Stormy Tuesday

16,000 without power

The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — A violent wind storm roared through the Magic Valley Tuesday afternoon knocking out power to at least 16,000 residents and scrambling emergency and power crews on both sides of the canyon.

But it could have been worse. Several counties in southwest Idaho spent the afternoon under a tornado warning and severe thunderstorm watch.

In Twin Falls and Jerome counties it was all wind — and lots of it. As the gust speed went up (as high as 53 mph), power lines and JEROME — Disaster for a group of Jerome residents was barely avoided Tuesday.

Although firefighters didn't know Tuesday night if the storm caused the blaze, they said it certainly fanned the flames.

The violently shifting winds took a small fire and spread it over a football field-sized area between a block of houses and the north canyon wall of the Snake River Canyon west of the Jerome Country Club. No one was hurt.

Flames sprang up from clumps of sagebrush and corkscrewed around properties, charring the ground and damaging three houses, two propane tanks and a toolshed.

LeRoy May, who had been house-sitting for his neighbor Julia Sullivan while she vacationed in Nevada, pulled Sullivan's dog from its kennel as flames rapidly approached the trapped pet.

Ten minutes earlier, May raced from house to house warning neighbors. Having seen a fire escalate once before, he knew how deceptive small brush fires can be.

A neighbor told him the fire was two houses over.

"I said, 'Look outside. It's not two houses anymore,'" May said.

"When that sagebrush caught, it just roared up," he said. "I was seeing flames 20 to 25 feet."

Joe Robinette of the Jerome Rural Fire Department said his crews were joined by firefighters from the city of Jerome as well as Wendell and the Bureau of Land Management.

May's neighbor is returning from her vacation today.

"God, I don't know how to tell her," May said. "At least I got her dog out of there."

Weekend canyon jazz show will go on

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jazz lovers won't be singing the blues on Saturday.

City officials say Canyon Springs Road will reopen in time for the jazz in the Canyon music festival, and event organizers want the public to know that the show will definitely go on.

Workers will remove unstable rock crumbling above Canyon Springs Road today, and they will spend the rest of the day clearing rock and debris from the road.

A rockslide covered a small area of the road with fractured basalt Friday evening, and threatened to relocate the jazz in the Canyon music festival.

Jody Tremblay, the event coordinator, said she has met with city officials to discuss the road conditions, and has decided to continue as planned.

"We have every reason to believe that everything will be cleaned up in time," she said. "If something changes, we will let people know, but as of now, we will still hold the concert in Centennial Waterfront Park."

City Public Works Director Lance Bates said the rockslide was caused by the natural erosion of the canyon.

"The city hired a local excavator and geo-technical surveyor to clear the rock and verify the stability."

"If everything goes smoothly, we could have the road opened as soon as late afternoon (today)," said Todd Courtney, twin Falls city manager.

BASE jumpers asked to stay off bridge

Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The sheriff is asking all BASE jumpers to not jump from the Perrine Bridge today.

A rockslide has blocked emergency access to Centennial Waterfront Park.

The problem became evident Tuesday morning when a BASE jumper got hurt and only a helicopter could get him out.

The jumper's name and condition were unavailable, but his injuries were not considered life-threatening.

Senate to Risch: Opt out of mercury program

By Michelle Duzoff
Times-News writer

BOISE — All but two state senators have signed a letter to Gov. James Risch asking him to keep Idaho out of a federal program that would make it easier for coal-fired power plants to build in the state.

Thirty-three of 35 senators suggested that Risch keep Idaho off the list of states participating in the federal plan.

"Before the irrevocable decision is made to 'opt in' to this program, we believe that a better understanding of the source, nature and extent, and potential impacts of mercury in Idaho is needed."

— Idaho state senators

If Idaho does not join the program, coal-fired power plants could not locate in the state and meet federal requirements for mercury emissions. By November, state officials need to tell the U.S.

Environmental Protection Agency whether Idaho will participate.

"Before the irrevocable decision is made to 'opt in' to this program, we believe that a better understanding of the source, nature and extent, and potential impacts of mercury in Idaho is needed," the senators wrote.

Mercury has been linked to neurological disorders — it is passed to humans when they eat fish containing high levels of it. Several Idaho lakes and reservoirs, including C.J. Strike and American Falls reservoirs, are warning people about eating too much fish from them.

Sens. Kate Kelly, D-Boise, and Chuck Colner, R-Twin Falls, led the effort behind the letter.

Jayco expansion means more jobs for Magic Valley workers

By Sandy Miller
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jayco Inc. has purchased 176 acres of land and plans an expansion that will bring more jobs to the area.

"We feel Twin Falls is home to Jayco and we want to expand in Twin Falls," said Dave Yoder, general manager for Jayco West, on Tuesday.

Manufacturers of recreational vehicles, bought the land from Pinnacle Land and Investment LLP. The land is located between 3200 East and 3300 East and most of the property borders the railroad line, said Joe Russell, a local real estate developer and managing member of the land and investment company, which also includes Joe Shelton, also of Twin Falls, and Michael Wood of Pocatello.

For more information to read more about Jayco Inc., visit its Web site at <http://www.jayco.com>.

The property is located in a manufacturing zone that allows for heavy manufacturing uses, Russell said.

Neither Yoder nor Russell would give the property's selling price. Jayco, based in the heart of Amish country in rural Middlebury, Ind., rolled its first trailer off the line at its Twin Falls assembly plant in early 2005.

It opened with 10 employees and one production line, making a dozen Jay Flight travel trailers a day. Today, Jayco West has 190 employees and two production lines and turns out 18 trailers a day, Yoder said.

Those numbers will continue to grow.

"There will be more jobs coming around," Yoder said.

Dave McAlindin, economic director for the city of Twin Falls, said the land is located in the city's area of impact and will be annexed into the city. He said it's always good news when "a quality employer looks to make an additional investment in Twin Falls."

"What a terrific thing for the community," McAlindin said. "It certainly demonstrates Jayco's commitment to Twin Falls and will provide additional opportunities for quality jobs for residents of the Magic Valley."

GAO: U.S. hoodwinked in Katrina aftermath

WASHINGTON — The government doled out as much as $1.4 billion in bogus assistance to victims of Hurricane Katrina and Rita, getting hoodwinked to pay for season football tickets, a tropical vacation and even a divorce lawyer, congressional investigators have found.

Prison inmates, a supposed victim who used a New Orleans cemetery for a home address, and a person who spent 70 days at a Hawaiian hotel all were able to wrongly get taxpayer help, according to evidence that gives a new black eye to the nation's disaster relief agency.

Agents from the General Accountability Office, the investigative arm of Congress, went undercover to receive disaster expense checks from the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The GAO concluded that as much as 18 percent of the billions of dollars in FEMA help to individuals after the two hurricanes was unwaranted.

Alberto lashes Florida Gulf Coast

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. — The first tropical storm of the hurricane season was less than advertised Tuesday, bringing rain, gusty winds and some light flooding to Florida's Gulf Coast without blowing up into the hurricane forecasters feared. There were no immediate reports of any serious injuries or deaths.

Patrick Kennedy sentenced for DUI

WASHINGTON — Rep. Patrick Kennedy pleaded guilty Tuesday to driving under the influence of prescription drugs and was sentenced to undergo court-ordered drug treatment and a year's probation. Kennedy, 40, also was ordered to pay at least $350 in connection with his middle-of-the-night car crash last month near the Capitol. Two other charges against Kennedy were dismissed: reckless driving and failure to exhibit a driving permit.

Hilton enjoying being 'single for first time'

NEW YORK — Paris Hilton says she's enjoying The Single Life. Hilton, who stars in E! Entertainment Television's "The Simple Life" opposite ex-friend Nicole Richie, told "Live With Regis and Kelly" on Tuesday that she's "single for the first time" in her life. "I always have a boyfriend all the time, so I've never really got to know me and, like, have time for myself because I spend all my energy on the boyfriend," the 25-year-old hotel heiress-actress said. Hilton, who ended her engagement to Greek shipping heir Paris Latsis last year, recently broke up with Stavros Niarchos, another Greek shipping heir.

Coulter bashes 9/11 widows, sees sales rocket

By Jocelyn Noveck Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — In the 48 hours after Ann Coulter's comments bashing Sept. 11 widows hit the airwaves last week, searches for her name on Yahoo rocketed by 2300 percent. Profits came from Hillary Clinton, the 9/11 commission, New York's governor and Fox host Bill O'Reilly. Her new book shot to No. 1 on Amazon.com, where it remains.

For those who practice the art of outrageousness, there seems little downside to upping the ante — that's what their audiences want and expect. In other words, the old adage pretty much holds: There is such thing as bad publicity.

In case anyone missed it, the furor centered on Coulter's remarks about four women who lost their husbands at the World Trade Center and later became active in public, pushing for the creation of the Sept. 11 commission investigating the attacks and supporting Sen. John Kerry for president.

"These broads are millionaires, honored on TV and in articles about them, reveling in their status as celebrities and stalked by grief-arranges," the conservative pundit writes in "Godless: The Church of Political commentator Ann Coulter poses in New York's Central Park in 2003.

Liberalism," released last Tuesday. "I've never seen people enjoying their husbands' deaths so much." Later, she adds, "And by the way, how do we know their husbands weren't planning to divorce these harpies?"

Some wondered aloud: Had Coulter gone off the deep end? Others saw it as a well-honed marketing strategy. What's clear, though, is that Coulter had an image to sustain. In this age of the blogosphere, 24-hour cable TV and talk radio, it takes a lot to rise above the din. And when you've made a name based on being outrageous, you need to keep it up.

"There's something about the momentum of sustaining a reputation based on noise," says cultural critic Roger Rosenblatt of Time magazine. "Someone like Coulter, in order to sustain the reputation that she's forged for herself, is likely to think 'What can I say now?' Eventually, how insulting can you get?"

Although Coulter is a unique package — the long blond hair, the little black dresses, the ideas delivered rapid-fire with stunning self-confidence — there are certainly others who have thrived via the art of outrageousness.

On the airwaves, Rush Limbaugh has been criticized for his comments on blacks, on feminists, on gays and, of course, liberals. Recently, he called the black student making rape accusations against Duke lacrosse players a "ho"; he later apologized. He's called feminists "femi-Nazis," and used the sound effect of a vacuum cleaner on his show to simulate abortion.

There's Howard Stern, the hugely popular "shock jock" (and best-selling author) whose material led to $1.7 million in FCC fines before he moved to satellite radio in January. Stern favors sexual and scatological talk and once prayed on air that the prostate cancer sufferer by an FCC nemesis would spread to his lungs and kidneys — "that was me being outrageous," he was quoted as saying later. Last month, he was named one of Time magazine's 100 most influential people.

On the left, filmmaker Michael Moore, the Oscar-winning director of "Fahrenheit 9/11," is a particular target of conservatives for his no-holds-barred attacks on President Bush. MSNBC host Tucker Carlson calls him "actually worse than Ann Coulter, and he actually makes arguments you can rebut." And Air America radio host Al Franken — author of the not-so-subtly titled "Rush Limbaugh is a Big Fat Idiot" and "Lies and the Lying Liars Who Tell Them: A Fair and Balanced Look at the Right" — is hardly a favorite of conservatives either.

In the TV-talk world, where Coulter thrives, the phenomenon is especially troubling, says popular culture analyst Jerry Herron.

"A patient, thoughtful, analytical person is made invisible in this world of sustained screaming," says Herron, a professor at Wayne State University. Nowadays, he says, you need to be "an ideologue with a very nice haircut." Or, perhaps, with long blond hair and a little black dress.

Rove won't be charged but may be star witness in Libby's trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Karl Rove won't be a criminal defendant in the CIA leak case, but he could still end up being grilled in court as a witness.

Special Counsel Patrick Fitzgerald could question Rove about whether the Bush administration compromised a CIA officer's identity to retaliate against a political critic.

Still, Rove and the White House could breathe a sigh of relief Tuesday after the prosecutor told Rove's lawyer he wouldn't seek a federal indictment against the political operative.

Rove has been identified as a likely defense witness in next year's trial of I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby, Vice President Dick Cheney's former chief of staff. Libby has been charged with lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury about how he learned about Valerie Plame's CIA status and what he told reporters about it.

If Libby's defense attorneys summon Rove to testify, Fitzgerald could cross-examine him about a host of issues, including a July 2003 conversation Rove had with syndicated columnist Robert Novak days before Novak published Plame's name.

Aboard Air Force One Tuesday, President Bush praised Fitzgerald.

"It's a chapter that has ended," Bush said. "Fitzgerald is a very thorough person. I think he's conducted his investigation in a dignified way.

The president said White House officials would remain mum about the leak and the results of the investigation. "I think it's going to be important for you all to recognize there's still a trial to be had," he said to reporters. "And those of us involved in the White House are going to be very mindful of not commenting on this issue ... because of the Libby trial."

At the White House, Rove was all smiles, as he usually is, as he carried out his normal routine. With Chief of Staff Joshua Bolten in Iraq with Bush, Rove ran the senior staff meeting.

One Idaho inmate still on the run in Texas

BOISE (AP) — One of two Idaho inmates who escaped from a privately run Texas prison in the midst of a disturbance that distracted guards remained on the loose Tuesday.

Rudolfo Garcia-Lopez, 38, serving up to 20 years for aggravated assault and attempted kidnapping, climbed a perimeter fence Monday evening at the Newton County Correctional Center in eastern Texas.

Another inmate, Orlando Gonzalez-Leon, 27, in prison for up to 50 years for second-degree murder, escaped with Garcia-Lopez but was recaptured Monday evening about 90 minutes later.

The two men are among 450 Idaho inmates moved to Texas and Minnesota to ease overcrowding.

There have been several disturbances in the Texas facility since March, including Idaho inmates being doused with pepper spray and a prisoner strike Sunday. Idaho sent a security expert to the prison Tuesday to consult with officials there over guard training and to keep colleagues in Idaho apprised of the manhunt.

Idaho Correction Department spokeswoman Melinda O'Malley Koehler said some prisoners are unhappy to be in Texas, which is a likely cause of the disturbances.

Garcia-Lopez and Gonzalez-Leon were shipped to Texas in March.

In addition to 419 prisoners in Texas, some 30 Idaho inmates are at a prison in Minnesota.

Over the last decade, the number of Idaho inmates has doubled to nearly 7,000, leaving the state with about 1,000 fewer beds than it needs to house them all.

Correction Department spokeswoman Teresa Jones said Monday's prison break occurred after guards were called to a separate wing of the Texas prison, giving the Idaho inmates an opportunity to climb the fence.

President Bush, left, walks with Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki in the courtyard of the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad, Iraq, Tuesday. Bush assured Iraqis in a surprise visit to Baghdad on Tuesday that the United States stands with them and their new government, saying "it's in our interest that Iraq succeed."

Bush's secret mission surprises Iraq's leader

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — President Bush told Iraq's new leader in a surprise face-to-face visit on Tuesday that the fate of his war-scarred country is in Iraq's own hands — and was pressed in turn not to withdraw U.S. troops too quickly.

"There's a worry almost to a person that we will leave before they are capable of defending themselves," — President Bush and to ease war concerns at home, the president said the United States would stand by the new government as it works to achieve stability.

"When America gives its word, it keeps its word," Bush said. At the same time, he emphasized that Iraq must control its own destiny.

"The decisions you and your cabinet make will be determinative as to whether or not a country succeeds that can govern itself, sustain itself and defend itself," he told al-Maliki.

Bush's trip comes at a time when many Democrats — and some in his own party — are calling for a substantial number of American troops to be brought home by the end of this year.

War anxiety has been the driving force behind Bush's plunge in the polls and a cause of Republican distress about holding control of Congress in the November mid-term elections.

Bush spent just over 5½ hours in Baghdad. It was his second unannounced visit in the three-year war. He met with American troops at Thanksgiving 2003 in a visit confined to the airport and limited to several hours.

Bush slipped away from what had been billed as a two-day meeting at Camp David, Md., for a secret 11-hour overnight flight that brought him to his first direct talks with al-Maliki and members of the new government.

His visit was accompanied by incredibly tight security. On the way out, lights were turned off, both on the helicopters that took Bush and his entourage to the airport and on Air Force One itself.

Only a handful of close aides knew about the trip in advance. al-Maliki himself did not know the president was in Baghdad until five minutes before they met in the blue-domed palace once used by Saddam Hussein but which now houses part of the U.S. Embassy in the heavily fortified Green Zone.

War anxiety has been the driving force behind Bush's real estate prices climb. A donor could defray the costs of creating a new park. Just said, "Small parcels wouldn't work for us," he said. "But there might be someone out there who would be interested in donating or making a partial donation of 500 to 1,000 acres they love, to assure that it remains intact and open to the public."

The $1 million allocation was part of former Gov. Dirk Kempthorne's "Experience Idaho" parks initiative.

Officials hoping donor will provide land for new Idaho state park

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The state agency that will approve a site for Idaho's newest state park is hoping a donor will provide the bulk of the land.

Rick Just, comprehensive planning manager for the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation, said the $1 million allocated by the Legislature for a new park in eastern Idaho might not be enough to buy large parcels of pristine land.

BOISE (AP) — Commissioners in eastern Idaho's Madison County have decided to rescind, at least temporarily, their ban of the local health district's emergency contraception program.

Officials of District 7, a health district that covers eight counties, hope they will be able to continue to offer the contraception.

Be mindful of employers after property tax victory

Three Idaho counties may have reason to celebrate as the Supreme Court decision validating their property tax assessments for sugar beet plants owned by Amalgamated Sugar Co. The Supreme Court ruling did not include Minidoka County, but that county stands to benefit in the future since its assessment formula mirrored the other two counties.

The scorecard now appears complete in this legal standoff. Amalgamated officials apparently have used all legal avenues. The lengthy litigation helped lower the high assessment from $167 million to $121 million for all three plants, but it's not much consolation. The district court basically approved the Twin Falls plant's assessed value at $35 million, a fraction higher than the $34.5 million it initially earned from the county in 2002.

Our view: If counties use their tax authority to boost corporate taxes excessively, workers and local economies pay in the long run.

What do you think? We welcome viewpoints from our readers on this and other issues.

Leaving the justices give you the authority to higher taxes is one thing, but using it excessively is another.

The dispute between Amalgamated and the three counties went back years. The company appealed significant property tax increases handed down in 2002. Previously to that year, the counties used an assessment formula measuring plant earnings. The new formula used a new hybrid valuation formula that included revenue potential rather than actual income.

As a result, Amalgamated's three plants were assessed at $167 million in 2002, three times the plant's previous combined assessment of $55 million in 2001. Upon appeal, the State Board of Tax Appeals said in the 2002 valuation should be around $52 million. Even the BTA wrote that that low assessment was closer to facilities with "safer" valuations. The counties proceeded with an appeal to the district court, which reversed the BTA's ruling. The court let the counties create a new assessment worth about $121 million. The district court found it more reliable, and the Supreme Court upheld that court's ruling.

Those factors led to hundreds of lost jobs at another Amalgamated plant in Myssa. Ore. Last year, given those indicators, does this really sound like industry which counties want to overtax? Rupert residents are currently engaged in a heated blame game with city officials in the wake of Kraft's decision to close its local cheese plant. Many feel that the city's high wastewater sewer rates were a major factor in the closure. That sentiment also resonated after Simplist closed its potato plant in Heyburn after lengthy disputes over that city's power rates.

With high county property taxes, now cutting into the bottom line, Amalgamated Sugar must fight even harder to avoid the same fate as those companies.

Michael Berg, a Green Party candidate for Congress on Long Island, announced on national television that he requested the death of Abu Musab al-Zarqawi. He didn't blame al-Zarqawi for heading an American contractor. The man responsible was President Bush — "the real terrorist."

Any other politician would have been vilified for saying that. But Berg, as the father of the American who was beheaded, belongs to a new politically invulnerable class. Arguing with someone in mourning just isn't done — unless, of course, you are Ann Coulter and you have a new book to sell.

She managed to offend everyone from Hillary Clinton to Bill O'Reilly by suggesting that some of the activist widows of the Sept. 11 victims were enjoying their husbands' deaths. That's over the top even for Coulter. But she has identified a real problem: How do you conduct a political argument with grieving relatives?

Coulter faults liberals for exploiting victims and their relatives as human shields for their arguments against the war and in favor of gun control. But conservatives use these tactics too.

Bush had the parents of a slain child soldier stand up during the State of the Union address as a tacit endorsement of his policy. Republican widows of Sept. 11 victims have been exploiting their status to oppose the Democratic widows.

America is supposed to be a government of laws, not men, but the surest way to pass a law is to name it after someone. Ideally a girl or woman. Dozens of states have passed Megan's laws. There's another measure against sex offenders in Ohio called Nicole's Law, not to be confused with the Nicole's Law in Massachusetts, which requires mandatory monoxide detectors in homes.

There is a federal Katie's Law (giving money to rural police agencies), a New Mexico Katie's Law (requiring DNA samples to be collected from suspects), and a Minnesota Katie's Law (providing money to track sex offenders).

The ultimate in custom legislation was Terri's Law, designed solely to prolong Terri Schiavo's life.

There's also Kristen's Act, Jennifer's Law, Arnie's Law, Brian's Bill, and the Hillary J. Sarlas and Samantha Reid Drug-Rape Drug Prevention Act.

Some of these laws undoubtedly make sense, but the names appended to them cut short the sort of debate required.

Grieving relatives certainly have a right to be heard, and their stories need to be considered by legislators and judges. But having tragedy strike your family does not make you an expert on public policy. Instead, it warps your perspective. You become the most narrow special-interest group, obsessed with redressing a personal loss no matter what the cost to society.

When Michael Dukakis was asked during a presidential debate if he'd want to execute a man who raped his wife, he blundered by calmly explaining his opposition to capital punishment. The audience wanted to hear an angry, vengeful husband, but Dukakis tried to be a dispassionate arbiter of justice — a completely different role.

When those roles are conflated by victims-turned-activists, the result tends to be good television and bad politics. The parents of abducted children couldn't anticipate all the wasted police resources and harassment of innocent adults that resulted from their laws. Putting photographic patients in front of congressional committees is not the best way to divvy up budgets for medical research. The widows and widowers of the victims of Sept. 11 are not urban planners who should get veto power over the rebuilding at ground zero. The parents of Americans killed in Iraq do not have special expertise in foreign policy.

Whether they support the war or not, they are expressing their personal views, and not necessarily even their slain children's. Cindy Sheehan camped outside President Bush's ranch in Texas to protest the war, but her son voluntarily re-enlisted before his death.

But as long as television viewers respond to pictures of tearful relatives, there's no way to stop them from having a disproportionate influence.

I can't imagine how I would feel if my child were killed. Nor could I imagine how my family would feel if I met a violent death, but I'm pretty sure I would rather not become a symbol for anyone else's cause. The world doesn't need a John's law.

State working to boost graduation standards

A recent Times-News article lamented the low graduation standards for many of the Magic Valley high schools. I couldn't agree more about that. The current state graduation requirements will not have enough classes to go on to any Idaho college. The board wants to increase graduation requirements so students have the right classes that will prepare them for life after high school.

The Times-News article compared Idaho's low graduation requirements to requirements of other states. Idaho's graduation requirements, particularly in math and science, are of grave concern to the State Board of Education.

After the Sempex fiasco, it was disappointing to read a press report that Idaho Power wants to build a coal plant in Idaho in the next six years and wants Idaho to "opt in" to the federal mercury emissions program.

Reportedly, an Idaho Power planning committee that meets once every two years got together recently and identified coal power in the state as the best way for Idaho to meet its energy needs. Somebody should tell Idaho Power that its planning committee doesn't decide whether

More than 35 states have higher graduation requirements than Idaho. In the last year, five states increased their requirements: Florida, Kentucky, Iowa, Utah and Michigan. Now Ohio, Texas, Missouri, Mississippi and a dozen more states are proposing increases.

We want our students to be competitive on a global scale, where Idaho students may compete against students from emerging competitors like China and India. But we must first be competitive with other states such as Indiana and Arkansas.

If a school district were to use the current state graduation requirements, students would only need 42 credits to graduate, with 25 of those credits in core subjects like social studies, humanities, English, math and science. The Times-News article correctly points out that the state does not mandate grade-point average for graduation. Students must pass their classes in order to receive credit, but there isn't a cumulative GPA required.

School districts can always raise their requirements to include a C average, but at this time, the state of Idaho does not require it. About 20 years ago, before I was on the State Board, there was a requirement for a C average in only a handful of classes. But that was rescinded about 10 years ago.

Students in Idaho must also be able to show they know the state standards through a minimum competency test. In order for a student to graduate, they must pass a combination of classes and receive a proficient score on the Idaho Standards Achievement Test in math, reading and language usage in their sophomore year. This is the first year students must pass the ISAT to graduate. The requirement is phased in over three years, so students must pass the 10th grade test at an eighth-grade proficiency rate for the class of 2006.

Students have nine opportunities to take the tests over their junior and senior year. If they do not pass, they can go to their local school board for an alternate assessment.

The board implemented the ISAT graduation requirement as an independent measure of a student's abilities. Idaho isn't alone in requiring passage of the test; more than 25 other states also require it.

I hope this information is helpful as parents and students look at what's required in high school and work together with teachers, administrators and the State Board of Education to increase rigor in Idaho schools and ensure our children are prepared for citizenship, work and post-secondary education in a globally competitive society.

Laird Stone of Twin Falls is president of the Idaho State Board of Education.

Energy talks need more public input

A few words about what has been going on with Sempex and coal-fired plants. The newspapers aren't reporting on what is happening. The Department of Environmental Quality must decide and give to our new governor a decision on whether to opt-in or opt-out of the federal cap and trade mercury rule by November 2006. We all know if Idaho doesn't opt-in to the federal cap and trade, we will stay at zero emissions. This and this move will effectively stop any coal-fired plant from building in Idaho.

The DEQ and our new governor need to know how you feel about this issue. Personally, I say this is a no-brainer — opt-out now. The state Energy Interim Committee has been meeting two days a month in Boise. Some interesting issues have come up.

One, they seem to think that they must complete their plan by January 2007. Why?

They have two years. The speed of accomplishments of this committee looks like they will need two years and more, or are they in a hurry because Sempex is on fire? It could live with a one-year moratorium? Secondly, they hired a consultant called E3. This is a big international consulting firm out of San Francisco. A list of clients includes a lot of coal companies. The big issue is that this company came right out and told the committee it didn't believe in public involvement, and it doesn't do "big tent" processes. I think this is a big concern.

Third, I can't see why this committee can't meet around the state. It certainly would be nice to sit in on some of these meetings and just maybe we could add something.

Last, you know that Obenauer defeated Lierman for Jerome County commissioner. In my opinion, this is a good thing. Joe Davidson barely won. What does that tell you? RALPH FRIEDEMANN Jerome

Idaho Power must still go to people

After the Sempex fiasco, it was disappointing to read a press report that Idaho Power wants to build a coal plant in Idaho in the next six years and wants Idaho to "opt in" to the federal mercury emissions program.

Reportedly, an Idaho Power planning committee that meets once every two years got together recently and identified coal power in the state as the best way for Idaho to meet its energy needs. Somebody should tell Idaho Power that its planning committee doesn't decide whether coal power will be used to meet Idaho's energy needs — the people of Idaho decide that. And the people of Idaho (at least those of us in the Magic Valley) have sent a clear signal that coal power is not acceptable here. Idaho Power and the other regulated utilities need to be reminded that they don't steer Idaho's boat they just get paid to row. The people of Idaho, through their elected representatives and the Public Utilities Commission get to set the course and steer.

Isn't that right, Gov. Risch? Isn't that right, Board of Environmental Quality members? Isn't that right, Energy

Environment and Technology Interim Committee members?

Control terms, offers to boost salmon

In response to a previous letter about saving the salmon and asking for other ideas, here is mine: Controlling term and other populations would help. Additionally, how many salmon can the Indians eat?

Why are they allowed to take so many? Perhaps these measures would be cheaper than breaching the dams. VIRGINIA NIX Hagerman

After al-Zarqawi, there are plenty of enemies to go

The killing in Iraq of the archterrorist Abu Musab al-Zarqawi is important both for Iraq and for the U.S. political debate about Iraq. It is important for Iraq for a few reasons. First, al-Zarqawi was finally tracked down because someone in his organization or in the Sunni community in Iraq turned against him.

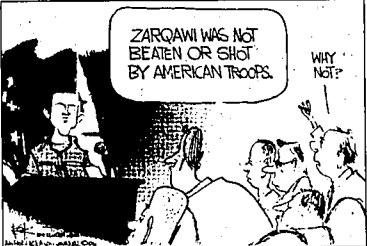

THOMAS FRIEDMAN

Democrats more trusted to manage key domestic issues - from health care to the budget - but they pulled even with Republicans on national security, a traditional Democratic Party weakness. If I were the Democrats, though, I wouldn't get too comfortable.

What the polls show is largely the result of President Bush's incompetent performance in Iraq, rather than the emergence of a convincing Democratic national security message or group of candidates respected on defense. When it comes to national security, I've always felt that voters don't listen through their ears. They listen through their gut. They vote based on a visceral sense of whether a candidate understands we have real enemies and is ready to confront them.

What al-Zarqawi and the recently arrested group of terrorists in Canada remind us of is that, whatever you think about the Iraq war, open societies today are threatened by these utterly ruthless jihadis. Many Americans feel that.

If Democrats want to really seize control of the national security issue, they must persuade the country - in its gut - that they have a convincing post-Iraq strategy to rally the world against these Islamo-totalitarians.

Precisely how is the subject of two insightful, provocative new books. One is "The Good Fight: Why Liberals - and Only Liberals - Can Win the War on Terror and Make America Great Again," by Peter Beinart, editor at large of The New Republic.

The other is "With All Our Might: A Progressive Strategy for Defeating Jihadism and Defending Liberty," essays edited by Will Marshall, who heads the Progressive Policy Institute.

"Democrats should be full-throated in their critique of Bush," Beinart said in an interview. "He has done terrible things. But Democrats are involved in a two-sided struggle: One is against Bush, and one is against Islamic totalitarianism. They are two separate things. You have to have an answer to that second problem."

Harry Truman's great achievement, argued Beinart, was to persuade his party and the country "that anti-Communism was a liberal principle, not just a conservative one, and that Democrats had their own strategy to deal with it - a strategy that included powerful international institutions like NATO, which made American power legitimate abroad, and civil rights, which made America a better country at home."

Democrats need to do the same today. That means, he said, building institutions that can intervene in failed states, offering their own strategies for confronting the jihadis, and dealing honestly and decently with prisoners in this murky war.

"Some Democrats want to believe that the only reason we lost the last election is because the other side plays dirty and we don't," Beinart said. "But that's not the only reason we lost."

Going into 2008, added Marshall, when Bush will not be on the ballot, Democrats need to convey to voters "that they viscerally understand that liberty is in danger" when groups of people around the world think they can kill anyone at any time. "There has been real denial about that among some Democrats," he said, "and a tendency to focus only on what we've done wrong."

Democrats can be credible on this issue, Democrats understand "that the president has squandered our assets in fighting an overly militarized war on terror," Marshall said. "We understand that allies matter and that power should be exercised through institutions that legitimate our power and help others work with us. And we understand that America's economic might and our status as an open and prosperous society has enormous magnetic appeal to people."

Public, media need to have trust in Marines

What we have here is (a) failure to communicate. That famous line from the 1967 Paul Newman classic, "Cool Hand Luke," might well apply to Iraq today, and specifically, to Haditha, where U.S. Marines are alleged to have massacred innocent Iraqi civilians last November.

KATHLEEN PARKER

Co. (3rd Battalion, 3rd Marines), written from Haditha to friends and family of India Company. Lynch first wrote of the difficulties of adjusting to the "nuances of this complex setting," then described how his men had adapted:

"The Marines immediately recognized the key to success would be to establish themselves as the dominant entity in the city, the alpha male, who by their professionalism and aggressive posture would foster trust with the local population and command respect from our enemy."

"Every Marine can recognize subtle shifts in the population's mood, identify slight changes in the normal rhythm of the city's activities and can often sense the presence of an insurgent before seeing him... all Marines are experts in reading body language, and can spot a nervous tic, a lie or a cover story during the first few exchanges in one of dozens of conversations they have with locals every day."

"The type of fight India Company is engaged in requires a special brand of fighter. Brash displays of firepower and unbarreled aggression are not only ineffective but also counterproductive. Self-discipline, tireless vigilance, prudent judgment and the patience of a hunter are the most valued skills, and Marines have learned to trust the hairs on the back of their neck more than anything else."

We don't know what we don't know, but those Marines don't sound like the kind of men who would knowingly mow down 24 innocent men, women and children.

That's what we should be communicating to the world instead of allowing a tiny minority to define us - or telegraphing to our enemies that our military needs ethics training.

Not that continuing education isn't always a good idea. In that spirit, perhaps Lynch could perform some alpha male training with certain faithless officers next time he's in Washington.

Not only do we not know what happened in Haditha, but we've failed to communicate effectively to the rest of the world what we do know: that our Marines always deserve the benefit of the doubt. And that if something did go terribly wrong in Haditha, it was a rare exception to the rule.

Instead of launching an aggressive PR campaign to debunk the growing impression that such incidents, if true, are war for American forces, we get a presumption of guilt and an ethics course to fix a problem that isn't a problem.

The failure to communicate responsibly and strategically in this case, coupled with the rush to judgment in the international court of public opinion, has hurt not only the Marines under investigation, but also all our military men and women serving in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The drill is too familiar by now. The action begins with someone (apparently anyone will do) making an accusation: next come the cameras and the media saturation, and, Voila! we have a conviction before we have a formal charge.

Whether the alleged perpetrators are prison guards at Abu Ghraib, lacrosse players at Duke University or Marines in Haditha, we are predisposed to assume guilt.

In Iraq, we might add to our failure to communicate a failure of confidence in ourselves and of faith in our own. Given that Haditha is dense with insurgents whose tactics do not come from the Marine Corps playbook, it is possible that they, not we, killed the civilians, or that they used them as human shields? Killing civilians, after all, is the rule among those who seek to drive the U.S. from Iraq.

It is also possible that some of our Marines lost control and did the worst? Of course. Prolonged exposure to combat takes a toll on the human psyche.

In 1946, following a study of World War II veterans, John W. Apple and Gilbert W. Beebe wrote in "The Journal of the American Medical Association":

"Each moment of combat imposes a strain so great that men will break down in direct relation to the intensity and duration of their exposure. Thus psychiatric casualties are as inevitable as gunshot and shrapnel wounds in warfare."

Even so, today's Marines are as well trained and disciplined as any fighting force in human history.

What is alleged to have happened simply doesn't jibe with what we know about the Corps in general and about Haditha in particular.

Hawking: Humans must spread out in space to survive

HONG KONG (AP) — The survival of the human race depends on its ability to find new homes elsewhere in the universe because there's an increasing risk that a disaster will destroy Earth, world-renowned physicist Stephen Hawking said Tuesday.

Humans could have a permanent base on the moon in 20 years and a colony on Mars in the next 40 years, the British scientist told a news conference.

"We won't find anywhere as nice as Earth unless we go to another star system," added Hawking, who came to Hong Kong to a rock star's welcome Monday. Tickets for his lecture Wednesday were sold out.

Hawking said that if humans can avoid killing themselves in the next 100 years, they should have space settlements that can continue without support from Earth.

"It is important for the human race to spread out into space for the survival of the species," Hawking said. "The risk on Earth is at the ever-increasing risk of being wiped out by a disaster, such as sudden global warming, nuclear war, a genetically engineered virus or other dangers we have not yet thought of."

The 64-year-old scientist — author of the global best-seller "A Brief History of Time" — uses a wheelchair and communicates with the help of a computer because he suffers from a neurological disorder called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS.

One of the best-known theoretical physicists of his generation, Hawking has done groundbreaking research on black holes and the origins of the universe, proposing that space and time have no beginning and no end.

However, Alan Guth, a physics professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said Hawking's latest observations were something of a departure from his usual research and more applicable to survival over the long-term.

"It is a new area for him to look at," Guth said. "If he's talking about the next 100 years and beyond, it does make sense to think about space as the ultimate lifeboat." But, he added, "I don't see the likely possibility within the next 50 years of science technology making it easier to survive on Mars and on the moon than it would be to survive on earth."

"I would still think that an underground base, for example in Antarctica, would be easier to build than building on the moon," Guth said.

Joshua Winn, an astrophysicist at the California Institute of Technology, agreed. "The prospect of colonizing other planets is very far off, you must realize," he said.

Renowned astrophysicist Stephen Hawking from the University of Cambridge listens to reporter's questions at the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology in Hong Kong Tuesday.

Israeli airstrike against militants also kills civilians

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — An Israeli airstrike on a top Palestinian rocket launcher and his accomplice also killed two children and six other civilians Tuesday, inflaming Palestinian anger already aroused over the deaths of Gaza beachgoers.

The violence coincided with bloody fighting among Palestinian gunmen, and could hurt attempts by President Mahmoud Abbas as the West to pressure the Hamas government to moderate its virulently anti-Israel stance.

Abbas accused Israel of "state terrorism," and the Islamic Jihad militant group vowed to avenge the death of its chief rocket launcher, Hamoud Wadly.

An official Israeli inquiry, meanwhile, concluded Israel was not responsible for the blast that killed eight Gaza beachgoers Friday, rejecting Palestinian accusations that an Israeli artillery round was to blame.

The results of the probe, released Tuesday, concluded the blast was caused by an explosive buried in the sand, but it was not clear how it got there. Israel has claimed that Hamas militants planted the device to target Israeli commandos.

Palestinians angrily rejected the findings, saying militants were unlikely to plant bombs at a beach teeming with hundreds of people every weekend. Ghazi Hamad, a spokesman for the Hamas-led government, called the findings "baseless" and Palestinian lawmaker Saeb Erekat, who is close to Abbas, called for an international inquiry.

Nate Robertson sprints towards first base after connecting with the ball Tuesday in Game 1 of Cowboys doubleheader against Pocatello at the Skip Walker Field in Twin Falls.

Ugly, but they'll take it

Cowboys AA score 10 in first on way to one-sided rout of Rebels

By Brad Gaire
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If you read the box score first, that's no typo. The Twin Falls Cowboys AA squad practically run-routed the Pocatello Rebels during the first inning before taking Game 1 14-0 in five innings at Skip Walker Field on Tuesday.

What should have been routine plays for the Rebels defense turned into extra-base hits for the Cowboys. While Pocatello committed zero errors, they suffered simply from bad play. Unfortunately for Pocatello, there isn't a 15-run, 3-inning rule like in softball.

Leadoff man Kenny Steelman roped a hard double to left field to get things started in the first. The second baseman went 3-for-4 in the game and all three were doubles. "It was just right there, right down the middle," Steelman said. "Like (batting practice). Just wait on it."

The Cowboys put together 10 runs on 10 hits in 14 at-bats that inning. Seven of those runs came with two men out. To make a very long inning short, Steelman had two doubles. Tyler Anderson singled and walked. Nate Robertson pounded a two-RBI home run and singled. Bo Folkings doubled, Remington Pullin and Kasey Jeroue singled and Jace Barnes and Chance Elam doubled.

In an amusing side note, when Jeroue singled to advance Pullin to third, Pullin thought he'd tried for home with the ball headed there as well. With catcher Jason Olsen moving to meet him down the base path, Pullin juked him right out of his cleats by sidestepping onto the infield grass to reach home plate for the fifth run.

The only strikeout pitcher Casey Lish saw was his own against Cowboys pitcher Mitchell Darne during the top of the first. He was relieved by Tyrel Dimick, who picked up the final out as Drew Bernhard flew out to left.

All of this coming off a few days' worth of rest after a series against the Idaho Falls Reds was rained out.

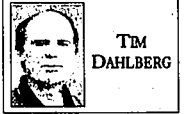

"I think the rest definitely did help us charge our guys back up a little bit," Twin Falls head coach Tim Stadelmeier said. "We weren't swinging it well at the end of last week, so it's good to see the guys be more aggressive at the plate."

Athletes and bikes a bad mix

The list is startling, mainly because it is so long. Jason Williams may never play in the NBA again because he couldn't stay off his motorcycle. A ride on his bike in a parking lot cost Kellen Winslow the $3 million and nearly his career with the Cleveland Browns.

Dennis Rodman wrecked

TM

his twice, the second time in front of a strip club for added effect.

And now Ben Roethlisberger is in a Pittsburgh hospital recovering after seven hours of surgery for a broken jaw, nose and who knows what else after his bike hit a car.

Not just any bike. He was riding the fastest street-legal motorcycle you can buy.

Without a helmet. Not the brightest thing to do. So dumb, in fact, that even fellow Suzuki Hayabusa riders were shaking their heads.

"Wear a helmet on the field, but not on a bike? Makes no sense to me," one wrote on a "Busa message board."

Doesn't make much sense to anyone, especially the Pittsburgh Steelers, who lectured their young quarterback to no avail about his motorcycle habits. Of course, had the Steelers shown some backbone and put a clause in Roethlisberger's contract prohibiting motorcycle riding, he might not be in the hospital today.

Just what is it about these men and their machines? More to the point, what is it that makes Roethlisberger want to drive the Pittsburgh streets with his hair flowing in the wind on a motorcycle that reaches 139 mph in the quarter mile?

"Taking his from Ray Lewis can ruin your day. Taking them from a Chrysler New Yorker can ruin your life."

Joey Porter had it right last year when asked about his quarterback riding motorcycles.

"What I say about motorcycles is that concrete is undefeated," Porter said.

Unfortunately, there's a lot of athletes who can't seem to figure that out. Roethlisberger was one of those, insisting on riding his bike even after Winslow crashed his last year and was hurt so badly that his young career was in jeopardy.

Wade, Heat rally past Mavs

The Associated Press

MIAMI — Hours before the biggest game of his life and the most important in this city's hoop history, Dwyane Wade, brimming with confidence and South Beach coolness, gave his take on the NBA finals.

"It's not over," he said. Not if he says so. Wade scored 42 points and orchestrated a furious fourth-quarter Miami comeback that reached its crescendo on Gary Payton's jumper with 9.2 seconds left as the Heat escaped with a 98-96 win over the Dallas Mavericks in Game 3 on Tuesday night.

The Heat rallied from a 13-point deficit in the final 6:34 to keep alive a series that looked to be over with Dallas up 2-0.

"As a team, we just came out and said this could be the season if they win this game," Wade said. "We came out, our offense to the crisp, locked down on defense and came back and won this game."

Despite blowing its big lead, Dallas still had plenty of chances late but Dirk Nowitzki missed one of two free throws with 3.4 seconds to go and the Mavericks couldn't convert on an inbound play in the final second thanks to Wade, who tipped away the last gasp pass after scoring 15 points in the fourth quarter.

As the final horn sounded, Heat fans simultaneously exhausted and exhilarated, tossed their "White Hot" white T-shirts into the air, a celebration that seemed unimaginable just a few minutes earlier.

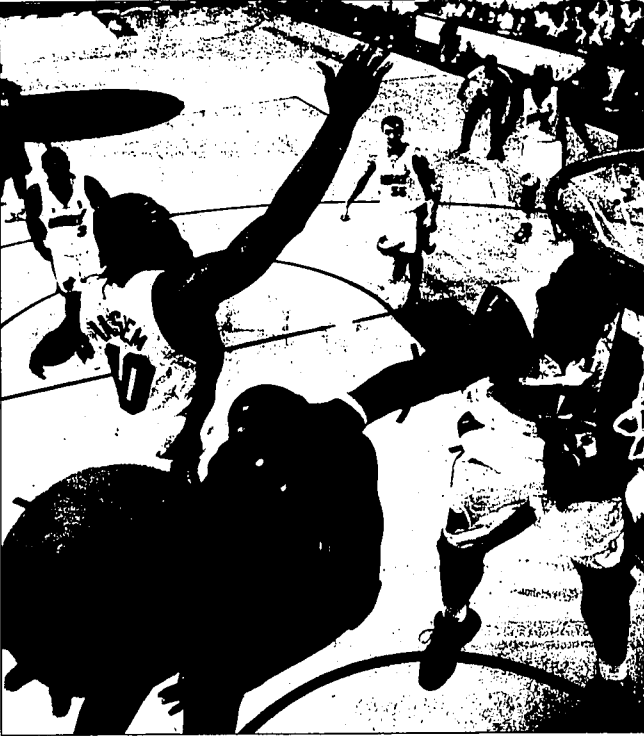

Now, after watching Wade's heroics and Shaquille O'Neal and Udonis Haslem hit four straight crucial free throws in final two minutes, they're coming back for Game 4 on Thursday night.

Miami was down and apparently done after Jason Terry's basket made it 89-76 with 6:34 remaining.

That's when Wade, playing with five fouls and carrying memories of Michael Jordan's playoff miracles, decided it was time for him to take over.

He hit a jumper, completed a 3-point play and dropped in another bucket to bring the Heat within five. Then, after a miss by Nowitzki, Wade drove baseline, hung in the air for what seemed like an eternity, and hit a floater to make it 91-88 with 3:36 to go.

Dallas, meanwhile, which had shown so much poise through 3 1/2 quarters, was coming apart at the seams. Nowitzki's two free throws slowed Miami for a moment, but O'Neal calmly hit two attempts to pull the Heat within 93-90.

Duke's Redick charged with DWI

The Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Duke basketball star J.J. Redick was arrested early Tuesday on charges of drunken driving, another blow to a school shaken by a lacrosse scandal.

Redick, The Associated Press Player of the Year, also was charged with unlawful use of highways for making an illegal U-turn.

Redick, who has a Virginia driver's license, lost his driving privileges in North Carolina for 30 days, police spokeswoman Kamille Michael said.

The 21-year-old Redick was released on $1,000 bond shortly after being taken before a Durham County magistrate. He is to appear in court July 17. The arresting officer wrote in his report that Redick had "very glassy eyes, strong odor of alcohol coming from breath."

Redick had a blood-alcohol level of 0.11 percent. The judge night and want to apologize to my family and the Duke com-

Redick finished his career as the leading scorer in Atlantic Coast Conference history. He is expected to be a high first-round pick in the June 28 NBA draft.

On Monday, he canceled a scheduled Wednesday workout with the Orlando Magic, who have the No. 11 pick in the draft. Magic spokesman Joel Glass declined to say why Redick backed out, and no workout has been rescheduled.

"J.J. knows he made a mistake and regrets it," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said in a statement. "He represented the very best in college athletics and exhibited outstanding character at Duke the last four years. He is and will continue to be a credit to the Duke basketball family. ## Woods already has the galleries buzzing — and it's just practice

By Hank Colb
New York Daily News

MAMARONECK, N.Y. — It was as if all was right with the golf world again.

Tiger Woods stepped onto the Winged Foot Country Club West Course on Monday, and if New York is supposed to be Phil Mickelson's town, you couldn't tell.

The galleries were electric as if it was a tournament day, the buzz unusual for a Monday, even at a major, in this case the U.S. Open. The reason? Tiger was back at a tournament for the first time since the Masters and the funeral of his father, Earl.

"People were genuinely glad to see him. So was I," said Jeff Sluman, who joined Tiger, Charles Howell and Bo Van Pelt for the nine-hole practice round on Winged Foot's front side. "I hadn't seen him since TPC. It was good to see him step over the first tee and hit a little 340-yard drive."

Usually, Woods gets to the course to play at the crack of dawn to avoid the crowds but Monday, he was posted for a 1:14 p.m. tee time. Word spread, crowds packed the grandstand at the first tee but Woods didn't show. Then, at 1:30, he appeared on the range and

Upper Valley shreds Cowboys A in twin bill

SAINT ANTHONY — One line from head coach Devin Kunz pretty well summed up the day for the Twin Falls Cowboys A on Tuesday. "It wasn't a good day for Twin," said Kunz after his squad fell 16-5 and 16-3 against Upper Valley in American Legion action at South Fremont High.

The nightcap got out of control early as Upper Valley scored eight runs in the second and seven more in the third. "We were never really in it," said Kunz. Tyler Long and Robert Ruiz both finished 2-for-3 with a double and Jay Barrow was 2-for-2 to highlight the Cowboys offensive effort.

Upper Valley shreds Cowboys A in twin bill

Upper Valley's talented, veteran team made quick work of the Cowboys as both contests went just five innings. Twin Falls actually led Game 1 3-0 in the first inning and led the score at 5-0 in the top of the fourth. But Upper Valley mustered eight hits and 11 runs in the bottom of that inning to break open the contest.

Roethlisberger was lucky to escape with his life. Steelers fans will consider themselves lucky if he makes it back on the field. The only one listened when former Steelers guard Terry Bradshaw gave him the simplest advice last season. "Ride it when you retire," Bradshaw said.

The bottom of the second looked tame in comparison, as the Cowboys put another four on the scoreboard to give Dame a comfortable lead to work with. "The cushion made all the difference this game because today, I was really struggling hitting my spots," Dame said. "When you have a 10-run lead after the first inning, you can relax a bit there."

In Game 2, Twin Falls once again ran-ruled Pocatello, 13-1. In five innings, Robertson went 4-for-4 again with a home run and a double. A complete box score was unavailable at press time. "They're a good hitting ball club," Rebels coach Rich Dunn said. "We didn't show any errors. They capitalized real well."

Changes ahead for U.S. team

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Changes are ahead for the U.S. soccer team.

The Americans played like tentative tourists in their opening 3-0 loss to the Czech Republic, and need a win against Italy on Saturday to revive their chances of reaching the World Cup's second round.

After reviewing video of the clunker several times, coach Bruce Arena alternated criticism of players with humor Tuesday as the Americans tried to shake off the defeat and start preparations for the Azzurri, a three-time World Cup champion.

Admitting that it was "very rare" to single out players publicly for poor play, Arena repeated his negative assessment of Landon Donovan.

"Landon's lack of aggressiveness in the attack, his running off the ball, his desire to make plays and be part of the game was not on last night," Arena said. "He knows that, and I'm sure he'll pick it up on Saturday."

He also challenged DaMarcus Beasley to accept his critical comments.

"If he's any kind of a player and a man, he understands that," Arena said. "If he doesn't, then he's not going to be able to help us in Games 2 or 3, either."

Defenders Oguchi Onyewu and Eddie Pope, and midfielders Claudio Reyna and Bobby Convey were the only starters praised by Arena.

"After that, there's not a whole lot more that I think was real good on our part," he said. "That's my honest assessment."

Forward Eddie Johnson and midfielder John O'Brien, who entered at halftime against the Czechs, could find their way into the starting lineup against the Italians, with Beasley and perhaps midfielder Pablo Mastroeni winding up on the bench, and Donovan dropped back from forward to midfield.

"I think it's obvious we need to make a couple of changes," Arena said. "What they are, we don't know at this point."

When pressed by a foreign reporter, Arena mocked the question.

"Were not going to go with the 3-0 loss game plan," he said. "We threw that page away after the game and we're going to try to come up with another one."

Forward Brian McBride never had the ball in a scoring position against the Czechs, the result of "not having a good partnership on the night with Landon," according to Arena. Outside backs Eddie Lewis and Steve Cherundolo were faulted for their reluctance to be aggressive.

Convey looks to be a lock for Saturday's lineup, with Arena saying "he'd be a tough guy to take off the field."

The United States has never beaten the Azzurri, going 0-3 against them in Italy and tying them at New Jersey's Giants Stadium in 1984 and Chicago's Soldier Field in 1992. Italy opened with a 2-0 win over Ghana, and Arena made light of the investigation into match-fixing in Serie A games.

"It doesn't look like it's disturbing them a whole lot, from what I can tell," he said. "They're used to scandals. They're playing right through this scandal. It'll be fine. I think we need a scandal."

Arena said Tuesday and Wednesday would be days to "regroup, lick our wounds a little bit." Playing Italy will be different than facing the Czechs.

"One of the easiest teams in the world to scout, one of the hardest to play against," he said. "You know what they got, you know how it's coming. It doesn't change from game to game, from year to year....The Italians are coming at you mano a mano."

Arena predicted Italy would play conservatively and be happy with a tie.

While their bad goal differential, the Americans probably need two wins to advance.

Unlike four years ago, a 1-1 record doesn't appear likely to be good enough, so a victory Saturday is paramount.

"It can be done," Arena said. "We have a group of players that are resilient, and I think we will respond well and play a good game on Saturday."

Note: Pope was to have an X-ray of an injured hand, but Arena said "there's no problem." He said the oft-injured O'Brien had an unspecified "setback" last week, but had gotten past it. Italian MF Francesco Totti was cleared to play after an X-ray showed his left leg was fine. Totti, who broke the leg nearly four months ago, took a hit below the knee 55 minutes into Monday's game. Azzurri D Gianluca Zambrotta was also cleared to play after sitting out of the Ghana game with a left thigh injury. Zambrotta took part in a training match with a local youth team Tuesday and appeared at full strength. MF Giovanni Gattuso is still recovering from a right thigh problem.

Defending champ Brazil tops Croatia

BERLIN (AP) — Brazil's quest for a sixth World Cup title is off to a raucous start.

Kaka delighted the Brazilian fans who have sambled their way to Germany, scoring in the 44th minute, and the defending champions won a record eighth straight World Cup game, beating Croatia 1-0 on Tuesday night.

Though this wasn't his best effort — Ronaldo still looks slow and out of shape — and the Croatians put up a big fight, it was a solid enough start.

Dribbling up the right side in the 44th minute, Kaka spotted Kaka in the middle and made a perfect pass. Kaka collected it and was past Niko Kranjcar within one quick tap of the ball.

The 21-year-old son of coach Ziko Kranjcar has been a conundrum defensively, and it was soon clear why. Kranjcar wasn't anywhere close as Kaka stutter-stepped, giving the Brazilian time to look up and check his aim. As Kranjcar closed in, Kaka drew back from 20 yards and struck hard with his left foot, and it was clear from the minute his boot hit the ball it was going to be good.

South Korea 2, Togo 1

FRANKFURT, Germany — Togo got its coach back for its opening World Cup match, and even took a halftime lead. Then everything fell apart.

South Korea's long wait for its first World Cup victory on foreign soil ended against the tiny African nation, which put up an unexpectedly spirited performance given the coaching turmoil that ended only moments before the match.

To compound its problems, Togo played with 10 men for the final 37 minutes.

almost gametime whether Togo coach Otto Pfister, who resigned Friday and agreed to come back Monday, would actually sit on the bench. But he took his place, encouraging his team on.

The game will hardly go down in World Cup annals for its quality, but it will make history in South Korea as the nation's first win outside of Asia since the team made its debut in the tournament in 1954.

Substitute Ahn Jung-Hwan, who was famously fired by Perugia for his overtime goal knocked Italy out of the second round of the 2002 World Cup, scored the winner in the 72nd minute. His perfectly placed 25-yard shot beat Togo goalkeeper Kossi Agassa.

Switzerland 0, France 0

STUTTGART, Germany — The star-studded French were held to a scoreless tie, bringing back memories of their horrid World Cup 2002 performance, when Les Bleus were knocked out in the first round without finding the net.

The last time the French scored in a World Cup game was when they beat Brazil 3-0 in the 1998 final at Stade de France.

The Swiss, who also wasted several good scoring opportunities, held the French to ties in two qualifying games.

Despite being forced to play as a lone striker, Thierry Henry came close with three shots and a header in the first half, while Zinedine Zidane's deft touches set up the best French move.

But the Swiss almost went ahead in the 23rd minute when Tranquillo Barnetta tipped a free kick into the goal, and the ball struck the post.

Everything going Carolina's way

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Hurricanes returned home all fresh and ready to go, clearly intent on bringing the Stanley Cup final to a speedy conclusion.

About three hours later, the Edmonton Oilers finally arrived at their hotel, straggling off the bus in flip-flops and blue jeans with a tired, glassy look in their eyes.

A contrast in appearances that summed up the state of this series. Carolina seems to have everything going its way. A hot goaltender. A commanding lead. A chance to hoist the cup at home if it can win Game 5 tonight in front of its rabid "Canine" fans.

The 4½-hour flight from Alberta to North Carolina's Right on time, of course.

"It was kind of a long day," said

Mark Recchi, who scored the winning goal in the Hurricanes' 2-1 victory in Game 4.

"But it wasn't too bad."

Then there's the Oilers.

They're facing a 3-1 deficit in the best-of-seven series. They're running out of time to fix a power play that can't seem to do anything right. Even their charter flight was a bit of a struggle.

The aircraft had mechanical problems before taking off, which forced the Oilers to wait around another 2½ hours and pushed back their arrival on Tobacco Road to early evening.

"It's a long trip anyway, and that's just something else to deal with," said captain Jason Smith.

"But we're not going to let it affect the way we prepare."

While the eighth-seeded Oilers managed three straight upsets against higher-ranked teams to reach the finals, they now face the potential of a season-ending game for the first time all season.

History is firmly against them. Only one team in NHL history has come back to win the Stanley Cup after trailing 3-1 in the finals — the 1942 Toronto Maple Leafs, who actually overcame a 3-0 deficit with four straight wins against Detroit.

Then again, coach Craig MacTavish feels the Hurricanes might be feeling a few liters now that they're at the cusp of the cup. Only a handful of Carolina players — Recchi, Aaron Ward, Cory Stillman — have hoisted hockey's greatest prize.

game." Sluman said. "If he drives it straight he'll win the golf tournament and if he doesn't, he'll have a ball of a chance to win it. That's not saying anything we all don't know. His swing looked very good and sound. He hit a lot of great shots."

Woods didn't talk after the round. His press conference is slated for this morning. But he has said on his Web site, "I'm working my butt off to get ready. It's time to get back to work."

Woods' swing coach, Hank Haney, followed him around the course Monday, seemingly pleased with what he saw. He had accompanied Tiger to Winged Foot for a practice round a couple of weeks ago and said the rust was off with his first shot.

Tiger Woods, right, smiles alongside Mike Weir during a practice round at Winged Foot Golf Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y., Tuesday. The U.S. Open tournament begins Thursday.

"I don't buy this layoff stuff," said fellow pro John Cook. "I think he's been playing all along under someone else's name." Impossible. There's only one Tiger Woods.

support."

The Duke campus has been rocked the past few months after members of the men's lacrosse team accused a player of raping a dancer at a party March 13. Three players have been charged in the case.

Redick was arrested soon after 1 a.m. when he turned around as he approached a license check point near the Duke campus. Michael said. He pulled into a parking lot of an apartment complex after police pursued him.

"There wasn't a chase. He didn't run from them," Michael said. "He was pretty cooperative."

Redick holds the NCAA career record for 3-pointers. The guard averaged nearly 27 points a game last season.

"It is an outstanding student-athlete of the highest caliber," his agent, Arn Tellem, said in a statement. "He is (an) exemplary role model and a credit to his family and the entire Duke community. This is nothing more than an isolated incident."

Associated Press reporter Adrienne Smith in Miami contributed to this report.

New uniforms for USU football

Coaches hope Nike design instills unity in program

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — The Utah State football team will be wearing new uniforms this season.

"You want the kids to feel that they look sharp," said coach Brent Guy. "It's not a throwback uniform and it's not a traditional uniform. It's a little bit of both."

The new design, which was last updated in 2001, is the result of a three- to five-year contract between the school and Nike that was signed a year ago. The shoe company provides money for sports gear and apparel, while its logo is placed on all the uniforms, said USU athletic director Randy Spetman.

Guy and Mike Bair, the team's equipment manager, designed the new uniforms with the help of a Web site.

The outfits have contrasting piping and wide stripes on the sides. The home jerseys are navy with white pants and vice versa for the road uniforms. And a small block "S" will be embroidered on both sides of the collar.

The tight-fitting, stretch polyester-blend material that the jerseys are made of will make it more difficult for opponents to tackle the players, Bair said.

"There is also a change on the back of the jersey where the players' last names have appeared. Instead, the word 'Aggies' will be on the back of the jerseys."

"We talk about being a team and playing as a group," Guy said. "I just wanted to do it from a unity standpoint."

The team's new home and away uniforms cost about $40,000.

The Aggies' season opener at Wyoming is Sept. 2.

Hazelton pair transforms historical building into unusual house

By Matt Christensen
Times-News writer

HAZELTON — What do a post office, restaurant, telephone company and veterinarian's office have in common?

At one time or another, they've all been in an 86-year-old Hazelton building that Colleen and Daniel Beltran now call home.

It is certainly one of the most bizarre houses in town: 2-foot-thick lava rock walls, skylights in nearly every room, lofts in both bedrooms, arches, built-in wall niches and a floor plan no modern residential architect would dream of designing.

The living room features a pellet stove, with stones on the walls helping to retain warmth. Plentiful natural light shines through skylights.

The building's history has forced the Beltrons to get creative. Structural changes over the years — mostly done to transform the space from telephone company to post office to restaurant to vet's office — have not been homeowner friendly. The long, narrow kitchen, for example, is only a few feet wide. The bathroom has no shower (just a tub). And the doorways are not standard size (nor reliably rectangular), so hanging a door is a custom job.

The stone walls make any renovations (or picture hanging) a pain. Some walls don't extend to the ceiling, so privacy can be a problem. And the taxes are high because the space is still zoned commercial.

Nevertheless, when the Beltrons first peeked inside the then-empty building two years ago, they saw home.

"It was just so unusual," Daniel said. "We fell in love with it." Where some might see setbacks in the home, the Beltrons see whimsy. Decorative niches in the kitchen and family room, curved adobe wall corners, custom stonework behind a pellet stove, huge skylights, cantilevered bedroom lofts, large windows with deep sills, transom windows over the front and back doors and a custom kitchen-tile backsplash — quaint details that transcend any layout puzzlements.

The building's history wooed the Beltrons, as well. Originally built in 1920 to house the first Hazelton telephone company, the space was divided into four narrow segments, each for a different business. In the building's 86-year history, it's been home to the town post office and, during the Depression, the Hazelton Café.

When the Beltrons moved in, they found boxes of documents in the dirt-floor cellar that contained credit receipts from the restaurant (lunch and a slice of pie cost 40 cents) and World War II ration checks for milk, cheese, fish and sugar.

"This is living history," Colleen said of the building and its artifacts.

The transformation from commercial space to idiosyncratic living area was largely the work of a veterinarian who used half the space for his clinic and the other half as a living area more than 10 years ago. (The Beltrons rent out the former clinic, which has also been transformed into a living space.) The vet managed to blast through some of the stone walls, install numerous skylights, build two loft areas and generally convert the space into a hospitable home.

The Beltrons added paint, French doors, fixtures, carpet and furnishings. The interior is reminiscent of Southwestern adobe homes and Tuscan villas. Beiges and soft oranges complement natural golden light filtering in from above. Walls that stop a few feet short of the ceilings give the small home an open feel, as do the intimate lofted spaces in the bedrooms that are ideal places to read, nap or relax.

The Beltrons spent more time refurbishing the backyard than any room inside the house. A fire pit, brick patio, water features and stylish landscaping complete the theme.

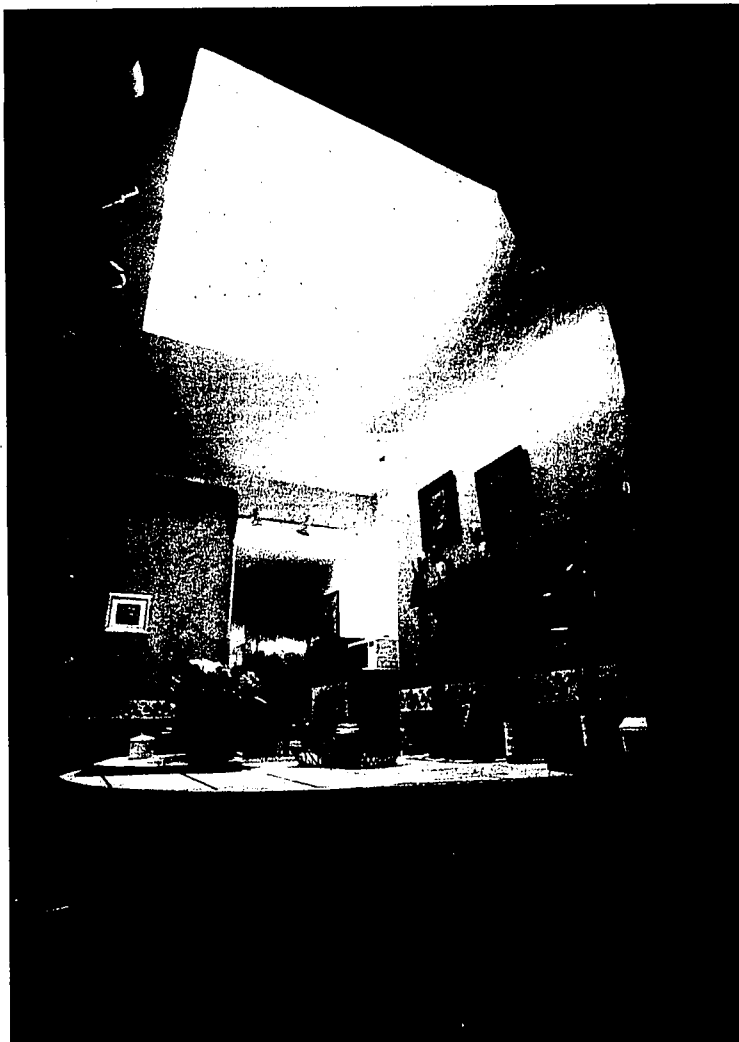

It's not for everyone, but for Daniel and Colleen, the home couldn't get much better.

"This house has a weird aura to it," Colleen said. "It's just a unique place — one that we love."

Times-News features writer Matt Christensen can be reached at 735-3243 or matt.christensen@tcn.net.

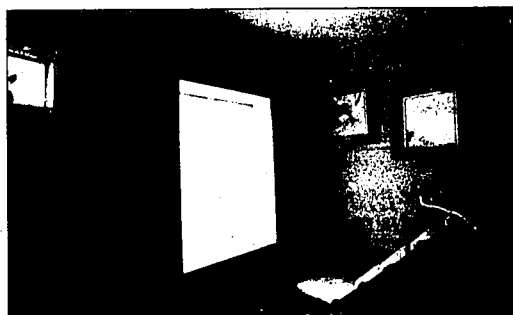

The Beltrons had difficulty attaching French doors leading to the master bedroom because of two-foot-thick walls, made of stone.

Colleen and Daniel Beltran's home in Hazelton was built in 1920. The structure has been home to a phone company, a post office, a café and a veterinarian's office. Large skylights eliminate most need for electric light.

Colleen Beltran enjoys the wooden shutters in this bedroom because they add a dash of Tuscan to the room. The stairs at right lead to a loft where the Beltrons sometimes sleep in summer, for a view of the backyard through open shutters.

A portion of the two-foot-thick walls on the Beltran home in Hazelton. Interior walls are just as thick as this exterior wall.

Recipes to ward off snacks

Something happens when school gets out. Routines and habits seem to take a break as well. It seems that I have forgotten the very eating practices that kept me healthy through the winter and have begun to eat what's handy. That's never a good thing.

As I age, it seems that fewer people are surprised that I don't want to hop into a swimsuit and run around at the pool. In fact, it seems that after the mid-30s, it is expected that women really shouldn't get into swimsuits except once in a decade or so. I guess the sight of a less-than-nubile woman in something skimpy is frightening to us all.

I'm not one to prance around in a swimsuit, but I swim last summer, and I'd like to swim again this summer rather than waiting another nine years. Gaining three pounds a week through eating what's handy isn't going to help. So I've got to get back into my healthy eating routines.

I need an all-day plan, food that will help me feel satisfied. It may mean eating breakfast early, a heavier lunch at noon, and a lighter dinner — perhaps homemade soup from the slow cooker — as the evening cools. This plan should keep me from grabbing a cookie each time I pass through the kitchen. That's one routine I can live without.

Lightly grease 4 cups of a muffin tin and insert one slice of Canadian bacon into each cup. Divide bell pepper mixture among the 4 cups and carefully crack one egg into each bacon cup on top of the peppers (or scramble and pour mixture into cup). Season eggs to taste. Bake in center rack of oven for about 15-20 minutes, or until whites are set but yolks are still slightly runny (bake longer or shorter according to taste). Top each cup with a half slice of the provolone cheese and bake for 3 minutes more. Carefully remove by gently scooping out bacon cups with spoons and rubber spatulas. Serve garnished with fresh herbs.

ASIAN STEAK

- 1 to 1 1/4 pound top sirloin steaks
1/2 cup beef broth
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
1 teaspoon cornstarch
2 teaspoons butter
2 teaspoons olive oil
1 to 2 teaspoons sesame oil (toasted)
2 to 3 green onions, thinly sliced or cut lengthwise into slivers

Cut steak into 4 equal portions. Place each piece between 2 pieces of plastic wrap. With a heavy, flat-sided mallet, pound meat firmly but gently all over to a thickness of 1/3 to 1/2 inch. In a small bowl, stir together broth, soy sauce, ginger and cornstarch. Set aside. Melt butter in olive oil in a wide nonstick frying pan over medium-high heat. When butter sizzles, add steak. Cook, turning once, until steak is well browned on both sides and still pink in center; cut to test (2 to 3 minutes). Transfer to a platter and keep warm. Stir broth mixture, then add to pan, increase heat to high, and bring to a boil, stirring. Then continue to boil and stir until slightly thickened (1 to 2 minutes). Pour sauce over steak; drizzle with sesame oil to taste, then sprinkle with green onions. Serve with salad (using the remaining sauce as a dressing for the salad).

4 slices turkey, cut up
1 small can sliced olives

Grape tomatoes
Light ranch, ginger sesame or Italian dressing (or use the sauce above)

Wash lettuce; tear into bite-sized pieces. Add red pepper, cucumber, broccoli and carrots to the lettuce. Slice eggs and place in a separate bowl. Place cut up turkey, olives, cheese and tomatoes into separate bowls, as well. Allow individuals to add toppings to the salad as desired.

Mister Mustard

This condiment is a dream

By Candy Segon
The Washington Post

Like a dream date, honey mustard is both sweet and hot.

It's also the harried cook's best friend because this combo condiment can be used so many ways: Add a little white wine and dried thyme and it's a marinade for chicken and pork; brush it on as a grilling sauce for salmon; use it as a glaze when baking meat or fish.

My dream date with honey mustard started on a weekday, at 5:30 p.m., as I cruised the aisles of the supermarket, wondering what on Earth I could make for dinner that might be ready an hour later.

Searching for the culinary equivalent of Mr. Right, I wheeled my cart into the condiment aisle. And there it was — a whole shelf full of handsome bottles labeled "Honey Mustard."

I grabbed one (for the record, it was the Harris Teeter house brand of honey mustard).

Then I headed for the meat department for a couple of packages of boneless, skinless chicken thighs, wheeled over to produce for some fresh corn, checked out and headed home.

To make a marinade, I poured about half the jar of honey mustard into a plastic resealable food storage bag and mixed in about a quarter-cup of saigon blanc, just to thin the mustard slightly. I added some dried thyme and several grindings of black pepper.

I added the chicken thighs, sealed the bag and then squished it around to coat the chicken evenly. I let the chicken marinate about 30 minutes at room temperature while I got the corn ready, cut up some fresh fruit and preheated the grill.

While the thighs were grilling, I boiled the corn and nagged my teenage daughter to set the table. She allowed as how grilled chicken for dinner (instead of pizza) was not quite enough motivation for her to set the table. I allowed as how computer access might suddenly be denied. She set the table.

And, even better, she liked the chicken.

"This is really good!" she said, after trying a tiny corner and then spearing a thigh for her plate.

Talk about sweet.

HONEY-MUSTARD CHICKEN THIGHS

4 servings
The quantities here are approximate, so adjust them for your own taste. Add more or less wine, depending on the thickness of the brand of honey mustard you buy. Try another herb or maybe some curry powder. Whatever. The mixture works well on chicken and pork. Use honey mustard alone as a glaze for grilled salmon.

Honey mustard is the harried cook's best friend because this combo condiment can be used so many ways. Here, Honey-Mustard Chicken Thighs.

- 1 cup honey mustard
- 1/4 cup dry white wine
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or more to taste
- 2 pounds skinless, boneless chicken thighs or skinless bone-in thighs

In a resealable plastic food storage bag, combine honey mustard, wine, thyme and pepper. Mix well. Add the thighs, seal bag, and massage well to evenly coat chicken. Marinate for at least 30 minutes at room temperature, or in the refrigerator for several hours.

If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-low, depending on your grill. If using a charcoal grill, distribute the hot charcoal or wood briquettes evenly under the cooking area for direct heat.

Oil the grate so the chicken doesn't stick.

When ready to cook, place the thighs on the grill (discarding the marinade). Grill for 5 to 7 minutes per side, or until a meat thermometer registers 165 degrees.

Serve hot or at room temperature.

Foot Fantastic

By Andrew McGlothin

One thing that you may not think about as you build or remodel your home is the temperature of your bathroom floor. If you're using wood or carpeting, this may not be much of an issue. However, if you're using traditional bathroom tile, you may want to think about just how cold it can be first thing in the morning. Frankly, though, for most people, that kind of temperature difference between floor and floor is not pleasing to the touch. Fortunately, now you can say goodbye to that rude awakening that comes from leaving the comfort of your bed for those treacherously cold tiles. Welcome to the world of tile-warmers.

As most of us learned early on, heat rises. That is why we build fires low to the ground and heat our ovens from the bottom, not the top. Why would we do any differently with our homes? For most homes, though, the heat comes from vents. These vents, while sometimes placed near the floor, generally release hot air directly to the ceiling. In order to get warm air low to the ground, the upper air must often get uncomfortably warm. How does one solve this problem? Well, in the case of tiles like those that are probably in your bathroom, you use tile-warming mats. These tile-warmers will not only help regulate your home's temperature but also cut energy costs. The installation of tile-warmers requires that your tiles be pulled up, but if you're remodeling or building,

Rolling shutters conserve energy

DEAR JIM: With high utility bills and all the recent severe weather, I thought about adding rolling window shutters. Do they let any light in when they are closed, and what options and features should I consider?

— Julia K.

DEAR JULIA: Rolling shutters can protect your windows and sliding glass doors from severe weather. In many hurricane-prone areas, new homes and ones having major improvement projects are required to install approved rolling window shutters. In many other parts of the country, they are popular for energy savings and security.

The energy savings can be significant, particularly over large windows and glass doors. Just considering the insulation value of the shutter slats themselves, installing a rolling window shutter can triple the R-value of a standard window. There are also additional savings from the dead air space which is created, reducing air leakage and blocking the sun during summer.

The energy savings can be significant, particularly over large windows and glass doors. Just considering the insulation value of the shutter slats themselves, installing a rolling window shutter can triple the R-value of a standard window. There are also additional savings from the dead air space which is created, reducing air leakage and blocking the sun during summer.

A rolling window shutter operates in a manner similar to an old rollout desk. It is mounted in outdoor tracks over a window or door and rolls up into a small box mounted above the window or door. The individual slats are typically about one to two inches tall and interlock with each other. The shutter is opened and closed from indoors.

Rolling shutters can provide light from outdoors while the entire window is still covered. The interlocking flange between each slat has long narrow holes. When the shutter is totally closed, these holes are hidden. When you begin to lift the shutter, the slats separate to expose the holes before the bottom slat starts to lift.

SENSIBLE HOME

You have several slat design options. The least expensive is made of hollow rolled sheet metal. Rolled and formed, the sheet metal becomes stronger. Another option is this same type of roll-formed slat with insulation in the cavity. This makes it stronger and provides more insulation. The strongest and most expensive slats are extruded metal.

The type of opening device and controls you select will be determined by the type and size of rolling shutter you install and the level of convenience you desire. If a shutter is difficult and inconvenient to open and close, you will end up just not using it as often as you should for the greatest energy savings.

For shutters that cover only one normal window, a pull strap is effective and least expensive. For larger shutters or heavy extruded ones, a hand crank is a good choice. This is still reasonably priced and easy to use. For the most convenience, electric operators are available.

With modern electronics, groups of shutters can be operated from just one control.

The following companies offer rolling window shutters: AC Shutters, (800) 745-5261, www.acshutters.com; Roll-A-Way, (800) 683-9505, www.roll-a-way.com; Rollac Shutters, (888) 276-5522, www.rollac.com; Titan Shutter, (800) 925-0067, www.titansecurity.com; and Wheatbilt, (800) 264-5171, www.rollup-shutter.com.

Rolling shutters are gaining popularity because of the energy savings potential they bring.

of small enough capacity. For humid climates, it may not run long enough to dehumidify the air during summer.

Check with some commercial contractors that provide packaged units for motels. One of these would easily handle the heating/cooling load for a room of that size. The only drawback is a slightly higher operating sound level.

Braydon a duplex that's full of features

Associated Designs

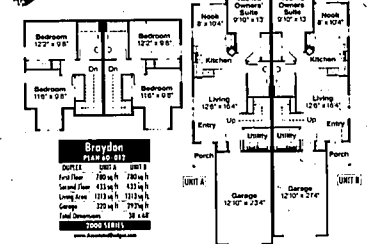

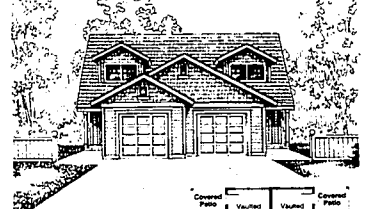

The Braydon is a charming, two-story duplex that packs a lot of living area into a fairly narrow footprint. Entry porches and rear patios are widely separated, for maximum privacy. Each unit has three bedrooms.

Four garages face the street. The widest caps both garages, while the narrower front garage highlights the entrance to the left. Twin garages accent the matching dormers, set further back on the main roof. Inside, the two units are mirror images, so one description will suffice. Entry is via a recessed porch enclosed by a slender post. A coat closet is just inside, near the door to the utility room. Direct garage access is also located at this juncture, as is a stairway to the second floor. The living room expands out from the entry, and is open to the kitchen across a raised eating bar. An optional TV cabinet fits in nicely along the living room's inner wall.

Range and oven are built into the kitchen's longest counter. Sink and dishwasher are next to each other behind the eating bar, a handy spot to hang out and chat with people working in the kitchen. A small pantry fills the niche next to a refrigerator with overhead cabinets. The nook is naturally bright on all but the darkest days, and its wide sliding glass doors open onto a covered patio.

A vaulted ceiling expands the main floor bedroom room, which has direct patio access and links to the bathroom. Two more bedrooms are upstairs, along with another full bathroom. A dormer expands the front bedroom in both units of the Braydon. For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Dept. W, Eugene, OR 97402.

Please specify the Braydon 60-012 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 550 home plans is available for $15. For more information, call (800) 634-0123, or visit our website at www.AssociatedDesigns.com.

FOOD & HOME

A nice way to say thank you, without a big production

By Stephanie WRI Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

The days of carefully coiffed women enjoying composed plates and martinis may be long gone, but the idea of lunch parties is not. The luncheon is a way of thanking teachers, celebrating engagements and welcoming babies.

While evenings are crowded with work and sports, lunch remains a time when people can steal an hour. The key is to have the meal ready to serve quickly, so people in a hurry can still enjoy the event. The menu should include only items that can be prepared ahead of time and the food should be portable, in case it needs to be served in a conference room or on picnic tables.

Serve a twist on that ladies lunch standard, the avocado stuffed with seafood salad, a fussy, mayonnaise-laden concoction. Update that dish with a salad of fresh seafood mixed with diced avocado, mint and oranges, dressed in a light vinaigrette that is perfect for warmer days. Serve the salad with slices of toasted French bread to soak up the extra dressing.

For dessert, choose another old favorite: pound cake accompanied by sliced strawberries tossed with just enough sugar to release some of their juices. Add a box of whipped cream sweetened with a little vanilla extract and some confectioner's sugar for those willing to indulge, and the meal's complete.

SEAFOOD SALAD WITH ORANGE-MINT VINAIGRETTE

6 servings

Take advantage of all the seafood that's now available in frozen form: Shrimp, scallops, calamari, crab and lobster all can be found in your grocery's frozen case, convenient and of good quality.

The avocado can be added up to two hours before serving (any longer and some of the pieces might start to discolor).

- 2 large navel oranges
- 1/4 cup chopped mint
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
- 2 tablespoons sherry vinegar

- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil
- 2 pounds assorted cooked seafood, cut into bite-size pieces

- Fish of 2 avocados, cut into bite-size pieces
- Toasted baguette slices, for garnish
- Baby greens, for garnish (optional)

Grate the zest of 1 orange and set aside. Slice off the top and bottom of both oranges. Place one of the oranges, with a cut side down, on a cutting board. Use a serrated knife to start cutting off the pith, then use your fingers to peel off the pith from top to bottom. Holding the orange in the palm of your hand, cut the orange segments out of their membranes and cut

Big boxes of inspiration

By Liz Seymour
The Washington Post

So maybe you assume most homeowners turn to magazines, Web sites, TV home-makeover shows or even the newspaper for remodeling ideas. Not so. A recent survey by Minwax, the company that makes wood-finishing products, finds that the big-box chains Home Depot and Lowe's were the first stop for inspiration for 64 percent of the 750 home remodelers surveyed.

Minwax spokeswoman Jackie Ferrara said she suspects consumers like the one-stop-shopping approach, with a range of products and people available to answer questions all under one roof.

This recipe, with its medley of seafood flavors and mint vinaigrette, provides a great opportunity to show off bright, brisk summer wines.

Sauvignon blancs made around the world can possess a range of flavors that speak to their origins. California varieties tend toward citrus and grassy summer wines.

The exhilaratingly fresh flavors and vivacious acidity of the Kim Crawford 2005 Sauvignon Blanc (New Zealand, $16) is perfect in this role. Another clear match with this seafood combo would be the Thierry & Guy Fat Bastard 2004 Sauvignon Blanc (Languedoc, $10), with flavors of ripe peach. The fragrant Monkey Bay 2005 Sauvignon Blanc (New Zealand, $12) or each segment into 2 or 3 pieces. Repeat with the other orange. Squeeze what remains of the juice (there should be about 1/4 cup) and strain out any seeds.

In a small bowl, add the orange juice and zest, mint, sugar, mustard, vinegar and salt and pepper to taste. Whisk to combine, then, continuing to whisk, slowly add the oil.

In a large bowl, combine the orange sections, seafood and mint dressing, stirring to evenly coat the ingredients. Cover and refrigerate up to 24 hours until ready to serve. Just before serving, add the avocado and toss gently to combine. Arrange the toasted baguette slices, 3 or 4 to a plate, and mound the salad in the center; or, if desired, make a bed of baby greens on top of the toast and mound the salad over the greens. After dividing the salad, spoon any remaining dressing over each serving.

Redcliffe 2005 Sauvignon Blanc (New Zealand, $11) also would work superbly.

If you're looking to avoid sauvignon blancs altogether, steer toward a Vouvray (based on the chenin blanc grape) such as the Remy Pannier 2004 ($13) from the Loire Valley with its light, fresh fruit and peach flavor.

Another possibility for this dish would be a pinot grigio. Long thought of as a lightweight, the pinos coming to America now have more flavor and retain their signature vivid fruit and tantalizing acidity. I would recommend the Castello Banfi 2005 San Angelo (Tuscany, $16).

IF JUNE 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Learning to share with others may be the test in your life as 2006 comes to a close. In October and November, be sure to do your duty and act responsibly if you wish to earn recognition and achieve your ambitions. Past actions may prevent you from being able to take advantage of an opportunity or there may be some strings attached. Next spring is a time to work hard, learn how to be organized and efficient, and take on more responsibilities. The experience you gain this year will be valuable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Misunderstandings can be costly. Vagueness and a lack of precision can lead to confusion about a key issue. Hold off on signing agreements, making promises, or making important purchases.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Unleash your muse. Write down your ideas and inspirations but don't sign on the dotted line. This is a poor time to make agreements, invest large sums of money, or put your heart on the line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Wait at the crossroads. Sometimes what we learn is that what we learned before was wrong. Take a seat on the sidelines, count to ten, and reevaluate a situation before making a final decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The tricks of the trade are merely common sense. There is no magic bullet that will put the opposition out of commission or instantly solve a dilemma. Sit tight and don't act on impulse.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Sustain your direction, but remain flexible. You may need to take a few detours. Even if you can't steamroll over obstacles you needn't completely abandon pet projects, hopes, or dreams.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Conserve your energy. It is always easy to hit the target when you aim at nothing. Avoid romantic entanglements, unnecessary arguments, and be sure to put money back in your pocket.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Price and value isn't the same thing. Stick to lofty principles. What you consider a personal sacrifice may be a way to justify doing something you didn't want to do in the first place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't bother to be a rebel without a cause. Conditions are not ripe to launch your latest project or implement your ideas. Accept what you can't change with good grace and don't fight the rules.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Distractions could undermine concentration. Your office or your home could be as nerve wracking as a table next to the swinging kitchen door at a busy downtown restaurant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be a force of nature to contend with. Remain firm about sticking to the rules. Refuse to participate in anything that straddles the gray areas of the law. Do not start anything of importance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Empower your friends. Trying to be kind and sympathetic could backfire under these stars. Give a man a fish and he eats one meal but teach him to fish and he can feed himself forever.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stop and smell the roses, but don't force anyone else to handle the thorns. Stand on your own two feet and don't depend upon others to bolster your confidence or help you out.

Young poet salutes our flag with prize-winning rhymes

DEAR ABBY: Years ago, when our daughter, Stacy, was in the eighth grade, a contest was held at her school to see if they could win one of the flags that had flown over the U.S. Capitol.

Our daughter, who is now grown, won the prize for the best poem. We thought you might like to print it on Flag Day for your readers to enjoy. We think its message is one that is worthwhile.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am 19, and I'm wondering if you could give me some information. When I was in high school, one of my teachers told us a little program where we could write to soldiers—you know, a comforting letter to let them know there are people out here who support them.

To proclaim our freedom here. A small beginning, I agree. But like the acorn to the tree. Thirteen states we had at first. But as our country grew, our thirst For land and freedom did not stop. That land did well; produced a crop For countries of the world to share And then they knew our flag was fair. And underneath this starry wing Foreign peoples help to sing The greatest story ever told. The story of our country bold. Of its birth into the world And of its wondrous flag unfurled. And over the world there ne'er will stand The flag of any other land That will mean as much to me As this flag of liberty.

I have moved several times since then and no longer have the address. Today I mentioned it to my grandmother, and she remembered that she had recently seen in your column a Web site to write to our servicemen. Do you still have that program where we could write to soldiers — you know, a comforting letter to let them know there are people out here who support them.

Keep the beach balls at home, graduates

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — You can toss your caps, but Grants Pass High School officials say tossing a beach ball at graduation simply won't fly. Several Grants Pass High seniors did not get their diploma Friday because they were suspected of disrupting the graduation ceremony by bating beach balls around.

The school told the seniors that they had to clean the football field for four hours Monday or serve detention for eight hours to earn their diplomas. But after a heated debate among parents and school leaders, at least 10 students walked out of Principal Aaron Anderson's office with diplomas Monday morning. Several parents said the incident was not disruptive and not worthy of the punishment.

Anderson said that about 20 pink slips were handed out among the graduating class of more than 400. He did not know how many students would end up being punished.

"It's a case-by-case situation," he said.

He said students were warned beforehand that disrupting graduation could result in detention: "We believe students who are graduating, their moment in the limelight, should be a special time with no distractions."

A memorable steak

By Marcia Kramer
The Washington Post

This recipe has just six ingredients, but two of them are not readily available. Not only that, but chances are you'll have to go to two different stores to find them. Plus, the meat should be marinated for four hours, which pretty much rules out making it for a week-night, after-work meal.

No matter, it's worth the trouble.

The key flavor in the marinade is mushroom soy sauce. The dark, smoky-flavored soy sauce contains molasses and the essence of straw mushrooms. It's one of the two hard-to-find ingredients; once you find it, though — it's available in Asia specialty stores — it's pretty inexpensive and it can also be used as a condiment in other dishes.

The other ingredient that can be difficult to find is hanger steak. Also known as onglet in France, where it is popular, it comes from the part of the cow's diaphragm that hangs between the last rib and the loin. Like skirt steak, which typically is used in beef fajitas and may be substituted for it in the following recipe, hanger steak is streaked with fat and has an intense flavor. Not for nothing is it also known as butcher's steak — it's the cut butchers take home with them.

Hanger, however, is not considered a tender cut of meat. That's where the marinade comes in. The melding of the mushroom soy sauce, grated garlic, black pepper, sugar and just a touch of oil transforms the steak into a tender, delicious, memorable meal.

Hanger steak is best served medium-rare; overcooked, it becomes tough. Serve with jasmine rice and stir-fried vegetables. Adapted from "The Asian Grill," by Corinne Trang (Chronicle Books, 2006).

GARLIC-PEPPER MARINATED HANGER STEAK

6 to 8 servings

- 1/3 cup mushroom soy sauce
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 10 large garlic cloves, finely grated
- 2 teaspoons freshly ground black pepper

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 1/2 pounds hanger steak (may substitute skirt steak), cut into 8 pieces (about 5 ounces each)

In a medium bowl, combine the soy sauce and sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the garlic, pepper and oil, stirring to combine.

Place the hanger steaks in a resealable plastic food storage bag and pour the soy sauce mixture over them. Squash out the air and seal the bag, shaking it to coat the pieces evenly.

Refrigerate for 4 hours, turning the bag periodically to redistribute the marinade.

When ready to cook, preheat the grill. If using a gas grill, preheat the grill to high (500 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, start the charcoal or wood briquettes when the wood briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area for direct heat. Oil the grate. Remove the steaks from the marinade (discard) and grill, turning frequently to prevent burning, until crisp and medium-rare, 6 to 8 minutes. Slice thinly against the grain and serve immediately.

Hey, what's that green fruit?

By Walter Nichols
The Washington Post

That small, egg-shaped and smooth-skinned green fruit on the produce aisle is feijoa (pronounced fay-YOH-ah; fay-YOH-ah), or pineapple guava. In addition to the guava, feijoa is related to the clove and eucalyptus, native to South America, and a major farm export of New Zealand.

Add the fact that the fragrant, cream-colored flesh has a sweet and tart flavor with hints of pineapple, banana and some say quince and mint, and you have one great way to spice up a standard fruit salad. Choose feijoa that are slightly soft to the touch. They can be stored in the refrigerator for three days. Sprinkle the cut and peeled fruit with lemon or lime juice to prevent oxidation. They go for about $1.50 each.

Crab cake is quicker than it looks

By Marcia Kramer
The Washington Post

Don't be put off by the long list of ingredients. This is a terrific crab cake: It's crunchy (no squishy interior here) and flavorful (bell peppers and onion), but nothing drowns out the unmistakable crab taste.

Of the 50 recipes in Tom Douglas' new "I Love Crab Cakes!" book (William Morrow, 2006), this is his personal favorite. Named for Douglas' daughter Loreita, it's a top seller at his restaurants. Being based in Seattle, Douglas makes these with Dungeness crab, but he acknowledges that blue crab makes the best-textured crab cakes. We agree.

Serve with tartar or cocktail sauce and coleslaw on the side.

- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 5 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green bell pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped red bell pepper
- 1 pound lump backin crabmeat, picked over and lightly squeezed if wet
- 5 tablespoons unsalted butter

Lemon wedges, for garnish

Place the bread pieces in a food processor and pulse them to a fine crumb. Transfer to a baking dish. Without cleaning the food processor, pulse the parsley until finely chopped. Add 1/2 cup of it to the bread crumbs and reserve the rest. Cover and refrigerate.

In a food processor or a blender, pulse the egg yolk, lemon juice, Worcestershire and hot pepper sauces, mustard, paprika, thyme, celery seeds and pepper. With the motor running, slowly add the oil to form a mayonnaise. Set aside.

In a large bowl, combine the onion and bell peppers with the remaining (about 1/4 cup) parsley. Add the reserved mayonnaise and the crabmeat and mix lightly then add 1 cup of the bread crumb-parsley mixture, taking care not to overmix. Gently form 8 patties, about 3 inches wide and 1 inch thick. Lightly coat the patties with some of the remaining bread crumb-parsley mixture.

If you have time, cover the crab cakes with plastic wrap and chill for an hour to further firm them up.

Using 2 large nonstick skillets over medium heat, melt 1/2 tablespoon butter in each pan. Add 4 crab cakes to each pan. Gently fry until hot through and golden brown, about 4 minutes per side or until an instant-read thermometer registers 155 degrees. Serve with lemon wedges.

A gentleman can karaoke but chooses not to

I've been abroad in the speak-easies and public houses of Rockchuck Acres the past couple of weeks to see how you folks are faring with Magic Valley's favorite pastime. No, not that pastime. I'm referring to karaoke. I wish I could be more encouraging. But hearkening to the advice of Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who once counseled, "If you can't say anything nice about someone, come sit here next to me," I have devised a list of karaoke tunes that you should avoid at all costs.

DON'T ASK ME
Steve Crump

Hey, I'm talkin' to you — there in the Graceland sweat suit!

There's nothing terribly surprising on the list that follows, except that you're still singing them:

- "I Will Survive" (Gloria Gaynor, 1979) — First of all, it's disco. Secondly, there's a seductive backbeat that causes you to leap to your feet and spin around a lot, which I believe we can all agree is unwise after six Joes Cervecs.

- "Wind Beneath My Wings" (Bette Midler, 1989) — Bette Midler sounds like a heifer with a head cold when she sings this song; imagine how you'll do.

- "Don't Speak" (No Doubt, 1996) — Good advice.

- "You Are So Beautiful" (Joe Cocker, 1975) — Famously, British white-soul singer Cocker couldn't reach the "D" above high "C" on this Billy Preston anthem — and his voice cracked. The producer decided to leave it on the record, which is a shame because now you're going to try it.

- "You've Lost that Lovin' Feelin'" (Righteous Brothers, 1965) — It's gone, gone, gone. Woah, woah.

- "Sweet Dreams" (Eurythmics, 1983) — No, Annie Lennox did not sing. "Sweet dreams are made of peas," which means you can't either.

- "Ooops! I Did It Again!" (Britney Spears, 2000) — Wikipedia, the online encyclopedia, has this to say about "Ooops": "The song often used by the media, whenever Britney makes a public mistake." Please don't compound Britney's error.

- "New York, New York" (Frank Sinatra, 1975) — "If I can fake it there, I know I'll fake it anywhere."

- "Achy Breaky Heart" (Billy Joe Cyrus, 1993) — The silliest lyric ever devised by Nashville, and tragically, the most often repeated:

"Don't tell my heart, my achy breaky heart. He might blow up and kill this man. Ooooooo."

- "Three Times a Lady" (The Commodores, 1976) — For some bizarre reason, men in love — or guys with more than two long-neck bottles sitting on the table in front of them — cannot resist this Lionel Richie ballad, even though Richie himself couldn't sing it well even when he was sober.

- "Unchained Melody" (Righteous Brothers, 1965) — Tenor Bobby Hatfield of the Righteous Brothers had a voice with a four-octave range, yet he could barely reach the notes in the passage where he "needs your love. You'd have a better chance of tap-dancing on the moon."

- "What Kind of Fool Am I?" (Sammy Davis Jr., 1962) — I think my work here is done.

Dog-lovers congregate for Onofrio Dog Show

FILER — The judges scrambled to finalize their selections as rapidly increasing winds began to wreak havoc on the awnings and tents around the show rings. But even the violent afternoon wind couldn't blow the smile off the face of Best in Show handler Jorge Olivera, who had just been given the first top prize of this year's Onofrio Dog Show Circuit at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds. The overall winner of Tuesday's show was an affenpinscher owned by Dr. Loren Lipson and Carol Girouard of Pasadena, Calif. The team is one of many who travel across the country each year to compete in this annual, AKC-sanctioned, all-breed dog show put on by the Snake River Canyon Kennel Club of Idaho. The second half of the dog show will take place from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the fairgrounds.

The show marks the first stop on a circuit that will spend the next four days in Blackfoot and then 10 days in Montana.

"People come from all over the country, Florida, Arizona, Tennessee, all over," said show Chairwoman Mary Stotz. "There are a bit over 700 entries from just about all the AKC-registered breeds."

Obedience class coordinator Janice Harper said competition is a bonding experience for dog and owner.

"The more you work with your dog, the more the dog responds to you," she said. "You're not doing it for the scores; you're doing it because you and your dog love working together."

Harper explained that if anyone wants to enter their AKC-registered dog into an obedience competition, they need to find a personal trainer and that the most useful outlet to find those trainers is through local kennel clubs like the Snake River Canyon Kennel Club. "I started my dog at seven weeks old, very gently," said Harper, "but I've trained dogs as old as 12 years old."

Local pooch takes first at worldwide show

By Laurie Welch
For the Times-News

BURLEY — Strong hindquarters. Deep chest. Correct coat and tail.

That kind of talk can sweep a girl off her feet, and it swept Echo the yellow Labrador to top honors at the world's largest Labrador show.

Echo and her co-owner, Valerie Jones of Burley, recently returned from the 31st Annual Spring Specialty Show at the Labrador Retriever Club of the Potomac in Maryland.

Echo, formal name "Ducktails and On and On," placed first in her class: 12- to 18-month-old yellow females.

"When they brought her out into first place, I could hardly breathe," Jones said. "The show's organizers said a record 1,023 Labradors worldwide entered the competition."

"She competed against the top Labs from around the world and they are the cream of the crop," Jones said. "Only a select few out of those ever come away with ribbons."

Jones became involved showing dogs more than 30 years ago when she was in 4-H.

Labradors are the 'people's choice' dog, or the dog chosen most often in the United States. "They're so versatile, they can be pets and they also have great noses and can be used for detecting bombs and they are also used as hunting dogs," Jones said. "They also will really work

Board won't try again to build event center

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

FILER — Twice is enough for Tim ZeBarth.

The Twin Falls County Fair Board chairman said the board won't try a third time to create a year-round events center at the fairgrounds in Filer.

"Right now there is no proposal to do so, and I don't know that there will be any time in the near future," ZeBarth said.

"If it comes up again, it will probably come from a board that's a lot different from the board now."

The first attempt to create the Pioneer Event Center, a $2.5 million bond issue in November 2004, attracted a slight majority of voters but failed to reach the 66.7 percent required for a supermajority.

The second was the recent $1.2 million, two-year override levy that failed by 27 votes at the May 23 primary.

If voters had approved the levy, it would have raised property taxes an estimated $20 a year on $100,000 of taxable property.

The center, with room for large-scale events, concerts and indoor shows, would have functioned as an alternative to the Expo Center at the College of Southern Idaho.

Many private corporations and individuals who want to use the center have to be turned away to avoid double-bookings, CSI President Jerry Beck said.

One program that had to move on was the Harvest Festival put on by the Reformed Church of Twin Falls.

The festival, intended to provide an alternative to traditional Halloween activities, was housed in the Expo Center for about six years before it grew too large.

Even the former Norco building could barely handle the 10,000 people who attended in 2004, and organizers canceled the festival last year in hopes that the multipurpose center would be finished this year.

Now the festival looks like it will be canceled again, said Mission Director Tobie Helman. "We really were looking at the building as a deciding factor," she said.

Members are now thinking of scrapping the large event and putting on smaller events in neighborhoods near the church buildings.

Helman said the idea is more palatable than Please see CENTER, Page D3

Evelyn B. Humphrey

TWIN FALLS — Evelyn B. Humphrey, 88, of Twin Falls, died Monday, June 12, 2006, at the Twin Falls Care Center.

Evelyn was born Nov. 13, 1907, at Millwood, Kan., to Henry Feldton and Ella Mae Buchanan. The family came to Twin Falls in May 1908. The father hauled freight from the depot to various areas. Her mother worked for Mr. Harte Murtaugh, who was involved in the development of the Milner Dam Project and farmed near Twin Falls.

Evelyn's father managed several orchards and farmed, and then in 1917, the family moved to Filer, Idaho, where they farmed for many years. Evelyn was the oldest of five children. She attended a rural school, Cedar Draw Elementary, and graduated from the eighth grade in 1921. She then attended Filer Rural High School, graduating as salutatorian in May 1925. She then attended Cedar near Link's Business College.

She worked as a secretary for the Filer Branch of the Union Motor Inc. (Ford Agency) and the Magel Automobile Company in Twin Falls. She married Ray Edwin Humphrey at the Catholic Church in Filer, Idaho, on June 4, 1928. Evelyn was a life member of the Catholic Church, baptized at St. Mary's in Kansas. She made her first communion and confirmed at St. Edward's in Twin Falls, Idaho.

She then worked for the Associated Seed Company and Rogers Brothers Seed Company, but discontinued working after the birth of her children, Linda Rae and David Lee. A niece, Darlene McGuigan lived with the Humphrey family for six years. When the children were in junior high school, Evelyn went back to work as a secretary for the city of Twin Falls. She worked in various departments and finally in the office of city managers Herb Derrick and Jean Miller. She retired in January 1972.

Evelyn is survived by son, David Humphrey (Karen Savage) of Boise; one brother, Henry H. Buchanan of Twin Falls; many nieces and nephews, including Darlene McGuigan, Carver of Boise; one granddaughter, Christina (Lucas) Babin of Boise; five grandsons, Kevin, Robert and Douglas Satterwhite of Tacoma, Wash.; Keith Humphrey of Seattle, Wash., and Erik (Katie) Humphrey of Phoenix, Ariz.; and five great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Ray in 1989; daughter, Linda Rae in 2004; two sisters, Mabel M. Smazel and Dorothy K. Macaw; a brother, John V. Buchanan; and a granddaughter, Stacey Lynn Satterwhite.

A graveside service is planned for Friday, June 16, 2006, at 2 p.m. at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls, with Deacon John McKinley officiating. At Evelyn's request, there will be no public viewing. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Maxine Louise Campbell Garner

RUPERT — Following sunlight's fading glow, at 7:20 on the evening of June 12, 2006, the essence of Maxine Louise Campbell Garner, age 89, slipped gently from the grip of her diminutive form and moved effortlessly from here to eternity to take her accustomed place beside Dean C. Garner, the only man who ever held claim to her heart and whose own passing had occurred just nine days previously.

As has been said of Mother Eve's relationship to Adam, so one might say of this loving, productive partnership. "She was taken not from his heart to him, nor from his foot to be trodden underneath, but from his side to be his equal; from under his arm to be protected; and from near his heart to be loved."

They learned and followed the truth that nothing must be allowed to take precedence over their marriage relationship, which was entered into and sustained for eternity in the Salt Lake Temple on April 2, 1943.

Holding sacred her membership in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Maxine served faithfully and well in numerous callings, but in nothing did she excel more than as homemaker and mother to literally scores of progeny who, nurtured by her loving kindness, now "rise up and call her blessed."

Born in Burley on April 27, 1917, as the second of eight children to Charles Newton Campbell and Rhoda Elvera Randall, Maxine was preceded in death by her husband, Dean Chaney Garner; their oldest son, Charles Campbell (Judy Bennett) in 2000, and by grandsons, Tad (1966) and Matthew (1984).

She is survived by their children, Frank Dean (Bonnie Beckham) of Rexburg, Max Wade (Marlane Mitchell) of Rupert, Gary "B" (Beverly Miller) of Rupert, Dianne (David Hill) of Ammon, Marla (Steven Allen) of Pleasant Grove, Utah; 34 grandchildren; and 73 great-grandchildren, with six more on the way. Maxine is also survived by her sisters, Elvera (Doyle Green), Gladys (Roy Garner), and Fern (Lovell Robbins); and brothers, Clarence (Elna Shakespear) and David (Betty McDonald).

Since neither Dean nor Maxine could be completely described nor properly honored one without the other and with Maxine's own passage imminent, her "funeral," with its attendant individual "life sketch," remarks and pictorial displays, was held to everyone's satisfaction this past Saturday, June 10, in conjunction with Dean's.

Family members from across the country gathered for a beautiful memorial service in behalf of both father/grandfather and mother/grandmother.

Respecting the expressed wishes of their mother, the family plans no viewing but will hold a brief gathering at the Rupert Cemetery for burial and dedication of the grave at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 17, 2006.

Paul Douglas Sligar

TWIN FALLS — Paul Douglas Sligar, an inspirational and loving husband, father, grandfather, brother and friend, left this world on 11 June 2006, at the age of 63, to be with our Heavenly Father.

Paul was born December 6, 1942, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Loren and Alpha Sligar. The Sligar family moved from Twin Falls to Castledale, where he attended school. After graduating high school in 1960, Paul attended Boise State College and received his associates degree in business in 1968. While attending college, he met Sharon Kay Orton, and they were married in August of 1964.

After working for others, he decided to go back to what he knew best, and in 1968, they moved to Filer and then Twin Falls, where they have made their living as farmers ever since.

In 2005, due to poor health, he was forced to retire. Paul's son has continued to farm with his father's guidance and support.

Along with supporting his family, he was active in the surrounding community. He became a member of the church in 1965 and is a lifetime member. He joined the El Korah Shrine in 1980 and was very active in fundraising for the Shriner's Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah. He was an advisor to the Twin Falls Chapter of the Order of Demolay, a liaison officer for the Filer American Legion Post to the Filer Cub Scouts, coached basketball and tee-league baseball for the Filer Recreation Department, and played basketball for the Twin Falls City League. He was active in both the Filer First Baptist Church and the Rock Creek Community Church by serving on various boards and committees. Paul is also a board member of the Snake River Soil Conservation Service and is a 30-year member of the Filer Post of the American Legion. He also served his country in the Army National Guard (1966-1968) and the Air National Guard (1968-1972).

Paul had many hobbies, but among his favorites were hunting, fishing, and traveling south during the winter time. Paul, his wife and their friends and family traveled south to Arizona every year to enjoy the sunshine and spend quality time together.

Paul leaves behind many family and friends, whom he loved very much. He is survived by his best friend, companion and partner in life, Sharon Kay Sligar of Twin Falls; brothers, Edwin (Suk) Sligar of Seoul, South Korea, Curtis (Karen) Sligar and Vernon (JoAnn) Sligar of Twin Falls; a sister, Jean (Clay Vanderpool) Black of Twin Falls; two children, Paul (Brenda) Sligar Jr. of Twin Falls and Stephanie (William) Huber of Carlisle, OH; grand children, Amanda Theria and Treven Sligar of Twin Falls; Layan Huber of Carlisle, OH; and many nieces, nephews and cousins. He was preceded in death by his parents; brother, Rodney Sligar; and sister, Juanita Sligar.

Paul was a special and honorable man that loved the Lord. He was a man that loved unconditionally and taught his children to do, the same. His thoughtfulness and caring ways touched many lives in so many ways. He will be missed by all that knew and loved him.

The funeral will be held on June 18, 2006 at 11 a.m. at the Rock Creek Community Church, 131 Grandview Drive, Twin Falls, Idaho.

The family suggests that in lieu of flowers, donations be directed to the Shriner's Crippled Children's Hospital, Fairfax Road at Virginia Street, Salt Lake City, UT 84103, or Rock Creek Community Church.

All services and arrangements are under the direction of the Park's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls, Idaho.

Theater group searches for the right name

By Laurie Welch
For The Times-News

RUPERT — Should they be dramatists or dramatists? The members of the Mount Harrison Heritage Foundation will make that decision Thursday as they search for a name for their new theatrical auxiliary.

Choices include Dramateurs of MHHF; Cast & Crew of MHHF; The Thesplan Guild of MHHF; The Thesplan Ensemble of MHHF or The MHFP Dramatists.

Votes can be cast at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Wilson Theatre in Rupert, or by calling Melani McBride at 436-0457.

Votes also can be cast by e-mail at phofame@west.com or by mail: Melani McBride, 605 E. 300 N., Rupert, 83350.

The auxiliary is compiling a database of local directors, actors, set designers, carpenters, seamstresses, makeup artists and choreographers as well as stage, sound and light crews.

To add your name to the database, contact the foundation at the address above.

"This is lots of fun and a good way to meet a lot of new people and get involved in the community," said Melani McBride, a foundation member.

The list will include community members with special talents as well as those who are willing to learn or teach different aspects of the theater.

In the past, community members got involved through trypouts or by being involved in past productions.

"We really want to bring in new members," McBride said.

chocolate or yellow, like Echo.

In the critique, the judge said Echo was a pretty yellow girl with a lovely head and expression, deep chest, good bone, level top line, strong hindquarters, correct coat and tail, and noted that she moved with drive.

Jones said she recognized at first sight the show potential of 16-month-old Echo.

"I just knew I had a winner," she said.

Jones, who had not flown in 25 years, said she was scared to board a plane. But after watching Echo develop for a year and half, she knew she had to try.

"I knew I had to get her to the Potomac," she said.

"I got up my nerve, entered her, bought our airline tickets, and they did it for me. The flight home was especially good."

Jones co-owns Echo with Terri Keller of St. Charles, Mo., and Diane Villa of Las Vegas. Echo will continue to compete for a few years, they expect, and have a litter or two of puppies.

PATIENT SPOTLIGHT

"I should have called Fritz 20 years ago!"

~ Ray Strohlberg, Twin Falls

"I should have called Fritz 20 years ago! It's so nice to be able to listen to live music and actually hear the words they are singing.

I can't believe the difference in clarity that I experience while wearing my hearing aid. At work I don't have to ask everyone to repeat themselves and I know they appreciate that.

The only problem I've noticed is that my wife seems to have more for me to do now that I can hear her!"

OBITUARY

Ruby Elizabeth Kennedy

TWIN FALLS — Ruby Elizabeth Kennedy, 83, of Twin Falls, passed away June 12, 2006, at the Sunbridge Retirement Center in Twin Falls.

She then went on to business college. During World War II, she worked in Utah, to help support the war effort.

Beloved sister of her two brothers — John and Clifford Kennedy of Homedale, Idaho; two sisters — Elaine Schmidt of Kimberly, Idaho, and Alice (John) Carter of Mission Viejo, CA; and sister-in-law, Betty Kennedy of Pocatello.

She is loved and remembered by her many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents, two brothers — Harold and Floyd Kennedy.

She will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved her.

Center

telling 5,000 people to stay away from the Harvest Festival.

"You just can't do that. And we don't want to," she said. In addition to community events, the center would have generated money to repair the fairgrounds' other buildings, many of which are beginning to fall apart.

The fair has been self-sufficient for a number of years and will continue to be, ZeBarth said, but some outside money will have to be spent on the buildings in 10 or 20 years.

So why did the levy vote fall?

"I think the main problem was that there are a lot of things going on financially for a lot of people right now," ZeBarth said, naming high gas prices as an example. "This was one thing they had some control over. ... In a different time, it very well might have passed."

DEQ halts Buhl subdivision progress

No new connections to wastewater system will be allowed at this time

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Plans to begin the next phase of the Old Farm Subdivision north of the new Buhl High School have officially come to a halt.

The Department of Environmental Quality told the city and subdivision owner, Earl Gray of West City, Utah in a letter last week that, "At this time we will not provide approval of plans and specifications for additional connections to the wastewater treatment facility until such time that the city proceeds with actions to resolve permit violations."

Until the city places a bond issue before the public for construction of additional treatment capacity and considers a sewer rate increase to provide funds for design and construction of additional treatment plant capacity, the DEQ will no longer approve permits for any new connections to the wastewater system.

"We are between a rock and a hard place," said Buhl Building Inspector Claude Hayes. "We are getting the bond out there for the voters to allow for the work to be done. But if they don't go for it, things here are going to, come to a screeching halt."

Buhl's wastewater system is deteriorating and needs expanded capacity. Other problems include inadequate sewer collection lines and the inability of the existing treatment facilities to meet government discharge limits. The letter also stated that the city's biochemical oxygen demand and total suspended solids allowable in the system are in violation of the NPDES permit. During Monday's council meeting, ordinances were passed declaring Aug. 1 as the day voters will cast their ballots on the $15 million needed for the wastewater system and $8 million for the water system.

The city needs to add several items to reach compliance, including another water tank, generator, larger pipe, booster pumps and a generator to get the arsenic level below 10 parts per billion. Buhl's four wells currently test between 6 ppb and 22 ppb.

City Engineer Scott Bybee is hoping that the bond effort will prompt DEQ to conditionally allow hookups to continue on the current wastewater system.

"This isn't a very positive thing for us," Bybee said. "We are hoping to meet with the DEQ next week to discuss where we are in the process and if we can make a compromise."

Due to the detailed information Ottersberg provided, police officers were able to apprehend and arrest the person later in the evening and recover stolen equipment valued at about $75,000, the department reported.

A corny idea that saves on heating bills

By Steve Grant
The Hartford Courant

WASHINGTON, Conn. — It sounds goofy, heating your house with kernels of corn.
Jokes? Sure. Polenta power. Popcorn power.
But the Petersons of Washington, Conn., who bought a corn-burning furnace nine years ago, get the last laugh.
"People thought we were weird — up until it started getting cold this past year," said Todd Peterson.
People who once regarded the Petersons' heating system as a curiosity now nod and recognize it for what it is, a viable and economical alternative to heating with oil, gas or electricity.
If until now he was "the guy with the John Peterson heats his 1,350-square-foot home in Washington, Conn., with corn. "corn furnace," now the skeptics want to know more. "It's like, all of a sudden, 'Wait a minute, maybe he knows something," Peterson said.

Peterson's father, John, bought the corn-burning furnace from Ja-Ran Enterprises, a Lexington, Mich., company and installed the system himself.
"We love it. It's great," John Peterson said. "We started it way back last October, and it ran up until two weeks ago. We burned just short of six tons of corn. Cost: $620. We still have some left."
The Peterson family, John and his wife, Joan, and sons Todd and Scott, live in a 1,350-square-foot home with a northern exposure. The Petersons say the home stays a constant 70 degrees throughout the winter, regulated by a thermostat, just like a conventional heating system.
The system is analogous to a coal-fired system, only cleaner. The Petersons buy 6 tons of corn kernels from a farm in Salisbury in the fall and, using a chute, dump it into a basement storage bin 8 feet by 10 feet. The corn piled about 4 1/2 feet high. About once a week, a hopper connected to the furnace is filled with corn kernels, which are automatically fed into the firebox. Even in the coldest weeks of winter, the hopper needs to be filled only once every seven days.

The stove cost Peterson $2,400 in the mid-'90s, he said. The company said it now retails for $3,650. John Peterson said he is certain he saves hundreds of dollars a month over an oil-fired system. He estimates that a corn stove could pay for itself in savings in as little as three years.

Feeling the pinch

Amy and Jacob Lopez watch Spoons Bob Square Pants with their children Troy, center left, and Johnny on Monday at their home in Eureka, Calif. For the Lopez family, the $70 cost of filling up their Ford minivan has made it tough to get by every month and may force them to sell their car for a cheaper one. But that's just the tip of inflation's impact on the northern California couple and their children.

Inflation hits home for lower income groups

By Dave Carpenter
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — Wall Street is worried about inflation. So are Amy Lopez, of Eureka, Calif., Sharon Connley of Duluth, Minn., and Elmer Hunt Jr. of Boise.
They and other Americans are increasingly feeling the squeeze of higher prices, not only at the gas pump but in the cost of groceries, delivery charges, travel and numerous other items.
Inflation remains modest by historical standards at about 3.5 percent. It appears no threat to return any time soon to the double-digit rates of the late 1970s and early '80s, perhaps not even to the 5 percent level last seen in the spring of 1991.
But driven by soaring energy prices, inflation is creeping toward 4 percent for the second quarter and the highest annual rate in 15 years.
A government report Tuesday showed that prices paid by producers rose 5.6 percent for the previous 12 months, thanks to the relentless rise in energy prices. Economists are forecasting that another report due today will show that consumer prices also kept rising.
While those rates may seem tame, the steady increase has caused so much concern that Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke is threatening to extend the Fed's two-year rate-raising campaign, sending the stock market plunging this month.
Inflation remains "an annoyance" at the moment for most consumers, according to Carl Nannenbaum, chief economist for LaSalle Bank in Chicago.
"Certainly some of these rising prices have hurt people

Inflation over time

who live on more modest incomes," he said. "But in general, these rises in prices have not crippled households at all."
Still, many are growing uncomfortable with each tick higher in rates, as balancing checkbooks gets more difficult.
"The majority of households are feeling a little uneasy," said Diane Swink, chief economist at M&S Row Financial, a Chicago-based financial services firm. They haven't lost a job but they haven't gotten any pay increases to compensate for the higher gas prices. Higher prices elsewhere. You have a prolonged period where people... are feeling like their living standards aren't doing as well."
While wealthier households may be absorbing the price shocks painlessly, that's hardly the case at the other end of the wage spectrum, where millions of Americans don't need to check stock portfolios to feel the impact. Especially among lower-income workers, inflation is forcing more and more sacrifices, compromises and budget-juggling.

"Every day I see people making other choices. To eat healthy is way more expensive than to eat mac and cheese."
— Sharon Connley of Duluth, Minn.

For Amy and Jacob Lopez, the $70 cost of filling up their Ford mini-van has made it tough to get by every month and may force them to sell their car for a cheaper one. But that's just the tip of inflation's impact on the northern California couple and their two preschool-age children.
Amy, a stay-at-home mom, cited the effects of higher prices for everything from rent to utilities to grocery items from milk to hamburger meat. Meanwhile, wages for her husband, who works in inventory at a flower bulb farm, have stayed the same.
"We have had to cut quite a lot of things out" to make ends meet, such as weekend outings, buying treats for their kids and visiting their grandparents, the 23-year-old said.
"With rent now accounting for more than half their monthly income of $1,200, they had to seek help from a local food bank recently. Trying to stretch every dollar, they've switched to cheaper brands of shampoo and soap. Lopez isn't sure what steps to take next.
"I just think the cost of living everywhere is going up, and wages aren't," she said. "If food and stuff are constantly going up, I think people should be paid more."
U.S. wages actually have been roughly keeping pace with inflation for the average American, according to Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Economy.com in West Chester, Pa. But the recent trend means they likely won't be in the future, he said.

Lower-paying jobs also are more vulnerable to price rises and perhaps less likely to keep pace.
In Duluth, the 48-year-old Connley, who makes $9 an hour as a receptionist, is buying more noodles, lower-quality meats and more canned vegetables instead of fresh ones to try to cope.
"In the last couple of years, it's gotten worse," she said. "You go to the grocery store now and spend 50 bucks and walk out with a bag, where it used to be enough for two weeks."
Not only does she feel inflation's pinch on her own lifestyle, she sees the consequences on others in her job at a low-income affordable housing organization in the northern Minnesota city. Some 28,000 people in a population of 86,000 are under the poverty line there, according to Sonia Bonilla of the nonprofit group Community Action Duluth.
"Every day I see people making other choices" because of the costs crunch, Connley said. "To eat healthy is way more expensive than to eat mac and cheese."
Retirees can be among the worst-hit by inflation since their income tends to be fixed. Hunt, a retired math teacher, relies primarily on investment income but nonetheless says inflation has "definitely" affected his lifestyle.

Chairman invests in Dell, but is that a reason to buy stock?

By Rachel Beck
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — When an executive like Michael Dell buys about $70 million worth of his company's stock in one of the largest individual share purchases of its kind in recent history, that gets people talking. But it shouldn't necessarily get people buying.

Dell is the chairman of Dell Computer Corp., which has a call center in Twin Falls. Insider transactions are something that many stock-market watchers like to monitor. The thinking goes: If people in the know are scooping up or selling stocks, then maybe other investors would be smart to follow their lead.
That strategy may look great on paper, but in practice it's not as reliable as one might think. In some industries the performance of stocks following big insiders' moves fall short of the broader market, according to a new study from Morgan Stanley.

With Wall Street plagued lately by mounting concerns over rising inflation and slowing economic growth, investors are doing what they can to navigate a choppy market. Since mid-May alone, the Standard & Poor's 500 index has fallen more than 5 percent, erasing much of the gains tallied in 2006.
As a result, stock picking has become increasingly important. When investors can't count on the broader market to give them the return they want, they search for individual stocks that could potentially have something to offer.

Maybe that's what Michael Dell is thinking, too. Shares in the company have taken a beating over the last year, plunging from a 52-week high above $41 a share to now trade around $25 a piece. According to Thomson Financial, its forward price-earnings ratio is now 37 percent below its five-year average and is 44 percent below its major competitors in the computer business.

Apparently, Dell believes this as an attractive time to buy, and did just that with his purchase last month of more than 2.9 million shares of Dell common stock for an average price of $23.99 a piece — his first purchase of common stock since 2001. But Computer declined to comment on Michael Dell's purchase, saying it was a private investment. But investors interested in Dell or any other company with big insider activity might want to take note of the Morgan Stanley study. It judged the probability of success from using insider trading as a buy signal at 52 percent, meaning it would make you money only about half the time.
That's even though the study found that investors who bought stocks that registered an insider buy signal since 2003 have outperformed the S&P 500 by 6.3 percent over the next year.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"I've given offense by saying I'd as soon write free as play tennis with the net down." — Robert Frost

It is relatively unusual to find excellent bridge players who are also athletes these days, but Freddie Della-Porta, who died in 2001 at the age of 95, had two passions: bridge and tennis. A vice-president of the English Bridge Union, he united them by establishing the London Trophy, an annual bridge championship for non-bridge clubs, in which some 300 teams now play. One of these, the All England Tennis Club, elected him a full member in 1958 and celebrated his 90th birthday by letting him play a doubles match on the Number One court at Wimbledon.

Here Della-Porta was declared in four spades, needing to locate the trump queen for his contract to succeed. He eschewed the adage "eight ever, nine never" and a good thing, since he would have gone down had he played for the drop of the spade queen.

The diamond king was led, and rather than take any position regarding the spade queen, South won in dummy and ruffed a diamond in hand. A heart to dummy's king allowed another diamond ruff, and a heart to the ace permitted dummy's last diamond to be trumped low as East showed up. Next came the club ace and another club. The defenders could now cash their three winners in clubs hearts, leaving declarer with three trumps in each hand. Whatever the defense returned, Freddie had the last three tricks and his contract without needing to guess the trump queen.

ANSWER: Double for takeout. A bid of two no trump here is best played as an artificial (unusual) showing both minors), but even if it were natural, it would be a vast overbid. The safest way into the auction is to double. Your shape is uninspiring, but partner will make up for it — you hope.
