T.F. teachers still without contract

Mediation between union, district fails to reach deal

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mediation between the Twin Falls School District and the teachers' union ended Monday night without a contract.

Their dispute over salaries, benefits and other items now enters a fact-finding stage, which involves sifting through the points of contention. That is set to begin Dec. 15.

A lawsuit also is scheduled to be heard Dec. 16.

The mediation was another step in lengthy — and sometimes bitter — negotiations between the teachers' union and the school district. The federal mediator — Jim Bailey of Portland, Ore. — was brought in at the request of the school district and the Twin Falls Education Association.

Bailey met with both sides separately to discuss specific areas of the contract. Leslie Bedke, an Idaho Education Association director, worked with the IFEA and Randy Bohannon of Victor Four Labor Relations worked with the school district.

The mediation began at 2 p.m. Taking a break after one of the sessions, IFEA Chairman Steve Hoy spoke to a group of teachers waiting outside the district offices with food packages for IFEA bargaining members.

"We're going back and forth,"

Students show support for teachers.

See page C1

Hoy said to the teachers, "It's all give and take right now."

By 7:30 p.m., mediation had ended.

Hoy said the IFEA had an offer they were willing to present to the teachers, but he said the district withdrew the insurance component from the offer.

"We are very disappointed that we had an offer to present to the teachers," Hoy said. "This was our chance to settle the contract before the lawsuit next week."

Wiley Dobbs, superintendent of the Twin Falls School District, said a lot of ground was covered; and the district worked hard to find a contract offer that would be supported by the union.

"The mediator tried to put together an agreement that both parties could vote on and we couldn't quite get there," Dobbs said. "We were very close, but in the end the union elected to get with fact-finding and that is the direction we will head now."

Friends remember shooting victim

By Terry Smith
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Only the light cratch of frozen snow, and the occasional whimpering of an infant, broke the silence Monday at graveside services for Jesse J. Naranjo, the 33-year-old man shot to death last week in Twin Falls.

Some 100 people gathered at the grave on a small hillside overlooking farmland to the east and Mountain View to the south. Friends of red hugs and words of condolence to Jesse's parents, Eugene and Bertha Naranjo. Some placed red roses on the casket. A boy of about 11, one of Jesse's six children, cried inconsolably.

When the graveside services ended, family members walked arm-in-arm, supporting each other in their grief. "Some friends gently touched the casket in farewell."

Stan Hernandez, Naranjo's cousin, described Jesse as a "very kind person; friendly with everybody. He really liked sports."

Naranjo's affection for sports was manifest in his high school years, when he played baseball, basketball and football. A former Heyburn resident, he graduated from Minico High School in 1991.

"It was a pretty good football player," said Steve Barnes, a Minico football coach. "He played on the team and did a pretty good job for me. He was a good kid."

Barnes described Naranjo as a medium-sized lineman, "one of the workhorses of the team. Jesse was a very happy-go-lucky kid. He would walk up to the locker room at football and

Saddam puts on a show during trial

Angry outbursts mark appearance

The Washington Post

BAGHDAD, Iraq — The trial of Saddam Hussein, envisioned as a lesson of judicial fairness for a new Iraq, hatched ahead as a chaotic spectacle Monday, at times degenerating into a shouting match as the former dictator threatened to hijack the proceedings.

During the lengthy hearing, theatrical gestures and comments by Saddam, his attorneys and co-defendants nearly overshadowed dramatic testimony by victims of Saddam's government, including villagers who described seeing their close relatives tortured.

Saddam's co-defendants stood to hail him and one spit at spectators in the courtroom. Saddam leapt from his seat to shout at the judge, waving his finger. Censors cut off the television broadcast. Defense lawyers walked out as the trial judge struggled to try to control events.

At one point, Saddam and his half brother, Barazan Ibrahim, stood and saluted, shouting "Long live Iraq!" and proceeding in a dejected image of defiance to the Iraqi audience. Both men scorned the charges against them.

"I am not afraid of execution," Saddam boasted. Later he scoffed: "Do you want the neck of Saddam Hussein? You can have it."

Outside the trial, being held in a special courtroom built inside Baghdad's fortified Green Zone, there were growing signs of public discontent, including criticism in the press and demonstrations in the street.

Traffic was paralyzed Monday morning as Shiite Muslim university students marched in the streets, then listened to Abdul Aziz al-Hakim, the head of Iraq's largest political party.

"This criminal deserves the death penalty, the highest punishment," al-Hakim told the students. They chanted, "Execu-

The turbulent proceedings included the first confrontation in open court between Saddam and some of his government's victims. Two men

BEHAVE OR ELSE

Cafe sign stirs debate on kids' behavior in public

By Martha Irvine
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — Dan McCauley had seen one too many kids at his cafe lying on the floor in front of the counter, careening off the glass pastry case, coming perilously close to getting their fingers pinched in the front door. So he posted a sign: "Children of all ages have to behave and use their indoor voices."

To him, it was a simple reminder to parents to keep an eye on their children and set some limits. But to some parents in his North Side Chicago neighborhood, the sign may as well have read, "If you have kids, you're not welcome."

That one little notice, adorned with pastel hand prints, has become a lightning rod in a larger debate over parenting and misbehaving children.

"It's not about the kids," says McCauley, the 44-year-old owner of A Taste of Heaven cafe, who has no children but claims to like them a lot. "It's about the parents who are with them. Are they supervising and guiding them?"

"I'm just asking that they are considerate to people around them."

While he has created some enemies in his neighborhood, McCauley has received hundreds of calls and more than 600 letters, the overwhelming majority of them supportive. One letter-writer from Alabama typed out in bold letters: "In my opinion, you're a hero! Keep it up."

It is a sentiment that people feel increasingly comfortable expressing. Online bloggers regularly make impassioned pleas for child-free zones in public, while e-mailers have been forwarding a photograph of a sign in an unidentified business that reads, "Unattended Children Will Be Given an Espresso and a Puppy."

While it is common policy for upscale restaurants to bar children, owners of other types of businesses also are setting limits on kids.

The Wynn Hotel in Las Vegas, for instance, does not allow visitors who aren't guests to have strollers. Local officials say it is to prevent crashes with other pedestrians. The Bellagio Hotel does not take guests younger than 18 without special permission.

Some parents are fine with the limit-setting and complain that too many of their peers take their kids to places traditionally meant for adults, such as late-night movies and rock concerts.

Robin Piccini, a 42-year-old mom in Bridgegewater, Mass., gets annoyed when she has hired a baby-sitter for her daughter, only to end up seated at a restaurant next to unruly kids.

"I am paying the same price

Embattled Spokane mayor faces judgment Behavior

SPokane, Wash. (AP) — Spokane Mayor James H. West should know today whether he will finish his first term.
More than 11,000 ballots in a second election triggered by a sex scandal have been mailed to residents of this city of 200,000 near the Washington-Idaho border.
Recall organizer Shannon Sullivan said Monday she was feeling a sense of accomplishment.
No criminal charges have been filed.
"West, who has called himself the victim of a 'brutal outing,' has acknowledged having relationships with young men but denied doing anything illegal.
No criminal charges have been filed.
With more than 50 percent of the ballots mailed already returned, and polls showing that voters overwhelmingly support the recall.

always seem pleased to be there. He always had a smile on his face."
That assessment of Naranjo was shared by Minico attorney and state secretary Mary K. Garra.
"Jesse liked to fit in and be a part of things," she said. "I liked Jesse. He was a very nice young man."

An entry in the 1991 Minico yearbook lists Naranjo's senior year goal as "to take a trip around the world and see all the women — a beautiful woman."

Naranjo later was married twice, and divorced twice. He is survived by six children: Stephanie, Armand, Tyrell, Minico, Mariah and J.L.

Several hundred friends and family members gathered for Funeral Mass on Monday morning at Little Flower Catholic Church in Butley.

The casket lay in the foyer of the church prior to the start of services. Family members stood in silence as Rev. Juan Carero sprinkled it with holy water while saying a prayer in Spanish.

Garra delivered the sermon in Spanish for the benefit of the largely Hispanic gathering. Nearly a dozen people wore white T-shirts with Naranjo's name printed on the back and his portrait printed on the front.

Seven of the 11 pallbearers, and honorary pallbearers bore the last names of Naranjo, a testament to his large family.

Printed on the inside cover of the funeral program were the words to the song "My Way," popularized by numerous artists, including Frank Sinatra, Elvis Presley and Willie Nelson.

The words seemed well-chosen.
"Use these words, I'm sure you know, when I hit off more than I could chew... The record shows I took the blows, and did it my way."

Parents in Port Melbourne, Australia, also were upset last week by a sign appeared on the restaurant door at the Clare Casde Hotel stating that children were welcome only if they stayed in their seats.
The establishment has since changed hands and dropped the policy, which new owner Michael Farrant says makes no sense in a neighborhood filled with young families.

"I have an arsenal that includes the deadly stare, loss of privileges and 'We're going back to the car, RIGHT NOW,'" says Angela Tada, a 38-year-old mother of two small children in College Park, Md. "But the bottom line is, there are certain moments that all kids and parents have — and sometimes your kid is going to lose it in a public place."

She says she does not usually respond well to other people's interference, "unless it is a sympathetic look."

All Booked Up in Suffolk, Va., is among bookstores that have separate sections where kids can play and test. Many bookstores have alcohol-free "family sections."

Zulema Suarez, a professor who studies parenting, applauds attempts to strike a balance.
"There needs to be a give and take," says Suarez, an associate professor of social work at Adelphi University in Garden City, N.Y. "Children don't need to be allowed to run wild and free, but they do need to be allowed to express themselves."

"Too often, though, our cultural emphasis on freedom and individual rights gets taken to the extreme, becoming a kind of self-ish entitlement that undermines our ability to function as a civil community," says George Scardell, a professor of child development at Tufts University in Boston.

"The rights of any one individual — whether he or she be a parent, child or stranger — do not negate the rights of others."

Investigation of shooting continues

TWIN FALLS — Authorities reported no new developments Monday in the investigation of the Nov. 29 fatal shooting of 33-year-old Jesse J. Naranjo.

Twin Falls County Prosecuting Attorney Armand Tyrell said the investigation continues but no more arrests have been made.

Juan Carlos Pina, 32, was charged last week with accessory to murder in the shotgun slaying of Naranjo in the alley behind 325 Sixth St. E. Pina remains in the Twin Falls County Jail on $250,000 bond.

Pina also has been charged with felony aggravated assault for allegedly pointing a handgun at another man earlier in the day on Washington Street North. Authorities have not released any information that would connect that incident with the shooting of Naranjo.

At times choking back tears, Mohammed described how seven of his brothers were executed, and how they were all interrogated and tortured. One brother was tortured with electric shock in front of his father, he said, sobbing.

"They knew who was most beloved by their father, they took him, 16 years old. Before my father, they beat him. Then they said: Kill him."

Mohammed was followed to the witness stand by Iwoud Abdul-Aziz Jawad, who was 10 at the time of the assassination attempt. He described how giant bulldozers descended on the village three months after the shooting, razing through farms and plowing over houses.

In one of many surprises in the trial, an outburst from co-defendant Ibrahim revealed that the former prime minister of Iraq, Mohammed Hamza Zuhaidi, a top deputy to Saddam, died this week in U.S. custody.

The U.S. military officials later said Zuhaidi, 67, who was among the top wanted officials of Saddam's government, had been hospitalized for several days, complaining of chest pains. He died Friday and his body was being sent to the United States for an autopsy, according to Lt. Col. Guy Rudisill, a spokesman for detainee operations in Iraq.

"It was natural causes," Rudisill said. He said there was "absolutely no" suspicion of foul play.

Military authorities had announced Sunday that an unidentified "67-year-old civilian" had died at the hospital at Camp Bucca, a Ghraib prison outside Baghdad.

Rudisill said U.S. officials generally do not release names of deceased detainees because of the need to notify families. "We aren't hiding anything," he said.

The trial had been planned by Iraqi and U.S. authorities since Saddam's capture in December 2003. In a calculated gamble, they decided to try him in Iraq, rather than before an international tribunal abroad. Officials said an Iraqi trial likely would be scarred by the judge's brother, court officials confirmed.

Television coverage has not shown the public a smooth judicial process. Chief Judge Izzat Ibrahim Hamdan has been unable to silence the defendants, who have shouted at the judges, witnesses, defense attorneys and even the spectators.

had made a gesture to the defendants of drawing a knife across their throats.

Saddam has been alternately bombastic and petty. He continued to press demands for paper during his notes on. At one point he showed the judge the palm of his hand, covered in notes in purple ink.

As Mohammed was testifying, Saddam said to him with a sneer, "Why didn't they give you a death sentence?"

The trial is being broadcast nationally. But the tape is delayed, and on Monday was interrupted repeatedly, apparently at the order of the chief judge. The end of the day's proceedings was cut off entirely, depriving Iraqis of hearing Saddam's final and most vitriolic tirade of the day.

As the judge tried to admonish him, Saddam roared. "Let him not interrupt me," and called the testimony "an organized lie," according to pool reporters at the trial. He finally flung himself into a chair, proclaiming "I'm Saddam Hussein."

Earlier this show the whole trial, or not. This is all scoring points for Saddam," said Haqi Ismail, 32, a student scientist, who was shipped in a store Monday during his testimony. He complained the witnesses so far had offered little in firsthand accounts.

"All they said is, 'they told me' or 'I heard,'" Ismail said. "No judge in the world would go by that."

Mohammed acknowledged he witnessed the trial of what he recounted and Jawad declined to directly blame the defendants by name in his testimony.

"As everyone heard, there is not even one piece of evidence brought up, either written or oral, really condemning Mr. Saddam in his colleague," said defense attorney Najeeb Nauidi, who at one point staged a walk-out with other lawyers to force the judge to listen to their arguments. "This court is not capable of handling this trial."

Rice to Europe: America doesn't torture

BERLIN (AP) — Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice aggressively defended U.S. tactics against terrorism on Monday as tough but legal, and countered European complaints over reports that the CIA runs prisons there by saying America's efforts with its allies have been a "two-way street" that have saved European and American lives.

Rice

Commencing a five-day visit to Europe that has sought to reassure about the reports of U.S. prisons and detainee mistreatment, Rice delivered a more serious allegation: the administration's most forceful response to a month of growing trans-Atlantic acrimony.

She also went further than critics in the Bush administration to insist that Americans do not practice torture or lesser forms of cruel treatment. "Our people, wherever they are, are operating under U.S.

law and U.S. international obligations," Rice said. She said that includes the U.N. Convention Against Torture, a document the administration previously said does not fully apply to Americans overseas.

"Some governments choose to cooperate with the United States" in intelligence and other arenas, Rice said before she left for Europe. "That cooperation is a two-way street. We share intelligence that has helped protect European countries from attack, saving European lives."

Her comments seemed to imply that if any European governments provided secret prisons, they did so willingly.

Rice did not elaborate on how lives were saved, but White House spokesman Scott McClellan referred reporters to an Oct. 6 statement by President Bush that the United States and its allies had foiled 10 serious plots by the al-Qaida terror network in the past four years.

At the time, the White House said those counted several attempted strikes in Europe, including plans to bomb sites in Britain in mid-2004, attack London's Heathrow Airport using hijacked commercial airliners in 2003 and carry out a large-scale bombing in Britain in spring 2004.

Throughout Monday, Rice refused any outright answer to the underlying question European governments have asked: Did the United States run clandestine detention sites on the continent?

"Were I to confirm or deny, say yes or say no, then I would be compromising intelligence information, and I'm not going to do that," she said on her plane to Germany.

The European Union has asked for an explanation of U.S. actions, as have individual European allies concerned that their airports, territory or airspace may have been used for detention or transport of suspects under conditions illegal in Europe.

A November report in The Washington Post said that the CIA ran a network of hidden prisons, including some in Eastern European democracies. The story and its aftermath have rekindled opposition to President Bush and his foreign policy in Europe and have threatened to fray diplomatic ties that Rice has tried to forge this year.

Judge dismisses one charge against Delay

AUSTIN, Texas — A judge dismissed a conspiracy charge Monday against Rep. Tom Delay but refused to throw out the more serious allegations of money-laundering, dashing the congressman's hopes for now of reclaiming his post as House majority leader.

When the Bush administration is presiding over the case against the Republican, issued the ruling after a hearing late last month in which Delay's attorney argued that the indictment was fatally flawed.

When he was indicted in September, Delay was required under House rules to relinquish the leadership post he had held since 2003. While Monday's ruling was a partial victory for Delay, he cannot reclaim his post because he remains under indictment.

The ruling means the case will move toward a trial next year, though other defense objections to the indictments remain to be heard by the judge.

"The court's decision to dismiss Ronnie Earle's numerous charges against Mr. Delay underscores just how serious and politically motivated the charges were," Delay spokesman Kevin Madden said, referring to the Democratic district attorney who brought the case.

Nation/World in Brief

Doctor denies patient tried to kill herself

MARU, France — The French doctor behind the world's first partial face transplant insisted Monday that his patient did not try to kill herself before being mauled by her dog — even as a British newspaper quoted her as saying she had.

The apparent contradiction was just one of the mysteries surrounding last week's groundbreaking operation that grafted a nose, chin and lips onto a 30-year-old woman whose face had been severely disfigured by her pet Labrador.

In her hometown, neighbors said the mother of two teenage daughters generally kept to herself before the surgery and wore a surgical mask to hide her face when she walked her new dog.

The case has raised questions about the ethics of performing such surgery on someone who may have suffered psychological troubles in the past.

London's Sunday Times reported the woman acknowledged in a cell phone interview that she took an overdose of sleeping pills during a fit of depression this spring. That night, she was mauled by her own Labrador, in circumstances still unclear.

WALL OF HONOR

STORK REPORT

TFHS salutes graduates in military

By Jami Whited
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Pride and excitement light up the eyes of Linda Bright and Lisa Lowry when they show the posters they've created for the Wall of Honor at Twin Falls High School.

The project recognizes soldiers who have graduated from the school. The project started about three years ago when another employee came up with the idea. Bright and Lowry, who work at the school, took over the project two years ago.

While neither of the women have family serving in the military now, as Lowry explains, "We just thought this would be a good thing to do."

While they don't know many of the soldiers they are recognizing, they're very proud of them all.

Want to recognize a soldier?

Pictures of graduates who have joined the military are still being accepted. People can bring photos to the front office, where they will be scanned and returned. The graduate's name, year of graduation, branch of service, rank, deployment and anything else of interest will be placed with the photo.

For more information or to update information, call Linda Bright at 733-6551 or e-mail brightl@sfid12.edu.

"As long as we have soldiers to support our country, we need to support them," Bright said.

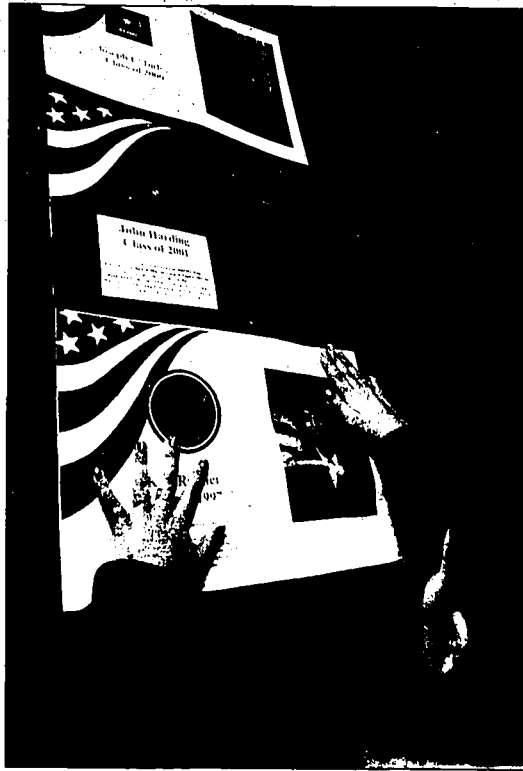

So, she and Lowry make posters with graduates' pictures and list the year they graduated from the school, their branch of service, rank, deployment dates and more.

For the soldiers serving in Iraq, a yellow ribbon is attached.

The women find it interesting to see some of the accomplishments of the soldiers.

One soldier knows Spanish, English, Korean and Indonesian. One family has three children in the military.

Bright and Lowry got an e-mail several few weeks ago from a woman in Maine whose husband is a soldier and graduated from the high school in 1976. They are moving to Twin Falls and she thought her son, who will attend the school, would like to see his dad recognized on the wall.

"There are lots of students looking at military instead of college and they're proud to see this," Bright said.

She said it's strange to think of some of the students who she knew then, now serving overseas.

"Like this one," she continued, pointing to a poster of one former student in the U.S. Navy. "It was such a funny kid with his long hair. He always had something fun to say or was doing something silly."

Students have also gotten involved in the project. One created a painting of the now-famous image of firemen putting up the American flag after the destruction of the twin towers at the World Trade Center after 9/11. In addition, the students are very respectful to the project. None of the posters have been damaged or destroyed since the project's inception.

Military photographs and flags also decorate the wall.

"A lot of people sent pictures of sand storms, helicopters, camels and soldiers overseas," Lowry said.

Last year, about 48 posters were placed on the glass wall of the lobby and they have more than a dozen so far this year.

"We've had a lot of comments on it, especially during registration," Lowry said. "Students and parents appreciate it."

"They said they just feel that as long as soldiers support this country, then it should support them. And, the Wall of Honor will remain there as long as there is interest and support."

Missing the point on disaster, Intelligent Design

A couple of things have recently caught my attention. First, our leaders call for "a national day of prayer" after the spate of natural disasters sent newslingers and showed me a sentimentality that should frighten us. It did me.

Flopping over us like a totally undisciplined colon, it is the sentimentality of men who can give themselves the very best of reasons for believing in and doing the strangest, most cruel and awful things.

Their sentimentality lacks the honest to goodness healing power of loving true compassion. They seem to have forgotten (if they ever knew it) that the only thing worth damn in the world, really, is the touching, awesome reality of the human individual.

Thankfully, I have learned enough about myself and the world to know that I cannot settle for the simplifications that our leaders spout to us as comfort for humans suffering and, sadly, which many truly indignant, good people seize upon in an attempt to make understandable a world which appears too complex for their understanding, a world made horrendous by the insent, irrational dogma of the heartlessly careless and deliberately cruel purveyors of organized religion.

Second, the statements by believers of Intelligent Design that a belief in Intelligent Design does not entail a belief in a god and that Intelligent Design believers are not attempting to get a god into the classrooms through the back door would be laughable if the utterers did not sound so sincere.

Perhaps (being gracious here), the Intelligent Design believers do not understand their own arguments. However, I have never met an Intelligent Design believer who did not believe in a god; yet, it is incomprehensible to say that a belief in Intelligent Design of the world (and in man in particular) does not mean that there is an Intelligent Designer.

One can argue until blue in the face with an Intelligent Design believer and get nowhere, but a simple argument from analogy puts them in their place. Here it is: If man is the product of Intelligent Design, and if the human eye is the most marvelous example of Intelligent Design, then why do our number parts look the way they do?

Cleaner Sempra costs more, but it's worth it

There is a correction to the letter I sent you last month (Nov. 10).

I said, "The price of Sempra's 600-megawatt project is the same as one that would do so much more for Idaho and our environment using clean coal technology." This was in reference to the cost of a pulverized coal electrical plant versus an Integrated Gasified Combined Cycle polygeneration plant — the first producing only electricity, the latter producing ultra-clean diesel fuel, fertilizer and electricity without burning the coal and producing no smoke stack emissions.

There is a 10 to 20 percent cost above the pulverized coal plant versus an IGCC polygeneration plant. I still equate the best possible project with the cleanest and, therefore, the best — even if it costs more. The choice of what coal technology should be used in Idaho, burning pulverized coal, which is not advanced clean coal technology, versus IGCC polygeneration, which is advanced clean coal technology and does not burn coal, should be made on the basis of the best project, not the cheapest.

In the past, lower standards were accepted. Higher standards exist now, and those should be selected and applied for the benefits they will produce now and into the future. I would propose instead, a 10 to 20 percent reduction in the scale of the Sempra coal-burning project in Jerome County, if that is what it will take to bring parity to the cost of a preferred IGCC plan.

The $1.4 billion price of Sempra's project should be enough to build a very profitable IGCC project, at this time anyway. It is Sempra's unwillingness to lead the industry bringing the cleanest coal technology to Idaho that has them sponsoring a less-than state-of-the-art coal-burning plant in Jerome County.

I am further discouraged to learn that Sempra is accepting that the plant it proposes will emit 100 to 160 pounds of mercury a year into our regional environment. The real costs of burning coal will be passed along to people living in the region where the emissions will be ejected into the atmosphere. The true premium cost of this coal-burning project will be assessed in damage to people's health and to the environment we live in.

HOW CAN WE GIVE YOU HEARING AIDS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE AND A GUARANTEE 500% BETTER IN THE INDUSTRY

Our hearing aids are supplied directly from the manufacturer. There's no middleman, manufacturing fees, or franchise fees to pay.

Sherry Summers
 M.S., CCC-A Clinical Audiologist
 Practice Manager

Dear Friend,

There's one more thing you need to know. You see, we own both the manufacturing company and the retail hearing centers. My name is Weston Harris, my father is Robert Harris and we own both Harris Hearing Centers and ActiveEAR, the manufacturer of some of the finest hearing devices in the world.

What that means to you is:

- You can save up to 50%. In other words, you can get 2 hearing aids for the price of one. You could literally save thousands – up to six thousand dollars in some cases.
- You can get better hearing instantly with unsurpassed quality. I'll put my ActiveEAR hearing aids up against any competitive product.
- You'll get your new hearing aids in days, not weeks or months. (The nice thing about owning the manufacturing company is that I can make sure my customers get taken care of first.)
- Peace of mind from a guarantee / warranty that's about 5 times better than most competitors. I mean it. If you have any problems with the fit, comfort, technology, or sound quality of our instruments anytime within six months of your purchase, we will refit you, change out the instrument, switch to any other brand necessary to do whatever it takes to make sure you are thrilled with your hearing. We will also do it at OUR EXPENSE, not yours.
- I will give you FREE parts on your repairs for 5 years. The standard warranty in the industry is only one year (two if you're lucky).

What you need to ask yourself is: Have you been suffering from hearing loss for any of these reasons?

- You ask people to repeat often
- You have a hard time with background noise
- You have a hard time understanding voices on the phone
- You're not sure if you really need a hearing aid
- You believe your hearing loss is too small to be helped by a hearing instrument
- You've heard horror stories about fit and comfort problems
- You believe hearing aids will make you look like an "old geezer"

I can understand that. But if you're willing to give us a chance, I promise that we can make a tremendous impact on your quality of life. I invite you to come to a Christmas open house at any of my ActiveEAR Centers on Wednesday December 7th to Wednesday, December 14th. If you'll make an appointment anytime during that open house, I'll give you a FREE hearing test and a FREE video exam of your ears (worth $249.00), so you can see for yourself what your own hearing situation is. Just call any of our stores to set up an appointment. While you're there, my hearing specialists and audiologists will answer any questions you have about any of the issues mentioned above and anything else regarding your hearing, or hearing aids. When you come in, I'll give you a special report from a national consumer organization comparing the top 28 hearing aid brands. You'll see that our ActiveEAR & SportEAR brand scores very well among the top instruments available. We are directly connected with the most advanced circuit and component maker in the world to bring you the best quality & technology available for the best prices. Naturally, once your exam is complete we will recommend a course of action. If you don't need hearing help, we'll let you know. (After all, with the extraordinary guarantee and the exceptional pricing I'm offering, I can't afford to sell you something that doesn't fill your needs.) If we believe we can help, we'll tell you that too. We will also give you a price quote up to 50% less than any local competitor on comparable equipment and a delivery timeline dramatically faster than most competitors. With over 48 years of experience under our belts and having served tens of thousands of customers, nothing gives us greater satisfaction than improving your hearing to give you the best possible quality of life. Remember, you can save up to 50% compared to the competition on the best quality hearing instruments you can buy. But you must act before Wednesday, December 14th to take advantage of this special offer, so call now to make your appointment for a FREE hearing exam. I look forward to serving you soon.

Sincerely,

P.S. Please allow me to make this offer even better...

1. If you opt for our AE Premium 100% Digital Model, you'll get 3 years of loss and damage insurance, instead of the standard 1 year warranty.
2. I'll also include a year's worth of FREE BATTERIES.
3. If you buy the AE Premium model during the open house, I'll also include FREE LIFETIME SERVICE OF: • retesting of your ears • reprogramming of your hearing aids • cleaning, adjustments and minor repairs.

Seahawks thrash Eagles

By Barry Wilner
Associated Press writer
PHILADELPHIA — A cross-country trip to Philadelphia for a Monday night game in the snow hasn't exactly been a formula for success. Then again, these are not the same old Seattle Seahawks.

Using big plays on defense, including interception returns for touchdowns by Andre Dyson and rookie Lolo Tutupu, and smaller ones from their top-ranked offense, the Seahawks routed the Eagles 42-0.

Neither are these the same Eagles who made the last four NFC championship games. Philadelphia (5-7) has been torn apart by injuries and the Terrell Owens affair and played its worst game since becoming an NFC force in 2001.

Certainly a better fight was expected. Yet the Seahawks (10-2) dominated from the outset, winning their eighth straight game, tying a team record set in 1984. They gained only 134 yards overall — the Seahawks were averaging 386 — but didn't need to do much after taking a 35-0 halftime lead.

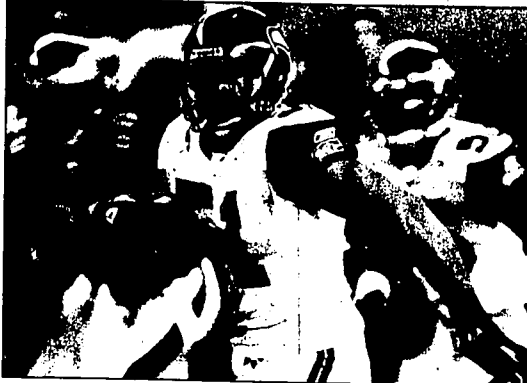

Seattle, which got two short-yardage runs from NFL rushing leader Shaun Alexander, scored its way to the top of the conference and barely surprised the New York Giants last week in the Monday night spotlight, though, the NFC West champions filled the scoreboard.

The only negative came when Dyson, after he returned Ryan Moats' fumble 25 yards for another touchdown on the first play of the second half, sprained his left ankle. Dyson was carried off the field by several teammates.

It was Philadelphia's worst loss since a 38-0 romp against Seattle to open the season. Indeed, as Dyson scored on his fumble return, the Linc pretty much emptied out. The majority of fans stayed that long only because the Eagles retired Reggie White's No. 92 at halftime.

The Eagles, who had six turnovers, were shut out for the first time since 2003 when Tampa Bay beat them 17-0 in the first game in the new stadium. It was the Eagles' worst home loss since they were beaten 49-0 by Green Bay in 1962.

And, they lost running back Brian Westbrook with a sprained foot.

Seattle Seahawks' linebacker Lolo Tutupu (51) heads for the endzone with an intercepted pass from Philadelphia Eagles' quarterback Mike McMahon in the second quarter Monday night in Philadelphia.

interception runbacks for scores in a game, according to Elias Sports Bureau.

Alexander got his first TD of the night on a 2-yard run one play after Joe Deiner, in for the injured McMahon, had his pass tipped by the omnipresent Tutupu and picked off by Michael Bodvare. He added his league-leading 22nd touchdown of the season with a 1-yarder set up by Hasselbeck's 42-yard pass to DJ Hackett.

Alexander finished with 49 yards rushing, the first time in more than a year he had fewer than 60 yards. But he didn't play in the second half.

Was World Cup weekend an Olympic preview?

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press writer

BEAVER CREEK, Colo. — If the U.S. Men's Ski Team needed an additional boost for the rest of the World Cup season and the Turin Olympics, a superb showing here certainly provided plenty of cause for optimism.

And, when performances by Lindsey Kildow and a deep contingent at Lake Louise, Alberta, are factored in, the American Alpine skiers seem capable of coming home from Italy with more medals than the grand total of two they — well, not so much "they" — Miller — collected at Salt Lake City in 2002.

"We've had momentum over the last 10 years, but you never get into this going to carry forward," U.S. Ski and Snowboard Association president Bill Marolt said. "Now we have a toehold and a platform from which we can push forward."

As the only pre-Olympic World Cup venue with a downhill, super-G, giant slalom and slalom, Beaver Creek provides a chance to gauge where everyone stands.

The U.S. men came away with two victories and two second-place finishes, plus a third, a fourth and a fifth. The powerful Austrian team totaled three podium finishes, but no other nation had more than one.

"Hopefully it does send a good message to everybody else and gets them thinking a bit more," Rabjohn said. "And that just gives you more power as a team."

On Day 1, Thursday, he was fifth in the super-G, while Miller blamed head-up goggles for his failure to finish. It was the only day that ended without a top-three placing for the U.S. team.

From then on, the procession of the podium delisted spectators, ringing cow bells and pounding Thunder 5.

On Day 2, Rabjohn won the downhill, edging reigning overall World Cup champion Miller. "The downhill's where Daron and Bode really got this thing kick-started," Marolt said. "We were kind of flat, and then — bam! — those two guys got those results."

On Day 3, the duo swapped spots, with Miller beating Rabjohn to lead a 1-2-4 U.S. finish in the giant slalom. Erik Schlopy was fourth, despite breaking his left hand in his opening run, then taping his pole to his glove for the second run.

Third-place Kalle Palander of Finland, the 1999 slalom world champion, smilingly apologized for preventing a sweep.

It felt like I was in the U.S. championships or something," Palander said. "It's not easy when you see Daron in front of you and Bode behind you."

On Day 4, Miller went out early in the slalom, but 21-year-old Ted Ligety finished third, a career best.

"Now you're seeing what this team is capable of," head coach Phil McNiel said. "The U.S. team has been cheating its way to the top of the class."

There were other noteworthy results. Dane Spener was 12th in the giant slalom on a bad knee. Steve Nyman earned World Cup points in downhill and super-G, and Tom Rothko got points in slalom.

At Lake Louise, Kildow won a downhill and had two other top-six finishes. Her skill and charisma make her the natural heir to former star Picabo Tellez, only 17 at Salt Lake City. Kildow had the best finish for a U.S. woman, sixth, in combined.

Three Americans were in the top 10 on Friday's downhill, and five in the top 14 in Sunday's super-G.

The men now head to Val d'Isere, France, the women to Colorado. Says Miller, commended much of the attention he'd won, Kildow figures she'll be the one everyone's watching in Aspen.

"It's going to be a little hectic," she said, "but it's pretty practice for me for the Olympics."

Never too soon to start thinking ahead, right?

Leinart establishes himself as all-time great

By John Nadel
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Southern California was in deep trouble. The Trojans trailed Notre Dame 31-28 with 1:32 remaining, were stuck at their own 26-yard line and had just used their final timeout.

It was fourth-and-9. The crowd of 80,795 at Notre Dame Stadium was going nuts, sensing the Fighting Irish were about to snap USC's 27-game winning streak and the Trojans' hopes for an unprecedented third straight national championship.

USC's Matt Leinart never thought about that stuff, because he had a big play to make. He would make the biggest play of his life.

The reigning Heisman Trophy winner called an audible before the deep downfield. Dwayne Jarrett was well-covered, but caught the perfectly thrown pass in stride and raced to the Notre Dame 13, completing a 61-yard play.

Leinart would later score on a sneak from inside the 1-yard line with three seconds to play, and the Trojans were winners in one of the most memorable finishes of the season.

"It just feels like we can't lose with him," USC offensive tackle Winston Justice said. "It's just so poised. When other quarterbacks would probably freeze up, Matt doesn't freeze up."

Leinart hadn't thrown a pass at USC when he became the Trojans' starting quarterback in 2003. He passed for 3,556 yards and 38 touchdowns with nine interceptions as a sophomore; 3,322 yards and 33 touchdowns with six interceptions last year, and 3,450 yards and 27 touch-

USC's Carroll a bargain at any price

Whatever USC is paying Pete Carroll, it isn't enough. It was one thing to build a college football dynasty when Steve Barnett, Ken Locke or Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson did it, another when Alabama's Bear Bryant and Nebraska's Tom Osborne did it. It's something altogether different today.

The simple fact is that it's never been more difficult. Lately, he has never been in shorter supply. No team, no matter how long and glorious a tradition, can hope to take the place he did back in the day. With scholarship limits and recruiting rules without much wiggle room, it's hard to get wherever they can play right now — and get to the pros as soon as possible.

Yet somehow USC, hit harder by defections than just about any of its rivals, has won 34 games in a row and stands only one more win from a third straight national championship. The real measure of the program, and Carroll's genius in nurturing it, is how easy they've made the whole thing work.

"It hasn't been as hard as people would think," Carroll said Sunday, a day after putting an exclamation point on the regular season by crushing cross-town rival UCLA.

"Because once we found our way of doing things, we just stuck to it," he said. "It's the discipline and the strength of your belief in what you're doing that's made this possible."

Almost a year ago, the coach sat in a postgame interview at the Orange Bowl after wrapping up one of the best college seasons ever with a second title. He was being congratulated still fresh on the silver trophy, but questions about an encore had already begun.

"We know now how that works," he said at that moment, most of the inquiries centered on whether Southern California might pass. Matt Leinart, already penciled in as the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft, would be back.

"It's going to take a lot for me to leave," Leinart replied, prompting smirks all around. A lot of most people is only a little to general manager Tom Teague, already penciled in as the franchise quarterback.

"I know I have a quick decision to make in the next week or so," Leinart said. "But just something special that we're a part of."

There was no telling whether this was an inspired bargaining ploy or a college kid just trying to get out of there. He had enough to take it at his word. Before you could decide which, Carroll stepped in. Not because he was afraid of what Leinart might say next, most likely because the coach already knew what that was, even if the kid didn't.

Carroll is so unafraid of change that he has twice back some of the players that departed for the NFL during his tenure — Carson Palmer, say, or Troy Polamalu — to counsel those still in the program. And nearly all of them say the same thing.

"They'll never get these years back. The NFL does not feel like this when you play and perform in a program like this. The point is, when you know it's that special," Carroll said, sitting at his junior quarterback sitting just a few feet away. "Why would you want to leave it so soon?"

That's the same thing USC began practice in the fall, four All-American players and four assistant coaches from the team that dominated Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl that night had moved on to better-paying opportunities.

The most telling loss of the lot was supposed to be offensive coordinator Tom Teague, the broad scientist whose schemes brought all that talent to life. We know now how that Please see LITKE, Page B2

Spurs drop Magic 110-85

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tim Duncan had 26 points, 12 rebounds and five blocks, Tony Parker added 20 points, and the San Antonio Spurs beat the Orlando Magic 110-85 Monday night.

Duncan and Rashean Thomas frustrated Orlando's Dwight Howard, who had a double-double by halftime but shot just 4-of-18 from the field. He finished with 13 points and 15 rebounds.

James Nelson scored 20 points and DeShawn Stevenson had 15 points and seven rebounds for Orlando.

It was the fourth straight win for the Spurs and fourth consecutive loss for the Magic.

Robert Horry scored 18 points, leading a bench that is a strength of the reigning champions.

The Spurs' reserves outscored the Magic's 45-21.

Mavericks 102, Bulls 94

CHICAGO — Dirk Nowitzki tied his season high with 35 points as Dallas held off Chicago.

Devin Harris finished with 13 points, a career-high 10 assists and tied a career best with five steals.

Marquis Daniels added 18 points, seven rebounds and seven assists, and Adrian Griffin — starting his second game after a small forward for the injured Josh Howard — delivered season highs with 14 points and 12 rebounds.

Dallas' Jason Terry sat out the second half with a sore right hamstring, while the Bulls lost Kirk Hinrich to a concussion about 3 minutes into the game, when he took an elbow to the face from a driving Nowitzki.

Ben Gordon scored 26 points and Latul Deng had another strong game, scoring 25 on 10-for-15 shooting.

He scored 28 in a victory Friday at Boston and 18 in a loss to Detroit the following night.

Timberwolves 91, Jazz 77

SALT LAKE CITY — Eddie Griffin had 14 points, 11 rebounds and a career-high eight blocks, and Wally Szczerbiak scored 26 points to lead Minnesota past Utah.

Kevin Garnett added 21 points and four assists as Minnesota won for the eighth time in 10 games, sweeping back-to-back games in Sacramento and Utah to improve to 10-6. The Wolves are 3-0 on a four-game road trip that wraps up Wednesday in Portland.

Minnesota closed the game with a 12-3 run, when Szczerbiak made two of his three 3-pointers to end any hopes of a jazz comeback. Mehmet Okur led Utah with 14 points and Matt Harpring had 10 rebounds.

Jarron Collins scored 10 points and Andrei Kirilenko had 10 points and four blocks.

San Antonio Spurs guard Manu Ginobili, (20) of Argentina, gets past Orlando Magic center Kelvin Cato (13) for a basket during the fourth quarter, Monday in Orlando, Fla.

Bochenski records hat trick in Senators win

SUNRISE, Fla. (AP) — Brandon Bochenski had his first career three-goal game for the NHL-leading Ottawa Senators won for the eighth time in nine games, beating the Florida Panthers 6-3 on Monday night.

Domnik Hasek made 26 saves to help the Senators improve to 21-1 overall and 17-0 when leading after two periods.

Ottawa leads the NHL in both goals and lowest goals allowed, scoring 115 and allowing only 52.

Bochenski's three goals gave the rookie five overall in 13 games.

It was his third game since being recalled Nov. 30 from Binghamton of the AHL.

Daniel Alfredson, Chris Neil and Vachar Vachar also scored for Ottawa. Niklas Hagman, Mike Van Biyn and Joe Newenewsky scored for Florida.

Rangers 3, Wild 1

NEW YORK — Petr Prucha scored two power-play goals for the Rangers, including the tiebreaker with 8:29 remaining.

Henrik Lundqvist made 22 saves to improve to 8-1-1 at home, two nights after allowing five goals on 21 shots in a loss at Washington that snapped New York's six-game winning streak.

Martin Straka added an empty-net goal for the Rangers.

Pascal Dupuis scored for Minnesota.

Coyotes 5, Thrashers 2

GLENDALE, Ariz. — Mike Johnson scored twice, including the winner with 15:43 remaining, to help Phoenix win for the sixth time in eight games.

Paul Mara, Zbynek Michalek and Mike Comrie added goals for the Coyotes. Martin Hossa scored his 20th career goal and Vachar Vachar also had a goal for the Thrashers, who lost their third straight in regulation and fourth in a row overall.

Tar Heel women upend UConn

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Ivory Latta had 21 points and five assists and No. 7 North Carolina dealt Connecticut its worst home loss in the Geno Aurilemma era, beating the eighth-ranked Huskies 77-54 Monday night.

The Tar Heels (8-0) were nearly unstoppable on offense, including their lead to 33 points and they shut down the Huskies (6-1) for long stretches. The loss was the earliest home setback for the Huskies in 15 years.

Before Monday, the worst home loss in Atrium's 21 years at UConn was a 20-point defeat to Villanova in 1986.

La'Tangela Atkinson finished with 18 points for North Carolina, and Camille Little added 17. Atkinson and Little combined for 17 rebounds and the Tar Heels outrebounced UConn 42-33.

Eriana Larkins finished with three blocks.

Ann Strother finished with 13 points and was the only UConn player to reach double digits.

No. 16 Oklahoma 83, No. 22 UCLA 78

NORMAN, Okla. — Courtney Paris scored 24 points and set an Oklahoma free-man record with 22 rebounds as the Sooners withstood a second-half comeback by UCLA.

The Bruins rallied from a 19-point, second-half deficit, closing to 78-77 with 1:14 left but couldn't complete the comeback.

No. 11 Illinois 75, Ark.-Little Rock 49

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Freshman reserve Lamar Smith hit 5-3 3-pointers and had 23 points for Illinois, which won its 25th straight game at Assembly Hall.

Smith was 8-of-9 from the field and had three assists and two steals.

Kevin Steinberg had 15 points for Little Rock, which led 32-22 with just over 15 minutes remaining.

Leinat figures to be among the top picks in April's NFL draft. He'll be remembered at USC for more than just being an exceptional player.

"I just know how much and how I'm going to miss him," center Ryan Kalil said.

"It's just been a blessing to play with someone like Matt," Kalil said. "He's a good person. He's done everything for our team. We love him. I'm going to be sad to see him go."

"I definitely will be remembered as one of the greatest quarterbacks to play college football."

Men No. 2 Texas 85, Rice 58

HOUSTON (AP) — Brad Buckman had 17 points and 11 rebounds. Lamarus Aldridge had 17 points and 10 boards as No. 2 Texas beat Rice 85-58 on Monday night at the Toyota Center.

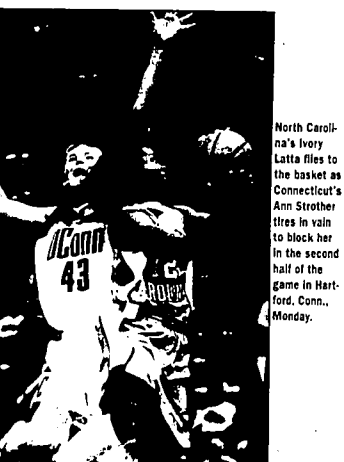

Daniel Gibson had 15 points, four rebounds and three assists for the Longhorns (8-0), who meet top-ranked Duke at East Rutherford, N.J. on Saturday.

No. 5 Louisville 53, Richmond 45

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Taquan Dean scored 20 of his season-high 30 points in the second half and Louisville rallied from a 10-point deficit at the Colonial Classic.

Louisville (4-0) avoided the upset behind Dean and a defense that held the Spiders (4-3) to 19 points and seven field goals over the final 20 minutes.

Kevin Steinberg had 15 points for Richmond, which led 32-22 with just over 15 minutes remaining.

North Carolina's Ivory Latta files to the basket as Connecticut's Ann Strother tries in vain to block her in the second half of the game in Hartford, Conn., Monday.

game open. James Augustine scored 12 points for Illinois (8-0), while Brian Randle and Warren Carter each added 11.

No. 19 Geo. Wash. 78, No. 21 Maryland 70

WASHINGTON — Reserve Maurice Rice scored a career-high 19 points and Mike Hall had 14 points and 12 rebounds for George Washington in the BB's Classic at the MCI Center. Danilo Pinick also scored 19 points for the Colonials (5-0), off to their best start since 1992.

George Washington has won four of the last six meetings between the local rivals, including two straight.

Chris McGray scored 21 points, and James Gist had 11 for Maryland (5-2).

the bug he gave me." Leinat said.

Leinat passed up the opportunity to become an instant millionaire last January by deciding to return to USC for his senior year rather than making himself available for the NFL draft.

"This is everything I dreamed of coming back," he said after USC's 66-19 triumph over cross-town rival UCLA last weekend. "It's been a perfect season."

Leinat struggled at times early in the season because, he said, he was putting too much pressure on himself.

"Perhaps there were other factors."

"There is a tremendous burden for him, and he's just a young pup trying to make it," Carroll said after the Notre Dame game.

Several weeks later, the coach said he and Leinat spoke about the player's outlook.

"Just shooting the breeze but we talked about the buildup and the hype and the pressure and the expectations," Carroll said. "It was really simple, the conversation went to remind him about how great of a football player and a competitor and factor he really is. There are going to be ups and downs and you are going to have to deal with it."

"Fortunately, what is notable is that Matt was able to regain his composure and his confidence the way he has wanted to, and his performance has been nothing but great since."

Even when times got a little tough, Leinat said he never regretted his decision to return to USC instead of turning pro.

"I'd rather be here than there right now," he said last week referring to the NFL. "I never think about the money, what I could do in the NFL. It's all well and good."

turned out, too.

The Trojans are averaging — averaging — 50 points a game and almost 600 yards. Their 82 touchdowns eclipsed a Pac-10 record that had stood for 76 years. When Leinat hands off to Reggie Bush sometime near the start of the Rose Bowl against Texas, it will mark the first time two Heisman Trophy winners played in the same backfield.

"One of the keys to finding consistency is not being knocked any which way by the hype and the buildup," Carroll said. "We've found a way of dealing with that and ... taking our best preparation into the big game."

Carroll does not mention his own role in all of this, how a guy thought to be too nice for the NFL, after unimpressive stints coaching the jets and Patriots could be a perfect fit back in the college game. It sounds corny when he talks about being part of something "special," but it translates into a shared responsibility that has brought out the best in just about everybody here's come in contact with at USC.

Assistant coaches are encouraged to take chances. Freshmen are encouraged to challenge upperclassmen for playing time.

The willingness to experiment that earned Carroll only derision in the NFL has brought him the kind of success — if not quite the paycheck — that seemed like it would always be beyond his reach.

"How can an American education become more relevant?" "We could start using the daily newspaper in our public schools." — Walter Cronkite

BRIEFLY IN MONEY

Lean manufacturing workshops offered

TWIN FALLS — Techelp, in association with the University of Idaho, will offer workshops in Twin Falls on the principles of lean manufacturing, a way America is competing against low-wage countries. The first workshop, focusing on the principles of lean manufacturing is today at the Red Lion Hotel. Future workshops are scheduled for Jan. 11 on food processing and Jan. 17 on manufacturing principals again. The cost is $295 for a firm's first registrant and $270 for each additional person. Contact Techelp at 361-6188 or nanalp@uidaho.edu for more details.

Idaho tech industry directory available

BOISE — Idaho's science and technology industry is detailed in a new directory released Friday by Idaho Commerce and Labor's Office of Science and Technology. The "Idaho Core Competencies Directory" lists more than 200 companies, research organizations and universities that are actively involved in imaging, power and energy, agriculture, biosciences, nanotechnology and new materials.

"The directory will serve as an important point of contact for those seeking resources or interested in doing business in Idaho," said Karl Hueller, executive director of the Idaho Office of Science and Technology.

It is available on the Office of Science and Technology's Web site at technology.idaho.gov, under the menu item "expertise."

Local bank's parent company offers stock

SANDPOINT — Intermountain Community Bancorp has completed the offering of $10 million of its common stock at a per share purchase price of $17. Jan Hiecker, president and CEO announced the offering.

Magie Valley Bank, which operates branches in Twin Falls and Gooding, is a division of Intermountain's banking subsidiary, Panhandle State Bank.

The offering was over-subscribed and, as a result, the company exercised its over-allotment option to accept an additional $2 million in subscriptions, Hiecker said.

The offering was made to the company's existing shareholders and to the public, with a priority to its current shareholders/customers.

Intermountain is headquartered in Sandpoint and had total assets of about $730 million as of Sept. 30.

Idaho delegation visits Mexico this week

BOISE — Nearly 70 individuals will comprise a delegation led by Gov. Dirk Kempthorne on a week-long trade mission to three Mexican cities. It began Dec. 3 and ends the 10.

The participants from 13 corporations, four public and private universities, an elementary school, five trade organizations, and one city will make stops in Monterrey, Mexico City, and Guadalajara.

Lee 2005 fiscal year reports to be Webcast

DAVENPORT, Iowa — Lee Enterprises officials will talk about the company's 2005 fiscal results and preview fiscal year 2006 in a live audio webcast at 4 p.m. Dec. 7 and 9 a.m. Dec. 8, Lee Enterprises' news. The Times-News. # Service sector grows in November

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The nation's service sector grew in November, but at a less-robust pace than in October and slightly slower than analysts expected, the Institute for Supply Management said Monday.

The Tempe, Ariz., group said its index of nonmanufacturing activity dropped to 58.5 in November from the 60th month before. The November reading was slightly below the 59 reading analysts had expected.

Readings of 50 and above indicate growth, while numbers below that indicate contraction. The index reading has averaged 60.5 over the past year, the institute said, but it fell as low as 53.3 as recently as September when businesses were grappling with the spike in oil prices following Hurricane Katrina.

The November growth marked the 32nd consecutive monthly expansion in the services sector of the economy.

Scott Brown, chief economist with Raymond James & Associates in St. Petersburg, Fla., said of November's report: "The headline number was less than expected, but the details were still pretty strong."

He said that the strength in new orders and employment "is consistent with continued economic growth and further Fed tightening."

The Federal Reserve has raised its key rate 12 times since June 2004 to its current level of 4 percent in an effort to keep a lid on inflation. The Fed's next meeting is Dec. 13, when another rate increase is expected.

Ralph G. Kaufman, chairman of the institute's survey committee, said in a statement that business activity and order backlogs increased at slower rates in November than in October, while new orders and employment increased at faster rates.

He said that comments from purchasing and supply agents, who are surveyed each month, were "generally positive."

But, he added, "there is still significant concern about the relatively high level of energy prices and its impact on freight costs and on the prices of other materials and services."

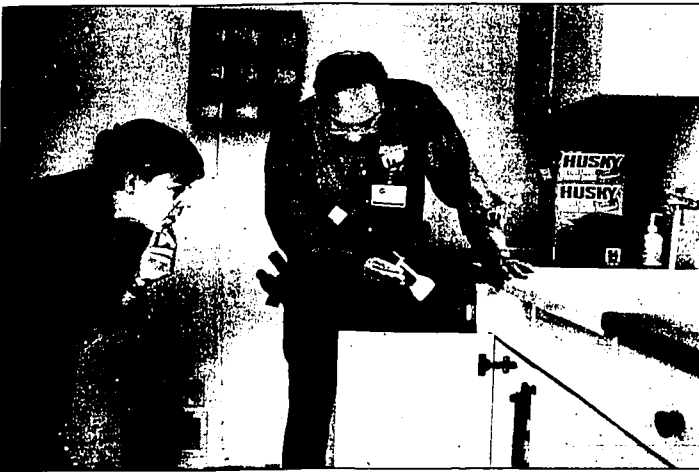

The group's index for companies' backlog of orders eased to 54 in November from 55 in October, while the index for prices also fell back to 74.2 in November from 78 the month before.

Among the categories showing expansion were new orders, up to 59.5 in November from 58.2 the month before, and employment, up to 57 in November from 52.9 in October.

Twelve service industries reported growth in November — mining, legal services, health services, business services, real estate, insurance, utilities, construction, public administration, wholesale trade, communication and miscellaneous services. Three reported no change — transportation, real estate and entertainment. Two indicated decreased activity — agriculture and finance, and banking.

BUYER'S REMORSE

Arthur Lazerow, president of Alban Home Inspection Service in Frederick, Md., points out problems with the sink to homeowner Vickie Lewis. Like many recent buyers, she purchased her house from sellers who would not accept offers requiring pre-sale inspections.

Forgoing a pre-purchase home inspection can be costly

By Kirstin Downey
The Washington Post

“I didn't buy it with my head; I bought it with my heart.”

— Vickie Lewis, who bought a $437,750 home in Maryland

I bought it from my heart,” Lewis said recently. The sale closed in July.

This week she had her first chance to get a full analysis from a home inspector, Arthur Lazerow, president of Alban Home Inspection Service in Frederick, Md. As she walked the property with Lazerow, who pointed to one problem after another, Lewis found out the cost of deferring the inspection until after the sale.

Back in April, Lewis wasn't alone in going forward with a home purchase without first securing a home inspector. But now, as the market appears to be cooling, home inspections are becoming more frequent, although not as much as work-starved inspectors would like.

From 2003 to early 2005, however, sellers were firmly in command of the market. Buyers desperately hid against each other for the opportunity to buy from the small pool of homes for sale. By some estimates from real estate agents and inspectors, more than half of buyers dropped the home-inspection contingency from their purchase contracts — even though many in the industry consider it an essential protection for buyers. A home-inspection contingency allows a buyer to walk away from the sales contract if the inspection uncovers major defects that the seller won't fix.

Buyers waived the company because otherwise they would lose bidding wars. Many sellers repeated such offers outright, viewing them as bothersome and potentially expensive if problems were uncovered.

“You were doomed if you included it,” said Diana Whitfield, an agent with Long & Foster in Burke, Va. “If you kept it in the offer, you didn't get the house.”

Whitfield said that many real estate agents urged home sellers to allow home inspections until they were “blue in the face,” trying to explain to them that an inspection also relieved them of the prospect of future liability for problems.

“So many people wanted to buy so few houses that they were waiving home inspections, appraisals, termite inspections — they were waiving everything but the kitchen sink,” said home inspector Reggie Marston, owner of

Beware of scams in online job hunting

By Patricia Kitchen
Newsday

MEVILLE, N.Y. — Online employment scanners are getting more sophisticated.

These phony employers are setting up dummy Web sites to make their operations look more legitimate. They're refining their virtual interview techniques to make candidates less suspicious. The scam itself — such as getting personal information, bank and credit card numbers, and an out-of-town account — is likely relegated to the small print in an employment contract.

These details come from Paul Dixon, executive director of the World Privacy Forum, a San Diego-based research and consumer education organization. According to her, “The risk landscape has really changed.”

But so, too, has a job hunter's ability to push back and ask more questions, while legitimate recruiters become sensitized to candidates' desires to guard private information.

Some employers are even eliminating the request for Social Security numbers on a job application. Some, such as Lloyd Staffing, allow temp candidates to fill in applications online, but they don't ask for a Social Security number until the face-to-face interview, says Nancy Schuman, vice president of marketing.

Still, those looking for employment continue to be taken in by scammers. Dixon, who hears from an average of two people a week who've been burned in some scheme, such as those that promise to raise the victimized job applicant's credit score by laundering stolen money through a bank or PayPal account.

Scammers tend to prey on those who seem naive about online usage as well as others looking to return to the work world in a home-based capacity. Still, Dixon heard recently from a man with a master's degree in finance saying he was taken for several thousand dollars. And yes, she says, he felt humiliated.

Verizon may sell or spin off its phone book

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Verizon Communications Inc. may sell or spin off its phone book and online directories business to raise cash as it nears completion of its purchase of MCI Inc. and invests billions in rewriting its telephone network to deliver cable TV and speedier Internet access.

The company, led with long-term debts of $34.4 billion, disclosed late Sunday it was reviewing alternatives for Verizon Information Services. The unit provides sales, publishing and other services for 1.750 directory books, including 1,200 Verizon-branded publications with a circulation of 121 million copies.

While Verizon did not say how much VIS might be worth, published reports said the business could be valued at more than $17 billion. The company said VIS had operating revenue of $3.6 billion in 2004, operates from Texas and employs 2,300 people. Analysts estimated the unit will show an operating profit of $1.8 billion for 2005.

“With the MCI merger expected to close shortly, this is the right time for Verizon to optimize our business mix and unlock value,” Verizon Chief Executive Ivan Seidenberg said in a statement.

Some analysts questioned the wisdom of giving up the strong, profitable cash flows from directories despite Verizon's need to bolster its finances as it replaces its copper phone lines with speedy fiber-optic cables and invests in its fast-growing Verizon Wireless venture.

The investment upgrading and integrating with MCI's national network to compete in the lucrative corporate services market.

Shares of Verizon, down more than 20 percent in the year, fell 16 cents to close at $31.71 Monday on the New York Stock Exchange.

MONEY TIP Plan ahead to avoid costly winter damage to your home

By Marshall Loeb
Knight Ridder News Service

NEW YORK — This year, as Jack Frost starts nipping at your nose, remember that he's also nipping at your house, which could force you to make some costly repairs.

Here are some ways to protect your home from winter damage: do to chill, snow, ice and wind.

Clean your gutters. Melting snow and ice should be able to flow freely to the ground. If the freezing water's path is disrupted — a condition called ice damming — it may seep into your house.

Threatening, damaged or dead tree branches. Accumulation of snow or ice on branches, or even strong winds, can cause weak limbs to break. Ice-covered limbs can be particularly damaging to your home or car — and dangerous to you.

Maintain the temperature. Keep your thermostat at 65 degrees or higher. Although you can save on your energy bill by holding your thermostat a few degrees lower than you normally might, temperatures below 65 degrees will make your pipes vulnerable to freezing.

Check your yard. If the weather's path is too cold, inspect your pipes for cracks, leaks or other damage. Learn how to shut the water off so that you can limit the damage in the event of a frozen or burst pipe.

Inspect heating systems. Be certain your home's heat sources — including the furnace, fireplaces and stoves — are working properly.

AROUND THE VALLEY

Twin Falls Police promote Hicks

TWIN FALLS — Staff Sgt. Matthew Hicks, a 12-year veteran with the Twin Falls Police Department, has been promoted to captain.

The promotion fills a vacancy that was created in September when Jim Munn, then a captain, was promoted to chief. Munn said Hicks will lead the Patrol Division. He succeeds Capt. Brian Pike, who was moved to the Administrative Services Division. Capt. Jim Munn will remain head of the Criminal Investigation Division.

Hicks started with the department as a patrolman in 1993. He has worked as motorcycle officer, trainer, investigator and SWAT team member. His most recent assignments as staff sergeant included SWAT team field commander, supervisor of detectives, internal affairs investigator and press information officer.

The promotion raises Hicks from Grade 12 to Grade 14 in the city's pay scale. Pay for Grade 12 employees ranges from $5,333 to $4,922 per month. Grade 14 employees make between $4,149 and $6,128 per month.

Orphanage fundraiser brings in $40,000

HURLEY — A group of Minicassia residents, who plan to spend part of their Christmas holiday in Tamauchi, Mexico, building a 70-bed orphanage, made progress Friday toward the goal of $50,000 needed to get the job done.

The Mansion of Angels auction and dinner fundraiser, held at the Hurley West Western Inn, brought in around $40,000, according to Warren Yardon, a member of the fundraising committee.

For anyone who missed the fundraiser but would still like to help with this project, Yardon said cash donations can be made at any branch of D. L. Evans Bank.

Anyone wishing to get involved in the Mansion of Angels project can call Yardon at 312-6211 or Jay Greenwall at 436-1529.

Saxophonists to entertain, educate

TWIN FALLS — Four world-renowned saxophonists will combine their talents in the final CSI Jazz Workshop of the fall semester at 6 p.m. today in the Fireside Lounge of the Student Union building.

Mark Watkins, director of Jazz Studies at Brigham Young University-Idaho, plays soprano and alto sax.

Brent Jensen, director of Jazz Studies at the College of Southern Idaho, plays alto sax. Tenor saxophonist Sandon Mayhew is director of Instrumental Jazz and Applied Saxophone at Albion State College of Idaho.

Baritone saxophonist Jon Gudmundson is director of jazz studies and assistant professor of saxophone at Utah State University.

Admission is free. Seating is limited.

Psychic fair comes to CSI on Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — A psychic fair will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday at the CSI Student Union.

Admission is free. Psychics will be on hand to talk about your future.

CONSTRUCTION

SHOSHONE — The following is the construction update for south-central Idaho through Friday. Motorists are reminded to slow down in highway construction zones.

U.S. 93 Twin Falls Alternate Route Stage 1: Traffic has been shifted from the old section of Pole Line Road to the new east-bound and west-bound lanes from west of Grandview Drive to just west of Washington Street.

New stop sign configurations and yield signs have replaced the four-way stop signs at the intersection of Pole Line Road and Washington Street. The temporary traffic control will be used until late spring. Because of the change, motorists are urged to use caution when approaching the intersection.

Most of the mainline construction work is finished, allowing the traffic to be rerouted onto the new concrete roadway. Crews will continue to work on the project and reconstruction of the Perrine Coulee Bridge throughout the winter. They also will prepare for construction on the section from just west of Washington Street to Blue Lakes Boulevard and the concrete intersection of Pole Line Road and Washington Street.

As part of the winter construction, Washington Street north of Pole Line will be closed until early spring. This closure is necessary to construct the Washington and Pole Line Road intersection.

A section of the old Pole Line Road from Washington Street to Blake Street will be kept open for nearby residents of Villa Del Rio and 106 Lagos. Motorists must use Canyon Creek Road to access businesses and all other residences located on Washington Street North.

Utility trenching continues at the intersection of Pole Line Road and Fallmore Street. Flaggers will direct traffic through the intersection. Some lane closures should be expected along with delays of up to 10 minutes. The use of alternate routes is encouraged.

Idaho 77, Declo to Albion: This road construction project begins five miles south of Declo and continues to Albion (mileposts 18-23). A width restriction of 12 feet is in effect. Any oversized vehicles will be required to detour using Idaho 81 from Declo to Malta, and then Idaho 77 from Malta to Albion. Delays of up to 10 minutes are possible. The speed limit is 35 mph and this is reduced to one lane. This project, expected to be complete by spring 2006, will create a smoother and safer road surface.

U.S. 93, Salmon Falls Creek Canal Bridge: Crews are working on the U.S. 93 Salmon Falls Creek Canal Bridge near Hollister. This is a redress to a previous project to replace the existing bridge in conjunction with a future widening of U.S. 93 in the area.

Motorists can expect intermittent delays of up to 10 minutes. Flaggers will direct motorists through the work zone at milepost 25, about two miles south of Hollister. The speed limit will be reduced to 50 mph.

UP THE ROAD

Bruce Stephens, superintendent of the Twin Falls Street Department, poses for a portrait Friday in one of the city's front-end loaders. Stephens has been working with the street department since 1974.

Street department supervisor started as a shovel operator

By Terry Smith
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After 31 years with the Twin Falls Street Department, Bruce Stephens is finally the boss. He was officially named superintendent in October after serving as interim head since April.

Stephens knows the department inside and out. He started as a shovel operator filling potholes in 1974. Since then, he's done about every job at the department: operating graders, loaders, dump trucks, sand trucks and whatever else the department uses to keep the roads in driving condition.

"Everything but sweeper," he said on Friday. "I've run it down to the fire shop, but I don't think I've ever really run it — but I don't think I'm missing anything."

His daily routine these days involves paperwork more than equipment operation.

"I'm not sure that's such a good thing," he said. "But it was an opportunity to step up a little bit. It's another change and another challenge. The way this town is growing, you've got to have a little change."

Stephens has deep roots in Twin Falls. He and his wife of 21 years raised two sons here. One still lives in the city and the other one lives in Wisconsin.

"Twin Falls is a great place to raise kids and a great place to live. It's a positive place," he said.

Stephens said being a street department superintendent can occasionally be a thankless job. "Sometimes it seems like everything's the street department's fault," he said.

Take snow for example. "Mother Nature gave it to everybody, but it seems to always find its way into the street — it's just crazy stuff," he said. "But the job also has its gratifying moments. 'We've had a lot of thank-yous. You're to thank people's calls in a timely manner and people appreciate it,'" he said.

Stephens said his most memorable time with the street department was the winter of 1965-66, when an abundance of moisture and frost "broke some of the streets to pieces. We had big mud holes. We had trucks stuck in the middle of the roads. That year was really something."

With 11 employees, some 200 miles of city streets, thousands of street signs, numerous large pieces of equipment, storm sewers and so forth, Stephens has plenty of paperwork to keep him busy. But he still likes to get outside for the real work — even if it means operating a shovel.

"There's a shared on everything we operate — you can't get away from that," he said.

Gooding revamps CAFO rules

By Michelle Dunlop
Times-News writer

GOODING — Commissioners in Gooding have a vision for their county: fewer cows on more land.

A month of wrangling over how Gooding County permits large dairies and feedlots will soon reach an end. The county's revised ordinance for confined animal feeding operations increases the space between dairies, and neighboring residents, abolishes the use of a certain waste systems and halves the density of animals per acre. The new plan will be up for public comment in February, a county official said on Monday.

In March, the commissioners cited concerns over water quality and public health when they passed a 120-day moratorium on new or expanded CAFOs in the county. Commissioners set out to determine the number of cows already in Gooding County and to revise the county's ordinance. In July, commissioners voted 2-1 to extend the moratorium another 90 days to finish revising the ordinance.

However, the Idaho Dairy-mens Association threatened to sue the county unless the commissioners lifted the moratorium, saying the extension was illegal. The association also asserted that the moratorium had a "harsh economic impact" on some of its members in the county who intended to apply for expansions or new dairies.

The proposed CAFO ordinance contains several changes:

- The maximum density of animals is capped at five animal units per acre, down from 10 animal units per acre.
- Applicants need to file their nutrient management plans with the county.
- No "flush" type waste systems will be permitted.
- With the exception of aquaculture CAFOs, any CAFO built outside an agricultural zone cannot have more than one animal unit per acre.
- CAFO owners shall provide to Gooding County a performance bond in the amount approved by the board of commissioners.
- Commissioner Tom Bingham suggested that, to avoid confusion, the county remind dairymen that the number on their permit reflects animal units, not the actual number of animals permitted.

In 2003, the county followed the example of neighboring counties as well as the advice of the Natural Resources Conservation Service and changed to the animal unit equivalency method, said Judy Daubner, administrator for the planning and zoning committee.

Animal units correspond with the animal's size — a milking or dry cow counts as 1.4 animal units while a calf under three months of age counts for only .4 animal units.

High school spirit rock gets doused in politics

By Joshua Palmer

TWIN FALLS — Students and staff at Twin Falls High School returned to classes on Monday morning to find their rock painted orange, but it wasn't painted that way to support Jerome High School. It was covered in a thick coat of orange paint and black letters reading, "Support Our Teachers."

"It was that way when we came in this morning," said Ben Allen, Twin Falls High School principal. "It was the first time I've seen something like this."

The rock — which is normally reserved for students who want to express their school pride with spray paint — was painted sometime over the weekend. So far, nobody has claimed responsibility.

Allen said the most part — students have been in-olved in the teacher contract debate. He said the high school teachers do not discuss the negotiations in school.

"Other than wearing their orange ribbons, they have really kept it out of the classroom and remained very professional."

Allen said. The high school staff will leave the rock as it is — although students are free to paint what they want on the rock. "We only get involved if it gets out of hand, or somebody puts something really bad on it," Allen said.

Elizabeth (Beth) Roddick Hardy

Elizabeth (Beth) Roddick Hardy, 84, died unexpectedly on Dec. 2, 2005, at home after a year-long battle with a malignant brain tumor.

Beth was born May 26, 1917, in Brownville, N.Y., to Harrison and Elizabeth Roddick. Her family moved to Kenilworth, Ill., soon after her birth where her father was director of the Chicago office of McKinsey and Company. In 1958, her family moved to Yakima, Wash., where her father purchased radio station KTFH. Beth graduated from Eisenhower High School in Yakima in 1935, and enrolled in the University of Washington, graduating in 1939 with a BA in English.

She was deeply involved in the activities of her family and very close to her daughter's friends, influencing many of them with her wise counsel, honest advice and calm and understanding presence. They remain close to her many years later.

After moving to Twin Falls, Beth became administrator for an international scientific journal for Blackwell Science, Oxford, England, an ideal job which she enjoyed and performed expertly. She traveled widely with her husband to many countries in Europe, to Chile and Australia, and to scientific meetings throughout the U.S.

She was a life-long dog lover and owner and enjoyed training and all kinds of dog activities. She also had a life-long love of literature and was very well read and an excellent writer. She was responsible for educating her children in a science major, in classic and modern literature and improving his writing skills, plus editing his scientific papers.

Beth was a very beautiful, intelligent and charming woman to whom people were drawn, especially children and young people. She set high standards for herself and was a high-achiever, but was always kind, open, unpretentious, generous and tolerant. She was very sensitive to the needs and feelings of others, putting their needs before her own. She was gracious and, at ease dealing with people from all levels of society and had many friends from childhood, high school, college and her adult life with whom she diligently kept in touch and who were devoted to her. She made many new friends in Idaho and valued them greatly. During her illness, her sisters, family and her best friend for 45 years, Marea Robinson of Friday Harbor, Wash., rallied to her side.

Staff at the Mountain States Tumor Institute and the Colorado Neurological Institute deserve much credit for their kind and caring treatment.

Beth was preceded in death by her parents.

She is survived by her devoted husband of 35 years, Ron; two sisters, Hawley Roddick, Santa-Barbara, Calif., and Mary Roddick and husband, Mike, Hausssee, Inuvialut, Wash.; daughters, Anna E. Hardy of Bellevue, Wash., and Clare A. Redding of Rancho Santa Margarita, Calif.; their husbands, Steven Shiltman and Shad Hedinger; four grandchildren, Quinn and Andrew Shiltman, and Briana and Caitlan Redding; mother-in-law, Janet Hardy of Coquille, Wash.; sisters-in-law, Joan Hardy and Judy Hardy; and brothers-in-law, Andrew Hardy and Greg Buggerone, all of Seattle; and nieces and nephews, Luke Steinhilber, Colby, and Andrew Grande, Amy and Ally Hardy and Leah and David Buggerone, all of whom loved her deeply.

Her impact on her extended family was amplified by the comment of a young niece who, when told after spilling her milk not to worry about it, nobody is perfect, responded with, "What Aunt Beth!"

A memorial service for Beth will be held at a later time. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary, "Chapel by the Park."

The family suggests memorials to the Colorado Neurological Institute, they may be contacted through www.chc21.org.

Colo., Kyle (Angelina) and Jaron Wilson of Boise, Idaho, and Kade (Kris) and Abigail and Marcus Wilson of Portland, Ore.; three sisters, Joan (Roland) Caler of Lake Mead, Nev., Zeda (William) of Gunned, Kan., and Fay Blom of Pittsburg, Kan., and many nieces and nephews.

A funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 8, at Sunset Funeral Chapel, 130 North Ave., in Boise. Visitation will be held starting at 9 a.m. until the time of the service Thursday. The Rev. Jerry Schneider of the Roper Assembly of God Church will officiate.

Vocalist will be Andrew Morris, pastor of the First Christian Church in Gooding. Organist is Karen Winkler.

Interment will be at the West End Cemetery immediately following the service. The family suggests memorials in honor of Jess be made to the Bull Quick Hospice or a QBU or charity of the donor's choice.

Cleo Jackson

Jackson on June 26, 1946, in Winnemucca, Nev.

Mr. Jackson was employed in construction and he and Cleo lived in various locations in the U.S. prior to moving to Hagerman where she had resided for the past 40 years. He preceded her in death in 1987. She was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Cleo was one of 11 children.

Survivors include a brother, Lynn McArthur of Santa Barbara, Calif.; two sisters, Carol VanZile of Placerville, Calif., and Marjorie Land of Lake Charles, La.; and numerous nieces and nephews.

A funeral will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 7, 2005, at the LDS Church in Hagerman. Burial will be in the Hagerman Cemetery.

A funeral for Luke will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17, 2005, at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The family wishes to express their heartfelt thanks to all who have given us their support and love.

All services and arrangements are under the direction of the Park's Magic Valley Funeral Home and Crematory of Twin Falls, Idaho.

Edgar Clinton Culbertson

BOISE — Edgar Clinton Culbertson, 98, of Boise, a former Village Valley resident, died Sunday, Dec. 4, 2005, at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center.

He was born Dec. 6, 1906, in Bow, N.D., to Joseph and Ella Burke Culbertson. The family lived in North Dakota until 1910 when they moved to Dietrich, Idaho— to homesteaded 80 acres. In 1919, the family moved to Pennsylvania and in 1922 Edgar bought a 1922 Model-T Ford and went back to Dietrich, a seven day trip. Edgar worked with cattle and took care of the ranch after his father's injury. He cared for his mother and helped put his sisters through school.

He enjoyed ice-skating and dancing and would skate the 18 miles to Richfield for dances. Edgar also hauled loads of hay on sleds on the canals during the winter. During the depression, he traded eggs and meat for items to help maintain his sister's room and board while they finished school.

He built a new home for his mother in Dietrich and in 1945 moved to Shoshone where he drove truck and did custom combining and later ran the stockyards for a time. He was considered a "jack of all trades" and did what was needed to make a living.

Around 1958, Edgar moved to Twin Falls and went to work feeding and hauling cattle. He met Ruby Mae Stoddard while she was working in her sister's restaurant. She needed some repairs done on her home and Edgar offered to help. Ruby was an excellent cook and dancer and they began a courtship and were married on Aug. 28, 1961, at Payette. They moved to Kimberly where they lived until Ruby's illness in 1980 when they went to Boise. She died on Dec. 17, 1980. Edgar continued to live in Boise until June of 1996 when he went to Port Orchard, Wash., to be near his step-daughter. Early in 1997, Edgar returned to Boise and has been a resident of Heritage Retirement Center since.

Survivors include his nephews, Warren B. Nelson of Idaho City, Idaho; stepsons, Blair Stoddard of Boise and Val Stoddard of Pocatello; step-daughters, Arden Sutton of Anchorage, Alaska, and Betty Fenwick of Deming, N.M.; and a step daughter-in-law, Ida Bonnell of Washington, Ariz.

A cryptside service will be conducted at 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 8, 2005, at Sunset Memorial Park. Services are under the direction of White Mortuary, "Chapel by the Park."

Cleo was born Aug. 9, 1918, in Chester, Idaho, the daughter of Henry and Bernice Wallace McArthur. At the age of 5, the family moved to Melba, Idaho, where she grew up and graduated from Melba High School. She later married Elmer Albert

Luke Jones

TWIN FALLS — Luke Jones, 11, of Twin Falls, passed away Thursday, Dec. 1, 2005, at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Luke was born Oct. 2, 1962, in Livingston, Mont., the son of James and Shirley Jones. He grew up and attended schools in Montana and became a computer technician at Dell Computers. On Nov. 4, 1989, in Havre, Mont., he married his sweetheart, Lori Evans. To this union were born two children, Courtney and Casandra.

Luke was a tender soul who touched the lives of everyone he met in some small but special way. We will miss his smile, his hugs, but most of all his humor. He loved and was much loved in return.

Surviving Luke is his loving wife of 16 years, Lori of Twin Falls; daughters, Courtney and Casandra Jones of Twin Falls; his father, James Jones of Challis, Idaho; grandfather, Harold Egger of Livingston, Mont.; three brothers, James Jones of Sacramento, Calif., Matthew Jones of Oregon, Mark Jones of Challis, Idaho; and one sister, Becky Carstenson of Challis, Idaho.

His mother, Shirley Jones, preceded him in death.

A funeral for Luke will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17, 2005, at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The family wishes to express their heartfelt thanks to all who have given us their support and love.

Family sues Minnesota county over Groene slayings

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The estates of two people who prosecuted a slaying were killed by Joseph Edward Duncan III sued Becker County, Minn., on Monday for releasing the registered sex offender a few weeks before Brenda Groene and Mark McKenzie were slain in their Idaho home.

Authorities contend Duncan killed the couple so he could marry Shasta Groene, 8, and Dylan Groene, 6, in Idaho.

The lawsuit, filed in federal court in Idaho, contends Becker County was negligent in releasing Duncan on just $15,000 bail on a child molestation charge, and negligent in not monitoring him closely.

The lawsuit also seeks to prevent Duncans from profiting from his alleged crimes from book or movie deals.

"This horrible, horrible thing happens again and again in our middle society," said Russell Van Camp, who is representing the estates of Groene and McKenzie, and McKenzie's brother, Steve McKenzie, who lives in Washington.

John Iverson of Bloomington, Minn., who is representing Becker County, said he had not seen the lawsuit and could not comment. But he was surprised the civil lawsuit was filed in Idaho.

But the lawsuit said Idaho was the proper venue because all the parties involved lived in different states, and the slayings occurred in Idaho.

Duncan, a Tacoma native who spent much of his adult life in prison for raping a boy, had lived in Fargo, N.D., since his release from prison in 2000.

Hannah Stauts, 22, will be Idaho's youngest mayor when she takes office in Stanley in January.

At 22, woman is Idaho's youngest elected mayor

STANLEY (AP) — Idaho's youngest mayor takes power in January. A 22-year-old who's worried that high rents could force her, like other workers in the central Idaho recreation town, to start living in a tent.

Hannah Stauts won the $250-a-month, part-time job on Nov. 8. The 39-31 winning vote represented 69 percent of registered voters and overcame a trend that saw the last two mayoral elections decided with a coin toss.

Her victory will be officially recognized by the City Council on Dec. 14.

She takes the helm in January of the town surrounded by the Sawtooth Mountains that draws hordes of summer tourists but sees its population shrink to about 40 in the winter. Besides presiding over council meetings, Stauts' other jobs include working as a waitress and bartender.

"Stanley is the greatest place on Earth I've seen so far," Stauts told the Idaho Statesman. "If you love to recreate or just sit and look at something beautiful, this is the spot."

Residents of the town are known to voice their opinions, loudly at the council meetings.

"I think Hannah will bring more decorum to the process because she's a woman," said Rocky Lames, the city clerk and treasurer. "She's from Idaho, and people are impressed with her. They say they like the way she handles herself. You don't hear that very often around here."

Stauts is a Boise native who majored in political science at Boise State University. She was president of the women's lacrosse and intercollegiate skiing teams at BSU. The last three summers she worked on a Forest Service fire crew.

She grew up whitewater rafting and keeps oars beside the woodpile for her living room in her rented log cabin between a pizza parlor and the town library.

One of her top priorities is affordable housing, noting that if she can't get the lease extended on her cabin she could end up joining many other summer residents living in their cars or camping.

"We're limited on where we can build because we're surrounded by state and federal land," Stauts said. "We're going to have to negotiate to try to get some of it to build homes for people who live here. Rents are high. People are camping out, living out of their cars."

She would like to bring back summer events that attracted hundreds of tourists in the past. She also would like to see an amphitheater using the mountains surrounding the town as a backdrop.

"I'm in favor of keeping Stanley as close as we can to the hearts of the people who live here," she said.

Stauts drives a 1969 cream-colored Ford pickup around town, but instead of the standard rifle in the rear view-mirror she has hung a lacrosse stick.

Teens arrested in mailbox case

REXBURG (AP) — Three teenagers were arrested last week on charges of blowing up mailboxes.

The three 16-year-old boys are charged with malicious injury to property.

They were arrested after a detective was called to the scene of a REXBURG mailbox explosion, and noticed a gray pickup truck parked nearby that he had heard described as being at the site of earlier mailbox explosions.

The truck was stopped, and the three occupants admitted blowing up the mailboxes, said REXBURG Police Chief Lynn Archibald. They also gave police the names of two other people involved, Archibald said.

Vehicles will be limited to a maximum width of 14 feet through the construction zone.

This stage of the $1.6 million reconstruction project is expected to be completed by February. Idaho Construction Co. of Kimberly is the project contractor. Idaho State Police officers will be present at the construction site to monitor and enforce speed limits as part of Idaho's enhanced work zone safety program.

Idaho 81, Bridge Replacements: Crews are replacing the existing J&H Canal bridges on Idaho 81 (milepost 23-25) one mile east of Declo. Vehicles traveling through the work zone are limited to a maximum width of 12 feet and length of 45 feet. Vehicles exceeding those restrictions must detour using Idaho 77 from Declo to I-84 at exit 216, and I-84 to Idaho 81 at exit 228. Flaggers will be used periodically. Motorists should expect delays of up to 10 minutes.

The $1.4 million project to extend the life of the bridge is expected to be complete in May. Cannon Builders Inc. of Blackfoot is the project contractor.

Helping hands bring holiday cheer to homebound neighbors

DEAR ABBY: The holiday season has begun and most people have started planning for family feasts, gifts, home decorating and travel. Not everyone, however, will be able to leave home, enjoy a holiday trip, or be with family and friends. For many people who are frail, elderly, sick and have disabilities, the holidays mean staying home without the festivities enjoyed by others.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

A big robe or quilt can be a welcomed gift for someone whose home is not well-insulated or heated when the temperature falls.

Many elderly people find it difficult to ask for something, valuing their self-reliance and independence, even if it means ignoring a need. If you think a homebound neighbor could use assistance or a special gift, please reach out and make the effort to help.

—LINDA MASON, VESTING HILLS ASSOCIATION OF TEXAS

DEAR LINDA: I hope your suggestions will stimulate people to think about how they can help those who have difficulty helping themselves. By your terrific suggestions, I would like to add: Loneliness is the ultimate poverty. If you can, spend some time visiting. For someone who lives alone the holidays can be a constant reminder of family or friends who are no longer living. A little company can go along way toward easing these feelings of loneliness.

And if you're feeling lonely yourself, consider volunteering to deliver Meals on Wheels. Holiday vacations can create a shortage of the volunteers needed to bring meals and human contact to homebound elderly and those who are sick and disabled. Besides delivering food, the drivers can also provide much-needed holiday cheer. There is no greater "upper"—than bringing joy to others.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a wonderful guy I'll call Earl for about six months. A woman he dated for a long time died unexpectedly. She had left him in a coma before I met him, and until recently, I've claimed he "hated" her.

"Now that she's gone, Evan talks only about how much he loved her, how beautiful she was, and how he wishes she had never left him. I'm trying hard to be supportive, but it's difficult to listen to — and, frankly, I'm somewhat hurt by all of this. How do you recommend I handle it?"

—DISTRESSED IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR DISTRESSED: Your boyfriend is grieving not only for someone he cared about, but also for a lost fantasy. You're here, she's gone, so my advice to you is to be patient. Let him grieve until you've "had it up to here," and then gently (do not gloat when you do it) ask him to "rethink" you why his relationship with her ended. The answer might bring him back to reality.

2,000 silkworms give up their lives, cocoons to make just one pound of silk

To make just one pound of silk, about 2,000 silkworms give up their cocoons — and their lives.

This day in history: On Dec. 6, 1957, America launched its first space rocket, hastily assembled as an answer to the Soviets' success with Sputnik. The first Vanguard missile rose about 4 feet into the air before sinking back to the ground and exploding. Of the next 10 rockets in the series, launched every few months, only three would survive successfully orbit satellites.

In the native Hawaiian language, lonololu means "sheltered harbor."

Vandals set fire to Christmas goat

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Vandals have again torched a giant straw Christmas goat in a town in central Sweden.

The goat has gone up in smoke so frequently that it's almost become a Christmas tradition.

Merchants in Gävle, 90 miles north of Stockholm, began erecting the goat in 1966 to mark the holiday season. Since then, just 10 of the 25-foot-high goats have survived.

Most have been burned, though one was hit by car and another was damaged by fireworks.

Police spokeswoman Margareta Slander said officers received a call Saturday night to report that the goat was ablaze.

"In just a couple of minutes only a sooty wooden skeleton remained," she said. There were no immediate suspects, but Olafsson said that one of two men seen running from the scene was wearing a Father Christmas mask.

The vandals are seldom caught, but in 2001, the goat was set on fire on Dec. 23 by a 51-year-old visitor from Cleveland, Ohio. The culprit, Lawrence Jones, was convicted and spent 18 days in jail.

Firefighters clear the smoking remains of the giant straw goat in the town of Gävle, Sweden, on Saturday.

Husen Mohammed Yusuf, 26. The two sets of parents were good friends, the Star said.

But the families lost touch with each other until seven years ago, and agreed to fulfill their pledge. Their children took their vows on Sunday in Balikpapan, a town outside Kuala Lumpur.

The Star said the two sisters, born 46 seconds apart, were medical students. The older groom is a clerk in Malaysia's central bank, Bank Negara, and the younger, born four minutes later, is a businesswoman.

The couples wore identical dresses, but one pair was decked in yellow while the other in purple. The twin best men, Mohammed Ibrahim and Mohammed Hafiz Yaakob, 20, wore identical dresses, and could be told apart only because one of them has a twin beard.

Man absconds with hot air balloon and trailer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Authorities have arrested a man

they say stole a hot-air balloon from a Knox County home before breaking into another house and forcing the family to flee.

Gregory Allen Williams, 40, was caught by police Friday night as he left the home where authorities say he demanded a meal from a couple. The couple and daughter hid in a closet and called authorities on her cell phone, said Loudoun County Assistant Chief Deputy Jimmy Davis.

The hot-air balloon, which belonged to James Hood, was packed in a trailer and parked in his driveway Friday morning when a neighbor saw someone hitchhike to a vehicle and take off, authorities say.

Knox County Sheriff Tim Hutchison said the suspect eventually ditched his vehicle and fled to a trailer in a field in Loudoun County and fled into nearby woods.

Hood recovered his trailer and balloon, valued at nearly $30,000. Authorities say Williams was already wanted on a probation violation warrant and now faces felony theft charges.

Colorado approves 1,800 new gas wells

DENVER (AP) — A state panel approved a plan Monday that will allow energy companies to drill about 1,800 new natural gas wells on Colorado's eastern plains over the next 20 years, despite concerns it will cause big headaches for homeowners in one of the nation's fastest-growing regions.

The Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission approved a plan that will allow three gas companies to drill additional wells in 27 townships in the heavily populated Front Range north of Denver.

It excluded drilling in Longmont, Broomfield, Berthoud, Loveland, Hudson and Windsor, but said there was nothing that could be done to help Greeley, which is located in the center of the state's natural gas boom and was recently listed as the fastest-growing area in the United States by the Census Bureau.

Commissioner Brian Cree warned his colleagues that decisions about drilling should not be based on the economics of the day.

"We don't want to change our rules based on the price of oil. In three years, two years, it could be very different from what we're seeing today," he said. "It could be better or worse. I just think we need to be careful doing too much."

The region sits atop a highly productive gas field known as the Greater Wattenberg Area, which covers about 1.5 million acres in all. Kerr-McGee Rocky Mountain Corp., EnCana Oil and Gas USA and Noble Energy Production Inc. received permission to drill a total of eight wells per quarter-section, or 160 acres.

The state previously limited well drilling in the Greater Wattenberg Area, trying to promote shared drilling projects. The plan had limited success.

Randy Feuerstein, a spokesman for one of the expanded drilling, said the new rules will drive up costs for developers, who will have to set aside land for new wells and drilling equipment.

IDAHO/WEST

37 years later, pilots will be buried at Arlington

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The remains of two Air Force pilots killed when their jet slammed into Mount Rainier in 1968 will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery today.

Lt. Col. Ivan O'Dell and Col. Wilfred Crutchfield died while flying from Mather Air Force Base in California to McClellan Air Force Base in Washington state.

The wreckage of their T-33 trainer was found in October 2004 by hikers after it moved with a glacier down the side of the volcano from 10,900 feet to 6,700 feet.

Marjorie O'Dell, who has lived in Idaho Falls for 12 years, was contacted in November 2004 when her husband's remains had been found. She and her two daughters, Donna Woolstenhulme of Victor and Kaitlin Thomas of Chicago, plan to attend the services at Arlington National Cemetery.

Marjorie and Ivan O'Dell were married 22 years.

"He was so good-natured," she told the Post Register newspaper here.

During his 26-year career, Ivan O'Dell flew hundreds of missions in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Bronze Star and Air Medal with 21 Oak Leaf Clusters.

Investigation reports of the crash said that Crutchfield piloted the airplane, which had been handed off to air controllers in Seattle during its flight north.

Marjorie O'Dell said that a friend later told her an inexperienced controller gave the pilots wrong directions, and that Ivan O'Dell had radioed that, "Your instructions do not correspond to my instruments" before radio contact was lost.

Woolstenhulme was 12 when her father died.

"For me, there was closure a long time ago," she said. "It was all pretty confusing when I was 12. All the services they had then are kind of a blur."

COMPLETE BRAKE SERVICE

When its time for brake service, consider this:

No system on your vehicle is more important than the brakes. Proper service includes attention to the entire system, requiring precision equipment and trained, qualified technicians.

You see, your brake system can only be as reliable as its weakest component, and there's a lot more to brakes than just the shoes or pads. Sure, it's easy to see when shoes and pads are ready for replacements, but what about the rest of the system?

—During normal, everyday driving, the brakes generate extreme heat and pressure, which takes a toll on hydraulic parts, seals, springs, and drums and rotors. Even the brake fluid breaks down over time, due to moisture and other internal contaminants. All of these things affect the dependable operation of your brake system.

So, when you're ready for brakes, you can count on us. It just doesn't make sense to settle for less than Complete and Professional Brake System service. At Les Schwab, we won't take short cuts with your safety.

Arizona board OKs takeover of schools

Financial control of district shifts hands in secluded polygamous community

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The state Board of Education invoked a new Arizona law for the first time Monday by approving the financial takeover of a school district in a secluded community dominated by a polygamist sect.

The board voted 8-1 to approve a settlement between the Colorado City Unified School District and state officials to immediately place the district under the financial oversight of an appointed receiver.

Colorado City and neighboring Hildale, Utah, are dominated by the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, a sect that practices polygamy and broke away from the mainline Mormon church.

The district's teachers went without pay for two months last year, and state officials' receivership petition alleged that students and taxpayers were harmed by gross financial mismanagement, including the purchase of a nearly $200,000 airplane and questionable dealings in hiring, buildings, equipment and contracts.

With the board's action, "the infrastructure is there now to right the ship," Attorney General Terry Goddard said.

Under a consent agreement approved by the board, the district's superintendent and business manager will step down by Dec. 31 and the district will continue to use an outside financial consultant to keep its operations going until the receiver submits a financial improvement plan to the state board.

Goddard filed the receivership petition on behalf of state officials on Aug. 12, the first day allowed under a new state law enacted last spring by the Arizona Legislature because of the Colorado City district's financial problems.

The district initially fought the receivership petition and said many of its money problems resulted from circumstances outside its control, but it surrendered last week when it agreed to be placed in receivership.

District officials didn't want to risk interruption of students' education, felt the new law made approval of the receivership petition a virtual slam-dunk and effectively lost the ability to oppose receivership when key administrators said they would invoke their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination and would refuse to testify during a receivership hearing, said Matthew Wright, an attorney for the school district.

It essentially left us with no witnesses," Wright told reporters after the meeting. "But the most important thing is that kids need to be educated."

Goddard said the district is $2 million in debt due to its insurer. Wright said the $2 million figure is too high but he said he wasn't sure of the correct debt figure.

"They are operating in the black and within budget," Wright told the board earlier.

While the receiver's powers center on financial matters, board members received assurances that they would receive reports on the district's educational situation as well.

The district's board members remain in charge of educational policy matters, through the five-member board now has two vacancies, Goddard said.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Horman said the district was treated fairly. "The only regret is that it took so long but we needed to get legislation passed," he said.

High court turns down Utah appeal

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court turned down an appeal seeking to reinstate laws in Utah blocking a nuclear waste repository.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals nullified Utah's laws last year, saying it didn't have authority to regulate nuclear waste.

Utah appealed to the Supreme Court, but today it refused to hear the case. Utah is trying everything it can to stop an Indian reservation about 45 miles southwest of Salt Lake City from accepting a repository for spent nuclear fuel rods.

Utah still is fighting in court. Last month, the state asked a federal appeals court in Washington to overturn a September decision by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission approving the repository.

Board of Education member A. I. Mendoza, a charter school administrator from Tucson, cast the sole dissenting vote. None of the board members explained their votes.

The district's enrollment is now reported at approximately 300 students, down from a peak of 1,200 in 2000. Its work force of 72 is down from more than 100 a year ago, according to the MoHAVE County school superintendent's office.

The receivership petition is one of several fronts in which Arizona and Utah authorities are placing pressure on the leadership of the fundamentalist church. The church was formed by former members of the Mormon church, which has publicly disavowed polygamy since 1896.

Arizona has decertified two Colorado City police officers because they practice polygamy, and Goddard has requested a federal civil rights review of Colorado City's entire police department.

In Utah, the state attorney general this year obtained a court order removing fugitive church leader Warren Jeffs and other church officials from management of the United Effort Plan Trust, which holds the real estate assets of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

TS No. 05-17088 Doc ID # 00047193642005N Title Order No. 58106193 Parcel No. RP11517E20750A. The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, payable in lawful money of the United States. At the main entrance to Alliance Title & Escrow, 1411 Falls Avenue East, Suite 1315 Twin Falls, ID 83301, on 03/18/2005 at 10:00am, (recognized local time) for the purpose of foreclosing that certain Deed of Trust recorded 12/27/1999 in Book 10 of Official Records of Twin Falls County, state of Idaho. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purpose of compliance with Idaho Code, Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of the property is 3200 North, Twin Falls, ID 83301 is sometimes associated with said real property. Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or a cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances as to the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 08/01/2005 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter, plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 8.00% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $10,814.34, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorney's fees, Trustee's fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. Notice is hereby given that this firm is attempting to collect a debt and any information obtained will be used for that purpose, and that the debt may be disputed. The above grantors are named to comply with Section 45-1506(f)(4) Idaho Code. No representation is made that they are, or are not, presently responsible for this obligation. Dated: 11/28/2005 Recon Trust Company, N.A., 177 Countywide Way, LAN2-88, Lancaster, CA 92529-1821 Successor Trustee Darlene Reel, Assistant Secretary ASAP734421

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1 through 9. That's all there is to it. There's no math involved. The grid has numbers, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. Find the answers for todays puzzle on page D-5.
