Officials debate odor

BOISE — When Twin Falls.
County Commissioner Gary Grindstaff got a call last week about a strong dairy oder north of Buhl, he said he limmediately looked into the matter,
It turned out the odor that offended the county resident came from a farm across the road from the one where the person was complaining, and it didn't come from a dairy.
Instead, a farmer and his wife who worked in town were land applyling manuire from a call operation on a Saturday and were taking care to disk it in as soon as it landed on the groundstaff said.

Grindstaff s story came out in an odor rules meeting Thursday in Boise in which a committee of people on both sides of the dairy odor debate gathered to write language and set standards for the state's agricultural odor law that the Legislature passed in 2002.

John Chatburn, deputy ad-ministrator for the animal in-dustries division of the Idaho State Department of Agricul-ture, was apprehensive about setting a numerical manure.

But he used Grindstaff's anec-But he used Grindstaff's anecdote as a basis for suggesting that a good place to begin to set a numerical standard for unacceptable ag odors would be to determine whether the smell of manure is acceptable. "Manure smells like manure," he said.

The committee has already decided it will rely on the trained suffirer' readings on a tool known as the Nasal Ranger as a basis for numerical standards at states where state residents have odors.

But on Thursday the committee wasn't ready to accept the numbers the soffiers were recommending. Instead, members decided to go back to their constituents involved in all ag endeavors and get more input before going forward with numerical standards that they will eventually ask the Legislature to approve. Chatburn said his concern is that the numbers on manure that the ratned sniffers have already suggested as a standard are set at the level of ag practices long held as acceptable in the state of Idaho.

ATLANTA — As Hurricane Frances subsided last week, 68 volunteers from Magic Valley prepared to go into the field to offer aid to victims but were held off by the approach of Hurricane Ivan.

The destruction Ivan brought to the already battered region has prompted the Federal Emergency. Management Agency to put the call out for another 400 relief workers to join the 2,000 already waiting in Atlanta for deployment.

As many as 12 of these new workers will leave today from Magic Valley, said Sherl Blackwood, director of the South Central Idaho Citizens Corps Council.

What is at Pit 4?

What is at Pit 4?

From January 1963 to September 1967, Pit 4 received Cold War-era muclear weapons production waste, which was shipped from the Rocky Flats weapons lab near Denver.

Pit 4 contains what officials at INEEE, feel is a high concentration of transurantic waste including plutonium, beryllium and americium.

Uranhum and volatile organic compounds can also be found in the dig area. Other waste items include solid stabilized slabs that don't contain transurantic waste, contaminated garbage such as paper, gloves and glass.

Mich of the waste was originally stored in druns, carron nally stored in drums, carton and boxes. In Pii 9, workers found many of the drums had degraded, Byram said, However, plastic bags, which held much of the waste inside the drums, held up.

"The vast majority of those drums are not intact." Byram said.

Byram expects to find similar conditions in Pti-4.

Although there is, no liner under Pti-4. Trever said, there is groundwater monitoring around the Subsurface Disposal Area within the waste management complex.

What will happen at Pit 4?

The Energy Department has already constructed an enclosed structure above the retrieval and removal site at Pit 4. The Energy Department will target certain wastes for renoval at the site.

"It reduces a significant amount of transurante waste and volatile organic compounds. Byram said. "The VOCs are known to be mobile, meaning they could move toward the aquifer." However, Byram said, the colatile organic compounds.

Bigger, bolder Jefferson graces revamped nickel

WASHINGTON (AP) —
Thomas Jefferson appears bolder and bigger on new live-cent pieces, marking his first makeover since he landed on the nickel in 1938.
The maker of the nations coins, the U.S. Mint, revealed designs for two new nickels to be issued in 2005. The unwelling Thursday was the latest in a series of design changes for the coins.

coins.

A new likeness of Jefferson will be on the front of the two revamped coins, giving the third president a "fresh, contemporary look," Mint Director

The "ialls" side also gets updated.

The "ialls" side also gets updated.

The back of the first version features an American bison on a grassy patch, a design that is reminiscent of the buffalo nick-olf first issued in 1913. The words "United States of America" wrap around the top of the coin, above the bison's image. The phrase "E Pluribus Unum" is below the bison as is "Five Cents."

The talls side of the second new nickel features a view of the water from a rocky coastline dotted with trees.

The death knell for CBS News

nd-of-life issues are al-ways difficult for any family, and the once-great news division of a once-great network is critically, ill and possibly beyond resusci-tation.

What is killing the remnants of CBS's credibility is the controversy over documents "60 Minutes" obtained that purport to reveal George-W-Bush failure to submit to a physical "as ordered" while he was in the Texas Air National Guard! There is also a document asserting that Bush's squadron commander, Lt. Col. Jerry B. Killian, succumbed to pressure from a superior to sugarcoat Bush's performance rating because of his influential father. The problem with this latter assertion is that the superior. Col. Walter "Buck" Staudt; had relired 18 months before the document was supposedly written.

document was supposedly written.
Another question that was mised about the documents concerns the typeface that was used. Some "experts" said the type was root in use in the early 1970s.
Then there were questions

1970s.
Then there were questions about former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who claimed he helped get Bush into the Guard in 1968. The trouble with that in 1968. The trouble with that story is that Barnes contradict-ed his earlier statements (no wonder he's a top fund-raiser for John Kerry). Barnes' daugh-ter called him a liar for his latest remarks.

Next it was revealed that retired Maj. Gen. Bobby Hodges claimed CBS had misled him by reading from the documents over the phone instead of showing them to him. When he said they "sounded" like they were written by Killian, CBS took that as confirmation of their authenticity. The soul-for CBS is that Killian died in 1984 and is not available for comment.

Anchor Dan Rather, who says Anchor Dan Ruther, who says the documents are genuine, says CBS management is not conducting an internal investigation. But that is no more realiste than the documents in question. Unnamed sources within CBS News told The American Speciator magazine that CBS management is nerviced as saying. All Dan could say was that this was not attack from the right-wing nuts, and that we should have expected this, given the stakes. He was terribly defensive and nervices.

terribly detensive and notices."

The way to clear the air is for the original documents to be produced so they can be examined by independent experts. But, according to The American Spectator, CBS doesn't have the originals. The producer is quoted: 'Our sources have indicated to us that we will not be getting the originals. How that is possible I don't know."

I do. Suppose the documents

I do. Suppose the documents were faked by the Kerry cam-paign, or someone trying to keep the president from being re-elected. That possibility was on the mind of the unnamed producer, who told the magazine. "There are at least two people in this building who have insisted we got copies of these memos from the Kerry campaign by way of an additional source."

Could the timing of the story have something to do with presidential politics, since CBS reportedly has been working on it for more than three years? Reports about Bush's National Guard service and allegations of favored treatment go back to at least 1991, when he was running against Ann Richards for governor of Pixas.

A. M wife and several of her friends: five attractive, intelligent suburban women, some professionals, some house-wives, many of them friends for more than 20 years. Among the many things they have in common is the fact that they all experienced marriages put to the torch by husbands who once publicly avowed to stand by their spouses until death did them part.

One of the husbands decided that his marriage and family interfered with his time at the gym. Another went searching for a "new and improved" woman, while another had already found one. One nurtured his personal favorite — one walked out on his toddler and pregnant wife during Christinas week.

Oh, tidings of comfort and joy,

MICHAEL GROSS

Unfortunately, stories such as these are all too common, even in good, solid, conservative communities such as my own. But in our zeal to defend the institution of marriage, I can't help wondering whether a constitution of marriage, I can't help wondering whether a constitutional ban on gay marriage may just be shifting the blame. I admit that blame-shifting does have its rewards. Nothing could be more satisfying than to think that gay men and lessians — not we — are responsible for the shameful rate of falled marriages in the United States. If, as the Rev. Jerry Falwell claimed, they were indirectly responsible for the attacks of 9/11, they might be capable of anything. I flow very gratifying to conclude that my adversary is the embodiment of evil, while I am the embodiment of good.

But the first casually of shifting the blame is often common sense: the rapist blaming his rime on the immodest dress of his victim; a defense lawyer assigning his client's murder spree to a Twinkies diet: or a Tailb concluding that his obsession with a womants bare ankle is best addressed by blowing up a pair of 1,500-year-old Buddhas.

Big money in politics could be much worse

Marijuana sells in the parking lot for about $100 per bunce. Meanwhile, the stock ounce. Meanwhile, the stock market goes into hysteries when crude oil approaches $50 per barrel. That much crude, depending on its specific gravity or quality, probably weighs maybe 200 pounds, which would make its cost, very roughly 2 cents per ounce. In other words, an ounce of marijuana might cost the consumer 5,000 times as much as an ounce of crude.

ounce of crude. Most likely, 5,000 times the LETTER cost means 5,000 times the profit, and it is worthy of note that this does not take into account the massive oyerhead associated with oil exploration, production, transportation, Terining and distribution. There is no evidence that demand for either commodity is decreasing, but compared to the illegal drug trade, the oil business — drug trade, the oil business — ounce for ounce — is peanuts. Then there are the harder drugs: opium and heroin, crank, cocaine or crack and perhaps a host of others that I havent heard of yet. These gen-erate even greater returns for a loosely affiliated worldwide network of thugs and consequences for the rest of us that are rippling the fabric of our civilization apart. I don't Imagine that this is new to anyone. So what sit he point?

The point is that I would rather see a Texas oil man in control of his country's affairs than some brutal hedonist in Columbia or some barbarie madman from Afghanistan. I'm not so much worried about GW and the money that he and his pals make from their oil interests. I'm worried about the lumatic tweeker twitching nervously behind me in the convenience store.

The variations are endless, but a few things are clear: no one is immune to drugs; we all share the enormous burden of the illegal drug trade and drug abuse and dirthags are reaping the obscenely staggering rewards. It's also unfortunate but true that it takes a lot of money and influence to become president of this out-of-control juggermatu of a country. If, for starters, some of that money and influence comes from oil or even ketchup. I don't see the problem. Things could be much, much worse.

Colorado could spoil election day what could happen on election day.

One scenarios that deserves more attention involves Colorado.

RICHARD L. HASEN

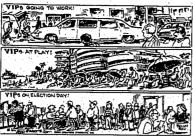

On Nov. 2, Coloradans will be doing more than voting for president. They will also consider Amendment 36, a voter-initiative that, if passed, will change the way Colorado's nine electoral votes are allocated. Most states, including Colorado, award all of the state's electoral votes to whichever presidential candidate obtains the greatest number of votes there.

are greatest number of votes there.

Amendment 36, if passed, would divide up Colorado's electoral college votes proportionately, depending on how many votes each candidate wins. What's more, it declares unambiguously that 'the popular proportional selection for presidential election is intended to apply retroactively and thus determine the manner in which our state's presidential electors are chosen and our state's electoral votes are cast for the general election of 2004.

In other words, it coupe Bush narrowly gains more vote than John F. Kerry (right now, things look like a tossup). Bush could end up with only four or five electoral votes rather than other words, if George W.

The more important point is this: With such a close race nationally, the results of the nationwide election could well turn on a judicial determination whether Amendment 36 tion whether Amendment 35 applies for on exactly how it applies for on exactly how it applies for one exactly how it applies for heart of the exact of the exact Second, opponents of Amendment 35 could go to court claiming that it is unfair and unlawful to apply Amendment 35 retroactively to this election. This argument seems doubful because there is no unfair surprise here.

Would at least two other justices be willing to consider finding Amendment 36 a violation of Article II, in the context of deciding yet another presidential election?

recovery

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's share of the federal funding available for salmon recovery efforts could be boosted by a million dollars, Idaho Sen. Mike Crapo announced on Thursday.

Crapo said the decision by enate budget writers to in-rease Idaho's share to $6 tillion foreshadows bodes vell for future salmon recovery efforts.

The Republican junior senator introduced the legislation earlier this month as a way to ensure Idaho is included in future federal salmon recovery funding efforts.

The Senate Appropriations Committee voted to increase it for the next fiscal year, but it still needs full Senate approval.

Crapo, chairman of the Sen-ate's Fisheries, Wildlife and ate's Fisheries, Wildlife and Water Subcommittee, said the bill "makes Idaho a full partner with Oregon Washington, Cali-fornia, and Alaska" in regional salmon recovery programs.

The money will benefit projects ranging from tribal hatcheries to stream diversions along tributaries of the Salmon River.

"It was only two years ago that Idaho became eligible to share in federal salmon recov-ery dollars, despite having more than half the habitat for Northwest Chinook salmon." Crapo said in a prepared state-ment.

apartments than there are bodies to fill them.

Some apartment complexes are offering free long-distance phone calls, vaulted cellings and neated floors in an effort to entice renters. Meanwhile, real estate owners and managers are struggling to keep vacancles down in a city where there are an estimated 1,400 empty private apartments.

We just keep giving and giving and giving, said Cindy Sharp, manager of Colonial House, apartment complex. This year, we just have to much housing. Last fall, Colonial House had 13 vacancies. Earlier this fall, there were more than 80 empty, units expected as the first day of school approached.

Rexburgs apartment market has boomed since Brigham Young University-Idaho made the transition to a four-year university, beginning in 2001.

Several new housing complexes have opened, with three targeting single students in the past year. Those three complexes alone added 800 units.

"It only took that many to push us over what the need is," aid Sharon Tuckett, director of housing at BVU-Idaho.

The vacancy rate last semester was 15.6 percent. Figures have not been compiled for this semester, but Kurt Hibbert, the city's pitanning director, said he's heard of vacancies as high as 40 percent in some complexes.

Afghan president escapes rocket attack

KABUL. Afghanistan — Assailants fired a rocket at an American helicopter taking President Hamid Karzai on a rare foray into Afghanistan's troubled provinces Thursday, but it missed and he escaped injury. Karzai has survived at least one previous attempt on his life. He made light of the attack, which renewed concern about the U.S.-backed leader's safety amid Talliban threats to derail the Oct. 9 presidential election.

"Napoleon Dynamite"

"Napoleon Dynamite"
The feature-directing debut of Idaho native Jared Hess is a collection of sight gags and pratfalls that mines the familiar turf of awkward adolescence. Napoleon, played with admirable commitment by newcomer Jon Heder, is a high school student enduring the vicissitude of growing up in a small town, where he lives with his grandmother and older brother. The movie sets out to create a portrait of a lovable loser. With Jon Gries, Effen Ramirez and Tina Majorino. (1:28. PG for thematic elements and language.)

Milla lovovich, the seductive, glassy-eyed star of the first "Resident Ewi", returns as Alice, now genetically-engineered to, be faster, stronger and able to leap rampaging zombies in a single bound. She's trapped in Raccoon City — basically Toronto with a great, big wall around it — when a virus is unleashed, causing the dead to rise again swifily as the flesh-hungry Undead. Alexander Witt, the second unit director of films such as "The Italian Joh" and "Pirates of the Caribbean," injects the film with plenty of razzle-dazzle on the visual side, but the pace deadens whenever the zombies are off-screen or the characters open their mouths long enough do anything other than grunt. With Sienna Guillory, Sandrine Hot, Coded Fehr, Mike Epps, Zack Ward, Thomas Kretschmann, Jared Harris and Sophie Vasasseur. (1:33. R for non-stop violence, language and some nudity)

But how could anything be normal" about Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen, the blg-eyed kiddie actresses from Los Angeles turned foxy college freshmen in New York?

Sure, they crammed for the SATs and applied for early decision to a hot school and then sweated it out until they were accepted. They even found their own place, and shopped this summer for new clothes and stuff for their new pad. But while the Olsen twins, who started classes this week at New York University in Greenwich Village, may share many of the same expectations and challenges of typical students, their college experience is not likely to be normal, by any means. Only in New York could you buy four units — essentially the entire top floor of a high-rise—put them together for $7.3 million and still not break into the top echelon of real estate deals. That's what the Olsens did (They also recently picked up a $4-million house with city-to-cean views in the Bel-Air nelighborhood of Los Angeles.) When their 5,725-square-foot-condo in the far West Village is finished, they'il have a mighty fancy dormitory. Still, it's no big deal; it's not Central Park West or Park Avenue.
As for why a hot pot and single bed were good enough for lenna and Barbara Bush' and Chelsen Cilinton—not to mention the Secret Service — but not for the Olsens twins, the mini-moguls had other people and things to worry about. They may not be presidential daughters, but the Olsens are follywood royalty atop an estimated $1-billion merchandising empire dependent on their good name.

Twin Falls boys pick up first conference win

TWIN FALLS — From the booming kicks off the left foot of Denis Pavlovic to the finesse dribbling of forwards Juan Santos and Rene Garcia, everything was working for the Twin Falls Bruins as they heat the Highland Rams from Pocatello 4-1 Thursday at Ascension Fleld. When one team is controlling the ball about 75 percent of the time, a win isn't far behind. Behind the on field coaching and urging by senior captain and sweeper Scott Thompson, the Bruins (4-1-2, 1-1-1 region) pretty much dominated the entire Region Four-Five-Six boys soccer game from end to end.

pretty much dominated the en-tire Region Four-Five-Six boys soccer game from end to end. Midlifieders Jack Mikesell and Marko Bilal contained the mid-dle. Andy Legs and Stuart King controlled the outside. Many of the drives to the goal in the Bruins first conference win were led by the fancy footwork of Santos and Garcia. And as hard as Pavlovic can shoot the ball, it should be mentioned that his passing and ball control also is a joy to watch. Bruins coach Trent Felton said he was pleased with the re-sults of the hard work the team had been putting in lately. "It just seemed to come to-gether," Felton said. Senior Chris Beer scored his first of the year off a crossing pass for the eventual game-winner.

TWIN IALLS — It would be easy for Iwin Falls head football coach Tobe Smith to bask in the glow of a big win.

But after looking at the game film from this past Saturday's 28-21 victory against Timberline, he knows better.

Strike looms as merger can't be put off

Can't be put off

TOKYO — The first strike in the history of Japanese baselal looked increasingly likely Thursday after representatives of the country's pro basebal teams ruled out a key player demand.

Japanis players threatened to strike this weekend unless a one-year freeze was placed on strike this weekend unless a one-year freeze was placed on the merger of the Leafile League's Kintesta Buffaloes and Oris Bluedwave.

But team officials told the Japanese baseball players association Thursday that a freeze on the merger was impossible.

With the merger of the Bufaloes and the Bluedwave, the Pacific League was reduced from six teams to five, which could result in at least 100 players and team personnel losing their jobs.

LOS ANGELES — Michael Mahan figured it was worth spending $25,000 for baseball tickets — especially when It bought him the entire section at Dodger Stadium where he thought Barry Bonds 700th home run ball might land.
But now it appears Bonds will reach that milestone in the conning days so Mahan, a lifelong Los Angeles fan, has been selling most of those tickets in the right-field pavillion at Dodger Stadium.
Mahan. 28. decided six months ago to purchase every seat in the section for two of the three games against the San Francisco Giants that end, the season in October. He was hoping that Bonds would join only Babe Ruth and Hank Aaron in the 700 home run club.
Mahan has been reselling most of the 6458 tickets for as much as $15 each — much more than the $3.50 the Dodgers' front office gave him as part of a standard groupdiscount rate.

RUPERT — The Minico Spar-tans are coming off a gut-wrenching 16-14 home loss to Rigby and now have to face the Century Diamondbacks, lathow defending .4A state champion. Strangely enough, it could be just the opponent Minico needs. "We've had their number." Spartans coach Tim Perrigot said. "Were one of those teams their kids struggle with and that's going to be in the back of their minds." The Spartans have a history their minds."

The Spartaus have a history of giving Century all it can handle, including a 15-14 upset in 2001. At that time, the Spartans were the only Idaho team to down Century in a two-year span. Now Minico looks to repeat that feat against a team that has won three of the last four Idaho Class 4A championships.

four Idaho Class AA championships.

You really need to make sure you're prepared mentally as very sure prepared mentally as very last physically for Comuny. Perrigot said. "They have a new head" coach '(Ryan Fleischmann, so they're not doing everything the same, but there are some similarity will be outstanding quarterback talent from Century's highly recruited senior Luke Butler. give up on, quan-to be key. Perrigot is also encouraged by his team's resiliency against Rigby. They fought through a lot of adversity and big changes in momentum. Perrigot said. "Our teams in the past, I'm not sure they would have hung in there to the end. These guys put themselves in a situation to win the game late."

themselves in a situation to win the game late."

If Minico can get a solid all-around performance, it may be time for history to repeat itself Friday

riday. "If we can win the turnover battle, run our offense efficient-ly, and take time off the clock, I think were going to come out with a victory." Perrigot said. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. at Spartan Field.

Hansen at Lighthouse Christian

Hansen at Lighthouse Christian

Hansen's undefeated Huskies football team looks to move to 4-0 on the season against Jordan Laird and the Lighthouse Christian Lions Friday at Twin Falls High School at 7 p.m. The Huskies narrowly escaped last Friday's home game against Richfield, winning 14-6 on a 30-yard pass from Matt Freestone to Mark Pearson with two seconds left in the game. The athleticism of Freestone, Pearson, and receiver Kyle King has been a big reason for Hansen's perfect start to the scason.

Meanwhile, the Lions defense has struggled with a full varsity schedule, giving up an average of 42 points per game. While Laird—an elusive haltback—has found his way to the end zone a number of times, he faces a stiff challenge in a speedy Inskies defense.

week, step two in a devastating early schedule.

But there's reason for optimism for Peyton Manning and friends, underdogs by a point-and-a-half.

For one thing, they beat the Titans twice last season, including a 29-27 win in Nashville. For onother, Tennessee already has injury problems.

And for a third, the Colts-moved the ball well against the Patriots but were killed by three turnoyers inside the 20-yard-line; two fumbles by Edgerin James and an interception thrown by Manning.

"We're 0-1 and we're at the same place we ended last year," coach Tony Dungy said. "We're agood team, but you've got to do it week in and week out."

The quarterbacks, co-MVPs Manning and Steve McNair, could cancel each other out. That could put the offenses on the legs of James and Chris Brown, who had 100 yards on 16 carries in the first half against Miami but sprained his ankle and didn't play after intermission.

Brown says he'll be ready.

"We had some success, some enjoyable times. You cherish those memories and move on. We were of a different era, a different time," said Chow, an assistant at BYU from 1973-99. Chow's era at BYU under former coach LaVell Edwards was built around the passing game and quarterbacks such as Jim McMahon, Steve Young and Heishan Trophy winner IV Demer. Chow was the co-offensive coach 20 years ago when the Cougars went 13-0 and won their only national title. He left Provo in 1999 after the came, apparent he wouldn't be succeeding Edwards and went to North Carolina State, where he helped mold a freshman quarterback named Philip Rivers — the fourth overall pick in the NFL draft last spring.

Under the new structure, one bad race, broken part or accident can instantly eliminate a driver from contention.

Thats what Gordon doesn tike. Because the 10 eligible drivers will compete against the entire 43-car field, under the same scoring system used for every race, Gordon is concerned about how other drivers can affect the chase.

For example, Jimmy Spencer caused a wreck last weekend that heavily damaged Jimmie Johnson's car. Spencer is not a contender; Johnson is, and he ended up finishing 36th in the ended up finishing 36th in the race and carring just 60 points for the event.

Earnhardt starts in third, chasing his first series championship. His father won seven titles under the old format, but Junior is a long way away from that level.

His Dale Earnhardt Inc. team has behind the rest of the competition in many areas, particularly engineering, and went through a slump this season where they had a difficult time correcting problems. Occasional team infighting also makes NASCAR's most popular driver an lift yee to win the title. Stewart, the 2002 series champion, also runs well at the end of the year and lias victories on seven of the final 10 tracks. Two more wins might be enough for the title. Kenseth, who bored everyone last year en route to his first championship, could use the same consistent strategy to win in the new system. His tendency championsup, course the same consistent strategy to win in the new system. His tendency to score top 10 finishes, not pushing too hard for the victory, and avoiding trouble that costs him valuable points, could give him a string of solid finishes that would give him the title.

SANDPOINT — Air passenger service from Sandpoint to Boise and Seattle will be discontinued on Oct. 15 after a four-month-trial.

McCall Air started the Sandpoint service in June, ferrying passengers between Boise. Sandpoint and Seattles Boeing Field for $262 per round trip.

"Operationally, the service went great," said Dan Scott, McCall Air's president. Once we got people to fly with us, they were hooked. But the passenger load wasn't there.

The eight-passenger Cessna Caravans averaged just 2.3 passengers per flight during the summer. Scott said.

Sandpoint business leaders viewed regular, air service as a critical marketing device for the community of 7,000.

"We'll reassess, we'll regroup and we'll look for other forms of funding," said Ron Nova, chairman of the Sandpoint Air Service Committee. "Its a disappointment, but it was a valiant effort.

Washington — Rates on 30-year and 15-year mortgages fell this week, good news for people, thinking about buying a nome.

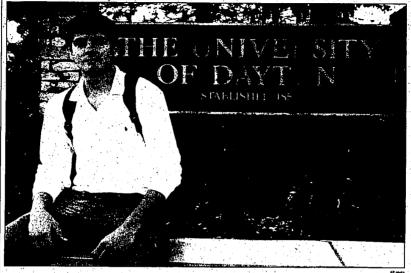

Freddie Mar, in its weekly survey released Thursday, reported that rates on 30-year, faced-rate mortgages dropped to 5,00 pent. 16. That was down from 5,83 percent last week and marked the lowest rate on 30-year mortgages since the beginning of April. Rates on 30-year mortgages hit a high this year of 6.34 percent the week of May 13. Rates slowly drifted downward as economic activity cooled in the late spring and early summer and inflation fears receded. For 15-year, fixed-rate mortgages, a popular option for relinancing, rates decreased this week to 5.13 percent, from 5.22 percent last week.

However, rates on one-year adjustable rate mortgages rose slightly to 4.03 percent, irom last week's 4 percent.

NEWYORK—It's a well-worn pickup line at college keg parties: What's your major?

And in today's uncertain job market, it's a lot more. Positions once filled by graduates with yesterday's hot majors are disappearing or being shipped overseas, so a student's answer to the question is one of the most important financial decisions they ever will make.

Research by professors at Northeastern University in Boston shows that a college student's major is more important than what college they attend in determining their starting salary upon graduation.

Yet with employment patterns shifting much faster than in the past, choosing a major based on what jobs will be in demand a few years down the road is a tricky endeavor.

"In the last three years, because of the economic recession, the labor market has-for me, what my major should be."

The most obvious recent trend is a retreat from computer science studies, which was a hot area in the 1990s before the tech tubble burst and companies began olishoring programmers. What ownerged as one substitute is actually one of the older—and decidedly unexiting—standbys accounting.

Last year, the number of students graduating with accounting degrees rose 11 percent, according to a survey by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Colleges are crediting the bean-counter boom on the recent corporate scandals and the students have picked up on that.

And at a time when Donald Trump is a poster boy for reality TV. entrepreneurship has become a popular major. A 1970 survey found only 16 college courses on the topic, according to Maria Anton, executive editor of Entrepreneur magazine. Last year, 825 colleges offered entrepreneurship classes, she said.

from Washington.
The new site gives localized information on companies thought to be exporting work or losing jobs to foreign trade. Users can type in a ZIP code and get a list of businesses within that area that show up on government databases for mass layoff notices or trade assistance certifications.

For the state of Wisconsin, the site shows 50 companies exporting jobs since january 2001, and 163 companies reporting layoffs as the result of foreign trade.

Democral John Kerry, endorsed by the AFL-CIO, says he would lower taxes for companies creating jobs in the United States and enforce trade agreements to protect American workers.

President Bush says he plans to promote free and fair trade globally to expand the market for American goods and to provide training to enhance the skills of U.S. workers.

While there's little dispute that American work has migrated to factories and offices overseas, no one has specific numbers on the loss of such jobs.

both the overall CPI and for core prices.

I don't see any significant danger that inflation is going to run away from us, "said Anthony Chan, senior economist at IP Morgan Fleming Asset Management. The economic full experienced in the late spring and early summer, economists said, made it harder for some companies to raise prices, thus improving the inflation climate. Separately, new claims filed for unemployment benefits rose last week by a seasonally adjusted 16,000 to 333,000, the department said in a second report. Neither Hurricanes Charley nor-Frances affected the increase, a Labor Department analyst said. The 333,000 level of claims was still better than the 340,000 to 346,000 that some analysts were expecting. The pace of layoffs has slowed over the last year. A year ago, new filings were at 401,000, a level associated with a weak labor market, compared with the current 333,000.

The latest batch of economic news comes with Election Day less than two months away. President Bush and Democratic rival John Kerry have marketly different views about how the economy and the nations job market are doing.

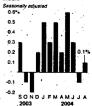

The economy hit a bit of a rough patch in the late spring and summer, but now appears to be gaining ground, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan says.

Bush says the best way to strengthen economy activity and spur more job creation is to make his tux cuts permanent. Kerry says the presidentis tax cuts have mainly benefited the wealthy, haven't produced significant job growth and have plunged the government's balance sheets deeper into the red. The nation's payrolls picked up in August, with the economy adding. 144,000 positions, the most since May Still, the economy has lost a net 913,000 jobs since Bush took office.

and early summer made it harder for some companies to raise prices.
Following a weaker, session
Wednesday, which analysts said was overdue after four weeks of solid gains: the inflation data was a welcome buying incentive, and more than offset negative earnings warnings from several companies, including Nortel Networks Corp.
Volume was light due to Rosh Hashanah — the Jewish New Year— and altead of the usually volatile "triple witching" on Friday, when options and futures contracts expire.
Much attention has been focused on economic data ahead of next week's meeting of the Federal Reserve, when policymakers are expected to raise the federal funds rate by a quarter point to 1.75 percent. As long as Inflation remains in check, analysts say the Fed is unlikely to adopt a more aggressive policy on rates. With oil prices, the jobs picture and the presidential race all coming into play, however, a great deal of uncertainty remains. Market watcher say this shouldn't scare investors to the sidelines, but it underscores the need to keep. need to keep expectations in meed to keep expectations in check.

"Now through the end of the year there might be some andienty, but this is the time to really get back to business and make your money in the market, said David Hegarty, head trader, at Commerzbank Securities." We have four more months here, so this is where the action happens. I'm confident in the market going through the end of the year. I don't think we'll put in spectacular gains, but I think the market could go another 2 percent higher.

Nortel shed 7.9 percent, or 30 cents, to $3.50, after the Canadian telecom equipment giant warmed that revenue for the current quarter would be lower than the previous period, and full-year growth was likely to trail the industry. Regulators are investigating the company for possible accounting fraud.

Executive privilege: Some company execs feel compelled to dip into funds

Why would Tyco International Chief Executive Officer Dennis Kazlowski use company money to pay for a $15,000 poodle-staped umbrella stand and a $6,000 shower curtain? Why would Conrad Black, CEO of Hollinger International Inc., bill $2,400 in handbags to his newspaper publishing firm and have the company pick up the tab for his personal servants?

It is easy enough to under-the tab for his personal servants?

It is easy enough to understand why a financially strapped bookkeeper or a frustrated executive passed over for the top job might stead-from his company.

But it is far more difficult to fathom why the pampered person at the top would plunder an enterprise that was paying him millions of dollars a year in cash and stock. At the very least, spending corporate money on personal expenses risks an internal Revenue Service audit. In the worst case, such behavior could cost a CEO his seven-figure job and land him in prison.

The simple answer is that some CEOs lose their sense of reality and feel entitled to whatever they can get away with, psychiatrists and corporate governance experts say.

Instead of thinking about what is fair or right, some CEOs look around to see what their peers at the top of the heap are getting in cash, stock options and perks, such as corporate jets and club dues. They want that — and more.

getting in cash, stock updates and perks, such as corporate jets and club dues. They want that — and more.

"They begin to feel that everything is going to be done for them, and they have the right to that," said Dr. Ribbert Gordon, a psychoanalyst and partner in the Chicago firm Analytic Consultants, which works with business clients." In our recent business culture, it has become more and more accepted to live like a potentate.

Last month, Black and David Radler, Hollinger's former second-in-command, were accused of being the country's latest example of "Replocertas," executives who steal from the companies that issue their payches.

Behind a constant stream of bombast regarding their accomplishments as solf-described proprietors, Black and Radler made it heir business to line their pockets at the expense of Informer according to a 513-page report prepared for Hollinger by Richard Breeden, a former chalman of the Secunius aunEschange Commission.

In Blacks case, the amount of money he took each year from Hollinger was determined by his exorbitant expenses, the report said. The standards are different, of course, for owners of private firms. They can take home every penny of profit and be justified in doing so. But it's a far different matter when heads of publicly traded companies treat their firms as private piego banks.

Even in cases, in which the CEO is the majority owner, he or she has an obligation to act in the best interests of his co-owners, the individual investors who expect a return on their equity.

In extreme cases, some top executives believe that the rules of society do not apply to them.
Cordon said A grandices sense danger than life. They experience no remonse for actions that hurt others.

The mental headth communiy has a word for such individuals: sociopaths. Of course, no dysfunctional individual exists in a vacuum. In the corporate world, chiefs who are losing their bearings have boards of directors that are suppossed to help them maintain perspective.

have dampened economic ac-tivity.

"Despite the rise in oil prices through mid-August, inflation and inflation expectations have eased in recent months," Greenspan said last-week. Crude prices climbed to record highs earlier this summer, top-ping $48 a barrel, but have moderated in recent weeks. In August, energy prices

We believe that we should focus on our efforts at the bargaining table and do not want to negotiate in the press."

Delta fears that its pilots could jump ship en masse because they are worsted about their pensions.
United Airlines threat to terminate its employee retirement plans has rolled workers at that airline, and prompted concern among many in Washington.
Several hundred Delta pilots have retired early in recent months, and more have threatened to do so.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

concede nothing until they dirt on my face." John Monks Jr., Sy Bartlett, and Henry Hathaway

Eddie Kantar's latest book, "Kantar on Kontract" (details of which can be found on kantarbridge.com.), is a combination of instruction and humor that tries to help you think like an expert. Kantar's tip is that if a contract looks hopeless, place the opposing cards where you need them to be. If the contract looks relatively easy, the expert will ask himself what can go wrong and what, if anything, can be done about it. In today's three-no-trump contract. East plays the spade king, and the ball is in your court. What is your plan?

and the ball is in your court. What is your plan?
Diamonds have to be established before the opponents can set up three spade tricks. If spades are 4-3 and West has the queen, as East's play of the king suggests, the hand cannot be defeated whether or not you win the first spade. However, if spades are 5-2 and the diamond honors are divided, winning the spade ace is natural but very dangerous. East can capture the first diamond and return a spade, allowing West to win his spade queen and drive out the jack. When West gets in with the other diamond honor, he will run the spades and defeat you.

Hawover, if you duck the first honor, he will run the spades and defeat you.

However, if you duck the first spade trick, win the second, and now knock out a diamond honor, you are home free. If East wins the trick, he has no spade to return, and the diamonds can be easily established. In other words, to protect against 5-2 spades and split diamond honors, duck the opening lead. ening lead

ANSWER: Reopen with a takeout double. When your partner (playing negative doubles) passes over one heart, he either has a weak hand or is playing for penalties. Since it seems unlikely that he can be weak with your RHO a passed hand, double and hope partner can convert this to penalties, in which case the opponents may be going for a telephone number.

"I needed a truck to go hunting in. I was told to go to Mountain Home Auto Ranich. I'm glad I came! Chad my salesman was easy to talk to. He was very smart about the truck. I will let people know how good Mountain Home Auto Ranch Ford is."

KELLY GILLESPIE

(Carlin, NV)

"Mountain Home Auto Ranch was a very enjoyable experience. My salesman was very helpful in getting me a new truck. The personnel worked great as a team to get me what I needed."

JERRILL ALDOUS (Boise)

"My purchase at the Mountain Home Auto Ranch was easy and fast. I highly recommend buying here. Thanks!"

MARK JONES (Ketchum)

"I originally come from Southern California where buying a car can be extremely undaunting. Our entire purchase experience couldn't have been easier! Everyone treated me extremely well in a really relaxed atmosphere. Thanks!"
