TWIN FALLS — A crucial piece of federal legislation commonly referred to as the Nez Perce Agreement has been put on hold, say U.S. Sens. Larry Craig and Mike Crapo, who introduced the bill in Congress. The legislation, which involves the state and federal governments, water users and the Nez Perce Tribe made it out of the Senate Indian Affairs Committee in record time, Craig said.

But in the final days before the general election, another sena-tor put a hold on the legislation so thai it didn't make it to the floor for 'dibate. According to Senate rules, a senator is al-lowed to do that without reveal-ing his or her identity, so neither Craig nor Crapo currently know who is holding it up, both said. The action means someone is putting the delegation on notice that it, is facing a fillbuster if the legislation comes to the Senate floor. Crapo explained. A fill-

There is virtually no chance of setting the legislation to the floor during the corning "lame duck" session after the election, both said.

But in addition, opposition is building from environmental groups as well as from "other quarters," Crapo said.

views with some important contrasts in management style.

Mikesell brought a refreshing new perspective to the commissioners office, most notably while examining the county budget and expenses. We're quite sure that the Bob Fort case, where more than $64,000 in county funds were stolen and misused, would not have come to light without Mikesell's insight.

As a voting member on Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Hospital Board, Mikesell still says the hospital is working well as a publicantly. He also think housing prisoners in other county jail. Powers states a stronger case for a county-owned hospital, and the persuansively-calls for better planning by commissioners on long-term goals. We differ from hovers in his views for jail expansion. But we are encouraged by his pledge to gain voters consent for new taxes, buildings, purchases or policies.

The key issues for Ihler remain dairy regulation and improved agricultural development planning. He advocates good, sound policy for open government and responsiveness to voters. But we don't see his candidacy making strong points beyond the dairy issue. In our view, Brockman still represents the more complete candidate.

With our endorsement, we must warn the incumbents to be more attentive to the public on key decisions. Last winter's botched Anderson Building purchase failed because neither voters nor a judge approved it. The creation of an ambulance tax district likewise did not go to voters.

Glenns Ferry School gets new roof, wiring

By Karin Kowalski Times-News writer

By Karin Kowalski Times-News writer

GLENNS FIRIRY — Construction at the Glenns Ferry School is in the home stretch, in spite of a few delays.

The school will have a new metal roof, an enclosed entryway and a new electrical system when the project is done, said Superintendent Karen Ernest.

The SA1 million in repair work has been funded by a bond issue that wurers approved in November 2003. Earlier that year voters shot down a $4.4 million bond issue for the same project.

Ernest said, the oldest part of the roof dates to the early 1980s. Subsequent additions, including the middle school whigh the early 1980s, subsequent additions, including the middle school whigh the early 1980s in the connections between the parts had problems, making it difficult to find the sources of numerous leaks in the building. The Glenns Ferry School Board decided replacing the flat roof with a pitched metal one was the best solution, Ernest said.

The enclosed entry to the building was party necessitated by the logistics of the roof repair. The school used to have a canopy at the entrance.

Ernest said fixing the leaks also will keep the building in better condition and protect the ceiling tiles.

"We went for the bond when we did to protect our investment in our building. Ernest said.

Construction started in late May after school ended. The project stabout seven days behind because of various delays, but Ernest said. A construction was a bargain because of low interest rates and help from the state. She said the states bond levy equalization program will help the school save, about $30,000 this year and about $390,000 over the life of the loan.

The building will be formally dedicated Dec. 17.

Brockman, 70, said the most serious issue facing the county right now is drug and alcoholabuse. It affects families, employers that lakes a big bite out of county office, which is filling upthe county jail. And when a man goes to jail, his family ends up what the ansatte.

Candidates on the issues

How can the county save and best utilize tax dollars?

Mikesell: The answer is efficient management. The county has started to have inmates medical and dental needs cared for inhouse via dental needs cared for in-house via contract. The county has also harded the wey it purchases pharmaceuticals and expects to save $80,000 a year. Commissioners are keeping a closer look on the books that they have in the past.

Powers: The county should do more long-term plan-ning. It needs a five-year goal plan and a three-year budget plan. County should be on the state public en-ployee retirement plan-because it's a better plan than they're on no ber-bullding still an upper.

Mikesell: We need space. To reconstruct would have cost $75,000. They asked me to look into it and it was brought down to $22,000 to $25,000 by using jell labor for demolition.
We got prices on local properties. Anderson approached us.
The community is throubed. If we have to raise taxes, we will have to take it to a vote. Judicial review — having a judge approve a project if it's an ordinary and necessary expense — is possible, but ordinary and necessary is hard to define. I have no problem with judicial review if it's necessary.

Powers: He's upset county com-missioners pursued the Anders Lumber building without putting the question before voters. He would like to see county offices remain downtown. "I would use all avenues. I would rather see the county stay downtown than be all over the city."

The county is spending between $300,000 and $500,000 a year to house in mates in other county jalls due to lack of space. What should the county do inmates in other county jalls due to lack of space.

Immates in other county jails due to lack of immates in other county jails due to lack of Mileself: I don't want to build a new jail. We could do our job better as elected officials. Yearn tilke putting people in jail. We could dook a tyonomictoring, ankle bracelets, work release, but not for violent criminals or repeat officialers. "If we could riber inclinals or repeat officialers." If we could riber in-tem." A jail study showed that 125 immates could have been let out on the street. I wouldn't rule out hem." A jail study showed that 125 immates could have been let out on the street. I wouldn't rule out hem." A jail study showed that 125 immates could have been let out on the street. I wouldn't rule out hem." A jail study showed that 125 immates could have been let out on the street. I wouldn't rule out hem. A jail study showed that the properties of the street. I would have a court compliance officer who will provide judges with the information they need. As far as housing outside of county, there's a line when It's not coast-effective. A new jail would cost between $3 million and $5 million and a staff would be hard to come by.

Powers: A clizens committee worked their tails off and county commissioners didn't take their recommendations. Now they're doing a $50,000 study and another committee is coming back with the same recommendations. It should go for a vote. Powers said he's in favor of alternative sentencing if it works. There are state laws for mendatory sentencing for DUs. A lot of them are on work release, but they still must come back to sleep. There's a need for more room, but the current jail pan only spend so much. There are a lot of low-security immates. The county could build a smaller - 100 to 150 bed facility — to house them.

Some neighboring counties allow ilquor sales on Sunday, Restaurant and bar ówners in Twin Falls County say the county, as well as their businesses, is los-ing money because tourists are drawn to counties that do sell ilquor on Sunday. Should Twin Falls County sell ilquor on Sunday?

Mikeself: it makes no sense to me to not allow liquor on Sun-days, but voters don't went it. We're going to have a public hearing. I want community support one way or the other.

Powers: I don't see a problem with it. We're already selling beer and wine. Voters should decide.

Magic Valley Regional Medical Center is owned by the county. Is it operating fine the way it is, or does it need to look at other forms of governance, such as partnering with or seilling to a nonprofit or for profit corporation?

Milseatit I understand their need to become effective and efficient. In order for the hospital to be effective, they have to look at all the options. We have to, as stewards of the building, make sure it remains vabible. I have doubts we can continue as a stand-alone hospital. We need to look at partnering and there's still a possibility of selling to a nonprofit or for-profit.

Powers: As a county hospital. Magic Valley Regional should help offset county employee insurance costs — perhaps create a county employee insurance costs — perhaps create a county employee Mio. We've got the hospital garnishing our workers' wages because they can't pay, 'the doesn't think Milesell should be a voting member of the Haspital Board because he still has to vote as a county commissioner on important issues such as hospital governance. There should be more people on the board from outlying cities in Twin Falls County, he'b bileses the hospital soloning well financially. 'We probably have the best county hospital because its still making money.' He's against giving the hospital away without full voter approval.

Twin Falls County spends more than $2 million a year on indigent care, which includes illegal immigrants. How can the county save on indigent care costs?

Mikesell: I can't understand why the federal government can't issue cards, much like a credit card, where you could call an 800 number and see if it's legitimate. The technology is there and it can't be too expensive. We need to put some of the responsibility on the employer. Illegals won't be here if they can't got work. Employers should be responsible for injuries.

Powers: The state should raise beer and wine taxes to help pay for alcohol and drug treat-ment which would save the county money on indigent care.

Some large dairy operations have caused problems with odor and files. What should the county do about the environmental issues regarding problem mega-dairles?

Mikesell: We've had fewer complaints. Technology is catching up and will continue to improve. The state has dropped the ball. We haven't had a new dairy since I've been here. We can conabitate, but we need to understand each other.

Powers: "Dairies are another part of the agriculture com-munity — an intricate part." We need to keep them operating, but also answer to clean air and water con-cerns. There are some areas in the south end of the county with room for dairies. There are good operators and a few bad operators, We should study the good oper-ators and put what works into the zoning plan.

What goals would you like to achieve in a four-year term as county commissioner?

Mikesell: I'd like to continue down the road with what I started. Morale is better, but there was still a 33-percent turnover. The norm is 11 percent. We can't be efficient with that kind of turnover.

Powers: I'd like to get more people involved in ty business. He'd like to see the county send questionnaires to residents. He'd like to see in public access to the Snake River which he says draws a lot of tourists from out of state.

Candidates on the issues

How can the county save and best utilize tax dollars?

Intry save and Dest Utilize to Brockman: You look at It department by department. We changed the dental blan, contracting with dentist to do care In-house rather than having to transport inmakes, and expect to save $85.000 this year. A doctor its also on contract. The county also changed the con-tract on pharmaceuticals. Its buying more generic drugs and more drugs in both.

Inher: "('m awful cheap so i'm sure it will carry over. We need to combine some county services to save ... some money, livier admitted he's not up to date on, the ... zounty budget. He said count ty employees should be paid salaries that are competitive with other public agencies of similar size, "We need to keep o keep quality workers."

their pay up to keep quality workers.

What should the county do to find more office space? Is the former Anderson Lumber building still an option? Should the county try to keep offices downtown?

Brockman: The study is going well, but we haven't seen the dollar figures yet. I want to see square footage. We're looking 10 to 15 years ahead. "We're addressing the concerns of the people downtown, but we're also addressing the needs of everyone in the county.

ihler: The population is growing and we need space. The coun-by already has land. When it comes to the Anderson Lumber building linter said, "I'we had $20 million in the coffers, why not do it?" There needs to be more citizen involvement. Com-missioners tried to bypass county voters. He also questioned spending money on a study. "I want to know why they have to hire someone to do a study. The commissioners should do it."

The county is spending between $300,000 and $500,000 a year to house inmates in other county jalls due to lack of space. What should the county do?

Brockman: We have a pre-sentencing offi-cer now so the judges have more information. He dilike to see more in-mates on work release and alternative sentencing options such as ankle bracelets. "I don't see a need for a 400-bed jail," but the jall needs more beds.

Ihler: We're housing inmates out of the county and paying for it. He supports alternative sentencing so people could stay out of jail, but would limit it to norwivelent offenders. "If we're going to have more cime, we need to have someptiblect to put them." A private facility is worth looking into.

Some neighboring counties allow liquor sales on Sunday. Restaurant and bar owners in Twin Falls County say the county, as well as their businesses, is los-ing money because tourists are drawn to counties that do sell liquor on Sunday. Should Twin Falls County sell liquor on Sunday.

Brockman: "I want to see if there's any impact on low enforce-ment." People who drink on Sunday are tourists and couples who have a drink with dinner. Not allowing hard liquor sales on Sunday when neighboring counties do hurts tourism. "They don't stay and they don't fill up their gas tanks."

Ihler: "They're going to buy it on Satur-day anyway." Voters should decide. "I don't drink and would probably vote against it." I don't think there would against it." I don't think there would be that big of an economic benefit.

Magic Valley Regional Medical Center is owned by the county. Is it operating fine the way it is, or does it need to look at other forms of governance, such as cartnering with or selling to a nonprofit or for-profit corporation?

Brockman: First and foremost is the patient care. I think our hospital provides excellent patient care, by been impressed with their care. I think its functional the way it is. If we can't expand at the rate we need to, we may need to partner. A 501(c)3 is not high on the commissioners list. I'm for regionalization of our hospitals. We're Idsing 40 percent of our patients.

Ihler: "There's a lot of things going on we don't find out about." There's money hidden somewhere because they always seem to find it when they want to. The county owns the hospital, but is not getting any benefit. "It is going to be a detriment to the county we need to do something." The ambulance district should have gone to a vote.

Some large dairy operations have caused proble the county do about the environmental issues ns with odor and files. What should es regarding problem mega-dairles?

Brockman: "Sting is everything" when it comes to dairies. There has to be a decrease in agriculture as the population grows. I think there's been good progress. There's been a decrease of flush systems, a decrease in new, large dairies, Expansions should be looked at on a case-by-cose basis: He topes odor expert Ron Sheffield's study will define what's acceptable odor. He said dairyman Hank Hafiligar's situation has improved a little, but still needs work.

Ihler: They're allowed to get too big. They should be limited to 1,000 cows. They county commissioners) never did their homework to see what these would proper regulations and we need to do an inventory of the land to ensure proper siting. They just saw dollar signs.

What goals would you like to achieve in a four-year term as county commissioner?

Brockman: He said he'd like to diminish the Impact of drugs and alcohol in the community and see the facilities issue resolved. He'd like to follow through with the resolution to bring county wages to 95 percent of market value over a three-year period. 'I'm pleased with the way the county is running.'

Ihler: He'd like to see the county have a good plan as to where it's going as far as development and the large dairy issue. He would like to see the county running as ef-ficiently as possible. He'd like to see citizens get more involved in county ment and be part of what's going on

About that same time a young fellow named George Burke came from the United Kingdom to Twin Falls and opened a store called the Creative Eye.

Hann and a few friends took those weaving classes, and that was the start of the weavers' club.

Weaving is done on a loont by laying threads lengthwise — called the warp — and interveaving other threads across, which is known as the weft. Weavers have their own language and terms such as shuttle, paddle, beaters, bobblish, heddles, pegs, raddles, temples and windels

Antennas help get the high definition into your TV set

The Hartford Courant

The antenna — didn't we get rid of those things? — has become either a savior or necessary well for many IBTV owners. For those without access either to cable or satellite providers, the preferred route to high-definition programming, an old-fashioned antenna is the only hope of pulsing a digital signal through the veins of their news TV Ber those with hences in signal arrough the veries of their new TV. For those with lapses in cable or satellite coverage, an antenna is often the only way to get some local stations.

Either way, it's a headache. Most cases require an outdoor antenna, which is great if that towering 1950s relic still dangles from your rooftop or apartment building, And the digital television signal is far more vulnerable than the trusty analog signal. When an analog signal russ into tall buildings or a mountain before it reaches your house, it still creates a view when a digital signal runs into which a digital signal runs into something, doloid it's knocked out cold. The screen goes blank. You need a good antenna, some luck and a digital tuner. Al-though more cable-ready HDTV sets with built-in tuners are be-coming available because of a Federal Communications Com-Federal Communications Com-mission requirement, most digital sets now in homes have no built-in digital tuner. Those sets, called HDTV-ready, are ready, and willing, but they need, a tuner like a satellite receiver or cable set-top box to produce a high-definition picture. If you don't have either satellite or cable, service, a stand-alone tuner for receiving local high-definition channels will cost about $250.

An indoor high-definition antenna usually isn't even worth the effort. Terk's HDIV's, a $40 indoor model that looks like a just-born rooftop antenna affixed to the base of an old rabbit-ears antenna, promises off-air HDIV broadcasts with strategic placement. If pointing the antenna in the direction of the broadcast tower doesn't work. Terk suggess, try uning it a building that might be diventing the signals path. Now we're playing angles? The California season for swordish is at its peak in early fall, so for the main course, I thread some on skewers, alternating with chunks of Italian sausage and red onion. Poach the sausage beforehand in just a bit of white wine and the grilling time will be the same as that for the fish, which you want to stay moist. That memu probably would start with different crostini, these topped with a walnut spread that has been perfumed by a hint of white truffle oil. I'd puree walnuts, some canned white beans and a couple of tablespoons of softened butter in a food processor with a little Cognac, and then add the faintest whilf of white truffle oil. Too often cooks douse the stuff on like teenage boys using after shave — you want just enough to lend an aura.

With that, I'd slice some tangy dried salami. San Francisco leg-end Molland is soold at some farmers markets by cheese vendors; ask around. The slightly smoky cured chorizo Leon made by La Espanola, the liarbor City Spanish dell, would also be terrifie.

NEW YORK — While Americans wince as they fill up their SUVs with 32-a gallon gasoline, market forces are smiling on the Saudi Arabias and Exon Mobils of the world. A transfer of wealth of historic proportions is taking place as wortlwide spending on oil sexpected to grow this year hy about $295 hillion, or 27 percent, compared with 2003, according to government data, Consumers and businesses are paying substantially more for gasoline, heating oil, diesel and other products derived from crude as demand and prices surge.

Still, experts-warn that the market constraints underlying high and volatile energy prices suggest that higher oil price could be here to stay.

"There's not a consensus out there, but the question is being asked more now than it has been at any time in the last 20 years," said Jim Burkhard, director of global oil at Cambridge Interngy Research Associates in Cambridge, Mass.

Rising oil costs are linked as much to America's apparent drive-at-any-price are culture and China's raging industrial expansion, as they are to the world's univasibly thin supply cushion, a condition that has magnified anxieties about potential supply disruptions in Venezucia, Russia and Nigeria.

Consumption continues to rise in spite of higher prices that are expected to slow global economic growth by about 0.5 percent in 2005. Much sharper financial pain will be fell in poor, developing, countries that are net oil importers.

Hard rain contributes to tomato shortage

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The early, winter-like storm that drenched California fields last week hurt the tomato harvest and contributed to a mounting national shortage that has doubled prices at many stores. October is normally a busy month for the state's 375 million tomato industry, as workers pick, the last of the season's crops before production shifts to Florida. But California fields, soaked by 2 to 3 inches of min, have turned into a muddy mess that's kept workers away for more than a week. More ruin is expected this week. About 1,500 acres of tornatoes in Central and Southern California have been lost due to the rain and cool weather, said Ed Beckman, president of the California Tornato Computsion. That, bear the president of the California Tomato Commission. That has cut the daily harvest from 500,000 cartons to 125,000 cartons, he said.

to 125,000 cartons, he said.

That's a huge investment that growers are never going to get back," Beckman said.

The nationwide supply also took a hit when last month's hurricanes delayed planting in Florida. In Medco, another major source of tomatoes, a nagging pest outbreak ruined up to 40 percent of production in the Baja region.

In recent weeks, the problems have doubled the price of tomatoes in some stores to $3 a pound for conventionally grown hothouse and Romas, it could take more than a month for prices to ease as the harvest picks up in Florida.

California and Florida are the nation's main tomato producers, with California dominating the market in summer and fall, and Florida in winter and spring.

The bad weather has been a hlessing for some growers who are profiting from wholesale tumato prices that have quadrupled in some area.

said Todd Peterson, Sizzler's re-cently appointed vice president of development. Striggling restaurant chains often make grandiose claims often make grandiose claims often make grandiose claims about opening franchises just to boost their image, however, said Richard Martin, managing edi-tor of Nation's Restaurant News, a New York-based business weekly. "I'd be surprised to see them actually open anywhere near that number over the next sev-eral years," Martin said.

Established in 1958, the chain began to lose its sizzle when it switched to a buffer style format in the late 1986 and eventually filled for bankruptcy in the early 1990s, said Dennis Lombardi, an analysi with Technomic, a food consulting group in Chicaco.

"They got away from their basic formula of the salad bar and steak dinner," Lombardi said.

Successful buffet chains such as Home Town Buffet are generally twice the size of a typical Sizzler. Peterson said, and that's critical in serving enough customers to make the buffet formula work.

Fatal E coil outbreaks further dampened sales at Sizzler several years ago, Martin said. The chain has since tried to reinvent itself on numerous occasions, he said. Several years ago it even ried converting some of its ngstaurants into more upscale. Western-motif cateries.

I don't know if any of those still exist. Martin said.

Sizzler began scaling back the buffer and the said in 1996 and is now in the mine that of a systemwide remodeling the control of the said o number of people still have that perception of the restaurant from the early 1990s." Remodeled stores are already seeing sales growth, Peterson sald.

said.

Even if Stzzler's changes aren't evolutionary. Martin said, simply-freshening its look could help turn its fortunes around.

And Lombardi said families on budgets are still attracted to the bargain dinners because the self-serve salad bar helps the perception of getting your money's worth, he said.

"It's still a great, moderately priced place for steaks and salads," Lombardi said.

Stocks close higher as insurance rally offsets oil prices, slide in consumer confidence

NEWYORK (AP) — Wall Street strode higher Tuesday, rallying along with insurance stocks on Marsh & McLennan Cos. Inc.'s decision to fire it's chief execu-tive in the face of tive in the face of an ong probe. Blue chips added points as relief that the investi-gation would not result in criminal charges against the company offset higher oil prices and weak economic data. Analysis attributed at least some of the day's trading to bargain hunting as October winds to a close, marking the end of the fiscal year for many mutual funds—a time when managers reposition themselves and make new bets. This was reflect-ed in Improved performance in some beaten down sectors, in-cluding financials, health care and pharmaceudeals. The Dow Jones industrial av-erage gained 138.49, or 1.42 percent, to close at 9.888.48. Broader stock indicators also finished higher. The Standard & Poor's 500 index was up 16.29, or 1.49 percent, at 1,111.09. The Masdaq composite index added 14.75, or 0.77 percent, to 1,928.79. Worries about 10b prospects drove consumer confidence lower for a third consecutive month, according to the latest reading by the Conference Board. The 33-point slide in the group's Consumer Confidence index was steeper than expected, bringing the reading to 92.8.

Fatropean economies are generally worse off, with the prospects for rising inflation and unemployment in the region somewhat higher, according to a report, by the International Engrey Agency, and the International Monetary Fund.

European countries do not have as much of their own oil production as the United States, where roughly 2 out of every 5 barrels consumed is pumped domestically.

To keep consumption in check, European nations levy significantly higher fuel taxes than the United States, which helps to explain why the total imports of Germany, France, Italy and Spain are about a third smaller than Americas Even son the four countries combined will spend about $25 billion more for oil in 2004 dan they did in 2003.

With some exceptions, the world's mushrooming oil tab falls hardest on developing nations, particularly those in Asia and sub-Saharan Africa, which tend to be the most dependent on imports and the least energy efficient.

thing will be hurt the most, said fauth Birol, chief economist of the Parts Agency. International Energy Agency. Yet despite the swere economic hardship-likely in low-income energy importers such as Laos, Mongolla, Paktisan and Ethiopia, according to World Bank estimates, the oil price spike of 2004 has not delivered it nearly as much economic punishment in the developed world as the energy shock of a generation ago, which was marked by recessions and fuel shortages. A major difference is that the per-harte lost of crude peaked at $30 in 1981, or about $25 more than the current futures price, on inflation-adjusted terms. Greater fuel efficiency has also-helped blunt the effects of higher energy prices this time around. The U.S. economy is holding up better than most, several economists said, because bill-arbia and others buy U.S. Trasury securities, in addition to the country oventually in the investing in their own countries. Developing countries are likely to have a harder time attracting such investment, particularly if their financial prospects are weakened by rising oil costs, according to the World Bank's Lewis. So far, though, emerging markets such as Brazil, India, South Africa and others buy U.S. or though the such of the to borrow money in order to cover higher crises of the 1970s, a "meaningful economic shift" is taking place, according to Williams Ferre, president and director of research at WH. Reaves, a New Jersey-based firm that invests in the oil sector.

That's because while the run factories and drive trucks is lower as a percentage of the total cost of production and transportation, the world now consumes 45 percent, or 25 million barrels, more oil a day than it did 30 years ago. Moreover, the industry's grip has been extended to many more parts of the world.

FOSSIL FUELS

Comtinued from E1
Deardorff-lackson farm in Oxnard were rushing to salvage produce that survived.
"The rain has made it difficult to get out into the field, and its made some tomatoes rot or become too soft, but it's still worthwhile to go for them' because of the high prices, salc sales manager David Cook.
"It's not often that prices are above the cost of production, so when this comes along, you have to take advantage of it. He said.
Beckman, however, 'warned' of price goigning by middlemen.
He said he's heard of distributors demanding $40 for a box of Roma tomatones that would other revise self for $20.

"It's unfortunate, and the realshorting is full two or three weeksaway, he said. It's getting tight but think the worst is yet to come."
The shortinge has forced one this should have to the realshorting is that to change its national advertising campaign.
Ohio-based Wendy's had planned to promote a line of chicken sandwiches to opped with a tomato slice but will now send.

with a tomato since put was nonadvertise other products instead.

"We didn't want to highlight a great-looking chicken sandwich; with a tomato on it if we couldn't deliver," said Bob Bertini, a spokesman for the company.
Burger King and Subway planto inform customers with signs in restaurants if they rum short of tomatoes, will not alter prices or menu offerings, said. Tima Fizgeraid, a buyer for independent Purchasing Cooperative, which buys fresh produce for the sandwich chain.

"We'll say, that we're temporarily out in case of a shortage or, if the quality of the producare bad," Fizgeraid said. "Food safety comes first."

Children will bring smiles to family

Nyckolas

Nyckolas

Age 9

Nykolas is a quiet child who likes to take his time thinking things over. He tends to be the leader around his brothers and sister but is likely to be a follower with his own peers. He gets along well with both younger and older children. His Individual Humpitasis on language/speech improvement and learning tasks.

Krystopher

Krystopner
Age 8
Krystopher, is described as a sweet boy who is obedient and eager to please adults. It is swilling to try new things, though the sametimes withdraws when in unfamiliar settings or with people he doesn't know. He responds to support and encouragement from trusted adults. Because he wants to succeed with nacks adults give him, he want give up until he does.

Bo-Lynn ("Bo")

Age 6
Bo plays equally well with her older brothers as well as two younger brothers whose special needs dicate separate families.
She will adjust well to adoptive parients who will help her stay in contact with her younger brothres. Bo is described as an easy-going child most of the Wednesday's child and Krystopher

time. She does need a lot of discret adult supervision to help her have positive interactions with siblings as well as friends.
Family needs: Nyckolas, Krystopher and Bo-Lyrin need parents who have the time and the dedication to access many resources within the community. Their special needs are significant, but their loving natures will make the work required feel so newarding.

IF OCTOBER 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY ... Strike while the ton is hol. Keep your ears and eyes open for unexpected help and beneficial opportunities that pop up in the next several newers. If may be extra exhibitating the rest of this year, as you could find yourself the superstar of your intimate circla. It will be hard, to settle down into a comfortable rul: until after January. Your heightened popularity should win you new friends and give you the ambition to develop a fresh set of goals. But stay behind, the scenes and refuse to push your luck in August when extra responsibilities may mean more work and less play.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr. 19); Your stup and gone, leaving you with little enthusiasm. If you are out of sorts, you could inadvertent by sitr up trouble on the home front. You might get away with it, however, since others are in the mood to be forgiving today. TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Minor frustrations could build up early in the day, Switching allegiances temporarily or hanging out with a different group may alleviate pressures and bring some smiles, as well. This evenings full moon illuminates a shifting focus in career-matters.

matters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):
Emphasis on income from work or service may set you off on a more ambitious path in the next few days. This full moon may bring to light unexpected changes that require intense analysis — but rest assured that a spirit of cooperation will prevail.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Grim determination to finish projects early today leaves little to do, but commisserate with others. The full moon tonight marks a cosmic deadline, and by opening your arms wide to embrace changing conditions, you will be in top form to succeed.

you will be in top out in to succeed.

LEO (July 23-Aug, 22); Small stumbling blocks early in the day are easily overcome if you remember, to remain kind-hearted and friendly. Be aware of regroupings and shifting alliances in the career area that could affect your financial situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):
New information can change your opinion about something important and spur your drive and determination over the next day or two. Your mental powers seem supercharged and you can multitask your way to success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22.):
Volur sincere warmth and generosity will smooth out rough edges if others seem confrontational or deliberately difficult. Employ your innate good taste and go shopping for something special toddoy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21);
The full motion in your sign may emphasize, surprising changes in relationships and illuminate new friendships. The handling of joint finances may become a hot topic in your household if past mistakes crop up now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is a good time to approach others and make amends for past mistakes if necessary. Your sincerity quo-tient is at a high point and your honesty unquestionable. Don't put-off until tomorrow, anything you can get done, today.

anything you can get done today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New goals and objectives seem entirely reachable today and you may meet people who can help you) achieve your most important ambitions. Pay attention to phone calls and e-mail. as helpful words of wisdom ringht be right at your fingerips.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sociability is in the air where you are concerned, so spend quality time with a loved one. Sometimes it's who you know that counts. You may find that your circle of friends has subtly shifted and that certain career matters come to a head this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Communications are highlighted now and it is best to remain objective until all the facts are in. Partners could be morose about failures or frustrated by limitations, so be as positive and uplifting as possible.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"A whole man in himself, pol-ished and well-rounded."

On today's deal from the World Championships held in Rhodes eight years ago, the hero was Artur West EAST Law West EAST Law Washen and I would bet you could not guess what country he was representing. The answer is that he was playing for Spain, which has a fairly generous set of rules about what a bridge player needs to qualify as a resident.

As South, Artur reached five clubs after West had shown a two-suiter over Artur's opening bid of one heart. The defense led the spade ace, and dummy put down a very disappointing collection, with the spade king-queen being completely wasted values. West switched to a diamond at trick two, giving nothing away. With no entries to dummy, Wasik took this trick with his diamond ace and played ace and jack of clubs. He rulfed East's diamond return in hand and decided correctly that if West had a doubleton club, he was heavy favorite to hold a singleton heart. If so, the odds favored that singleton to be the nine or 10. He crossed to a trump in dummy and led the jack of hearts, covered all round, and the sight of the heart 10 falling from West was a very welcome one.

That allowed Wasik to cross

10 falling from West was a very welcome one.

That allowed Wasik to cross back over to dummy's last trump and finesse against the heart nine to make his contract. Had West produced the heart nine, declarer would have been four down, but Wasik's count of the hand was accurate, and he had his 11 tricks.
