Court: Oust lawsuits may proceed

Local growers may seek damages from sugar beet losses, judges say

The Associated Press

BOISE — Two companies hired to spray herbicide on Bureau of Land Management property are not protected from lawsuits as government employees, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled.

The decision, handed down this week, means that Thomas Helicopters and DeAngelo Brothers may be sued by farmers and landowners who claim the businesses were negligent when the herbicide drifted onto privately owned land.

The companies had claimed they were ineligible to be sued under the Federal Tort Claims Act, which protects government employees from some lawsuits. But a three-judge panel of the appeals court said the companies are considered corporations — not employees — under the law, and so are not eligible for immunity under the act.

The case stemmed from an incident in 2000, when the companies were hired by the Bureau of Land Management to spray Oust, a powerful herbicide, on burned federal rangeland to prevent weeds until native grasses could regrow. Some of the herbicide, however, drifted onto private ground — some of it between Hazelton and Pull — including land owned by sugar beet growers. Farmers claimed the chemical damaged crops on 38,600 acres.

More than a year after the drift incident, the Idaho Food Quality Assurance Lab at the College of Southern Idaho tested soil samples from the damaged fields and found that about one-third of the samples tested would not grow beets.

Scientists suggested that the beet farmers try growing other crops such as barley or wheat, because those plants are more resistant to Oust. But some farmers had contracts to grow sugar beets and said they could not switch to new crops but were forced to find new fields.

About 440 farmers and landowners filed suit against the manufacturer of Oust, Thomas Helicopters, DeAngelo Brothers and the United States, claiming damages in excess of $700 million.

END OF AN ERA?

Military personnel arrive at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington on Thursday. A federal commission voted the same day to close Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the crown jewel of U.S. military hospitals, as part of the Pentagon's sweeping proposal to restructure bases across the country.

Base panel votes to close Walter Reed

Los Angeles Times

ARLINGTON, Va. — The panel deciding the fate of U.S. military bases voted Thursday go along with a Pentagon recommendation to close the storied Walter Reed Army Medical Center, ending a century of care to presidents, soldiers and visiting world leaders.

The decision came as the independent commission met through a second day of votes on the first major overhaul of the nation's military installations in 10 years.

Thursday's action disappointed officials in Washington who opposed the move of their famed military hospital to sites in suburban Washington.

The panel is being watched closely by local and state officials, military commanders and the Bush administration, especially after it stunned the defense establishment this week by overturning a Pentagon recommendation to close two major New England bases, in effect overriding a key portion of Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld's blueprint to restructure the military.

Those reversals have intensified speculation about a decision expected Friday on a politically charged recommendation by the Pentagon to shutter the Ellsworth Air Force Base in South Dakota, one of two U.S. bases for the B-1 bomber. That planned base closure is among the most contentious still to be considered, along with an Air Force plan to dramatically restructure the Air National Guard.

Because of the pending decision on the Ellsworth base, Sen. John Thune, R-S.D., spent time Thursday hectoring commissioners in the foyer of the suburban Washington hotel where they are meeting as if he was campaigning for re-election.

In a sense, he was. Thune unseated Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle in 2004 in part by vowing that he would do a better job protecting the base, which had been targeted for closure in the past. Ellsworth's shutdown would increase his estrangement from Republican leaders and spur critics back home.

But Thune and Republican South Dakota Gov. Mike Rounds, having counted the votes of the nine commissioners as best they could, expressed confidence.

"We have an idea about how some of these folks are going to come down," Thune said, without elaborating. "I

CATCHING THE CLINTONS

Politics, personal views push Clintons to hobnob with GOP

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — One Clinton jets to Alaska and Iraq with Republicans, and enthusiastically sponsors legislation with GOP lawmakers who impeached her husband. The other plays golf with former President Bush and accepts assignments from the current one.

All this bipartisan snuggling by Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton and former President Clinton has some Democrats and Republicans questioning their motives. Is this calculated politics designed to get the former first lady ready for a presidential bid in 2008?

Or is it a pragmatic concession to the fact that Republicans control Washington, and working with them is the only way to get anything done? Do the Clintons have a bipartisan streak? Would they put their own political interests ahead of the Democratic Party? Could there be an element of this polarizing couple that simply likes to get along?

The answer is all the above. Throughout their nearly 30 years in public service, the Clintons have been driven by a complicated set of motives, never as pure as their supporters hope nor as pernicious as their detractors insist.

The art of reading the Clintons is in fashion again. Sen. Clinton is gearing up for reelection in New York, a trial run for what many expect will be a White House bid. Her husband is a globe-trotting ex-president pushing AIDS and obesity initiatives, searching for ways to burnish a legacy tarnished by impeachment.

Everything they do must be seen in that light. Please see CLINTONS, Page A2

Golf handicap doesn't slow this man

The Associated Press

COEUR D'ALENE — Wally Stanley has been paralyzed from the waist down since a drunken driver hit him while he was jogging in 1981. But that hasn't hurt his golf game.

The 61-year-old retired school administrator from Tully, Spokane Valley, led the 140-yard fourth hole Wednesday at The Links golf course in Post Falls. It was his second hole-in-one in two years, with the first coming last year on a 125-yard shot at Painted Hills golf course in nearby Spokane, Wash.

His shot Wednesday was witnessed by Titan Morlan, a greenskeeper at the Post Falls links.

"It hit the approach and rolled on into the cup," Morlan told the Coeur d'Alene Press.

Stanley, who was golfing by himself, didn't see where the ball landed and assumed it fell short.

"I felt foolish looking in the cup — that's usually the last place I'd look — but there it is," said Stanley, as he took a break before starting the back nine. He scored a 42 after nine holes.

"That was my best nine since I've been playing out of the

"I hit it straight, mainly because I don't hit it as far," he said.

Before the accident that paralyzed him, Stanley said he played golf for years and "never got close to a hole-in-one."

But he limited celebration of his second hole-in-one to a cell phone call to his wife from the fourth hole.

"I don't like to make a big deal out of it," Stanley said. "My next shot's probably a top-

Mexico to open vote abroad

Nearly 4 million citizens living in U.S. are registered

The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — Mexico's federal elections tribunal has approved documents that will allow Mexicans living abroad to vote in their native country's elections for the first time in history.

The forms passed by the Federal Electoral Institute during a special session Wednesday night will enable citizens who are in the country's voter registration list to cast a ballot without having to travel to their original hometowns in Mexico.

The institute's action follows months of discussions among Mexico's leaders and political aspirants, some of whom initially tried to find ways to also register millions of Mexicans who are not on voter rolls.

Government officials estimate that 11 million Mexicans live abroad, 98 percent of them in the United States. Of those located in the U.S., about 4 million are believed to be registered voters.

Previously under Mexican law, citizens living abroad were allowed to vote, but the government lacked the infrastructure — such as absentee ballots — to allow them to do so. In June, Congress approved reforms to the law to include those mechanisms.

Under the new law, voters abroad can register on a special list of Mexican consulates by filling out forms that will be available on the Institute's Web site, and at the Mexican Embassy and Mexican consulates in the U.S. and other foreign countries starting Oct. 1.

The institute, whose Spanish links are IFE, will receive instructions on July 15, 2006. Once registered, voters will be able to send in absentee ballots with their vote until one day before the July 2 elections.

Mexican migrant groups say studies have shown that no more than 10 percent of citizens — from any country — who live abroad exercise their right to vote.

WORLD

An Israeli security guard points his gun to keep demonstrators away as a man scuffles with another guard during a protest Thursday against the construction of Israel's separation barrier in the West Bank village of Al-Ramadin, south of Hebron.

New violence casts doubts on cease-fire

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas on Thursday denounced a deadly Israeli arrest raid that killed five Palestinians, calling it an intentional provocation aimed at undermining a six-month cease-fire, but he urged militant groups to hold their fire.

Militants vowed to renew attacks on Israel, a move that would undercut the good will that resulted from an Israeli pullout from 25 Jewish settlements in Gaza and part of the West Bank.

Following Tuesday's completion of the most important stage of the pullout — evacuating settlers — violence flared in three places.

A rocket fired from Lebanon exploded in an Israeli village just across the border Thursday, causing some damage but no casualties. Late Wednesday, Israeli forces raided the Tulkarem refugee camp in the West Bank, killing five Palestinians. At least three of them, armed. A few hours before that, a Palestinian stabbed two young Jewish men in the Old City of Jerusalem, killing one and seriously wounding the other.

Abbas blamed Israel for inciting the sudden escalation with its deadly raid in Tulkarem. "This murder intentionally aims at renewing the vicious cycle of violence," he said.

Raanan Gissin, an aide to Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, responded that the Palestinians have failed to control militants. "We have transferred authority over this city to Tulkarem and the surrounding villages to the Palestinian Authority, and over a period of about three months, no action has been taken," Gissin said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Sean McCormack said the department was still trying to get a clear picture of what happened in Tulkarem but stressed, "Israel has a right to defend itself."

"What is important is that — and especially at this time, where we have a withdrawal taking place in Gaza and the West Bank — that both sides refrain from actions that could inflame tensions that might exacerbate the situation and make the environment in which we do have the ability of trust and confidence more difficult," he added.

Since Abbas and Sharon declared a cease-fire in February, the number of violent incidents plunged. However, both Hamas and Islamic Jihad have carried out attacks, claiming they were responding to Israeli violations. Islamic Jihad sent a suicide bomber into Tel Aviv in February and another into Nablus in July. Five Israelis were killed in each attack. The cell's leadership was traced to the Tulkarem area, and Israel has been hunting its members, claiming that even under the truce, it has the right to take defensive measures.

Israeli Defense Minister Shaul Mofaz said the arrest raid targeted those fugitives. "This was an operation against a ticking bomb," he told Israel TV. "They were planning a suicide bombing attack in Israel."

Palestinians said the Israelis opened fire first, and Mofaz did not deny that. "Weapons were drawn on the soldiers and gunfire resulted," he said.

According to Palestinian witnesses, young Palestinians were slipping outdoors, snacking on sunflower seeds and chatting with a well-known militant leader, when undercover Israeli troops jumped out of a Mercedes.

Witnesses said soldiers ordered everyone to stand up and shined a red laser at the group before opening fire. A car came and armed men got out and shot toward us. I was hit in the shoulder," said Samer Murai, 15. He said a gunshot followed, and several of his friends were wounded.

About 4,000 people attended a funeral for the five. Gunmen fired in the air, and many residents accused Israel of destroying the calm that prevailed during the Gaza pullout.

Hamas, Islamic Jihad and Al Qassa Martyrs' Brigades vowed revenge.

"The Zionists should prepare to collect the remains of their soldiers and settlers because we are going to hit in the depths of the entity," said Abu Abdulhain, an Islamic Jihad commander in the Gaza Strip.

Hours later, militants fired two homemade rockets from Gaza into southern Israel, the army said, the first such attack since Israel began its pullout from Gaza on August 15. There were no injuries or damage. A local militant group said the rocket fire was retaliation for the Hebron raid, Israel Radio reported.

After sunset, hundreds of Islamic Jihad militants marched in Gaza City and Khan Younis, pledging revenge.

At midday Thursday, a rocket fired from Lebanon exploded in Margalot, an Israeli farming village on the border. The rocket damaged a chicken coop, but no one was hurt. Army Radio reported it was the first time such a rocket has been fired at an Israeli community since Israel ended its 18-year occupation of south Lebanon in 2000.

Journal editor says fetal pain article led to vicious hate mail

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Catherine DeAngelis, a staunch Roman Catholic, used her position as editor-in-chief to her patients and says she strongly opposes abortion.

The Journal of the American Medical Association's editor-in-chief says she had to take a walk around the block after receiving dozens of "horrible, vindictive" e-mails condemning her for publishing an article that says fetuses likely don't feel pain until late pregnancy.

"One woman said she would pray for my soul," DeAngelis said Thursday. "I could use all the prayers I can get."

DeAngelis decked off a list of other nasty e-mails she received: "your license should be stripped. You should get a real job." "Eternity will definitely bring justice for you."

The article in Wednesday's JAMA prompted especially harsh letters from abortion foes because one of the five authors is a University of California, San Francisco obstetrician who works at an abortion clinic. A second author — a UCSF medical student and lawyer — once did legal work for the NARAL

Pro-Choice America advocacy group.

Critics, including the National Right to Life Committee, said the article was a politically motivated attack on proposed federal legislation dealing with fetal pain. The legislation would require doctors to provide fetal pain information to women seeking abortions when fetuses are at least 20 weeks old, and to offer women fetal anesthesia at that stage of the pregnancy. A handful of states have enacted similar measures.

DeAngelis said JAMA will publish properly submitted critics' comments in an upcoming edition and will give the authors a chance to respond. But she stood by her decision to publish the article.

"There's nothing wrong with this article," DeAngelis said. "This is not original research. This is a review article," based on data in dozens of medical articles by other researchers.

The article did not mention the two researchers' ties to the abortion clinic and the advocacy group. But the connections were later reported by news organizations.

DeAngelis said the obstetrician's experience is not a conflict because performing abortions is often part of that job. She said she would have published the medical student's NARAL connection as a potential conflict of interest had she known about it in advance but that not mentioning it does not mean that the article or journal are biased.

"If there weren't four other authors and this wasn't a peer-reviewed journal, I'd worry ... but I don't," she said.

Hurricane hits Florida, killing two

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Katrina churned through Florida's densely populated southeastern coast Thursday with sustained winds of 80 mph and lashing rain. Two people were killed by falling trees.

The storm strengthened into a Category 1 hurricane just before it made landfall along the Miami-Dade and Broward county line between Hallandale Beach and North Miami Beach. Weather officials said flooding was the main concern as the storm dropped 10 inches of rain in Key Biscayne.

Thin gull in horizontal sheets, seas were estimated at 15 feet and wind gusted to 92 mph, toppling trees and street signs.

Florida Power & Light said more than a million customers were without electricity.

An overpass under construction in Miami-Dade County collapsed onto a highway, authorities said. No injuries were immediately reported.

Late Thursday, Katrina was centered in northwest Miami-Dade County, heading west at 6 mph. An estimated 5.9 million Florida residents were in the storm's projected path.

The storm proved fatal for two people who ignored warnings to stay inside until the worst was over. A man in his 20s in Fort Lauderdale was crushed by a falling tree as he sat alone in his car, while a pedestrian was killed by a falling tree in the Fort Lauderdale suburb of Plantation.

"The message needs to be very clear. It's not a good night to be out driving around," National Hurricane Center director May Mayfield. "The back side of the core of the hurricane has yet to come. It's not over yet."

The usually bustling streets of Miami Beach, a tourist haven, were largely deserted as the storm pounded the area.

The city is hosting celebrities and purveyors in town for the MTV Video Music Awards. MTV called off its pre-awards festivities Thursday and Friday.

"It's like a ghost town out here," said Mark Darrress, congreer at The Astor Hotel in Miami Beach. "I see the random, not so smart people, riding scooters every now and then."

Tourists and others hoping to get out of town before the storm were stranded as airlines canceled flights at Miami and Fort Lauderdale airports, which both closed Thursday night.

Three mobile home parks in Davie sustained considerable damage, according to the Broward Emergency Management Agency. "A lot of roofs are off," said Dennis Myers, a spokesman for the agency.

Another CJD case stirs concerns on local front

The cluster of Creutzfeldt-Jakobs Disease cases grew more troubling in the past week. Meanwhile, state and federal government response has remained the same.

That may not suffice should another case emerge in southern Idaho.

While nobody welcomes the idea of a health scare related to a brain degenerative disease, the investigation of a sixth possible case of CJD in southern Idaho may warrant more response from state and federal health agencies.

Officials for Idaho Department of Health and Welfare say they're now observing an Elmore County man diagnosed with CJD.

Since January, the state has diagnosed six individuals with the disease.

The previous five cases — four in Twin Falls County and one in Minidoka County — all ended in deaths. Those five cases all involved women over the age of 60.

The Elmore County case involves a man older than 60.

CJD is a rapidly acting disease of the brain and nervous system caused by prions, or abnormal proteins in the bloodstream. State health officials believe the five fatalities involved the sporadic form of CJD, not the variant form that is linked to bovine spongiform encephalopathy — commonly known as mad cow disease.

The median age of death with v-CJD is 68, while the median age with s-CJD is 28, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

The CDC says the sporadic form of the disease shows up one or two times annually in an area with 1 million people. The risk goes up for individuals 50 and over, to about 3.4 cases a year in a population of 1 million. The CDC also says the U.S. has annually reported fewer than 300 cases of CJD in recent years.

All these numbers start to create a mystery for the state of Idaho. Idaho District Health says the state population is 1.4 million, sees about three cases of sporadic CJD a year — a higher number than the CDC's national average.

But the mystery grows when you consider this cluster of six cases has emerged in three counties with a combined population of around 114,000. Adding more intrigue, all of these cases have emerged since January.

Two clusters of sporadic CJD deaths in recent years occurred in New Jersey, involving 12 deaths; and in Oregon, involving 14 deaths. Those clusters, however, unfolded over a period of 36 months and 24 months, and in population of 1.7 million and 3.4 million, respectively.

Residents in southern Idaho should understand the limitations that come with studying this disease. Determining the form of CJD requires the testing of tissue and may take months. For three of Idaho's cases, tissue has been sent to a renowned pathology lab at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

Meanwhile, state health officials are studying the subjects' family histories, medical records. Yet finding a cause is never guaranteed.

State health officials could still help resolve concerns on this issue. Is Idaho's rate of sporadic CJD, three a year, higher than neighboring states? Has that number increased in recent years compared to traditional rates? And if the cluster grows, when is the CDC become more involved?

This CJD cluster has stirred concerns and questions among southern Idaho residents. State officials need to be prepared to tell us more.

A friendly wager at the pump

I don't share Matthew Simmons' angst, but I admire his style. He is that rare doomsayer who puts his money where his doom is.

JOHN TIERNEY

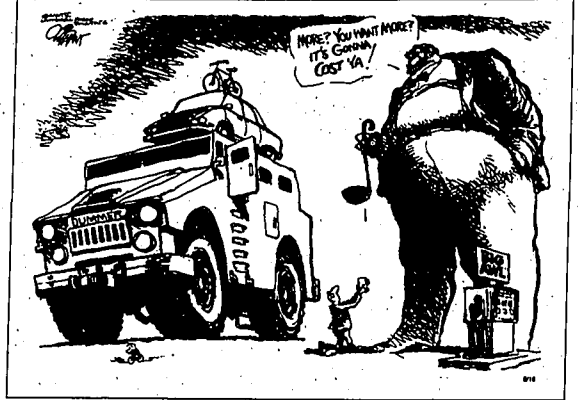

After reading his prediction, quoted Sunday in the cover story of The New York Times Magazine, that oil prices will soar into the triple digits, I called to ask if he'd back his prophecy with cash. Without a second's hesitation, he agreed to bet me $5,000.

His only concern seemed to be that he was fleeing me. Simmons, the head of a Houston investment bank specializing in the energy industry, patiently explained to me why Saudi Arabia's oil production would falter much sooner than expected. That's the thesis of his new book, "Twilight in the Desert: The Coming Saudi Oil Shock and the World Economy."

I didn't try to argue with him about Saudi Arabia, because I know next to nothing about oil production there or anywhere else. I'm just following the advice of a mentor and friend, the economist Julian Simon, who found anyone willing to bet that natural resource prices are going up, take him for all you can get.

Julian took up gambling during the last end-of-oil crisis, in 1980, when experts were predicting a new age of scarcity as the planet's reserves were depleted by the growing population. Julian had debunked these fears in "The Ultimate Resource," which showed how human ingenuity had kept driving down the price of energy and other natural resources for centuries.

He offered to bet the pessimists that oil or any other resource they chose would be cheaper, in real terms, at any date they picked in the future.

The ecologist Paul Ehrlich, author of "The Population Bomb" and "The End of Affluence," took up his offer and chose copper, tin, and three other metals worth $1,000 in 1980.

When the famous bet was settled 10 years later, the value of the metals had declined by more than half. As usual, people had found new ways to get the metals as well as cheaper substitutes, like the fiber optic cables that replaced copper telephone wires.

After collecting his winnings, Julian expanded his challenge, offering to bet anyone on any other resource price or measure of human welfare. Julian, who died in 1998, never managed to persuade Ehrlich or other prominent doomsayers to take his bet again.

But now we have a braver prophet in Simmons. I proposed to him a bet using what Julian considered the best measure of human welfare: how it compares with the average worker's wage. I offered to bet that the price of oil would not rise faster than the average wage, meaning that future workers would be able to afford oil more easily than they could today.

Simmons said he favored a simpler wager, based on his expectation that the price of oil, now about $65 per barrel, would more than triple during the next five years. He said he'd bet that the price in 2010, when adjusted for inflation so it's stated in 2005 dollars, would be at least $200 per barrel.

Remembering a tip from Julian, I suggested that we use the average price for the whole year of 2010 instead of the price on any particular date — that way, neither of us would be vulnerable to a sudden short-term swing as the market reacted to some unexpected news, Simmons agreed, and we sealed the deal by e-mail.

The first person I told was Julian's widow, Rita Simon, a public affairs professor at American University. She was delighted to see Julian's tradition carried on and thought the bet sounded so good she wanted a piece of the action herself. With Simmons' approval, we arranged for Rita and me to split the wager, with each of us putting up $2,500 against Simmons' $5,000. (Note to accounting department: I'm aware that my expense account doesn't cover gambling. I'm using my own money.) All the money is being put into escrow in a joint account; the winning side will collect the $10,000 plus any accrued interest on Jan. 1, 2011.

I realize this isn't a sure thing, because the price of oil has risen before — it quadrupled in the 1970s. But then it dropped, thanks to new discoveries and technologies, validating Julian's optimism. So I figure the long-term odds are with me. And while I'm at it, I'll extend his challenge and consider bets from anyone else convinced that our way of life is "unsustainable." If you think the price of oil or some other natural resource is going to soar, show me the money.

Deportation proves not a cheap option

The desire to rid the United States of illegal immigrants is understandably common. But while there most certainly are causes for concern, sound reasoning is too often left out of the conversation.

MARY SANCHEZ

Take for instance, thoughts about what to do with illegal immigrants already living inside North America.

"Round them up and deport them."

"If people can't come legally, then they shouldn't be here." And my personal favorite: "What part of illegal don't you understand?"

The fact that mass deportation continues to ring feasible to so many people is astounding. Do people really think that enough immigration agents exist to go door to door throughout America ferreting out 10 million-plus illegal population? Knock. Knock. "Who's there?" "Immigration."

"Oh, I'm illegally in the country."

"Then, you better come with us, sir."

In this nirvana scenario the offending immigrant will toddle off to an awaiting bus and immediately be taken back to his or her highways. And the illegal immigrant would magically appear to do the job the illegal person was performing. That is necessary because in this improbable scene there is never a disruption to the economy — or any admittance that some of these people are being soaked up by the labor market for a positive impact.

The fact that leadership within the Department of Homeland Security insists mass deportation is impossible never seems to dissuade people.

So now comes a study that actually shows what such a movement would cost. Center for American Progress admits its efforts were designed to give needed insight to people who are beholden to this solution. Casting practicalities aside, the center crunched some numbers and estimated deporting everyone would cost $206 billion within five years.

That is the lowball estimate. The report found the cost could be as high as $230 billion, possibly more.

To put the figures into more comprehensible terms — the $41 billion annual cost would eat up all of the 2006 budget of the Department of Homeland Security ($34.2 billion), and then some. The annual cost would be more than that which is spent on border and transportation security. It would be more than half of what is being spent on annually on our war.

Arguments could be made that yes, the American government could drop all efforts to say build highways, fix the schools in Afghanistan and Iraq, educate children in public schools — and divert these

So now comes a study that actually shows what such a movement would cost. funds to this new endeavor.

The assertion is often made that Congress merely lacks the guts to follow through with such a plan. Congress is lacking in its willingness to tackle true immigration reform.

But legislators are unable to fulfill this wish for practical reasons as well. First of all, deciding who is illegal and who is legal is a slippery, ever-changing issue. Contrary to the beliefs of many people — it is not a black/white, you either are or are not situation.

Many, many people are part way to being legal. They are in the process of adjusting their status. Some people get temporarily put into the illegal category when paperwork is misplaced or simply lost by our government (way more common than what most people could imagine).

No system exists to check minute by minute where along this continuum of legal/illegal people sit.

This is not to say that the government shouldn't continue to crack down on people who are illegally in the country; especially those who commit violent crimes.

This report also pointed out the shocking statistic: "The number of undocumented entering the country annually is now so large that it exceeds the number of legal migrants."

But change will only happen when more people become informed and realistic about immigration.

Needed is support for practical reforms like overhauling our visa system, figuring out if we really do need a good chunk of these illegal workers and then changing things so those people can legally enter the country.

Anything else is just dreaming.

Foed stamp cuts only hurt the poor

What is our government thinking? Cutting the food stamp program is the dumbest thing I've ever heard of. This is really going to hurt the poor families, not only that the children are going to suffer too. Obviously, the government doesn't care.

There needs to be some reform on this issue and soon. JAMES R. MANGRUM Twin Falls

Street improvements make difference

Just wanted to say how much nicer it looked on Locust Street in front of the high school parking lot with most of the vines and weeds being gone. Most of the time, you can't even walk on the sidewalk and have to step into the street.

Also, more morning glories should be sprayed and gotten rid of. Twin Falls is getting lots of them. Lots of weeds are gone, to seed, too. MARY ELLEN PARTIN Twin Falls

President's policies terrorize people of Iraq

I am sick of the Republican community of Idaho labeling this war with a moral agenda. I am exhausted of the lies and propaganda that create fox-holes for us to hide in. But most of all, I am terrified of losing the friends and family fighting for their lives in a country we are supposedly saving.

Every day, I read the letters submitted to The Times-News, and it wasn't until today I started to lose faith in our community.

Ms. Schoolcraft, how dare you ignorantly call this war about ethics, about testosterone, and even to imply that President Clinton got us into all this because of a personal affair (which, may I remind you, Monica has nothing to do with Iraq). President Bush may have the "testosterone" to pull thousands of men and women away from their homes and families to fight a battle that is no longer about morals or ethics, but does he have the courage to bring them home? This fight is no longer about justice or it would have ended long ago; it is about money and revenge. It is not Bush suffering the losses; it is us!

I am ashamed to have a president who terrorizes the people of Iraq. This war is not about Democrats or Republicans, or should I say "heathens" and "Christians"; it is about pain and death. I don't believe any god, Hindu or Christian, would support destroying the lives of millions upon millions of people. And I don't stand by a president who manipulates the American people with their faith. This war is not right, it is not holy. This ridiculous crusade has gone on long enough. I only wish the people of our community would open their eyes and see what really matters: The soldiers who are dying doing their "job," and the pain that accompanies it.

Maybe you and every other Bush bumper sticker-toting, suburban-driving fundamentalist would realize their arrogance if we were to lose like Ohio has lost. Like the children of Iraq lose every day: If you lost someone you loved, lost your home, lost your faith because someone said it was wrong, would you believe in moral values? Could you tell those mothers who bury their children this is still about ethics? And may I ask, where are your morals? CLOVER POOL Kimberly

City policy breaks a local business owner

Congratulations to the staff at City Hall and the Twin Falls City Council.

At the end of this month, I will be filing Chapter 7 bankruptcy. The long-term effects of my battle over landscaping have cost me everything I love and is costing me everything I own. Soon, I will have nothing left. My future is gone. My American dream is over. Starting over again at my age will be hard, but I will.

I wish the staff at City Hall and the members of the Twin Falls City Council experience something close to what I am living right now.

I hope the voting public remembers to vote against the members sitting on the Twin Falls City Council the next time the council seats are up for election. I just wish that we, the citizens of Twin Falls, were able to vote for our mayor. At this point, if we could vote for mayor, I would put my name on the ticket. My platform would be, "Elect me mayor and they are all fired!"

I apologize to the people and businesses I owe money to, and extend my appreciation to customers.

God bless America. KENNETH D. STEVENS Twin Falls

T.F. police nab Pocatello suspect

TWIN FALLS — A Pocatello man was in the Twin Falls County jail on Thursday awaiting extradition to Bannock County, where he faces two charges of injury to a child.

George E. McCullough, 35, was being held without bond after being arrested Wednesday in Twin Falls police. He was arrested on three failure to appear warrants and another warrant for probation violation.

Twin Falls Police Sgt. John Wilson said McCullough was arrested without incident Wednesday morning at 928 Main Ave. North after police were informed he was at the residence.

According to 6th District Court personnel, McCullough faces charges in Bannock County of two counts of misdemeanor injury to a child, one count of violation of a no contact order and one count of contempt of court.

According to court records, McCullough has prior convictions for domestic battery, assault and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Wilson said McCullough surrendered peacefully after police entered the residence searching for him.

The Twin Falls County sheriff's office was uncertain when McCullough would be taken to Pocatello.

Magistrate evaluation forms are available

HAILEY — Even judges are sometimes judged, or at least evaluated.

Such is the situation of Magistrate Judge R. Ted Israel, who after more than a year on the Blaine County bench is subject to a required performance evaluation by the 5th District Court Magistrate Commission.

Under Idaho law newly appointed magistrates must satisfactorily complete an eight-month probationary period and undergo at least one appraisal.

Israel, 47, was appointed to the Blaine County position in July 2004. Previously he served as a magistrate judge in Bannock County for 12 years. Before that he was a partner in the McDermott Law Firm in Pocatello. He also was an adjunct professor in the political science department at Idaho State University.

Public comments regarding Israel's performance will be accepted until Sept. 16. Comments forms are available from Marsha Reimann, Blaine County district clerk, 206 First Avenue N. in Hailey, or from Linda Wright, 5th District trial administrator, 427 Shoshone St. in Twin Falls.

Hailey Masons and the Chapter AM P.E.O. Sisterhood are collecting used painting and sculpture, ceramics, glass, posters, photos, prints and jewelry for their Third Annual Used Art and Jewelry Sale on Sept. 9 through 11.

Proceeds fund college scholarships and women's education.

All donors will be entered in a raffle. Prizes include tickets to the Sun Valley Opera and Company of Fools productions; a stay at a rustic cabin at Redfish Lake with dinner, breakfast and a lake tour for two; bodges for Sun Valley's Swing 'n' Dixie jazz Jamboree and a snowmobile trip for two with lunch and wine at Smiley Creek Lodge.

The sale will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sept. 10 and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 11 at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts, 400 West House, 314 Second Ave. in Hailey.

Donors and their friends also will be admitted to a pre-sale party from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 9.

Donors may bring their art and jewelry to the house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 6 through 9, or arrange for a volunteer to be picked up by calling "Joy" McCracken at 726-6446, Susan Rippon at 788-3443 or Ted Angie at 788-9458.

State hopes for more wolf control

F&G official: Idaho may get more active role next month

The Associated Press

BOISE — State wildlife managers could get more control over Idaho's wolf population soon, including authority to kill wolves that are preying on elk officials say.

Under new rules approved in January, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service allowed wildlife agencies in Idaho and Montana to take a more active role in day-to-day wolf-management decisions.

A memorandum establishing that broader authority in Idaho is expected to be approved in the next several days, state Fish and Game Department program director Steve Nadeau said Thursday.

"I think we will be in the wolf-management business in the next month," Fish and Game Director Steve Huffaker said last week at a meeting of the Clearwater Elk Collaborative in Lewiston.

Even after the state takes a more active role, wolves will remain protected by the Endangered Species Act. But the state would be able to issue kill permits to ranchers having problems with wolves, and might be able to kill wolves found to be hindering growth in depressed big-game herds.

Huffaker said a study on wolf and elk interaction could be completed this month and forwarded to the Idaho Fish and Game Commission in September. The study would then go out for peer review and be given to the Fish and Wildlife Service.

"If they agree, we would possibly take up some wolves this winter," Huffaker said.

In the meantime, he said, the state is seeking permission to land helicopters in Idaho wilderness areas to further study wolf and elk interactions. Biologists want to put radio collars on both wolves and elk.

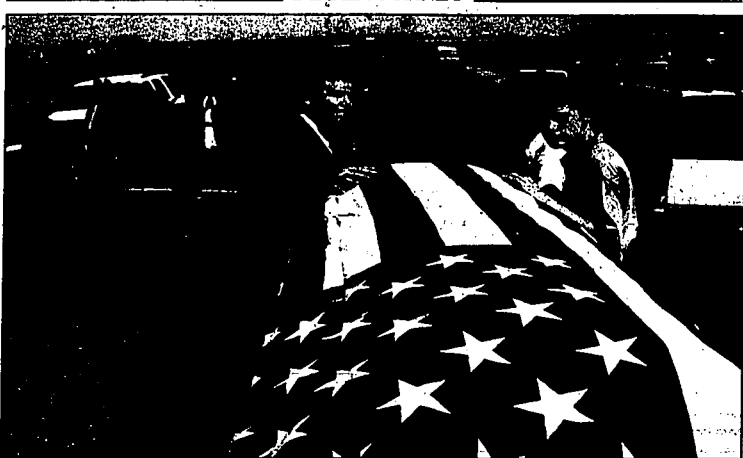

"You can't manage wolves and elk without knowing what's going on with both," Huffaker said.

There are believed to be more than 400 adult wolves in Idaho, up from the 35 reintroduced to westerners in the center of the state 10 years ago.

The Nez Perce Tribe took on day-to-day wolf-management duties in the time of reintroduction and continues to monitor wolves in the Clearwater Basin and the McCall area.

Nadeau said the proposal applies to wolves south of Interstate 90, because wildlife managers believe there were native wolves in the Idaho Panhandle before the reintroduction in the mid-1990s.

Judge issues gag order

By Terry Smith
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A gag order has been issued by the Blaine County Magistrate Court that restricts the release of information in the case of a Twin Falls woman charged with two counts of second-degree murder.

Cheryl Marie Wise, 24, faces the murder charges and five counts of aggravated battery in connection with a head-on collision near Carey on July 23 that killed Shoshone man and his son. Prosecutors allege Wise intentionally caused the crash.

Court personnel said Thursday that the court file is open to the public but that information can only be obtained at the court office and cannot be released via telephone or fax. They said the gag order resulted from a stipulation recommended by the prosecutor's office and defense counsel.

Magistrate Judge R. Ted Israel declined to comment on the reason for the gag order. Telephone calls to The Times-News at Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney Jim Thomas and defense attorney Rob S. Lewis were not returned on Thursday.

According to his newspaper accounts, prosecutors allege that Wise intentionally crashed her sport utility vehicle into a vehicle driven by Francisco Javier Robas-Ramos on Highway 93 north of Carey the evening of July 23. Ramos and his 9-year-old son Juan Carlos Robas-Ramos were in the vehicle with wife, Delores, and four other children were in the vehicle at the time but not seriously injured.

Prosecutors allege Wise was attempting to re-create a head-on collision that happened three days earlier in the same area in which 27-year-old Francis Gerard Carey was killed. Prosecutors said Wise was romantically involved with Gerreau. A preliminary hearing for Wise is scheduled for Sept. 22 in Hailey. She is being held in the Twin Falls County Jail. Bond is set at $500,000.

Dalai Lama tickets available Saturday

Address will be given to Idaho's young people

The Times-News

BOISE — Gov. Dirk Kempthorne announced Thursday that tickets for the Dalai Lama's address to Idaho's young people will be available Saturday.

The Dalai Lama's address, "Laying the Foundation of the Future - A Special Address to the Children," will be from 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 12 at the Wood River High School Stadium in Hailey. Tickets will be available to Idaho youth in grades 6-12 and their chaperones.

The tickets are free. However, to minimize the traffic issues in and around Hailey and on Highway 75, a bus-in/bus-out system is being implemented using travel vouchers. The vouchers will be made available at cost through Select-A-Seat's telephone and Internet sales networks beginning at 10 a.m. Sept. 27 by phone at either (208) 426-1494 or (208) 426-1766 or online at <http://www.idahotickets.com>.

Each travel voucher is for a specific embarkation location and must be presented at that location to board the bus and receive a ticket to the Sept. 12 address. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has donated the use of church parking lots in Lewiston, Nampa, West Boise, East Boise, Twin Falls, Idaho Falls and Pocatello for embarkation locations.

The address of each location, maps, driving instructions, bus schedules and other information related to the Sept. 12 address is available at <http://www.gccfc.idaho.gov>.

The cost to take one of the

The Dalai Lama's address, 'Laying the Foundation of the Future - A Special Address to the Children,' will be from 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 12 at the Wood River High School Stadium in Hailey.

buses departing from Lewiston is $55 per person. The cost for all other buses is $28 per person.

The Sept. 12 address will be the second of two major public addresses given by the Dalai Lama in Wood River Valley. The first address, scheduled for 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 11, will be "The Healing Address - A Message of Compassion on the Anniversary of 9/11." All tickets for this address were distributed on July 23.

Information about tickets for Blaine County youth to the Sept. 12 address can be found at <http://www.hhdvlstss.com>.

Questions regarding ticket availability for youth who do not live in Blaine County but who will already be in Blaine County on Sept. 12 as a result of their attendance at the Sept. 11 event or other circumstances should be made to operations@hhdvlstss.com.

Representatives from the Idaho National Guard also will be on hand at all of the embarkation locations to collect school supplies in support of Operation Crayon, a project organized by deployed Idaho troops that distributes school supplies to Iraqi school children.

Six attorneys get finalist spots for magistrate post

By Terry Smith
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Five local attorneys and one from northern Idaho are vying for magistrate judge position for Twin Falls County.

The six attorneys are finalists to fill the position now held by Magistrate Judge Charles Brumback, who retires Sept. 30.

The finalists will be interviewed on Wednesday by the 5th District Court Magistrate Commission, which will likely make a selection shortly thereafter.

"It's been my experience that they usually make a decision that day," Shell Tubbs, assistant to the district trial court administrator, said Thursday.

The number of magistrate judges in a county varies with population. Twin Falls County has three. The salary for the position is $92,632 annually plus state benefits.

Voting positions are Twin Falls attorneys Jonathan Brody, Roger Harris, Thomas Kershaw Jr. and Laird Stone. Also vying is the job are Richard Greenwood of Jerome and Jay Sturgell of Kellogg.

Tubbs said applicants must be 30 years of age, have five years' experience as an attorney and be licensed to practice law in Idaho.

The interviews are open to the public and will be held at the Theron W. Ward Judicial Building Courtroom No. 6.

Interview times are: Brody 9 a.m.; Greenwood, 9:45 a.m.; Harris, 10:40 a.m.; Kershaw, 11:25 a.m.; Stone 1:15 p.m. and Sturgell 2 p.m.

Members of the Magistrates Commission include chairmen of county commissions from the eight-county 5th District Court area, two appointed citizens, three local mayors, two attorneys and the administrative district judge.

Heyburn OKs sewer study

By Marie Mischel
The Times-News

HEYBURN — The overloaded sewer system in Heyburn will be the focus of a study commissioned Wednesday night by the City Council.

The system, which is rated for 330,000 gallons per day, handles 500,000 gallons, said Rudd Conover, senior project manager of Foregen Associates. He spoke with the council before it voted unanimously to approve the study.

The study will cost the city $56,000. Any improvements to the system will come with a price tag.

"I can say without a doubt that you are looking at a (rate) increase," particularly for businesses, which discharge more waste into the system than residential customers, Conover said. "It's going to force the council to make some hard decisions."

The city's economics will dictate what sewer improvements are the most cost-effective, he added.

He also warned that tighter environmental regulations will be enacted regarding discharge of wastewater into the Snake River. Though Heyburn's current treatment plant meets the requirements of its permit, that may not be the case with the tighter regulations, he said.

After the meeting, Conover said the city could convert the plant to treat only industrial waste and pay Burley to handle residential waste, or re-create a head-on arrangement with Paul.

Another possibility would be to filter, treat and disinfect the wastewater for irrigation, such as watering golf courses, a system now in use in Nevada, Conover said.

"The city will need upgraded sewer facilities to draw business to the area, he said, pointing out that Burley and Rupert, among other cities in Magic Valley, have made such improvements.

"Sewer service is a driver to bringing in business," he said.

The sewer system study will be completed by December, Conover said.

He recommended that the City Council form a committee of two council members and the city superintendent, who could review intermediate stages of the contract.

Ex-police officer faces sex abuse charge

BOISE (AP) — A former Boise police officer has been indicted on a charge of sexual battery of a minor.

Police Chief Mike Masterson said Richard Beal, 28, was indicted on Tuesday, and a warrant for Beal's arrest was issued Wednesday. He convicted. Beal could be sentenced to life in prison.

Masterson said the victim, a 17-year-old woman, reported the incident in late June and that Beal was removed from duty the following day. Beal resigned on July 7.

Prosecutors say the teen was taking part in the department's ride-along program when Beal had sexual contact with her at his home.

He was on duty at the time, prosecutors claim.

"This is a very serious charge, and the department took decisive action immediately," said Masterson.

Beal had been a Boise patrol officer since the end of 2002, assigned to the valley patrol.

Police do not know Beal's whereabouts, Masterson said.

New program will offer health screenings to workers at INL

POCATELLO — A new program funded by the federal government plans to offer free health checkups to Idaho National Laboratory workers who may have been exposed to hazardous materials at the Department of Energy site.

The Idaho Outreach Medical Screening Program will coordinate free health screenings for workers who might have come in contact with asbestos, beryllium, cadmium, mercury, lead, silica and other hazards, officials said.

Other Energy Department sites, such as Hanford, Wash., and Oak Ridge, Tenn., have offered similar programs. A recent DOE grant has extended the effort to the remote INL site, in the desert near Idaho Falls.

Obroy, a former INL construction worker, will administer the program from Pocatello. He plans to set up screenings for former site workers after compiling individual work histories, and said at least 125 people are lined up for interviews.

Screenings can be set up over the phone, allowing the office to reach former workers wherever they are. Obroy said. The new program also will help INL workers find out if they are eligible for federal health compensation.

"It doesn't matter where people are in the world," he said. "We've learned from our mistakes and we won't make these mistakes again."

But the former experience holds. 67 percent of former site workers will have some sort of illness, said Kim Ringen with the Center for Protect Workers' Rights, a nonprofit group in Washington, D.C., that is affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

There are an estimated 25,000 current and former INL workers, and not all of them are covered by U.S. Labor Department compensation programs, Ringen said.

"This is the way they're making up for (exposing workers)," he said. "It's an entitlement program, not a welfare program."

One of about 30 people attending a ceremony this week to launch the program was Fred Connors, who started working at what is now the INL in 1950.

"Every time they built a reactor, I was probably there," he said.

But the former welder, who is now fighting Parkinson's disease, said there's at least one other explanation for the health problems of his generation of workers.

"We all got old," he said with a smile.

New BYU-Idaho president gets to work

REXBURG (AP) — The new president of Brigham Young University-Idaho says he won't waste any time before getting started in his new position.

But before making any major decisions, Kim B. Clark said he needs to become more familiar with the campus.

"I am literally still learning where things are," Clark said. "I am still looking for the bathrooms and the different buildings."

His first official duty as the school's president was to attend graduation ceremonies last week.

the wood frame on one of them. It was less than seven months old. I had it repaired, but I can't afford new furniture.

The chairs are not big enough for her body. I would prefer she sit on the kitchen chairs, which are heavy.

Their living room furniture is less than five years old, but it already looks 20 years old. The fabric is sagging and the springs are broken.

I asked my son to say something to her, but he hasn't. I feel he should be the one to tell her. They'll be visiting again soon. What should I say to her? Or should I insist that my son tell her?

ple rather than at them. Because this has been her pattern for 50 years, it's unlikely you will ever change her. However, it may console you to know that by insisting on displaying these unflattering pictures, your mother is revealing more about her character than anything in the photos.

DEAR ABBY: You answered a question from a reader who asked how to respond when her 300-pound friend wanted to ride her horse but was too heavy for the animal to safely carry.

What should I tell my daughter-in-law who wants at least a couple of times a week to sit on my living room sofa and chairs? She has already split with loved ones and be sympathetic if tempers flare rather than taking it personally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Networking with business buddies is better for you than fishing for a new hookup under these celestial conditions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Double darts are in the air. Don't put your money where your mouth is unless you want to throw it away. It is perfectly OK to back down from a fight and best to remain objective.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Silence is golden — especially today, when you could inadvertently put your foot in your mouth. Don't make important decisions or sign on the dotted line. Be as gentle and generous as possible.

After decades of protests, women got right to vote

This day in history: It took decades of protests and persuasion, but on Aug. 26, 1920, the 19th Amendment granted United States women the right to vote.

The word "bedlam" came from the lower-class British pronunciation of the name of an early mental institution: Bethlehem Hospital.

As the classic Frankenstein monster, Boris Karloff wore 62 pounds of clothing and facial prosthetics. His boots were Size 24.

"Seeing-eye dogs" got their name from Proverbs 20: "The seeing eye, the hearing ear, the Lord hath made them both."

Hippos don't really sweat blood, but it sure looks like it. They ooze a red, oily liquid that keeps their skin moist and supple in the hot sun.

If you're thinking of starting your own golf course, keep in mind this rule of thumb: You'll need enough paying customers to play a total of about 40,000 rounds each year to make a profit.

Gen. George Washington was never shot in battle, but he had a couple of near misses when bullets pierced his coat and hat. The Hope Diamond was once part of France's crown jewels. When it adorned Marie Antoinette, it was much bigger. During the revolution, though, the jewels were looted and the humongous diamond disappeared for two decades. When it reappeared 20 years later, its 67 carats had been cut down to 45, presumably to disguise its origins.

Change of plans may cost Taurus

IF AUG. 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, if you can apply practical knowledge, the year ahead will be one in which ambitions will grow stronger and ample opportunities to spread your wings will appear. Buckle down and be disciplined in September, when you will need to give yourself a get-ahead. In November and December circumstances might improve by leaps and bounds, so take advantage of any hiccup that is offered in January your focus might shift and your popularity will be magnified. A new romance that starts then might be the real thing or a career change could bring fame.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't mix yourself into a corner. Get in close connection might not react as expected. Because there is some touchiness in the air, it is not a good time to make agreements or sign contracts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A sudden change of plans could be costly, so keep a watchful eye on the budget. You might be the center of attention at the local watering hole but new friends are easy come, easy go.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Think before you act or speak. Tongue phrases might roll off the tip only to block the way and trip you up. You don't have to have your own way — even if it seems important to right now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is possible to be moody and out of sorts for a few hours today. Don't spend money or eat an extra ice cream cone to try to feel better. Physical exercise is a feel-gooder.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Several crosscurrents can push and pull you in opposite directions. Pass up anything that seems like sleight of hand where your cash is concerned. Spend a few hours with friends, but ignore tall tales.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't jump from the frying pan into the fire. Quick reactions are a blessing when driving a car or handling machinery, but recklessness and speed aren't necessary. Take your time.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is likely you'll be attracted by the bright lights and the big city, but you'll find plenty of things close to home. Don't tempt fate by driving with a heavy foot or adding your two cents to an argument.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Consider the source. Although strangers can become instant bosom buddies under these stars, it's best to rely on your untested sources of information. Take spiteful gossip with a grain of salt.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be navigating a maze of quick fixes and false hopes. Avoid confrontations with loved ones and be sympathetic if tempers flare rather than taking it personally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Networking with business buddies is better for you than fishing for a new hookup under these celestial conditions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Double darts are in the air. Don't put your money where your mouth is unless you want to throw it away. It is perfectly OK to back down from a fight and best to remain objective.

Class seeks to help businesses

TWIN FALLS — Boise State University and College of Southern Idaho students in a human resource management class taught by Gundars Kaupins are seeking Magic Valley companies interested in having them prepare employee handbooks.

About seven company openings are available. The service is free and includes new handbooks or revisions of existing handbooks.

The employee handbooks cover topics such as the company's mission, selection, discipline, work rules, compensation, benefits, health, safety, security, training and performance appraisal. Each handbook is customized to the company's needs.

The handbooks require two visits to Kaupins' class at CSI. All handbooks will be completed by mid-December.

Over the past 16 years, Kaupins' human resource classes have completed more than 260 employee handbooks through the Magic and Treasure valleys.

For information, contact Kaupins at (208) 426-4014 or jkaupins@boisestate.edu.

Administration makes guidebook available

TWIN FALLS — The new Small Business Resource guide for starting and expanding an entrepreneurial is available through the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The 2005-2006 edition includes information and assistance on how to start a small business; local, state and federal regulations; entrepreneurship development; financing; government contracting; minority business development; and other information sources available. For a copy, write to Rodney Grzadzinski, business development specialist for the SBA, at the agency's Boise District Office, 300 East Park Center Blvd., Suite 330, Boise, ID 83706.

Survey results name top worker complaints

WASHINGTON — Loud phone conversations, speaker phones and constant complaints about workloads topped the list of our co-workers' most annoying work habits, according to results of a recent survey by TrueCareers, an online job board.

Other bad habits that drew ire included cliques among co-workers, arriving late to work, talking to oneself, cubicle workers over cubicle walls, bad hygiene and loud eating.

Nearly 60 percent of those who responded to the questions about the bad habits of a co-worker have hurt relationships at work enough to damage productivity. Forty percent said things were becoming so bad they were looking for another job. Another 17 percent of employees have sought a transfer to escape.

The one thing they didn't do: Ask the person to stop. Most of the respondents said they haven't even considered confronting their co-workers.

And for good reason: They can be just as guilty themselves. Eighteen percent of respondents say they often talk to themselves, 16 percent show up late to work or meetings, 13 percent holler over cubicle walls instead of using the phone or e-mail and 7 percent catch themselves constantly complaining about work habits.

Not to mention complaining about other people's bad habits.

Unions export fight with Wal-Mart

Los Angeles Times

SASKATOON, Saskatchewan — After years of concerted but futile attempts to organize workers at Wal-Mart Stores Inc., union leaders are joining forces to stop the world's largest employer from exporting its low-wage jobs across the globe.

In Canada, Germany and Japan, unions are using pressure to thwart the giant retailer's expansion.

The effort, one of the most extensive union campaigns in modern labor history, is gathering speed. International labor leaders, meeting in Chicago this week to craft an anti-Wal-Mart campaign, say slowing the retailer is crucial to protecting the wages and living conditions of millions of workers.

Wal-Mart, union officials say, represents all that is wrong with the global economy, including sweatshop abuses and the extinction of mom-and-pop businesses.

"Our emphasis is to get Wal-Mart to abide by the rules," said Jan Furstenberg, head of the commercial division of Union Network International, a Swiss-based umbrella organization that represents more than 900 skills and services unions around the world. "We want the company to realize they have to change if they want to be part of the global business community."

Wal-Mart and its supporters argue that the retailer has raised living standards from Dhaka, Bangladesh, to Detroit by delivering jobs and low prices to some of the world's poorest neighborhoods. The retailer, which draws 130 million shoppers a week to its 5,379 stores and restaurants worldwide, says it pays its workers equal or better wages than its competitors. Last year, Wal-Mart revenue was $285 billion.

Wal-Mart has two Magic Valley stores — in Burley and Jerome — and is taking steps toward opening one in north Twin Falls.

Denying that the company was anti-union, Bryan Miller, a Wal-Mart senior vice president, said the retailer preferred to have "a direct relationship with our associates" without the involvement of a third party.

Wal-Mart employs 1.6 million people around the world, the majority of whom are nonunion workers in North America. Labor experts say union leaders face an uphill task, given Wal-Mart's deep pockets, its broad support and a disagreement within the labor movement over how to confront the challenges of free trade.

They cite Canada, where unions remain a powerful presence, as an example. In 2003, 32.4 percent of the Canadian workers were unionized, compared with 14.3 percent in the United States, according to Fraser Institute, a Canadian think tank.

But labor's defiance hasn't slowed Wal-Mart's march across Canada, where it now controls 52 percent of the retail market and has been named in a national survey as the country's best retail employer for two

California farms lose a bumper crop of workers

Los Angeles Times

FRESNO, Calif. — The nectarine came off the branch with a rustle of leaves and a snap of the stem. The flesh was soft and light, with a tangy aftertaste that was only slightly sour.

It was a few days from being perfectly ripe — and that, said Central Valley labor contractor Fred Garza, was a problem. It might have been too ripe to make the market in time.

"The harvest started getting away from us. We should have 25 men here, but we only have six," Garza said while standing in a nectarine orchard last month.

The lost two jobs this season because I couldn't get people — any people," said Garza, who generally employs about 2,500 men. This summer, he has only 1,000 workers. "And I'm one of the largest labor suppliers around here. If I'm having trouble, everybody's having trouble."

California's farm labor contractors and growers said they struggle to find enough workers for the summer harvest because tougher border enforcement and competition from the booming construction industry and other sectors are shrinking agriculture's primary workforce: undocumented Mexican immigrants.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor, 53 percent of the nation's agricultural workforce is sanctioned foreign laborers. California growers say that the number could be as high as 90 percent in the Central Valley and that they cannot survive without a steady supply of workers.

Farm labor activists who oppose the hiring of illegal workers say farmers' dependence on foreign labor stems from their refusal to pay workers higher wages and benefits. They cite unemployment rates exceeding 20 percent in rural towns such as Huron and Mendota, suggesting that the problem isn't so much the supply of workers but their willings to work under the current wages and conditions.

"We have very limited information about what would happen if you raised farm-worker wages to $10 an hour in California," says Ron Strohlich, interim executive director of the California Institute for Rural Studies in Davis. "Certainly, there would be some folks who would not be willing to do farm work, no matter what. But worker surveys have also showed that more people would be attracted to a suitable level of pay."

Growers dismiss this argument. "Most Americans think agricultural work is beneath them," said David Jackson, owner of Family Tree Farms, a 4,000-acre fruit orchard in Reedley, Jackson, whose work force is down about 5 percent this year, said he can't pay workers any more than he does.

"I use labor contractors who are probably paying their men the minimum wage. The contractor charges me more because they have to pay increased workers' compensation and other benefits," he said. "So workers are getting paid $6.75, but $9.50 is actually coming out of my pocket. I'm paying $4,000 an acre for labor. Eighty percent of my expenses is labor."

One major factor in growers' recruitment woes is stepped-up enforcement at the border.

Young adults' purse strings still tied to Mom and Dad

Nishank Khanna, CEO of his own online coupon Web site, knows how to make money. But the 23-year-old doesn't know how to manage it yet.

That's where his dad comes in. He controls "pretty much everything, from personal finances to business finances," Khanna said.

Running UnderTag.com and living in his own apartment in Queens, N.Y., Khanna is more independent than many people his age. Still, he knows he has a lot to learn before he can take over the reins from his dad, who emigrated from India in 1973 with few assets and became a mutual fund manager.

"Let's say tomorrow he just stops doing it. I wouldn't know how to file my taxes or anything. I don't even know where some of my money is," said Khanna, who plans to hire an accountant in a few years to replace his dad.

It's only natural for parents to want to protect their kids' money, but when should they stop? It's a tough decision — the transition to financial independence is difficult these days, as rising home prices, education costs, credit card debt and job competition leave many young adults in a lurch.

Nishank Khanna, 23, poses for a photograph at his office in the Queens borough of New York on Tuesday.

"What is new is the increasing number of young adults unable to succeed financially on their own," said John Gallo, an estate-planning attorney in Los Angeles who co-authored "The Financially Intelligent Parent" and "Spivoo Kids" with his wife, Eileen Gallo. "Parents have not been responding to those increased social factors by teaching their kids how to manage money."

It's tempting for parents, especially first-generation wealth creators, to control their grown children's money, said Tom Rogerson, senior director at Mellon Private Wealth Management.

"The type of people who make wealth like to make decisions themselves, and want to make decisions for their kids," Rogerson said. "They may make better decisions for the money but they leave their kids less capable and confident to make decisions themselves."

So how do parents let go? When children enter the working world, parents should suddenly sever financial ties. Becoming fiscally independent often takes a series of steps, depending on the child's maturity level — not to mention assets, income and debt.

John Michael Montgomery brings his brand of country music to Twin Falls County Fair

By Steve Crump
Times-News writer

FILER — For John Michael Montgomery, the lyric's the thing. "I think country music is all about the lyrics," said Montgomery, who will open the Twin Falls County Fair next week with a Wednesday night concert. "Doing something clever musically will make a good lyric better, no doubt about it. But no matter what you do to a bad lyric, it's not going to affect anyone no matter how good the music is. People respond to what a song says, whether it's something that tugs at their heart or just makes them smile."

If that sounds like the musings of a three-chords-and-the-fruit man, Montgomery could be excused. The neo-traditionalist school of country music that Montgomery and artists such as Garth Brooks, George Strait and Vince Gill rode to great fame and fortune in the early 1990s was always more about the words than the tunes.

As a guitarist and former sound man, Montgomery says he appreciates musical arrangements and great instrumental parts. But country fans don't tend to remember a good solo; they do remember how a song's lyrics touched them.

"I've seen a lot of changes since 1992," he said. "The main thing I've learned is to just be myself, to treat people kindly, and if you give radio a good song, they'll play it."

The Kentucky-born Montgomery, 40, had an eight-year string of No. 1 country hits, beginning with "I Love the Way You Love Me" in 1993 and continuing with "I Swear," "Be My Baby Tonight" and "If You've Got Love" in 1994. "I Can Love You Like That" and "Sold (The Gundy County Auction Incident)" in 1995 and "The Little Girl," a duet with Alison Krauss, in 2000.

That's all the more remarkable since he had to take time off from his career to have surgery on his vocal chords in 1995.

Eleven other Montgomery singles, "Life's a Dance," "Rope the Moon," "No Man's Land," "Cowboy Love," "Long as I Live," "Friends," "How Was I to Know?" "Miss You a Little," "Cover Your Kisses," "Hold on to Me" and "Home to You," also became Top 10 hits.

And his 1994 album, "Kickin' It Up," reached No. 1 on both the country and pop charts.

Montgomery's latest hit — and the song that revived his career — was the Iraq war ballad "Letters from Home," which reached No. 2 on the Billboard country charts last year.

In all, he's sold 16 million albums since he signed his first record deal 13 years ago.

"It just takes a lot more depth to reach me now than it did back then," Montgomery said. "I feel I know a whole lot more about life and the world we're living in, so it takes a lot more to impress me when it comes to songwriting."

But early on, Montgomery decided to focus on longevity rather than becoming a skyrocketing star who burned out quickly.

"I've been singing since I was a kid, and I would've hated to see it come and go all at once," he said. "I've been very fortunate to have a lot of penks and valleys in my career."

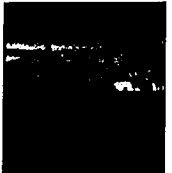

The valleys, though, have been significant. Montgomery lost his voice in 1995, and he required surgery on his vocal chords. He suffered multiple fractures of his right leg while working on his farm in 2001, and since then also has had surgery for tonsillitis and for a blood circulation problem in his hip.

"We've been through some hard times, but I couldn't be happier than I am right now," said Montgomery, who has a wife and two children and lives on a farm near the Kentucky town where he grew up. "I have a great family, a great home, and I just made a record I'm really proud of. I guess I can ask for any more than that?"

S.V. Shakespeare Festival updates 'Merry Wives'

By Karen Boselick

KETCHUM — You won't find Lucy and Ethel in the latest '50s sitcom to open in Ketchum. Nor Ward and line cleaver or Ozzie and Harriet.

Try Falstaff and the merry wives of Windsor.

The rogue and the wives — the figment of William Shakespeare's boundless imagination — will be fast-forwarded 400 years into the setting of a '50s sitcom when Sun Valley Shakespeare Festival presents "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

The performance runs tonight through Sunday and again Sept. 1-4 in Forest Service Park.

Director Bruce William Hostetler made the jump to the 1950s for one reason: to help viewers see the characters in a familiar context.

"I started thinking about small towns, such as the one this play is set in," he said. "And I decided I don't know what a small town looked like 400 years ago in Shakespeare's time. But I do know about the small towns and their white picket fences as portrayed in 'Leave It to Beaver.'" setting it in the '50s," said Bruce Hemmings, who works with the Sun Valley Performing Arts Center, which is producing the play.

"He's made it much more accessible without question."

But, even with the modern clothing, you won't hear the lingo of the '50s and all that jive. Hostetler is sticking with Shakespeare's text and dialect, thank you.

"Sure you can rewrite Shakespeare," he said. "Disney's 'Lion King' is a rewritten version of 'Hamlet.' But I like the language of Shakespeare. I think he crafts phenomenal stories and he does it with phenomenal language."

"Merry Wives" features four characters from Shakespeare's

Freddie Harris, left, who plays Mistress Ford, is wooed by Sir John Falstaff (Jamie Reynolds) in the Sun Valley Shakespeare Festival production of "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

"Henry IV, Part 1," "Henry IV, Part 2" and "Henry V."

The leading character John Falstaff — a companion of Henry V — is flat broke but figures he can change that by seducing a couple of the wealthy married women of the small town he and his friends have come upon.

But Shakespeare's women have a little more backbone than the women in a Hefquin romance.

No one pulls the wool over the eyes of Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Page, the two women Falstaff goes after.

They're not interested in romantic trysts with the aging, overweight Falstaff, but they are interested in using him for their own amusement.

And they embarrass him royally. They force him to hide in a laundry basket before dumping him in the Thames River. And they dress him up in women's clothing, much to the amusement of the townspeople.

"It's not like Shakespeare's the only one writing roles like that for women in his time," Hostetler said. "But it's pretty amazing the way he portrays them."

Mr. Ford, who is certain his wife is having an affair, ends up getting his comeuppance.

And even Falstaff — when he gets exposed as the con man he is — is big enough to look around and say, "Gee, you've got me. And that's OK. We all played the game and I lost and I got no hard feelings. I was out to play you all and I got played like a bass fiddle."

With Paul James, Steven Strait, Kip Parule, Shannyn Sossamon, Fisher Stevens, Carrie Fisher, Peter Weller, Stephen Moyer and Ashley Simpson. Directed by Meier Axil. PG-13 for sexual material including dialogue, partial nudity, language and drug content.

R rating will make the movie largely off-limits to boys as it's not the kind of picture parents generally take their children to see. Director Mike Bigelow maintains a mercifully swift pace, and while the film's humor is deliberately as crass as humanly possible, it is not truly mean-spirited, even though Amsterdam is depicted as a modern-day Sodom and Gomorrah. (1.23) R for pervasive strong crude and sexual humor, language, nudity and drug content.

'The Dukes of Hazzard'

This weird, moonshine-and-marijuana-fueled yet-bawf best based on the '80s TV show pushes the PG-13 envelope with munch and redneck ribaldry and an orgy of stunt driving. 'The Constant Gardener'

Lotsa good buzz surrounds this adaptation of the John Le Carré novel. Ralph Fiennes plays a man seeking the truth behind his wife's murder and discovering a web of conspiracies. R.

'Last Days'

Lyrical and numinative, if occasionally trying, Gus Van Sant's "Last Days" stars Michael Pitt as an eerily Kurt Cobain-like rock star who spends his last days in seclusion in his huge, dilapidated mansion. Blake (Pitt) isn't Cobain, exactly although he's a dead ringer for him at a distance, with his hair in his face. And his house isn't really in Seattle. (The movie was shot in upstate New York.) Very little of what happens on-screen is verifiable as fact, and none of it could be mistaken for an attempt at psychological inquiry or insight. Instead it provides a dreamscape of imagery and sound, a pitch-perfect place for personal ruminations on Kurt, fame, whatever. "Last Days" is a serious film from a major American filmmaker who has found his way back from the flat, suffocating desert of "Good Will Hunting" and "Finding Forrester." His own private Nirvana, it might be yours too. With Lukas Haas, Asia Argento, Scott Green, Nicole Viclus, Rieky Iy, Ryan Orion, Harmony Korine, Kim Gordon, Adam Friberg, Andy Friberg, Thaddeus

Arts on Tour season tickets go on sale

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Season tickets for the 2005-2006 Arts on Tour Season are now available. Featured in this season's line-up are In The Mood, Pavlo, FLY Dance Company, Ilomongzhou, The All-American Boys Chorus and Gamble Puppets in Circus.

Season tickets offer a direct cash savings over buying tickets at each event. Regular-admission season tickets are $45 for children, $55 for seniors, or $60 for adults. Reduced-price season tickets are also available for the price of $35 for children or $70 for adults. Senior or Individual tickets can be obtained by calling Camille Berger at 732-6288.

The production In The Mood presents a retro 1940s musical at each event. Experience the music that moved a nation's spirit and helped win a war — Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, Harry James, Erskin Hawkins, The Andrews Sisters, Frank Sinatra, and more. More than a concert, In The Mood is a Big Band Theatrical Singing Revue featuring the In The Mood Singers and Dancers and the sensational Singing of Paula's big band orchestra with authentic arrangements, costumes and choreography. Individual ticket prices are $18 for adults or $15 for children.

Pavlo, the second performance of the season, will be on Oct. 27. Beneath Pavlo's smoldering Latin expression lies a perfectionist who can make a guitar sit, roll over and play dead — or in this case, play live. Stylistically, Pavlo describes his sound as "Mediterranean music," a passionate, often energetic blend of jazz, classical,

Latin, flamenco and Greek bouzouki music for dance, romance, adventure, celebration and relaxation infused with a sensual hint of gypsy mystery. The hugely successful Pavlo is already a two-time gold-selling artist who has been nominated for a Juno Award, Canada's Grammy equivalent, and was named World Music Artist of the Year last year by the Canadian Independent Music Awards.

From laments to exhilaration, the rich musical culture of this "Mediterranean man" and his four-piece band varies sweet melodies with intoxicating rhythms. Individual ticket prices are $14 for adults or $10 for children.

On Jan. 27, Houston dance company FLY combines the beauty of classical and modern dance with the greatest of contemporary hip-hop and breakdance. FLY Dance is comprised of five young men who fly through the air with the greatest of ease. They dance en pointe while semi-crouched in high-top sneakers. Their choreography, made up of corkscrew turns, fast footwork, amazing breakdance moves and sheer limber-legged strength, together with their streetwise charm and subtle humor, make FLY absolutely entertaining. See what happens when today's dance meet the music of Vivaldi, Debussy, James Brown, Michael Jackson — The Flamingos and Nipsey Kool. FLY's concerts are clean-cut, wholesome artistry designed to cross all audience boundaries — young and old, men and women, sophisticated and unsophisticated. Individual ticket prices are $14 for adults or $10 for children.

Rongchun Zhao, who will perform on March 11, has been called a Chinese Itzhak Perlman. He is master of the erhu, an exotic two-stringed instrument that is a mirror of culture and a memoir of ancient tradition to millions in China. The erhu produces sounds varying from its own unique timbre to that of a crying gypsy violin or a thrushy cello. One of the world's most renowned erhu players, Zhao performed as a soloist with the Beijing Opera before moving to the U.S. His performance features traditional Chinese songs, transcriptions of virtuosic violin solos, haunting American ballads, and original works. Individual ticket prices for the Rongchun performance are $12 for adults or $8 for children.

April 24 will bring The All-American Boys Chorus, one of the most widely traveled boys' choirs in the world. The Chorus has appeared on the Disney Channel, in the Pasadena Tournament-of-Roses Parade in Pasadena and in the Grand Canyon. This 36-voice internationally acclaimed troupe is comprised of 9- to 14-year olds who represent the finest of America's youth in their appearance, diversity and manners. This program, a tribute to American Music, includes favorite selections from Broadway, the Beach Boys, Duke Ellington, George Gershwin, George M. Cohan, Dixie Melodies, college fight songs, country/western tunes, and patriotic sounds. Individual ticket prices are $15 for adults or $11 for children.

Arts on Tour presents a special children's show, "Arts on Tour KIDZ," on a Saturday afternoon every June. On June 10, this presentation will be film Gamble's production of circus, a mini-circus spotlighting a bevy of colorful string puppets performing as clowns, jugglers, acrobats, and trained animals. Jim Gamble Puppets Productions has been performing for over 35 years around the world. This special performance is geared towards young children and features a $3 ticket price and a cookie-filled arts reception.

Orchestra begins rehearsals

The Times-News

BURLEY — The Magic Hill Municipal Orchestra will start its 21st season with rehearsal starting at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 6 in the Burley High School band room.

This year's guest conductor will be Michael Chesley who has been a previous conductor with the orchestra. Chesley is a master clarinetist.

The Magic Philharmonic is composed of some 60 area musicians who enjoy playing classical and semi-classical music. The orchestra plays three major concerts each year with added concerts for the schools, the annual "Gala" musical event and the next year they have been invited to perform in Logan, Utah, in March 2006.

The orchestra is always looking for those musicians who play violin, viola, cello and bass, who would like to play in an orchestra, organizers say. Anyone who is interested in becoming a member can call Joleen Hobson at 678-3650. Interested applicants should have their own instruments.

Good Sports & Reading!

Recreational activities exist all around the world. But the sports that we enjoy in our country may not be the same sports that are played in other countries. The sports pages of the newspaper can tell you more than just who won last night's game. They can be the source of fun learning activities for you and your child. That makes everyone a winner.

- Numbers. Point out some scores to your young child and ask him which number is larger or which is smaller. Have your child find all the numbers that are the same as his age or practice reading numbers with two or three digits.
- Sports Around the World. Help your child choose a country and find out what its national or most popular sport is. What other countries have the same or a similar national sport? Where are they located? If the sport is unfamiliar one, your child can do some research on the Internet or at your local library to find out how the game is played.
- Comparing Scores. Ask your child to compare scores of teams. Determine the winner and the point span enjoyed by the winner by subtracting the lower score from the higher. Watch out — in some sports, such as golf, the lower score determines the winner.
- What's a Ranking? Teenagers may be interested in rankings for a sport. Ask how the rankings are determined. Are they based on win/loss record, regional conferences or other factors? Check out different polls (coaches, media, etc.) for the same sport and compare how teams are ranked between the polls.
- Root for the Home Team. Ask your child if he knows the hometowns of various sports teams, both nationally and internationally. Point out some in the paper and then help your child locate them on a map or the globe. For example, English polo teams play in Essex and Newmarket, soccer is played in Bolivia and Argentina, and American football teams can be found in cities like San Francisco and Jacksonville.

IN BRIEF

CSI revises volleyball schedule

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho athletics department made two revisions to the 2005 volleyball schedule on Monday. The match between Snow College and CSI on Friday, Sept. 23 has been moved to one day to Thursday, in order to give the Badgers a travel day to make it up to Couer d'Alene for a Saturday, Sept. 24 match. Also, the Golden Eagles game at Treasure Valley Community College on Tuesday, Sept. 20 has been moved from 7 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Kimberly Youth football sign-ups are tonight

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Youth Association will hold sign-ups for grades 5-6 in tackle football and grades 1-4 in flag football from 6-8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 26 at the old high school gym (L.A. Thomas Gym). The registration fee is $50 for tackle football and $25 for flag football. For more information, call Jamie at 423-6173, evenings.

Search and Rescue fund-raiser is Saturday

TWIN FALLS — The 14th Annual Golf Search and Rescue County Sheriff's Search & Rescue Fund-raiser will be held Saturday at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.
 Registration is at 7 a.m. with a shotgun start at 8 a.m. The entry fee is $150 per five-man team. That covers green fees, lunch and door prizes. Call Dennis Cogwell at 733-6637 days or 731-6961 evenings for more information.
 Mulligans costs $1 each, two per side and two per player. There will be prizes for closest to the pin and longest drive contests along with first and second place in each division.

Little League Football signups are Saturday

BUHL — Buhl Little League Football will hold registration for grades K-4 flag football and grades 5-6 tackle football from 8-10 a.m. Saturday in front of Buhl's Poppewell Elementary School.
 The flag football fee is $10. Tackle football costs $40.

Still swinging

Siemiatkowska's resolve unshaken after tumultuous freshman season

By Eric Larsen Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Say what you want about second chances, but sometimes they are deuces.
 For Marta Siemiatkowska, that's just what a sophomore season is — a second chance. It's not about anyone's preconceived notions of redemption. It's not about setting the record straight.
 Simply put, it's about opportunity. It's the opportunity to don a College of Southern Idaho

Golden Eagles volleyball jersey and help a student program once again strive for a National Junior College Athletic Association title. But more simply, it's just about the opportunity to play.
 That opportunity disappeared on Nov. 11 of last year when a 10-member NCAA appeals committee decided that CSI couldn't prove — to the committee's satisfaction — that Siemiatkowska paid her own way to play for the Golden Eagles. With CSI's three allowed international scholarships ready spent on sophomores Eliane Santos and Tatyana Menshikova, along with freshman Samara Freitas, the freshman from Kalisz, Poland was a non-scholarship player.

 A bank statement from Siemiatkowska's parents showed a $7,100 withdrawal — $1,100 for an airplane ticket and the rest for tuition and living expenses — but NCAA officials deemed that since Siemiatkowska paid in cash, the paper trail of available receipts was not substantial enough proof that she paid her own way.

 So that was it. After CSI completed a 40-3 record and the No. 3 ranking in the latest NCAA poll, the season was over, 34 games were forfeited, and the Golden Eagles were docked one foreign scholarship for the next two seasons.
 "It was really hard," Siemiatkowska said. "I didn't know it was going to happen. Actually, no one knew it was going to happen. We tried to prove as much as we could, but it didn't work."
 So where do the CSI faithful go from here, now that they

Golden Eagles get glimpse at SWAC competition in weekend-invitational

By Eric Larsen Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — It's like Christmas and car wrecks all at the same time. It's the first match of the season.
 Combine the anticipation of nearly a month's worth of practice and the first attempt to meet or exceed expectations, and Game 1 is a mixed bag of emotions. Plus, it's the first chance to really uncoil on a ball and paste it right on someone's nose.
 The 2005 College of Southern Idaho Outback Steakhouse Invitational volleyball tournament will give nine regional teams a chance to showcase their wares for the first time in 2005. The two-day event begins at 8 a.m. today at both the CSI gym and Baun Gymnasium at Twin Falls High School and will run through tomorrow's 5 p.m. matches.

 The host Golden Eagles begin their quest for a National Junior College Athletic Association title at 9:30 a.m. at Baun Gymnasium against Sheridan (Wyo.) College. Over the past four seasons, the Golden Eagles have amassed an impressive 30-1 record during the tournament, their only loss coming to North Idaho College in 2003. While every CSI team has set the goal of winning each of the tournament's contests, head coach Ben Stroud is hoping to use this year's competition as a springboard back toward the top of the National Junior College Athletic Association rankings.
 "Well, really what I hope to see is us compete really hard," Stroud said. "This is a team of

Brace yourself for Trailer Race of Destruction

By Linda Brittan Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — There's a certain group of drivers appearing this Saturday night at the Magic Valley Speedway who will do what it takes to pick up the glory of a win.
 Shove, bump, hit; anything goes as long as you get the other driver out of the way.
 And if you happen to leave them in a twisted heap of wreckage that can only be removed by the way of forklift or tow-truck, so much the better.

A typical scene from the 2004 Trailer Race of Destruction.
 The most experienced driver has difficulty maneuvering around.
 And when they can't, that's when the real fun begins.
 One of the most popular drivers to ever participate in the new "World Famous" trailer race was the late John Pohlman, who hailed his "Mr. Ed" horse trailer to nearly every trailer race event held at the Magic Valley Speedway.
 "He always looked forward to those races every year," his son Jeff Pohlman said. "People loved CSI almost came together for the Burley Bobcats in 2004, as they managed a 15-4-2 record and the Class 4A consolation title. In 2005, they'll look like to go one step further.

 "A big reason why they could is the return of golden-footed junior stars like warden Anatalagio, who zipped in 30 goals last season. Though he'll be

Royals rock Schilling

Team wants to hire 'suspended' batboy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Curt Schilling gave up six runs and nine hits in his first start since April and Kansas City beat Boston 7-4 on Thursday night, the Royals' fourth win in five games since snapping a 14-game losing streak.

Schilling (5-6) went five innings in his first start since April 23, a loss to Tampa Bay. He walked one and had five strikeouts.

The six-time All-Star went on the disabled list on April 29 with a right ankle bruise hearing going 1-2 in three starts. He missed 69 games, then was 4-3 with nine saves in 11 opportunities while filling in for injured closer Keith Foulke. It was his first regular bullpen work since 1992.

Emil Brown was 3-for-3 with a 1.80 ERA with the 422-30 Sox in his first start since April 23, a loss to Tampa Bay. He walked one and had five strikeouts.

Joe Lima (5-12) gave up three runs and five hits in five-plus innings. Mike MacDougal pitched the ninth for his 17th save.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 3
NEW YORK — Gary Sheffield and Alex Rodriguez hit consecutive straight homers in another strong start by New York's Shawn Chacin.

Chacin improved to 3-1 with a 1.80 ERA with the 422-30 Sox after going 1-7 with a 4.09 ERA for Colorado. He pitched out of two bases-loaded jams to earn his first straight win in five-plus innings in seven innings, striking out six and walking four.

The Yankees, who took three of four from Toronto, needed just five pitches to take the lead against Gustavo Chacin (11-7), who gave up six runs and nine hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Athletics 11, Tigers 1

DETROIT — Barry Zito (12-10) allowed four hits in six complete innings, and Mark Ellis, Dan Johnson and Patton Hemer, the A's won their second straight after dropping seven of nine and scored their first since an 11-9 win over Kansas City on Aug. 7.

Mike Maroth (11-12), who had won three straight decisions, had his worst outing in the year, lasting just 3 2/3 innings. He gave up a season-high eight runs and 10 hits.

White Sox 2, Twins 1

MINNEAPOLIS — Timo Perez hit a go-ahead single in the 10th after Geoff Blum doubled off Jesse Crain (9-3) and pitched out of a bases-loaded jam to pitch. Crain's third to third base the runner but third baseman Luis Rodriguez missed the tag.

Garland pitched 7 2/3 innings and was in position to be the Angels' Barolo Colon for the AL lead in wins at 17 before Minnesota rallied in the ninth against Dustin Hermanson (1-2) on Michael Ryan's two-out line drive that deflected off first baseman Paul Konerko's glove and rolled down the right-field line for an RBI double.

Minnesota trails the White Sox by 11.5 games in the AL Central following its third loss in 11 games. The Twins dropped 3.5 games back in the AL wild card race.

Mariners 8, Rangers 2

ARLINGTON, Texas — Jeff Harris (1-1), a 31-year-old rookie drafted 11 years ago, limited Texas to just four singles and an unearned run over seven innings in his second career start, getting defensive help from four other batters.

Chin Suzuki hit his third career grand slam for Seattle, a drive in a five-run ninth.

Joan Benoit (3-4), who retired 9 batters in a row at one point but still lost his third straight start, allowing three runs—two earned—and three hits in seven innings.

Orioles 2, Angels 0

BALTIMORE — Rodrigo Lopez scattered seven hits over seven innings and Javy Lopez hit a two-run homer as Baltimore snapped a five-game losing streak.

Rodriguez Lopez (13-7) struck out five, walked one and worked out of several jams in his first complete game of the season. Lopez (10-5) was 4-0 in seven starts since July 9.

Lopez extended his run of innings without yielding a home run to 62, the third-longest streak in the majors this season, before Javy Lopez connected in the fourth.

Benoit pitched 3-for-3; the three hits matched a season high.

Indians 12, Devil Rays 4

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Ramon Belland hit his first career grand slam during a seven-run third inning to lead Cleveland.

Dez White, third on the list with three RBIs for Cleveland, which stayed less than a percentage point behind the New York Yankees and Oakland in the AL wild-card race. The Indians have won seven of eight.

Eduardo Perez homered and tied a career-high with four RBIs for Tampa Bay, which lost for the fourth time in 13 games.

National League

Reds 5, Nationals 3

WASHINGTON — Ken Griffey Jr. reared 30 homers in a season for the first time since 2000, Brandon Claussen won his fifth straight decision by becoming the latest unheralded hurler to shut down Washington and the Reds beat the Nationals 5-3 Thursday.

Claussen won seven of his first 35 on the mound, but his 167-3 record, including tying two of three in Washington. On June 30, the Nationals were a major-league clubhouse favorite since then they've gone 6-14 and lost five of six home series.

Marlins 3, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Jun Pizarro hit a three-run single off Capellan (0-1) with two outs in the 10th, stole his 42nd base and scored on Jeff Conine's single.

Antonio Alfonseca (1-1) got the win with a perfect ninth inning, and Todd Jones pitched the 10th for his 20th save.

Brewers hard-luck left-hander Doug Davis was denied his 10th win for the 12th straight game despite allowing just one earned run on five hits in seven stellar innings.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH — Jim Edmonds and Albert Pujols homered in the first to get St. Louis off to its customary fast start in Pittsburgh, and Tony La Russa passed Sparky Anderson to move into third place on the manager wins list with 2,185, trailing only Connie Mack (3,731) and John McGraw (2,763).

Matt Morris (14-5) allowed two runs and nine hits in seven innings, improving to 6-0 at Pittsburgh in seven career starts, and Jason Janshousen set four outs for his 34th save. Pujols' homer was his 16th at PNC, the most among opposing players, and St. Louis improved to 3 against the Pirates this season.

Dave Williams (10-10) gave up five runs and eight hits in six innings.

MILWAUKEE — A minor-league baseball team is hopping on the milk wagon.

The Fort Myers Miracle of the Single A Florida State League is trying to locate the unidentified batboy who was suspended by the Marlins and put him back to work.

"Similar to a rehab stint, we want to help this kid stay on top of his game," Miracle general manager Steve Gliner said. "Instead of crying over spilled milk, we decided to offer him the honorary post."

The Marlins suspended the batboy for finding out he had accepted a dare from Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Brad Penny — with a $500 reward attached — to drink a gallon of milk in less than an hour while wearing the uniform. The batboy drank the gallon, but he couldn't hold it down.

The batboy was suspended for the upcoming homestand at Dolphins Stadium that runs from Monday through Sept. 4. The Miracle, an affiliate of the Minnesota Twins, wants to discipline the kid for getting his batsman picked up by their batsmen in the final game against the Tampa Yankees in Fort Myers.

As part of the promotion, all children 14 and under will receive a pint of milk when entering the stadium, a cow will be stationed at the front gates, and empty milk cartons will be placed throughout the stadium so fans can make monetary donations to the batboy.

without a number of last year's defense mates and lost top end forward Erick Llanos, coach Wes Nyblade has a number of weapons to surround Anguiano

Senior forward/midfielder Bonifacio Garcia Jr. was a major part of Burley's 2004 success, scoring 15 goals and setting up play near the net of Burley's opposition for most of the season. Fellow midfielder Braxton Greener also returns for his senior season after getting a lot of playing time as a junior. Danny Sanchez and Nate Gilley will look to step up.

"We have really high offensive expectations," Nyblade said. "Between Eduardo and Bonifacio, we scored 5 goals last year. With both of them back, we hope to at least get that type of production from them. But we've got to go and test for us on how our defense comes together."

The Bobcats' lone returning defender is senior keeper Michael Kelsey, "El Galo," as his teammates call him, is one of the area's best, but will need a lot of help from his teammates to step in and slow down opposing offenses. Junior Gabrielé Rios looks to be among a number of Bobcats vying for a starting spot.

"The kids that are moving up from junior varsity know those defensive spots are open and they're fighting hard to win for them," Nyblade said. "They know the middle and forward line are pretty locked."

Nyblade expects Kelsey's presence to be a big help in developing his defensive corps. "Oh, extremely important," Nyblade said. "Michael is one of the best goal keepers out there. He's extremely solid and he's going to be a captain. He's going to be instrumental. That will make the transition a whole lot easier."

As always, the Wood River Wolverines will be a tough opponent for any of Idaho's teams. Despite the loss of talented seniors Ted Dankanyin, Sage Howard and Reno Christino, Coach Farrell Swain has a number of solid players to keep the program rolling. Austin McCann and Carl Jablonski will be among the top Idaho teams to look to keep the Wolverine tradition going after finishing last year's season with a disappointing two-and-out performance in 2005.

Goal keeper: Drew Davis, Jr. Team strengths: Pavlovic and Fernando Garcia will be able to push the ball, while Logg will look to go. Should be a steady offensive team. Area of concern: Youth in a tough Region Four-Five-Six. Many inexperienced players will have to find their niche to get the Bruins into the Class 5A state tournament.

Class 4A

Burley Bobcats

Coach: Wes Nyblade, 12th year. 2004 record: 15-4-2, consolation championship

Goal keeper: Michael Kelsey, sr. Team strengths: Offense. Anguiano and Sanchez combined for 45 goals last year and will be featured in a solid front line and midfield. Area of concern: Inexperience at defense. Kelsey will be relied upon to aid in the development of a number of junior varsity call-ups who will see significant time in 2005.

prettily good spot. They're going to be a team that keeps on getting better.

Class 3A

Rob Oroski returns

Rob Oroski returns for his second season as the helm for the Wendell Trojans, who made their second trip to the state last year's Class 3A playoffs before being bounced 5-2 by American Falls.

After 2005, the Trojans could be poised for a return trip to state after graduating only five varsity players. Jose and Victor Sanchez return to help run the Trojans offense, which could help ease the loss of talented senior Damian Diaz to graduation. Keeper Justin Cortez will be back to mind the net.

The Buhl Indians lost a number of solid athletes from last year's 5-1 team, but there's reason to think that they'll once again challenge for a spot at the Class 3A state tournament. The Indians return eight returning starters, including their entire starting defense. Jeremy Thomas, Miguel May, Luke Alexander, and Daniel Heller will all try to form a solid defensive blockade as the Indians break in a new keeper, Juniors Drew Gabor, Martin Arzmenadi, Alejandro Delgado, and sophomore Martin Arzmenadi will look to push the ball in hopes of helping the Indians repeat as district champion.

A young Community School

Community School Cutthroats

Sophomores: Connor Brown, Wiley Chubb, John Cortese, Christian Dalgaard, Joey Edson, Jeff Galt, Steve Harris, Spencer Harris, John Ingram, McCain Porter, Travis Stone, Max Whitington.

Team strengths: Potential. A number of young players saw very little play last year and will be looking to make a splash in 2005.

Area of concern: Finding a goal-scoring core. The graduation of 2004 offensive captain Bobby Flanagan leaves a major hole in the Cutthroats' front line.

Declo Hornets

Coach: Tim Henriksen, third year. 2004 record: 5-9-3

Offense: Nathan Alfred, sr. mid; Eddie Alvarez, soph. mid; Robbie Jensen, Jr. mid; Luke Rivo, sr. mid; Zach Carter, sr. back; Shane Turner, sr. mid; Devin Terry, sr. fwd.

Team strengths: Solid leadership and a good midfield could translate to more goals and wins in 2005.

Area of concern: Finishing on those forays to the goal. The Hornets need someone to step up and prove they can put the ball in the back of the net.

Cutthroats team that took its lumps in 2004 isn't so young anymore. While they still sport a number of underclassmen, the Cutthroats look poised to once again challenge for a state tournament spot. Strong defense should be a major strength of the team, as keeper Regan O'Reilly will be joined by a solid group of returning including seniors Ross Campbell, Tyler Chandler, Kevin Wade, and Wes Flanagan, who all saw varsity play last year.

Tim Henriksen enters his third year as the Declo Hornets' coach and will have an experienced team to work with. Out of Declo's 22 players, 11 are seniors. Seniors Luke Edson, Matt Tapia, David Turner, and Brandon Turner are among Henriksen's returning starters. The Hornets should be good in the middle third of the field, but will have to continue to work on finishing the deal to score goals.

The mixed field and Magic Valley Christian team will be back for the second year of its co-op agreement. Bliss' Bears will continue to challenge for the Class 3A competition as David Butler, Joseph Huxhold, and Jackson Burk look to keep a hold on their title after a 6-3-3 campaign in 2004.

Falcons rookie shines against Jaguars

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Michael Jenkins showed he can be Atlanta's No. 1 receiver, even if it happens by default.

Jenkins caught four passes for 35 yards and scored twice, helping the Falcons beat the Jacksonville Jaguars 23-7 in a rain-drenched, penalty-filled preseason game Thursday night.

Red Taylor ran for 18 yards in his preseason debut for the Falcons (2-1) and showed signs of being able to recover from knee surgery.

But Atlanta looked primed for another win at the NFL championship game.

The Falcons (3-1) moved the ball with ease against Jacksonville's vaunted defense and scored on their first possession.

Warrick Dunn ran eight times for 65 yards, including a 42-yard scamper that set up a touchdown.

Michael Vick was 5-of-10 passing for 44 yards with a touchdown and did even more damage on the ground. He scrambled four times for 30 yards.

T.J. Duckett looked sharp, too, gaining 18 yards on four carries.

But the scoring was left to Jenkins and kicker Todd Peterson.

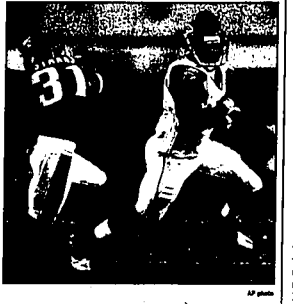

After Dunn's long run, Vick found Jenkins on a slant pattern for a touchdown and a 7-0 lead. Peterson then kicked two 40-yard field goals, making it 13-7.

Jenkins, a first-round draft pick in 2004 who caught at seven passes a week found the end zone again with 11 seconds remaining in the first half. He caught Matt Schaub's pass that was intended for tight end Alge Crumpler and tipped by a defender.

Jenkins got plenty of work early, especially with Atlanta's injury woes at the receiver position.

Roddy White and Peeples Price sat out with injuries and were seen in the first half.

has been sidelined with a high ankle sprain since the preseason opener.

Price, the team's former No. 1 receiver who was demoted this year and is in danger of being cut, sat out after sustaining a concussion last week against Tennessee.

Dez White, third on the team last season with 30 catches for 370 yards, hurt his knee and did not return. Team officials were unsure about the extent of the injury.

Petersen added a 38-yard field goal midway through the fourth quarter for the final margin.

Gooding, Jerome renew a past rivalry

By John Derr
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rivalry renewed. While it has been more than a decade, Gooding and Jerome have been rivals in the past. Maybe the Friday night non-conference battle will start things anew as both teams open the 2005 campaign.

"We are recreating an old rivalry that has been going on a long time," said Jerome coach Jerry Diehl.

Game of the Week

Gooding vs. Jerome. It was a chance to play against better competition, prepare for Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference play.

"We had a change in our schedule. We wanted to play good competition, step up and play at a bigger school," Comstock said.

Both teams are coming off improved seasons. Gooding had its first winning season in nine years, finishing 5-3 and just missing out on a spot in the playoffs with a 13-7 loss to Filer.

"The Senators lost a lot to graduation, but are ready to build on the winning tradition with a solid group of athletes.

"We have quite a few new faces. We graduated good skill position players, but have good depth. We need leadership and the young guys to step up," said Comstock.

Jerome finished 2-7, not where they want to be but an improvement.

Diehl's goals are simple for the first year.

"Offensively, we are looking at execution and personnel. On defense, we are trying to line up properly and go to our assignments," Diehl said. "A victory would be a great way to start the season."

Preston running back Mac Jones, 32, breaks through the attempted tackles of Jerome defenders Ryan Magravage, 42, and C.J. Reinstra, 7, during the second quarter of the Indians' 38-20 win over the Tigers in Jerome last season.

David Prescott will be the receivers. Miller, Kinchloe and Powell also lead the defense.

"Our main concern with Gooding is that they will show up fired up and ready to play. We will have to match their emotion early and not make any game changing mistakes," Diehl added.

Comstock said the Senators will work to stop Boesiger.

"We know they run the zone option. We want to get it out of his hands and make him pitch it early," Comstock added.

Gooding runs the wing-T, option and like to stretch the field vertically with the pass. Basically a bit of everything, Comstock said. Tyler Wines leads the offense at quarterback and Whitney Dalton should see the ball often in the backfield.

The Senators boast one of the biggest offensive lines in the area with tackles Steven Toone, Corey Tucker, and Ben James and guard Todd Thomas leading the way. Toone also plays defense tackle with Zach Sabala heading up the line-backers.

Although Gooding is a 3A school and the Tigers are 4A, both coaches are expecting a good game. Both teams lie, speed as a strength.

"It should be a good game and hopefully we will improve from this and start our season off right," said Diehl.

Football, soccer, volleyball swing into action

Friday night football kicks off in a big way tonight, with many area schools making to the gridiron hoping to claim the first victory of the 2005 season.

Tim Perigo's Minico Spartans travel to Mountain Home, looking to start making that win column outweigh the loss column. Running backs Don Sayles and Matt They should please the change if the Spartan O-line opens holes. Although it is the first game, the Tigers' play may give an insight of what to expect in the other home team conference of Class 4A out west. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

Area 1A teams will do battle, but in nonconference play. Sawtooth West Conference Richfield Tigers host the Magic Valley Conference Shoshone Indians, while Dietrich (Sawtooth) visits Hansen (Magic Valley).

Richfield will field some new faces this season, hoping to build more wins upon last year's squad, which finished 6-4. Shoshone returns starts on both sides of the ball. Junior quarterback Zach Shull, who completed for 16 touchdowns last year, and senior running back Adam Thomas should contribute well.

Dietrich will be looking to start a winning tradition this year, but younger players will have to mature into a solid team for that to happen. Hansen boasts a strong offensive line, but there are also concerns about inexperience at some positions.

Both kickoffs are slated for 7 p.m. Also taking the field tonight are Filer and Wood River. The host Wolverines are looking for their first win in almost two years under new head coach Mike Glenn. Formerly of Elsie, Camas County visits Castelford to open play. Oakley hosts Murtaugh in 1A nonconference play. Nampa Christian travels to Glenns Ferry for a 2A nonconference game and Wendell invades New Plymouth in a battle of two perennial playoff contenders. All kickoffs are set for 7 p.m.

The lone afternoon game pits visiting Carey at Hagerman. That game time is 4 p.m.

This week's sports picks FRIDAY

• Minico at Mountain Home volleyball, 7 p.m.
 The Spartans girls get a jump start on the season, opening at Mountain Home, a nonconference 4A rival. Minico finished 11-10 (6-2 Great Basin West) in 2004.

• Jerome Invitational, cross country, CSI, 4 p.m.
 Minico, Gooding, host Jerome and others gather at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls for the Jerome Invitational. A particular runner to look for will be Jerome's 2004 IA state champ Carissa Lee. The junior is just one of many runners returning for this season, experience which should strengthen the Tiger girls' efforts overall. The boys team also returns state-tested athletes in Troy Tolman, Steven Names and Jeff Mortenson. The event starts at 4 p.m.

SATURDAY
 • Wood River vs. Twin Falls soccer
 The Bruins boys and girls soccer will meet the Wolverines teams on the soccer field Saturday. Twin Falls hosts the boys game while Wood River hosts the girls at Halley. Game time for both matchups are set for 7 p.m.

MONDAY
 • Highland at Minico boys soccer, 4:30 p.m.
 The Runs from Pocatello ramble west to Rupert for a match against the Spartans.

TUESDAY
 • High School Volleyball
 For many girls, a fall of spiking, serving and saving is just around the corner. Some area volleyball teams will open the season Tuesday, while few have either one match or at least a jamboree under the belt. All times reflect the junior varsity start.

Matches scheduled include: Wendell at Filer (6 p.m.), Valley/Murtaugh at Kimberly (4 p.m.), Gooding/Twin Falls at Jerome (5 p.m.), Shoshone at Camas (6 p.m.), Bliss at Dietrich (6 p.m.), Mackay/Hansen at Carey (5 p.m.), Parma at Glenns Ferry (5 p.m.), Wood River at Middleton (noon), Oakley at Castelford (6 p.m.), Hansen at Carey (5 p.m.), and Pocatello/Century/Blackfoot at Burley (5 p.m.)

WEDNESDAY
 • Minico vs. Wood River soccer
 The boys and girls soccer teams of Minico and Wood River square off in 4A Great Basin Conference West action. The boys will play at Halley, while the girls play at Rupert. Both games start at 4:30 p.m.

THURSDAY
 • High School Volleyball
 These early matches will set the stage for the coming year and determine high spots in their game plans and rough patches to work on. Matches on Thursday include Twin Falls at Minico (6 p.m.), Valley/Filer at Gooding (4 p.m.), Bliss/Hagerman at Shoshone (5 p.m.), Community School at Richfield (6 p.m.), Camas at Carey (6 p.m.), Glenns Ferry at Marsing (5 p.m.), Hansen at Murtaugh (6 p.m.), Castelford at Raft River (6 p.m.), Hagerman at Oakley (6 p.m.), Magic Valley Christian at Lighthouse Christian (6 p.m.), and Buhl/Jerome at Declo (5 p.m.).

• High School Cross Country
 Many cross country meets abound this day, around the valley and beyond. Minico competes at the Burley Invitational in Albion at 4 p.m., Valley hosts Gooding and Richfield at 4 p.m., and Wood River trots to Jackson Hole, Wyo. for 3 p.m. meet.

J.L. Lewis, from Austin Texas, chips out of a greenside bunker on the 6th hole of the first round of the Bulck championship in Cromwell, CT, Thursday. Lewis went on to birdie the hole and finished the day at 6 under par, tied for the lead with Ben Curtis

Curtis, Lewis share first-round lead

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Ben Curtis and J.L. Lewis shot a 6-under 64½ Thursday to share the first-round lead at the Bulck Championship.

Curtis, the 2003 British Open winner, birdied his 17th hole and finished with a 10th to emerge from a group of players bunched at 5 under. Kevin Sutherland, Justin Rose, Franklin Langham, Vaughn Taylor, coming off a win last week at the Reno-Tihoa Open, and NCAA individual runner-up Michael Patnam, who is making his PGA Tour debut, are a stroke back.

Former U.S. Open winner Corey Pavin is among a group of four finishing at 4 under. Curtis has only two top 10 finishes since he hoisted the claret jug. He made one cut in his first 10 events this year and his confidence suffered. But he began a turnaround last month when he finished third at the Western Open and then contended early at the PGA Championship with a first-round 67 at Baltusrol for a share of the lead.

Lewis made a 10-footer on his final hole, the 406-yard, par-4 11th, to catch Curtis. Lewis, whose best finish on Tour has been a couple of second places, also had a bogey-free round. He lamented failing to make good on several birdie chances. "They're out there. I had plenty of chances," he said. "And believe it or not I putted better than I did last week."

Jason Gorn, the fan favorite at the U.S. Open, had no magic at the 6,820-yard TPC at River Highlands, finishing at 3-over 74.

Quigley in four-way tie atop leaderboard

ALOHIA, Ore. — Dana Quigley could hardly believe he made a 45.5-foot eagle putt to close out the first round of the Tradition on Thursday.

"Seemed like 25," he said, joking. "I must be putting well." The putt on No. 18 gave Quigley 5-under 67 and a share of the lead at the Tradition, the final major of the year on the Champions Tour.

Loren Roberts, John Harris and D.A. Weirberg also were at 5 under at the Reserve Vineyards & Golf Club in the suburbs west of Portland, where temperatures Thursday reached 94. "I was amazed at how soft it was," Weirberg said of the 7,150-yard South Course. "I know they haven't had a lot of rain, so they put some water on it."

Top-seeded Lapp falls at U.S. Amateur

ARDMORE Pa. — South Carolina-Aiken junior Dane Burkhardt made two birdie putts Thursday to upset top-seeded James Lapp and advance to the third round of the U.S. Amateur.

Burkhardt, the NCAA Division II champion, birdied the 11th hole at Merion Golf Club with an 80-foot putt and hit a 30-footer on the 14th to take the lead. Lapp, a junior at Washington, was the Division I champion.

Matthew among five tied for top spot in LPGA play

DUBLIN, Ohio — Defending champion Catriona Matthew was one of five players tied for the lead Thursday — in the biggest first-round logjam this year on the LPGA Tour — at the Wendy's Championship for Children.

Matthew shot a shot 6-under-par 66, a score matched by Paula Marri, Soo-Yun Kang, Heather Daly-Donofrio and Marisa Baena.

Another nine players were a shot back as the 144-player field took advantage of soft greens and a short course to post 69 subpar scores.

with the team. The combined trial for Rashada and Mathis is expected to take up to a week. The girl was the state's first witness. Her cousin, who was with her at the apartment but left, is also scheduled to testify.

Defense attorneys contended that the girl's story will not hold up. They questioned how much the girl had to drink, and whether it was enough to make her black out, as she claimed. One defense attorney said the girl was at the apartment voluntarily and although the allegations are distasteful, the sex was consensual.

"What happened at that particular place in that particular time was not illegal," said Dean Zabriskie, who is representing Rashada.

Jeré Reneer, who is representing Mathis, told jurors during his opening statements that the girl didn't go to police until more than 12 hours after the alleged rape, and only did so after her ex-boyfriend said there would be no chance of reconciling their relationship unless she pressed charges.

"It's a she said" versus the entire team of evidence," Reneer said.

Hawaii, Curacao advance in Little League

SOUTH WILLIAMSPORE, Pa. (AP) — The streaking hitters from Hawaii were silenced, except for one big home run. The slumping batters from Curacao broke out with an 11-run inning.

On Thursday, both moved on in the Little League World Series.

Shyne Banlaga's two-run homer in the fourth inning over the hill beyond the left-field wall was the only hit for West Oahu of Ewa Beach, Hawaii, in its 2-0 win over Lafayette, La., on Thursday night.

West Oahu (4-0) will play another undefeated team, Rancho Buena Vista of Vista, Calif., in the U.S. championship game on Saturday.

In the early game Thursday, Christopher Garcia allowed two hits and a high fly in the eighth, the defending champs, scored 11 runs in the fifth inning to rout Mangiala-Barrigada, team, 11-0 to advance to the international championship.

game against Japan. For West Oahu, Banlaga's homer was enough for starter Kiri Kiri to get the contest batted and scattered five hits over five innings.

The homer of a 1-1 fastball from favorite starter Face Conrad sent fans sitting on blankets and beach chairs on the left-field hill scurrying for cover as Banlaga was greeted by happy teammates with pats on the helmet at home plate and chants of "Whoop, there it is!" from Hatwai fans.

"Timely hitting has been our nemesis in this tournament," Lafayette manager Mike Conrad said. He added the pitch was the last fastball that he planned to call against Banlaga in that at-bat.

Enos said he greeted Banlaga with a high-five in the dugout after his blast. "I was relieved when he hit that home run," Enos said with a small grin. "It was a special, otherwise fine pitching performance from Conrad, who held the big boppers from West Oahu hitless for the first three innings. Hawaii kept the contest batted 333, with eight home runs in the first three games in South Williamsport.

Lafayette's (2-2) threatened in the top of the third after Jacob's brother, Brenn, reached on a fielder's choice and Sam Scowell attempted to put runners on second and third.

But Enos got Face Conrad to bounce out to first base on the next pitch.

Lefty Quentin Guevara rallied Enos in the sixth and final inning and got Connor Toops to ground out to second to end the game and eliminate Lafayette.

West Oahu manager Layton Alivado said the first order of business after the game, which ended around 9:30 p.m., was dinner.

"I told them, let's have some fun and get some. Let's go eat," he said with a smile.

The Salt Lake Community College Bruins will come to Twin Falls after finishing second to Utah State College (Utah) for the 2004 NCA Division I Volleyball Championship, but will be hampered by the NCAA's 2005 ruling that all players who participated in 2004's Superliga professional volleyball league are ineligible for NCA play. The ruling means that 2004 first-team All-American outside hitter Fabiana Loomi, Freshman middle Kyle Kirby of Fruitland is the Bruins' tallest player at 6-foot-2. Setter Kristi Cooper is also from Curacao, and Texas-El Paso transfer Sandra Perez are Salt Lake's only players not from Idaho or Utah. CSI and SLCC face off today at 5 p.m. at the CSI gym.

The North Idaho College Cardinals will make the top team. Coeur d'Alene hopes for a strong statement. The Cardinals finished 24-16 last year and today's 8 a.m. opener against Eastern Oregon University will be a homecoming of sorts for Twin Falls native Whitney Bond, a freshman setter. "I think North Idaho and Salt Lake will be the teams to beat, along with ourselves," Stroud said. "So we'll get a look at it."

The Dixie State Rebels of St. George, Utah finished second in the SWAC last season and compiled a 24-10 record. Sophomore outside hitter Breanna Bonnett returns after taking SWAC first-team honors in 2004, while 5-10 middle Brooke Adams was a All-SWAC second teamer last season.

Western Wyoming Community College will head out from Rock Springs and features a number of former Idaho stars, including 6-3 freshman netter Sabo Spillars.

Eastern Oregon University's Mountaineers will also be in competition, under the direction of first-year head coach Amy Spruiell. The four-year school features a young team that includes 6-0 sophomore middle Anna Yost of Joseph, Ore., an feisty 5-4 freshman setter/defensive specialist Shyra Merila of Astoria, Ore.

The other teams competing will be Casper (Wyoming College), Idaho State, Eastern Oregon, Laramie County (Wyo.) Community College. The tournament is a round-robin format with a best two-of-three match format. Games 1 and 2 will be played to 30 with Game 3 going to 15 by tally scoring.

know what they do? Now that the Golden Eagles are about to open their 2005 season?

Do they cry foul? Do they engage themselves in the field of finding fault with the NCA or CSI, and pass off the 2004 season as just another sad example of what's wrong with college sports?

Sure, they could. In doing so though, would they be missing something much more important? Something as plain as the fact that despite all last year's turmoil, Siemiatkowska returns in 2005 not only as the same vivacious, likeable young woman but with improved focus, determination, and drive to lead CSI to a national championship?

It's that focus and drive that has set apart of Siemiatkowska in CSI's preseason practices and excited head coach Ben Stroud. It's always one more try if that player is quick, she isn't perfect, or words of encouragement to the Golden Eagles start to lag while running lines. Most of all though, Siemiatkowska was the one who wasn't matters. With her five-on-five squad up 29-23 and the money ball in the air, you can bet Siemiatkowska is calling for the set.

"I work hard," Siemiatkowska said. "I really hard. I try to push myself and work harder. I feel more responsible this year than last year. Maybe because it's my last year and I really want to go to nationals." As the Golden Eagles' most experienced of players, Siemiatkowska will be relied upon to capitalize on the lofty potential she showed as a freshman. She finished with 10 kills in the first three blocks per game and third in both kills and aces per game last year.

"I think she has to be pretty big," Stroud said. "She's going to be our No. 1 middle. She'll have to play a pretty big ball, but she can. She's really fast, good jump, great arm, can get shots. She will definitely be First-Team All-American this year, I think. She'll be a great player for us."

On-court leadership translates in any language it is Siemiatkowska's efforts to help lead the Golden Eagles off the court that is so rare for a player who just last fall, came to CSI from literally a world away. "I think the first two months were really hard," Siemiatkowska said. "I didn't speak English. Actually, everything was so much different from Europe — Europe and Poland. Food, people, culture, tradition — actually everything. Even the time difference between Poland and the United States."

The sophomore middle blocker looks back on the experience with a positive thought that will take the lessons she learned to help smooth the transition of incoming freshman outside hitter Siemiatkowska as one of Poland. Stroud has relied on Siemiatkowska to help facilitate Wednesday's arrival of Kaczor to CSI. From translating travel plans to simply keeping in touch, Siemiatkowska has been instrumental in helping bring her best friend to Twin Falls.

"I know she will match her like perfect," Siemiatkowska said. "She has a good personality and I did everything that I could to get her here. Finally, she decided to come to college. I'm really excited because I know she's a big-time player and she can help us a lot." The addition of the 6-foot-4 Kaczor gives Siemiatkowska even more hope for a team that has built an early reputation for its enthusiasm and tough play on defense.

"I think we are so much different between last year and this year," Siemiatkowska said. "We have a lot of different personalities on this team. I think we are more like, fresh. Last year was a really good team, and this year is even better. Everything is quicker. Last year we had a strong block and strong hitters, and this year we play more defense. I think that's the difference, and we are more like, louder girls. Like, wild, kind of. I think everybody is excited."

With the first day of the 2005 CSI Outback Steakhouse Invitational here, Siemiatkowska is looking brightly toward the future, with one short-term goal in mind. "We just really want to win with Salt Lake (Community College)," Siemiatkowska said. "That's our big enemy. So we really want to win with the team. We really want to and we will try to and hopefully we will, but Salt Lake, Salt Lake, Salt Lake, Salt Lake."

As for the rest of the season, Siemiatkowska and the Golden Eagles know it will play out how it wants to. They also know that with Siemiatkowska as one of their determined leaders, the sky may literally be the limit. "Anyway, I feel stronger than last year, especially after the accident that happened last year. Siemiatkowska said, "I'm just really excited for the season. I'm glad that we have a good team. I think it's going to be a good year. I hope we go to nationals. We'll try to."

Woman IDs former BYU player as attacker

PROVO, Utah (AP) — An 18-year-old woman identified former Brigham Young University football player B.J. Mathis as one of the men who sexually assaulted her at a Provo apartment a year ago in court testimony Thursday.

The teenager from suburban Salt Lake City was the first witness in the trial of Mathis and Ibrahim Rashada, both 19, who are accused of raping the then-17-year-old in August 2004. They are charged with aggravated sexual assault, dealing harmful material to a minor, furnishing alcohol to a minor and obstructing justice.

The woman said she was attacked by three, possibly four, men after she passed out from drinking vodka and went to a bedroom to lie down.

"I blacked out, fell asleep and the very next thing I remember was the sound of voices and laughter," she said, sobbing on the witness stand in 40th District Court. "It sounded like I was underwater."

She said she doesn't know how long she was passed out. When she came to, she said there were two men, one forcing her into oral sex and another into intercourse. She identified one of her attackers as Mathis.

"They kept saying, 'Shh, you're fine, you're fine, you're fine, you're fine,'" she testified.

She said Rashada was in the apartment, but on direct questioning from the defense she said she could not remember Rashada being in the bedroom — although she identified him to police as one of her assailants.

In opening statements earlier in the day, prosecutor Dave Sturgill told jurors that the girl voluntarily went with a group of football players to one of their apartments. He contended the players got her drunk, then raped her after she had blacked out.

Two other players were charged with rape. One has taken a plea agreement, and the case of the other is in juvenile court. Additionally, two others were charged with lesser crimes in the case.

All the players were either suspended or expelled for failure to comply with the school's strict honor code. None is still

Vick relishing second chance

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — There were times during his suspension from Virginia Tech when Marcus Vick wondered if he'd already blown his chance.

But the unglorified behavior off the field, including an arrest for reckless driving and marijuana possession, had put his future in doubt. Shutting back and forth between his mother's home in Virginia and brother Michael's digs in Atlanta, Vick stayed in touch with the Hokies' coaching staff, stayed out of trouble and returned to school — and to the team — last spring.

But he still has to prove to his teammates that his transgressions are in the past. "I think I'm halfway there," the junior quarterback said. "Go through a couple of games and maybe I can win it over with all of them."

It surprised no one when Mike Coach Derek Bassett named Vick the starter after spring practice. His last name, after all, is the most storied in school football history — the name of his brother, and Marcus has similar skills.

Beamer isn't big on comparing the left-handed Michael to the right-handed Marcus, but he's hoping one critical skill, in particular, runs in the family. "I always said this about Marcus and I believe it is to be true about Marcus: As talented as Michael was, I think the best thing was that he was so complete," Beamer said. "Beamer farmer No. 1 overall draft choice of the Atlanta Falcons.

"The tighter it got, the rougher it got, he was at his best. I think Marcus will do the same thing," he's probably going to get a chance to prove it pretty quickly.

The Hokies, surprise champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference in their debut season a year ago, open this year at North Carolina State on Sept. 4. The Wolfpack last season beat the Hokies 17-16 in Blacksburg, registering 10 quarterback sacks. Getting to Vick won't be easy for the Wolfpack's vaunted defense.

Vick will have another challenge to contend with at night, N.C., and at the Hokies' other four road games. Fans figure to be creative and relentless in their efforts to use his past problems as fodder to rattle him.

"It's got to understand what he's in for, and I think he does," quarterbacks coach Kevin Rogers said. "They're going to be brutal to him at that place."

Vick got high marks from Rogers for being one of the hardest-working Hokies in the weight room this offseason, the first step for him to win back the respect of his teammates. And his attitude seems a lot more purposeful, too.

"He genuinely seems happy to be here," Rogers said.

Teammates welcomed him back, though some admit they need to see more before completely hitching their fortunes to his wagon full of talent.

"We just need him," senior tailback Cedric Humes said. "He needed to prove to me that he would be here, wouldn't get in any more trouble and miss any games. We can't afford to not have him."

Vick completed 30 of 57 passes for 475 yards, two touchdowns and five interceptions as Bryan Randall's backup over the years ago. He was also timed at 4.28 seconds in the 40-yard dash in the spring.

The offense Vick is taking over is loaded, with the hulking Humes and elusive Mike Itoh at tailback, a stable of young, fleet receivers that rivals almost any in the nation and 6-foot-5, 253-pound left King providing a huge target over the middle at tight end.

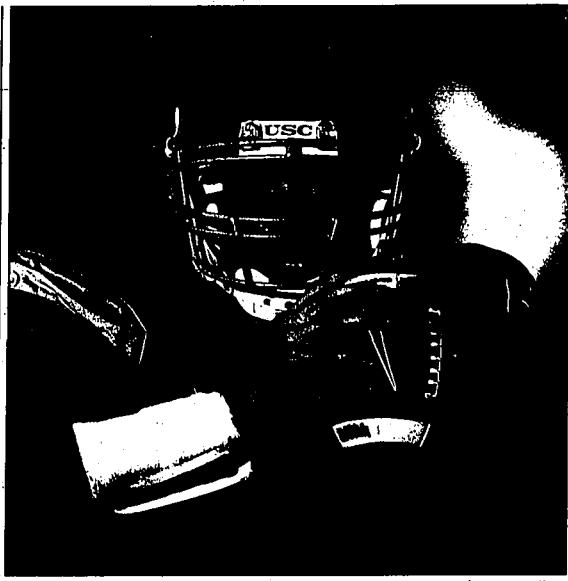

They can all also be deceys when Vick chooses to take off on his own, or can benefit from how the threat of Vick running will make defenses uneasy.

"He's got a quickness, gear that not many people can reach back and grab," offensive coordinator Brian Stinespring said. "Marcus is a little bit unsteady about his ability to be accurate. He has the ability to put the ball where he wants it to go."

Vick's arm strength is comparable to his brother's, too, Stinespring said.

"There's times when he makes some deep ball throws or he turns one out — more times than not — that you go, 'That looks familiar,'" he said. Michael Vick led the Hokies to the national championship game and a No. 2 final ranking in the 1999 season. Now it's his brother's chance, provided he can keep his head above the play, not off-the-field mistakes.

"I've been here three years," he said. "I'm ready to show them what I can do."

Southern California's Matt Leinart gets set to pass last season in Los Angeles.

Trojans once again top Pac-10

By Josh Dubow Associated Press writer

The finish still hunts California coach Jeff Leightner. First-and-a-half, just under 2 minutes left and all the Golden Bears needed was one more big play to knock off top-ranked Southern California.

Three incomplete passes and a sack later, the Trojans won 23-17 and were on their way to a second straight national title. "Every time I look at that, it kind of leaves a knot in my stomach," Leightner said. "It was an unbelievable football game and we had a chance to win, but didn't get it done. So we have to go back to the drawing board and see if we can do it this year."

As tough as it was to knock off USC the past two seasons in the Pac-10, it will be that much more difficult this year as many of the challengers have big holes to fill while most of the Trojans' big-play threats are back.

No. 19 Cal must replace all-conference quarterback Aaron Rodgers and 2,000-yard rusher J.J. Arrington. No. 20 Arizona State and Oregon State lost record-setting quarterbacks Andrew Walter and Derek Anderson, and new coaches Tyrone Willingham and Walt Harris must rebuild at Washington and Stanford.

The top-ranked Trojans, on the other hand, return Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Matt Leinart and every player who scored a touchdown in USC's 59-19 victory over Oklahoma in last season's Orange Bowl. The high-powered Trojans bring back seven players who were named first- or second-team all-conference, including talented tailbacks Reggie Bush and LenDale White, as well as perhaps the nation's best receiving corps, led by Dwayne Jarrett and Steve Smith.

But no one is conceding the conference title to the Trojans just yet.

"No one's invincible. Everyone's beating," Oregon State receiver Mike Hass said. "You're going to lose players every year. They lost players like everybody else. They've got key guys returning, but there are definitely teams in the conference that could knock them off, and I wouldn't really be surprised if that happened."

After a long stretch of parity in the conference — nine of the 10 teams won at least a share of the championship between 1993-2000 — the Trojans have become the dominant force. They have lost just two conference games in the past three seasons: a pair of three-point overtime losses on the road to Washington State in 2002 and California the following season.

They have won 15 straight conference games and 22 in a row overall.

"The biggest advantage is SC. They're used to winning and they expect to win," Washington State coach Bill Debo said. "Even if you do get a win, you're wondering when the other shoe is going to drop."

USC has boosted the reputation of the Pac-10, which had been often overlooked due to its late-night starts and reputation for wide-open offenses and soft defenses.

But the Pac-10 is the only conference to place two teams in the top 10 of the final AP poll the past five seasons and leads all conferences with six BCS wins in that span.

The Trojans, in fact, were challenged more in the conference than out, winning three of their eight Pac-10 games by fewer than 10 points. USC outscored its three nonconference opponents who played in bowl games by 78 points, including the blowout over Oklahoma for the title.

"We thought USC was head and shoulders above everybody else," Arizona coach Mike Stoops said. "So the way our conference played them compared to the way Oklahoma played them, maybe we deserve a little more credit."

Utes bring respectability to Mountain West

By Bernie Wilson Associated Press writer

SALT LAKE CITY — A year after Alex Smith and the Utah Utes went undefeated and became the first outsiders to finally crash the BCS party, most everyone in the Mountain West Conference knows it's about time to ask the question: "I don't know that you can have an encore," commissioner Craig Thompson said. "That's not necessarily a bad thing."

The Mountain West and its member schools have been clamoring for years to be included in the Championship Series. Utah's run to the Fiesta Bowl, where it routed Pittsburgh 35-7 to finish the season, has certainly helped re-ignite the credibility and exposure.

"Of the conferences that don't automatically send their champion to the BCS, the Mountain West has the most potential to do so.

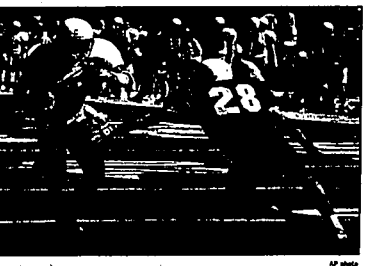

"We've had a lot of people comment that the Mountain West league deserves an automatic bid, more than leagues that have automatic bids, without naming names," Thompson said. "We have said that if you play in a BCS bowl game, and if you win a BCS bowl game, are you going to be in a BCS conference?" he said. "You did it, so that's momentum to build on. It does show our coaches and administrators up and down the line that you can play in a BCS bowl game by winning the Mountain West Conference."

With Smith gone to the San Francisco 49ers as the top pick in the NFL draft and coach Urban Meyer gone to Florida, the general consensus is that the MWC will be much more balanced, with Wyoming and New Mexico — which has finished second three straight years — seemingly the best bet to unseat the two-time defending champion Utes. With the addition of TCU, it's now a nine-team conference.

"I think we're going to have tri-champions at 9-2 or 8-3," Thompson said. "I think it's that balanced. That's a little unusual, and where we need to get with our league is that like 9-2 still gets an automatic, like everyone else's automatic."

The Utes were No. 6 in the final BCS ranking, ahead of the Big East, ACC and Big 10 champions. They can get in at 9-2, 8-3, but we have to be 11-0," Thompson said. "That's what we're trying to change."

The league has a number of solid programs with potential to top 25 teams, and the BCS in 2006 will weigh the performance of other teams in conference besides its champion when determining who gets an automatic bid. For now, it's probably unbenet or bust as the BCS goes for the MWC champ.

Wyoming wide receiver Jovan Bouknight (59) looks to get past cornerback Michael Medina during a scrimmage Aug. 17, at War Memorial Stadium in Laramie, Wyo.

"I think our situation is we would probably be better suited to have somebody go 11-0 again," Thompson said. "But two to three years from now, we'd be better suited to have two or three 9-2 top 25 people, but right now we just have to keep pushing."

If there's one lingering disappointment from the Utah drive to play in the Sugar Bowl against unbeaten Auburn.

"I would have liked to have gone against an undefeated team," offensive lineman Jesse Boone said. "I felt like we deserved that. You take what you get, and that's that."

At the conference media day, Boone wore two huge rings, from the 2003 Liberty Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl in Las Vegas. "We got more fingers," he said. Coach Kyle Willingham, promoted from defensive coordinator to replace Meyer, said the Utes' goal is simply to win the conference championship.

"It's not about going undefeated. As soon as you put those kind of parameters on a season, what happens as soon as you drop a bit of a hammer. It goes out of the whole deal," he said.

A capsule look at the teams in predicted order of finish.

UTAH — Sophomore Brian Johnson replaces Smith. He played in 10 games last year as Smith's understudy, compiling 21 of 21 passes for 142 yards with one TD and one INT. The Utes return only five starters on offense and five on defense. ... Utah opens at home against Arizona on Sept. 2, and plays another game against a team from a BCS conference when it visits North Carolina on Oct. 1.

Bramlet said the Cowboys have a new national outlook after their 24-21 win over UCLA in the Las Vegas Bowl. Bramlet's 12-year TD pass with 57 seconds left won the game for the Cowboys, whose 19 returning starters are the most in the league, open Sept. 3 on the road against Meyer's Florida Gators.

NEW MEXICO — Senior RB DonTrell Moore, coming off knee surgery and 1,081 yards, can become the sixth player in Division I history to have 1,000 yards rushing in four straight seasons. ... New Mexico has lost three straight bowl games.

COLORADO STATE — RB Nnamdi Ohaeri was picked as the preseason newcomer of the year. He stars at QB for UCLA. In 2003, before deciding to transfer, he attended a JUCO last year.

TCU — Horned Frogs competed against most of the MWC teams when they were in the 16-team Western Athletic Conference from 1997-99, and TCU, which moves to the MWC after four seasons in Conference USA, was 26-10 over the last two seasons, including two bowl appearances.

BYU — Gary Cawton resigned after the Cougars' third straight 10-6 season and was replaced by defensive coordinator Bronco Mendenhall.

AIR FORCE — The Falcons are trying to bounce back after only their third losing season under Fisher DeBerry since 1984.

SAN DIEGO STATE — RB Lynell Hamilton returns after missing all last season with broken leg and ankle. He rushed for 1,087 yards and four TDs in 2003, being named MWC freshman of the year. ... Coach Tom Craft, 14-22 in three seasons, is in the final year of his contract. ... UNLV — Mike Sanford, who was Utah's offensive coordinator the last two seasons, was hired as head coach after Robinson retired. Sanford will call the plays in a spread offense as the Rebels try for their first winning season since 2000.

Five rare matchups worth watching

NEW YORK (AP) — Five intriguing and uncommon nonconference games that should make for must-see TV. BOISE STATE AT GEORGIA, Sept. 3: Boise State QB Jared Zabransky threw for 16 TDs and nearly 3,000 yards last season while running for 13 more. Georgia, meanwhile has some holes to fill on defense and a new starting QB. An upset special?

TEXAS AT OHIO STATE, Sept. 10: A meeting of national title contenders. Texas QB Vince Young made defenses look silly last season, slipping tackles left and right. But can Ohio State's linemen, led by A.J. Hawk, corral this Longhorn?

GEORGIA TECH AT AUBURN, Sept. 3: Without stars Jason Campbell, Carnell Williams and Jermie Brown, Auburn could be in for a rough opener against Georgia Tech's defense. COLORADO AT MIAMI, Sept. 26: The Buffaloes made it to the Big 12 title game last season and return most key players from an 8-5 team. Miami should be up to its usual high standards.

Hopes fading for Chase, Earnhardt focuses on future

By Jenna Fryer
Associated Press writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Dale Earnhardt Jr. is done talking about the points standings. In fact, he claims he hasn't even looked at them this week. In serious danger of missing the playoffs, Earnhardt has found the best strategy for him is to not even worry about it.

But should he get shut out, he doesn't want to be alone. Earnhardt wants Jeff Gordon to miss the cut, too.

"I'm sorry, Jeff, but if I don't make it, I hope you don't either," Earnhardt said this week. "But that way I am not the only one talking about missing it."

Misery loves company, and Earnhardt knows he's going to need some companionship if he's not racing for the Nextel Cup in NASCAR's 10-race playoff series. With three races left to qualify, Earnhardt is 16th in the standings — 158 points out of the 10th and final qualifying spot.

Gordon is a little closer at 12th in the standings, only 58 points out of the cutoff spot.

If either is going to get into the Chase for the championship, he'll need a strong run Saturday night at Bristol Motor Speedway. Earnhardt returns as the defending race champion, while Gordon has five career victories at the 533-mile bullring.

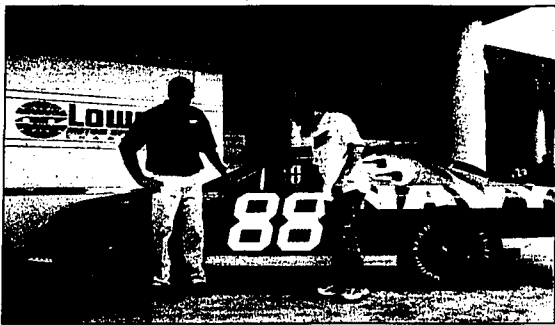

Gordon believes he's still got a chance to get in, saying "You can't count us out. We could strike at any moment."

Earnhardt isn't as confident. He knows this year has gone awfully, the worst of his six Cup seasons. He's got just one win and has led only 17 laps this season.

A year ago at this time, Earnhardt was third in the standings, had led 587 laps and the Bristol victory was his fourth of the season.

But Earnhardt is tired of talking about stats and standings.

"I don't know if we can make it this year. I haven't even looked at the standings this week. Can you believe that?" he said. "I try not to focus on those things. It takes away from driving the car. "Right now I am just looking forward to the rest of the season and obviously to next year."

Dale Earnhardt Jr., right, and Mark McFarland look over the recently unveiled No. 88 car at Lowe's Motor Speedway in Concord, N.C., on Tuesday. Earnhardt is expanding his role as a car owner, announcing plans Tuesday to field a team in the Busch Series next season. JR Motorsports, the business Earnhardt owns independently of all his other ventures, will run McFarland in the No. 88 Chevrolet. The U.S. Navy will sponsor the team.

It's not like Earnhardt has given up on this season, he's just weary of all the pressure he's been under.

There's an overwhelming perception in NASCAR that its playoff system will be a bust if Earnhardt and Gordon are locked out, and it led to a fast-spreading rumor this summer that a rule was being considered that would allow fans to vote one driver into the Chase.

Because Earnhardt is easily NASCAR's most popular driver, the alleged provision was thought to be designed specifically for him. It got so mad, NASCAR chairman Brian France had to address it.

"We have to be, and we will be, a performance-based series. You have to perform," France said. "You know what, the drivers ... don't want to limp in on a fan vote. They want to earn their way in or not earn their way in." Earnhardt himself has said repeatedly he would have no interest in gaining a free pass into the Chase.

"I wouldn't feel comfortable with that at all," he said. "What's the point in running all them races (36) if you're going to allow everybody else in? That's kind of crazy. Whether me and Jeff are in the Chase or not, I feel like there's personalities, teams and stories and there will be drama that will be more than satisfying for the media and the fans."

The fact that we didn't make the Chase will be forgotten by until the next season starts."

It already seems as if Earnhardt is looking to next season, anyway. He sold former crew chief Tommy Baldwin Jr. stopped by his car last week at Michigan and helped his crew make some adjustments that Earnhardt said improved his No. 8 Chevrolet.

Now that Dale Earnhardt Inc. has signed Eury to a long-term contract extension, all signs are pointing to a reunion next season between the driver and crew chief. The two were separated at the end of last season because of their constant bickering — the two are cousins — and both have said the year apart helped strengthen the relationship.

Earnhardt is being coy about the future, but sounds as if Eury Jr. will be running his team next season.

"I'm not going to tell you, but I think everybody knows where we are headed and what we are going to do," he said. "I think it should get us back in Victory Lane a lot more often and at least up front leading laps."

For now, he's just concentrating on making it through this year. If Earnhardt somehow charges into the Chase, he'll be thrilled. If he falls, he'll move on.

"What can I do? I mean, dang, am I supposed to quit? Give it up?" he asked. "I've just got to come back and try again next year."

NASCAR THIS WEEK

NEXTEL CUP

SHARPE 500

Site: Bristol, Tenn.

Schedule: Friday, qualifying (TNT, 5:30 p.m.); Saturday, race (TNT, 5:30 p.m.).

Track: Bristol Motor Speedway (oval, .533 miles, 36 degrees banking in turns).

Race distance: 268.5 miles, 500 laps.

Last race: Jeremy Mayfield came out on top of the chaotic GPS Marketplace 400 by running the last 52 laps on a single tank of fuel at Michigan International Speedway. Mayfield, whose most recent win came last September in Richmond, inherited the top spot with six laps to go as the leaders were forced to pit for fuel. Mayfield's crew chief, Sluggie Labbe, decided to pass up a late pit stop and go for the win.

Last year Dale Earnhardt Jr. completed the weekend sweep at Bristol by winning the Sharpie 500. Almost completely healed from burns he suffered the previous month in a non-NASCAR wreck, Earnhardt led 295 of the 500 laps for his first Cup win at the track.

Schedule: Friday, qualifying (Speed Channel, 2:30 p.m.); race (TNT, 6 p.m.).

Track: Bristol Motor Speedway (oval, .533 miles, 36 degrees banking in turns).

Race distance: 133.25 miles, 250 laps.

Last race: Ryan Newman raced to his second straight victory, passing Greg Biffle with six laps remaining and holding his lead by 0.7 seconds in the Domino's Pizza 250 at Michigan International Speedway.

Last year Dale Earnhardt Jr. beat Matt Kenseth in the first green-white finish in series history to win the Food City 250. Earnhardt started from the pole and led a race-high 125 laps, but a series-high 13 cautions extended the event by six laps.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCKS

Last year Mike Skinner led all but 10 laps and won in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series for the first time since 1996 by turning in a late challenge from Todd Bodine. Skinner, a former champion, led in 1997 to race in the Nextel Cup series. He returned last year to compete full time in the Craftsman Truck Series. He won the victory in Wednesday night's O'Reilly 200 at Bristol Motor Speedway with his 17th on the circuit.

Jeremy Mayfield quietly gets the job done

By Mike Harris
Associated Press writer

Jeremy Mayfield usually doesn't draw much attention as he goes about the business of mending a stock car in NASCAR's Nextel Cup series.

His best points finish in 11 years has been seventh in 1998, and probably the most lopsided day of Mayfield's racing life came last September when he won at Richmond in the 26th and final race of the regular season. Earnhardt "his way" barely — into NASCAR's first 10-race chase for the championship.

When he stretched his final tank of gas for 52 laps and held on to win last Sunday at Michigan International Speedway, Mayfield had by then been racing as long as little more than a blip on NASCAR's radar this season.

Still, look at the standings heading into Saturday night's race at Bristol — one of only three events left before the start of this year's playoffs. There is Mayfield, sixth in the points, 399 points behind leader Tony Stewart, also a relatively safe 167 in front of 10th place Jamie McMurray.

While drivers such as four-time series champion Jeff Gordon, former champions Dale Jarrett and Matt Kenseth and other big names including Elliott Sauter, Kevin Harvick and Dale Earnhardt Jr. need big finishes or virtual miracles to make the Chase, Mayfield simply needs to stay consistent.

"We don't want to be talked about," Mayfield said. "We go to the track and race and that's all we want. We don't want to make moves and all that stuff. We're here to race and that's the way I look at it."

"When you perform good and get all the attention, that's great. But how would you like to not be performing and get all the attention? That looks bad, too. I'm pretty happy with what we've got going on."

In 23 starts so far this season, Mayfield who wound up 10th in the points a year ago, has only four top fives and six top 10s. But, on the plus side, he has failed to finish only one race.

"It's all about consistency," Mayfield said. "That's the way it has to be. You can win the battles, but it doesn't matter unless you win the war."

Most of the teams racing Dodges in Cup have struggled this year with the new Charger, including Mayfield's Everham Motorsports teammate Casey Kahne, who is 19th in the points after winning rookie of the year honors and finishing 13th last year.

Team owner Ray Everham says Mayfield's victory, despite coming on fuel economy rather than speed, showed the No. 19 Dodge team, overseen by crew chief Richard "Sluggie" Labbe and team director/engineer Kenny Francis, is headed in the right direction.

"You've got to be there when somebody makes an error, or when opportunity happens you've got to capitalize on it. Everham said, "So many times, with the (No. 9) (Kahne's car), or even with the 19s, we've not capitalized. I think that's where Sluggie and Kenny and Jeremy and the rest of that team are starting to really deliver points that can keep them in the hunt."

"Since that team's been through it, I think they're prepared for it. They've got a year under their belt, and with the communication between Jeremy and Kenny and Sluggie, they're able to capitalize on every opportunity."

Sunday provided an opportunity, with Labbe going against his season-long strategy of taking no big chances, making the go/no-go decision to stretch the final fuel load to the end.

With 27 cars finishing on the lead lap at Michigan, had Mayfield run out before the end, it would have cost the team dearly. Still, the team hasn't been taking many of those chances this year — and doesn't plan to over the next three races.

"Right now we're bouncing back and forth," Mayfield said. "We could be in or we could be out (of the Chase). You've got to play it safe."

"Like a week ago at Watkins Glen, I could have maybe finished ninth or 10th," added Mayfield, who was 11th on the road course. "We got mixed up with (Joe) Nemechek and I got backed off. That was better than taking a chance on wrecking. Racing smart is the big thing. Don't make any mistakes."

Skinner wins Bristol

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Mike Skinner led all but 10 laps and won in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series for the first time since 1996 by turning back a late challenge from Todd Bodine on Wednesday night.

Former champion Skinner, who led in 1997 to race in the Nextel Cup series and returned last year to compete full time in the trucks, won for the 17th time on the circuit.

"What a moment in this thing," Skinner said after giving owner Bill Davis his first victory in the series.

Using lapped traffic to his advantage, Bodine ran down Skinner with 18 laps remaining in the O'Reilly 200 at Bristol Motor Speedway. Then series points leader Dennis Setzer brought out a caution when he crashed on the 187th lap.

But Skinner held off Bodine when the green flag waved on lap 189.

"We were good on restarts all night, and I thought if we could get out there we could hold him off," Skinner said of Bodine. Skinner was happy to see the cautions.

"I knew if this thing stayed green, Ted would have had a shot," he said.

Bodine agreed.

"If that caution hadn't come out, we had something for Mike," said Bodine, who started 32nd in the 36-track field but used an early pit stop strategy to gain track position he never relinquished. "It was a pretty awesome run."

Skinner had to persevere when his right front tire began to blister late in the race on the high banking of the half-mile concrete oval.

By Bristol standards, the race was a tame affair with six caution flags slowing the race for just 34 of the 200 laps.

Accidents hurt two of the series' championship contenders. Setzer's lead dropped to 143 points over Ted Musgrave after he slipping the outside wall and wound up 16th.

2005 TOYOTA ECHO

Though not the most attractive vehicle on the market, the Toyota Echo has its positive points.

The little car that grows on you

By Warren Brown
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Children change. The youngest, Kai, has a new job and a different attitude. The Virginia girl has become a New York woman. She no longer wants the little Toyota Echo car we bought for her two years ago.

"It's not who I am," she said. And so the Echo has been left home in Virginia, the repository of so many things she and her siblings accumulated in youth and abandoned in adulthood. We parents are there, too. We're no longer caretakers. We've become curators. We're keeping the Echo.

We had considered selling the car, especially after it was ticketed in front of our house for not having the appropriate county tax decal. But we've reconsidered. That $40 ticket cost more than all of the regular unleaded gasoline we had pumped into the Echo in 400 miles; and we still had a quarter of a tank of fuel left.

We began washing away the dust and grime deposited on the car after two years of open-top and on-street parking in Syracuse, the Bronx and Manhattan.

The paint, pedestrian gray, was scratched in places. But it could be made presentable with a good buff-and-wax job.

There were a few body dings, mostly in the vicinity of the front and rear bumpers. But Downside: An ugly duckling if ever there was one.

Upside: A very reliable ugly duckling. The Echo has been so dependable and trouble-free over its past two years of brutal service, we feel morally obligated to keep it in the family.

Head-turning quotient: Not! Ride, acceleration and handling: Decent small-car ride. Acceleration is competent up to 60 miles per hour, meaning that you can enter highway traffic without first filing an application. Don't push it much past 65 miles per hour. Handling is decent, but keep in mind that the Echo comes with small, 14-inch diameter tires and a 93.3-inch wheelbase — which is short. The car is not designed for high-performance maneuvers.

Changes since 2003: Virtually none. The Echo remains the Echo.

Body style/layout: The Echo is a those were easily repairable, too.

The interior — odd and ugly when the car was bought new as a 2003 model — remained that way 28,000 miles later. But its appearance was made all the more drab by a thin brown layer of dust and film coating the top of the Echo's frog-eyed instrument panel.

Why did we buy it? Two years ago, when Kai was starting out in her first TV re-

Nuts & Bolts: 2005 Toyota Echo

Price: Two years ago, we paid $10,695 for a base Toyota Echo, including taxes, fees and transportation charges. The practically identical 2005 model has a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $11,076. Price as tested for the base 2005 model is $12,325, including a $540 destination charge. Prices sourced from Toyota, Edmunds.com and Cars.com, a Washington Post affiliate.

front-engine, front-wheel-drive, subcompact, four-door sedan. It is also available as a two-door coupe.

Engine/transmission: The Echo comes with a 1.5-liter, in-line four-cylinder, 16-valve engine that develops 108 horsepower at 6,000 revolutions per minute and 105 foot-pounds of torque at 4,200 rpm. The engine is mated to a four-speed automatic transmission.

Cargo and fuel capacities: The Echo has seating for five people. Luggage capacity is 13.6 cubic feet. Fuel capacity is 11.9 gallons of recommended regular unleaded gasoline.

Mileage: We usually get 38 miles per gallon on the highway in our Echo. We've gotten 40 miles per gallon running at posted highway speeds without cargo and without the use of the air conditioner or heater.

Safety: It's a small car with basic small-car protection, including federally mandated front air bags. You won't win any crash contests with larger vehicles. Wear your seat belts and drive safely.

Parasite-note: The Echo is a competent, dependable economy car surrounded by better-looking competition. But it offers much more than a pretty face. Compare with the Chevrolet Aveo, Hyundai Accent, Suzuki Reno and Kia Rio.

many things that baffle and worry parents. "This one!" she said, pointing to the Echo. "This is me!"

A lot happens in two years, especially to young reporters. She covered rapes, robberies and murders. She has also chronicled personal triumphs and unselfish acts of heroism. She's no longer the little girl reporter in the little car. "It's not who I am," she said. But the Echo is what it has always been, and what it continues to be, even in its 2005 iteration. It is a simple, exceptionally reliable, fuel-efficient small car available at a relatively small price.

There is nothing fancy about it. The one we're keeping has hand-crank windows, which work perfectly well. That's more than we can say for the inoperable power windows in our substantially more expensive Mini Cooper.

In two years of enduring New York winters, driving and parking abuses, that little front-wheel-drive Echo has started every time its ignition was switched on. It has not flattered one. Repair bills have been minimal — primarily for brake pads worn thin in brake-and-screesh city traffic.

The Echo's 1.5-liter, in-line four-cylinder, 108-horsepower engine is still a wimp — especially at speeds of about 70 miles per hour, where it begins to wheeze and whine. But commuting speeds in and around the Washington metropolitan area, where the car is likely to spend the rest of its useful life, tend to be lower than that. The Echo should be OK in that environment.

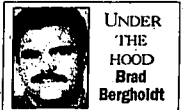

With the money we save on gasoline, we may even replace the hubcap missing from the front right wheel. The car may no longer be Kai's definition of her inner self. But it remains who we are as her parents: We're cheap.

Air conditioner repair could end up being costly

O. I recently purchased a 1988 Mazda RX-7 from the original owner. The car is in exceptional shape, with the exception of the air conditioning system, which doesn't work at all.

I'm particularly wary of taking the car into the shop for repair because it is mostly a hobby and usually sits in the garage. However, the car is a joy to drive, just not in South Bay where I live. I was hoping you could give me a general idea of what it might cost for a rebuild of this type.

— Corey Johnson
San Jose, Calif.

UNDER THE HOOD
Brad Bergholdt

A. It would be tough to say for sure what it will take to say for the RX-7's A/C system, but I can describe a few inspections for you to perform, then we can go from there.

Let's start by checking the air distribution system for proper operation. Does it change modes, blowing air properly from the dash vents, heater and defroster ducts? If not, work will be needed here, in addition to restoring the refrigeration system to operation.

Next, with the engine off and the keys in your pocket, try rotating the center hub of the air conditioning compressor by hand. This is a belt-driven device a bit smaller than a football, with two hoses connected to it. If the compressor turns with firm effort, yet fairly smoothly, that's good. If not, replacement of this expensive part might be necessary.

Let's continue by inspecting the hoses and their fittings connecting the compressor to the condenser — just ahead of the radiator — and evaporator. The hoses will disappear through a grommet into the right side firewall. If the hoses and fittings are clean and dry, they're probably OK. If signs of previous wetness or localized dry areas are evident, refrigerant and lubricant leakage has occurred.

Assuming the above inspections are OK, your RX-7 is a good candidate for professional refrigerant leakage testing, renewal of perhaps an O-ring seal or two, replacement of the receiver-drier, evacuation, conversion to the much less expensive and more environmentally friendly R-134a refrigerant and recharging.

It's important to locate and repair any detectable leakage, such as faulty seals or hoses, in order to avoid repeated future recharging and harm to the environment.

Your best-case scenario will probably run around $200 to $400. Worst case, involving replacement of the compressor and/or other parts, could push the repair cost as high as $700 to $900.

CHRYSLER'S EMPLOYEE PRICING

TIME IS RUNNING OUT!

We Still Have A Good Selection in Stock -
But They're Going Fast!

Bob Latham, Sr.

"Chrysler's Employee Pricing Plus is a One-in-a-Lifetime Opportunity!"

*Take my word for it. In my 40 years in the car business, I've never seen Chrysler offer such a great pricing program - thousands below the dealer cost! It may never happen again, so take advantage of it today.
I DID!*
