Off-road restrictions

Jim Bolton, treasurer for the Magic Valley Trail Machines Association, sits atop his KTM 525 EXC trail bike outside J&C Motor Sports Inc. The U.S. Forest Service is proposing a plan to restrict all off-road vehicle use in the Sawtooth National Forest to trails only.

Forest Service mulls new policy

By Michelle Dunlop
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The days of cross-country travel on your four-wheeler or motorcycle could soon come to an end on the Sawtooth National Forest. Forest officials announced Thursday they're taking the first step toward a plan that will restrict motorized vehicles to designated roads and trails within the forest.

The Sawtooth is looking to revise its forest travel plan, taking into consideration public input. Winter use will not be addressed under this plan.

Forest Supervisor Ruth Monahan said the purpose of modifying the current forest travel plan is to enhance recreation opportunities and protect natural resources.

Please see RESTRICTIONS, Page A2

U.S. Forest Service travel plan public meetings

Date	Time	Location	Current status of restricted/unrestricted motorized vehicle use in the Sawtooth National Forest
Sept. 15	4-8 p.m.	Fairfield Forest Service District Office	Approximately 38 percent — about 800,000 acres — of the Sawtooth National Forest is open to cross-country use.
Sept. 15	6-9 p.m.	Malta Elementary School lunchroom	Fifty percent of the Fairfield Ranger District remains open to cross-country use. Most of the unrestricted use falls in the southern portion of that district.
Sept. 16	5:30 p.m.	Burley High School lunchroom	In the Ketchum Ranger District, cross-country use is allowed on 76,000 acres. Unrestricted use in that region can be found around the Green Horn and Deer Creek areas, south of Warm Springs and near Cove Creek on the east side of the Wood River Valley.
Sept. 18	4-7 p.m.	KMYT Community Room in Twin Falls	The Milindoka Ranger District will be affected most by the new travel plan. Nearly 81 percent of its land is open for cross-country use.
Sept. 20	5-8 p.m.	Old Blaine County Courthouse in Hailey	Motorized vehicle use has increased sevenfold over the last 30 years (from 5 million in 1972 to 36 million in 2000).
Sept. 27	4-8 p.m.	Gooding City Library

Other means of public comment

- The public may call at any Sawtooth National Forest office, during normal working hours, to view maps and obtain information.
- To be the most helpful, written comments are requested by Oct. 31. However, public input will be considered up until the plan is prepared for public review.

West Nile infects two in Magic Valley

By Megan Hinds
Times-News writer

GOODING — A Gooding County man and an Elmore County man have tested positive for West Nile virus, and a Twin Falls County woman might have been infected as well, authorities said Thursday.

Both men were in their 50s and had mild forms of the virus, which is spread by infected mosquitoes, said Cheryl Becker, South Central District Health epidemiologist. Neither required hospitalization, and they have recovered completely, she said.

The men are the first Idaho residents believed to have been infected from mosquitoes in Idaho. They likely contracted the virus around the third week of August and experienced symptoms such as joint and muscle pain, fatigue and sweating "for the better part of a week," Becker said.

Please see WEST NILE, Page A2

West Nile tips

Here are some tips to prevent the spread of West Nile virus:

- Reduce standing water on property that provides breeding habitat for mosquitoes.
- Cover up exposed skin when you're outdoors.
- Apply an insect repellent containing DEET to exposed skin and clothing. Follow instructions on the product label, especially for children.
- Avoid mosquitoes when they are most active a dawn and dusk.
- Empty birdbaths and clean decorative ponds every three to six days.
- Report dead birds to your local district health or Idaho Department of Fish and Game office.

- Hailey — 513 N. Main, 789-4335.

Mosquitoes carry West Nile virus

Widespread in Africa and the Midwest, West Nile virus arrived in the United States in 1999 and began to spread.

Transmitted only by insect bite

1. Virus survives winter in body of adult Culex mosquito
2. Infected mosquito "bites" bird, infects it
3. Other mosquitoes bite bird, become infected
4. Infected mosquitoes pass virus to birds, humans or horses, which may develop disease.

Virus causes infection

Human, animal immune systems usually destroy virus in bloodstream

Severe cases, deaths

Risk highest for elderly, children and people with impaired immune systems

Symptoms usually mild:

- Fever
- Headache
- Body aches
- Skin rash
- Swollen lymph nodes

Virus not known to be transmitted by contact with infected birds

Letter to Kempthorne ignites; no injuries were reported

The Associated Press

BOISE — A letter postmarked from a prison in Ely, Nev., to Gov. Dirk Kempthorne ignited Thursday when it was opened in the Capitol. It caused no disruption beyond a brief moment of surprise for some staff members.

Kempthorne spokesman Michael Journee said the envelope contained a blank sheet of paper rigged so that a match held inside it would strike when it was removed from the envelope.

"When the mail guy here opened it, that's what happened and then the match went out," Journee said.

The matter was turned over to Idaho State Police investigators.

The envelope was apparently similar to ones received on Thursday by the governors of Montana, Nebraska and Utah.

In Helena, Mont., the letter also contained a fuse and small plastic bag that authorities initially feared could be an explosive. Parts of the Capitol were evacuated, but a preliminary investigation found no evidence of an explosive.

A nationwide alert sent to governor's offices prevented a rigged letter from being opened in the Utah Capitol.

None of the governors was in their state Capitol when the letters were opened.

Kempthorne, who is recovering from back surgery, arrived later in the morning.

There were no evacuations in Boise, Salt Lake City, or Lincoln, Neb.

Simpson unveils wilderness legislation

By Jennifer Sandmann
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson unveiled Thursday a first draft of the Boulder-White Cloud wilderness and central Idaho economic development legislation he plans to introduce to Congress later this month.

The Republican's bill attempts to resolve 30 years of contention over preservation of the Boulder-White Cloud mountain ranges east of Stanley.

"This draft legislation is a result of working with interested parties, landowners, county officials, ranchers, motorized users and environmentalists. I heard directly from constituents at town hall meetings and have read almost all of the written correspondence. I received a lot of feedback in a statement issued by his office.

"This draft comes close to what I believe provides a win to the interested parties who recreate and make a living in the area."

Government sets a new course on salmon issue

The Associated Press

GRANTS PASS, Ore. — By spending $6 billion on improvements over the next 10 years, the Columbia Basin's federal hydroelectric dams can be operated without jeopardizing the survival of threatened and endangered salmon, the government concluded Thursday.

NAA Fisheries, the federal agency responsible for restoring dwindling salmon runs in the Northwest, came to that conclusion in a 101-page opinion filed with the U.S. District Court in Portland, where a judge had found a 2003 opinion inadequate.

NAA Fisheries has no assurance that mandated measures to protect salmon would actually be carried out by federal agencies.

The latest biological opinion sets a new course for salmon recovery in the Columbia Basin by jettisoning a movement toward restoring the Columbia and Snake rivers to a more natural condition, and acknowledging the dams as part of the landscape that cannot be removed.

The plan drew sharp criticism from environmentalists and Indian tribes, who continue to believe removing four dams on the lower Snake River is the best course to salmon recovery, but support from utilities, irrigators, grain shippers and others who depend on the dams for power, navigation and water.

Under the Endangered Species Act, the operation of the dozens of federal hydroelectric dams, reservoirs and powerhouses on the Columbia and Snake rivers and their tributaries is required.

Powell sees genocide in Sudan

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Colin Powell said for the first time Thursday that genocide was taking place in Sudan and that the government in Khartoum and government-sponsored Arab militias known as janjaweed "bear responsibility" for rapes, killings and other abuses that have left 1.2 million black Africans homeless.

Powell's long-awaited declaration — the result of months of investigation and discussion within the State Department — is intended to increase pressure on the Sudanese government to end the violence in Sudan's Darfur region. But refugee organizations and aid groups said it also will make it much harder for the Bush administration to step away from the problem if its diplomatic efforts are unsuccessful.

Speaking before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Powell said: "We concluded — I concluded — that genocide has been committed in Darfur and that the government of Sudan and the janjaweed bear responsibility — and genocide may still be occurring."

Powell's statement came as the United States began negotiations at the United Nations on a Security Council resolution that threatens to consider new sanctions against Sudan if it fails to crack down on the militias, and calls for the establishment of a U.N. commission of inquiry to determine whether Sudan and the militia are responsible for genocide. A finding of genocide does not impose obligations on the United States, but as a signatory to the 1948 Genocide Convention, the United States is committed to preventing and punishing genocide.

Sudanese officials reacted angrily to Powell's announcement, saying it will only make it more difficult to resolve what they describe as an internal problem. At the United Nations, officials from a number of Security Council members expressed concern that Powell's statement would complicate efforts to win broad support for a new resolution. Both the African Union and the Arab League already have said there is no genocide, while the European Union said it does not have enough information.

Powell cited a report released by the State Department Thursday that found a "consistent and widespread pattern of atrocities committed against non-Arab villagers." The report, based on 1,136 interviews with refugees this summer, said that 61 percent had witnessed the killing of a family member and 16 percent had been raped or had heard about a rape victim. About one-third heard racial epithets while they were being attacked, the report said.

The Boulder-White Cliffs. I look forward to hearing comments regarding this draft of my proposed legislation," he said.

The draft legislation mirrors the last set of changes Simpson announced, his spokesman Lindsay Slater said.

"There is nothing surprisingly new that wasn't in the framework," Slater said.

Simpson attempts to strike a balance among economic needs, recreation access and preservation.

His attempt has been met with resistance by parties who say the plan gives up too much of their interests. Much of the dispute comes between conservationists who want the land protected and off-road vehicle enthusiasts who want access.

Central Idaho community leaders who don't want to lose economic opportunities have said they are resigned to the proposal, which provides them

Bush camp dismisses guard service questions

The Dallas Morning News

AUSTIN, Texas — Democrats seized on new questions about the president's service in the Texas Air National Guard on Thursday while the Bush campaign dismissed the subject as old news.

"The president had not fulfilled his commitment, he would not have been honorably discharged," White House spokesman Scott McClellan said aboard Air Force One.

"The president is proud of his service in the National Guard," Sen. John Kerry and his aides were careful not to get in the way. In Iowa, the Democratic candidate waived off a question about the Guard flap, and his staff was staying tight — at least publicly.

"The questions that have been raised by independent news organizations and official military documents should be answered by President Bush," said Kerry spokesman David Wade.

CBS' "60 Minutes III" reported Wednesday that Bush's squadron commander in Houston suggested in memos that Bush violated a direct order to get a required flight physical, dodged a commitment to fly and failed to perform up to required standards. Questions arose Thursday about the authenticity of documents, which CBS said "came from the personal files of Lt. Col. Jerry Killian."

Other recent news accounts have concluded that Bush failed to complete required service at the tail end of his enlistment.

"George W. Bush needs to answer why he regularly misled the American people about his time in the Guard and who applied political pressure on his behalf to have his performance reviews 'sugar coated,'" Democratic Party chairman Terry McAuliffe said.

McClellan said the hands-off approach by Kerry is disingenuous, and he accused some news media of "buying into the line of attack by the Kerry campaign."

The Kerry campaign has taken up the issue of Bush's service in the past. An April 27 Kerry press release — headlined "Key Unanswered Questions: Bush's record in the National Guard" — and still available on the campaign's Web site — mixes two pages of questions about Bush's service record.

 Tell U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson what you think about his proposed Central Idaho Economic Development and Recreation Act via e-mail at mike.simpson@house.gov or call his natural resources director Laurel Hall at 208-522-6701. Written comments can be mailed to Congressman Mike Simpson, 802 W. Barnock, Suite 600, Boise, 83702. Find the proposed legislation online at www.house.gov/simpson.

A summary of key provisions

- In the bill's first draft
- Boulder Wilderness — 72,500 acres.
 - White Cliffs Wilderness — 74,700 acres.
 - Jerry Peak Wilderness — 146,900 acres.
 - Ernest Hemingway Wilderness — Specific acreage is not noted, but Simpson had proposed 40,000 acres north of Hetchum and east of Idaho Highway 75. The proposed boundaries may be adjusted to continue to allow for hick-skiing in the area.
 - Land transfer — of public land to Custer County and the city of Stanley for economic stimulus. The exact acreage has not been pinned down, but Simpson spokesman Lindsay Slater said it would be closer to 600 acres rather than the 1,000 originally proposed.
- At this point the bill details transferring 96 acres north of Stanley to the city for housing development, including eight acres for up to four homes; and 68 acres for affordable housing for summer work staff and a possible park, community center or educational facility. Development must adhere to scenic preservation standards outlined in the bill.

The bill calls for transferring 300 acres of BLM land near Twin Falls, Boise, Idaho Falls and Pocatello to the state to create off-road vehicle recreation parks. A similar plan already is under way near Twin Falls. The BLM has leased property to Jerome County and others include a possible off-road vehicle area, which could dovetail with Simpson's plan, although joining the two projects hasn't been discussed.

- Land acquisition fund — $5 million to buy private land within or next to the management area from willing sellers to provide for additional public access.
- Federal grant — to Custer County to compensate for tax revenue that would be lost to wilderness preservation in the area. The amount hasn't been specified.
- Trail money — $250,000 to build and maintain mountain bike trails in Idaho.
- Trail money — $500,000 for nonmotorized trail programs including horseback riding in a proposed Boulder-White Cliffs Management Area.
- Specific trails — The bill doesn't get down to the details of which motorized trails would remain open or be closed, but they have been outlined in the proposal framework. It does include new trails that will be paid for with federal money, although costs are not listed.
- Off-road fund — $1 million for a state off-highway vehicle fund.
- Grazing buyouts — the buyout of grazing allotments from willing sellers, although the bill doesn't list a specific buyout amount yet.

Districts must do more to block computer porn

To most people's dismay, and no one's surprise, the shadow of pornography is looming in the enlightened areas of society.

From homes to churches and into halls of public service, the plague of pornography knows no limits or bounds and sinks its hooks into more people. A year ago, Catholic Church officials disciplined a priest, whose Twin Falls computer had contained child pornography. Yet the problem goes well beyond a single denomination.

Our view: School districts should use more caution on computer porn in light of recent state cases involving school personnel take a lead in keeping porn out of the workplace. Children spend most of their time in our schools, and parents place enormous trust in the fact that they are safe from all harmful elements — both physical and mental. It serves a school's interest to protect them from any image or purveyor. Some steps include:

- Internet filters — Filter software, which blocks out porn and spam, is already a common fixture in many libraries and schools. Districts should also take the precaution to monitor Internet use among faculty — just as private companies commonly do with their employees.
- Raising the bar — Districts can't stress enough to educators that downloading images won't be tolerated. The Legislature revised laws to make viewing porn a violation of the teacher code and grounds for revoking certification. Those policies are worth more emphasis.
- Help kids use caution — The Internet remains a powerful research tool that provides volumes of references and facts at your fingertips. Teachers can continue to be an excellent guide in helping kids learn how to avoid illicit images or sites, while exploring all the positives of the Web.

Now, state Department of Education officials say they are dealing with more cases of educators using school computers to download Internet porn.

Keith Potter, an investigator for the department's Professional Standards Commission, said of the 18 cases he investigated last year for standard violations, eight involved pornography. And the problem, he says, is budding.

Obviously, eight cases are a very small segment of Idaho educators, and they do not blemish the entire teaching profession. Teachers teach kids proper use of the Internet effectively, and the vast majority play a vital role in protecting kids from the Web's darkest corners. For that they deserve our thanks.

Furthermore, pornography in the workplace is a huge problem everywhere, in both the private and public sectors and in all professions. The CBS news program 60 Minutes reported Sunday that the porn industry now takes in $10 billion annually in America alone.

But school districts have to

Democrats have their own war record

I am amused at the battle over the war records of the presidential hopefuls. Let's look at the 100-year record. The Democratic Party got the United States into the first world war, which killed approximately 85,000 U.S. forces. The Democrats then got us into the second world war, killing about 60,000 troops. Then the Democrats got us into the Korean War, killing 50,000-some forces. Then came the Vietnam War, which the Democrats also got us into. This war killed thousands more, not to mention the psychological deaths. Then the Republicans got us into the three-day Gulf War, killing six U.S. servicemen. Now we are in Iraq with the death toll just over 1,000. Yes, I guess Kerry is right when he says the Democrats have the best war record — losing 700,000-plus U.S. troops and the Republicans losing about 1,000. I guess that is why they say the Democrats are for the "little guy."

Truth emerges on Islamic terror

Following the massacre by mostly Muslim terrorists in Beslan, Russia, that killed at least 338 people, including at least 155 children, and wounded hundreds of others, a rare voice of reason was heard from an unlikely place.

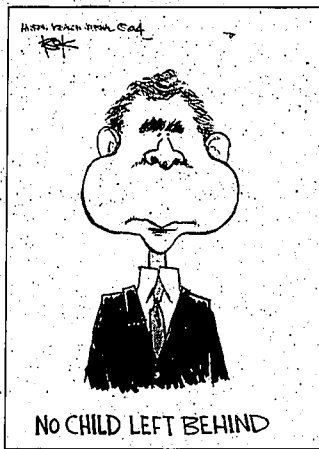

CAL THOMAS

Abdulahman al-Rashed, general manager of Al-Arabiya television in Dubai, wrote in a London Arabic newspaper, Ashareq Al-Awsal, "Our terrorists are an end-product of our corrupted culture." Under the headline "The Painful Truth: All the World Terrorists Are Muslims," he wrote, "Most perpetrators of suicide operations in buses, schools and residential buildings around the world for the past 10 years have been Muslims." He also wrote that if Muslims want to change their image, they must "admit the scandalous facts," rather than disparage critics or justify terrorists' behavior.

As a good Baptist would say, "Amen!" It's about time somebody spoke the truth. From Russia to Iraq, from the Sudan to the Philippines, and from Madrid, Bali and Kenya to the World Trade Center in New York, a field in Pennsylvania and the Pentagon in Washington, one character is common: describes all of the killers: They are Muslims.

In the Russian killings, the news agency Itar-Tass reports that at least 10 of the 32 hostage terrorists were linked to al-Qaida or had ties to al-Qaida. In spite of these facts, major American media are going out of their way to cover up the obvious, preferring words such as "militants" and "extremists," and refusing to acknowledge or identify the religious motivation behind the killings.

The U.S. government is promoting "tolerance" and "diversity" sessions led by Muslim organizations, some of which have questionable ties to groups that have either supported or condemned with disingenuous statements, killings by Muslim extremists, or sought to justify them because of policies promoted by Israel or the United States.

Repeatedly, these mandatory sessions tell government employees that Islam is a peaceful religion from which they have nothing to fear. If that is so, why aren't the "moderates" leading an army of their own and crushing the "infidels" who have supposedly "hijacked" this "peaceful religion"?

"Moderate" Islamic clerics should defrock and denounce other clerics who preach hate and the destruction of Christ or had ties to al-Qaida. Western. These diversity and sensitivity sessions should be held in countries that harbor and train terrorists and export terrorism as a religious mandate and a national policy.

Instead, we hear from Ali Abdullah, an Islamic scholar in Bahrain, who said of the massacre in Russia: "I have no doubt that this is the work of the Israelis who want to tarnish the image of Muslims and are working alongside Russians who have their own agenda against the Muslims in Chechnya. Omar Bakri Mohammed, the leader of the extremist sect al-Muhajiroun, told London's Sunday Telegraph (Sept 5), "If an Iraq Muslim carried out an attack like the Russian massacre in Britain, it would be justified because Britain has carried out acts of terrorism in Iraq."

It gives a whole new meaning to "women and children first." Mohammed's interview was in conjunction with a "celebratory" conference in London this weekend to commemorate the third anniversary of the September 11 attacks on the United States. It was the first time that political correctness and identify the enemy, which is not disembodied "terrorism" but radical Islamists who commit terror in the perverted name of their god.

A report from the Institute of World Politics in Washington claims that Saudi Arabia has spent tens of millions of dollars on indoctrinating American soldiers and prison inmates in radical Islamic ideology and that its goal is to create insurgency cells in the United States devoted to the Wahhabite agenda.

The Muslim vote may go to John Kerry this time (it mostly went for President Bush in 2000) because Kerry is perceived by some Muslim leaders as potentially more sympathetic to their objective of ending support for Israel and eliminating the Patriot Act, which has kept an eye on people and places known for Islamic extremist behavior and potential jihadists who want to kill us.

We should be listening to the likes of Abdulrahman al-Rashed or, for a reality check, former Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, who had to order the world's 1.3 billion Muslims to unite against "a few million Jews," whom he said rule the world and get others to fight and die for them.

Moderate? Peaceful? Here is the evidence?

Both candidates ignore the retiree crisis

Let's note, just for the record, that both President Bush and John Kerry have evaded the nation's most serious problem: controlling federal retirement spending, mainly Social Security and Medicare. Partisans extol their candidate's honesty and courage, while both duck hard political choices. They propose new spending programs and tax breaks for education, health care and homeland security. All sound beguiling, but all would — over the long run — make a bad budget situation worse.

The central distributional issue of our time is not between rich and poor. It is between retirees and non-retirees. In fiscal 2003, Social Security and Medicare cost $744 billion. By 2030, the number of elderly beneficiaries is reckoned to rise about 80 percent. With plausible assumptions about health costs, the Congressional Budget Office projects spending on these programs to increase roughly 75 percent by 2030 (as a share of national income).

If retirement spending isn't controlled, taxes will have to rise steeply (a third or more), other spending will have to be cut savagely or budget deficits will explode. Bush and Kerry know this. But they won't acknowledge the obvious or do something about it. True, Bush supports "private accounts" for Social Security. These would involve investing some Social Security contributions (that is, payroll taxes) in private stocks and bonds. This has superficial appeal, especially for younger workers. Private accounts might generate more income and improve the chances of paying future benefits. But someone got to pay for these accounts. If Bush diverts some payroll taxes into them, he must raise other taxes. Increase the deficit or cut benefits for today's Social Security recipients (today's taxes pay their benefits). Naturally, these unpopular details go unmentioned.

Kerry's position is, well, more conservative. He champions the status quo. "I will not privatize Social Security. I will not cut benefits," he says. He pledges not to raise the retirement age. Similar guarantees seem to apply to Medicare. His policy amounts to a huge tax increase for tomorrow's workers. As a society, our failure starts with self-deception. We won't discuss these problems candidly. Politicians, pundits, journalists and "experts" talk mainly in technocratic language ("trust fund balances," "entitlement crises," "Medicare premiums") designed to bore and baffle ordinary people. Heaven forbid that anyone might understand. Clarity of language reflects clarity of thought. It can create a consensus for action. Obscurity of language encourages sloppy thinking. It betrays a bias for inaction. We've opted for obfuscation. Here's what candor would compel us to say.

First, Social Security and Medicare are welfare programs. They are not (as liberals like to say) "social insurance." Nor are they (as conservatives often say) "Social Security" pensions. These labels aim to deter scrutiny or criticism. Social Security and Medicare benefits are paid with current taxes. The same is true of (say) food stamps, farm subsidies or unemployment benefits. We've never had a "savings" to pay their own Social Security and Medicare costs. Second, only two groups can pay retirement costs — retirees and non-retirees (that is, mainly workers). Expanding Medicare or Social Security usually means non-retirees increase their subsidies to retirees.

The moral, political and economic justification for this was greater in 1935 (Social Security's creation) and 1965 (Medicare's). The elderly then were fewer and poorer. People hadn't saved for unexpectedly long lives. Now we need to ask: Are the people receiving benefits more deserving than the people paying them?

Third, "solving" the Social Security or Medicare problems is not the same as "solving" the problem of retirement spending. Liberals and conservatives often imply that if they can cover Social Security's long-term costs, everything is OK. Not so. The reason: health costs dominate future spending. In CBO's projections, about 70 percent of higher retirement spending by 2030 involves Medicare and Medicaid (which covers some nursing home care). Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid should be considered as a package.

Fourth, any sensible solution must include benefit cuts. There are many possibilities: higher eligibility ages; higher Medicare premiums; smaller benefits for wealthier retirees. Present benefit levels imply staggering future tax burdens. That would be unfair to workers and might harm the economy. Even if benefits are cut, taxes will rise because there will be, relatively speaking, more retirees and fewer workers.

These are hard issues. But they are harder today because we didn't face them yesterday, and they will be harder tomorrow because we're not facing them today. Our lack of candor makes them worse. President Bush's Medicare drug plan significantly increased long-term costs.

Bush and Kerry practice national denial. Bush deserves to lose the election based on his cynical drug plan, designed to attract elderly voters. But Kerry does not deserve to win, based on his equally cynical pandering to the same voters.

Careless kids should observe the roads

I love Phil Auth's letters. They are so on the mark. (I responded to one earlier, and mine spawned the Downsize Club; for the September-October schedule, check the Web at tid.org, Hot Topics.)

Mr. Auth complains about school zone signs and wants them torn down. My response is a complaint about the kids in these zones. I have never seen such carelessness anywhere else. And the more attention they get, the more inattentive they are.

Whatever became of the manin, "Stop, look and listen before you cross the street; use your eyes, use your ears, then use your feet." For every year of commitment to this rule by school kids, another sign or two could come down.

Bush disaster can only be reversed by Kerry

I'm proud to be among the thousands who volunteered to serve in the combat zones of Vietnam. Out of respect for and the painful memories of those maimed or mortally wounded, we rarely even talk about our own decorated service. We have no respect for those who refused to serve or, by whatever means, specifically avoided combat. President Bush chose the latter and remained safe in his privileged duty station. For political gain, he now attempts to tarnish Sen. Kerry's service, which indicates his own lack of pride and honor.

In an impromptu reaction to 9/11, he ordered the possibly unnecessary Middle East invasions without adequate international support. I believe it was done to hide his true motive to appease his own ego as commander-in-chief and clean up the mess his father left us decades earlier. The cover-up blaming faulty Intel data was not accepted by many of our U.N. allies who still do not support or trust us. They expect better leadership from Americans than what was given.

For those who still trust the president's policies, consider the large budget deficit to which they so generously contribute. With their pockets already lined, the president and vice president continue to passively allow massive outsourcing and unemployment, shady industrial contracts and trade agreements, medical care and insurance cost gouging, corporate scammers' lack of restitution, oil and gas price gouging, an embarrassing minimum wage, and many other national problems they have ignored for 3 1/2 years while they are now too-busy campaigning to notice. If you still trust them, good luck when we are again attacked by terrorists because we are just as vulnerable now as then because our borders remain porous.

It defies logic why Americans are so easily deceived to elect such an incompetent president who obviously lacks the needed diplomatic skills required of all world leaders. I call on all Americans to place the Bush administration among the millions of the unemployed to which their policies have created.

Sen. Kerry's plans will eventually overcome this mess, return and re-deploy our military forces, and secure our borders to create real homeland security at home first.

Look deeper to see the real Bush economy

Pogo, of comic-strip fame, said, "I have met the enemy and it is us." Your Aug. 3 guest editorial clearly showcases Pogo's truth. President Bush tells the Davenport, Iowa, rally, "Because we acted, Iowa's unemployment rate is 4.3 percent." And the crowd cheers. Before Bush took office, that rate was 2.5 percent. Crafty politician; ill-informed voters.

Lou Dobbs, a noted economist and Republican, appeared on Bill Moyers PBS show "Now." Mr. Dobbs warned most vigorously that if our government doesn't start treating the American people as a priority, we will lose the middle class, and we run the risk of becoming a nation of the rich and menials.

We have a large number of unemployed people, and that number will rise as more companies outsource. People who are still unemployed when their unemployment benefits expire are dropped from the rolls of the unemployed. We would have a better understanding of the problem if those people were also counted.

We are told new jobs are being created, but what isn't often added is that three of every five new jobs are at minimum wage. A family of four that loses its $35,000 yearly income cannot handle house payments, insurance, food, taxes, etc., even if all four take minimum wage jobs.

Bankruptcies are also on the rise.

Democrats and Republicans alike ultimately reap the benefits of a government that cares about the people or they suffer the fallout from a government that has made money its god.

a beautiful area without having to spend (a lot of money) to live on the canyon rim."

What about the people who have spent a lot of money to live on the canyon rim? You have chosen to completely change their surrounding environment. Acreage-owned property is being encroached upon. There will be more noise, more loose animals, more traffic, more kids tramping on private property down in and on top of the canyon.

It may be logical to you, but not to those who have to put up with it.

Militant car bomb kills nine

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Suspected Muslim militants detonated a car bomb Thursday outside the Australian Embassy in Jakarta, killing nine people and wounding 73 in a strike at a key U.S. ally in the war in Iraq. The blast — the first major attack attributed to Jemaah Islamiyah in more than a year — could influence elections in Australia, where the prime minister is running on a pro-American, anti-terror platform.

The bombing also comes just ahead of Indonesia's presidential elections and two days before the anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks on the United States. The Greek Embassy on the 12th floor of an adjacent building, slightly wounding three diplomats.

Police said Jemaah Islamiyah, a Southeast Asian terror group linked to al-Qaida, apparently was behind the blast.

No one in the heavily fortified Australian Embassy was killed, although several Australians and Chinese were wounded.

Officials: Chechens were among school raiders

MOSCOW — Ten of the militants who seized a school in southern Russia have been identified and six were from Chechnya, security officials said Thursday, drawing a strong connection to the Chechen insurgents who have been fighting Russian forces for years.

None were Arabs, despite the government's contention that Arabs were involved in the hostage-taking last week, which ended in gunfire and explosions that killed more than 350 people, many of them children.

According to the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, the other four militants came from Ingushetia and was targeted in brazen coordinated attacks against police that killed 90 people in June.

Israeli hardliners call on soldiers to evacuate Gaza

JERUSALEM — A group of prominent Israeli hardliners urged soldiers Thursday to disobey orders to dismantle Jewish settlements, widening the bitter divisions over Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to withdraw from the Gaza Strip and parts of the West Bank.

In new fighting, eight Palestinians were killed in a string of clashes in the West Bank and Gaza. In one incident in northern Gaza, soldiers opened fire from a tank-mounted machine gun, killing three Palestinians, including a 9-year-old boy, hospital officials said.

The call to soldiers and other security forces to resist evacuating settlements appeared to signal significant escalation in the debate over the withdrawal. Sharon says exiting Gaza, where 8,000 Jewish settlers live among 1.3 million Palestinians, will boost Israeli security. He hopes to complete the pullout next year.

But hardliners, including members of his own Likud Party, have grown vocal in their opposition to the plan.

Ivan devastates Grenada

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Hurricane Ivan intensified Thursday, heading straight for Jamaica and possibly Florida with 160 mph winds after it killed at least 20 people while pummeling Grenada, Barbados and other islands. U.S. officials ordered people to evacuate the Florida Keys.

Foreigners began fleeing Jamaica, where officials urged a half million people to evacuate coastal and flood-prone areas.

Widespread looting erupted in St. George's, Grenada's capital, and dazed survivors picked through debris and tried to salvage remnants left by the storm. An Associated Press reporter watched people taking televisions and shopping carts of food from warehouses.

Troops from other Caribbean nations were on the way to help restore order in Grenada, where the country's police commissioner said every police station was damaged. The most powerful hurricane to hit the Caribbean in 10 years damaged 90 percent of the homes in Grenada, killing 13 people there, and destroyed a 17th century stone prison that left criminals on the loose, officials said.

Ivan was expected to reach Jamaica by Friday and Cuba by the weekend, the U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami said.

Governor orders flags lowered

GOODING — Flags at state buildings across Idaho will fly at half-staff Saturday to honor Capt. Alan Blake Rowe, formerly of Gooding, whose funeral will be that day.

Rowe was killed Sept. 3 while serving with the Marine Corps in Al Anbar Province near the Syrian border in Iraq.

A public visitation for Rowe will be held today in Gooding. "It's a thing that the general will be held on Sept. 11, they say all Americans will remember the thousands of citizens who were lost in the terrorist attacks on our country," Idaho Gov. Dirk Kempthorne said. "Alan was in Iraq fighting for his country, the same country that was targeted on that fateful day."

Rowe is a member of the 1st Battalion, 7th Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division, 1st Marine Expeditionary Force out of Twentynine Palms, Calif. He is the ninth soldier from Idaho killed since the start of the war in Iraq. The visitation will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Derryway Funeral Service, 737 Main St. in Gooding. The Rowe family encourages members of the public to pay their respects there because the cemetery has limited space. The funeral service is reserved for close friends and family. It will be Saturday at 1 p.m. at Mountain View Cemetery in Fairfield.

Kempthorne will speak at the funeral at the family's request.

Fallout: How to share personal stories

TWIN FALLS — Times-News readers can tell their personal cancer stories to the National Academy of Sciences, which is accepting public comments on a nuclear fallout compensation program.

The Board on Radiation Effects Research is evaluating expansion of a federal program that today only compensates cancer victims who lived in areas of Utah, Arizona and Nevada during nuclear testing between 1951 and 1962. But areas of Idaho were hit harder by fallout than the eligible counties. Idaho activists are calling on state leaders to push for compensation here, and Idahoans are taking notice.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo will speak about the issue Saturday at 2 p.m. in Emmett at the City Park. Emmett is in Gem County, one of the hardest-hit areas of the country by fallout. Sent written comments by mid-September to Isaf Al-Nabulsi, The National Academies, Board on Radiation Effects Research, 500 Fifth St. N.W., Washington, D.C., 20001; by fax to 202-334-3362; or by e-mail to inalnabul@nas.edu.

Drug suspect pleads innocent in court

BOISE — A man indicted by a federal grand jury on a weapons charge has entered a plea of innocent in court.

Danilo Ben Noguera, 25, was indicted Aug. 11, charged with unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon. The charge came in connection with the discovery of weapons at Noguera's Twin Falls home this summer. According to the terms of his probation for a federal conviction on drug paraphernalia charges, he was not allowed to possess firearms.

Scott McKay was appointed to represent Noguera, according to a jury trial was set for Oct. 18 in Boise, with a pretrial conference on Oct. 9.

Gooding County Dems plan barbecue

GOODING — The Gooding County Democratic Committee will hold a barbecue beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday at the East side on the corner of Third Avenue, East and Illinois Street.

Planners OK wind farm permit

Turbines will go up near Hagerman

By Sandy Miller
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The county is one step closer to being home to Idaho's first wind farm.

The county's Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday approved a conditional use permit to the Helona, Mont.-based Exergy Development Group to develop the Fossil Gulch Wind Park on 416 acres northwest of Hagerman. Seven windmills would have the combined capacity to produce about 28,000 megawatt-hours of electricity per year.

The 388-foot-tall, 1.5-megawatt wind turbines, each with a rotor diameter of about 253 feet, will go up near the intersection of 5900 North and 500 East.

Exergy President James Carkulis has estimated the project's total value at more than $10 million and would create 16 to 20 jobs during construction.

Since wind power doesn't rely on fuel, wind farms are a stable energy source that will benefit the community particularly irrigators, proponents of the project said.

By law, developers of wind farms must sell the wind power to a utility — in this case, Idaho Power.

"Idaho Power is at need of electricity," said Peter Richardson, an attorney from Eagle, Colo., who specializes in energy law.

"It will help fill Idaho Power's resource portfolio," Richardson said, that's especially important because "in the next six to seven years, we're going to see a significant rate increase."

The high cost of irrigation is one reason Exergy looked at the Hagerman location, said Carkulis said.

Although some people at Thursday's public hearing voiced some concerns, none spoke out against the project, Kent Fothergill of the Audubon Society wanted to know if the wind farm would endanger birds. Hawks and golden eagles are known to winter in the area, he said.

"I'd like some data on how the project will affect avian populations," Fothergill said.

Patricia Pilz, owner of Pilz and Co. which conducted the site study, said the "new generation wind plants have a very, very low raptor mortality."

She said the turbines only turn 17 revolutions a minute and the turbines are no more dangerous to birds than any other structure.

Carkulis said he was more than willing to work with the Audubon Society to monitor the project's effect on birds to help in making decisions about future projects.

"We're extremely sensitive to the avian issue," he said.

Other voiced concern about the noise. Pilz explained that the new turbines are very quiet — near the wind, not the turbines.

"Most people in the audience agreed that it's time Idaho jumped on the alternative energy bandwagon, especially in a world where the price of fuel is steadily rising and it has a negative effect on the environment."

DEQ meets to discuss wastewater

By Michelle Dunlop
Times-News writer

GOODING — Despite recent public interest in wastewater disposal at the Gooding facility of Glanbia Foods Inc., relatively little controversy came out of Thursday night's meeting with representatives of the Department of Environmental Quality.

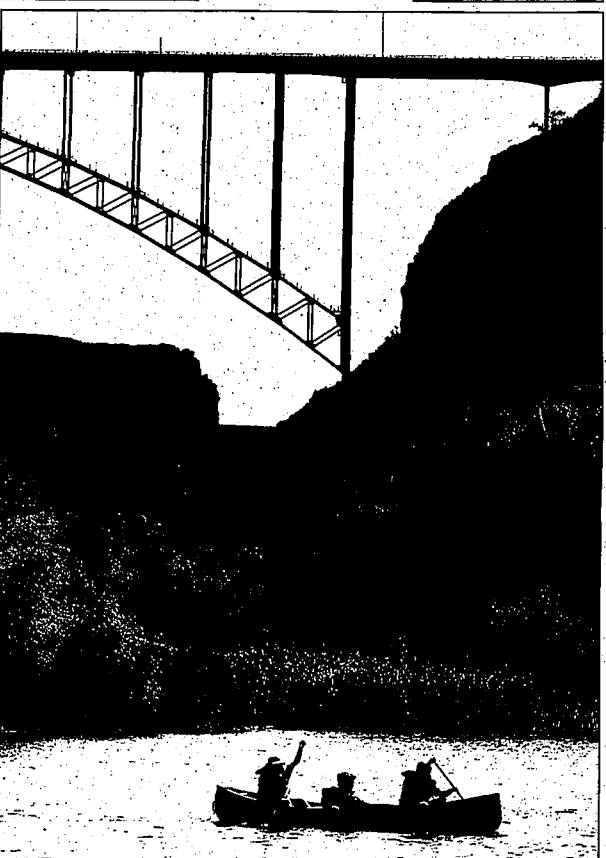

"I would commend Glanbia on the work they are doing," said Dave Roper, owner of Magic Valley Products.

Using wastewater effluent from agricultural producers such as the cheese plant can actually improve soils, Roper said. The disposal of lagoon wastewater remains a hot topic in the Magic Valley. In August, the Idaho Rural Council recommended dairy lagoon effluent be regulated in the same way as Glanbia's wastewater, suggesting that what happens with Glanbia's wastewater application site may be precedent-setting.

"At DEQ, we are concerned with the environment and health and human welfare," said Roper.

Families donate land to Forest Service

Land given in memory of woman

The Times-News

KETCHUM — Families, friends, U.S. Forest Service personnel and elected officials gathered at the Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters Wednesday to ceremonially transfer the ownership of 50 acres of land to the Forest Service.

According to Sara Baldwin, SNRA area ranger, the gift of land — located 15 miles northwest of Ketchum — is the result of a co-donation from two families in memory of Sarah Pearson Campbell.

The Wes Wills family and the Sarah Pearson Campbell Memorial Foundation are doating the land.

Campbell was the daughter of Doug and Mary Campbell of Lincoln, Neb.

She was killed in an avalanche in December 2000 while backcountry skiing near Dead Horse Pass in Teton County, Wyo.

During college, she worked for the Forest Service in Idaho and Wyoming.

The Wills families include

Wes Wills of Ketchum and the Bob and Hank Wills families of Twin Falls.

The families own and operate Wills Motor Co. and Wills Inc., a home building and development company in Twin Falls and other ranch properties in western Montana.

Sockeye salmon lose ground after final dam

The Times-News and The Associated Press

STANLEY — The number of sockeye salmon that made it back to their central Idaho spawning area this summer is just half of the amount that usually survive once the fish pass Lower Granite Dam in eastern Washington.

Fisheries biologists want to know why.

Typically at least 50 percent of the fish that make it past Lower Granite — the final dam in their 900-mile journey from the Pacific Ocean — reach the Stanley Basin. The rate was as high as 80 percent four years ago.

This year 110 adult sockeye were counted crossing Lower Granite, but only 2 made it back to the headwaters of the Salmon River.

That's just 25 percent.

It compounds the already monumental losses. In 2002, 75,000 young sockeye were released from central Idaho and sent downstream to the ocean. The 22 that made it back this year are considered to be from that group, because sockeye have two-year migration cycles.

Fisheries Research Biologist Catherine Willard with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game said as many adult fish as possible will be evaluated to find out why the rate from Lower Granite has plunged.

"We need to examine as many sockeye salmon adults as we can this year to try to better understand what is causing the low conversion," she said.

A parasite is being considered as a possibility, but so are other factors.

Dan Baker, who manages the department's Eagle hatchery, said there are a number of theories about what is happening to the fish, ranging from disease to warming water temperatures or predators, but no solid information has been accumulated.

"It's just a long ways for them to come," Baker said.

"Maybe they're dropping off because they get too tired."

The fish returning to the Sawtooth Valley were produced by the Redfish captive broodstock program, which was initiated in 1991 just before Redfish Lake sockeye salmon were placed on the endangered species list. Captive propagation is used to protect at-risk populations.

The broodstock program is a cooperative effort of the department, the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes, the University of Idaho and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Firm uses Castleford's water for research

By Sandra Wisecaver
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — Castleford's arsenic-laced water is the subject of testing at Amalgamated Research Inc. in Twin Falls.

The research facility is tracking in Castleford water for arsenic removal research.

"They have taken it upon themselves to do some testing — on their nickel," said Don Acheson, project manager with Twin Falls-based Riedesel & Associates.

Amalgamated's research is good for Castleford and other cities faced with arsenic levels above the new Environmental Protection Agency standard, Acheson said.

Cities are required to comply with the new 10 parts per billion standard by Jan. 23, 2006.

Acheson said he hopes Castleford might become a pilot test site for Amalgamated Research. The company is using about 175 gallons of Castleford water each day in its arsenic removal research.

The research firm is looking for an affordable solution. Amalgamated technology director Mike Kearney in an interview with The Times-News Thursday.

"An affordable fix is being sought — both in respect to the capital cost or the initial investment and the operating costs, which is ongoing forever," Kearney said. "No one wants to pay a lot of money for that."

Amalgamated also wants removed arsenic to meet Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Environmental Quality requirements for landfill disposal.

"The arsenic must stay bottled up — not leech out — to the landfill," Kearney said.

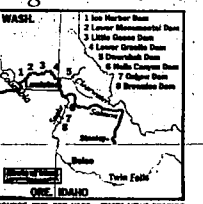

Hauling the non-leachable waste to the landfill would save cities money, as opposed to having to dispose of a hazardous waste material.

"We're trying to do what we can in an accelerated manner," Kearney said. "We are well aware of the time frames. We are trying to compete with people who already have the expensive systems, but come up with something that isn't costly. We couldn't market it for a lot of money, but it would be a good thing for communities."

William Ernest 'Bill' Thomas - Rupert

William Ernest "Bill" Thomas, 87, of Rupert, Idaho, died on Tuesday, Sept. 7, 2004, at Minidoka Memorial Hospital of natural causes.

He was cremated at his request and a memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 11, at Hansen Mortuary in Rupert. Friends may greet family one hour prior to the service.

Bill was born on June 4, 1917, in LaMonte, Mo., to James S. Thomas and Eva M. Thomas. He graduated from Marshall High School in 1935. After working at various jobs in Missouri and Illinois, Bill moved to Tulsa, Okla., where he worked as a welder's helper. He eventually moved to Long Beach, Calif., where he and his brother, Howard, worked for CALSHIP as welders. They both joined the United States Navy during World War II. During the ensuing two years in the Navy, Bill was stationed at 29 Palms Naval Base in California as an aircraft crew chief.

While in the navy, Bill met and married Evelyn Sorenson Wall. They later divorced and he married his present wife, Beth Schofield Broadhead. They were married for 34 years.

After moving to Rupert in fish the Big Wood River and the Big Lost River. He and Dickson also did a lot of golfing together. Bill was a fantastic cook and loved cooking for family and friends.

Bill was a charter member of the Rupert Kiwanis Club, the Rupert Elks and the Snake River Flats. On Sept. 23, 2002, Bill along with Bob Cameron and Jay Throckmorton were recognized for having been members of the Rupert Kiwanis Club for 50 years. Bill was presented the George Nixon Fellowship Award for his services to the Kiwanis Club.

Bill is survived by his wife, Beth Thomas, brothers, Howard and Bob (Irene); children, Randy (Cathy), Diana (Wes) Startin, Dawn (Mike) Echanis, Jan (Gary) Higley, Bob (Kathleen) Broadhead and Linda Broadhead; 13 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Bill was preceded in death by his parents; brother, Gordon; and son, Mike Broadhead.

Bill's sense of humor and love will be greatly missed by his family and friends. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests sending contributions to the Rupert Kiwanis Club or a charity of your choice.

Capt. Alan Blake Rowe

Captain Alan Blake Rowe, USMC, 35, was killed in combat action in Iraq on Friday, Sept. 3, 2004.

Born in Woodland, Calif., on Oct. 3, 1968, to James A. Rowe and Marian Blake Rowe, he came with his family to Idaho when he was 1 year old.

He attended school in Hansen until 1978 when he moved with his family to a farm north of Gooding. Alan was very active in Hansen and Gooding 4-H Clubs, as well as the Gooding High School Future Farmers of America. He exhibited best shorthorn and dual-purpose milking short-horn cattle and won several local, district and state public speaking awards.

He graduated from high school in Gooding, Idaho, then enlisted in the United States Marine Corps in November of 1985. Upon completion of recruit training at MCRD San Diego, he served with First Force Reconnaissance Company, 1st Marine Expeditionary Force, participating in two Western Pacific deployments and Operation Desert Shield/Storm. After leaving active duty in August 1991, Sergeant Rowe joined Company C, 4th Tank Battalion, 7th Marine Division, where he served as a tank commander, platoon sergeant and platoon commander.

While in the active reserves, he attended Boise State University in Boise, Idaho, and was accepted in the Platoon Leader's Course. Upon graduation in 1994, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant. Following completion of The Basic School and the Infantry Officer Course in Quantico, Va., Second Lieutenant Rowe reported to 1st Battalion, 1st Marine Regiment and was assigned to Company B as a rifle platoon commander. Second Lieutenant Rowe was promoted to First Lieutenant in December 1995. While serving with 1st Battalion he served as the Boat Company platoon commander and conducted a Western Pacific deployment with Battalion Landing Team 1/1. Upon return, 1st Lieutenant Rowe was assigned back to First Force Reconnaissance Company in July 1998. While serving with First Force, he was promoted to Captain in January 1999. During this time period he deployed on two separate Western Pacific deployments. In February 2000, he was assigned as the Officer in Charge of the Basic Reconnaissance Course, Coronado Island, Calif. Captain Rowe received orders in August 2002 to attend the Expeditionary Warfare School in Quantico, Va. After graduation, Captain Rowe was stationed at 29 Palms, Calif., and assigned to 1st Battalion, 7th Marines. While assigned to 1/7, Captain Rowe deployed to Iraq in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom in June of 2003, and then re-deployed to Iraq this year in August 2004. His combat death occurred less than two weeks after arriving in country. His final assignment was that of Weapons Company Commander, 1st Battalion, 7th Marines.

Alan is survived by his wife, Dawn Haynes Rowe; two very special children, Blake Robert Rowe, 5, and Caitlin Nicole Rowe, 3, all of Yucca Valley, Calif. He is also survived by his father, James A. Rowe of Twin Falls; and mother, Marian Blake Rowe of Gooding and a sister, Diana Rose Parks, Blake of Arcadia, Calif.

Alan was admired by many for his outstanding qualities of integrity, devotion and commitment to duty.

He loved the mountains, beauty and peace found in Idaho. He loved taking his Bronco (which ever he was running at the time) into the hills with his children. He loved the Marine Corps and his country.

He had dreamed of serving his country since he was a small boy. When he became a Marine, he thrived and excelled in the opportunities the Corps offered. We receive some comfort knowing that Alan lived and died doing and being what he wanted to be: A Marine.

Captain Rowe's decorations include Purple Heart, Navy and Marine Commendation, Navy and Marine Achievement with star, Combat Action with star, Navy Unit Commendation with star, Meritorious Unit Commendation, Good Conduct, Selected Marine Corps Reserve, National Defense Service with star, Armed Forces Expeditionary, Southwest Asia Service, Global War On Terror Expeditionary, Humanitarian Service, Sea Service Deployment with four stars, Kuwait Liberation (Saudi Arabia), Kuwait Liberation (Kuwait).

Alan will be greatly missed, but always deeply loved and remembered as the honorable Marine as well as our husband, father, son, brother, nephew and cousin.

His death is a tragic loss to his family, his friends, the Marine Corps and his country. He died a hero to us all, reminding us that freedom is not free.

Captain Alan Blake Rowe will receive full military honors at his burial in Fairfield, Idaho. Funeral honors will be provided by Company C, 4th Tank Battalion, Boise, Idaho.

A public visitation for family and friends of Capt. Rowe will be held from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. today, Friday, at Demary Funeral Service, 737 Main St., Gooding, Idaho.

A 529K trust fund is being established for the educations of Blake and Caitlin. It will make a short time for the account to be established.

A temporary account has been opened for incoming memorial gifts. Memorial gifts should be made payable to: Dawn Rowe, 8275 Emerson Ave., Yucca Valley, CA 92284. Please include the notation: Education Fund in the memo line. As soon as the 529K is established the money from the temporary account will be transferred.

Neil Scott Vaughn - Pocatello

Neil Scott Vaughn, 53, Pocatello, died Tuesday, Sept. 7, 2004, following a long term illness, at a local medical center.

He was born Dec. 10, 1950, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Maurice R. and Luenna Mae Flavel Vaughn. Neil graduated from Pocatello High School in 1969. He married Lorraine Joyce Letic, June 23, 1974, in Pocatello, Idaho. He worked as a freight car welder for the Union Pacific Railroad. Neil loved his family and especially enjoyed his grandchildren. He was always eager to help when it benefited others. He also loved traveling and gardening. Scott was a member of the BPO Elks Lodge No. 674, and the Moose Lodge.

Susan Mazza, Pocatello, Debbie Sturm, Wisconsin, Robey Mazza, Pocatello, Cheryl Bond, Twin Falls, Idaho; 12 grandchildren, William McGhee, Katie McCloud, Bradley Olson, Rainey Armstrong, Neil Armstrong, Anna Mazza, Tatiana Mazza, Liliana Mazza, T.J. Sturm, Gabby, Sarah and Jennifer Bond; and one great-grandchild to be born in December 2004.

He was preceded in death by his parents, grandparents and a sister.

A memorial will be held at 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, 2004, in the Cornelison-Henderson Funeral Chapel, 431 N. 15th Ave., Pocatello, with the Rev. Eric M. Brown, First United Methodist Church, officiating. The family will receive friends one hour prior to the service at the funeral home. Cremation has been completed. Interment will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11, 2004, in the Richfield Cemetery, Richfield, Idaho, with Tom Vaughn officiating.

OBITUARIES

Nelda Sorensen Tadlock - Twin Falls

Nelda Sorensen Tadlock, 83, of Twin Falls, passed away Sept. 6, 2004, at her home surrounded by her loving family.

Nelda was born Sept. 4, 1921, in Milo, Idaho, twin daughter of Alma Marinus and Amy Ruth Tolley Sorensen. In her family there were twin boys, Alma and Elmer; twin girls, Nelda and Melva; and their younger siblings, Bert and Fern. She grew up in Benjamin and Spanish Fork, Utah, where the family resided until they moved to Burley, Idaho.

She attended grades first through eighth at Benjamin Utah Central, ninth through 11th at Spanish Fork High School and then graduated from Burley High School, Burley, Idaho, in 1939. In 1941, she met and married Lefroy Tadlock.

In their early married life, they resided in California, Phoenix, Ariz., and Spokane, Wash., before settling in Twin Falls, Idaho. Together, they adopted two children, daughter, Kathleen in 1947; and son, Cary in 1962.

This completed their little family and this was one of Nelda's greatest joys. Nelda worked as a book binder for Standard Printing for over 20 years. She was a life-long member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. She was a quiet lady who enjoyed life and held her strong convictions and demonstrated how people should lead morally straight lives.

In her spare time, she was a person who loved to visit family and friends, enter contests, (which eventually won her a trip to Hawaii), reading, sewing and doing the daily crossword puzzle. She was thought of as a mother to all and known for her infinite kindness and gentle manner. She will be greatly missed by all she touched.

Surviving Nelda is her twin sister, Melva Coffey of Spokane, Wash.; younger brother, Bert "Lil Bud" (Dorothy) Sorensen of Lake Havasu, Ariz.; daughter, Kathleen Tadlock; and son, Cary (Vicki) Tadlock; and four grandchildren, Troy, Britney, Nicole and Lindsey, all of Twin Falls, Idaho. Also surviving is her dear sister-in-law, Thelma (Wayne) Kennedy, nephews, nieces and a host of friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her twin brothers, Alma and Elmer; her younger sister, Fern; and her husband; Lefroy Tadlock in 2003.

A funeral for Nelda will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 11, 2004, at the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls, with interment following at the Twin Falls Cemetery in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Friends may call from 4 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, 2004, at the funeral home.

Val E. Murri - Twin Falls

Val E. Murri, 91, of Twin Falls, died peacefully Sept. 6, 2004.

He was born May 25, 1913, in Saint Anthony, Idaho, the son of Ernest and Eliza Baer Murri. Val grew up and received his formal education in Saint Anthony through the eighth grade.

He then worked the family farm until he enlisted in the Army in January of 1942. He served in Europe and North Africa during World War II. Due to a back injury, he received a disability discharge and was released from active duty in October of 1945. While in the service, he attained the rank of Staff Sergeant.

After his discharge he attended Barber School at Salt Lake City, Utah, and graduated in 1946.

While in Salt Lake City, Val met Leone Kennedy. They eventually married on March 17, 1946.

Leone brought to this marriage, a daughter, Barbara Ann.

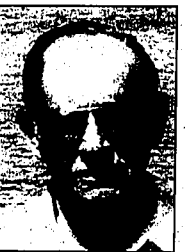

Val moved the family to Lewistown, Mont., in 1947 when he began work for the Henry Brandt Barber Shop. On Oct. 5, 1947, Val Jr. was born.

Later, Val and fellow barber, Floyd Wolfe formed a partnership and established the Murri Wolfe Barber Shop in 1972, while in Lewistown, Leone passed away.

Val retired from his business in December of 1974.

While attending his father's 98th birthday party, Val renewed an old friendship and as a result married Mae Basmussen on March 5, 1973. They lived in Lewistown, until Val's retirement in 1974.

Val and Mae loved to travel and spent 18 winters in Arizona, took two Caribbean cruises, two trips to Alaska, a trip to Hawaii and numerous trips throughout the southwestern United States.

Val also loved to fish and spent many days fishing on Canyon Ferry, Holter and Ackley Lakes, with family and friends.

He was known for his great fish fry's. Bowling was also a favorite pastime. Surviving Val is his loving wife, Mae of Twin Falls; son, Val Jr. (Karen) Murri of Havre, Mont.; daughters, Barbara Ann (Don) Nish of Bountiful, Utah, Gwenia Callao of McDermitt, Nev., and Jeanie (Sid) Vicker of Boise, Idaho; two brothers, Dean (Fae) Murri of Kimberly, Idaho, and Bob (Irma) Murri of Salem, Ore.; 27 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and two and three-fourths great-great-grandchildren.

His sisters, four brothers, two parents, three grandchildren and his first wife, Leone, preceded him in death.

A funeral for Val will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, 2004, at the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls, with interment at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 14, 2004, in the Havre City Cemetery in Havre, Mont.

There is a correction that needs to be noted regarding the "Hometown Business Guide" published September 7, 2004. Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home is not the only local family-owned funeral home in the Magic Valley. Parke's is a locally owned funeral home in Twin Falls.

Second police officer resigns

By Chip Thompson
Times-News writer

RUPERT — In the midst of investigations into possible criminal and ethical violations on the part of city employees and following the recent resignation of Police Chief Ken Fedders, Rupert received a second resignation Thursday.

Detective Cpl. Juan Martinez, the department's public information officer, called City Administrator Roger Bagley Thursday morning and said he wanted to resign from the department, Bagley said.

Martinez turned in a written resignation around 11 a.m.

Neither Bagley nor City Attorney Kelly, Anton would confirm whether Martinez was one of six suspended employees during the need to preserve the integrity of the investigations.

Bagley said Martinez offered no explanation for the resignation, and Martinez did not respond to a phone message Thursday afternoon.

Fedders resigned and announced his retirement Aug. 5, two weeks after four city employees were suspended and Detective Eric Snarf was designated chief Thursday.

Anton said the bulk of an independent investigation, being conducted by an outside law enforcement agency, is concluded, and preliminary reports have been received.

"I can't say at this point that we have found, definitively, any conduct violations," Anton said. "But based on preliminary reports, we have reason to believe there may have been ethical violations and violations of Rupert's employment policies."

Anton said he did not know the time frame for the criminal investigation being conducted by Attorney General Lawrence Wasden's office, which has a policy of not discussing ongoing investigations. But he did say he expected independent investigators, looking into ethical and personnel policy violations, to issue a final report by the end of next week.

The original allegations we received were not the sum total of everything we've discovered," Anton said. "Since the investigation began, additional allegations have been brought forward, which has delayed the process."

Despite these additional charges, investigators are still on pace to meet the targeted date of mid-September for concluding investigations.

The agency is conducting the investigation free of charge, and the city is only paying for certain expenses incurred, Anton said.

"Our investigators have been very professional, they have been swift, and they have provided a great service for the city of Rupert," he said. "We've been very cautious not to spend city funds on the investigation."

"I think it's important that the community understand that when this is done, the city will release all the findings of the investigation," Anton said, adding that he didn't want there to be a perception that misconduct might be covered up.

"The city will take negative employment actions if we can substantiate ethical violations or infractions of employment policy," Anton said.

Responding to criticism for continuing to pay employees during the suspension, Anton said the city wants to treat its employees fairly.

"The city has taken a position that we'll do everything we can

Conservationists reject salmon plan, which ignores breaching

The Associated Press

BOISE — Conservationists on Thursday rejected the federal government's draft plan for salmon recovery in the Columbia Basin, which leaves out the prospect of breaching four lower Snake River dams.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Fisheries and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers last month announced the main conclusions from the draft document, which was released Thursday.

It says the gauntlet of dams from the Pacific Ocean to Idaho poses no jeopardy for salmon and steelhead trout, which have been on the endangered species list for years. It also suggests installing removable "weirs" or gates that provide safer passage through the dams when fish are migrating.

"This no-jeopardy opinion is a giant step backward for salmon recovery," said Bill Sedivy, executive director for Idaho Rivers United.

"Instead of relying on sound science, the government relies on a new and legally questionable interpretation of the Endangered Species Act — and the crazy notion that the lower Snake River dams are part of the 'natural river' environment — to justify backtracking on recovery standards in this plan," he said.

Last May, U.S. District Judge James Redden ordered NOAA Fisheries to rewrite its recovery plan, known as a biological opinion, after ruling that the existing document violated the Endangered Species Act.

Idaho Rivers and other groups said the draft only considers saving the fish from extinction, rather than bringing them back to harvestable, self-sustaining numbers. They contended the only way to accomplish that is to breach the four lower Snake River dams in Washington state.

A water users group, meanwhile, suggests releasing hatchery salmon and steelhead above the Hells Canyon dam complex for anglers along the Boise and Payette rivers.

Norm Semanko, executive director of the Idaho Water Users Association representing farmers and industry, said the releases would provide angling opportunities in southwestern Idaho.

"In contrast, environmental groups are clearly using the idea of salmon fishing above Hells Canyon as the bait on a fish-paste hook that ultimately leads to their stated goal: removal or major, radical modification of the trio of dams in the Hells Canyon complex," Semanko said.

His group and five environmental organizations, including Idaho Rivers, have warned over operations of upper Snake River dams in eastern Idaho. The conservationists' earlier asked Redden to require federal fish managers to consider the impact of the upper Snake on the fish runs downstream.

Semanko contends Snake River water above Hells Canyon has nothing to do with the fish runs below. He warns a federal ruling to the contrary could dry up hundreds of thousands of acres of cropland in Idaho.

"The idea of releasing excess hatchery-produced salmon in places like the Boise River may not be a bad idea when we have excess fish," Sedivy said. "Stocking the river with these excess fish is a long way from restoring river health."

Sedivy said his group does not advocate destroying Hells Canyon dams, but calls for operational changes. Warm water from those dams harms fish runs all the way to Washington state, he said.

Erratic flows caused by raising and dropping the Snake River in the canyon for electrical demand also erode sand bars,

Burley man gets three years' probation

BURLEY — Robert L. Fleming was sentenced to three years' probation Thursday in 6th District Court for felony injury to a child.

Fleming, 52, entered an Alford plea — guilty but without admitting to the offense — after facing a trial on two counts of lewd conduct with a minor under the age of 16. In exchange for the plea, prosecutors agreed to reduce the charges to felony injury to a child.

According to court documents, Fleming had sexual contact with a pre-teen girl on two occasions between October 2002 and November 2003 at his Burley home. One of the girls' parents, a neighbor who witnessed the contact, and another sister claimed the girl had told her about both instances.

District Judge Monte Carlson accepted Prosecutor Blaine Cannon's recommendation of a 1.5 years suspended jail sentence with supervised probation.

City of Rocks road project will begin

ALMO — The National Park Service and the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation have scheduled a road resurfacing project at City of Rocks National Reserve beginning Monday and ending Sept. 24.

Visitors may encounter frequent truck traffic on the City of Rocks Backcountry Byway through the reserve as well as Circle Creek Overlook Road and Logger Springs Road between the hour of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., weekdays.

Traffic safety and dust abatement measures will be implemented; however, all travelers are encouraged to drive cautiously during these times and along this portion of the byway.

For information about the project or the latest traffic conditions, call Superintendent Wallace Keck at 824-5519, Ext. 101.

False alarm prompts sheriff response

TWIN FALLS — A report of a BASE jumper who didn't make it out of the Snake River turned out to be a false alarm.

However, the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department, two Magic Valley Regional Medical Center ambulances and a Life-Flight air ambulance were called just before 11 a.m. Thursday to the area near Centennial Waterfront Park to investigate, said Nancy Howell, sheriff's spokeswoman.

All five jumpers were safe and accounted for, she said.

BASE stands for Building, Antenna, Span and Earth. The Perrine Bridge is the only bridge in the nation without restrictions on BASE jumping.

We don't want to shut industry down," said Steve Ogle, a scientist with DEQ.

In April 2003, the DEQ issued Glanbia a permit to expand its wastewater applications onto 830 acres known as the Wolfe property. Glanbia petitioned the permit claiming it was too stringent while neighbors objected to the permit as well.

After a year of negotiations, Glanbia and its neighbors — Coeur d'Alene residents Ben Gnesa, Barry Wood and Reuben Donaldson — finally reached an agreement. As part of the compromise, the company agreed to construct a $10 million wastewater treatment plant to pretreat water before it is used for irrigation. The company also conceded to buffers of up to 1,000 feet in some places.

As a result of the agreement, the DEQ had to alter Glanbia's permit. Among the changes, wind restrictions have been eased due to the addition of buffer zones. Also, rather than trying to prohibit wind, the updated permit seeks ways to manage it, Ogle said.

Ogle described the permit at hand as an interim one. Glanbia will need to apply for a permanent permit when its wastewater treatment facility is functional.

"It's called an interim permit because it's interim until the pretreatment plant goes online," Ogle said.

Although the meeting received a relatively low turnout, Ogle reminded those who did attend that the interim permit is still in the draft stage and encouraged people to comment on the permit.

"This is a draft permit right now. If you don't speak up, it will affect these things."

The final issuance of Glanbia's interim permit could occur within the next month.

donor of this land with the Campbell family," said Wes Wills, speaking on behalf of the Wills family, in a press release.

"The Forest Service brought our families together, and as a result we have been able to make a much more substantial and meaningful gift.

"We are very pleased for this opportunity to give a long-term conservation corridor to a special area that our family has used and enjoyed for the past 70 years."

The 50 acres of donated land contain the remains of a historic mill, four cabins and other mining structures. Future tasks for the Forest Service will include photographing the donated land.

Planning efforts will be undertaken to determine short- and long-term actions needed for the use, management and protection of the area.

Water

the end of September, Riedesel project engineer Chevy Bailey said.

A proposal for a scaled-down study, focusing on arsenic only, was rejected by DEQ.

Instead, the city is required to do a study that will examine all facets of the water system and prioritize needs with cost estimates.

The study will cost $17,418.

The city must come up with matching funds for a $9,480 DEQ grant to pay for the study.

"We are trying to list any and everything wrong with the system, and then the city can decide if they have the money to fix it," Bailey said.

In addition to a slightly larger storage tank with continuous small leaks, the city's system fails to meet Interim Arsenic Code requirements. Code requires pumping a minimum of 1,500 gallons per minute for a two-hour period. The Castelford system could not maintain the required pressure for two hours.

Normal water use for the city is about 250 gallons per minute.

"The system that the city has right now will do the job, and I'm sure they can put out fires," Bailey said. "It just doesn't meet International Fire Code."

Wind

"If we don't do something about the climate issue, birds won't be the only species at risk of becoming extinct," said Bill Chisholm, a local environmental activist who's been advocating alternative energy resources for 35 years.

Neil King, a superintendent with the National Park Service who oversees the Hagerman Fossil Beds, wanted to know if the wind farm would have any effect on the monument.

Piz said the wind farm would be built on farm land that already been tilled.

The Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously approved the project with a bond of $4,000 per turbine and an agreement to let officials know if any bones turn up.

"The public has 30 days to appeal the permit, and if no appeal is filed, the permit will be granted."

Karkulis plans to break ground on the project in November.

UI will work to cut costs

MOSCOW (AP) — University of Idaho President Tim White's special task force on dealing with the school's deficit is working into the weekend in anticipation of delivering its cost-cutting recommendations by Sept. 20.

Although three weeks beyond its original deadline, Vision and Resources Task Force leader Monte Boisen said the 25-member panel is taking the time it believes necessary to come up with viable recommendations to deal with as much as $36 million in red ink over the next several years.

The school's administration has not been involved in the deliberations that have run through the summer, but White said he anticipates recommendations that evaluate the university's various programs and departments in terms of their cost and impact.

Operations with comparatively high costs and low importance to the university experience would be the first to be eliminated in favor of those that generate revenue or run at relatively low costs, White said.

But at the same time, he said, departments such as philosophy and history, which provide high value to the university culture regardless of cost or lack of revenue potential, should be preserved.

"Yes, we are a business, but that's not the only way we conduct ourselves," White said. Balancing cost and value is the critical issue facing the task force composed of faculty members, Provost Brian Fisher said.

The task force must first evaluate where the university needs to be," Pitcher said.

Boisen, a mathematics professor, said White will share the task force report with key members of his administration before making it public. Decisions on cuts will be made after that, he said.

Wallaby welcomes Washington family

KEY CENTER, Wash. (AP) — A family moving into a home west of Tacoma was greeted by an unusual welcome wagon.

A family member found a young male wallaby — a marsupial native to Australia — outside the home's rear door.

authorities said.

"It was just tapping on the back door," Sgt. Ted Jackson of the Washington state Department of Fish and Wildlife said Wednesday. "We're real curious where it came from."

The wallaby was taken to the Tacoma-Pierce County Humane Society, and appears to be comfortable around humans.

"He just cuddles right up to you," said Humane Society spokeswoman Marguerite Richmond.

Girl who killed pet seeks forgiveness

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who babysits for extra money. I babysat for a new family last week. After I put the kids to bed, I found a snake in the house. I was scared for the kids, so I grabbed a kitchen knife and chopped off the snake's head.

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

When the parents returned, I found out it was their pet snake that had escaped from its cage, and they were really angry. I feel terrible about it. Although I apologized, they won't talk to me when they see me in the neighborhood.

Should I write them a letter of apology or buy them a new snake? I don't know what the proper etiquette is when you kill someone's pet.

The couple for whom you were babysitting were so careless they not only failed to tell you they had an exotic pet in the house but also compounded it by leaving without making sure the creature was securely in its cage where it belonged. You do not "owe" the family a replacement. They owe you an apology.

I am now 13 and I'm very fond of one boy in particular. But ever since I was 7, I can't open up to guys. When I try, I get scared because I remember what happened to me.

I never told my parents what happened, because I never felt like I needed to. But now I'm getting older and I realize how wrong it was -- of him, I mean, I was so young, I didn't understand what was happening.

I want some help, but I don't know where to go, so I've turned to you. Please help me, Abby.

DEAR YOUNG LADY: Please clip this letter, give it to your mother and tell her you wrote it. You were not harassed; you were molested.

It is important that you talk about what happened with a professional, possibly one who specializes in post-traumatic stress, who can help you work it through. The sooner you start, the sooner you can begin to build healthy relationships with peers. I wish you the best of luck.

PS: I regret that you didn't report the molestation to your parents when it occurred. Had you done so, you could have received help then, and guaranteed that the boy could not abuse another child.

DEAR RATTLED: You reacted to what you perceived as a danger. What is unfortunate is that somewhere. The crime wasn't discovered until fifty years later, and his body was never recovered.

DEAR ABBY: I was sexually harassed at the age of 7. I wasn't raped; I was just touched and used by my brother's friend.

In 2001, the United States spent $4,887 per person on health care. That compares to $2,702 in Canada and $2,561 in France. Yet both countries beat the United States in longer life expectancy and lower infant mortality.

The good news is that Voltaire's brain and heart had been removed years earlier. The bad is that his brain was auctioned off in the late 1800s and never seen again. Last we checked, his heart is still in France's Bibliotheque Nationale, hopefully under decent lock and key.

Reader Steve Sola asks about measuring teeny snidgelions of time. Keep in mind that a nanosecond is one billionth of a second, a picosecond is one trillionth of a second, and a femtosecond is one quadrillionth of a second.

"Neon" is related to "neo," the Greek word for new. The colorless, odorless gas was named that because it was new when discovered in 1898.

Gallup polls reveal that only 34 percent of Americans are "very confident" that their vote will be counted accurately in November.

Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star Spangled Banner" but his son -- Philip Barton Key -- went down in history for a different reason: he was shot and killed by New York congressman Daniel Sickles for having an affair with Mrs. Sickles.

In 1814, Voltaire's body was stolen 36 years after his death by right-wing religious extremists who were so angry about his satires and essays. They tossed his remains in a garbage heap

Scorpio: Don't tempt fate

IF SEPTEMBER 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you have been working hard all year to get to this plateau, and now you can stop to smell the roses and enjoy the rewards. New friends or acquaintances may present interesting ideas, and could offer a break from an interesting workload.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): A change of pace is in order. The danger of explosive situations is almost past and you can concentrate your energies on more sensual pursuits. New faces could enter the picture, but don't get into intimacy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A night out will be disappointing as you have an electric quality that attracts others. Romantic, intimate partners, however, could run out of steam early in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Socialize and network. A little star quality may be yours today, and you can cash in by enhancing your reputation during public appearances. Others find you refreshing and interesting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't tempt fate. Temperamental people could be easily upset, and you might endanger your financial security if you adopt a challenging stance. Take a break for a continental dinner out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone close may be under the gun to perform and obsessed by business success, so alleviate the pressure by planning an evening out. It is a great time to mix with others and make new acquaintances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make a new friend. Career and reputation seem important now, but the adrenaline high could be fading. A night at home could turn out to be more exciting than you think.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't be a loner. Find a congenial other or invite a new friend out for dinner to escape mental pressures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have been working hard and developing a new work ethic, but need to impose your rules on others. Cozy conversations with someone special might be just the ticket to kindle romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Slow down. It is not the time to make important steps where money is concerned, even if exciting alternatives present themselves. Friendship should not be confused with love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek something different this evening. Help partners relax. Let the work week end on a positive note by putting together a gathering of like-minded people in a social setting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are brimming with energy, and could find it difficult to unwind.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Don't be so hard on yourself. You may have been surrounded by people with short fuses this week, and find it hard to relax. Just remember that you are loved, warned and all.

Un-wired

Vince Venezia uses a wireless connection to the internet in a Philadelphia park recently. City officials are hoping to turn all of Philadelphia into an internet "hot spot" where anyone with a properly equipped computer could access the World Wide Web.

Here comes a nationwide Wi-Fi network

The Hartford Courant

Imagine if you could use a cell phone in only a relative handful of specific locations. Imagine, too, that all the wireless companies serviced different locations, so you needed accounts with multiple providers to ensure you could make a cellular call with reasonable convenience. That's roughly the status today of the wireless Internet technology known as Wi-Fi. Take your Wi-Fi-ready notebook computer into a Starbucks and you'd better have an account with T-Mobile if you want to go online. What you have Wi-Fi service through Sprint? Tough beans, buddy. It's the same story at hundreds of high-speed Wi-Fi "hot spots" around the United States. If you've got the wrong provider, you receive no access unless you add another account to your collection. But lately, there are signs that Wi-Fi providers are starting to cooperate with each other, a trend that would be a boon for Wi-Fi Internet users everywhere. A sizeable breakthrough occurred last month when SBC Communications announced that it had signed new Wi-Fi "roaming" agreements with Sprint Corp., Concourse Communications and Wise Technologies and Mexico's Telcel. In short, Wi-Fi customers will be able to log on to the Internet at hot spots operated by other participating providers. That's a considerable expansion of the available hot spots. SBC FreedomLink Wi-Fi network is the biggest in the group, with an estimated 2,000 Wi-Fi locations up and running. Telcel brings another 400 hot spots to the table, with more than 200 restaurants, 20 airports, 20 malls, 20 universities, 70 hotels and 10 hospitals in its network. Concourse Communications and Wise Technologies have far fewer hot spots, but they exist in critical locations: namely, more than a dozen airports across the United States. Meanwhile, SBC has promised to expand to 20,000 hot spots by the end of 2006. And these are only the latest roaming agreements to be announced. Other deals involving such providers and aggregators as GoRemote, iPass, Sprintverse, T-Mobile and Sprint have begun to break the access logjam. If this trend continues, Wi-Fi users will soon have vastly expanded access to high-speed hot spots around the United States, leaving to providers the task of maintaining the network and handling the billing. That shouldn't mean the end of competition. Wi-Fi providers will still have plenty of incentive to build new hot spots, to improve performance on their networks, to add special features and — ideally — to cut prices. The first beneficiaries of this new era of Wi-Fi roaming should be traveling business folks, who are the heaviest users of wireless access. After all, when you're away from the office, finding a high-speed hotspot where you can check e-mail, get news and do research is like stumbling on an oasis in the desert. But those hardy road warriors are merely the advance party for the rest of us. Just as they were the first to use cell phones heavily, before average consumers started doing the same. And as with the cell phone system, the goal of the Wi-Fi network should be ready access from just about anywhere, good-quality connections and affordable pricing.

The first beneficiaries of this new era of Wi-Fi-roaming should be traveling business folks, who are the heaviest users of wireless access. After all, when you're away from the office, finding a high-speed hotspot where you can check e-mail, get news and do research is like stumbling on an oasis in the desert.

How Wi-Fi works

Wi-Fi, short for Wireless Fidelity, is a fast-emerging technology that links computers by radio waves instead of telephone lines. Wireless Internet transmitter sites, or hot spots, are already widespread in south-central Idaho and becoming more so. But your personal computer or laptop will need special equipment to pick up a Wi-Fi signal and that signal, in most cases, is not secure — meaning that other users can tap into the information you're sending and receiving. To go wireless with an existing computer, first check to see if it is wireless LAN enabled. You can have wireless through either a PC Card or an integrated solution. Wireless isn't built in, you'll need to buy a wireless LAN Card. This card fits neatly in the PC Card slot of your computer. Next, you'll want to locate a hot spot. Lists of providers and hot spots are widely available on the Internet. Just log on to a search engine and type in "Wi-Fi Hot Spot Locators" or "Wi-Fi Providers Idaho." Wi-Fi-enabled computers can send and receive data indoors and out — anywhere within the range of a wireless LAN hotspot. There are two steps to making a connection: The first is to have your computer "talk" to the hot spot, which means that the hardware and hot spot must recognize each other. This should happen automatically as long as your wireless hardware is turned on. On most Wi-Fi-enabled computers, you will see some sort of signal icon on your screen that will give you feedback for on and signal strength. The next step is to sign up with a wireless Internet service provider and configure your computer according to its instructions. Most of the time, this is a matter of simply launching your browser. It will automatically go to the wireless service provider's sign-in page. Keep in mind that different hot spot locations work with different service providers. If you don't subscribe to a service, chances are you will need to use your credit card to pay for access every time you want to connect. Always make sure you know what the service provider charges, as there can be a wide range of prices. Have your account access codes (user name and password) handy so you can authenticate yourself to the network. We're not there yet. But this new wave of roaming agreements suggests that Wi-Fi is here to stay. Providers are beginning to respond to the demands of the marketplace.

Annual Snake River Arts Festival returns to Heyburn this weekend

The Times-News

HEYBURN — Magic Valley artists are preparing their masterpieces for the second annual Snake River Arts Festival. The event will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and Saturday at Riverside Park, next to the Mini-Casino Chamber of Commerce building. It's sponsored by Lex and Celia Kunau and is free and open to the public. A variety of artistic talent will be showcased at the event, including oil and watercolor paintings, sculptures and pottery. Some of the artist attendees include Barry McCray, Donna Arbogast, Audrey Woodward, John Milton, Malze Bowers, Bev Stone, Joetta Honda, Scott Razez, Karl Pawson, Marilyn Miller, John Cox, Gordon Hardcastle, Edward Malze, Carol Prentiss, Rod Nelson, Eric Gochnour and DeAnn Goodwin. Some artists will have works available for purchase. Musical entertainment by local talent will also be part of the art show, with performances starting at 11 a.m. There will also be food vendors and a drawing. The community is invited to cast their vote for its favorite artist. On Saturday, there will be special activities available for children. Wrong-number call could save kidnapping victim in 'Cellular'

New-to-the-valley 'Cellular'

A wrong-number call is a man's slender link to a kidnapped stranger. With Chris Evans, Kim Basinger, Jason Statham and William L. Macy. Directed by David Ellin ("Final Destination 2"). Co-written by "Phone Booth's" Larry Cohen.

'The Corporation'

A long (and occasionally long-winded) but fascinating study of the role corporations play in our culture, our psyche and, well, every aspect of our lives, with a swarm of talking-head interviews, voice-over narration, archival news footage, scratchy newsreels, charts, graphics and learned text. No MPAA rating (some graphic news images, adult themes).

'Maria Full of Grace'

Captivating newcomer Catalina Sandino Moreno stars in this riveting, realistic tale of a young woman from a Colombian village who becomes a drug mule. It's a sharply etched character study and a compelling drama. R (violence, drugs, profanity, adult themes).

'Resident Evil: Apocalypse'

Military-trained scientist who survived a biochemical disaster emerges with genetically altered superhuman strength to lead team out of city of zombies. With: Milla Jovovich, Sienna Guillory, Sandrine Holt, Oded Fehr, Mike Epps, Zack Ward, Thomas Kretschmann, Jared Harris and Sophie Vavasseur. Written by Paul W.S. Anderson, based on Capcom video game. Directed by Alexander Witt.

Continuing

'Alien vs. Predator'

It's like a cinematic Wrestlemania. Two film heavies, the slimy Aliens and the dreadlocked Predators, face off in Antarctica. The human characters—and your interest—get lost in the crossfire. PG-13 (violence, gore, profanity, horror) — David Hillbrand.

'Anacondas'

Not a comedy but rather a horror-thriller that wisely feeds on the campy foolishness of its predecessor. This is more of a remake than a sequel, following the same broad outline as the first film: people with no business being in the jungle pursue a prize that takes them well beyond the point rational folks would venture. In this scenario, a group of New York scientists working for a large pharmaceutical corporation go to Borneo in pursuit of a rare flower with fountain-of-youth potential. The serpents have been super-sized this time from 40 to 50 feet and there are a lot more of them in director Dwight Little's highly entertaining movie assured of its genre-jumping potential. Johnny Messner, Matthew Marsden and Morris Chestnut star. (133, PG-13 for action violence, scary images and some language).

'Before Sunset'

Richard Linklater finds Ethan Hawke's and Julie Delpy's "Before Sunrise" characters nine years on, and lets them walk and talk through Paris, the clock ticking, as they catch up on each other's lives and wonder whether they've just been given a second chance. Full of talk — it's all talk — that's funny and real, dumb and sweet, the picture is, quite simply, wonderful. R (profanity, adult themes).

'The Bourne Supremacy'

The thrill-ride sequel picks up its amnesiac hero (Matt Damon) two years later, when he eludes the crossfire of double-crossing CIA and KGB agents and remains one car chase ahead of formidable intelligence on Pamela Landy (Joan Allen). PG-13 (intense violence).

'The Clearing'

Robert Redford, Helen Mirren and Willem Dafoe star in this quiet, understated kidnapping drama. Perhaps too quiet, too understated. It's a suspense movie on Prozac. R (profanity, violence, adult themes).

'Collateral'

Jamie Foxx stars as an L.A. cabbie who takes on a passenger — a hitman played by Tom Cruise — and gets taken for a ride. Michael Mann directs this sleek, modern noir. With Jada Pinkett Smith and Mark Ruffalo.

Ryan (Chris Evans) races against time after he receives a call on his cellular phone from a woman who says she's been kidnapped in New Line Cinema's 'Cellular.'

R (violence, language, adult themes)

'Control Room'

An eye-opening, vitally important film that looks at the war in Iraq from the perspective of both the Arab and the western media, focusing on Al-Jazeera, the controversial Arab news network with a global audience of more than 40 million — and few fans in the Bush White House. It's strong stuff. No MPAA rating (profanity, graphic images of war).

'De-Lovely'

Broadway composer Cole Porter flashes back on his life as if it were the setting for one of his musicals. Ashley Judd stars as Porter's wife. Kevin Kline is magnificent as Porter. PG-13 (sexual content).

'The Door in the Floor'

Set in the tony beach community of East Hampton, N.Y., the film chronicles one summer in the lives of famous children's book author Jeff Bridges and his beautiful wife Kim Basinger. Their once-great marriage has been stained by tragedy, and they lovingly parent their surviving child, bright 4-year-old Elle Fanning, who takes everything in stride. But Basinger's equation of love with loss, coupled with Bridges' infidelities, points toward a much-needed change in the relationship. That may come in the form of Jon Foster, a young man Bridges hires to work as his summer assistant — and, Bridges hopes, the catalyst to invigorate the couple's bond of marriage. Rated R.

'Exorcist: The Beginning'

The prequel to the 1973 classic "The Exorcist" has traveled a well-documented bumpy road. Paul Schrader was brought in to direct; then Schrader's version was rejected by producer James G. Robinson, who hired newcomer director Renny Harlin to re-shoot virtually the entire film. Harlin's effort marks the fourth "Exorcist" film, not counting Schrader's, and it's certainly not the worst. Somewhere between a prologue set in the Middle Ages that unintentionally evokes "Life of Brian" and a final shot of Skarsgård walking into what looks like a grade-schooler's diorama lies a perfectly mediocre horror film. There is some hood-inducing dialogue and cheesy effects, but the film's workmanlike narrative marches gamely forward, managing a handful of respectable scares along the way. (154, R for strong violence and gore; disturbing images and rituals, and for language including some sexual dialogue.)

'Hero'

Led by director Zhang Yimou and dazzling cinematographer Christopher Doyle, the production team has made what just might be the most artistically sophisticated, most formally beautiful martial-arts film the genre has seen. It is so good at what it does best that it makes its areas of weakness that much easier to overlook. The story starts as a simple one, centering on a dialogue between a king and Nameless (Hong Kong star Jet Li), an accomplished assassin who's vanquished three fellow assassins whose determination to kill the monarch has been a living hell for the ruler for years. Naturally, the king wants to know the details of Nameless' exploits. The tale is told in several different versions, each with different color schemes. (139, PG-13 for stylized martial arts violence and a scene of sensuality.)

'I, Robot'

Loosely inspired by Isaac Asimov's collection of short stories, Alex Proyas' futuristic film stars Will Smith as a bio-chauvinist cop investigating a murder that may have been committed by a robot revolting against his master. PG-13 (action violence, discreet nudity).

'Napoleon Dynamite'

The feature-directing debut of Idaho-native Jared Hess is a cartoonish paean to its ber-nerd anther. It's a simple collection of sight gags and pranks that mines the overly familiar turf of awkward adolescence without bringing anything truly original to the experience. Napoleon, played with admirable commitment by newcomer Jon Heder, is a high school student enduring the vicissitude of growing up in a small town, where he lives with his grandmother and older brother. The movie feels self-satisfied in its attempt to create a portrait of a lovable loser — infusing him with quirky qualities meant to be endearing — but in reality, plays like a revisionist goof, lumping together broad archetypes for cheap laughs while pretending to be the ultimate underdog movie. With Jon Gries, Efron Ramirez and Tina Majorino. (1:28, PG for thematic elements and language.)

A stressed-out workaholic couple take an island vacation. Please see MOVIES, Page C6

Japanese film showcases Twin Falls pianist's music for the second time

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — She won't be minding onscreen with chimpanzee researcher Jane Goodall and Tibetan leader the Dalai Lama, but Idaho pianist Kelly Yost has again been called on to provide music for an acclaimed Japanese documentary film series.

Yost's performance of Bach's Prelude in C major serves as the musical backdrop for the opening scenes of "Gaija Symphony V." The new film by director Jin Tatsumura also includes Yost's rendition of Johann Pachelbel's Canon.

Japanese audiences previously heard Yost's playing in Tatsumura's film "Gaija Symphony IV."

"Mr. Tatsumura loves Kelly's music and he had a plan to shoot her on 'Gaija Symphony' as one of his cast," said Yost.

Ando, music director for both films. "But he couldn't do it this time, to my regret."

Still, what Ando called the

entist James Lovelock to describe how earth itself is alive as a self-regulating and self-organizing system. The films show how all people, by listening intently to "the voice of the earth," can honor the planet and make great contributions to humankind.

In addition to Goodall and the Dalai Lama, "Gaija Symphony V" showcases the work of Hungarian pianist, philosopher and musician Ervin Laszlo; Japanese artists Akiko Ishigaki and Bokunen Nakai; and Russell Schweickart, the American astronaut whose space flights helped convince him of the interconnectedness of all living things.

"My passions are music, philosophy, ecology and physics," Yost said. "I am honored to again be part of this series and thrilled to have the opening track. This is a project where I am able to connect music and my love of nature. Both are spiritual connections for me, and in these films, they come full circle."

Since the opening of the first "Gaija Symphony" film in 1992, the movies have been seen by more than 1.5 million people in Japan. Tatsumura has several times won the Galaxy Award, Japan's most prestigious honor for documentary filmmaking. His films can be rented in English-language versions via the www.gaijasymphonysusa.com Web site.

Movies

go scuba diving, and get left behind — in the middle of the ocean — by the boat. One of the scariest, creepiest, gut-churning unsettling pics to come along in ages. R (language, nudity, sharks)

'Paparazzi'

An actor (Cole Hauser) seeks revenge after hounding by tabloid journalists nearly results in tragedy. With Robyn Tunney, Dennis Farina and Tom Sizemore. Directed by Forrest Silih.

'Princess Diaries 2: Royal Engagement'

(The pleasant sequel to the 2001 hit stars gallant Julie Andrews as Clarisse, queen of Genovia, and fetching Anne Hathaway as her granddaughter Mia. Whenever Andrews that incarnation of the sensible and the sensitive — glides on screen, "PD2" sparkles. G)

'Saints and Soldiers'

Director Ryan Little's fictionalized saga about the Malmedy massacre, the murder of American prisoners of war by German SS troops in Belgium in 1944. Rated PG-13.

'Shrek 2'

During the course of its 93 galloping minutes, "Shrek 2" carries the standard for self-esteem while spoofing showbiz, fairy tales, self-help books, and every other cultural phenom from animal-testing to the Oscars. The movie is a dream, a sequel as exhilarating and riotously funny as 2001's top-grossing original. PG (brief drug reference, crude humor, discreet sexual humor)

'Spider-Man 2'

Tobey Maguire returns to his dual role as mild-mannered journalist Peter Parker and the crime-fighting superhero, who this time does battle with Doc Ock (Alfred Molina). This is a deeply satisfying and involving sequel, one that builds upon the complications of the first but stands on its own. PG-13 (action-film violence)

'Supersize Me'

Documentary filmmaker Morgan Spurlock rigorously ate a diet of McDonald's fast food, three-times-a-day-for-a-month straight. He was 15 out to prove the physical and mental effects of consuming fast food. Spurlock provides a look at the food culture in America through its schools, corporations, and politics as seen through the eyes of regular people and health advocates. "Super Size Me" is a movie that sheds a new light on what has become one of our nation's biggest health problems: obesity. Unrated.

'Suspect Zero'

"Shadow of the Vampire's" E. Elias Merhige returns with an audacious cerebral thriller in which a discredited FBI agent (Aaron Eckhart) in pursuit of a serial killer on a rampage throughout the Southwest becomes the starting point for the investigation of the working of a brilliant, tormented mind. An apt metaphor for the times, the film steeped in atmospheric dark humor and intimations of unspeakable horror completed in the viewer's imagination and of experimental government programs gone awry. Merhige demands and gets as much from Eckhart as he does from Ben Kingsley's supremely ambiguous foil. With Carrie-Anne Moss. (1:35. R for violent content, language and some nudity)

'The Village'

Newcomer Bryce Dallas Howard (daughter of actor/director Ron) makes a memorable movie debut as a young adult in a utopian community threatened by menacing creatures. M. Night Shyamalan's recasting of "Little Red Riding Hood" story turns a fairy tale into an eerie scary tale with unusual resonance. PG-13 (violence, suspense)

'What the Bleep Do We Know?'

Part documentary, part hallucination, is "wired" film takes Marlee Matlin well into the Twilight Zone, where her daily, uninspired life begins to unravel, revealing the uncertain world of the quantum field hidden behind what she considers to be normal, waking reality. Unrated.

'Wicker Park'

Overly convoluted plotting and severely elliptical direction conspire to undermine what at heart is a tale of thwarted love that develops suspense as to whether that love will triumph over a diabolical attempt to destroy it. With Josh Hartnett, Rose Byrne, Matthew Lillard and Diane Kruger. (1:55. PG-13 for sexuality and language.)

'Without a Paddle'

This test-of-manhooood comedy about three friends (Seth Green, Matthew Lillard and Dax Shepard) who ride rapids and elude rednecks in the Oregon backwoods is as pungent and puerile as the latrine at a Boy Scout camp. PG-13 (drug content, sexual and toilet humor, violence)

BSU looks for win against Beavers

BOISE — Heading Idaho by 50 points is one thing for Boise State.
But defeating a Pac-10 team that nearly upset the defending national champion could get the Broncos a whole lot more recognition.
Boise State has lost all nine of its past games to teams from the Pacific-10 Conference. Last year's 26-21 defeat to the Beavers in Corvallis is the Broncos' only loss in the last 26 games.
Oregon State will be a much better indicator of where the Broncos stand in the national picture.

The Beavers will have another chance to make an impression in front of a national television audience at 8 p.m. on ESPN Friday. But losing to the defending Western Athletic Conference champions would be much more of a setback than last week's thriller.
Due to deadline, a full story on the game will appear in Sunday's Times-News.

Senior golf scramble benefit offered

KIMBERLY — The Ageless Senior Center will be holding the third annual Ageless Senior Center Benefit Golf Scramble on Sept. 25 at the Pleasant Valley Golf Club, six miles south of Kimberly.
The center, which also serves lunch daily, holds a regular schedule social events, and conducts health related clinics and seminars.

Brains rally past Tigers

By Joe Paisley, Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The clock and Jerome's aggressive defense almost handed the Twin Falls High boys soccer team its first loss Thursday.
Junior forward Denis Pavlovic scored with less than a minute remaining to lift the Bruins (3-4-1) past the Tigers: 2-1 at Ascension Fields in Twin Falls.
Pavlovic's injury-time goal capped a strong offensive performance by Twin Falls that was matched for most of the game by a scrambling Jerome defense.
"I didn't know we had such little time left," Pavlovic said. "I was just taking it all the way. I felt I had a good shot so I took it."
Pavlovic's hard, low shot had too much mustard for Jerome goalkeeper Ben Juarez, who put in a solid performance between the sticks. Twin Falls out shot Jerome 22-6 for the game and Juarez was busy, especially in the second half.
An injury to a Jerome defender late in the game gave Twin Falls the time it needed to regroup for one last push.
"That gave us the energy we needed," said Bruins coach Trent Felton.
Twin Falls tied the game at 1 in the 55th minute when senior forward Rene Garcia headed in a corner kick by Pavlovic to break Juarez's shutout bid.
By then, Twin Falls was clearly starting to win the ball-possession battles as the Tigers tired during a warm afternoon.
"Their defense is high energy," Felton said. "We knew if we kept at them, they'd run out of gas."
Their style of play further wore on the 1-4 Tigers, who had a number of players fighting head colds, coach Brent Rogers added.
"We played a good game," Rogers said. "Twin Falls was a lot faster getting to the ball."
Jerome's passing wasn't sharp at times, ruining potential chances before they could develop into scoring opportunities.

Jerome pounced on one opportunity to take a 1-0 lead midway through the first half.
A turnover in the Twin Falls end allowed Miguel Diaz to start a 2-on-1 breakaway. He fired off a low, hard shot into the far corner to give Jerome a 1-0 lead.

It looked to be enough until Jerome tied.

There's little rest for Twin Falls, which enters Region Four-Five-six play Saturday in Idaho Falls against the Tigers and Skyline. Jerome hosts Great Basin Conference foe Wood River at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Indians roll through triangular

By Eric Larsen, Times-News writer
SHOSHONE — The Shoshone volleyball juggernaut rolls on.

After downing both Dietrich and Rockland during Thursday night's home triangular, the Indians are 7-0 (4-0 Magic Valley Northside Conference) on the season and have yet to lose a single game within a match they've played. Shoshone setters Kallie Axelson and Wagner Severson set the Indians' hitters up for a night on the way to their 25-11, 25-13, 25-15 win over the Blue Devils and 25-4, 25-17 victory over the Bulldogs.

We have two of the better setters around and they laid it on the money," Shoshone coach Larry Messick said. "The thing I liked was we played with intensity the whole three games against Dietrich. We didn't let down."
Junior outside hitters Hailey Harris and Katie Strunk led the Indians with 14 and 12 kills, respectively. Strunk also tallied six blocks and two aces on the night, while Kyli Astle totaled seven-kills and three aces.
"We played really well as a team," Harris said. "Our setters and hitters were on and we were digging everywhere."
Against Rockland, Shoshone jumped out to an early lead and then emptied the bench with a comfortable cushion.
"Our girls got to come in and get some playing time, so that was nice," Messick said.

While other teams are still working on team chemistry, the Indians, who returned all but one player from last year's state tournament, are already rolling.
"It feels new because we're trying some different plays," Harris said. "But it helped that we had a lot of the same players last year. In that way, it feels like we're continuing from last season."
The other match of the night saw Dietrich down Rockland 25-16, 25-23. Junior Caitlin Dill finished the night with 10 kills, one block, and one ace.
"We didn't play our best tonight," Dietrich coach Teresa Smith said. "It was one of those days where you're there, but not really. We were kind of dead out there."
Dietrich is now 3-1 on the season and 2-1 in WNC play. They will look to rebound against Camas County Tuesday in Fairfield.
"They were games to learn from and improve on," Smith said.
Meanwhile, Shoshone will host another tri-match Tuesday against Declo and The Community School.
"Our goal is to just go out and play Shoshone volleyball," Harris said. "We know everybody's out to get us. We just need to keep working hard."

Johansson upsets Roddick

NEW YORK — Andy Roddick ran into a bold, bigger version of himself at the U.S. Open, and 6-foot-6 Joachim Johansson sent the defending champion home.

Roddick was upset 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4 Thursday night by the 22-year-old Swede, displaying a powerful serve and forehand, but also someone who's won just one title, was playing in his first major quarterfinal, and who started the upset 1-3th.

New England Patriots running back Corey Dillon rushes for yardage in the first half against the Indianapolis Colts in Foxboro, Mass., Thursday.

Patriots rally past Colts

FOXBORO, Mass. — New England's 27-24 win over Indianapolis on Thursday night wouldn't have happened if its defense hadn't awakened in the second half after being shredded for 255 yards by Peyton Manning and Edgerman James before intermission.
Brady threw for 335 yards and three touchdowns — one each to Deion Branch, David Patten and Daniel Graham. Corey Dillon, obtained from Cincinnati to revive the Super Bowl champions' running game, carried 16 times for 86 yards.
But the Patriots' defense bailed them out after a horrible first half. Three times they stopped the Colts after turnovers, the second time after Branch fumbled a punt and Asante Samuel was called for pass interference to put the ball at the 1.

But Eugene Wilson knocked the ball loose from James and rookie Vince Wilfork recovered with 3 minutes, 43 seconds left, avoiding what looked like a sure touchdown.
Then Willie McGinest sacked Manning with the Colts at the Patriots 18, forcing Mike Vanderjagt to try a 43-yard field goal instead of a chip shot. Vanderjagt, who had made 42 in a row, kicked it wide right with 24 seconds left.

CSI hopes for better weekend

By Kevin Colbert, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There's no doubt last weekend's early exit left a bitter taste in the mouth of the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team.

The Golden Eagles appeared to be rolling heading into this past Saturday's semifinal matchup with host Salt Lake Community College at the Hampton Inn/Fairfield Inn Invitational, but fell in five games to the Bruins.
CSI looked like anything but a team that is expected to challenge for a national title.
"I think a lot of it is just mental fatigue right now," CSI head coach Ben Stroud said. "We just look awfully tired to me. There's just no spark. I don't know what it is."

CSI (14-1 overall) will look to regain that spark today and tomorrow at the Yavapai Roughrider Tournament in Prescott, Ariz.
The Eagles appear to be on the right path, having downed Southern West Athletic Conference rival College of Eastern Utah on Wednesday. CSI won 30-15, 30-23, 30-23 behind 11 kills from Eliane Santos and 11 each by Tatiana Menshikova and Via Felipe. Edhall Serralla paced the Eagles with 16 assists while Ashley Gandauld added 15.

But CSI definitely has things to work on, mainly serve-serve and serving attacks that have faltered of late. The Eagles committed 11 serve-receive errors against SLCC and 11 service errors. Stroud, however, doesn't plan to pull back on the reins of several players on his team who can wreak havoc on defenses with an array of floppers and jump serves.
"Our approach, if anything, is to be more aggressive," Stroud said. "We're going to take what we can get right now and then we can always back off."
"Of course we want to win, we will play to win. But we also have to get better," he added. "The only way to get better is to have two or three kids jump serving, and we have some kids that can serve really well. They just have to do it in the games."
The Roughrider tournament may not provide quite as stiff a test for CSI as it faced in Salt Lake City. CSI will play eight matches — against Arizona schools, only one of which is expected to be a player on the national stage. The tournament began Thursday with six matches. The Eagles began play with five matches today before finishing up with three on Saturday.
"I don't think it's going to be like it was in Salt Lake, which is probably a good thing for us because I can mess around with a few things," Stroud said. "I'd like to see us play with some energy. Basically, play a little harder and with a little more intensity."

Kraft reconfirms financial targets

RUPERT — Illinois-based Kraft Foods Inc., which has a cheese plant in Rupert, on Thursday reconfirmed its long-term financial targets and 2004 full-year guidance.

Speaking at an investor conference, Chief Executive Officer Roger K. Doronich reconfirmed long-term growth targets for ongoing constant-currency revenues of around 3 percent and earnings per share of 6-9 percent.

"While we remain focused on driving out costs through productivity, the key to delivering sustainable earnings growth over the long term in the food industry is consistent revenue growth," Doronich said. "By that end, we continue to evolve our new product development process by focusing on fewer, bigger and better ideas, and improving our speed of execution."

The forecast 2004 fully diluted earnings per share of $1.55 to $1.62 — including 30 cents in exit and implementation costs for a restructuring program and asset impairment charges.

Yum Brands backs quarter guidance

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Yum Brands Inc., the parent of Pizza Hut, KFC, Taco Bell and other restaurants, backed its prior third-quarter and fiscal 2004 guidance, helped by positive sales from its three main U.S. brands and the strength of the company's international division.

Yum Brands said it remains comfortable with Wall Street's mean third-quarter earnings estimate of 60 cents a share.

A year ago, the company earned 54 cents a share, excluding a charge of a penny a share.

The Louisville-based company said Thursday it expects U.S. blended same-store sales to increase 5 percent for the four weeks ended Sept. 4. Blended same-store sales refers to sales at company owned KFC, Pizza Hut and Taco Bell restaurants only. The company also franchises some of those restaurants and owns Long John Silver's and A&W All-American Food Restaurants as well.

Yum Brands' net income guidance for the year remains at least $2.36 a share. The company continues to expect earnings of at least $2.33 a share before special items.

Analysts surveyed by Thomson First Call expect Yum Brands to earn $2.34 a share, excluding items, for 2004.

A year earlier, Yum Brands had net income of $2.02 a share and income of $2.06 a share before items on sales of $8.4 billion. Yum Brands, which has more than 33,000 restaurants worldwide, plans to report its third-quarter earnings on Oct. 5.

Retailers collaborate to reduce theft

By Lorraine Cavener
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Every year in Twin Falls about $250,000 is lost to shoplifting, according to figures compiled by the Twin Falls Police Department.

In response, area loss-prevention professionals are putting their heads together to find ways to deal with it. Three Twin Falls businesses — Target Stores, Sportsman's Warehouse and WinCo — organized a loss-prevention workshop next week to help.

Having frequent meetings with loss-prevention specialists is becoming a trend among retailers and has helped cut down on theft, said Ed Perez, loss-prevention associate at WinCo. Perez, who worked in loss-prevention in the casino industry for 13 years, said cooperation between stores helps catch thieves.

For every shoplifter caught, about 30 get away, Perez said. "For every dollar we lose, it takes $10 to make up the difference."

Brian Maughan of the Twin Falls Police Department, who will be one of the main speakers at Tuesday's loss-prevention event, said one shoplifter out of every 45 is caught.

Last year about 123 shoplifting arrests were made with $7,257 worth of product recovered, said Maughan, who estimated that about 4,300 were not caught — which amounts to nearly $250,000 worth of merchandise taken.

Thieves take items such as 10 to 20 DVDs and CDs at one time and try to sell them at pawnshops, said Curt Crum, supervisor of Boise Police Department's crime prevention unit, who will also speak at the event. Pawn shops "call us on a daily basis with information," he said.

Retail fraud has become a crime of choice that's tied to drug use, Crum said. Thieves make money through theft to support methamphetamine habits.

A free loss-prevention summit will be held Tuesday at the Hampton Inn in Twin Falls.

- Registration starts at 8:30 a.m., with workshop activities held until 5 p.m.
- A continental breakfast and lunch will be provided.

CREDIT WORTHY?

Brenda Matthews, 27, sits on the front steps of her Newark, N.J., home, Tuesday, Aug. 31. Matthews had been offered a job at Johnson & Johnson but the offer was retracted after the company examined her credit history.

Credit can affect consumers in multiple ways

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Brenda Matthews thought she had a new job lined up at Johnson & Johnson headquarters in New Jersey.

After applying online for a position as a patent specialist, she was called in for interviews that seemed to go well.

"I met with the office manager, the supervisor I would have worked with," said Matthews, 27, a single mother who lives in Newark, N.J. "They loved me."

And, in fact, she was offered the job. But then Johnson & Johnson ran additional background checks and came up with information on her credit report the company found unsatisfactory.

"Just a few hours later, they wanted to take the offer back," Matthews said. "I told them, I've already told my employer I was leaving. I felt they were playing with my life."

Credit reports have long been used to determine whether consumers can get credit cards and mortgages, and the rate they'll have to pay on them. But these reports — and credit scores generated from them — are increasingly being applied to other things, from setting the price on auto insurance to analyzing prospective tenants and screening job applicants.

Consumer activists argue that the system is unfair to many Americans, especially those with little credit experience or with blemished credit records. And some people have begun fighting back in the courts.

"The reality is there are many permissible reasons for organizations to pull your credit report," said Evan Hendricks, a privacy expert who authored "Credit Scores & Credit Reports: How the System Really Works, What You Can Do." At the same time, it's confusing, shrouded in mystery and constantly changing — and that works against consumers.

Credit reports are the records kept by credit agencies — including Experian, Equifax and TransUnion — that track the amount of credit consumers have and whether they pay their bills on time. Scores can be derived from the credit reports, either by the agencies themselves or private companies that are customers, to reflect an individual's creditworthiness. The best known is a FICO score, used since the 1990s by banks and other lenders when they underwrite home mortgages.

One of the most contentious uses of credit reports is in employment.

Matthews, who said she was "kind of crushed" by the on-again-off-again job experience, has filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, charging racial discrimination. Matthews is black.

Attorney Adain Klein, a partner at Outten & Golden in New York who is representing Matthews, said the case maintains that a person's creditworthiness "has nothing to do with employment suitability." He also argued that the linkage may be especially damaging to minorities, who are more likely than whites to be denied credit in the first place.

"Overly that in the employment area, and there would be a substantial adverse impact on African-Americans," he said. "It's probably also true for women and for others, like related immigrants who haven't established a credit history."

Johnson & Johnson said in a statement its background checks enable the company to "identify the existence of negative credit payment history, such as delinquency and default." It added, "A negative credit payment history may impact a job offer where the history identifies issues significant to that position involved."

The company also said it apologized to Matthews for "the mistaken communication" about the job.

The use of credit scoring in the insurance industry also is being challenged. Many companies generate their own "custom scores" to set premiums on homeowners and auto insurance.

Several states have moved to limit the practice, and the Federal Trade Commission is studying scoring to try to determine whether it unfairly drives up the cost of insurance for some consumers.

Health care costs jump 11.2 percent

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Health care costs continued to surge this year as family premiums in employer-sponsored plans jumped 11.2 percent, the fourth year of double-digit growth, according to a new study.

The cumulative effect of rising health care costs is taking a toll on workers: There are at least 5 million fewer jobs providing health insurance in 2004 than in 2001, according to the survey of 3,017 employers by the Kaiser Family Foundation and the Health Research and Educational Trust.

This year, 63 percent of employers offered health benefits to workers, down from 68 percent in 2001. The change is primarily driven by a decrease in the number of small employers, those with three to 199 workers, that offer coverage.

The average premium for a family of four grew to $9,950 annually. The family premium for a preferred provider organization, the most common type of insurance, hit $10,217 — the first time it broke $10,000. PPOs are plans that provide members with a network of discounted providers that charge a copayment but also allows for the use of other doctors and hospitals.

Employers with three to 24 workers reported the biggest hike in the average family premium, 13.6 percent.

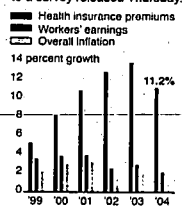

"Health insurance is becoming unaffordable, especially for small employers. We should expect the ranks of uninsured to grow as small employers can't afford health insurance," said Drew Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation.

Altman noted that the hike in

Over the past six years, health insurance premiums have grown at a much faster rate than workers' earnings, according to a survey released Thursday.

Delta plan seen by some as setup for bankruptcy

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Key elements of Delta Air Lines' broad turnaround plan will take months if not years to implement, suggesting the struggling carrier is setting itself up for how it will survive after a likely Chapter 11 filing, industry observers and legal experts said Thursday.

Delta's plan, announced Wednesday, includes cutting up to 7,000 jobs — but over 18 months. The shedding of its Dallas hub will not take full effect until Jan. 31.

Delta will expand its hubs in Cincinnati, Atlanta and Salt Lake City with redeployed aircraft from Dallas-Fort Worth. The Salt Lake hub is Twin Falls air travelers' only nonstop destination.

"The company's strategy to cut $5 billion in costs is targeted to 2006, and adding leather seats and in-flight entertainment to planes will take time.

By the Atlanta-based airline's own admission, however, time is running out.

"Those of us looking at it from an objective perspective are assigning a low probability of that plan being realized outside of bankruptcy," said James Owers, a Georgia State University corporate restructuring expert.

Delta said Wednesday that a bankruptcy filing could come as early as three weeks from now if it can't head off a mass exodus of pilots. Worried about their pensions, several hundred

Stocks mixed on job data

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were mixed Thursday as investor enthusiasm over a sharp drop in initial unemployment claims was offset by rising oil prices and a disappointing report on investment in technology shares benefited from a pair of outlook upgrades and strong earnings from National Semiconductor Corp.

Investors grew more cautious about the session as oil prices climbed, topping the $44 per barrel mark after weeks of declines. A barrel of light crude rose $1.84 to settle at $44.61 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Wall Street was also disappointed by the Commerce Department's report on wholesale inventories, which rose 1.3 percent in July, double what economists had expected. Wholesale sales rose only 0.5 percent — which means that business and consumer spending has trailed off and more products are sitting in warehouses.

DuPont agrees to potential $343 million settlement in Teflon ingredient lawsuit

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The DuPont Co. agreed to pay as much as $343 million Thursday to settle allegations that the chemical giant contaminated drinking water in West Virginia and Ohio with a key ingredient used in its Teflon products.

As many as 60,000 residents across eastern Washington, Works plant on the Ohio River near Parkersburg, W.Va., would be exposed to the chemical, C8, now known as perfluorooctanoic acid or PFOA.

If the settlement is approved by a West Virginia judge, DuPont will fund a $5 million study of whether C8 causes disease in humans.

Delta

Delta pilots have retired early in recent months, and more have threatened to do so, the company says.

The pilots, meanwhile, have said they would be more eager to join Delta because of the preserve their accrued retirement benefits. Such a promise would be very unlikely and perhaps not even possible without setting up an expensive pension trust, observers say.

As for the S) union pilot concessions the airline says it needs quickly to help avoid bankruptcy, the pilots union said last week it doesn't expect an agreement in the near future.

Rules

Howard M. Radzely also said in a letter Thursday that the old rules ceased to exist on Aug. 23 and the Obey-Miller amendment "will essentially serve only to prevent the department from using its enforcement reserve as a tool to protect the overtime rights of any employee who earns $455 or more per week." Obey disputed that conclusion, saying that legally the administration has the authority to reimpose the old regulations within a day after the new rules are voided.

"It just seems to me," Obey said as debate on the amendment began Thursday, "that the Labor Department, the White House and the Congress should not be complicit in the effort of employers to chisel workers of overtime pay."

Costs

Continued from D4. Health premiums outweighed both the 2.2 percent growth in rates and 2.3 percent growth in inflation by five times.

There is a great sense that there is just no answer to this problem, Altman added. The average premium for single coverage rose 3.2 percent to $3,463 annually.

However, singles' out-of-pocket costs for the premium rose 1.8 percent to $558 annually while a workers' family premium rose 10.3 percent to $2,661.

Since 2001, employee contributions increased 57 percent for single coverage and 49 percent for family coverage.

Theft

Continued from D4. Trends in thefts include retail, credit card and credit fraud and thefts involving employee collusion.

Nationally more than $1 billion a year is lost in retail fraud, he said.

One of the reasons retail fraud has become popular is that misdemeanor penalties do not deter thieves from committing the same crimes again.

What's to stop (thieves)? Crum asked. He plans to talk about how law enforcement and merchants can work together.

Perz and Maughan encourage retailers with smaller retail stores to attend.

Drivers without championship hopes still race hard for payoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't feel sorry for the drivers who won't make it into NASCAR's new 10-man, 10-race championship shootout. They don't.

Going into Saturday night's Nextel Cup race at Richmond, the drivers 11th through 15th in the points standings still have at least a mathematical chance to be among those who compete for the season title — and the big payoffs — beginning the following week at Loudon, N.H.

But that doesn't mean the rest of the field lacks incentive. "Those of us who aren't in are really going to be able to take advantage of the situation," said Scott Riggs, 29th in the standings after a seventh-place finish last Sunday night at California Speedway. "A lot of the teams in the top 10 are going to have to tip-toe around out there. They want to stay out of trouble and not get caught in someone else's mess."

Then there are teams like ours, who can go out, be aggressive and drive as hard as we need to in order to improve and learn from that week and try to build momentum for next year."

Veteran racer Jeff Burton, who recently switched teams — moving to Richard Childress Racing from Joush Racing — is in much the same situation as Riggs.

Burton is 18th in points, mathematically eliminated from the top 10 but trying hard to build momentum with his new team before the end of the season.

So how does Burton approach Richmond? "Just like a normal race," Burton said. "We try to race the people that are in the championship hunt with respect — which we would do anyway. We try not to cause any wrecks — which we would do anyway."

"So we really just go to Richmond to race, do the best we can and pay attention to what we are doing, not what everyone else is doing."

Matt Kenseth's runaway championship last year was the last straw for NASCAR, which has seen a number of ho-hum title battles in recent years. That has hurt both attendance and TV ratings late in the season, particularly when it came time to go up against pro football and baseball's postseason.

Once the top 10 is locked in Saturday night, NASCAR's new format calls for these drivers to be given additional points, putting them out of reach of the rest of the field. Those 10 will be separated by increments of five points, with the leader going into New Hampshire just 45 points ahead of the 10th place.

Even being on the outside looking in, Burton is impressed with NASCAR's new way of determining a champion. "When I first came out a lot of people were thinking it wasn't good. It won't work, why change things," Burton said. "Now everyone is wondering how long it will take before the Busch cars and the trucks will switch over to the new points system."

"It has created such a level of excitement. I don't understand how there is a loser in the deal. If you were 12th in points going into the final 10 races of the season, you weren't going to win the championship under the old points system anyhow."

It's make or break time in title chase

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — And so, after 25 races, it comes down to this: Four spots up for grabs in NASCAR's 10-race championship shootout, nine drivers with a shot and one of the raciest tracks.

"This is the make or break race of the year for us, so we're going to have to pull out all the stops in order to put ourselves in contention to win," Kevin Harvick said of Saturday night's Chevy Rock & Roll 400 at Richmond International Raceway.

The race marks the end of the 25-race championship qualifying series, and will be followed by an all-new 10-race shootout among the top 10 drivers in season points.

A week ago, Harvick was in eighth place going into the race at Fontana, Calif., but a 28th-place finish sent him tumbling to the end of the line of contenders, 56 points behind No. 10 Mark Martin, and forcing him into a decided change in strategy.

Harvick is now 15th in points and will have to beat Jamie McMurray, Bobby Labonte, Dale Jarrett and Jeremy Mayfield — along with at least one driver who will start Saturday night's race in the top 10 — to gain a spot in the championship chase.

"We're on the aggressive now and they're the ones who need to be looking over their shoulders, not me anymore," Harvick said. "... The time is now to go for it all."

Like Harvick, other drivers needing to make up ground at Richmond view the racey three-quarter-mile oval as an interesting place to wrap up the qualifying series.

McMurray, 11th in points and only 25 out of the top 10, was running well here in the spring before running with Joe Nemechek and being relegated to 38th place. "That's the thing about Richmond," McMurray said. "It's a short track and you can be caught up in someone else's mess and have your night end early."

For Mayfield, this race is a chance to undo a number of mistakes earlier in the season that combined to put him 55 points out of 10th going into the finale.

Jarrett, who is 43 points behind Martin, thinks expectations that driver etiquette will be forgotten are misguided: "at least until the last few laps, because aggressive driving can hurt the aggressor's chances as much as his victims."

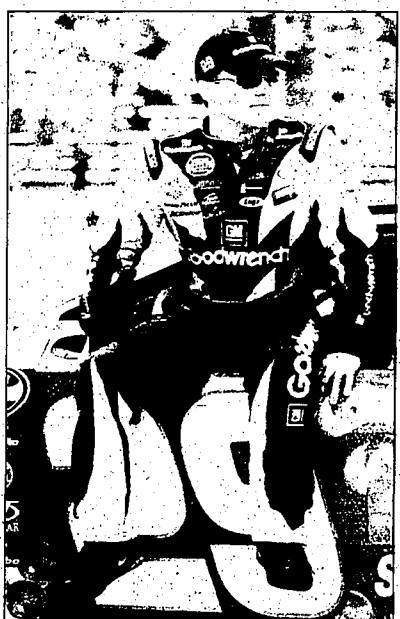

"People want to talk about taking chances and doing this and that on the race track," he said. "You can't put yourself in that position. One spot might make a difference here in the last five laps of this race and you might have to do something at that point if it might be the difference between getting in or not."

Once the race begins, six drivers will have clinched spots. No. 7 Kurt Busch will have all but clinched one and the remaining contenders will be just 76 points apart, all hoping for a massive reshuffling like the one that took place at Fontana.

More that race, Harvick and Labonte fell out of the top 10. Casey Kahne and Martin moved precariously in and Ryan Newman climbed from 10th to eighth.

After McMurray, Labonte is 36 points behind Jarrett.

Of course, the 10 who make it will be the focus for the rest of the season as they battle anew for the championship, but there will still be 33 other cars in each race. Mayfield, for one, expects an exciting prelude to the championship chase. "I think it's going to be a great track for it," he said. "A short track, Saturday night, I'm sure there will be a full moon out and tempers flaring at the end of it."

Canadian teammates enter NASCAR's biggest stage

RICHMOND, Va. — For only the second time, a pair of Canadians will team up for a race in one of NASCAR's top series.

John Graham, a winner four years ago at the 24 Hours of Le Mans in a Porsche 675, has been Chevrolet's fielded by owner Randy MacDonald in Friday night's Funai 250 Busch Series race at Richmond International Speedway.

Graham drove MacDonald's car last month at Indianapolis Raceway Park, finishing 31st.

Graham will be working with MacDonald Motorsports teammate Kevin Lepage, who will drive a second team car.

MacDonald is proud to be a Canadian in a sport that has been dominated over the years by Americans.

"Racing isn't an American thing. Racing is a lifestyle with a language all its own," he said.

LEGAL NOTICE
The Magic Valley Regional Office of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game will be reclaiming the fisheries within Connor Pond and Emerald Lake in October 2004 in effort to eliminate non-game fish species. Common carp and Utah suckers have invaded and overpopulated these fisheries and have reduced the potential of the sportfish populations in these fisheries. The entire fishery will be eliminated and repopulated with sportfish to provide better fishing opportunities. The Idaho Department of Fish and Game would like to provide the fishing public the opportunity to harvest game fish from these fisheries prior to the reclamation effort. Therefore, bag, possession, and size limits, will be moved on Emerald Lake and Connor Pond (Minkdoka County) effective September 1, 2004. Information concerning the foreclosure action may be obtained from the Trustee, whose telephone number is (208) 785-5511. According to the Trustee's records, the grantor of said real property, an unmarried man, as Grantor, to First American Title, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of Denise F. Turner, an unmarried woman, dated October 7, 2002, and recorded as Instrument No. 2002-021365, all records of Twin Falls County, Idaho.
The above Grantor(s) are named to comply with Section 45-1506(4)(a) Idaho Code. No representation is made that they are, or are not, presently responsible for this obligation.
The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to:
(1) make the monthly installment of $255.00 plus a $5.00 monthly escrow fee totaling $260.00 due for the first day of February, 2004, and a like sum of $261.00 due for the 15th day of each and every month thereafter.
The principal balance is $24,900.00 together with interest thereon at 12.000% per annum in the amount of $1,113.04, as of May 25, 2004, and accruing interest. All delinquencies are now due together with any late charges levied by the State or National Bank, or a check drawn on a State or Federal Savings and Loan Association, Savings Association or Savings Bank, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of TWIN FALLS, state of IDAHO, and described as follows to-wit: THE NORTH 85.82 FEET OF LOT 12 IN BLOCK 3 OF JONES ADDITION TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO, ACCORDING TO THE PLAT THEREOF, RECORDED IN BOOK 1 OF PLATS, PAGE 49, RECORDS OF 9th AUGUST, 2004.
Commonly known as: 1240 11th AVENUE EAST, TWIN FALLS, ID 83301.
Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by JEFFREY L. BLACKMER & MELISSA BLACKMER, HUSBAND AND WIFE, as Grantors, to TITLE AND TRUST CO., as Trustee, for the benefit and security of TWIN FALLS BANK & TRUST CO., as Beneficiary, recorded April 14, 1988, as Instrument No. 937880 Mortgage recorded in TWIN FALLS County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE OR ARE NOT PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.
The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due April 1, 2004 of principal, interest and impound and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said deed of trust. The estimated balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $27,241.17 including interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligation thereunder or in this sale, and trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

OPEN SUNDAYS

We Do Business A Better Way! Just Ask Our Customers!!!

"My day started up in Boise and no one would give me the time of day, I was turned down by 4 dealerships. I became frustrated and discouraged. But when I got to Mountain Home Auto Ranch, they took me in and after 3 hours, I was the proud owner of a new Dodge Neon. Thank you Auto Ranch!"
DELESIA MAHN

"I saved $600 over the best deal I found in Boise. The staff was courteous, helpful and answered all my questions. All in all I got a great deal on the exact model I was looking for!"
JOSEPH M. WAITE

"Mountain Home Auto Ranch was outstanding! I shopped seven dealerships looking for a truck. This dealership was willing to meet my needs - the most. I would recommend Mountain Home Auto Ranch to my friends and family. Their customer service was outstanding!"
PATRICK L. DAWSEN

"This was our first visit to Mountain Home Auto Ranch. We live in Nampa and had seen the awesome ads in the newspaper so we gave it a shot. We were treated very kindly and didn't feel pressured by our salesman Carlos. They met our needs and respected our decisions. We would definitely buy another car from here! Awesome customer service!"
