Both sides in an ongoing dispute between Magic Valley water users are at it again.

In light of a recent court ruling voiding rules of an Idaho water law, ground and surface water parties have lodged new requests with the Idaho Department of Water Resources. Surface water users want immediate deliv-ery of water they were shorted last year. They've also asket Karl Dreher, director of the department, to anticipate and act on shortages for this im-gation season. "We're asking the director to

"What you're saying is it's better you don't exist than be the wrong gender for my familiary and the worn gender for my family and that's a shocking assertion," said Matthew Eppinette. Gresarch at the Center for Bloethies and Human Dignity, a Christlan biocthies group. The method can prevent sex-linked inherited diseases. But when it's used solely to help a couple get a coveted girl or round out a family of daughters with a wanted son, the practice is controversial, even among doctors who specialize in reproductive medicine. "We don't do that. Sex lis not a disease," snapped Yury Verlinsky, director of the Reproductive institute in Chicago. The American Society for Reproductive Medicine says ex selection of embryos is clearly ethical when the method is used to prevent genetic disease. But the professional group discourages its use for choosing one gender over another. The group says the practice risks reinforcing sexism in society and diverts medical resources from real medical needs.

To date, Dreher has not responded to the letter. Alberdi said the directors lack of action makes managing the canal company swater difficult this season.

A full reservoir system does not mean "that natural flow rights will be entirely satisfied, or that the aquifer levels, spring flows, reach gains and storage rights will not subsequently suffer the impacts from junior priority ground-water diversions, the surface water users stated in their letter to Dreher. The coalition engphasized Wood's point that delivery calls need to be answered in a timely manner.

Since Wood's ruling will likely be appealed, on Friday attorneys for the city of Pocatello asked Dreher to halt further action in the 2005 call. Parties planned to meet in September, and Dreher's final order in the call was still pending.

Southern Baptist leaders refuse to back public school pullout

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—
There will be no Southern Baptist exodus from the nation's public schools — at least for now.

Leaders of the nation's largest Protestant denomination Wednesday refused to support a tesolution that would have urged the denomination to form an "eds strategy" for pulling Southern Baptist children from public schools in favor of home schools or private Christian schools.

The proposal, offered by

The proposal offered by Roger Moran of Troy, Mo., and Texas author Bruce Short, came as many of the nations 16.2 million Southern Baptists are concerned about how classrooms are handling subjects such as homosexuality and intelligent design. Instead of putting the exit strategy before delegates to the SBCs annual meeting, the denomination's resolutions committee called on members to engage the culture of our beautiful committee and the committee of the culture of our beautiful control of the committee of the culture of our moderating standing for election to local school system's the proposed of the problem of the Public School System's that was overwhelmingly approved a secondary of the metal committee of the culture of the metal committee of the committee of the Overheated rhetoric, unsupported assertions and factual errors about the use of the drug — including frequent, misguided comparisons between meth and crack cocaine—lead to poor decisions about how to spend precious public dollars combating drug addletion, King sald.

The White House Office of National Drug Control Polley did not immediately comment

British television and the print press have their knickers in a twist over the triple suicide of terrorist suspects held at the Guintanamo Bay detainment camp in Cuba. Most "report ing" features conclusions and opinion that these men killed themselves out of "desperation" and loss of hope that they would ever get to "fell their sto-ries. In a column for The Times of London, Libby Purves descends to the level of rurves descends to the level of immoral equivalence when she writes, "our side can be just as blind." Her comment is about the terorists and the negligible value they place on human life. I wonder why she put quote marks around 'our? Purves continues, "If we cling to any continues, "If we cling to any hope that we are different fro hope that we are different from murderers, we should not dis-miss any human death as a PR stunt." Apparently, Purves and others in the British media who are conducting a mostly one-sided campaign against the Iraq war and President Bush by Iraq war and President Bush to interviewing mostly critics of U.S. policy, have not read the al-Qaida playbook or, if they have, don't belleve it. The al-Qaida playbook promotes sui-cide as a warfare strategy. It is not seen as an act of desper-ation, but as a strategy to under-mine Western resolve. The dif-ference between these suicides and the ones regularly seen ference between these suicides and the ones regularly seen and the ones regularly seen throughout the Middle East is that in the case of the Guantanamo three, only the bad guys died. In a "normal" suicide, innocent civilians are blown away along with most of the wedding party, cafe patrons, children on a school crawbile bus or unwone else or public bus, or unyone the murderers see as valuable to their perverted cause. I watch Muslim leaders inter-viewed on television and listen to former Guantanamo detainees claim torture and inhumane conditions at the base. There is no rebuttal from any U.S. official and no chalbase. There is no rebuttal from any U.S. official and no challenge to their claims by any of the show hosts. Apparently, too many members of the British media have fonguten, or don't know, that al-Qaida training manuals teach deception. They draw on a frequent practice, if not a principle of Islam, which permits a Muslim to lie to a mindled! for the 'greater good' of the religion. The London Dally Mail began a recent editorial titled "From the High Moral Ground to the Gutter denouncing the suicities and the response by Admittal Bartist. World opinion..." World opinion is not the standard for fighting wars, especially this war. And the worst American mistake is not even close to the beheadings and other deliberate inhu-

The long-anticipated book 'Godless: The Church of 'Godless: The Church of Indicased this week. If The New York Times reviews it at all, they'll only talk about the Ann Couller action-figure doll, so I think I'll write my own review. 'Godless' begins with a murder at the Louvre and then takes readers on a roller-coaster ride through the Church of Liberalism in a desperate game of cat and mouse in which the hunter becomes the hunted —with a twist at the end you simply won't believe! It's a real page-turner — even the book-on-tape version and large-print edition! Who knew a book about politics could make such an ideal gift — especially with Father's Day corning up this weekend!

The demand that their religion be discussed only with reference to specific inclividuals—who is godless? are you saying I'm godless? — is simply an attempt to prevent us from talking about their religion. This tactic didn't work with "Slander" or "Treuson," and it's not going to work now. It's not just that liberals ban Reform rabbis from saying brief prayers at high school graduations and swoop down on courthouses and town squares across America to cart off Ten Commandments monuments.

Technical Assistance Grant Available for Superfund Site FPA Technical Assistant

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has received a "Letter of Intentt" from the Snake River Alliance to apply for a Technical Assistance Grant (TAG) for the Idaho National Laboratory Superfund Site in Idaho, waste area groups 3 and 7. A TAG provides money to community groups to hire independent advisors to interpret and explain technical aspects of site reports and proposals for site cleanup.

EPA may award only one TAG per site, and funding may be limited or unavailable depending on our budget. To ensure that the community is represented, EPA encourages any other interested groups to consolidate with the Snake River Alliance and submit a joint application. Interested groups should contact: Jeremy Maxand, Executive Director, Snake River Alliance, 104 S. Capitol Blvd., Boise, ID 83701, 208-344-9161.

Groups have until July 17, 2006 to join together, or submit their own "Letter of Intent. Groups who have submitted a "Letter of Intent" have until August 16, 2006 to submit full applications for the TAG.

Letters of intent, grant applications, and questions should be directed to: Sally Hanft, Technical Assistance Grant Coordinator, U. S. EPA, 1200 Sixth Avenue, ETPA-086, Seattle, WA 98101, 206-553-1207 or 1-800-424-4372 ext. 1207. For more Information about TAGs, check: https://www.epa.gov/superfund/tools/tag/index.htm.

water bottles, tissue boxes and other small items at Hamas lawmakers and forced the parliament speaker to flee.

The second attack on the parliament this week, along with the shooting death of a Hamas gunman in the Gaza Strip, cast doubt on renewed efforts by leaders of the rival Fatah and Hamas parties to halt inflighting.

Fatah and Hamas partles to halt inflighting.
Tensions have been high since Hamas defeated Fatah in legislative elections in January Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas, a Fatah leader who was elected last year, has been in a power struggle with the Islamic group. Twenty-two people have been killed in factional fighting in recent weeks.

'Abbas, a moderate, has been pressuring Hamas to accept a proposal that implicitly recognizes Israel. He has pedose the plan as a way to restart péace talks and litt crippling international sanctions that have rendered the government unable to pay salaries that sustain one-third of the Palestinian population.
But instead of stagoorting Abbas' proposal, Hamas has turned to the Muslim world for help.
Foreign Minister Mahmoud Zahar, a Hamas member, returned to Gaza after visiting Indonesia, Madaysia, Brunel, Clima, Pakistan, Iran and Egypt, Palestinian security officials said Zahar was turned over to the Palestinian reasury. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized a security official at the crossing said Zahar had skip pleces of luggage. Health Minister Basem Naim, who crossed with Zahar, said the cash was in dollars and was stuffed into five of the suitcase.

sent residents, including women and children, scurrying for cover.

Overall, violence dipped slightly in the capital Wednesday, with just one car bombing killing four and wounding six. Another four people died in separate shooting incidents around Iraq.

Many stores were shut in Azamiyah and Dora, both strongholds of the Sunni Arab Insurgency. Entire streets looked virtually deserted in Dora, including one residents have dubbed "death road" because of the frequent clashes there between insurgents and police.

"If this security plan really works, then perhaps i will be encouraged to go out of my neighborhood," Mohammed Whila, a 30-year-old father of

Yehia, a 30-year-old father of two, said at the marble-tiled plaza outside the Grand Imam Abu Hanifa mosque in Azamiyah. Yehla said fears of being killed by Shilte millitants have prevented him from venturing out of Azamiyah since the Feb. 22 destruction of a revered Shilte shrine — an attack which unleasthed the worst and longest bout of sectarian violence since Saddam's ouster.

"It has been three years," said Yehia, who makes a living doing odd jobs at the Grand Imam mosque. "We have had enough, We are all yearning for normal lives."

Operation Forward Together, involving 75,000 Iraqi army and police forces backed by U.S. troops, began at a crucial time — one day after Bush visited Baghdad to reassure Iraqis of Washingtons continued support and exactly a week after the death of terror leader Abu Musab al-Zarqawi. It was also the first major action by Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki dinner his new government of national unity was sworn in on May 20, and a week after he gained the consensus he needed from Iraq's ethnic and secturian groups to fill three key posts — defense, interior and national security.

Staal scored his first two goals of the finals for Carolina, which had a chance to clinch is first Stanley Cup on home ice.

But the team that was borm in the old World Hockey Association as the New England Whalers and moved south in 1997 will have to wait at least three more days to sip from hockey's most treasured prize.

The cup was packed back up and shipped to Edmonton. If the Ollers—the first No. 8 seed to reach the finals under the current playoff format — win again, it's back to Raleigh for a decisive Game 7 Monday night. This one was played after the remnants of Tropical Storm Alberto moved through and flooding a major shopping mall a few miles away from the RBC Center.

But the storm tapered off in the afternoon and Carolina's fans were able to do their usual tailgating outside the arena, whipping tensives into a fenzy by the time they got inside—only to have the team from Alberta score a stunning goal on the first shot of the game.

Pisani got a stick on Chris Pronger's slap shot from the blue line, deflecting it past Ward only 16 seconds after the opening face-off. That sparked a wild flyst period, with the Ollers grabbling a 3-2 lead and the teams combining for more goals than either of the two games in Edmonton produced. Both teams tightened up considerably over the final two periods of regulation. Staal seconed the tying goal midway through the second, and the teams combined for only seven shots on goal in the third.

But the Ollers controlled the overtime, putting seven shots on Ward.

But the Oilers controlled the overtime, put-ting seven shots on Ward.
The last one beat him.
Jussi Markkanen, who took over for Dwayne Rolsoon when Edmonton's playoff star was injured in Game 1, had another solid game. He stopped 21 shots and got a break when Ray Whitney's point-blank shot went off the post with 747 felt in regulation.
Amazingly, the Hurricanes lost the game on the power play a part of the game that has given them a huge advantage in the series. Carolina has converted eight of 33 chances with the man advantage.

MAMARONECK, N.Y.—Phil Mickelson once took the day off before a major to attend the Buffalo Bills' training camp. Best things il IF JUNE 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: With dramatic Pluto aligned with your area of the zodiac, important transformations are in process. You are passionate about what is important troyou, determined to be successful and might burn some key bridges in an effort to achieve your aims. October and November could be crucial months when you gain something on one hand, but experience losses on the other. Whatever decisions you make at that time could influence the future, so be caudious. Remember to be kind to those who have supported you in the past and to repay your obligations. ARIES (March 21-April 19). The best things in life aren't necessarily things. Sometimes we have to stand our ground and defend ideals. Think carefully about the values that must be upheld before making an irrevocable decision. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It is easier to cut with the grain your pains it. Oppositions than against it. Oppositions Hold off on making important decisions or agreements. GEMINI (May 21-Iune 20): Make steppingstones out of stumbling blocks. You can meter or otherwise abuse your privileges. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders bridge the differences between you and others by being articulate and imaginative. Hold off on starting major projects. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Weigh it on the scale of justice. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Weigh it on the scale of justice. Sometimes criticism really is constructive. Keep in mind that your perception of what is beneficial could be based on whether you give an opinion or receive one. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't depend upon the luck of the draw. Talent lies not in the cards you were dealt, but in Julying a poor hand well. This isn't the time to take advantage of a loophole to justify actions. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be discriminating. Seek the best and highest and don't settle for second-best. Although you can usually talk your way out of a corner, you should still avoid situations that put you ut of a corner, you should still avoid situations that put you between a rock and hand place. DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Edith in Sweden." regarding the American woman who was talking loudly in a restuarant there, thinking no one could understand what she was saying, You commented that Americans need to understand that samy people in other countries can understand that many people in other countries can understand that sometimes Americans can understand them, too.

My daughter was assigned to NATO security, and while I was visiting her in Italy, the two of us went shopping in a town near Naples. The owner of a pottery shop was talking to a friend as we browsed. My daughter translated the conversation for me, in a whisper. She's saying she can't stand the Americans and the Brits, and wishes they would leave. The woman then approached us, all smiles, and asked if she could show us something. My blue-eyed, end-haired daughter replied in fluent fealian "Thank you, but there's nothing in this shop that we could possibly be interested in," and we left.

DEAR ABBY: That letter reminded me of an incident in Munich. We were invited to dinner at a nice restaurant by a German friend. Our host, as is German friend. Our host, as is customary there, brought along his miniature poodle. As we passed one table, an American woman said loudly to her companions, "I wonder why the Germans always bring their pets to a restaurant?" Teens find ring tone in high-pitched repellent

Tone lets them hear phone when many adults can't

By Yald Nogachi and Kim Hart The Washington Post

When it came out in Britain December, the Mosquito in December, the Mosquito sound system was supposed to be the sonic equivalent of a "no loitering" sign. Its annoying, high-pitched sound — which many adults can't hear but most young people can — would act as a teen repellent. Now, teens are staging a worldwide rebellion: Downloading the sound, or another ring tone in that same high-frequency range, allows them to hear their cellphones ring when their parents and teachers (mostly) cannot. eachers (mostly) cannot.

And the company that brought the Mosquite to market — Compound Security Systems Lid. of Britain — is being barraged by a new market of companies wanting to sell a line of subversive ring sell a line of succestones.

"When we brought out the teenager repellent to market, we really didn't think anybody would be interested in ring tones" in the same frequency, said Simon Morris, marketing and commercial director for and commercial director and commercial director for Compound Security, who has been fielding hundreds of calls from companies and journal-ists around the world since the annoying ring tone became popular.

The original Mosquito device is a small black box that looks like a speaker and emits pulsating sounds at a frequen-cy around 17 kilohertz—audi-ble to relatively undamaged young ears but generally hardyoung ears but generally hard-er to hear for those older than 20.

"The human ear is responsive to a range of pitches, and that range gets smaller in the higher pitches with age," particularly when one has been exposed to loud noise for long periods of time, said Vic Gladstone, an audiologist and chief staff officer at the American Speech-Language-Hearing! Association in Rockwille, Md. of a kids-only. The appeal of a kids-only.

Rockville, Md.

The appeal of a kids-only technology quickly caught on:
Teens worldwide now use it to dodge cellphone restrictions in class.

The craze started a few months after Mosquito launched, when someone—probably in Scandinavia, according to Morris, 'though the British press pluned it on teems in Wales — designed software, that allowed people to download a similar high-pitched sound to their phones, then share that ring one with others by beauting it through a Bluetooth wireless connection.

Compound Security released its own version, and the Mosquito tone took on the classic attributes of viral marketing.

A new shot of inflation, pushed by gas prices

Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Gasoline prices are up. So are alfilled fares and hospital costs.

In fact, inflation outside of food and energy is rising at the fastest pace in more than a decade, the government reported Wednesday.

But because the news was not as bad as had been feared, a relieved Wall Street raillied. The Dow Jones industrial average rose by 110.78 points, after declines fueled by inflation worries in six of the past seven trading days.

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index showed prices rising by 0.4 percent in May, the third consecutive sixable gain. Investors were relieved that the price pressures were not as widespread as had been imagined.

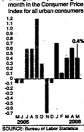

Many economists said they now believe the Federal Reserve will be content to raise interest rates just once or wice before finally ending Economists who believe the Fed is close to ending its rate increases pointed to a second report — the Fed's latest survey of business conditions around the country It showed the economy has slowed in recent weeks, a development the central bank is trying to engineer with those increases as a way to contain inflation.

Gasoline prices were up 4.9 percent last month following an 8.6 percent jump in April. Those gains have pushed jump prices above $3 per gallon in parts of the country.

Federal Reserve Chalirman Ben Bernanke contributed to a 199-point market drop on June 5 when he called recent increases in core inflation

"unwelcome developments" and signaled the Fed stood ready to make rates further to fight indiation. When he made that comment, the three-month average for core CPI inflation was 3.2 percent; the Feds comfort. The Fed is expected to boost its target for the federal funds rate, now at a five-year high of 5 percent, to 5.25 percent at he June 28-29 meeting. Some economists said they expected a final increase of one-quarter of a percentage point at the August meeting. That would allow Bernanke, the took over from Fed the Alan Greenspan in February, to prove his inflation-fighting mettle. "He will be able to convince

"He will be able to convince the markets that he means business in terms of price stability," said David Jones, head of DMJ Advisors, a Denverbased economic consulting firm. For President Bush, voters'

Time for small businesses to check finances

By Joyce M. Rosenberg Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — The summer NEW YORK — The summer often brings a welcome slow-down for many small company owners as customers take vacations and the pace of business relaxes. So, it's a great time to take a close look at your company's finances and assess where you're headed during the second half of the year.

during the second half of the year.

Many small business advisers recommend that owners sit down with their accountants during lune or July to determine what changes they need to make to their financial projections and overall business plans. Taxes, cash flow, capital spending and employee benefits are among the many topical that should be discussed.

One of the first items you need to consider is your estimated tax payments, and whether your remaining payments for 2006 need to be adjusted upward or downward.

"You don't want to may in ward. "You don't want to pay in more than you have to," because the money you overpay can be put to better use within your company, said Gordon Spoor, a certified public accountant in St. Petersburg, Fla. On the other hand, if you're underpaying, you're running the risk of havjag to pay a penalty to the IRS next year.

"You can have it set aside

Ieffrey Berdahl said equipment purchases should also be thought through carefully. While what's known as the Section 179 deduction gives small businesses a great tax break when they buy equipment like computers, office furniture and machinery used in manufacturing, the cost of financing such a purchase may offset the benefits of the deduction.

"Is it worth the tax savings?" Berdahl asked:

Similarly, Spoor and Berdahl recommended owners look at heir health insurance plans and see if there are ways to save; both men noted that health savings accounts, or HSAs, are likely to help many small companies lower their fast-rising health care costs.

HSAs combine a high-deductible insurance policy with a savings account that employees can draw on to pay their out-of-pocket medical expenses. Employees can contribute to the account with proteat dollars.

Shakira's hit 'Hips Don't Lie' sets a record

No. her hips don't lie. They don't have to now holds the condition of the most played dong in pop music history, as "Hips Don't Lie" was played "9.657 times in one week on American radio, breaking Gwen Stefan's former record of 9.582 plays in a week for "Hollaback Girl" last year, according to Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems.

"Hips," which fuses Shakira's

Latin influence with Wyclef Jean's island-tinged hip-hop and a touch of '80s cheeseand a touch of '80s cheese-metal synths, is an unlikely entry for such dominance. Tucked amid the Spanglish lyrics — which, considering the current red-hot debate over immigration, could be seen as a drawback in some parts of the country — is a nugget of protest, as Shakira and Jean sing, 'Why the CIA wanna watch us? Colombians and Haitians' I ain' gulls'. The song also made Shakira the first artist to ever be No. I on Billboards Top 40 chart and the Latin singles chart simulteneously. "Hips" would have done better on Billboards Hot 100 chart cariler if Epic Records hadn't heid back its release as a legal download in order to drive up sales of Shakiras "Oral Fixation, Vol. 2" album. However, after weeks of protests from fans on album. However, after weeks of protests from fans on flunes, the song is now available as a download single and has leaped into the Billboard

EASY

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1 through 9. That's all there is to it. There's no math involved. The grid has numbers, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. Find the answers for todays puzzle on page E-11.

"How easy for those who do not bulge To not overindulge!" — Ogden Nash

— Ogden Nash

Today's deal is deceptively simple, but I guarantee that a number of experts would get it wrong at the table.

With that hint, put yourself in declarer's position, playing three no-trump. On the lead of the spade queen, East plays a discouraging three. You can hold up now, but a heart shift might bother you, so it looks sensible enough to take the trick and hold up later.

With the shortage of entries to dummy, it looks right to take the losing diamond finesse to East, who wins and returns a second spade. You duck, win the next spade in hand, cash the diamonds, and take the club finesse — down one. You can justifiably claim you were unlucky, with both key finesses losing — or can you?

In fact, with West clearly the hand that is long in spades, his is the only danger hand. You do not mind losing the diamond finesse, but you do not want to lose the club finesse to West after his spades have been established.

The winning line is to take the spade at trick one and play the club ace and a second club at once. Yes, you might blow an overtrick when the club finesse was working, but what harm could you possibly come to by this line? Even if East could win with the club king and continue spades, you simply duck one spade, win the next, then take the diamond finesse into the safe hand for nine tricks.

ANSWER: Give preference to three diamonds. Your support is more than adequate, and the advantage of making the most economical call is to let your partner tell you why he forced to game. (It could be because he has a real two-suiter, or support for spades, or just a very big hand). Regardless, the more space he has, the easier it will be for him to show what he has.

Lara Croft's return is one to remember

vironments-have been erased in 'Lara Croft Tomb Raider: Lecend.'

BY JOHN GAUDIOSI The Washington Post

Lara Croft is back after a threeyear basence and a horrendous sequel ("Lara Croft Tomb Raider: The Angel of Darkness") that almost killed the franchise. "Lara Croft Tomb Raider: Legand: (Eldos/Crystal Dynamics, Moox 360, 560: PlayStation 2, Moox, $50; PC, $40) revives one of the most recognizable game franchises around.

All the problems that plagued the franchise from its inception (inept camera movement, unresponsive controls, repetitive ensurements) have been erased, opening up gameplay that's actually fun. The new Lam Croft is now one fast archaeologist. Speed has been an issue with previous games, but controlling this Lara is a breeze (whether stee climbing walls, swimming or jumping across cliffs).

Wielding dual weapons makes taking care of the enemies, human or beast, a snap. Past Tomb Raider games have offered difficult, and often obtuse, puzzles to solve before moving to the next level. This time around, interacting with the environments to solve puzzles is an intuitive experience, "Legend" involves Lara's investigation of the death of her mother, in a plot that features King Arthur and a magical sword that has been broken and spread around the globe. This new game offers one of the most diverse offerings of locales ever in the franchise, including Bolivia, Ghana, Peru, Tokyo, England and Kazakhatan. Though there are plenty of tombs and ruins to explore (always the heart of this franchise). new environments such as skyscrapers, a research facility and a rustic village add variety to the gameplay.

The visuals in this game (which are photo-realistic in high-definition on Xbox 360 and excellent on Xbox) bring settings such as Tokyo to life with an amazing attention to detail, immersing you in this world. From the truly open gameplay, which allows you to guide Lara anywhere in these large environments, to the action-filled story, this is the sequel gamers have been waiting nearly a decade for. Though the adventure logs in at about eight hours, there's incentive to go back and explore this rich world again.

Jazz in the Canyon rocks on this weekend

Times News writer

TWIN FAILS - You can leave your football helmet home.

The rocks have stopped falling on Canyon Springs Road, and the landslide that threatened to make the eighth annual lazz in the Canyon a moveable feast by blocking access to Centennial Park is being cleaned up. As of Wednesday morning, city crews hoped to have the road open by the end of the day.

"We have every reason to believe they'll be finished in plenty of time," said Jody Tremblay, special projects director for Jazz in the Canyon.

New York Jazz planist Paul Tillotson and Texas blues and gospel singer Ruthle Foster are the headline acts, but Jazz in the Canyon has evolved into a threeday hootenanny, ranging from intimate jam sessions to indoor earden concerts.

Jazz in the Canyon officially begins at 6:30 p.m. today with the Magic Valley Arts Council's Jazz and Wine event in the garden setting of Kimberly Nurseries, 2862 Addison Ave. E., in Twin Falls. The event will feature the music of the 16ff Baker Group.

On Friday, live jazz will be featured at several venues during lazz in Old Towne. Nine bands will perform at Woody's Sports Bar and Grill, Phat Eddy's, Trail Creek Brewery, and in an openair concert at Magic Valley Bank on the corner of Shoshone and Main, the Bob Nora Band kicks off the eventing at 4 p.m., and Callente performs at 6 p.m. At Phat Eddy's, Skip-n-Skool plays at 6 p.m. followed by Jazz House

Also Friday, the Magic Valley Arts Council's Full Moon Gallery will debut a jazz-themed an show called 'Art and All That Jazz' from 6 to 9 p.m. The Gallery is located in the Main Street Plaza.

On Saturday, Jazz performers will entertain music lovers on the banks of the Snake River in Centennial Park from noon to 9 pm. Ruthle Foster takes the stage at 5 pm., followed by Paul Tillotson at 7. The event will also feature performances by regional artists, including Doc McBride from Tomances by regional artists, including Doc McBride from Editings, Month, at noon; the B-3 Sides from Boise at 1 p.m.; Four from around southern Idaho at 2 pm.; the Jeff Baker Group at 3 p.m.; and Fatdad from Bismarck, ND at 4

The term to pro-Plantst Paul Tillotson is a longtime fixture of the Sun Valley entertainment scene.

The 41-year-old Tillotson, who works for much of the year in Sun Valley, performed at Jazz in the Canyon last summer. Originally from Bolse, he has been playing the piano for 30 years and has performed with friends Curtis Stigers and Gene Harris, as well as other jazz notables.

He's been part of jazz festivals around the world. Tillotson released his first CD, 'Thesty Morsels' in 1998. Three more followed, including 'Duck Callin'
Man'; a solo piano recording titied 'Drinkin' Wine with 'Pauli'; and his latest effort, 'Punky Good
Time,' released in 2002.

Tillotson performs often in Sun

'THE LAKE HOUSE' The night we never met

BY CHRISTY LEMBRE

The Associated Press

Kleenex won't be necessary for watching the wannabe weepy "The Lake House," but some sort of pain reliever is essential — because trying to determine whether this time-travel romance functions logically will seriously make your head hurt.

Without knocking ourselves out too much, let's give it a shot.

Keanu Reeves and Sandra Bullock star as the successive inhabitants of a cozy, cool-looking lake house — made of glass and standing on stilts — hidden along a quiet little section of coastline outside Chicago.

Reeves (as architect Alex Wyler) moves in after Bullock (as Wyler) moves in after Bullock (as Dr. Kate Forster) moves out. They drop perfunctory letters in the mailbox for each other about forwarding mail, some items left in the attic, etc. Soon they realize, though, that Alex is writing from 2004 and Kate is writing from 2006 — exactly two years agart from each other, to the day.

apart from each other, to the day.

But wait: Didn't Alex move in , after Kate?

Regardless of whether you can go with this, Mex and Kate can easily. In no time the letters turn filtry, then intimate, until both realize they re falling in love. When her boss at the hospital (Shohreh Aghdashloo) asks whether she has a boyfriend, Kate confesses with a sheepish smile. "It's kind of a long-distance relationship."

It calls to mind that line from "The Purple Rose of Cairo," when Mia Farrow says of the pith-helmeted actor who's walked off the screen and into her life, "I just met a wonderful new man. He's fictional but you can't have everything." Trouble is, Woody Allen's "The dy. Alejandro Agresti's "The Lake House," based on the South Korean film "Il Mare," is not — not intentionally, that is.

But wait: Early in the movie, a young man with dark hair is hilt by a bus while crossing a busy' street, right in front of Kate. And before that, you may have noticed on your way into the theater that on the poster for "Theater that on the poster for "Theake House," Reeves is hovering behind Bullock, looking more pasty and vapid than usual.

Could Alex b... dead?

Then again, if he's dead, how can he leave an annotated map for Kate to guide her on a tour of all his favorite spots in Chicago? You need a flow chart to figure it all out — and you shouldn't, considering that the screenplay comes from David Auburn, the Pulitzer-Prize and Tony-winning writer of the play "Proof."

If you enjoy going to the movies to be swept up by romance, the film should at least have the fundamental decency to make sense.

The way Kate and Alex communicate, for example: Some-times they have to place the letter in the mailbox, raise the flag and wait for the other person to reach in and read it. Sometimes they're talking to each other—out loud, in real time, while sitting on the same bench—as if through some sort of telepathic instant messenger. Other times, poof! A letter just magically materializes in a character's hands.

Again, this is where the migraine-strength pain reliever comes in handy.

Theoretically, part of the allure lies in watching the stars of "Speed" team up again in a totally different way.

The one scene in which they do physically occupy the same space—sitting side by side on the porch at a party they're both attending in 2004—does provide some sparks, not only because it's so long in coming but because they do look great together.

But in reality, all this does is make you wish a bus would come barreling through the production at 50 mph.

Story" movies, "Monsters, Inc." and "Finding Nemo." En route to a race, an arrogant hot-shot race car (voiced by Owen Wilson) is forced to spend time in a sleepy little town where he discovers life out of the fast lane. And gets some high-octane tips from a mysterious old Hudson Hornet (Paul Newman). The animation is terrific, but the Life Lessons are imparted with zero charm or nuance and, at almost 2 hours, it somehow manages to be both frenetic and leaden. That said. the kids will love it though you may feel like you've been run over. Rated G. 1 hour, 56 minutés.

• "The Break-Up" / C So broke even the capable stars can't fix it. The movie is being sold as a cute romantic comedy starring arethey-or-aren't-they hot couple Jennifer Aniston and Vince Vaughn as a Chicago couple who've broken up. Problem is, neither is willing to leave the condo they share. Reportedly, it was meant to be a darker film. but, as is, the abvsmal script sends helter-skelter mixed signals that leave an audience at first confused, then frankly uncomfortable. Too bad, because this had some intriguing possibilities, Rated PG-13 (sexual content, some nudity and language). 1 hour, 46 minutes.

• "The Da Vinci Code" / B If you liked the book, you'll probably like the movie. If not ... well, it's hard to say. Ron Howard's very literal adaptation of Dan Brown's best-seller stars Tom Hanks as a Harvard symbologist (he does codes, hence the title) unwittingly caught up in a mystery that could crack two millenniums of traditional Christian doctrine wide open. Less blasphemous than boring (if you know the book) or confusing (if you don't know the book), the film is, please remember, fiction, not, well, gospel truth. Ian McKellen steals his every scene as a guy as mad about the Holy Grail as Monty Python and Indiana Jones put together. Rated PG-13 (disturbing images, violence, some nudity, thematic material, brief drug references and sexual content), 2 hours, 29 minutes,

• "The Fast and the Furious: Tokyo Drift" / No rating - This sequel in name and speed only is an expensive cinematic equivalent of boys playing rough with their Hot Wheels cars --- while gorgeous, underdressed girls look on. The first two installments. "The Fast and the Furious" with Vin Diesel and Paul Walker and "2 Fast 2 Furious" with just Walker, had a few shreds of adult gravitas to go along with the racing engines. perhaps just because the actors were older, "Tokyo Drift" is set in an infantile world where teens drive garish cars with reckless impunity, while adults barely exist save for the occasional moment where the filmmakers want to show their young antiheroes rebelling against authority. Lucas Black leads the all-new cast as a speed freak sent to live with his dad in Japan, where he's caught up in a perilous world of illegal racing. Bow Wow, Nathalie Kelley, Sung Kang and Brian Tee co-star in the film from director Justin Lin. PG-13 for reckless and illegal behavior involving teens, violence, language and sexual content, 104 minutes.

 "Garfield: A Tall of Two Kitties" / No rating It was the worst of times, it was the worst of times. Sorry, couldn't help it. With a title like that, the bad Dickens puns are irresistible and in this case, apropos. Bill Murray is back in this part-animated, part-live-action sequel to 2004's "Garfield," again providing the voice of America's bestknown overfed cat. Despite his droll delivery, Murray can't wring many laughs out of the mostly lame script from returning writers Joel Cohen and Alec Sokolow, This time, Garfield follows his owner, Jon (Breckin Meyer), to England to try to stop him from proposing to his girlfriend - a famous veterinarian with an important speaking engagement played by Jennifer Love Hewitt. (OK, that part IS pretty funny.) While he's there, he's mistaken for a cat who looks just like him (voiced by Tim Curry), who just happens to be a prince. Billy Connolly gamely plays the buffoonish nephew trying to take over the castle the royal British cat has just inherited. Bob Hoskins, Jane Leeves, Rhys Ifans and Jane Horrocks are among the actors whose talents are wasted lending their voices to talking barnyard animals. "Babe," it ain't. PG for some offcolor elements, 90 minutes

. "Just My Luck" / C+ Fun fluff for younger teens. Fashionable New Yorker Lindsay Lohan unwittingly trades her phenomenally good luck for Chris Pine's phenomenally bad luck after a chance encounter at a masquerade party. Sort of, "Sex (less) and the City" meets "The Cooler" and "Prelude to a Kiss." It's a paper-thin premise stretched paper thin, but it's harmless enough and targets its tweener target audience well. Rated PG-13 (some brief sexual references), 1 hour, 32 minutes,

"The Lake House" /No rating Kleenex won't be necessary for. watching this wannabe weepy, but some sort of pain reliever is essential - because trying to determine whether this time-travel romance functions logically will seriously make your head hurt. Keanu Reeves and Sandra Bullock star as the successive inhabitants of a cozy, cool-looking lake house hidden along a quiet little section of coastline outside Chicago, Reeves (as architect Alex Wyler) moves in after Bullock (as doctor Kate Forster) moves out. They drop perfunctory letters in the mailbox for each other about forwarding mail. some items left in the attic. etc. Soon they realize, though, that Alex is writing from 2004 and Kate is writing from 2006 - exactly two years apart from each other, to the day, Regardless of whether you can go with this, Alex and Kate can -easily. In no time the letters turn flirty, then intimate, until both realize they're falling in love. Theoretically, part of the allure lies in watching the stars of "Speed" team up again in a totally different way. But in reality, all it does is make you wish a bus would come barreling through the production at 50 mph. PG for some language and a disturbing image, 108 minutes.

• "Mission: Impossible III" / B A solid enough popcorn movie. "III" is probably the best action film so far out of the "Impossible" pipeline. It's got the money shots, eye-candy locations (China, Italy), bits of humor, specialeffects bravado and acting prowess to suggest the outlay has been worth it. Director I.I. Abrams (TV's "Lost") keeps us interested in this latest version even when his story about some secret something that threatens the world and must be found by Tom Cruise's good-guy spy, Ethan Hunt, as he battles a sadistic arms dealer (Philip Seymour Hoffman) goes a little haywire. Abrams seems to understand pacing and can handle intimate scenes with the same finesse he shows with high-adrenaline action sequences. Rated PG 13 (intense sequences of frenetic violence and menace, and disturbing scenes and some sensuality), 2 hours, 6 minutes,

• "The Omen" / C+ This remake is mostly identical in story line to the fine and horrific 1976 original a diplomat (the capable and cardboard-like Liev Schreiber) and his wife (the equally capable and cardboardlike Julia Stiles) end up with a newborn son, Damien, who may or may not be the Antichrist. The movie is so like its original growling dogs, strange deaths, a priest howling warnings one might suspect this "Omen" to be a predictable retread. It isn't, Though often noticeably inferior to its predecessor, this "Omen" is watchable for its solid support-

"The Pink Panther" PG

For more than a decade, the beloved franchise has lain dormant," reads a rather delightfully florid passage in the publicity materials for the new "Pink Panther" movie. "its reintroduction to contemporary audiences reliant on finding the perfect actor to step into the late Sellers' shoes," conjuring images of Peter Sellers in a glass casket, surrounded by anxious dwarves debating how best to orchestrate his "reintroduction." It's an allnew spin on compulsive cinematic recycling: The Sleeping Beauty rationale. But does the grand "reintroduction" theory of remakes and reimaginings really make any sense? Isn't it precisely contemporary audiences who don't require reintroducing to hits of the past, thanks to the magic of recording technology? And if they were unfamiliar with the originals, wouldn't that make the brand-identity factor negligi-

The new "Pink Panther" kicks in with an animated sequence featuring a squat cartoon Clouseau and the slinky panther playing cat and mouse to the strains of Henry Mancini's sublime burlesque theme, and it never strays too far from its origins. Director Shawn Levy, takes - perhaps unadvisedly, considering - full possessory credit for this gift-store reproduction of a Blake Edwards movie but basically sticks to the formula. The story begins when Yves Gluant, France's most famous soccer coach (and boyfriend of the beautiful pop star Xania, played by Beyonce Knowles) is murdered in plain sight in front of a huge crowd after leading his team to victory against China. By the time anybody notices that Gluant is dead - killed by a poison dart to the neck - the priceless Pink Panther diamond has mysteriously disappeared from his finger. Enter Chief Inspector Dreyfus (Kevin Kline), who has been nominated for the Medal of Honor for the seventh time. Apprehensive about making any mistakes in such a public case. he assigns it to Clouseau. His plan is to make some headway on the case, then take over when Clouseau inevitably bungles it. Kline's Dreyfus is both more collected and cold-blooded a chief inspector than Herbert Lom's, who was a much more irascible type prone to injuries and breakdowns. Of course, it was the injuries and breakdowns that lent Edwards' "Pink Panther" movies their latent pathos, which was always visible underneath the inflatable hump jokes. Clouseau and Drevfus were both exceedingly vulnerable — Clouseau because of his hubris and insecurity and Dreyfus chiefly because of Clouseau. In the new version, that bit of psychological tension has been wiped off the counter and spritzed with sanitizer. Clouseau, dumb-ish, good; Dreyfus, snooty, bad. Instead of Cato, who might have sparked a letter-writing campaign (one never knows), Clouseau has for a sidekick Ponton (Jean Reno), a detective second-class whom Dreyfus assigns to keep an eye on him. The film mostly steers clear of postmodern gestures save for a disconcerting scene in which Clouseau encounters a James Bond type in a casino. The scene spoofs "Casino Royale," in which Sellers spoofed Bond. This time, he's played by Clive Owen. who not only lets Clouseau take the credit for his impromptu crime-solving but also introduces Clouseau to his signature drink, the idiotic flaming mojito. Martin's Clouscau is as clumsy and hapless as his predecessor and probably more innocent. It's this innocence that lends the love story between him and his secretary, Nicole (an adorably goofball Emily Mortimer), a sweetness that Sellers could not have resisted making just a little dirty. The best thing about the replica is how wholeheartedly Martin throws himself into the physical comedy, which is uniformly bilarious, I won't spoil them by describing them, except to say this: soccer ball, soundproof room, accent coaching. hamburger and background dancing. But as Martin himself has pointed out, his Clouseau is not bungling so much as he is "living on another plane." This may dovetail more snugly with Martin's old wild-and-crazy persong, but it also suggests an unwillingness to portray Clouseau's more unattractive characteristics. The new Clouseau emerges triumphant from the wreckage of his own incompetence, just like the old one. But the movie asks us to celebrate his brainless victory over the very bad Dreyfus. And you feel none of the empathy you did for him in Edwards' movies, which repeatedly confirmed that the world really is the kind of place where stupidity is lavishly rewarded. The beauty of the old Clouseau apart from his tendency to get his hand caught in spinning globes and the way he pronounced "bump," was that he really wasn't a very likable person. He was snippy and mean to butlers, not just oblivious but willfully blind to his mistakes. So there's some cosmic irony in that Clouseau, incorporated into the first "sequel," "A Shot in the Dark," which was based on a play by Marcel Achard called "L'Idiote," was more of a jerk than an idiot. And that Martin's character in "The Jerk," whom his Clouscau resembles a little. was more of an idiot than a jerk. So the jerk who was actually an idiot is now playing the idiot who was kind of a jerk. Or something like that.

'16 Blocks'

The 1980s action movie genre often blurred the good guy-bad guy paradigm with flawed protagonists who overcame tumultuous pasts to ultimately do the right thing and vanquish whatever evil lay in their path, especially when the conflict became personal. Overtly nihilistic or worksholic types such as Martin Riggs (Mel Gibson in "Lethal Weapon") and John McClane (Bruce Willis in "Die Hard") cut loose their inner demons to fire off some heavy artillery and pump the real villains full of lead. Nearly two decades later, director Richard Donner (a veteran of all four "Lethal Weapon" films) teams with Willis for "16 Blocks," a denuded version of an '80s action film, one that replaces firepower with 1970s grit and drama.

A ticking clock scenario and a terrific performance by Willis as an alcoholic NYPD detective make up for the film's occasional missteps and some strange pop culture references, Det. Jack Mosley is a perpetually hungover burnout who is literally on his last legs as a cop, reduced to doing menial duties such as baby-sitting crime scenes. Gray as a ghost, Willis plays the worldweary Mosley like a man who has been dipped in concrete and is waiting for someone to dump him in the river. This is the wornout edition of the '80s action hero, 20 years older and a whole lot slower.

At the tail end of an overnight shift, lack's lieutenant catches him on the way out and asks him to transport a petty criminal named Eddie Bunker (Mos Def) the titular distance from the precinct to the courthouse. It's 8:02 a.m., and Bunker needs be in court by 10. The almost real-time drama efficiently makes use of the tension implied by the setup. and Donner deftly moves the action along at a pace that balances thrills and respites.

Eddie is a motormouth who proves grating to Jack even before they get into the car. Mos Def, the rapper and musician who has built a solid acting resume on de la referencia de la telefación de la con-stage and in TV and theatrical films, is extremely compelling in the role but is saddled with an odd Bugs Bunny way of speaking that wears thin quickly. Donner and screenwriter Richard Wenk use the character as comic relief much the same way Joe Pesci was deployed in the later "Lethal Weapons" and almost as annoyingly.

Out of the precinct, Mosley and Eddie aren't on the road two minutes, stuck in morning gridlock, when Jack decides to quench his thirst and stop at a liquor store, where he's on a firstname basis with the proprietors. He returns to the car just in time to foil a hit on Eddie, and the mismatched duo takes off on foot hunted by a phalanx of cops, led by Jack's ex-partner, Frank Nugent (David Morse), who want to ensure that Eddie doesn't live to testify against one of their own. Combining footage shot in Toronto and New York, Donner creates a reasonably convincing sense of Manhattan as Mosley and Eddle thread their way through the labyrinthine streets of Chinatown eluding their pur-

Willis and Mos Def's chemistry allows the movie to work on the level of a buddy picture with Jack's cynicism no match for Eddie's belief that anybody is capable of changing. But the relationship also provides a foundation for the meatier theme of redemption, and the film's depiction of a defeated man summoning the moral courage to address his past is, satisfyingly, more '70s than '80s.

RESTAURANT FEATURED

Riley Crook Restaurants first started in Hagerman in May of 2004. We, Dennis and Tammy Nipper began a small restaurant hoping for a place for our family to work together. It flourished beyond anything we innotined. We were able to bring our son, Bob home from Seattle where he was kirchen manager in many big restourants such as Outback and Black Augus. He runs the kitchen staff in the Filer Location. Crystal, our daughter, runs the hitchen in Hogerman. Our daughter Jacki, works as a waitness as well as bookbooping. We also still have a sister who has been with us since the beginning. Julie who cooks and serves in the Hogerman location. We consider all of our employees' family and we treat them as such. Filer also has on excellent staff and we are very excited with the community support we have received, as well as the returned customers who support us.

We love being part of these communities, both in our Hoperman location as well as Files. We try very bard to be part of community events as well as beloing when we are needed. One of the events that we have planned to be part of this summer is the Hagerman "Blues in the Park". This event is points to be Sept. 9°, 2006. This is just one way we like to be part of the communities, to belo bring an event to the area for all ages to enjoy. The communities have supported us so much and we are so grateful. A restaurant bles ours wouldn't survive without the community support.

We homewake the majority of our food, which is what helps make us unique. We still make our own scores, some of our seled dressings, as well us our special marinary used for our homestade pizzus in Filor. We have All Hatteral Beef, which is incredible. It has such a delicious flevor that we only use it, even though the cost is much more than regular beef. It is so flavorful, there is truly nothing like it. Even our hamburgers are delicious fairly and so full of flavor, and of course they have to be served with our homemode French fries? We also have an assestment of steaks that are the best tasting steak you have had in a long time. They vary from New York's to Partechouses to Filet Mignon. We feature prime rib every weekend Filer bas it on Friday and Hagerman has it on Sat. nights. Then, of course there is our famous Giant Keylime Shrimp. Now this is the crime de la critine of shrimp. Anyone who loves shrimp has not ever had enything like this! We make homemode pastes from scratches that ere flavorful and mounts-watering. We also make homemade fingersteaks, which will change the way you look at fingersteaks forever. They are so good! Plus helibert chunks, made fresh to order, as well as chicken strips. We uniquely bread them, by hand, with a light coeting to only enhance the delicious flavor of the food. Truly amozing.

We do parties, catering, wild game dinners, as well as family functions and intimate dinners for two. We truly believe in fundies and friends and we want to make sure our customers are very happy no matter what the event. We take cure of everything!

Cheap Trick "Rockford" (Big 3)

Rare is the band that can unite fans of Led Zeppelin and the Cars, Kiss and the Clash, in cross-ideological rock har-

The Who is one: the Beatles are another. On the American end, though, few do it better than Cheap Trick.

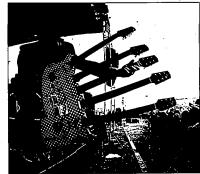

Combining fat riffs and sweet melodies, the quartet from Rockford, Ill., has for three decades satiated rockers of all persuasions.

Its songs are equally at home on classic-rock radio and Billy Corgan's iPod.

Whenever a band names a record for its hometown, as Cheap Trick has done here, it implies a stripped-down, backto-basics album.

That's not the real story of "Rockford," though, where the group's familiar formula is given a tasteful modern tweak and rendered bigger and brighter than ever before.

Linda Perry, who has written tunes for Pink and Gwen Stefani, grabs a co-writing credit on "Perfect Stranger," the lead single, but that shouldn't scare away purists.

Veteran Illinois ruckers Cheap Trick have named their latest album for their hometown, and have given their familiar formula a tasteful modern tweak.

The group is still at its best when left to its own devices, getting Lennon/McCartney-esque on "O Claire," invoking Electric Light Orchestra on "This Time You Got It" and reaching back into its own past for "Come On, . Come On, Come On."

AFI "Decemberunderground" (Sony)

The pop-hardcore melange of AFI is bizarrely addictive. In sones such as "Affliction," it's not unusual for singer Davey Havok to rip into a Green Day lick-anda-snarl right after screaming his poor little emo heart out. Then he'll stamp his own melodic imprint on post-punk, riffing off The Cure and Joy Division in "The Killing Lights" without mix is overdramatic, yes, but it's also artfully presented and expertly produced. "Decemberunderground" has a grandiose sound, and "Prelude 12/21" is the ideal track-1 scene-setter. Like System of a Down's "Soldier Side" on "Mezmerize," this down-tempo track, which mimics 50 Cent-styled gothic-hiphop production, isn't an indicator of what's to come. (Track 2, "Kill Caustic," is a screeching punk rager.) It's a moody backhand to wake you up and remind you that you never know what havoc will come from Havok.

KARAOKE 'Idol' a throwback to iconic rock

Newly crowned Taylor Hicks breaks the mold

BY AND POWERS Los Angeles Times

America, order has been restored. A white man with the canonical tastes of the classicrock generation has won "American Idol."

Never mind that he was born in 1976, more than a decade after the British Invasion bands took Flyis' cue and made rhythm and blues rock's musical template. Taylor Hicks is, in his heart and soul, a baby boomer - a believer in old-fashioned artistic authenticity, who spent years playing oldles at frat parties before charming America with a style untouched by his own generation's hip-hop and alternative rock. For all the judges' yammering about Hicks' originality, he's a throwback, the most traditionalist winner in the contest's his-

Yet in the "Idol" world. Hicks breaks the mold. That's because the show is virtually the only mainstream public space where women and people of color set the norm. (One major parallel is "Idol's" daytime mirror.

"Oprah.") It took five seasons for a white guy to win; compare this to media moments like Halle Berry's tearful 2002 best actress Oscar speech, or young Michelle Wie's current encroachment on the paternalistic world of professional golf.

In pop, rap mingles with country and teen tunes on the charts, but white-dominated classic rock sets the standards. Baby-boomer artists and their inheritors still gain critical kudos and dominate history books; pop novelties and show people sell sans respect.

A new generation, raised on hip-hop and the rising tide of social diversity, is questioning these "rockist" standards. But a look at last year's Grammy winners - Green Day and U2 over Gwen Stefani and Kanye West - shows that they're still pretty much in place.

On "Idol," though, rock has never won. Simon Cowell may be the show's strongest critical voice, but his European musical sweet tooth leads him to favor pop star contenders over guitar gods and prophets. The "rockers" who do succeed aren't innovators or very distinctive; just like expert song interpreter and finalist Katharine McPhee, they're better at adapting to styles than defining them.

Chris Daughtry, this year's appealing but over-hyped rock savior, so smoothly fits into the modern-rock herd that he's already been asked to join the fairly faceless band Fuel. Daughtry borrowed his most original move, a steaming version of Johnny Cash's "I Walk the Line," from his heroes, Pennsylvania rockers Live. Joining Live onstage during the "Idol" finale, Daughtry resembled a tarnished clone of singer Ed Kowalczyk, who appeared happier than he's been since Live's last chart success in the

The marginalization of rock on "Idol" accurately reflects its eclipse in the mainstream, no matter who keeps getting inducted to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. And in its cheesy way, "Idol" is helping to institutionalize a new vision of pop history. Guest judges like Barry Manllow wouldn't make most critics' short list of legends, but on "Idol" they're royalty.

The season finale followed suit. The star-studded evening featured, among others, hiphop diva Mary J. Blige, jazz singer Al Jarreau and the original anti-rocker, composer Burt Bacharach, with his muse, smooth Dionne Warwick. The only hard rock artist besides Live was Meat Loaf, whose very theatrical, off-key duet with McPhee highlighted her potential as the next Sarah Brightman. The night's surprise capper, a performance by Prince, also felt like a slap in the old guard's face. Here was tomorrow's rock god: an undisputed genius who defies categories racial, musical and erotic.

Call it a new paradigm or a mishmash, but "Idol" is telling us something about pop's future beyond classic rock. Its structure is designed to help people learn to assess music within that future's rules. The program's pleasure comes in putting oneself in the judge's chair and trying to figure out what makes a performance great. Old standards - the ones that made icons of the Beatles, Dylan, and Pearl Jam - don't apply, Simon.

Paula and old-fashioned, instrument-playing rock-soul dude Randy teach us to appreciate polish, charm and corniness, as much as originality and emotional honesty.

These new pop values are also old values, recalling the pre-rock world of Tin Pan Alley and the Brill Building. That's why "[do]" has a strange out-oftime feeling, and why, though their albums sell in the millions, the winners never seem like stars. It's hard to give up classic rock's romance with the beautiful freak; we want our artists to stand out, to be as daring as their music. The Idols are more like America's Pop Models; just as Tyra Banks tells her future cover girls to restrain their quirks and serve the fashion par-adigm, so cowell does with his ingenuena

Dairy Days has a full agenda of fun

Times-News correspondent

WENDELL -- With entertainment lined up all weekend, a Saturday paratie, public breakfast, show o' shine car show and camival rides for the kids, the Magic Valley Dairy Days has a full agenda of fun this weekend.

"What sets Dairy Days apart from so many town celebrations is this is geared to everyone in the Magic Valley in appreciation of the area's dairymen," said Earl Fitzpatrick, the event's organizing committee moderator, "It is good to promote that they provide a large part of our local economy and community."

Three thousand to 3,500 people will attend the 17th annual Dairy Days celebration, centered around City Park, Most of them will be on hand for the signature 12-block parade, starting at 10:30

On Friday, festivities begin at City Park with vendors ready with entertairment, crafts, games, rides and food Entertainers will include 10year-old Rylie Baker, singer/songwriter Gary Bench, country singer Lindsay Roseborough and vocalist Shawn Haney.

On Saturday, there's the Save our Sign fundraising breakfast. starting at 7 a.m. at the City Hall board room and in City Park.

Proceeds will support the Hub City Sign Project, still shy of the $47,000 needed to get Wendell's signature sign repaired and erect-

WENDELL - Foiled again, For the eighth time. The Wendell-based Snake Rivchemistry, much to the disgust of his petulant flancee Prunella Pepperdill (Jennifer Miller) and overbearing mother (Lorna Irwin). The potions that he comes up with are effective, but have unfortunate consequences.

Jeckyll comes up with a concoction designed to make weak men brave, and it seems that the perfect test subject is Jeckvii himself. Not only does the potion make him more assertive, it causes him to grow a lot more hair. And that's just the beginning of his troubles.

Soon Jeckyll and his manservant Chives (Marc Walker) find themselves trying to control a host of "side effects," including the unwelcome attention of the police in the person of Sgt. Crackle (Sean Hake). Jeckyll's rather dim, man-chasing sister (Nichole Bell) and a family of French cabaret owners (Ross Irwin. Mindy Harms and Amber Sheffleld) add further complications to a life being turned upside-down by an experiment gone awry.

The play is directed by Adam Kroeger.

Cook is a prolific (119 plays) playwright Houston-based whose work includes melodramas, holiday plays, comedies, whodunits and audience-particination mysteries.

TWIN FALLS - The Magic Valley Arts Council will host artists' receptions and gallery openings Friday night.

Member artists will have their work on display in the Full Moon Gallery through July 29. Many of the gallery artists have created pieces with a jazz theme in celebration of Jazz in the Canyon Weekend.

During Friday night's opening event, silversmith and gallery member Dick Morris will demonstrate his jewelry-building techniques. In addition, gallery guests will be entertained by Twin Walls business owner and singer Jim Wagenman, singing jazzed-up Big Band songs of the Rat Pack Era.

In the Galeria Pequena, works of College of Southern Idaho artists will be on display, includ-
