General seen as wrong pick for CIA

By Nedra Pickler
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Even before President Bush has named his choice to take over the CIA, the Air Force general who is the front-runner drew fire Sunday from lawmakers in his own party who say a military man should not lead the civilian spy agency.

The criticism of the expected choice of Gen. Michael Hayden to head the CIA came from some influential Republicans in Congress as well as from Democrats.

"I do believe he's the wrong person, the wrong place, at the wrong time," said House Intelligence Committee Chairman

Peter Hoekstra, R-Mich. "We should not have a military person leading a civilian agency at this time."

Hoekstra said on "Fox News Sunday" that having a general in charge of the CIA could create the impression among agents around the world that the agency is under Pentagon control. If he were to get the nomination, military officers would run all the major spy agencies, from the ultra-secret National Security Agency to the Defense Intelligence Agency.

The sentiment was echoed by Republican Rep. Saxby Chambliss of Georgia, who said Hayden's military background would be a "major problem," and several Democrats who made the rounds of the Sunday talk shows. Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., said Hayden could leave agents with the impression that the CIA has been "just gobbled up by the Defense Department."

The criticism came the day before Bush was expected to name Hayden as his choice to lead the CIA. Outgoing director Porter Goss abruptly announced his resignation Friday after less than two years on the job.

Hayden is widely respected in both parties for his long experience with intelligence, and many lawmakers said he could be a good candidate for some other job. Some like Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein of California, suggested that he might

Time to sign up for a drug plan

By Sandy Miller
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Time is running out for seniors who want to sign up for a Medicare prescription drug plan and not pay a penalty.

May 15 is the last day to enroll in a plan and avoid paying higher premiums. The next opportunity to enroll will be Nov. 15. Seniors who are eligible to enroll right now, but choose to wait six months until Nov. 15, would pay a 1 percent per month penalty, meaning their premium costs could go up 6 percent. And that increase follows them around, even if they change plans.

"That's not a one-time fee," said Chris Stevenson, a local independent insurance agent who specializes in risk management. "That's a penalty they're going to pay for as long as they have a plan."

Stevenson said many seniors are confused about Medicare's Part D Prescription Program. There are 45 different prescription drug plans available in Idaho alone.

"Some of these plans are being aggressively marketed," Stevenson said. "A lot of the seniors I've talked to have gotten so much stuff in the mail that they just get overwhelmed and say, 'I'll just wait and see.'"

Unfortunately, they'll pay a price for waiting.

"They need time, but time isn't on their side for the penalty," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid use the penalty to motivate seniors to sign up.

"The money doesn't go to the insurance companies, it goes to CMS," Stevenson said. "The money will help supple-

Deadline

May 15 is the last day to sign up for a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan without facing additional costs. Tamara Stricker and Nora Wells of the Idaho Department of Insurance Senior Health Insurance Benefits Advisors (SHIBA) program will be at the Twin Falls Senior Center, located at 530 Shoshone St. W., this week to help seniors get signed up on a plan. No appointment is necessary. Here is their schedule:

- 1 to 4 p.m. today
 - 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday
 - 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. May 15
- Seniors should bring a list of their prescription drugs along with the quantity and dosage, and their Medicare cards. For more information, call the SHIBA office at 736-4743 or at 1-800-488-5721. For more information on Medicare's Part D Prescription Program, call Medicare at 1-800-633-4227 or see the Web site at www.medicare.gov.

ment federal funding to facilitate the drug program."

Stevenson pointed out that the 1 percent per month penalty isn't written in stone.

"They could decide to raise it to 2 percent, so if someone waits a year to get signed up, they'll be looking at a 24 percent penalty," Stevenson said.

Accident slows Blue Lakes to crawl

WILL SITES/The Times-News

Law enforcement and emergency personnel investigate the scene Sunday afternoon of a two-vehicle wreck on Blue Lakes Boulevard near the mall entrance. According to authorities there, a southbound pickup pulling a race car trailer was turning left into the mall entrance near Chill's restaurant when a northbound car hit the rear of the trailer. The force of the collision spun the car around, and it came to rest facing south in the middle lane. The car's driver was taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, but authorities said his injuries were not life-threatening.

Rancher: Sempra still worth discussion

By Michelle Dunlop
Times-News writer

JEROME — The wind, for once, is calm.

The sun creeps higher into the cloudless blue sky and below cattle loaf among green grasses provided by a wet winter and warm spring. Other than a light haze hanging around the valley, it's a near-perfect May morning at the Prescott ranch northeast of Jerome.

This is ground zero for the storm that began a year ago when Sempra Energy announced its plan to build a coal-fired power plant just miles from Roy Prescott's property. Prescott remained at the center of the public debate, divulging from day one that he sold options on his water to the San Diego-based energy company.

Despite a statewide moratorium on coal plants in place and Sempra looking to sell its project, the former Jerome County commissioner says that for him everything remains the same.

"From our standpoint, nothing has changed," Prescott said.

Inside Prescott's office, the sentiment is certainly true. Life continues as usual at Prescott Land and Livestock. Sitting behind his desk, Prescott coordinates operations: branding will begin in the afternoon while Prescott himself discs a field. There are decisions still to be made on breeding the family's herd of cattle.

The decision to work with Sempra is not one Prescott regrets.

In the end, Prescott remains confident that a coal-fired power plant will be built at the originally proposed location. Yet, he didn't oppose the two-year moratorium the Legislature enacted on building and permitting such facilities. Idahoans, especially Magic Valley residents, need to feel comfortable about building a coal-fired power plant and this moratorium may help them do that, he said.

"I think that Sempra brought to light the deficiencies in the state energy plan," Prescott said. "I think Sempra has been good for this community."

The Legislature established an interim committee to revise Idaho's energy plan, developed in 1982. Members of the several anti-Sempra grassroots groups pledge to remain active in the creation of the plan. Additionally, Jerome County has begun revising its ordinances and comprehensive plan in large part because of the looming application to build a coal-

-fired power plant in the county, said Veronica Licrman, chairman of the county commission.

If, after further evaluation, state and county officials determine a coal-fired power plant wouldn't work on the site, Prescott said, then he'll support that decision.

"If the finding of the state is that there's environmental or health issues, then I don't want it," he said.

Prescott wouldn't be surprised to see Idaho Power eventually get involved with the Sempra site.

"I think in the next two years, five years, 10 years, you're going to have electricity generated by coal in this state," Prescott said.

In the meantime, Prescott will enjoy the calm and continue business as usual.

Who's right about the state of the economy?

By Tom Raun
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — America's economy is strong. Or it's in trouble. It just depends on who's talking.

Trying to retell his message and right his listing presidency, President Bush is speaking out more frequently and forcefully on the economy.

It's in good shape right now, his advisers say, and they want him to take more credit for it.

The latest reports show healthy increases in economic growth, job creation, home ownership, retail sales and consumer spending. The Dow Jones Industrial Average is at a six-year high.

"This economy is powerful, productive and prosperous and we intend to keep it that way," Bush says.

Across town, Democrats are peddling a different message: Soaring gasoline and health care costs are burdening ordinary people; mortgage costs and credit card rates are on the rise; jobs are threatened by outsourcing.

As for those tax cuts treasured by Bush, Democrats argue they have benefited mainly the wealthy.

"There's no sharing in the prosperity that the president likes to herald," House Democratic leader Nancy Pelosi of California said.

Friday's unemployment report, showing the jobless rate holding steady at 4.7 percent with a lower-than-expected job-creation rate of 130,000 in April, was seized by both sides to buttress their great-economy/troubled-economy arguments.

Each party accuses the other of cherry-picking statistics to bolster its case.

Nearly every major national issue — Iraq, energy policy, immigration — already is politically polarized. This isn't so surprising the economy is, too.

So much so that Republicans and Democrats depict it in terms that are 180 degrees apart.

$2.73 a gallon? Not at First Fuel Banks for motorists who thought ahead

By Gregg Aamot
Associated Press writer

ST. CLOUD, Minn. — Most motorists are feeling the pain as gasoline creeps toward, or over, $3 a gallon — but not Art Altrichter.

"This feels pretty good!" Altrichter said as he filled the tank of his Ford F-150 pickup for $2.03 a gallon on Thursday, when the average here was $2.73. "Right now, to be a few pennies over $2 when it's as high as it is? That's a real deal."

A year ago, the retired milk truck driver bought 500 gallons of gas at First Fuel Banks, locking it in at the then-current price of $2.03 a gallon. He taps that reserve whenever gas rises, above that mark. If the retail price drops below $2.03, he can leave his reserve alone and buy elsewhere.

First Fuel Banks bills itself as the only retailer in the country where customers can buy gasoline for the future and hedge against rising prices. It advertises no service charge and no storage charge, just a $1 lifetime membership fee. Altrichter said one of his neighbors got in at First Fuel Banks several years ago and is now is withdrawing from a reserve that cost him 99 cents a gallon. "How about that!" he said.

Both people and businesses buy gas from the company, which has six stations in and around this central Minnesota city. The city of St. Cloud fills its fleet of cars at the stations.

The program is open to anyone who drives off the street. Customers buy whatever amount they want at the current price — the most ever purchased in advance — whether $400,000 worth — then swipe a card and key in a PIN number when they draw from a reserve.

Chief executive Jim Fenels, who runs the company with his brother, Dan Fenels, said 300 of its members are still filling up with gas that cost them less than a buck a gallon as recently as 2002. Many more are locked in under $2.

"We're offering a pretty attractive concept to the savvy buyer," Fenels said.

Each station has a 50,000-gallon tank for each grade of gasoline — regular, mid-grade and premium — compared with 6,000 to 8,000 gallons for each product at a typical convenience store, Fenels said.

That's enough capacity to handle short- and medium-term demand, he said. For people holding onto reserves for a year or longer, the company hedges its obligations by buying gasoline futures contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Genetic marker indicates higher prostate cancer risk, study says

By Malcolm Ritter
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Scientists have identified a common genetic marker that signals a 60 percent heightened risk of prostate cancer in men who carry it, and it may help explain why black men are unusually prone to the disease, a new study says.

The DNA variant may play a role in about 8 percent of prostate cancers in men of European extraction and 16 percent of the cancers in blacks, researchers said.

and will appear in the journal's June issue. The work is reported by Karl Stefansson and colleagues at deCode genetics in Reykjavik, Iceland, and scientists elsewhere.

The variant is about twice as common in blacks as whites, so that may contribute to the higher incidence of prostate cancer in blacks, the researchers said.

Stefansson said in a statement that deCode plans to use the discovery to develop a genetic test that might help doctors decide how closely to follow men at high risk and how to treat prostate cancer cases. The study indicated the variant might be associated with more aggressive forms of the disease.

It's not clear whether the heightened risk comes from the variant itself or from another that lies nearby on chromosome 8.

In general, men run a 1-in-6 chance of developing prostate cancer at some point in their lives. The risk is greater for those who are older, black or have a brother or father who had the disease.

More than 230,000 new cases are expected this year in the United States, with about 27,000 deaths.

Airport parking decision belongs to Boise's voters

The Idaho Statesman

City leaders are finally talking about doing the right thing, but only after losing a two-year legal struggle.

They may ask voters whether they want to borrow against future Boise Airport revenues to build a $37 million parking garage.

City Hall won't have an easy sales job. Getting a two-thirds majority is never easy, especially since the sticker price-for-the-garage has gone up some $10 million during the appeals process.

However, voters deserve the final say about going into long-term debt.

That's what the Idaho Constitution requires, and the Supreme Court firmly upheld this principle April 13.

The court said the city could not bypass the voters and expand the airport garage merely by getting a judge's OK. The 4-1 ruling also sets the important and precedent for other taxpayer-funded capital projects.

At issue is a clause in the Idaho Constitution allowing cities, counties or school districts to complete "ordinary and necessary" projects without a popular vote, and with only the vote of one judge. No slight against the judge, but "judicial confirmation" is a considerably less daunting political hurdle than a two-thirds voter majority.

In April 2004, the City Council decided to take its chances in the court. Three days later, the city had District Judge Michael McLaughlin's permission for a $27 million plan to expand the airport's long-term parking from 1,346 spots to 2,575. Plans seemed to be moving right on City Hall's schedule.

That is, until David Frazier — a local photographer and municipal watchdog — took City Hall to the Supreme Court. In taking Frazier's case, the court said the Constitution allows governments to bypass the voters only in an emergency. Adding parking may be an ordinary step to upgrade airport infrastructure, but it doesn't constitute an emergency.

"The volume of traffic passing through the Boise Airport has been growing for some time, and the airport itself has been improved to meet this rising demand," Justice Roger Bursick wrote.

"Rather than being a sudden emergency thrust upon the city, the need for expanded parking facilities is an expected expense for which the city has been able to plan."

The Supreme Court's rule of thumb: "ordinary and necessary" expenditures must be completed within a year.

Not surprisingly, City Attorney Cary Colaianni is concerned about the decision. "It's significant restrictive," he said Monday.

The Association of Idaho Cities may ask the court to take another look at the wording of its ruling. But we think the court struck a good balance. Unless governments face a clear emergency, they should seek capital requests to the people.

Having lost in court, city leaders are talking about a bond election, perhaps in November.

Debtation could run the costs of the garage to $37 million. "The city is to blame for that entirely," Frazier said Monday. "I won't take any ownership of that at all."

Voters might not want to own a $37 million garage, although airport revenues, not property taxes, would pay off the bonds. After all, city voters said no in February to a $37.8 million branch library plan that promised tangible benefits to more than 3,000 library users a day.

But that's how the system works. The voters decide where the city should use its borrowing power. The Constitution puts the voters in the support seat he can get. He will work to restore the America that we love.

Finishing Hitler's work through Iran's mullahs

When something happens for the first time in 1977 years, it is worth noting. In A.D. 70, and again in 135, the Roman Empire brutally put down Jewish revolts in Judea, destroying Jerusalem, killing hundreds of thousands of Jews and sending hundreds of thousands more into slavery and exile. For nearly two millennia, the Jews wandered the world. And now, in 2006, for the first time since then, there are once again more Jews living in Israel — than in any other place on earth.

Israel's Jewish population has just passed 5.6 million. America's Jewish population was about 5 million in 1990, dropped to about 5.2 million 10 years later and is in a precipitous decline that, because of low fertility rates and high levels of assimilation, is such that number in half by mid-century.

When 6 million European Jews were killed in the Holocaust, only two million centers of Jewish life remained: America and Israel. That binary star system remains today, but a tipping point has just been reached. With every year, as the Jewish population continues to rise in Israel and decline in America (and in the rest of the Diaspora), Israel increasingly becomes, as it was at the time of Jesus, the center of the Jewish world.

An epic restoration, and one of the most improbable. To take just one of the remarkable achievements of the return: Hebrew is the only "dead" language in recorded history to have been brought back to daily use as the living language of a nation. But there's a price and a danger to this transformation: a radically altered prospects for Jewish survival.

For 2,000 years, Jews found protection in dispersion — indication not for individual communities which were routinely persecuted and massacred, but protection for the Jewish people as a whole. Decimated here, they could survive there. They could be persecuted in Spain and find refuge in Constantinople. They could be massacred in the Rhineland during the Crusades or in the Ukraine during the Kilmchnitsky Insurrection of 1649-50, and yet survive in the rest of Europe.

Hitler put an end to that illusion. He demonstrated that modern anti-Semitism married to modern technology — railroads, disciplined bureaucracies, gas chambers that kill with industrial efficiency — could take a scattered people and concentrate them for complete annihilation.

The establishment of Israel was a Jewish declaration to a world that had allowed the Holocaust to happen — after Hitler had made his intentions perfectly clear — that the Jews would henceforth resort to self-protection and self-reliance. And so they have, building a Jewish army, the first in 2,000 years, that prevailed in three great wars of survival (1948-49, 1967 and 1973).

But, in a cruel historical irony, doing so required concentration — putting all the eggs back in one basket, a tiny territory half by the Mediterranean, eight miles wide at its waist. A tempting target for those who would finish Hitler's work.

His successors now reside in Tehran. The world has paid ample attention to President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's declaration that Israel must be destroyed. Less attention has been paid to Iranian leaders' pronouncements on exactly how Israel would be destroyed "by a single storm," as Ahmadinejad has promised.

Former President Hashemi Rafsanjani, the presumed moderate of this gang, has explained that "the use of a nuclear bomb in Israel will leave nothing on the ground, whereas it will only damage the world of Islam." The logic is impeccable, the intention clear: A nuclear attack would effectively destroy tiny Israel, while any retaliation launched by a dying Israel would have no major effect on an Islamic civilization of a billion people stretching from Mauritania to Indonesia.

As it means to acquire nuclear weapons, Iran makes clear that if there is any trouble, the Jews will be the first to suffer. "We have announced that whenever (in Iran) America does make any mischief, the first place we target will be Israel," said Gen. Muhammad Eshbari, Iran's top Revolutionary Guards commander. Hitler was only slightly more direct when he announced seven months before invading Poland that, if there was another war, "the result will be ... the annihilation of the Jewish race in Europe."

Last week, Bernard Lewis, America's dean of Islamic studies who just turned 90 and re-members the 20th century well, confessed that for the first time, he feels it is 1938 again. He did not need to add that in 1938, in the face of the gathering storm — a financial, aggressive, openly declared, enemy of the West, and most determinately of the Jews — the world did nothing.

When Iran's mullahs acquire their coveted nukes in the next few years, the number of Jews in Israel will just be reaching 6 million. Never again?

The debate about imperialism was clearly stated at the turn of the 19th century:

"Let us not be misled by names. Imperialism is not a question of names and titles. It is a system of government. Where a man or body of men, an Emperor, a President, a Congress, or a Nation, claims the absolute right to rule a people, to compel the submission of that people by brute force, to decide the rights they shall have, what taxes they shall pay, what judges shall administer their laws, what men shall govern them — all without responsibility to the people thus governed — this is imperialism, the antithesis of free government." (Anti-Imperialist League, 1901)

By contrast, "The Opposition tells us that we ought not to govern a people without their consent. I answer, the rule of liberty that all government derives its authority from the consent of the governed, applies only to those who are capable of self-government. I answer, we govern the Indians without their consent; we govern our territories without their consent, we govern our children without their consent. I answer, How do you assume that our government would be without their consent? Would not the people of humane, civilizing government of this republic to the savage, bloody rule of pillage and extortion from which we have rescued them?" (Albert J. Beveridge, "The Day after the Flag," Sept. 16, 1898)

Her diabetes is out of control, and she has no way to pay for her doctor visits. My daughter works but with no insurance. She recently applied for state assistance and was denied. The reason — there are no services available for adults, unless she was on state disability.

If my daughter was pregnant or of a different race, she would get assistance. How about deporting the illegals and helping those of us who pay our taxes? ROSE MCCOIRD Jerome

The few, the proud, the Pulitzers

I spent nearly 30 years in newsrooms, never won a Pulitzer Prize, wish I had, never will. I have worked with a number of reporters and photographers who won — none thanks to my help — and they deserved their prizes. I know people who served on Pulitzer juries, and they're conscientious and incorruptible. And I've never seen a Pulitzer awarded for work I didn't think was outstanding. So call this sour grapes, but I've come to believe that the Pulitzers — for all the celebrity, the champagne, the career-long glory they bring — are bad for the profession. They purport to stand for excellence in journalism, but if they do it's the same way that they do it in the same way that they do it in car-making.

EDWARD WASSERMAN

And that's the problem. The Pulitzers are big, clumsy trophies for the rich. They honor lavish work that has no bearing on the quality of the strings of new journalists, dazzling achievements that are a galaxy apart from the nimble municipal reporting that energizes a city's civic culture. They amplify a structure of dominance within the profession that sneers at the work of most journalists. It is precisely because they send out the same, deeply wrong-headed message that great journalism is primarily national and international in scope, that it is preserved mainly by the country's wealthiest news organizations.

The Pulitzers should be reimagined and restricted. At present, they are much less a pro than they are a reproach to the vast majority of working journalists.

Make lesser contests, the Pulitzers have no circulation categories. They make no allowance for the grotesque disparities in size and resources among the 1,400-plus daily newspapers that are the principal contenders. Plus they have no categories at all for what most of those papers actually do.

So the big boys sweep. They're the ones that pay good salaries and attract great talent. They're the ones that travel, money and above all, time — two months, six months, whatever it takes to produce brazenly detailed, carefully researched news that is hammered into shape and finally packaged into winning entries by in-house promotional staffs.

Accordingly, every year, most journalists are divided up by the giants, and the only real question is whether this year the Washington Post-Sunday Journal or Los Angeles Times noses out the perennial runner, the New York Times.

True, every year, one or two smaller papers are recognized, some grizzled newsroom veteran is finally honored. And in a traditional gesture of noblesse oblige, one big prize — often Pulitzer — is awarded away from the daily whose community has been flooded, burned, hurricane, bombed, or otherwise — whether or not the Pulitzer board can be relied on for guaranteed compensation to towns whose papers keep publishing despite natural calamity.

But if the winning entries are good, even great — and they're often good — why are they awarded? It's the Pulitzer that the Pulitzer board that most journalists get to do only after they die and go to heaven, if then.

The Pulitzer should reward choice, sacrifice, perseverance and service, not just marquee impact, and they should honor the accomplishments of those who struggled not just with sources and critics but with the limitations, the scarcity and the clamor of their own under-recognized newsrooms.

It's ironic that a profession that is supposed to care about society's underdogs saves its most coveted honors for its own top dogs.

Elect commissioner who follows rule of people

I have heard many times elected politicians say they are public servants working for the people. It is the height of hypocrisy and the arrogancy of power that allows a politician to believe they can make rulings that affect others running for office but exclude themselves. Shouldn't they be working for the people and not be distracted by a campaign for office? The cancellation of the policy regarding county employees to run for office is a mute exercise unless commissioners can now somehow extend the filing deadline for county employees. Also, we have threats of reprisal by a county commissioner if he is not supported for his re-election campaign (Times-News, April 14). It would appear to me that this kind of tactic would soon dry up volunteerism of our most qualified of citizens. This primary voting season, due diligence is required by our Twin Falls County voters to determine if we want more of the same, or is it time to replace? I urge you to vote for Terry Kramer for county commissioner. Terry is a lifelong Republican, fourth-generation county resident and vitally interested in making the county a better place to live. ALVIN SMUTNY Twin Falls

Kramer remains vague on dairy regulation ideas

Mr. Terry Kramer's campaign for Twin Falls County commissioner fails to mention anything about the dairy issue. However, as a person who has suffered over the past seven years by inhaling dairy ammonia, smelling unbearable stench, flies swarming over my food and being unable to open my windows for cool air, I need to know where Mr. Kramer stands on the issue. I called Mr. Kramer and talked with him and came away with the belief that Mr. Kramer doesn't understand the problem of dairy odor, flies and the excess manure piling up in Twin Falls County. He blames the dairy odor problem in J HOLLISTER, from which school children couldn't go outside to play during recess, on the city. He blames the infamous dairy problem south of Filer on the owner's stubbornness and wrong technology. Yet, who has the power to permit them? County commissioners, and Mr. Kramer will be one if elected. I'm very concerned for our county's quality of life after hearing Mr. Kramer say that Twin Falls County has room for more dairies, even though he says he will put them outside the Twin Falls Canal Irrigation area. People who live there are also fellow citizens, and they deserve equal protection. Interestingly, the dairies south of Filer happen to be outside the Twin Falls Canal Irrigation area. Mr. Kramer says the present ordinance is too restrictive for dairies to expand. On the contrary, I believe the present ordinance is not restrictive enough to protect citizens. Ordinances are created to protect citizens from bad operators. PHUONG SMITH FILER

Mr. Kramer claims credit for the county's 1995 Comprehensive Plan and 1992 Livestock Ordinance. However, that was the ordinance that allowed megadairies, especially the two south of Filer, to move into the county without a public hearing. PHUONG SMITH FILER

John Boehner's wild ride of reform

"W"ent back for another fun-filled week. That was the sarcastic opening comment of House Majority Leader John Boehner last Tuesday as he faced a roomful of reporters at the start of yet another testy session for the embattled congressional Republicans.

The week before, Boehner had barely managed to quell a rebellion from the big and influential bloc of Appropriations Committee Republicans, angry that their precious "earmarks" were targeted for reform in the leadership's lobbying bill.

DAVID BRODER

By invoking the personal prestige of Speaker Dennis Hastert, Boehner managed to clear the bill for floor action — and last Wednesday he saw it pass by a shaky four-vote margin.

But the bill was roundly condemned by Democrats and independent reform groups as an inadequate answer to the Abramoff scandals and the bribery conviction of former Republican Rep. Randy "Duke" Cunningham.

So when Boehner told reporters he was proud of it as a "comprehensive response" to the need for accountability in government, eyes rolled.

Then it was on to other topics, and the Ohio Republican went searching for safer ground. Gasoline prices and energy legislation? Not here. Asked about the previous week's talk of a $100 rebate to motorists to make up for $3 a gallon gas, he said his constituents found it "stupid." The idea was "stupid," he said, not caring that it had come from the mouth of his Senate counterpart, Majority Leader Bill Frist of Tennessee.

Partnership with the aftermath of the blown-up Dubai ports deal, Democrats were pressing for U.S. inspection of every cargo container coming into the U.S. Impractical, Boehner said. Random checks will have to do.

How about a budget for the government? Just before the Easter recess, Boehner had to pull the Republican budget resolution off the floor without a vote, because no agreement could be reached between conservatives appalled by the level of deficit spending and moderates resisting further cuts in education and health care. "There are a lot of conversations" about how to get it back on track — but no agreement yet, he said.

At this point, halfway through his weekly meeting with House reporters, the thought must have crossed Boehner's sun-tanned brow that he might be otherwise occupied. At the start of the year, when Tom DeLay stepped down as majority leader to fight corruption charges in Texas, Boehner was something of a long shot to win the three-way contest against Roy Blunt of Missouri and John Shadegg of Arizona.

But he pulled off a second-half victory in the Republican Conference, and was catapulted into the leadership from his comfortable position as chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Now, instead of doling out money to colleges and school districts, he has the whole mess on his hands — trying to satisfy a president with sinking support but ambitious goals such as making his tax cuts permanent, while holding together a congressional party increasingly nervous about keeping its majority in November.

And, oh yes, one other thing: The war in Iraq. As confirmed again on a visit to Ohio last week, the casualties of that war — the group deaths of Marines and Army reservists plucked from their Ohio hometowns for repeated tours — have triggered a popular backlash more worrisome to Republicans than the scandals that have destroyed the standing of Gov. Bob Taft and jeopardized the whole state GOP ticket.

Hence the surprise announcement from Boehner that he has decided the House should have a full-scale debate on Iraq policy some time this spring, perhaps before the Memorial Day break.

Why, he was asked, reopen the issue at this late date? "It is of great interest to our constituents," he said, "and the House should work its will."

How will the debate be framed? That will be up to Henry Hyde, the venerable chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Boehner said, passing the hot potato to the 82-year-old World War II veteran who is retiring from Congress this year.

As Boehner surely knows, the Democrats hope to knock off Fry's normally Republican Chicago suburban district with a badly wounded Iraq War veteran, Tummy Duckworth. Visiting the district last week, I was told by an influential Republican, "Hastert's office is checking up on that rice every week."

Whatever you look, there's no relief in sight for John Boehner — or the Republicans.

Car bombs explode in Iraqi cities

By Bassam Sebtli and Saad Sarhan
The Washington Post

BAGHDAD, Iraq — A series of car bomb attacks in Baghdad and the Shiite Muslim holy city of Karbala killed about 30 Iraqis early Sunday, police and witnesses said, while an Interior Ministry source reported that 51 bodies had been found in the capital since Saturday morning.

An attacker detonated a car bomb at an Iraqi army checkpoint in the Sunni Arab neighborhood of Azimiyah in northern Baghdad, killing at least six Iraqi soldiers and three civilians, hospital and Defense Ministry officials said.

Shrapnel and blood covered the area, near the Ibn al-Haitham College of Education. At least four vehicles

A Shiite mosque is seen through a piece of shrapnel-filled metal following a car bomb in the Shiite holy city of Karbala, 50 miles south of Baghdad Sunday, were damaged.

"It happened just as I was entering the college. I felt the heat reaching my body and shrapnel falling on me," said Yasmine Ahmed, 23, a student who sustained injuries to her face and an arm.

The main hospital in the neighborhood received the bodies of three of the dead and treated 19 wounded people, officials said. Victims were also transported to another hospital, witnesses said.

Also in northern Baghdad, a suicide bomber apparently targeting a police patrol blew himself up near the headquarters of the state-sponsored al-Sabah newspaper, in the Wazirya neighborhood. One civilian was killed and six were wounded, according to Col. Abdul Aziz al-Nuaimi, an Interior Ministry official.

In Karbala, about 60 miles southwest of the capital, a bomber apparently targeting the Shiite Ahl al-Bait mosque set off his explosives when his car became snared in heavy traffic, witnesses said. Several cars were destroyed in the blast, just half a mile from the Imam al-Bassid and Imam al-Abbas shrines.

Witnesses said more than 20 people were killed.

However, the director of the main hospital in Karbala said three civilians were killed and 23 were wounded. It was not possible to independently confirm the death toll.

The Interior Ministry source said the 51 bodies found in the capital were all handcuffed, blindfolded and shot in the head and abdomen. No additional details could be obtained.

In other violence Sunday, a U.S. Marine assigned to the 1st Marine Logistics Group died of wounds suffered during fighting in the western province of Anbar, the military said.

Iran threatens to withdraw from treaty

By Ali Akbar Doreh
Associated Press writer

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran renewed its threats to withdraw from the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty Sunday, with its president saying sanctions would be "meaningless" and its parliament seeking to put a final end to unannounced inspections of nuclear facilities.

The comments recalled the case of North Korea, which left the treaty in 2003. Last year Pyongyang declared it had nuclear weapons — unlike Tehran, which says its nuclear program is only for generating electricity.

President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said he would not hesitate to reconsider NPT membership, speaking as Washington and its allies pressed for a U.N. Security Council vote to suspend Tehran's uranium enrichment program.

"If a signature on an international treaty causes the rights of a nation to be violated, that nation will reconsider its decision and that treaty will be invalid," he told the official news agency IRNA.

Iran's parliament made similar threats in a letter to United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan read on state-run radio, saying the dispute over Iran's nuclear program must be resolved "peacefully, (or) there will be no option for the parliament but to ask the government to withdraw its signature" from a protocol to the NPT allowing for intrusive inspections of its nuclear facilities.

UP IN SMOKE This new nonsmoker is going strong

By Matt Christensen
Times-News writer

Mark Twain, a literary hero of mine and lover of rank cigars, once said, "Quitting is easy — I've done it a thousand times."

Unfortunately, I'm finding it a bit more difficult than Mr. Twain. And this is only the third time I've tried to quit.

From the grumblings echoing in the pressroom, most of my colleagues in the Times-News smoking-cessation class — all pressroom employees — aren't getting along much better.

Matt Christensen

I'm just over two weeks without a cigarette. Most everyone else in the class is going on five days as I write this.

And we're grumpy. As "quit day" — last Monday — approached, I heard a classmate mumble, "We'll be lucky to get Tuesday's paper out."

Well, the paper rolled off the presses just fine that night, but not everyone working them was nicotine-free.

"I'd guess about half the guys in the class have quit," said press foreman Kevin Christopherson — who gave up a simultaneous chew and cigarette habit last week.

A 50 percent quit rate is typical, said Tami Pearson, tobacco program coordinator at South Central District Health and our course instructor. Pearson said her program has a 45 percent success rate.

During our first class several weeks ago, Pearson told us that our meeting on quit night would have the lowest turnout.

She was right. Only half our class showed up at last week's meeting. The rest were either ill, like me, or they were too afraid to face their demons, I don't know.

No matter, Pearson said. Even if we don't quit this time, the class brings us one step closer to quitting in the future.

Since I began this column a few weeks ago, I've heard from lots of former smokers wishing me encouragement. Now, I'm starting to hear from folks who've been inspired to quit after reading this column.

Folks like Bev O'Connor, proprietor of newspaper houndgut O'Dunkens Draught House in Twin Falls.

O'Connor purchased a book, "The Easy Way to Stop Smoking," and hasn't had a cigarette in 15 days.

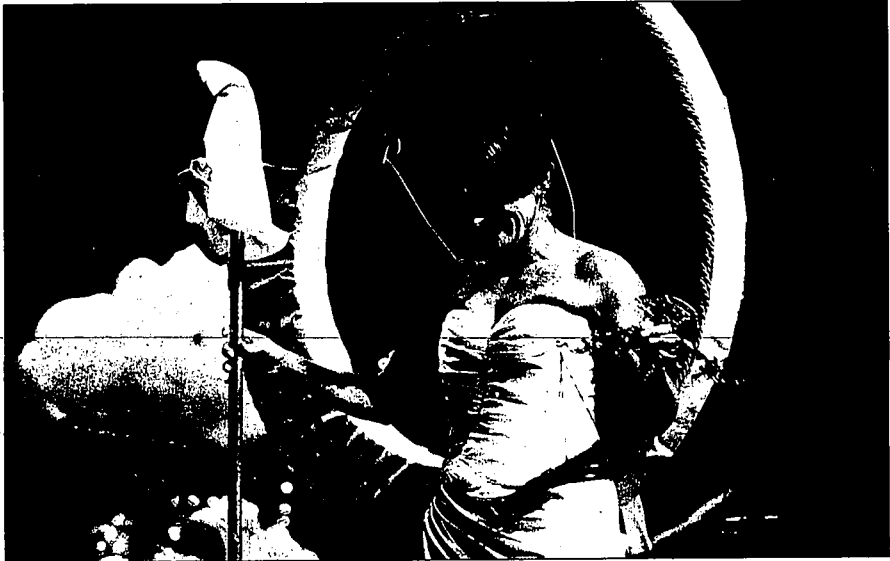

She passed it on to Heather Anderson, one of her employees, and Georgia Johnson, her sister. After reading the book, Anderson hasn't smoked in 10 days, Johnson two.

Now I'm thinking about buying the book. Not for me — I'm pretty sure I'm conquering the habit. I'll give it to my struggling classmates.

Whatever it takes.

Pageant participant finds real value in backstage bonding

KIMBERLY — In a cloud of dust and gravel, the little blue SUV scurried up the dirt lane and skidded to a stop near the large ranch house. Out popped a middle-age woman wearing knee-high boots, worn jeans and an oversized flannel shirt. Her brown hair resembled a bird's nest, and she was covered in dust from head to toe.

Meet Lorraine Jessor, 41 — mother, wife, ranch hand. And reigning Mrs. Kimberly, Idaho.

You wouldn't guess by looking at her now that last weekend Lorraine struggled to zip herself into an evening gown in a room full of heavy queens dabbling hemorrhoid cream under their eyes.

But Lorraine and 20 other married women were there, in a backstage room of the Nampa Civic Center, preparing for this year's Mrs. Idaho pageant.

At the time, Lorraine had no pageant experience. She opted not to use the Preparation H on her eyes and put some on her feet instead.

It didn't take long to figure out who was in the competition to win and who was just trying to survive. Sometimes, as Lorraine would learn, you have to discover who you're not before you know who you are.

She'd made the trip from her Kimberly ranch to Nampa a few days earlier with her sister-in-law-turned-personal-assistant Carolyn Harrison. A dinner with the reigning queen, TV interview, photo shoot, interview with the judges and countless dance-number run-throughs later, Lorraine was finally ready for the pageant to begin.

Sort of.

Follow the journey

This story is the second of a two-part series chronicling the experiences of Lorraine Jessor, a Kimberly ranch woman competing in the Mrs. Idaho pageant. We published the first part on April 24.

Partly because of nervousness, partly because of rowdy cowboys at the hotel, Lorraine was running on only seven hours' sleep in most of those three days.

But no time to rest now. The sell-out crowd at the civic center — some toted cardboard signs — clamored for the show to begin. A cheesy band fueled the frenzy. Everyone was antsy, especially the women waiting on stage behind the curtain.

Finally, the red curtain rose for the introductory dance number, the crowd exploded and the 2006 Mrs. Idaho pageant was under way.

The show was mostly what one might expect: pomp and circumstance, beauty queens in full regalia, bathing suits, evening gowns, high heels, costume jewelry, teeth white enough to blind.

The show was emceed by the outgoing Mrs. Idaho and her husband. The Barbie- and Ken-like couple's banter kept the crowd grinning during downtime between the introduction, evening gown, costume and bathing suit segments.

Backstage, though, not everyone was smiling. One contestant's daughter was in the hospital with pneumonia. Lorraine prayed with the wor-

In addition to the crown and the top-10 trophies, 14 others ranged from 'Mrs. Congeniality' to 'Most Years Married.'

Straight Talk on Elder Law and Estate Planning

FUNERAL FEUDING

QUESTION: How can I keep my present husband and two sets of children from previous marriages from fighting over control and disposition of my remains at death?

As strange as this circumstance may appear, it is becoming increasingly more common as we see serial marriages, greater geographical and emotional separation of families, and an increasingly litigious environment.

Fortunately, Idaho law creates a clear order of priority for the mortician to look to in receiving instructions on the disposition of a person's remains. Here they are: First priority - written instructions in a pre-funded, pre-arranged funeral plan where the funds are held by a third-party trustee. Second priority - the designated agent in a notary-acknowledged form. Third priority is the surviving spouse; fourth is a majority adult surviving children; fifth is an executor named in a will; and last is a person entitled to inherit from the estate.

If storm clouds are gathering on the horizon take refuge in either a prearranged, funeral plan or a notary-acknowledged written designation.

ried mother. Another contestant was anxious because her family didn't approve of her entering a pageant. A handful of the women, including Lorraine, offered her encouragement and support.

The fear and nervous of presenting mind and body for judgment hounded the women, especially those contestants who were there more for the experience than the crown. Other women — the ones in it to win — mostly kept their distance.

No cutthroat sabotage queens here — just regular women, trying to help each other out. Trying to get through the experience, together. "California blondes with perfect bodies — I usually don't make friends with people like that," Lorraine said in her Kimberly kitchen a few days after the pageant, tears streaming down her face. "And we really became kindred spirits." Lorraine has trouble remembering what, exactly, happened on stage that night. She didn't win. didn't even make the top 10. But it doesn't matter.

"What happened on stage wasn't even important," Lorraine said. "It was the women, the stories backstage, when we were together and everyone was special. That's what I'll remember. Through my eyes, those are huge moments in my life."

Lorraine did win the award for most original costume — her life-size portrayal of Idaho's state seal — and hung a trophy sits on the kitchen table. Sure, it would have been nice to win. But that's not why she signed up.

So why did Lorraine, a humble ranch-wife, sacrifice six months of farm and family time for workouts, dance lessons and intense scrutiny of personality and physique? To find herself. The hemorrhoid cream, breast implants, teeth smeared with petroleum jelly. Too much. "Seeing what people will put on themselves, or in themselves, just to win — that's enough to make a person feel less about herself," she said. "But I came out OK. It helped me know myself. I know who I am."

Lorraine paused a moment to

MAGIC VALLEY

AROUND THE VALLEY

Work on sewers will delay traffic

TWIN FALLS — Utility companies will relocate storm sewer lines at the intersection of Blue Lakes Boulevard and Pole Line Road beginning today the new transportation Department announced.

The utility work is part of preparation for the new section of the Twin Falls Alternate Route on Washington Street to the end of the project at Blue Lakes Boulevard.

Motorists can expect possible 5- to 10-minute delays as southbound traffic is intermittently reduced from two lanes to one. Flaggers will direct traffic through the work zone. Crews will work during from mid-morning to early afternoon. The relocation should be complete by Wednesday.

BSU honors Twin Falls graduates on Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Boise State University will hold a graduation for Twin Falls program graduates at 5 p.m. Tuesday in rooms 276-277 of the Taylor Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Thirty-six graduates of accounting, general business management, criminal justice administration and bilingual education will be honored. Immediately following the graduates program (about 6 p.m.), there will be a BSU Magic Valley Alumni gathering and graduation celebration in the ballroom at the Red Lion Hotel Canyon Springs. The gathering will have finger foods and a no-host bar.

The public is invited to join BSU President Bob Kuster and welcoming the 2006 Magic Valley graduates. For more information, call Shari Stroud at 732-6284.

Today is final day for sale of seedling trees

BURLEY — Today is the final day of the Cassia and Minkola Soil and Water Conservation Districts' sale of seedling trees. The trees will be sold at reduced prices. The trees are priced at $1.50 plus tax for each bare-root seedling. The trees and shrubs still available are: hybrid poplar, loblolly poplar, blue spruce, Austrian pine, Rocky Mountain juniper, burpengink oak, purple lilac, tatarian maple, chokecherry, Siberian peashrub, American arbutus, and red cedar dogwood.

To pick up trees, come to 1641 Occidental Ave. in Burley (near the Burley Jr. High School) or call 878-5556.

Gooding hospital is looking for artists

GOODING — Gooding County Memorial Hospital is looking for local artists to display their artwork in its halls and rooms.

The hospital's interior recently got new flooring and a fresh coat of paint and the walls are looking bare. So the hospital is looking for area artists wanting to display their work in the hospital. The hospital is looking for landscapes and florals with dark wood frames, preferably large pieces — 20" x 30". Each painting will have a small tag with information on how to purchase the item and the cost. For artists not wanting to sell their item, a tag will be placed stating that fact.

A committee at the hospital will make final determinations as to placement in the facility. Those interested in participating can call Community Relations Director Shellee Amundson at 934-4433, Ext. 185.

Families finding new ways to stay in touch

TWIN FALLS — In your family Internet connected? In the absence of frequent family reunions, many Magic Valley families are using Web sites to post pictures and relay information. With relative near and far through a family Web site, please contact writer Kama Fitzgerald at 735-3238 or klfzgerald@magicvalley.com.

HOW DO YOU MAKE A FREE LUNCH?

The Times-News

Safe Harbor, along with several Magic Valley church groups, provides free lunches on Saturdays to the homeless and those in need. On May 6, volunteers dished out roughly 60 meals of Sloppy Joe's.

To feed that many people, the group needed the following grocery list:

10 pounds of ground beef

60 buns
6 Large bags of chips
Several pounds of oranges, grapes and bananas
2 big bags of homemade cookies and brownies
3 gallons of milk
4 gallons of juice
60 cups of coffee.
All of the food served in the Saturday lunch program comes from donations.

Halper, Stevenson squaring off again

By Michelle Dunlop Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It seems two Republicans couldn't be farther apart on issues.

Former rival Bert Stevenson and Lee Halper face off again this year in the Republican primary for the District 26 House seat.

The winner of the May 23 primary will face Democrat Scott McClure of Jerome in the November election.

Rupert resident Stevenson has held the spot for five terms. Jerome's Halper challenged Stevenson in the 2004 race, running as a Democrat. Perhaps that explains the varied political stances of the two take.

Stevenson says he can provide the experience that Jerome and Minkola county residents lack for in a legislative candidate.

And, "I would like to see him the opportunity to see some things completed" such as different water issues, he said.

Halper says he wants to preserve Idaho and can provide a fresh pair of eyes to find legislative solutions to the two take.

There's got to be a new mindset, Halper said. Regardless of mindset, Halper and Stevenson do agree on some community colleges. Both Stevenson and Halper say that any effort to expand the state's community college system, which was discussed during the 2006 Legislature, should include a local property tax component.

Republican candidates for House Seat A

John 'Bert' Stevenson
Age: 70
Residence: Rupert
Family: wife, Elaine; three children; 12 grandchildren
Education: attended
Ricks College; served two years in U.S. Army
Occupation: former public service; Five terms in Idaho House of Representatives; chair of the House Resource and Conservation Committee; former Minkola County commissioner; former member of Minkola County Planning and Zoning Board; served as director of Minkola Irrigation District and East End Fire District.

Lee Halper
Age: 58
Residence: Jerome
Family: wife, Elizabeth; four children; one grandchild
Education: Attended
Bates College in Lewis-ton, Maine
Occupation: cabinetmaker and carpenter
Public service: former Jerome County Planning and Zoning commissioner; served on both Ordinance and Impact Ordinance committees for Jerome County; Idaho Rural Council legislative lobbyist; Citizens Protecting Resource member.

However, the two don't agree on whether property taxes should continue to help fund the maintenance and operation of local public schools. The state should do away with that portion of property tax and replace the funding with an increase in sales taxes, Stevenson said. His constituents told him they didn't see a reason for the Legislature to remove in 2005 the 1-cent sales tax increase enacted in 2003. And, Stevenson says sales tax is more equitable than property tax. Halper opposes shifting the burden of paying for schools' maintenance and operation from local property taxes to sales taxes. To provide property tax relief, Halper says the Legislature should look at reducing business tax exemptions. Additionally, Halper feels that the state needs to examine ways to tax growth, such as implementing impact fees on new construction. "If they want to move here, they gotta pay," Halper said.

Sharing a love of learning

By Jami Whitled Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — To many, Pat Neale had a work ethic that may be less prevalent today. She loved learning new things to better herself and those around her.

Neale, died from complications of breast cancer April 26 at 71 years old.

She grew up on ranches throughout Idaho, sometimes living in a tent. It led her to a lifelong love of hunting, shooting and the outdoors. She even earned the title of Idaho State Class B Pistol champion in 1959.

After graduating from Mackay High School in 1952, Neale worked with the Atomic Energy Commission in Arco. In 1956, she worked for Magic Valley Regional Medical Center as a secretary to the pathologist in the lab. Eventually she became a certified lab technician and when nuclear medicine began to appear, she opted to train in the field. She even attended the hospital's first nuclear medicine course.

She eventually excelled in CT and MRI equipment. "She was very particular on how people were scanned," said Chuck Hansen. "She made sure the procedure pictures would be useful."

Neale was a lifelong learner and was always eager to share with others. Whenever she picked up information, she passed it on, Hankins said.

"She had an insatiable appetite for knowledge," said Dr. Ben Kaper. "This pediatrician and former hospital board member. She had energy and drive. Whatever she did, she did it well."

Neale's 50-year dedication to the hospital brought her much respect and inspired many around her. She would often help others study for tests and was a great role model to them.

"She really cared about the quality of health care," said Vesta Maughan, her niece. "It inspired me to continue working, and she worked through everything. Even the weekend before her last major surgery in December."

She was also a welcome companion to patients. "She had, lots of empathy and was very considerate," Katz said. "People loved her. In MRI's, people can get a great role model. She could calm them down and comfort them."

Dedication, commitment and everything to her to first come to Hankins' mind when he thinks of his mother.

"The spirit of what can I do for someone else," he describes as "the spirit of Neale." She worked very hard to take care of everybody else, regardless of herself.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Cassia County, ID. A public information meeting is scheduled for May 8, 2006 to provide an opportunity for the public to view and discuss the aspects being considered for this plan. The meeting will take place at the Burley City Hall from 6-8 pm and will be held in open forum format, meaning the public is welcome to stop by and ask to view the plan and comment. The purpose of this meeting is to review and comment on proposed transportation improvement projects for Cassia County. THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"If the reporter has killed our imagination with his truth, he threatens our life with his lies."

Karl Kraus

Nobody likes to be the victim of a good play. But at least if you are a reporter, you can have the small satisfaction of writing a column about the player who found the correct move...which might go a little way toward dulling the pain.

Michael Byrne, one of England's top juniors, was playing today's hand against Geoff Wolfarth and Brian Senior at the 2003 Brighton Summer Congress. Senior, as Editor, reported the deal in the Daily Bulletin.

In spite of the bidding, Wolfarth found the best lead of a low heart against three no-trump, East's 10 losing to the king.

It was obvious to Byrne that West had led away from the heart ace. Therefore, East needed to be kept off lead, as a heart through would set the game. Nothing could be done if East had the diamond ace, reasoned Byrne. But if West held it, singleton or doubleton, then a diamond toward the king would guarantee the contract, as hearts could not be successfully continued from that side of the table. A 3-8 diamond break with West having the length was far less likely than a specific 2-1 diamond split.

So he led the first round of diamonds to dummy's king, dropping East's queen, and gave West his diamond ace, collecting 11 tricks in comfort. Of course, those decliners who failed to apply this logic and ran the diamond 10, losing to the singleton queen, ended up down two tricks.

ANSWER: Lead a low heart. This does not come with any guarantees, but while spades look unappealing here, finding partner with good hearts may be enough to set the contract...or threaten to. A good five-card club suit in partner's hand may not be enough to set the hand on its own.

Latham spoils Jones' bid for MVS three-peat

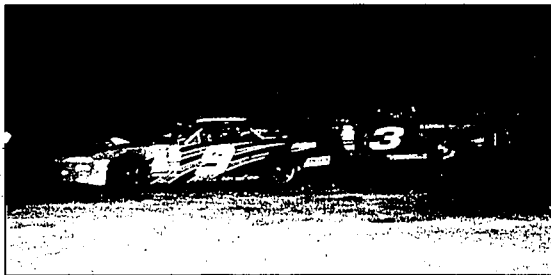

By Linda Brittan Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Timing is everything. There were two caution flags in particular that played right into Pepsi Premier driver Bobby Latham's hands Saturday night at the Magic Valley Speedway as Latham raced to his first main-event win of the season.

Latham began the race at the rear of another record field of Premier division cars — 16 in all — for the 50-lap main event. Mike Greco took the lead from Sam Harris, Jr., on lap four with Rob Vest moving up to third by lap nine. Meanwhile, Latham was stuck in traffic as Greco stretched out his lead and Vest came on strong. When the first caution of the night occurred on lap 13, Latham had made his way up to eighth but still had plenty of work in front of him.

It was the caution on lap 27 that put Latham in the driver's seat. "It seemed like until lap 25 or 30 that the leaders were a half a lap ahead of me," Latham said. "Then the caution came out — yeah, definitely it was something I wanted to see."

The restart put Latham right up with race leader Greco and Jones, who had by then worked his way up to second. Latham chose to take the high line on the track right behind Jones with Vest following Greco. By lap 30, the race became a battle for first between Latham and Jones, with Bobby Latham (9) gets past Steve Jones as Latham goes on to win his first main-event race of the season of the Pepsi Premier Series at the Magic Valley Speedway on Saturday.

Latham taking the lead with eight laps to go. Although a few more cautions in the final laps kept Jones right behind Latham, Latham proved he had the stronger car for the night.

Latham's first win of the season came after some successful testing at the speedway earlier in the week. "We made some really good changes this last week," he said. "We came out and tested and threw in a whole new suspension set-up. We knew we had a good car, and obviously it was the best here tonight. It seemed Jones' car was starting to go away so I switched to the high side and my car held."

Jones holds on to the lead in the point standings with the second-place finish for the night, but by a meager two points.

"My car was fast but then it started pushing and got slower," Jones said. "I knew I was just a sitting duck for Bobby, and one way or another he was going to get around me. It was trying to make my car as wide and ominous as possible, but he did a good job tonight."

Mike Greco came to the checkered flag third, his best finish in the series to date. The highest finishing modified car was that of TJ Woodhall, who was involved in some pre-race testing earlier in the week which resulted in a change in the weight restrictions for the modified class.

"I finished fourth — it was three late models and then me," Woodhall said after the race. "There was a difference, but I still don't think we're fast enough."

Local race had a perfect night in The Budweiser Grand National division, winning both the qualifying and the main-event races. Pistons bottle up LeBron

The Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — When LeBron James had the ball, he saw Detroit Pistons defenders to his left, to his right, and straight ahead.

The Pistons also had James seeing triple at the other end of the court.

Detroit made 10 3-pointers in the first half — one shy of an NBA playoff record — to open up a 21-point lead at halftime before cruising to a 113-86 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers on Sunday in Game 1 of their second-round series.

The Pistons finished with a franchise playoff-record 15 3-pointers, on 22 attempts, and missed only one of their 11 attempts beyond the arc before halftime.

"They're going to sweep the rest of the playoffs if they shoot like that and win the NBA championship," James said. "We shot 50 percent and had only six turnovers in the first half and were down 22. It's hard to explain that."

James scored all of his 22 points in the first half, but the 21-year-old star had to work for each one. Triples-fanned at times, James was forced to take difficult shots or defer to teammates who didn't respond by making shots of their own.

"The team has to be in a zone situation behind me," said Jayshawn Prince, who led Detroit's "LeBron Rules" defense.

James didn't play in the fourth quarter after he was held scoreless in the third while the Pistons built a 30-point lead.

Prince made James work on defense, too, scoring 24 points and tying his playoff record.

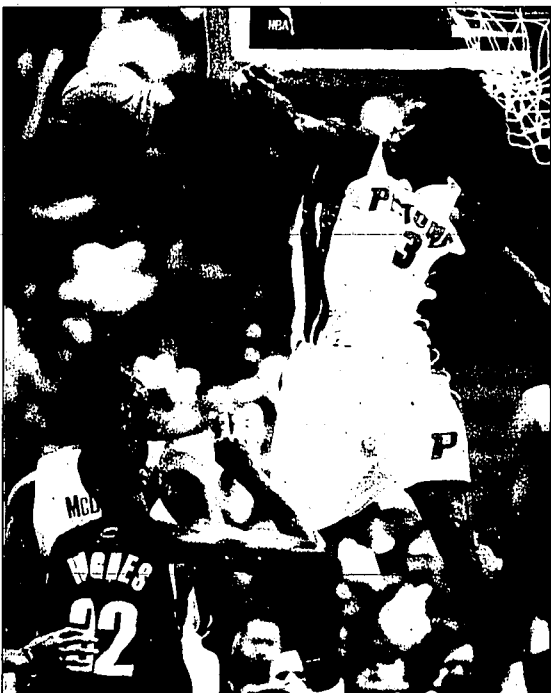

The two-time defending Eastern Conference champions turned the game into a rout with a franchise playoff-record 43 points in the second quarter against a team in the second round for the first time since 1993.

The Pistons had four double-figure scorers in the first half alone, including reserves Antonio McDyess and Lindsey Hunter. Both had 12 at halftime — outscoring every Cavs player not named James in the first half.

Richard Hamilton scored 20. Chauncey Billups had 14 points and 10 assists and Rashad Wallace added 10 points and seven rebounds.

Ben Wallace, the NBA Defensive Player of the Year according to an Associated Press source, had 11 rebounds and four blocks for the Pistons. Cleveland's James Hapless had 11 points after a poor series against Washington in the first round. The Cavs, who didn't have a third double-digit scorer until the fourth quarter, got 11 points from Anderson Varejao.

SHOSHONE — Is it possible for one athlete to finish in two places in one event?

It sure is if your name is Bobby and you are the one with the short tail. Actually, Bobby is a _____ horse that belongs to _____ _____ year-old little sister, _____

_____ senior from Fairfield, _____ placed third in goat tying on Hobby Saturday at the District V high school rodeo at the Lincoln County Fairgrounds at Shoshone.

Bobby wasn't done yet, as Wendell's Jori Fleming clinched the top spot in the same event on the same horse with a time of 8:35 seconds.

"Bobby eats everything," said Whitney Hurless. "One time she even ate my sandwich."

Amanda Hill from Carey and Hurless are currently first and second in the all-around cowgirl standings.

"Amanda and I have known each other for a long time. We are friends first. We wish each other good luck when we compete," said Korynne Hurless. "Goat tying is my favorite event because I put the most work into it. The most important thing in rodeo is to be consistent. Rodeo teaches you to learn from your mistakes. I do rodeo because I love it."

Hurless also won pole bending and teamed with Connor McManara of Healy to place fourth in team roping. Cheyenne Robinson from Gooding sits third behind Hill and Hurless in the all-around standings. She picked up a second in goat tying and a pair of thirds in barrel racing and pole bending.

"The all-around is pretty tough and exciting," said Robinson. "Barrels are my favorite because my horse, Scooter is good."

The current leader in calf roping, Rob Webb of Wendell, won the event with a time of 12:50 seconds. Webb leads Tyler Wines of Gooding by two points. Wines finished third behind Jake Ruby of Jerome.

"A good horse makes it easier," said Webb. "Hoanie sleeps more than six weeks."

The Saturday barbecue and bull riding winners were a carbon copy of Friday night's winners. Cody Luper won the barbecue with a score of 50 points on No. 220 and CJ Santana scored a 66 on Bubhalosa to win the bull riding. Cy Eames and Justin Parks of Gooding won the team roping with a time of 12:78 seconds. Webb and Ruby finished second. The two teams are tied in the overall team roping standings.

The District V rodeo travels to Carey May 12-13.

Furyk ices Immelman in playoff

The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Given another chance in a playoff at the Wachovia Championship, Jim Furyk finished the job Sunday.

A hard-luck loser in a four-hole playoff last year, Furyk made an 8-foot par putt to force extra holes against Trevor Immelman of South Africa, then made a 6-footer for par on No. 18 in the playoff to win and erase bad memories at Quail Hollow.

Furyk, who had a one-shot lead going into a rainy final round, closed with a 1-under 71 and earned $1.134 million for his 11th career victory, and one that might be enough to move him into the top five in the world ranking.

Furyk found the bunker off the tee in the playoff, but ripped a 3-iron at the flag and it rolled just off the green. Electing to use putter, he ran it 6 feet by, and made the par try — thrusting his fist into the air before the ball even reached the green.

Immelman finished with a 70 to match Furyk at 12-under 276. Adam Scott was third at 8 under after a 71.

Jim Furyk reacts after hitting the winning putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff to win the Wachovia Championship at Quail Hollow Club in Charlotte, N.C. on Sunday.

Bonds crushes No. 713

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Barry Bonds is heading home, one beyond the Babe.

Bonds hit his 713th homer Sunday night, moving within one of tying Babe Ruth for second place on baseball's career list.

The San Francisco Giants' slugger hit a mammoth shot in the sixth inning of Philadelphia's home opener, then, sending a 2-1 pitch off the facade of the right-field upper deck during a 9-5 loss to the Phillies.

As he took his slow trot around the bases, some of the Phillies fans — who had been reading Bonds with boos and derisive chants throughout the series — stood up, cheered and clicked photographs.

Bonds' fifth homer of the season was estimated at 450 feet, one of the longest ever at Philadelphia's "litter-friendly" park. He needed 12 to tie Hank Aaron for the major league record.

The solo homer cut the Giants' lead to 5-3, but they soon broke it open and pushed their winning streak to eight games for the first time in 15 years.

The last time Philadelphia won eight in a row was a 13-game run in 1991 from July 30 to Aug. 12.

The Giants were headed back to San Francisco to begin a homestand, but Bonds is not expected to play Monday night.

Cardinals 9, Marlins 1

MIAMI — The St. Louis Cardinals overcame right-handed reliever Sidney Ponson's departure for three innings because of oblique discomfort, beating what had Florida 9-1 Sunday to complete the first series sweep in Miami in eight years.

St. Louis took a 7-0 lead for the third game in a row. Albert Pujols hit a two-run single, giving him a hit.

Braves 13, Mets 3

NEW YORK — John Smoltz threw six strong innings on "three days' rest" and Jeff Francoeur hit a three-run homer to lead the Braves avoid a three-game sweep.

Smoltz also drove in two runs and Brian Jordan added a solo homer run for the Braves, who straddled a four-game losing streak.

Nationals 5, Pirates 4

WASHINGTON — Rookie Mike Cottom won for the second time in three outings, joining the Nationals' rotation, and Jose Guillen hit a two-run homer.

Cottom (2-1), who attended George Washington

San Francisco Giants left fielder Barry Bonds hits a solo home run, the 713th of his career, against the Philadelphia Phillies in the sixth inning of Sunday's game in Philadelphia.

University, allowed three runs, five hits and four walks in five innings, hitting two batters and throwing a wild pitch.

Rockies 5, Astros 3

DENVER — Aaron Cook pitched into the ninth inning, Todd Helton hit a three-run homer and the Rockies finished off the three-game sweep.

Padres 6, Cubs 3

SAN DIEGO — Khalil Greene went 4-for-1 and drove in four runs to help San Diego win its eighth straight game.

Aramis Ramirez hit a solo homer for Chicago.

Dodgers 10, Brewers 2

LOS ANGELES — Aaron Sele pitched 6 2/3 solid innings in his National League debut to help the Dodgers complete a three-game sweep.

Olmedo Sanchez and Rafael Furcal each hit two-run homers and Jeff Kent also drove in two runs for the Dodgers.

Carlos Lee hit his 14th homer for Milwaukee.

Reds 9, Diamondbacks 8

PHOENIX — Adam Dunn homered and matched his career high with five RBIs to help the Reds stop the Diamondbacks' seven-game winning Glaus homered in the seventh.

White Sox 3, Royals 2

CHICAGO — Joe Crede hit a tiebreaking single off Elmer Dessens (2-2) with two outs in the eighth.

Brandon McCarthy (2-1) got one out, striking out John Buck in the eighth with Angel Berroa on third, Bobby Jenks struck out two in a perfect ninth for his 10th save.

Twins 4, Tigers 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Joshua Santana (3-3) struck out 11 and didn't allow a hit until Ryan Borjenz, singled leading off the seventh. Magglio Ordonez followed with a two-run homer.

Michael Cuddyer had two hits and two RBIs and Luis Castillo had two hits and a home run. Mike Maroth (4-2) allowed four runs and nine hits in five innings.

Indians 2, Mariners 0

SEATTLE — C.C. Sabathia (2-0) won in his second straight start since coming off the disabled list, scattering seven hits over eight innings, striking out four and walked none. His fastball reached 97 mph on the ballpark's radar gun.

Bob Wickman pitched the ninth for sixth save, allowing one-out singles by Carl Everett and Adrian Beltre before inducing Kenji Johjima to ground into a double play. Wickman got his team record 13th save, one more than Doug Jones.

Jarrod Washburn (2-5) allowed two runs and four hits in seven innings. Grady Sizemore hit a sacrifice fly in the third and Adrian Beltre doubled home a run in the seventh for Cleveland, which was out 9-1.

Devil Rays 3, Athletics 2

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jonny Gomes hit a pair of RBI doubles on a day when more than 200 fans from his hometown cheered him on.

Brad Halsey (7-1), making his second start as a fill-in for the injured Rich Harden, gave up only one earned run, allowed eight hits in 5 2/3 innings.

Red Sox 10, Orioles 3

BOSTON — Jason Varitek hit a first-inning grand slam off Kris Benson (4-3) that powered Boston to its 11th consecutive win over the Orioles.

Blue Jays 3, Angels 1

TORONTO — Casey Lammson (1-2) got his first major league win, allowing one hit in 7 1/3 innings — Chone Figgins' sharp single to center with one out in the sixth.

Frank Catalanotto hit an RBI double in the sixth, and Troy

Nash wins MVP

Nash

PHOENIX (AP) — That mope-haired Canadian did it again, running away with his second consecutive NBA Most Valuable Player award.

Steve Nash — the maestro of the fast, frenetic Phoenix Suns — beat runner-up LeBron James of Cleveland by a comfortable margin in results announced Sunday.

He is the ninth player to win consecutive MVP trophies and joins Magic Johnson — as he only point guard to win the award more than once.

"I have to pinch myself," Nash said. "I can't believe that I'm standing here today. I couldn't believe it last year, and to do it again is even more difficult to understand — but I'm not going to give it back."

The Suns' playmaker received 57 first-place votes and 924 points overall from a panel of 125 sports writers and broadcasters in the United States and Canada.

James had 16 first-place votes and 688 points overall.

The 32-year-old Nash is the 11th player to win the MVP award more than once.

Nash praised his teammates and coaching staff for "a perfect environment for me to succeed and for our team to succeed, and for me to stand here today."

Last season, he directed the Suns to an NBA-best 62 victories. This year, the Suns lost Amare Stoudemire to injury and traded Joe Johnson and Quentin Richardson. Yet they still won 54 games and a second straight Pacific Division title.

This season, Nash has excelled in scoring (18.8 points), rebounding (4.2), field goal percentage (.512) and free throw percentage (.886) in league-leading 92.1. He led the league in assists at 10.5 a game and finished sixth in 3-point percentage at 43.9.

Ducks drop Avs

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Ilya Bryzgalov tied a 61-year-old NHL rookie record with his third consecutive playoff shutout, and three of his Anaheim teammates scored in the Mighty Ducks' 3-0 victory over the Colorado Avalanche on Sunday.

Ryan Getzlaf opened the scoring in the first period, and Ilya Salaj and Jeffrey Lupul added goals in the second.

Coming off a 5-0 win in the first game, the Ducks took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal. Game 3 is Tuesday night in Denver.

Bryzgalov, who had 22 saves in the victory, hasn't allowed a goal in 20 minutes, 42 seconds, replacing Jean-Sebastien Giguere in the Ducks' record book for scoreless minutes in the playoffs.

The 25-year-old Russian also has replaced Giguere — in the 2003 playoffs MVP — as Anaheim's No. 1 goalie, getting the job in the first round against Calgary after Giguere was inconsistent.

Toronto's Frank McCool had three postseason shutouts in a row as a rookie in 1995.

Sharks 2, Oilers 1

SAN JOSE, Calif. — San Jose captain Patrick Marleau scored his eighth goal of the postseason and added an assist on Christian Ehrhoff's go-ahead goal, leading the Sharks past Edmonton in Game 1 of the second-round series.

Rookie Milan Michalek had two assists and Vesa Toskanen stopped 15 shots in his fifth consecutive victory for the Sharks, who took control of the series opener with a one-sided second period featuring Ehrhoff's first career playoff goal.

Jaroslav Spacek scored for Edmonton.

Spurs 87, Mavericks 85
SAN ANTONIO — Having worn legs against Sacramento, a familiar opponent is no way to open a playoff series. Good thing the San Antonio Spurs also had Tim Duncan — and the rest of the Brown to harass Dirk Nowitzki.

Duncan scored 20 of his 31 points in the first half to boost his worn-out teammates and Brown topped his stifling defense on Nowitzki by hitting the game-winning 3-pointer with 2:15 left, carrying the Spurs past the Dallas Mavericks 87-85 Sunday in the opening game of their second-round series.

The Spurs were playing just 36 hours after closing out their first-round series in Sacramento, while the Mavs had been off since Monday. But at game's end, when the difference should've benefited Dallas the most, it was San Antonio that persevered.

ued to have mechanical problems and was not able to make it into the main event race.

The Warriors battled with 19 cars taking the track for their first race of the season. The No. 39 car of Ken Jensen and the No. 68 of Cory Rutledge fought for first position over the first dozen laps but Jensen worked himself into a comfortable lead by lap 15. A wreck involving Rutledge and the No. 55B car of Chad Hill forced the race to come down to a green-white-checkered finish with Jensen holding off Dan DeLoer, who had moved up to second.

Jeff Keller, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was first to the checkered flag in the Intermountain Pro-4 division race. Keller took the lead on lap five from Scott Cook and was not challenged for the lead until Kurt Madsen was able to make up some ground on Keller with less than five laps to go. However, Keller was able to stay in front of Madsen to make the trip to the winner's circle.

Duncan made 12 of 24 shots, getting all three of Dallas' centers in early foul trouble. He grabbed 13 rebounds and tied Tony Parker for the teams' assist lead with four. Parker scored 19 and Ginobili added 15.

Nowitzki was 8-of-20 — and only 1-of-4 in the fourth quarter. He scored only two points in that final period. Dallas scored only 13. The Mavericks missed their final six shots.

Stackhouse led the Mavericks with 24. Howard scored 17, but only four in the second half. Jason Terry had 14.

Earnhardt races to first victory of the year

RICHMOND, Va. — Kevin Earnhardt was the driver that beat Dale Earnhardt Jr. knew that. But when Earnhardt made his only mistake of the entire weekend, Earnhardt pounced. "I'm a little better than Victory Lane for the first time this season, and proved that my team has truly turned around after struggling through all of last year." "For 80 percent of that race, Kevin Earnhardt had the best car," Earnhardt said after winning the 2006 NASCAR Nextel 500 at Richmond International Raceway on Saturday night. "I made a change on him, but I sort of conceded the win to Dale. I'm just going to race for second."

Castleford students busy with honors, field trips

On April 24, the Fourth District Board of Control held a senior honor ceremony. Honorees were Lance Bliks and Lauren Kline, who were accompanied by their parents, and Brenda and Kirk Thomson.

We began our fourth week of Idaho Standards Achievement testing, and are very pleased with the results from the first three weeks. One-hundred percent of sophomores met the proficiency scores needed to graduate in language usage and reading, and our fifth-grade class achieved 100 percent in math. Additionally, many other class levels have outstanding scores.

Seniors conducted their "senior sneak" April 26 with a trip to the Boise Valley. Accompanying them was teacher Marc Jensen and parents, George Hobango and Tracy Hart.

It is the award banquet time of year. The FCLA held its banquet April 19, and the FFA banquet was on April 26. FFA adviser Roger Wells and FCLA adviser Connie Kinyon thank parents and community members who attended.

Our last all-school music program was April 28.

The sixth-grade band played the pre-program music. The fourth grade presented a musical fairy tale revue, "The Grammy Awards." The junior high band played selections that it performed at the District Junior High Music Festival in Jerome, and kindergarten through fifth grade performed a variety of songs. The high school vocal ensemble sang "Lilo and Stitch," while the third-grade girls performed a hula dance.

Following—the program counselor Dianna Herzinger recognized students for their achievement on the ISAT spring tests, and presented each a root beer float.

The junior high band participated in the fourth District Musical Festival held May 3 in Jerome and received a Superior Rating for the performance of three selections.

Kindergarten screening is May 19, and parents of new kindergarten students are asked to call the school at 537-6511 for an appointment.

Officers will be elected at the PTO meeting at 6:30 p.m. today in the library.

The National Honor Society induction ceremony will be held at 2:15 p.m. Friday in the gymnasium.

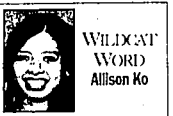

Andy Wiseman is Castleford School principal.

Filer teacher honored as science giant

On April 20, Filer High School principal Leon Madson and myself accompanied Ed Richards to Boise to accept his GIANTS (Governor's Institute Award for Notable Teaching in Science) Award.

We met Lt. Governor Jim Rich, who presented Mr. Richards a check and gave the student council a $500 check for nominating Mr. Richards. Afterwards at a luncheon, Mr. Richards once again proved himself to be a dedicated teacher. He went around getting business cards and contacting many influential leaders in the science field that would be able to help him fund a new science curriculum.

For all students attending the luncheon/prom, we hope you are ready with your tux and dress because our prom will be held this Saturday.

WILDCAT WORD
Allison Ko

The gym will be all decked out in the theme of "Masquerade Ball." All members of the student are invited to attend the Grand March will begin at 8 p.m. when all the beautiful couples will be introduced.

There will also be a mask contest.

Prizes will be awarded for the most exquisite, most creative, most outrageous, and the best-coordinated couple.

Allison Ko is Filer High School student body president.

Twin Falls High School gears up for summer

Everyone at Twin Falls High School is gearing up for summer!

Last week, we held the first annual Spring into Spirit week. Dress up days were fun, flip day, hat day, down-under day, Hawaiian day and blue and white day. On Thursday was the first cow-poke raffle and Friday was the spring sports assembly. All our spring sports are doing fantastic. Best of luck with the rest of your season. Congratulations to May's students of the month: Kelly

BRUIN BUZZ
Deldre Edmunds

Vriesman, sophomore; Ian Forsnell, junior; and Lindsey Brown, senior.

Also, May's employee of the month is Mike Federico. Thanks for all your support and the great example you leave for everyone.

Last Thursday, LIVE headed down to Anaheim, Calif., to compete. We just want the group to know how proud we are. Results from the competition will be announced shortly.

BPA also attended nationals this last week in Florida. We hope they all had a great time and did well! Graduation is coming up soon with the seniors' last day on May 17. Baccalaureate will be held May 24 and graduation will be held May 25.

Feel free to stop by TFFHS and support the Bruins in softball, tennis, track, baseball, or whatever else is going on!

Deldre Edmunds is the Twin Falls High School junior class vice president.
