shine competition was being held, allowing residents the opportunity to exhibit their souped-up and shiny cars.

The event was well received by the community.

"I couldn't have asked for a better turnout. People wanted to come out," said Denise Martin, co-owner of P-Z Money Auto in Burley. She and her husband, Mark, sponsored the event.

"A lot of people were getting out of their houses instead of sitting at home," said Daniel Higley of Heyburn. "This was a social event."

Thirty-two cars competed in the burnout competition.

The grand prize for the evening was a $300 set of tires given by Commercial Tire, Davy Hale, of Burley, was the winner.

The tire on his pickup blew out during the event, much to the delight of the crowd.

Some drivers made special preparations on their cars for the evening. "I put some new U-joints on the driveline and a different set of tires on my car for the event," said Burley resident Tony Hernandez, who drove his '89 Ford Mustang in the competition.

The event provided an outlet for people who previously had nowhere else to turn. Michelle Green and her husband Mark, who was one of the competitors in the burnout competition, used to go to Drag City Raceway in Pocatello every weekend. Since it closed, they haven't had anywhere else to go.

"I thought this was pretty cool," said drivers making special preparations on their organization, we can't express the extent of our gratitude," Curtis said. "You couldn't ask to work with better people, all the way through."

Curtis also said he appreciated the cooperation of Heyburn and Mindokka County officials who could have fought the donation but were able to see the future benefits to their communities.

The majority of the facility lies in Mindokka County outside the city limits of Heyburn. Cities are not allowed to pay property taxes, but personal property taxes will be assessed on equipment and inventory of businesses that lease parts of the facility in the future.

Personal property taxes will go primarily to Mindokka County, but Heyburn and Burley will receive tax money from businesses occupying those portions of the facility that lie within respective city limits.

Councilman Gordon Hansen said the donation and development of the property would turn the tragedy of the plant's closure into a blessing if new businesses and new jobs come to the area.

Other documents signed Friday include two donation bargain and sale deeds" containing descriptions of the properties on each side of the river and water rights associated with each, Stone said.

Another document dealt with the company discharging pollution control permits that the city will now have to assume. City Administrator Mark Milton said no costs are incurred by taking over the permits except at renewal, which will involve negotiation with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality.

Milton met with Carl Cook, a senior partner with the Boyer Company, Friday morning to work out details of a contract for the company to take over management and development of the facility. The contract is expected to be ready Aug. 17, Milton said.

"We'll ask the city of Heyburn to keep an eye on it for us," Milton told the council when asked about security at the facility prior to the takeover by Boyer employees. Milton said he would make sure the Heyburn Police Department got a set of keys to the facility.

"I'm sure there will be issues as we go, but I'm sure they'll be handled by Boyer," Milton said. By a stroke of luck the city hadn't sold a meter machine last month as a ruckie man. Milton said the employee is familiar with all systems in the facility.

"It's important to have someone on board who knows where things are at," Mondahl said. "It's not something we can overlook."

Burley resident Vaughn Egan attended the meeting and asked if it would be possible for the city to provide electrical power to the facility.

Milton said the law requires that power be purchased from the city of Heyburn, but that as the facility is occupied rates could come down.

"Our goal there in the future, so we can make the facility competitive, is to have Heyburn supply the power and increase the load so we can get it at a discount," Milton said.

Heyburn has scheduled a public hearing on industrial power rates at the Aug. 11 meeting of the city council. Anderson said the J.R. Simplot Co. would receive tax benefits from the donation but that city officials do not know the details of the benefits expected.

A community comes together

The possibility of more business in Burley was a plus for many residents.

"This event brings people into our town, and they'll have to stop and buy something," said Burley resident Amy Peters.

The Martins spent three weeks putting the event together, footing the bill themselves. In order to get approval for the event, they had to provide special use insurance for the evening and get permission from the city to host the show on city-owned property.

"We'd like to give special thanks to the City of Burley for loaning us this place," Denise said. "We'd also like to thank all the people who came out and supported it."

The idea for the event came to Mark one night when he was out spinning tires in his car lot. "We thought we'd do this and see if everybody wanted to participate and have fun," he said.

The show of community support also meant a lot to the Martins.

"It's nice to play a part in the community," Denise said. "We don't just sell automobiles."

Fair

entire ensemble including the purse was $7.69, Rienstra said, adding that thriftiness is just one skill children can learn in 4-H.

Ingenuity is another. A lamb baby, one of triplets, received a broken leg on their farm.

"The mama sheep stepped on one when she was turning around to check on the babies," said Dawn Welborn, Judy Rienstra's daughter.

"Her leg was flapping," Rienstra said.

Dawn and her girls fashioned a splint from a toilet paper roll, duct-taped it on the lamb's leg and left it on for a month.

"When you live on a farm it's kind of expensive to go to the vet," Rienstra said. "You have to improvise."

The lamb will be shown by one of Dawn Welborn's daughters in the Bottle Baby Brigade today.

The Bottle Baby Brigade is an event where children who are too young to participate in regular 4-H projects show off baby animals at the sale ring.

"4-H has taught my family many lessons, Rienstra said. "It taught you that you could do anything you put your mind to," she said.

Prepping for the win

On Friday, some of the 4-Hers prepared to show their animals by using innovative methods. Gary Weber had set his mind to making The Red Baron, his red Angus, look better.

He sprayed the contents of an aerosol can on the animal's hair as he carded it in an upward motion.

"It's heavy duty hairspray," Weber said. "You want it on there. It makes their butt look wider and their shoulders look wider."

Lewis Rice was helping his son Dakota with last-minute tips about showing his market steer.

Dakota won the grand champion prize for market steer for his animal, appropriately named Champion.

Something added

While Linda Thomas was enjoying watching her neighbors' children show their animals, she noticed some of the changes that had happened since the last time she visited the rodeo.

"The fence is really nice," she said, eyeing the new enclosure around the show ring that was installed in 1998. "Before, the animals would get loose and everybody had to chase them."

Holly H. Cook, a member of the fair board, commented on some of the other changes as she worked sweeping dust off the sidewalk in front of the rodeo concession stand.

"It's a nice carnival," she said. "Most of the time we don't have the bigger rides like we do this year."

Over the years, money from the rodeo concession stand has been used for projects such as the new sidewalk and the concrete wheelchair-seating area put in this year.

"Last year quite a few came in wheelchairs," Cook said. "We made a little pad out there."

She is happy with attendance this year, which she said has been good.

She is also pleased by all those who pitched in to help, including volunteer ticket-takers, food booth and beer garden workers and those like the rodeo people who stayed late to help with cleaning.

"Last night it was two o'clock," Cook said. "Then I clean the offices after that."

Groups seek to list Jackson Lake snail as threatened

The Associated Press

JACKSON, Wyo. — A coalition of scientists and conservationists have petitioned for federal protection of a rare freshwater snail living in Jackson Lake.

The lake is the uppermost reservoir on the Snake River and supplies water to the Twin Falls and Northside canal companies.

If the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service lists the snail as threatened under the Endangered Species Act it could alter how the Bureau of Reclamation manages the lake, which is located in Grand Teton National Park. The bureau would have to account for it when deciding lake levels and water releases from Jackson Lake Dam.

The snail is related to other endangered snails, including the Idaho springsnail, the Harney Lake springsnail and the Columbia springsnail, according to a recent study.

"The science clearly shows the Jackson Lake, Harney Lake, Columbia and Idaho springsnails are all threatened with extinction," said Peter Bowler, a University of California ecologist, who has studied springsnails for over 25 years.

Jeremy Nichols, of the Wyoming-based Biodiversity Conservation Alliance, said listing the snail would force the Bureau of Reclamation to give wildlife the snail priority as flood control and water storage. The Alliance, which joined the petition, wants the bureau to manage Jackson Lake more as a natural lake than a reservoir, he said.

Bureau spokeswoman Diana Cross said Thursday that it's too soon to say whether the snail could impact water operations at Jackson Lake. If the Fish and Wildlife Service agrees to list the species, the bureau would consult with the service to determine what measures should be taken to protect the snail, she said.

State converts warehouse into prison

BOISE (AP) — The Department of Corrections has converted an agricultural facility into a 100-bed annex to the South Idaho Correctional Institution to help manage the state's growing prison population.

The annex, built with federal funds, will open in early October and house community custody offenders.

In 2003, prison populations nationwide experienced the largest increase in four years. Idaho's incarcerated population grew by 486 offenders between June 2003 and June 2004.

Officials say the prison system is routinely over 100% capacity. There are 6,317 offenders incarcerated in the state.

Since January, the department has added more than 250 beds to deal with overcrowding. The South Idaho Correctional Institution and St. Anthony Work Camp are using tents to house offenders, and the Pocatello Women's Correctional Center and North Idaho Correctional Institution are using cots.

Officials say the five community work centers throughout Idaho defray costs otherwise shouldered by the state.

It cost $1.08 million to convert the annex, compared with roughly $3 million it would have cost to build a 100-bed facility.

It was finished in less than a year and funded mostly from a federal grant. The state paid $100,000.

Officials expect good steelhead return

LEWISTON (AP) — Fishery managers are expecting another good steelhead return this year.

"If you look at the last five years," said Scott Marshall, a fisheries biologist for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, "it would probably be pretty close to that."

The Technical Advisory Committee of fisheries managers from state, federal and tribal governments, including Marshall, estimates nearly 370,000 steelhead will return to Bonville Dam, the first dam on the Columbia River. That would be up only slightly from last year's 365,600.

The A-run fish that head to the Snake, Salmon, Grande Ronde and Imnaha rivers were estimated at nearly 307,000 while the B-run fish that return later in the fall to the Clearwater will account for the rest.

While Marshall views predictions about the number of fish that will clear Lower Granite Dam, the last on the Lower Snake River before the Idaho border, he said it is likely the runs will total around 145,000. Last year, just over 172,000 fish crossed Lower Granite.

The run has fallen off significantly since almost 270,000 fish crossed Lower Granite in 2001.

The continued strong return should offer another good steelhead season for anglers.

The mouth of the Clearwater River opens to catch-and-keep steelhead fishing on Sunday, a month earlier than normal.

Federal agents kill wolf in Idaho

BOISE (AP) — Federal wildlife officials killed one gray wolf Friday and may take up to two more animals from the Hazard Lake pack in the backcountry north of McCall, in west-central Idaho, authorities said.

The male adult was trapped and killed Friday. Idaho wildlife authorities exterminated the largest wolf pack in Idaho a few miles to the west.

The Hazard Lake pack, which had seven wolves but now has been believed to be responsible for the killing of several domestic sheep. A guard dog was also injured and another is missing from the attack Thursday morning, said Jeff Foss, field supervisor for the Snake River office of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The animals belonged to the same rancher who lost more than 100 sheep during previous weeks to the Cook pack. All nine wolves of that pack were also killed.

"Despite our use of nonlethal measures, the wolves have not been deterred" from attacking the sheep, Foss said from his Boise office Friday. The agency may kill two more members of the Hazard pack, five of which wear radio collars.

Government trackers have already placed traps in the area, Foss said. However, if the pack's top female wolf is caught, she will be released to take care of potential young offspring.

"We are taking an incremental approach to additional control actions. If it's not effective, we could authorize additional kills, he said.

The Cook and Hazard packs in the McCall area are among nine of the estimated 37 wolf packs in Idaho blamed for the loss of 118 sheep, 13 calves and six guard dogs last year.

Thirty-five Canadian wolves were released in the central Idaho wilderness in 1995 and 1996 as part of the program to reintroduce wolves in the Northern Rockies. The population has grown to an estimated 400, a large enough number to justify removing them from protection under the Endangered Species Act.

Analysts: Spurt of growth puts economy back on track

BOISE (AP) — An unexpected growth spurt last fall, particularly in the housing sector, has bolstered the outlook for Idaho's economy.

"The momentum displayed in the latter half of 2003 is expected to lift the economy to a higher and more solid footing," economist Derek Santos concluded in the mid-year economic forecast released Friday.

The analysis, issued by the Division of Financial Management, essentially reaffirmed the overall outlook economists had in January. At that time, Gov. Dirk Kempthorne outlined an extremely conservative multi-year budget plan intended to maintain core state services and still permit the temporary penny increase in the state sales tax to expire as scheduled next July.

Chief economist Michael Ferguson's view had dimmed in the spring before the state got more firm figures. Economic activity in late 2003 showed a stronger recovery than previously believed from the near-recession of 2002, when the state's non-farm payroll expanded by just two jobs.

That convinced Ferguson to restore most of the thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars in personal income he stripped from the spring assessment. He put nonfarm employment growth at 1.6 percent this year and next, double 2003 growth, while the increase in the average annual wage should be above 3.5 percent, more than twice the increase in the past two years.

But the job mix has shifted since the year began. Traditionally higher-paying manufacturing jobs have given way to lower-paying, nonproduction jobs, which now provide more than 82 percent of Idaho's paychecks. Since the end of 2001, the state has lost 11,000 goods-producing jobs and replaced them with 24,000 service-sector-related jobs, the forecast showed. Idaho's average annual wage increased over that period by 8 percent, one percentage point less than the increase nationally.

"I'm glad some people are getting to work," AFL-CIO President Dave Whalley said.

Shark extract may save surfers

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Excited by the scent of blood, a dozen sharks dart about in a frenzy as a researcher dips a pole in the sea and squirts out a yellowish substance. Within seconds, the sharks jerk their snouts away and vanish.

Researchers say they finally have found a potent repellent to drive away sharks, after testing off Bimini Island in the Bahamas. It's a goal that eluded scientists for decades.

If proven effective, the repellent one day might protect divers, surfers and swimmers. But researchers say that would require much more study. First they hope it can protect sharks — in decline worldwide due to overfishing — by reducing the numbers caught needlessly by long-line commercial fishermen.

"You introduce this chemical, and they all leave," said lead researcher Eric Stroud, a 30-year-old chemical engineer from Oak Ridge, N.J. "It works very, very well."

The repellent, called A-2 because it was the second recipe tried, is derived from extracts of dead sharks that Stroud gathered at New Jersey fish markets and piers. Fishermen and scientists have long noted sharks stay away if they smell a dead shark.

"We have something that really works, but research remains," said Samuel Gruber, a University of Miami marine biologist and shark expert who is helping conduct tests at the Bimini Biological Field Station.

Tests have found the repellent effective on three species: the Caribbean reef, blacknose and lemon sharks. Studies are needed on other species such as the great white, mako and oceanic whitetip.

Gruber said the repellent seems to carry a chemical messenger that triggers a flight reaction. He said more studies are needed to pinpoint the active molecule among a dozen or so.

A dose of 4 fluid ounces is enough to scare away feeding sharks. Stroud said, keeping them away from a fish head for two hours with just a few drops per minute. In contrast, sharks didn't respond to a red dye in control tests.

The researchers presented their work in May during a meeting of the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists in Norman, Okla. Films of their tests captured images of sharks splashing the surface as they turn to flee.

They hope to make a slow-dissolving repellent for use in bait or fishing nets, and to guard equipment on submarines and oil exploration vessels that sharks have damaged in the past.

Nesler's life ranges from difficult upbringing to murder allegations

SONORA, Calif. (AP) — William Nesler was once known as a young rape victim whose vigilante mother walked into a courtroom and shot his accused molester five times in the head 11 years ago.

Since the acts that led to that day, Nesler's life has never been the same.

He has been in jail nearly 20 times in the past five years, in cases ranging from complaints about his Rottweiler to robbery and drug charges. And now he is wanted for murder for allegedly beating a disabled neighbor to death, just an hour after completing a jail sentence for attacking the same man in a dispute over tools. Authorities do not know where he is hiding, but they consider him armed and dangerous.

Although they recognize that his upbringing has played a role in his troubles, friends and family members said they were still surprised by the murder allegations.

"He was a great kid," said Sacramento bounty hunter Leonard Padilla, a family friend. "I would never have believed it would come to something like this, though a lot of times there's a progression of activity."

When Nesler was young, his parents left the faded gold rush towns of the Sierra Nevada foothills in the hopes of striking it rich by mining in Africa, family members said. The couple eventually split and Elle Nesler returned with William — known as Willie — and his sister to California.

When Willie was 6 or 7 years old he allegedly was molested by Daniel Driver at a Christian camp. He didn't tell anyone for nearly a year because Driver had threatened to kill his family.

After two years on the lam, Driver was arrested and brought to court on April 2, 1993, for a hearing on whether he would face trial on charges of molesting Nesler and three other boys.

"Elle Nesler said her son couldn't testify. He was vomiting. She feared the twice-convicted molester would walk free.

During a recess, she pulled a Raven .25-caliber semiautomatic pistol from the purse of her other sister, Jan Martinez, and shot Driver in the head.

"He deserved to die," she told police. "Maybe I'm not God, but I'll tell you what — I'm the closest damn thing to it for all the other little boys."

She later said, "My little boy can hold his head up now. He doesn't have to be afraid of Danny."

During Elle Nesler's trial, Martinez testified that the abuse changed her nephew from "a very beautiful little kid... into a mean little brat." By age 11, he had changed schools three times and was spiteful and angry.

Elle Nesler, derided by some for taking the law into her own hands and praised by others for exacting her own justice, served only three years of a 10-year manslaughter sentence when a court overturned the conviction due to juror misconduct. She is now in a California prison for charges related to manufacturing methamphetamine.

Authorities say William Nesler has been chronically unemployed in recent years. Cory Nirlich said his father gave Nesler a little work helping tear down part of a former gravel plant next door to where Nesler lived. Although he stood 6-foot-2, weighed 225 pounds and was covered with tattoos of comic book characters, he was mostly just a shy observer who seemed out of place.

"He acted like a little kid. He'd come up and watch us," Nirlich said. "My dad always said he was like a 12-year-old in a 25-year-old body."

Rhode Island charges man for killings

WOONSOCKET, R.I. (AP) — A man was charged Friday with murdering three women with histories of drug abuse and prostitution and discharging their remains in commercial trash bins throughout town.

Jeffrey S. Mailhot, who police said had no previous criminal record, was jailed without bail on three counts of first-degree murder. He did not enter a plea and a message left by his attorney was not immediately returned.

Following an anonymous tip, Mailhot was arrested more than a week ago on two unrelated assault charges for allegedly trying to choke two women this week. Police said those cases were the break they needed to connect Mailhot with the deaths of Stacie Goulet, Christine Dumont, and Audrey Harris.

Goulet, 25, was a mother of two and pregnant with her third child, authorities said.

Krista Ornel, the daughter of Gerald and Lucy Ornel of Piler, was recognized for receiving a William Kent Wiley Jr. Graduate Fellowship for academic achievement at the Oregon State University Crop and Soil Science Department annual Student Honors and Awards Buffet June 2 in Corvallis, Ore.

Former T.F. resident receives film degree

Stacey L. Lulich of Twin Falls has received a Masters of Fine

Arts degree in film from Boston University in Boston, Mass.

Linfold College awards degrees to students

Casey Thomas Turner of Twin Falls received his Bachelor of Science in physics, and Leah Marie Moore of Wendell received a Bachelor of Science in health education from Linfold College in McMinnville, Ore.

Local places on dean's list at Emory College

James Tarter of Twin Falls was named to the dean's list at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., for the 2004 spring semester. Tarter is the son of Drs. James Gordon Tarter and Victoria Dalia Laucius of Twin Falls.

Kimberly High School student receives award

LeEllen Garner was selected to receive the United States University of Idaho Distinguished Student Award. Garner is a senior at Kimberly High School, science team president, debate and speech team captain and served as senior class treasurer. She is a member of Business Professionals of America, Spanish Club, National Forensics League, Idaho Hunter Jumper Association and Boise Saddle and Jump Club; participated in volleyball and track and field; volunteered for the Salvation Army food drive, Pregnancy Crisis Center banquet, Red Cross blood drive and a highway cleanup program; and has been a part of the National Helper program for three years. She is active in her church with Bible Club and teaches Sunday school. The award recognizes excellence in academics, citizenship and the role of education in Idaho.

Transportation board honors T.F. Elks Lodge for highway cleanup

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Transportation Board presented leaders of Elks Lodge No. 2807 in Twin Falls with the District 4 Adopt-A-Highway group of the year award. Elks members were so committed to keeping their adopted segment of U.S. 93 clean that they continued participating in the Idaho Transportation Department's Adopt-A-Highway program even after the lodge relocated, the department reported. They merely picked a stretch closer to their new home.

Lodge representatives received a plaque and a clock made from a simulated Idaho license plate during the board's monthly meeting.

For the past two years, they have been cleaning a two-mile segment of the highway between Twin Falls and Shoshone. Lodge members have been involved in the highway cleanup campaign since the early 1990s.

"I have appreciated working with Stan (Novacek) and the Elks group," said Shawn Webb, coordinator for District 4. "They can always be counted on to clean their section at least twice a year."

Participants usually turn the workday into a social gathering, beginning with coffee and doughnuts at the lodge on a Saturday morning. Even members who are physically unable to pick up trash assist by driving support vehicles, carrying extra bags and providing refreshments.

Bottles, cans and paper trash are among the most common roadside castaways. Less frequently, cleanup crews come across truck tires or other large items. Items inadequately secured on recreational vehicles — especially covers from roof-mounted air conditioners — occasionally make their way to the side of the highway.

For information about adopting a stretch of highway, call Shadie Swenard at 334-8465 or (800) 443-2878.

SCHOLAR HONORS

Idaho Promise Scholarship recipients and future College of Southern Idaho students Belinda Turley, left, and Amanda Blastock, both Twin Falls High School graduates, met with Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne during his visit to Twin Falls. Kempthorne has actively promoted the scholarships, which offer $250 per semester to freshman and sophomore students who attend an Idaho college or university, CSI reported. CSI matches that amount each semester. While recipients must show better than average grade proficiency, the scholarship is not dependent upon financial need. For information, call CSI Scholarship Coordinator Mary Jo Benoit at 732-8227.

American Heritage Academy held its first Skandi Dag, or Scandinavian Day, recently at Freedom Park in Burley. The event was a great success with more than 300 people attending, organizers say. The event featured a wide variety of Scandinavian foods and activities, races, live entertainment and information booths about the various Scandinavian countries. Organizers plan to expand the event next year.

HAPPENINGS AT MINIDOKA MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Minidoka Memorial Hospital's Relay For Life team members Cheryl Green and Elizabeth Rios and JB's Restaurant employees Heather Sumpter and Halley Hoard take a break during the second annual Relay For Life team fund-raiser. Hospital team members spent a day buseling tables and assisting the JB's Restaurant servers in an effort to raise funds for the Relay, which raises money for the American Cancer Society. The servers from JB's also donated their tips for the day. This year, almost $350 was raised through their efforts.

Extended Care Facility staff members at Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert participated in the 'Jungle Safari' held in honor of National Nursing Home Week. The staff members treated the residents to a week of activities, food, entertainment and family get-togethers. Each day of the week was filled with an activity in which family and friends could participate. An ice cream social, flea day, family barbecue and pet parade were just a few of the other activities.

Youth can sign up for Miss Chiquitita contest

Powell promises to speed reconstruction aid

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Secretary of State Colin Powell said Friday the United States will speed delivery to Iraq of billions of dollars in reconstruction aid that the Congress approved last year. Powell disclosed the plan during a news conference in which he vowed that terrorist violence in Iraq will be defeated — only to be challenged by an Iraqi journalist who defended the right of Iraqis to

"kick out" occupiers. Powell made an unannounced nine-hour visit here, the highest ranking U.S. official to come to Iraq since American administrators turned political power over to an Iraqi interim government on June 28. The interim government received a boost Friday as NATO countries agreed to begin training Iraqi security forces. Secretary-General Jaap de Hoop Scheffer said a 40-member advance team would leave for Iraq as soon as possible. Powell met with President Ghazi al-Yawer and Deputy Prime Minister Barham Saleh. He had met with Prime Minister Ayad Allawi on Thursday in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Powell offered no figures of projected reconstruction aid deliveries. But Saleh said $9 billion would be obligated by December. Powell said he believes a faster-paced reconstruction effort will enhance public support for the interim government. "We want to rebuild the in-fracture. We want to create jobs," he said. "We want to show the Iraqi people that this money is being used for their benefit and do it as quickly as we can." U.S. lawmakers and others have said the administration has moved too slowly in converting $18 billion in reconstruction aid into projects on the ground in Iraq. To date only $458 million has been spent, officials said, blaming red tape. "Reconstruction and security are two sides of the same coin," Powell said. Improving the economy and restoring vital services such as water and electricity "contribute to a sense of safety and a secure environment," he said. Powell heaped praise on the Iraqi leadership for their attempts to put the country on a democratic path despite great danger from armed opponents.

NATO will help train Iraqi force

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO countries agreed Friday to begin training Iraqi security forces after sidestepping a dispute between the United States and France over command of the alliance operation. Secretary-General Jaap de Hoop Scheffer said a 40-member advance team would leave for Iraq "as soon as possible" to begin the training and would report back in September about proposed relations with the U.S.-led multinational force. "It's a distinct NATO mission," de Hoop Scheffer told reporters. "The multinational force will give protection" and "there should be a relationship between the training mission and multinational force in Iraq." The decision means the alliance can assume a role in Iraq — something eagerly sought by the U.S. administration — even though the differences between Paris and Washington remain unresolved. "NATO was quite derailed before and at the beginning stages of the Iraq war," U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Burns told reporters. "Today's decision for us represents the unification of NATO, the NATO flag is definitely going to be in Baghdad." "All allies are determined to see a democratic Iraq succeed. They are united in their commitment to help Iraq provide its own peace and its own security," de Hoop Scheffer said.

Pakistani official survives bombing

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A suicide bomber blew himself up next to a car carrying Pakistan's prime minister-designate Friday, getting close enough to kill his driver and at least four other people, and spraying shrapnel into a crowd of supporters gathered to hear the politician. About three dozen people were wounded, hospital officials said, some seriously. The assassination attempt against Shaukat Aziz occurred just hours after authorities announced the capture of a senior al-Qaida terrorist, and a day after Pakistan acknowledged it was considering sending troops to Iraq. Suspicion immediately fell on Islamic militants enraged at President Gen. Pervez Musharraf's support for the U.S.-led war on terror. Pakistan said the arrest of Ahmed Khalif Ghallani — a Tanzanian with a $25 million bounty on his head in the United States for his alleged role in the 1998 East African embassy attacks — was "a major blow" to Osama bin Laden's al-Qaida network.

U.N. tells Sudan it must disarm groups

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council adopted a U.S.-drafted resolution Friday that gave Sudan 30 days to disarm Arab militias blamed for killing thousands in the Darfur region or else face diplomatic and economic punishment. Sudan rejected the resolution. The resolution was adopted with 13 votes, with China and Pakistan abstaining, despite U.S. efforts to create conditions by deleting the word "sanctions" from the text. The United States said the resolution was a tough warning to Sudan to rein in the militias.

Idaho will receive federal ag grant

BOISE — Idaho will be one of 23 states to receive a grant provided under the Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program, Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman said this week.

The Idaho State Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Idaho Potato Commission and the Potato Growers of Idaho, will receive $50,000 to conduct a national survey to assess the preferences and buying habits of consumers of fresh potatoes.

"This important grant funding will allow us to enhance the Idaho agricultural marketing program," said David H. Smith, director of Idaho's Department of Agriculture.

Boise Cascade Corp. announces dividends

BURLEY — Boise Cascade Corp. — which has a containerized container plant in Burley and an OfficeMax store in Twin Falls — announced today a regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents per common share, payable on October 15 to shareholders of record on October 1.

The company also declared a regular semiannual dividend of $1.66 on the company's convertible preferred stock, Series D. This dividend is payable on December 28 to shareholders of record on December 14.

The company, based in Boise, owns or controls more than 2 million acres of timberland, primarily in the United States, to support its manufacturing operations. In the first half of 2004, Boise Cascade's sales were $6.9 billion.

Agribusiness firm posts $103M loss

DECATUR, Ill. — Agribusiness giant Archer Daniels Midland Co. — which has operations in Jerome County — lost $103 million in the fiscal fourth quarter, pushed into the red by a hefty legal settlement. Its operating results were short of Wall Street's expectations.

The loss reported Friday for the April-through-June quarter amounted to 16 cents a share, compared with earnings of $95 million, or 15 cents a share, a year earlier.

Results from the quarter were dominated by a $252 million after-tax charge related to the settlement of fructose litigation. Revenues were $9.7 billion, up 20 percent from $8 billion a year earlier and some $1 billion better than analysts' estimates.

ADM said its oilseed processing unit had a $15 million operating loss for the quarter, blaming Chinese contract defaults that had a significant impact on global oilseed markets.

Net earnings for the fiscal year were $494.7 million, or 76 cents a share, compared with $451.1 million, or 70 cents a share, a year earlier. Revenues were $36.2 billion, up 18 percent from $30.7 billion in fiscal 2003.

Target sells Mervyn's for $1.65 billion

MINNEAPOLIS — Target Corp. announced Thursday it is selling its Mervyn's business unit and retail stores to an investment consortium for roughly $1.65 billion in cash. The terms of the agreement, Target — which operates a Twin Falls store — will sell its Mervyn's retail subsidiary, including 257 Mervyn's stores and four distribution centers, to an investment consortium, which includes Sun Capital Partners, Inc.; Cerberus Capital Management, L.P.; and Lubert-Adler/Klaff and Partners, LP.

In addition, Target will sell Mervyn's credit card receivables, totaling approximately $475 million, to GE Consumer Finance, a unit of General Electric.

Mervyn's, a middle-market department store with 257 stores in 13 states, including a store in Boise, will continue to operate as an independent company from its headquarters in Hayward, Calif.

Tourism groups win awards

By Megan Hinds
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The tourism billboards and brochures that promote travel and outdoor opportunities in south-central Idaho could be a little brighter and more colorful soon.

Eight area organizations that promote Idaho's tourism industry received a total of almost $500,000 in grants this week from the Idaho Travel Council.

The money is part of the state's regional travel and convention grant fund, which is funded by the collection of a 2 percent lodging tax on hotel, motel and private campground stays.

Forty-five percent is used for statewide tourism promotion, and the remainder is returned through grants to local chambers of commerce, convention and visitor bureaus and other nonprofit tourism promotion groups.

This year, the program awarded a total of $2.4 million to 30 Idaho organizations.

The South Central Idaho Tourism & Recreation Development Association, known as SCITRDA, received $103,037 through the grant program. Debbie Dane, the association's president, said Friday that the news was "still kind of sinking in."

SCITRDA received an additional $5,000 over what was originally requested, Dane said. "When you (apply for) grants, you always hope to be fully funded, and we were," she said.

The extra $5,000 will go toward development of a marketing program designed to draw more group tours to Magic Valley, Dane said.

The rest of the money will help SCITRDA improve its promotional billboards found along Interstate 84, create new tourism brochures and strengthen its regional marketing and advertising in travel guides and magazines.

Dane said the grant money will also provide for improvements to SCITRDA's Web site, www.visitosouthidaho.com.

The 5-year-old Web site is in the process of "being completely revamped," Dane said.

"You always have to stay current," she said.

Idaho's tourism industry holds numerous possibilities for the state, Idaho Commerce and Labor Director Roger Mad-

CEO will get salary, bonus in prison

The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Unlike many inmates in federal prison, Andrew Wiederhorn won't have to worry about finding a job when he's released. In fact, the CEO of Fog Cutter Capital Group will be making $2.5 million while he sits in a cell serving his 18-month sentence.

The board of directors of his company voted to keep Wiederhorn on the payroll and even make him eligible for a bonus after he pleaded guilty to a pair of felonies in the financial collapse of another company that loaned him $160 million.

The Fog Cutter deal is nearly unprecedented in the post-Enron era of corporate scandal, when domestic diva Martha Stewart voluntarily resigned her top post after she was indicted in a stock trading scandal, and most top Enron executives quit or were fired after the giant energy company declared bankruptcy.

"It's incredibly unusual," said Mark DeFond, a University of Southern California business professor. "These issues of management integrity have always been important and have never been more important than now."

As Wiederhorn prepares to report to federal prison Monday, U.S. Attorney General Alberto Gonzales warned it could be delisted from the Nasdaq Stock Exchange and its auditors have resigned.

But Wiederhorn still insists that his case is different from Enron or Stewart because he relied on the professional advice of attorneys and accountants to make decisions that ultimately resulted in his convictions.

Unlike Stewart, convicted of lying to federal investigators, and Enron founder Kenneth Lay, accused of fraud and conspiracy, Wiederhorn argues he was guilty only of technical violations. He insisted the criminal intent required of those felonies.

Andrew Wiederhorn is shown during an interview July 19, in Portland, Ore. Wiederhorn will be making $2.5 million while he sits in a cell serving his 18-month sentence.

"The government assured us from the beginning that they were trying to determine whether or not there was intent," Wiederhorn said. "And if there was no intent, and I sincerely relied upon counsel and accountants and all kinds of advisers who were professionals, then that was it, they would walk away."

About a year ago, Wiederhorn said, after being under investigation for nearly four years, he and his attorneys felt "there was a changing of the tides."

"They were looking to see if they could make a case stick," Wiederhorn said. "I don't know if that's a sign of the times, from the environment we're in, and all the other unrelated but dramatic corporate scandals."

Lance Caldwell, the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted

Wiederhorn, said the case was complicated and suffered from the loss of its star witness, Jeffrey Grayson, the founder and former CEO of Capital Consultants, the company that loaned Wiederhorn $160 million before Capital Consultants collapsed in September 2000 and was seized by federal regulators.

Grayson suffered a debilitating stroke in May 2002 and has been unable to testify.

Caldwell said Wiederhorn's reliance on attorneys and accountants also was a factor in reaching a plea agreement.

But the Fog Cutter decision to pay Wiederhorn while he is in prison and provide $2 million in restitution on his behalf came as a complete surprise to prosecutors the morning after the plea was entered.

"We had no hint that Fog Cutter intended to retain Wiederhorn or reimburse him," Caldwell said.

Wiederhorn, 38, earned a reputation as a financial wunderkind in the early 1990s as he turned investments in the secondary mortgage loan market into a public company by 1997. By the end of that year, he had become one of the five highest-paid chief executives in Oregon, joining the ranks of top executives of established companies such as Louisiana-Pacific, Tektronix, Mentor Graphics and Sequent Computer Systems.

His success financed a high-flying lifestyle that included the usual corporate accoutrements — a private jet, mansion, vacation home, expensive cars.

But within a year, in 1998, financial problems in Eastern

Economy slows in spring as consumers cut back

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy slowed dramatically in the spring to an annual growth rate of 3 percent, as consumers, worried about higher gasoline prices, cut back their spending to the weakest pace in three years, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The April-June advance in the gross domestic product, the country's output of goods and services, was below the 3.8 percent increase many economists had expected and was significantly down from a revised 4.5 percent growth rate in the first three months of the year.

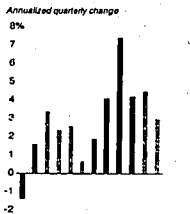

The administration, counting on a rebounding economy to bolster President Bush's re-election prospects, insisted the second-quarter slowdown was only temporary and forecast that growth would rebound in the second half of the year.

Treasury Secretary John Snow noted the upward revision of the first-quarter GDP figures with the lower-than-expected second quarter figure. If the two figures were averaged together, he said, it gave evidence of an economy growing at a solid 3.75 percent rate.

"We're on a positive track, and the fundamentals are solid for the future," Snow said in a statement.

Private economists were troubled that the second-quarter slowdown could develop into something worse, especially if job growth fails to rebound after a disappointing report of just 112,000 payroll jobs in June. The July jobs data will be released next Friday.

"All in all, the GDP was a disappointing report," said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Economy.com. "All the surprises were on the downside."

The biggest drag came from consumer spending, which rose by just 1 percent in the second quarter, the weakest showing since a similar 1 percent rise in the second quarter of 2001, when the economy was in recession. Consumer spending, a main driver of the recovery, accounts for two-thirds of American economic activity.

The weakness came from a 2.5 percent decline in spending on big-ticket items such as automobiles.

Analysts noted, however, that auto sales, after a bad June, have improved in July as dealers resumed offering incentives to boost sales. Economists said they still expect GDP growth to come in at 4 percent or better rate in the second half of the year, which would be strong enough to generate new jobs and maintain the decline in unemployment.

Campaigning for a second term, Bush talks often of the economy's creation of 1.5 million new jobs in the past 10 months. His Democratic challenger, John Kerry, argues that this still leaves the country with 11 million underemployed. Bush took office in January 2001.

Herbert Hoover and is subjecting Americans to a "middle-class squeeze" of falling wages and rising costs for health care and education.

Friday's GDP report was the latest indication that the economy, which had been racing ahead in recent months, has what Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan described as a "soft patch" in June.

Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Wells Fargo in Minneapolis, said the problem was that many of the factors that had provided stimuli, such as Bush's tax cuts and low interest rates supplied by the Fed, were beginning to wane. The Fed raised interest rates for the first time in four years on June 30 with more rate hikes expected in coming months.

Sohn said the GDP report provided evidence that other sectors were beginning to take up the slack, with business investment rising at a solid 8.9 percent rate, propelled by a 10 percent increase in sales of equipment and software.

Inflation remained tame in the second quarter, as reflected by a GDP inflation gauge favored by Greenspan, excluding energy and food, prices rose an annual rate of just 1.8 percent, down slightly from a 2.1 percent increase in the first quarter.

Oil giant's profit more than doubles

The Associated Press

SAN RAMON, Calif. — ChevronTexaco Corp.'s second-quarter profit more than doubled as high energy prices extended a recent roll that is shaping into the most prosperous stretch in the oil giant's 125-year history.

The San Ramon-based company said Friday that it earned $4.13 billion, or $3.88 per share, for the three months ended in June.

That compared with net income of $1.6 billion, or $1.50 per share, at the same time last year.

The results included a $585 million gain from the company's sale of some Canadian assets and a $255 million benefit from changes in income tax laws governing some of ChevronTexaco's international operations.

Even after subtracting those special items, ChevronTexaco's earnings would have been $3.09 per share — beating the consensus estimate of $2.72 among analysts polled by Thomson First Call.

Revenue for the period totaled $36.3 billion, a 31 percent increase from $29.3 billion last year.

"I am very pleased with our performance," ChevronTexaco Chairman Dave O'Reilly said. "The company's shares rose 22 cents to $95.70 in morning trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange."

The second quarter continued the momentum ChevronTexaco enjoyed during the first three months of the year when oil prices began an ascent that has required motorists across the country to pay more than $2 per gallon for gasoline.

The highest gas prices have been in California, where ChevronTexaco is a market leader.

Through the first half of the year, ChevronTexaco earned $6.69 billion, or $6.28 per share, a 90 percent improvement from $3.52 billion, or $3.31 a share, the same time in 2003.

Revenue rose to $71.97 billion from $60.15 billion in the first half of 2003.

The industry's soaring profits are being driven by oil prices that have soared above $40 per barrel.

Even if the prices decline slightly, the oil industry is likely to remain flush through at least the remainder of this year, predicts an industry analyst Fadel Gheit of Oppenheimer & Co.

"As long as the price of crude oil remains above $30 per barrel, companies will be printing money," he said. ChevronTexaco is particularly well positioned to capitalize on high oil prices, Gheit said, because of the company's prominence in the California market and the organizational fine tuning that has occurred since Chevron took over Texaco in a $39 billion merger completed in 2001.

The huge profits being raked in by ChevronTexaco and other major oil companies have fueled consumer complaints about price gouging — charges that industry executives have vehemently denied.

Stocks rise despite slow GDP growth

NEW YORK (AP) — Another late rally gave Wall Street a modest advance Friday despite a spike in oil prices...

With the GDP rising by just 3 percent in the second quarter — Wall Street had expected a 3.8 percent — the slowdown in the economy was more severe than first thought...

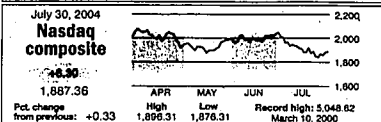

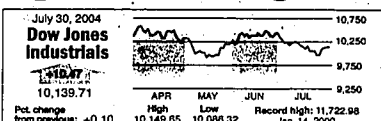

Only an afternoon surge of buying — the second this week — pushed stocks higher. Analysts expect the next-day buying is common at the start of the month as mutual funds and large investors adjust portfolios and purchase options.

Climbing oil prices also gave investors more to worry about. A barrel of light sweet crude closed at the record $43.80, up $1.05, on the New York Mercantile Exchange...

"Oil prices may go up even further before they go down," said Keith Keenan, vice president of institutional trading at Wall Street Academy...

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 10.47, or 0.1 percent, to 10,139.71. The Dow was up for the fourth straight session, the first time that's happened since early April.

Broader stock indicators were narrowly higher. The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose up 1.29, or 0.1 percent, to 1,101.77, and the Nasdaq composite index gained 6.30, or 0.3 percent, to 1,867.36.

the week higher. The Dow gained 1.29 percent after five weeks of losses, the S&P 500 rose 1.4 percent after six losing weeks and the Nasdaq was up 2.1 percent after four down weeks.

However, despite the week's gains, the market ended July sharply lower. For the month, the Dow fell 2.8 percent, the S&P 500 was down 3.4 percent and the Nasdaq suffered a 7.8 percent loss.

Concerns over third- and fourth-quarter earnings, oil prices and economic health outweighed an otherwise strong case for gains.

Take the GDP data as an important indicator for the overall health of the economy. Investors already knew that the economy hit a "soft spot," as Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan put it, in June.

However, some investors were consoled by the fact that inflation no longer seems to be an issue, and that the Fed might raise its plans for future interest rate hikes.

Despite the slowdown, consumer confidence rose in July. The University of Michigan's consumer confidence index rose to 96.7 for the month, up from 95.6 in June and better than the 96 reading Wall Street had expected.

Retailer Target Corp. will generate $1.65 billion in cash with the sale of its struggling Mervyn's department stores to an investment consortium. Target was down 73 cents at $43.60.

ChevronTexaco Corp. climbed 17 cents to $95.65 as it announced a doubling of its second-quarter profits from a year ago.

The petroleum giant blew past Wall Street expectations by $1.12 cents per share, though its price includes 79 cents per share in one-time benefits.

Micron slips to third-largest computer memory manufacturer

BOISE (AP) — Micron Technology is losing market share to Hynix Semiconductor, dropping to the third-largest computer memory manufacturer in the world...

Sill, despite predictions that the Boise-based company could rebound further to fourth-largest, analysts say the loss was less important than Micron's effort at diversifying its product line.

Losing a ranking in the DRAM market share table should not make a major difference, only to their pride," said industry analyst Danae Norwood...

Former Enron executive pleads guilty, agrees to cooperate with prosecutors

HOUSTON (AP) — The man who once led Enron Corp.'s high-speed Internet unit pleaded guilty Friday to securities fraud and agreed to help federal prosecutors on other cases related to the energy giant's collapse.

Kenneth Rice faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $1 million for the single fraud count. Sentencing was set for Jan. 31. The plea deal also requires him to forfeit $13.7 million in cash and property.

Rice was charged in May 2003 with selling 1.2 million shares of Enron stock for more than $76 million while he knew Enron Broadband Services was failing.

Kingdom. The important thing for Micron is to be profitable. The DRAM industry will continue to be highly cyclical, and if Micron wants its business to become more stable, then diversification must happen."

Micron spokesman Dave Parker said the slip was only temporary and the firm will regain its second-largest ranking by the end of the year.

"Very simply, our design and process technology developments have once again put us ahead of the competition," said Parker.

He said Micron's changes "will keep us as the most efficient semiconductor memory manufacturer in the world, and one of the largest."

Micron has more than 9,500 workers in the Boise region. Computer memory chips — called DRAM — are the company's primary product, but Micron earlier this year began shifting more of its production lines to other electronic chips.

Micron Chief Financial Officer Steve Appleton has warned analysts throughout the spring that the shift would cause a short-term loss of market share.

But Norwood said Micron was likely to shift to fourth place behind Infineon Technologies of Germany.

Micron shares were down 8 cents, trading at $13.44 early Friday afternoon on the New York Stock Exchange.

Rice, who has been fined on $3 million bond, is one of 30 people charged in the government's 2.5-year investigation into the Enron collapse, including the company's founder and former chairman, Kenneth Lay, and former CEO Jeffrey Skilling, a major broadband cheerleader during Enron's halcyon days.

Rice quit the company in 2001, months before Enron was said. He had served as CEO of Enron's trading unit, then called Enron Capital and Trade, from 1996 to 1999 before taking over the broadband unit. The six others charged in the broadband indictment, including Joseph H. Hirsko, the unit's former co-CEO, all have pleaded innocent and are set for trial in October.

Rice had been forced upon indictment to forfeit jewelry including a sapphire-and-diamond necklace and bracelet belonging to his wife.

The District Judge Vanessa Gilmore also placed a hold on a Shelby sports coupe and a particularly expensive 1995 Ferrari that Rice owned, meaning he couldn't keep them but couldn't sell them.

The judge said she didn't want the cars "dinged up" in an impound lot.

Internet tracks historical events

By Justin Bachman AP Business Writer

Old enough to recall the days before the Internet took over everything? What if we had it for the past century, and you could have tracked a major historical event? Which would have been atop your list? Sixty-five percent of the 1,200 Internet users asked that question said they wished the first lunar landing had been broadcast online.

More than half, 54 percent, also cited President Kennedy's assassination, and 52 percent said the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

In other findings, television star Paris Hilton ranked first when people were asked who had had their own celebrity "biography" on the Internet. "The pudgy 'dancing baby' was cited second, by 21 percent of people, and online newsstand survey Matt Drudge by 13 percent.

The survey was commissioned by Atlanta-based Internet service provider EarthLink Inc.

CEO

Continued from D1. Europe and Asia triggered an international monetary crisis that ultimately forced Wiedermann to seek loans to shore up a company that had become dangerously overextended.

Wiedermann said nobody saw the crisis coming, and financial analysts, accountants, attorneys and prosecutors all agreed with him on that point in interviews about his former company, the Wilshire Financial Services Group.

He turned to Grayson and Capital Consultants for help, Wiedermann said he was relying on another company that had built a solid reputation but also was struggling financially.

The difficulty, Wiedermann said, is that he was trying to rebuild his company while unknown to anybody. Capital Consultants was being kept out of the company while unknown to anybody. Capital Consultants was being kept out of the company while unknown to anybody.

Wiedermann said he became collateral damage when the $10 million loan from Capital Consultants pulled him into the federal investigation of Grayson.

He was forced to lure defense attorneys who ended up battling with his business attorneys over the money to handle the loan and his taxes.

Lanny Davis, former special counsel to President Clinton, led a team that eventually negotiated the plea deal that will send Wiedermann to federal prison, despite what Davis has repeatedly insisted - in interviews and in newspaper editorials - is a case of overzealous prosecution.

The net impugning the integrity or the sincerity of the prosecutors - they made valid, good-faith judgments and I'm not questioning them," Davis said.

But the most important observation I can make is that we're in an age where accusation and even innuendo, which is less than accusation, becomes a surrogate for guilt," he said.

Davis noted that Wiedermann has taken personal responsibility for the losses suffered by the Capital Consultants pension funds that loaned him money and that the pension funds were eventually reimbursed for much of it.

He also emphasized that the plea deal involved the terms of the company and Fog Cutter is not involved in any way with Wilshire or the investigation that led to the conviction.

But regret and even reimbursement still do not change the effect of a guilty plea to a federal felony, said David Ruder, former chairman of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and now a North-western University law professor.

"This reminds me very much of Michael Milken and attempts to alleviate his guilt," Ruder said, referring to the former junk bond king of Wall Street who went to prison for two years after pleading guilty to fraud and conspiracy charges.

Ruder said Milken avoided other potential convictions with a plea agreement, and then worked to rehabilitate his image, but the fact remained that he had committed felonies.

Wiedermann will have to live with his conviction no matter whether he returns to his new company or is released from prison, Ruder said.

"Eighteen months is a tremendous penalty for a person like that, just as five months for Martha Stewart is tremendous," he said.

White-collar crime, any jail time is extremely significant," Caldwell said he could not comment on the specifics of the Wiedermann case.

In general, he noted that cases such as Enron and Martha Stewart accompany an economic downturn.

"Financial or corporate fraud often follows a period of excess or a bubble in valuations of stock, bond or real estate assets," Caldwell said. "When everyone is making money, fraud or corruption is obscured. But when the bubble bursts, these things are revealed."

God has a sense of humor

The Kansas City Star

Reader's Question: Does God have a sense of humor, and, if so, how is it evident?
The Rev. Yolanda Villa, executive director of congregational care, United Methodist Church of the Resurrection, Lenwood, Kan.: As I ponder your question, an images come to mind.

Faith Q & A
Genesis 18, which describes a conversation between Abraham (Sarah's husband) and a messenger of God. The conversation is about a promise from God for Sarah and Abraham to become parents of a nation. The promise came in the form of a son even though she is past the child-bearing years. When Sarah overhears the conversation, she laughs. The reader lets that, indeed, Sarah does bear a son. The couple is moved to name the boy-child Isaac, which translated means "he laughs." Human beings have an inherent quality within that, express joy and laugh. And when I study the actions and faces of creatures like elephants, monkeys, and other animals, surely God was laughing when God made them.

Finding

church brought in Harry Weese, who left a "pierced wall" of brick behind the altar to remind worshippers of the Crucifixion. The Rev. Robert Schuller has invited the group to meet in 2005 at the Philip Johnson-designed Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, Calif. The Academy of Neuroscience for Architecture, an AIA affiliate based in San Diego, also is working on the work of psychiatrist Dr. Andrew Newberg of the University of Pennsylvania. His experiments with Franciscan nuns and Buddhist monks showed him that they meditate in states in which they felt united with a greater spirit or force. The roots of that experience might lie in how the brain works. Many neuroscientists believe parts of the brain are wired by billions of nerve cells that work within fractions of a second to form sensations, memories and feelings. The brain does this with an estimated 60,000 miles of neural wiring. When the setting is a synagogue or a cathedral, the way it looks or sounds can enhance or diminish the worship experience.

A CONTAGIOUS SPIRIT OF JOY AND PERSEVERANCE

Elderly amputee uses his gift of song to inspire others

By Jessica Valdez
The Washington Post

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md. — The Sunday congregation rocked with the steady pulse of two words, "Lord God, Lord God, Lord God," as bodies swayed and hands clapped.

Enter Elmer Mackall. With two partially amputated legs, 80-year-old Mackall was wheeled to the front of this makeshift church inside a small jazzercise studio in Southern Maryland. He held the microphone like an old creek. Then his raspy voice led the congregation, his wide eyes searching upward and a broad smile slipping across his face. "In his voice, you hear years of joy and hardship," said Rory Turner, the program director of folk and traditional arts for the Maryland State Arts Council. "You hear a great sense of personal integrity and spirituality. It's contagious. He makes you feel happy."

Earlier this month, Mackall performed at the Smithsonian Folklife Festival on the Mall, a setting far removed from the Whole Heart Deliverance Temple, his nephew's church in Prince Frederick.

After decades of singing in close-knit churches — "Every time somebody dies in Calvert County, they call him," joked one of his daughters — Mackall (pronounced MAKE-ALL) has drawn the attention of region-wide music experts and historians. He recently received an arts council award and, with the help of friends, has recorded a CD.

"He says without music he'll die," said daughter Thelma Claggett, 49, who lives with him in Prince Frederick. She and two of her sisters, Margaret Copeland, 50, and Ollie Williams, 56, accompanied Mackall to the Folklife Festival. Mackall sings about hope and faith, but he has endured a life of hardship. The descendant of slaves in Calvert, he eked out a living as a sharecropper and tobacco farm laborer. Severe health problems began in the mid-1990s, when congenitally poor circulation led doctors to amputate his left leg below the knee. He lost much of his right leg to surgery last summer. He also suffers from emphysema, and in January doctors diagnosed early stages of dementia, Claggett said.

Many of the spirituals he performs were passed on from his mother, Rosie, who sang in churches across Southern Maryland with her 17 children. He taught himself to play piano as a child.

For a time in his 20s — he "wild days," he calls them — he strayed from his mother's teachings and sang in local bars.

In between sharecropping and, later, maintenance work, he helped raise nine children: two boys and seven girls.

Minister gave her life to a God who loves no matter what

By Berta Delgado
The Dallas Morning News

Paula White says, "Out of our pain ... we find our power, not just for ourselves but to help others." The Tampa, Fla., pastor appears to know of what she speaks.

Her father committed suicide when she was 5. After his death, she was sexually abused by trusted friends, relatives and neighbors for seven years. At 18, she had a child out of wedlock. Her father, she says, was acquainted with a God who loved her regardless of her past, and she gave her life to him.

"The mother of four now ministers to women at the Wall, a church she hosts 'Paula White Today,' carried on cable networks including TBN, Daystar and BET. (See www.paulawhite.org.) She and husband, the Rev. Randy White, lead Tampa's 18,000-member Without Walls International Church. They call it "the perfect church for people who aren't."

In her new book, "Deal With It! You Cannot Conquer What You Will Not Confront," she writes that psychologists say it's a miracle she didn't wind up institutionalized, after all she's been through. Bishop T.D. Jakes, the head of the Potter's House in Dallas, has been described as her mentor.

Charisse Strawberry was looking for a home church — a place where she wouldn't be judged because of who she was. As the wife of Darryl Strawberry, the troubled eight-time baseball All-Star, she was used to the stares. Her husband had abused substances and was arrested for allegedly abusing her. He cheated on his taxes and cheated on her. "All my stuff was public," Charisse Strawberry said.

"Everything was out there."

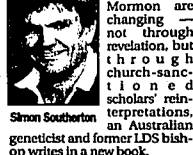

One Sunday three years ago, while her husband was still in prison, she slipped into Without Walls International Church in Tampa, Fla., not expecting much. She'd never sat under a white preacher. But Randy and Paula White left an impression.

She now works as an assistant to Paula White, accompanying the pastor on speaking engagements.

Scientist: DNA research and LDS scholars change basic beliefs

By Patty Henetz
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Fundamental teachings of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints about the lineage of Jesus in the Book of Mormon are changing — not through revelation, but through church-sanctioned scholarship.

Simon Southerton, an Australian geneticist and former LDS bishop writes in a new book. In "Losing a Lost Tribe: Native Americans, DNA and the Mormon Church," author Simon Southerton applies his own and others' DNA research to Mormon beliefs, while also examining the writings of Brigham Young University scholars at the Foundation for Ancient Research and Mormon Studies, or FARMs.

Indians and Polynesians have a historic bond with ancient Israelites. While the question of whether such a connection exists may seem like an arcane theological point to outsiders, yet some Mormons, a religious tradition would be startling and disturbing.

Indeed, Southerton himself, once a bishop leading a local congregation in Brisbane, Australia, left the church because of his conclusion that no such tie exists. A senior researcher with the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization in Canberra, Australia, Southerton also takes aim at FARMs' assertions that the Book of Mormon's events could only have occurred in parts of Mexico and Guatemala. That interpretation goes against traditional church teachings that Book of Mormon events took place across the Western Hemisphere and that Native Americans are the descendants of the Hebrews who settled the Americas in 600 B.C., he notes. For a century or so, scientists have theorized that Asians migrated to the Americas across a land bridge at least 14,000 years ago. Over the past 20 years, researchers examining American Indian and Polynesian DNA have found no evidence of Israelite ancestry. But Mormons have been taught to believe that the Book of Mormon is a literal record of God's dealings with the ancient inhabitants of the Americas called Lamanites. They are said to have descended from the Israelite patriarch Lehi, who sailed to the New World around 600 B.C.

The church teaches that Joseph Smith translated this record in the 1820s from gold plates he unearthed on a hillside near Palmyra, N.Y. The Book of Mormon, first published in 1830, describes how the Jews who landed in the Americas split into two nations, one light-skinned and culturally advanced, the other inferior and cursed by God with dark skin. Through most of the thousand years included in the Book of Mormon the two nations warred, until the light-skinned people succumbed to wickedness and the dark-skinned race conquered them. Mormons believe the dark-skinned race — Lamanites — are American Indians' principal ancestors.

Traditionally, and with apparent endorsement from the church's leaders, Mormons have understood the Book of Mormon to cover all of the Americas in what is known as the hemispheric model. At a BYU living temple dedication in 2000, church President Gordon B. Hinckley prayed, "We remember before Thee the sons and daughters of Father Lehi." And in 1982, the church's then-President Spencer Kimball told Samoans, Maori, Tahitians and Hawaiians that the "Lord calls you Lamanites." But FARMs writers focusing on the Book of Mormon's descriptions of how long it took the ancient peoples to get from one place to another now believe the events occurred on hundreds of miles from each other, not thousands. That raises new questions — including how to explain the vast growth in the Americas' population by the time Europeans began colonization. Both the LDS church and the BYU scholars disagree with Southerton's conclusions. On its Web site, under "Mistakes in the News," the church declares, "Recent attacks on the veracity of the Book of Mormon based on DNA evidence are ill considered. Nothing in the Book of Mormon precludes migration into the Americas by peoples of Asiatic origin. The scientific issues relating to DNA, however, are numerous and complex."

BYU political science professor and FARMs director Noel Reynolds said the foundation's research and writings are not aimed at proving or disproving the Book of Mormon. While believing a hemispheric model might be considered "naive," Reynolds said, "It's also fair to say that the majority of LDS over a period of time have accepted a hemispheric view, including church leaders." Church spokesman Dale Bils said the church teaches only that the events recorded in the Book of Mormon took place somewhere in the Americas.

Pulling strings from pulpit?

By Helen T. Gray
The Kansas City Star

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Which of the following pastors may cost his congregation its tax-exempt status?

In the pulpit, Pastor Smith reminds his congregation that a church member is running for political office. "He's a good man; let's support him. You can pick up campaign literature in the vestibule."

At another church, Pastor Brown delivers a blistering sermon opposing gay marriages. "Get a voter guide after service. It shows how candidates voted on this and other issues of concern to us."

If you've picked Pastor Smith, you're right.

Pastor Smith strayed by endorsing a candidate from the pulpit. Pastor Brown struck to the law by just sticking to the issues.

The involvement of clergy, churches and synagogues in politics is not new. One example is the role they played during the civil rights era. But just how clergy become involved varies.

Ways have included shaping congregational opinion on issues or actions to solve social problems, such as when a professor at Clemson University. "Many clergy perceive their involvement in programs, such as sheltering the homeless, feeding the hungry and helping women with various circumstances, as being political in nature. All religious traditions have their own approaches to politics, so no one tradition should be singled out as being more political than any other. Lots of people like to point to evangelical Protestants as being quite political, but they are no more politicized than any other group. They are just more uniform in their (conservative) political beliefs than most other religious groups."

The issue this year that has galvanized conservatives is the gay marriage issue. That clergy are doing the organizing concerns Caroline McKnight of the Mainstream Coalition, a group that supports the separation of church and state.

The rules come from federal income tax laws, administered by the IRS. What's not allowed seems pretty straightforward: Tax-exempt organizations, including houses of worship, "are absolutely prohibited from directly or indirectly participating in, or intervening in, any political campaign on behalf of (or opposition to) any candidate for elective public office. Contributions to political campaign funds or public statements of position (verbal or written) made by or on behalf of the organization in favor of or in opposition to any candidate for public office clearly violate the prohibition against political campaign activity."

Violation can mean the loss of tax-exempt status.

Clergy need to be careful about sermons taking a position on an issue while also issuing a voter guide that names candidates and their positions on that issue, said Rob Boston, spokesman for Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

What is permitted, however, is more than most people may think. Federal tax laws do allow houses of worship to engage in lobbying or voter education activities and activities that encourage people to register and vote and to participate in the electoral process.

The guidelines

Among the guidelines for clergy and congregations offered by Americans United for Separation of Church and State:

- DO'S
  - They may sponsor voter registration drives and even help people get to the polls.
  - They may sponsor nonpartisan candidate forums, inviting all candidates for the office. The questions should be broad, not just covering moral or social issues of concern to that congregation.
  - They may take stands on political and moral issues.
- DON'TS
  - They may not distribute letters of endorsement or opposition printed on church letterhead.
  - They may not distribute campaign literature.
  - They may not display campaign signs on church property.
  - Pastors may not advise congregants to vote for or against candidates from the pulpit.

Despite the rules, there appear to be ways around some of them.

For example, in many black churches it is not uncommon for a candidate to speak but not his or her opponent, said Fredrick Harris, director of the Center for the Study of African-American Politics at the University of Rochester. They get around this by inviting candidates they prefer to be their "men's day" or "women's day" speaker or speaker on some other program. They may choose to have a candidate forum during the week, or the minister may recognize a candidate as a "friend of his or hers."

FOR IRAQI CHRISTIANS

They see shadow of security in uncertain times

By Bill Broadway
The Washington Post

Islam has been the dominant religion in the Tigris-Euphrates valley for 1,400 years. Christians have been there for two millennia and maintain a quiet presence today in what is now Iraq.

Estimates of Iraqi Christian population range from 600,000 to 800,000 — roughly 3 percent of the overall population of 25 million.

Christians, who practiced with relative freedom under Saddam Hussein, are leaving — or trying to leave — out of fear that a Muslim-dominated government will control Iraq, said the Rev. Jean Benjamin Sleiman, Latin-rite (Roman Catholic) archbishop of Baghdad.

Most Iraqi Christians are Chaldeans, Eastern-rite Catholics from the Babylonian-Mesopotamian region of Chaldea, where the patriarch Abraham was born.

Other Christians include Roman and Syrian Catholics; Assyrians (Church of the East); Greek, Syrian and Armenian Orthodox; and Presbyterians, Anglicans and evangelicals.

Sleiman, 58, is a Lebanese-born Carmelite priest who heads the Chaldean mission at the Paris Catholic Institute and in anthropology from the Sorbonne. He speaks six languages, including Arabic and English, and became archbishop of Baghdad in January 2001.

Since the U.S.-led coalition began massing troops on Iraq's borders, Sleiman has spoken of the need for a multinational reconstruction and peace effort, criticizing the coalition's dismantling of the Iraqi military, condemned foreign evangelicals for openly trying to convert the Muslims and urged Iraqi Christians not to desert their country.

Sleiman spoke Saturday at a Carmelite conference in Chicago, hosted by the Washington, D.C.-based Carmelite Institute, and answered questions:

Q. Before the war, many Iraqi Christians worried that a Shi-

Rev. Jean Benjamin Sleiman, shown at St. Joseph's in Baghdad, has spoken of the need for a multinational reconstruction and peace effort, criticized the coalition's dismantling of the Iraqi military, condemned foreign evangelicals for trying to convert Muslims and urged Iraqi Christians not to desert their country.

ite-led government, or one influenced by Shiites (60 percent of the population), would oppress Christians. What do you think?

A. That's very true. An Islamic regime — that is, a theocratic regime — will be more oppressive and more alienating than every other tyrannical regime. It will take away the freedom of conscience, basic human rights and the freedom of culture. But I am sure that many Muslims oppose a theocratic regime. So I hope, with the assistance of the international community, and especially with the aid of the U.S.A., the future Iraqi society will be a little bit more democratic, more humane.

Q. What would you like most to tell Americans about the political, religious and social situation in Iraq?

A. I will say that Iraqi society has been oppressed for a long time. Minds were imprisoned and didn't evolve. So after liberation, the society fell into anarchy and confusion. It will take time to find internal peace, to reconcile Iraqis with their history, even with themselves. To that end, I want to emphasize the important role of the United States, which as the leader of the world has a human and deeply ethical mission in Iraq. Military intervention cannot renew this society; economic projects are unable to give this society, as we say according to Holy Bible, a "new heart." It's the values that America lives and defends — religious faith, freedom, dignity of men and women, morality — that can help people change their minds, to help them evolve in their culture. The idea of the person as a free, responsible and autonomous individual isn't recognized in Iraq.

Lutherans ordain openly gay pastor

MINNEAPOLIS — Jay Wiesner has become the Twin Cities' third openly gay pastor in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, defying a denominational policy that is under review.

Current ELCA policy forbids ordination of candidates in same-sex relationships but allows openly gay clergy who are committed to celibacy. According to Lutheran Lesbian & Gay Ministries, Wiesner and his partner of five years, Timothy Anthony, were formally married May 1 at Bethany Lutheran Church, where he will be installed on the staff next month.

Anthony was ordained Sunday at Bethany, though Minneapolis' Synod Bishop Craig Johnson did not attend. Bethany's pastor, Steven Benson, said Johnson could impose sanctions ranging from removal of the Bethany congregation from the ELCA rolls to ousting Benson himself.

The 5 million-member denomination, the largest U.S. Lutheran body, is scheduled to act on a report covering its sex and clergy policy at next year's national assembly.

* Politics. Among those who called themselves politically conservative, 50 percent showed high levels of religious commitment, compared with only 18 percent of political liberals.

* Death penalty. It was opposed by 50 percent of the highly religious but only 23 percent of the least religious.

* Sex. Just 7 percent of the highly religious thought it was all right if people who we know each other "a very short time" had sex. But 60 percent of the least religious said it was OK.

* Abortion. Of the highly religious, 24 percent wanted it kept legal as opposed to 79 percent of the least religious.

* Homosexuality. Of the highly religious, 38 percent said they would support "laws prohibiting homosexual relationships," compared with 17 percent of the least religious.

* Marijuana use. Of the highly religious, 17 percent wanted it legalized, compared with 64 percent of the least religious.

Irish scholar takes world Anglican leadership post

LONDON — Canon Kenneth Kearon, director of the Irish School of Ecumenics at Trinity College in Dublin, will be the new secretary general of the Anglican Communion, a body of 77 million believers that has been thrown into turmoil over gay clergy in the past year.

Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams, world Anglicanism's spiritual leader, announced the appointment, Kearon, 50, succeeds Canon John L. Peterson, a priest of the U.S. Episcopal Church who served for a decade and steps down at the end of December.

The secretary general and his

Official vows to continue naming Jesus in prayers

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. — Despite a federal appeals court ruling and a warning from civil liberties lawyers, a City Council member who is also a clergyman said he won't stop saying Jesus' name in prayers to prevent meetings.

"As far as me altering my prayer, it's not going to happen," said Councilman Hashmet Turner, associate minister at the First Baptist Church of Love.

Last week, a three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled unconstitutionally in a South Carolina case that using Jesus' name at town council meetings is unconstitutional government advancement of a particular religion. The American Civil Liberties Union of Virginia then faced a warning letter to Turner along with other City Council members and the city attorney.

Last year, Turner had his name removed from an informal prayer rotation among council members after receiving a previous civil liberties union warning. But after consulting with the Charlottesville-based Rutherford Institute, he decided nothing prevented him from praying as he saw fit.

RELIGION LETTERS

People should widen their media choices

Politics and religion seem to divide a lot of people. I like to listen to different news stations and religions. People who only listen to one news station and religion seem to get brainwashed into believing they know it all. Often we hear someone say they would never negotiate with an enemy in the Bible. Isaiah 11, it says, "Come now, and let us reason together, said the Lord." In Matthew 5:44, Jesus said, "Love your enemies." He also said, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." Bless are the peacemakers, for they are the children of God, the good spirit.

Gibson's movie depicts several inaccuracies

Now that the ballyhoo over Mel Gibson's ignominious blood bath, "The Passion of the Christ," has subsided, I'll tell you some of the inaccuracies.

Nowhere in the Bible is there an incident describing Jesus being knocked or thrown from a bridge. Nowhere in the Bible is there a description of Jesus' forgiveness. Nowhere in the Bible is there a meeting between the wife of Pilate, Claudia, and Mary and Mary Magdalene. Nowhere in the Bible is there a giving of linen cloths from Canada to Mary so that Mary could wipe the pearls of blood from her son's flogging.

There's lots more, but I need space to tell you where the lies came from.

Mel and his father, Hutton

Gibson, a Holocaust denier, belonging to a cult in California. They believe in the supposed revelatory dreams of Catholic nun and mystic Anne Catherine Emmerich, who, in 1853, published her dreams "The Dolomieu Passion of Our Lord Jesus Christ." Mel never gave credit to Emmerich; nor did he explain why it was he who hammered the nails into the Christ figure. I wonder why he believes he has to deceive us?

Mom tires of careless daughter

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are raising our 4-year-old granddaughter, "Nicole." We've had her since she was a year old. Our daughter, "Terri," lives 1,800 miles away and has nothing to do with Nicole. The only time we hear from Terri is when she wants money.

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

During that time we have lived together, and we know each other inside and out. When I told my mother months ago that we were getting married, she dismissed it. She said she didn't have the money to help out with a wedding.

Terri knows that our upstairs apartment is vacant and now she wants to move in. She's six months pregnant, has no job and no help from the father of the baby.

to say this, but I'd rather not have Terri around as an example for the child. Am I wrong? Should I let her come home? —TORN IN ILLINOIS

When we told her we had decided to go to a justice of the peace, she said she'd be gone camping that day. I'd really like for my mother to be there. My father died when I was 8, and she's the only parent I have. I love her dearly and can't figure out why she wouldn't want to be there, because I'm her only child. What's your take on this, Abby? —HURT AND CONFUSED IN OREGON

I have said "no" to her moving back here. She thinks I'm wrong, and so does my husband. When Terri came to visit last Christmas, all we did was fight because of her ways. If she doesn't get her way, she becomes very mean and says ugly things in front of Nicole. I'm sad

DEAR ABBY: I am 18. My boyfriend and I have been together for about two years.

DEAR CONFUSED: That's a question you should be asking your mother. She may have concerns because you are marrying so young. Or she may not approve of your boyfriend. But you will never know the answer unless you ask your mother how she feels about your plans. Please don't wait to do it.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, who is now out of high school and about to go to college, has never had a job. She's turned in a couple of job applications, but it's been two years and she's still unemployed. Our parents are frustrated with her.

Every time I look at the classifieds an ad for her, she yells at me and tells me I'm exactly like our parents. How can I get her to find a job without making her angry?

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You cannot — nor should you — get your sister a job. It's clear she doesn't want one, and until she's motivated, she won't find one.

Who is paying for her college education? Who is giving her spending money? Perhaps when the well runs dry, your sister will get her shovel and start digging.

Interest in Kerry boosts convention viewership

NEW YORK (AP) — Based on television ratings, Americans were more interested in what John Kerry had to say in his nomination acceptance speech than they were for Al Gore in 2000.

Nearly three million fewer viewers watched the convention's final night on those three networks than did in 2000.

An estimated 24.4 million viewers watched Kerry's speech on the six biggest networks Thursday night, compared to 21.1 million people who saw Gore four years earlier, Nielsen Media Research reported on Friday.

The difference came in the cable networks: 15.6 million people watched Kerry speak on ABC, CBS or NBC, while 8.8 million saw it on CNN, Fox News Channel or MSNBC.

Despite Thursday's surge of interest, the overall television rating for the four-day Democratic convention was the lowest it had been since Nielsen began keeping records in 1960. In terms of viewers, it was roughly on a par with 2000, Nielsen said.

The three broadcasters televised three hours of the convention over four days, skipping Tuesday's session entirely. The broadcasters complain the conventions are stage-managed events with little news, and dwindling ratings over the years justify their decisions to cut back on the hours.

ANSWER: Take your courage in your hands and bid three spades. Your opponents are trying to keep you out of the auction, and your heart length implies that partner is likely to have some spade support. If that is the case, your side could easily make game in spades even if you are facing quite a weak hand.
