Players are pros at art of road tripping

Editor's note: Sports writer Eric Larsen is traveling with the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team to cover the National Junior College Athletic Association Division I National Tournament in Hutchinson, Kan. This is the second of the stories he is filing en route to the tournament, which opens at 9 a.m. Tuesday, when the Eagles take on Vincennes University of Vincennes, Ind. rock — all rapping past the personalized range of earphones, creating a pop culture cacophony that continues through the trip.

There is a definite need for gadgetry during the 22-hour bus trip from Twin Falls to Hutchinson, Kan., and the NJCAA Division I Men's Basketball National Championships. From iPods to personal DVD players, text messages to the good, old-fashioned book, any distraction from being stuck on another long bus trip is welcomed by the College of Southern Idaho men. From poorly-played poker to the highly-refined trash talk that seems to go hand-in-hand, this trip is all about finding some way to pass the time as the often uninspir-

After all, this isn't some feel-good sports movie wherein the over-criticized players plan their every move that will lead up to that one shining moment. That huge burst of excitement just to be on the road to Hunch Yeah, it's just not there.

Are dairies dangerous?

Missouri professor warns local residents of CAFO consequences

By Matt Christensen
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Confined animal feeding operations, or CAFOs, are leading Magic Valley agriculture down a dangerous path, says John Ikerd, a professor emeritus of agricultural economics from the University of Missouri.

He spoke Sunday evening to about 150 people at the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium about the dangers of what he calls industrial agriculture and said that, in addition to other ills, large dairies are putting Magic Valley residents' health in jeopardy.

"I don't think there is any doubt anymore there are significant health risks associated with CAFOs," he said.

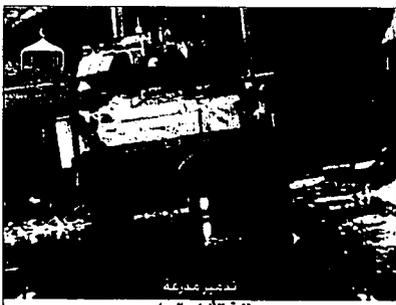

Ikerd was invited to Magic Valley by Alma Hasse, executive director of the environmental group Idaho Concerned Area Residents for the Environment, who heard him speak in Washington, D.C. He will also speak this morning to Jerome County Commissioners, who have listened to a parade of ag experts in recent weeks as commissioners continue to consider a moratorium on new livestock operations in the county.

Ikerd, a former ag marketer, told the Times-News in a previous interview that he began to question the industry's — and his own — approach to agriculture in the late 1980s when he realized the effects of so-called industrial agriculture.

"I was a part of that agriculture establishment, and now I think people are being systematically misled," he said during his speech.

Iraq War, four years on

In these video stills released by the U.S.-based IntelCenter, a man approaches a US military Bradley fighting vehicle to place explosives under it (left). Shortly afterward, the explosives are detonated, destroying the vehicle (right). The video was released Saturday by Iraq's al-Furqan Media, according to IntelCenter, a U.S. government contractor that studies al-Qaida messages. The Arabic script at the bottom of the photo reads: Destroying armored vehicle, Anbar province, Rasadi.

Sunni insurgents resilient in 5th week of crackdown

By Steven R. Hurt
Associated Press writer

BAGHDAD (AP) — Sunni insurgents, resilient despite the five-week crackdown in the capital, killed at least six more U.S. troops over the weekend. A Sunni car bomber hit a largely Shiite district in the capital Sunday, killing at least eight people.

The American military said four U.S. soldiers died and one was wounded when the unit was struck by a roadside bomb in western Baghdad. During the ongoing security sweep in the capital and surrounding regions, the soldiers' battalion found eight weapons caches and two roadside bombs and helped rescue a kidnap victim, the military said.

A fifth soldier was killed in an series of statements that also reported that a seventh soldier died from non-combat injuries but gave no other details.

While U.S. and Iraqi troops have flooded the Baghdad streets and a heavily armored American column was sent north to adjacent Diyala province, attacks on American and Iraqi forces have been robust.

Defense Secretary Robert Gates said the success of the mission, which was starting well, could not be measured for months and that it was designed to give the Iraqis more time to settle political and sectarian differences.

"The issue that we're all trying to figure out is how best do you get the Iraqis to reconcile their differences — because after all, this is not going to be solved by the military. It has to involve political reconciliation in Iraq, among Iraqis," Gates said on CBS's "Face the Nation."

"We're basically buying them time," he said.

The latest deaths raised the American military death toll in Iraq to 3,217 since the war began in March 2003, according to an Associated Press count.

In Shiite-controlled eastern Baghdad, a U.S. Bradley fighting vehicle was hit by a roadside bomb Saturday evening, set afire and destroyed, said spokesman Maj. Steven E. Lamb said. There were no casualties.

Across Iraq, at least 20 people died Sunday, a sign that violence continued to abate as U.S. and Iraqi forces press ahead with what many view as a last-chance bid to quell the sectarian alliance in Baghdad and central regions of the country.

Rollover kills grandmother, injures two grandchildren

By Matt Christensen
Times-News writer

RICHFIELD — A grandmother was killed in a one-vehicle rollover Sunday morning near Richfield, and two of her grandchildren sustained minor injuries.

Beulah Marlow, a 53-year-old Buhl resident, was traveling southbound on U.S. Route 26-93 when she failed to negotiate a curve and her 1995 Chevy Monte Carlo slid off of the road. The car rolled and came to rest on its wheels.

Marlow was pronounced dead at the scene.

Two passengers, Marlow's 2- and 13-year-old granddaughters, were transported to Gooding County Memorial Hospital and were later released.

Marlow and the children were wearing seatbelts.

The crash is under investigation by Trooper J. Ultenko of the Idaho State Police.

BSU group's flier angers some Hispanics

Promotion for speech this week by Robert Vasquez sparks criticism

The Associated Press

BOISE — A Boise State University group has angered area Hispanic leaders and other organizations by promoting a speech with a "food stamp drawing" that requires climbing through a hole in a fence and offering fake identification for a shot at winning a dinner at a Mexican restaurant.

The school's College Republicans organization is offering the dinner for two to promote a speech it is sponsoring by Canyon County Commissioner Robert Vasquez, a vocal critic of U.S. immigration policy who is planning to run for the U.S. Senate in 2008.

The speech scheduled for Thursday by the College Republicans is in the midst of the university's Cesar Chavez Week, sponsored by the Boise State Cultural Center.

As part of the school's weeklong event, students and professionals who came from a farm-working background will discuss their personal history, and a documentary film follows immigrants traveling to the United States from Nicaragua.

Chavez championed the rights of farmworkers and helped found the United Farm Workers Union. He died in 1993, but events such as BSU's Cesar Chavez Week are held in many areas to mark Chavez's March 31 birthday.

The flier on the College Republicans' Web site is headlined "America's Illegal Alien Invasion" and has a picture of Vasquez as well as examples of a resident alien card, a Texas Health and Human Services Medicaid Card, Idaho driver's license and Social Security Card.

While none of the CSI student-athletes are professional athletes, they're all pros at the art of the road trip. After a year spent enduring lengthy drives across the Intermountain west, this final destination is simply one more destination to reach. The excitement? That'll come when the Golden Eagles step on the court.

Unless then, it's all about endurance. No matter the number of pillows, blankets or buttocks shifts employed, after two hours of sitting, a rigid righting bus seat invariably begins to offer all the luxurious comfort of an iron maiden. Factor in that the pillows, blankets and buttocks shifts are often employed by a 6-foot-9 person attempting to squeeze into six feet of space, and even a short trip will keep the chiropractor's appointment book filled.

A trip this magnitude is inevitably also about waiting.

No matter how prepared the hotel, how heavily staffed the trip through the golden arches, catering to the needs of 14 larger-than-average human beings simply takes time. So the waits — for the room keys, the fast food and the eventual arrival — are endured with the patience of a businesswoman-like approach by the CSI players and coaches.

The cramped quarters, long waits, small beds and bad meals are all part of life on the road for the CSI men. Almost makes a person appreciate flying coach. Almost.

Ikerd said the U.S. Department of Agriculture, state and local agriculture groups are forcing an industrial style of farming on rural communities for profit and partly because "they're not willing to accept that what they've devoted their lives to isn't right."

He said the people in those groups aren't evil — they just don't realize the harm they're causing. The retired professor likened the CAFO debate to the tobacco controversy: There may not be definitive proof right now that CAFOs cause health problems, but every indication points that way, he said.

CAFOs are also bad for agriculture, he said, because they pit farmer against farmer.

Stacie Ballard, who runs a 65-head dairy in Gooding County, agreed.

She said during a comment period following the speech that large CAFO operators are making it hard for traditional farms to stay in business.

Ikerd, who was raised on a dairy in Missouri, urged local dairy farmers to resist the temptation to grow larger for profit. He said that across the Midwest, steps are being taken to shut down large CAFOs because they pollute the environment.

Ikerd advised the crowd — who were mostly CAFO opponents, judging by their applause — to try to convince local politicians to strictly regulate CAFOs before small farms are gone and the rural landscape is desecrated.

"The burden of proof should be on the dairy that it isn't polluting the environment," he said. "Not on the people to prove that it will."

It also contains an image of a highway caution sign that has a couple running while dragging young child.

Above the sign at a slanted angle is "Celebrate Cesar Chavez Week."

The flier also contains the dinner drawing information: "Win dinner for two at a local Mexican Restaurant! Climb through the hole in the fence and enter your false ID documents into the food stamp drawing!"

Jonathan Sawmiller, president of the College Republicans, defended the flier.

"It's more of an attention-getting device," Sawmiller told the Idaho Press-Tribune. The group's Web site calls the dinner drawing "humorous."

Not everyone is amused. "It certainly singles out a particular segment of students at the college and I'm pretty sure if you ask Hispanic students, this is beyond the realm of humor," said Ed Keener, board chairman for The Interfaith Alliance of Idaho, which plans a silent vigil the evening of Vesque's speech. "It's trying to hurt somebody."

Graciela Fonseca, president of Idaho's Hispanic Women's Organization, Mujeres Unidas de Idaho, said members were "outraged" by the flier.

"It's kind of mean-spirited," she said, adding it will stir up hatred and racism. Fonseca said it also made light of people who have died trying to cross deserts in the southwestern U.S.

"It's very anti-immigrant," said Maria Mabbutt of the Idaho Hispanic Caucus. "It's very divisive."

Fonseca said the promotional flier was not racist, and that those who thought otherwise "find racism in everything that they disagree with."

Castleford voters to decide on supplemental levy

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

CASTLEFORD — Voters will head to the polls Tuesday to decide if they will pay a supplemental levy.

The Castleford School has some $3 million in needs, but the district is asking for only $116,000 for two years.

Some of that $3 million needed is for "wish list" items, such as new playground materials and the addition of a smaller gymnasium.

The levy will allow the K-12 school to purchase new language arts books for each grade, buy general classroom and cleaning supplies, put additional books, magazines and periodicals on the library shelves, update the heating and air conditioning system, and make general school repairs.

The money is needed because state funding continues to decrease while expenses increase, said Superintendent Kelly Murphy.

"The dollars are needed to address educational needs for the 2007-08 and 2008-09 school years," Murphy said.

Budget crunch

The Castleford School Supplemental Levy Election will take place from 12 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, at the school's library.

For more information, call 437-6511.

"We understand, with the city raising its water and people seeing their bills increase, that money is tight for everyone so we are only asking (for) the bare bones amount."

The school has experienced a $70,000 increase in expenses for such things as utilities, but received just $4,000 in discretionary funds from the state, Murphy said.

"It's this way throughout the state. Castleford is not the only school experiencing hardships," he said. "The items we are addressing with the levy are not luxuries."

Murphy said that money will come from a property tax increase. Most residents, he said, saw about a 20 percent reduction on their taxes last year due to new state legislation. The levy would recapture about 25 percent of those savings, he said.

This isn't the first time the school has asked voters to pass a supplemental levy. In 2005 voters passed a two-year, $58,000 levy.

"We need this money just to get by," Murphy said. "This community has always been very supportive of the school, and hopefully with the reduction in property taxes last year voters will pass this now."

Opposition rising

Group gathers to save historic school building

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — The Buhl School Board will ask voters in May to pass a supplemental levy to pay for demolition costs of an historic high school building, most recently used as a middle school.

Even though the district has yet to announce an amount to ask for from voters, the Buhl Historical Preservation Committee is already striving to defeat the levy so that the building remains standing.

Committee Chairman Rick Martin says he wants taxpayers to deny the district's request in a last-chance effort to save the school.

"The district seems dead-set on tearing that building down to make room for a parking lot," Martin said. "It is just heartbreaking to see our history being torn away. We need to keep our history alive."

Buhl resident Trish Warmac also is getting involved to stop the levy's passage.

"What a loss (it will be) to the community if that building is torn down," she said. "We spend a lot of time at the pool and park. The building is right in the area. It provides a feeling of history and belonging. It is part of the town's story and history, and should be preserved."

There must be more options for the building than tearing it down — and better uses for the money it would take to tear it down, Warmac said.

Past project estimate costs for the building have been between $472,000 to more than $600,000, and included removing the building, improving its structure, remodeling the existing gym roof, constructing a new entrance and landscaping the area.

Costs for constructing a parking lot onsite were not included in the original estimates, but now the district is exploring just how much would be needed.

"We are now seeing how much it would cost for either a gravel parking lot or an asphalt one," said school board Chairman Ken McDonald.

The district also plans to will look at other capital improvements to save the building and to canvas district voters.

"The levy amount could include the cost of the parking lot and other improvements needed in the district," McDonald said. "We should have those figures ready next month. The levy top priority is to get that old building down."

Martin's top priority, however, is to develop a game plan that includes raising funds to save the building and to canvas district voters.

"People still have a chance to save this building," Martin said. "I am aware the building needs some work, but it is still worth saving."

Abuse lecture an eye-opener for students

By Kelly Jackson
For the Times-News

HABLEY — In the past 11 months, five girls who have e-mailed me about their abusive boyfriends are now dead, said Dr. Jill Murray, speaking to Wood River High School students recently.

From where she stood in the center of the gymnasium floor, with upperclassmen listening from the top of the bleachers and underclassmen sitting closer, Murray said she could see some girls crying, some girls looking guilty and some boys hanging their heads.

This reaction is far from atypical when Murray, a renowned psychologist from California, speaks in front of high school students. She said that she usually hears luck from one-fourth to one-third of the students and sometimes as many as half of them.

"It's a big problem," Murray said. "It's any school no matter how large or small."

The problem she's talking about is abusive relationships. Murray has been a practicing psychologist for more than a decade and is a nationally recognized expert in the field of domestic violence and teen dating violence. She has appeared on the "Oprah Winfrey Show" two times, "ABC News 20/20" and other television shows. She also has authored three books on abuse.

The program she delivered to Wood River High School students on March 9, called "No Means Know," was sponsored by Youth Adult Connections (YAC), The Advocates, the YWCA, PTSA and Blaine County Probation.

Murray listed four levels of abuse: verbal, physical, emotional and sexual.

If you're on the phone apologizing all of the time, if you are afraid of your partner's anger, if you tell white lies because telling your partner the truth will offend anger, if you used to have friends who were driven away by a jealous partner, if you have to defend your partner to your parents often and if your partner acts out violently, such as punching walls and throwing things, it is likely you are in an unhealthy relationship, Murray said.

She said having a good grasp on the concept of love will help.

"To me, love is a behavior," she said. "It's the way somebody treats you all the time, every day, no matter what their mood."

She warned students not to breakup with abusive partners alone. Female students, she said, should take another male, someone who is "bigger and badder" than their boyfriend, such as their dad or an uncle, when breaking up with their abusive boyfriend.

She told male students to bring along a guy who is "bigger and badder" than their girlfriend. Don't say you are sorry and that you hope to still be friends, Murray added.

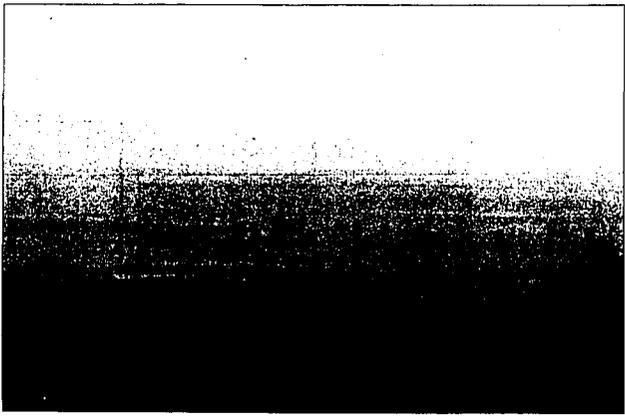

"Here's all you need to say," she said. "This relationship isn't working for me. Please don't contact me in any way."

The abusive girlfriend or boyfriend will probably have another partner quickly because "there are needy and dependent," Murray said.

Students should tell counselors, parents and even the police if their partner threatens suicide and to seek a protective order if a boyfriend or girlfriend continues to threaten them after the break-up, Murray said.

Students interested in speaking with Murray confidentially are invited to e-mail her at drjillmurray.com.

Buhl recognizes patrol volunteers

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Time flies when you are having fun and serving your community. At least that's how it's been for some folks.

Citizens on Patrol was put into service 10 years ago, and recently four of the original 14 volunteers were recognized for their service.

"They are extra eyes and ears to the police department," said Mayor Charles Sheridan. "They help with everything from traffic and crowd control for parades to leading funeral processions. Our city is lucky to have them."

Ten-year pins were given to Riley Maxwell, Wayne Moberg, Irving Tervey and Virginia Rogers at last Monday's City Council meeting.

Other volunteers who were honored at the meeting were Claude Hayes and Mary Wright. They received pins for nine-years of service.

"People need to be involved," said Wright, 72. "When I joined, it opened my eyes to see that there was so much going on. Pulling off a parade is a bit more complicated than you'd think. Looking back, I can't remember not having a good time. It really is a lot of fun to serve."

There are currently 10 members on the COP team, said Sgt. Ralph DuBois, group coordinator and liaison. Members are counted on to provide the city with services that the police department does not have manpower for, he said.

"For the Sagebrush Days Parade alone we have to block off so many streets, and we just don't have the numbers to do it. (Volunteers) are extremely active in every city event and are an asset not only to our department but to the city as well," DuBois said.

Since the citizen force provides so much for the West End, the group is trying to increase its numbers.

The group will hit the civic club circuit, presenting what they do and how people can join, DuBois said. New members will receive training on how to keep safe while providing traffic control, as well as basic patrol services.

"They are told not to get themselves into an unsafe or physical situation and they always ride around in pairs," DuBois said. "Their safety is always a priority."

Current members want residents to take an interest in their work and chip in to help out.

"They don't expect too much of you. Just a monthly meeting and four hours of service a month," Wright said. "We wish more younger people would get involved."

Also recognized during the meeting was Gene Tervey, who received a five-year service pin. Volunteer Ronald Potts was given a three-year pin.

School district re-evaluates open enrollment policy

New developments, higher student numbers causing Filer officials to consider ways to manage growth

By John E. Swayze
Times-News correspondent

FILER — Concerns about increased residential development and student numbers has the Filer School Board considering ways to handle the growth.

Drawing on the experience of districts that already have gone through the process, board members are considering the elimination of an open enrollment policy.

"School districts tend to think of themselves as isolated, but there's no reason why we should have to reinvent the wheel," said Board Chairman Roger Vincent.

About 1,400 students are currently enrolled in the school district. More than 200 of those students come from outside the district's boundaries.

Kimberly School Board Chairman Dave Fuller, speaking to a Filer audience last Wednesday, said his district discontinued open enrollment in 2004 after discovering about 20 percent of students came from neighboring districts.

"We set caps on class sizes, such as special ed," Fuller said.

Based on information obtained by a Filer district long range planning committee established last fall, rough estimates of in-district growth are set at 0.5 new students for each of the 1,000 new homes anticipated to be built over the next several years.

Superintendent John Graham indicated that he has no reason to believe district growth rates will slow over the next decade.

"What we're currently finding is a 2.5 percent to 3 percent increase," he said, "but we could be seeing maybe 8 percent to 10 percent growth."

Since younger families are moving into the area, most of the increase will likely come from lower elementary and pre-school levels, Graham said.

No action has yet been taken on eliminating the out-of-district policy. In February, however,

"What we're currently finding is a 2.5 percent to 3 percent increase, but we could be seeing maybe 8 percent to 10 percent growth."

— Filer Superintendent John Graham

the board selected Boise-based architectural firm Hutchinson Smith to assist the district with determining building needs, design plans and developing a bond funding proposal that can be presented to the public. District and company officials are currently in contract negotiation.

Fish and Wildlife: Fighting top cause of wolf deaths last year

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Fighting over food and territory was the leading cause of death for radio-collared wolves in the park last year, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Nine collared wolves died last year. Of those, four died in fights.

Meanwhile, competition between packs likely accounted for most pup deaths in the Slough Creek and Hellroaring Creek packs, two of the wolf packs that didn't reproduce successfully, according to the Rocky Mountain Wolf Recovery 2006 Interagency Annual Report. The fighting has not harmed wolf numbers, though. The number of wolves in Yellowstone increased 15 percent last year after a disease-caused decline in 2005.

Last year, 136 wolves in 13 packs lived in Yellowstone, numbers the report said could have been larger. "Based on prey biomass available, there should have been more wolves, but there

Woman accused of taking newborn from Texas hospital had long wanted a child

By Betsy Blaney
Associated Press writer

CLOVIS, N.M. — For years, one thing had controlled Rayshaun Parson's dreams, behavior and sometimes even her body, those who know her say — a baby of her own.

It was an obsession that some say included a so-called phantom pregnancy — a rare medical phenomenon in which women who aren't pregnant experience physical and emotional changes similar to those of expectant mothers. It continued through two miscarriages and a difficult breakup with a boyfriend.

Finally, police say, Parson — posing as a hospital worker — snatched a newborn girl from a maternity ward in Lubbock, Texas, placed the tiny infant in a handbag and fled on March 10.

She and the baby, who was unnamed, were found the next day in Clovis, about 100 miles from Lubbock.

Parson, 21, was being held without bail on federal kidnapping charges. She has not entered a plea.

She has not spoken publicly about the allegations, but court documents reviewed by The Associated Press and interviews with people who know her suggest a troubled young woman whose love of children and motherly ambitions had grown into a compulsion.

Conchita Davis, the mother of Parson's former boyfriend, Malachi Johnson, recalled the changes Parson underwent in 2002 when she was mistakenly believed to be pregnant with what would have been Davis' grandchild. Parson's breasts swelled, her abdomen distended and she experienced cravings common to pregnancy.

"Rayshaun wanted the baby so bad that she got the symptoms," Davis said. "She was the perfect vision of a pregnant woman."

False pregnancies — also known as pseudoecyosis — are usually linked to underlying emotional and psychological issues, said Dr. Cornelia delBosc, an assistant professor in Texas Tech University's department of obstetrics and gynecology. "More common centuries ago, she said it is rare to see in an era of modern medicine that includes early neonatal care, ultrasound tests and over-the-counter home pregnancy test kits.

Several months after that episode, Parson did become pregnant in 2003, according to Davis. But she suffered an early miscarriage.

"We got through that, but I'm not sure Rayshaun ever did," Davis recalled. "I don't think she's ever recovered."

Ann Parson remembers her granddaughter watching longingly as friends gave birth and raised their babies, wishing she, too, could be a mother.

In 2004, Parson suffered another emotional setback when Davis' son decided to leave to pursue a music career in California. Unable to accept the breakup, Parson pursued the young man until a court issued a protective order requiring her to stay away from him.

"She was determined not to let him go," Davis said. "It was in the best interest of both of them to keep them away from each other, but she needed to get on with their lives."

Parson eventually did just that and found a new boyfriend. By last summer, she was pregnant again.

Photographs from a baby shower thrown by friends and family in November show her beaming as she holds up a purple piece of infant's clothing and opening other gifts. One photo shows her dressed in a short black dress and proudly touching her rounded belly.

But only a few weeks later, in December or January — six or seven months into her pregnancy — Parson miscarried again, according to court records.

She was devastated, her grandmother said. "That really set her over the edge."

Details of what happened next are sketchy, but Parson said her granddaughter distanced herself from family and friends after the second miscarriage.

But one woman told The Associated Press that she struck up an acquaintance with Parson in January at Covenant Lakeside Hospital in Lubbock, the same hospital where days-old Michael Darbard-Dawodu was abducted.

LeBeth Crisp said in an interview last week that Parson told her she was at the hospital visiting a friend. Crisp said Parson spent time looking at infants in the nursery and asked about security measures at the maternity ward.

Crisp said Parson mentioned having a baby a couple of months earlier.

BSU to sell naming rights to stadium

BOISE (AP) — Trying to capitalize on the success of its football team, Boise State University is offering naming rights for about $10 million to what is currently called Bronco Stadium. The stadium is a blue turf field.

"We made some presentations out to some individuals and some companies, but we haven't gotten the answers we're looking for yet," said Curt Apsley, senior associate athletic director for advancement. "We're aggressively pursuing that opportunity with a couple people." The Broncos went 13-0 and ended up ranked No. 5 in the final AP poll last season.

They appear strong for next season and return star running back Jan Johnson, a possible Heisman Trophy contender who led major college football in rushing touchdowns last season and will likely again help the team draw national attention.

"It's a golden opportunity," athletic director Gene Bleymeyer told the Idaho Statesman. "We've had serious talks with a number of entities, but we've never been able to finalize a deal."

Otter's grocery tax plan the better deal

Idaho Statesman

Gov. Butch Otter has at least one good fight left in him this legislative session.

And he's fighting the good fight—for a grocery-tax bill that would help low-income families.

On Tuesday, he stopped an inch away from pledging to veto the modest, across-the-board grocery-tax credit bill working its way through the Senate. "I'm not going to look on it with great favor," Otter told reporters at an Idaho Press Club luncheon. "I don't think you can dress that one up enough for me to accept that."

House Bill 81 well deserves an appointment with Otter's veto stamp. It costs too much and doesn't do very much good for anybody.

The bill increases the existing tax credit — $20 per person for most Idahoans and $35 for seniors — to $50 per person or $70 for seniors. That's not much of an increase, especially for the working poor, hardest hit by Idaho's new 6 percent sales tax.

The Senate Tuesday took this vanilla bill and made it even more bland. Its version of enhanced tax relief, $40 per person or $60 for seniors, is downright weak.

Presumably, the Senate is lowballing the credit to appease Otter. At about $33 million, the Senate version is considerably less spendy than the House's $47.5 million bill, and priced much closer to Otter's $22 million plan.

But this debate isn't just about the bottom-line cost, while that's important. The fundamental question centers on who gets the money.

Otter maintains, rightly, that the state should put the limited dollars it has for tax relief into the hands of those who need it most. While some Idahoans would get the credit entirely, low-income groups would get $90 per person, and seniors would receive up to $105. If lawmakers consider this social engineering, Otter said, then he's guilty as charged.

"I've got to help the people that I can help," he said. At $360 for a working family of four — which pays an estimated $400 a year in grocery sales taxes — the Otter plan helps, and in a big way.

Since his closed-door yet well-documented scuffle with lawmakers over the Statehouse expansion, Otter has stepped back from confrontation during his first session as governor. On Tuesday, Otter sent mixed signals. He knows lawmakers want to adjourn next week — "I'm not going to second-guess their enthusiasm for going home" — but he also didn't rule out keeping lawmakers in town.

If Otter is eager for a showdown, meaningful tax relief for low-income Idahoans sounds to us like a good cause.

We're sending the wrong message to criminals

What a strange contrast of facts from people and resources on the same team trying to solve the same problems.

Inspiring, The Times-News dated Feb. 28 states that donations by the citizens of Idaho and elsewhere now top $220,000 for troop Chris Glenn's future. Idahoans do care and they take action.

Hope. The same editorial states that the Legislature is working on a bill to create a fund to generate $200,000 per year for taking care of other peace officers. This is commendable, but some of the discussion probably involves where the funds will come from.

Absurd. On about that same day, I heard on the radio that Adrian Mower, the suspected shooter of trooper Glenn, appeared in court for sentencing on a DUI charge. It was stated that the fine had been suspended.

Failure. The Times-News dated March 3 contains the following information in the Twin Falls County Court records: 25 total listings, of which 12 are for DUI, eight are for other traffic offenses and five are for miscellaneous. A total of $18,200 in fines was assessed. An unexplainable amount of $12,100 was suspended — 66 percent was not collected. Why?

What message does this send to criminals and first-time offenders? If we are going to say a crime is punishable up to a $1,000 fine, let's collect close to $1,000. If not, let's lower the fine to $200 and collect 100 percent so that we look more credible. Use jail time to plea bargain based on past record and probability to re-offend.

Solution. This is one short period of time in one county. Here is your time for taking care of those who put their lives on the line. Here is your money to rebuild roads. Here is your money to fight crime. RONALD A. FLECHSIG

Paper only reports the negative news from dairies

What does the Times-News have against dairies and agriculture in the valley, especially Jerome County?

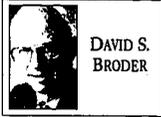

I have always had this suspicion that the paper is biased on this subject, but in Tuesday's paper, there was the story and headline on the front page. "Is deadly virus coming to Jerome County?"

The commissioners are having meetings with supposed experts to help make better decisions. Why does only the negative individuals about large agriculture get press? I know that a feedlot may come to the county. I know everyone should have

New era of Congress hits Bush hard

Ten weeks into the new Congress, it is clear that revelation, not legislation, is going to be its real product.

While President Bush threatens to use his veto pen to stop some bills and Senate Republicans block other measures from even reaching his desk, no force in Washington can halt the Democrats' investigative juggernaut from uncovering the secrets inside this administration.

DAVID S. BRODER

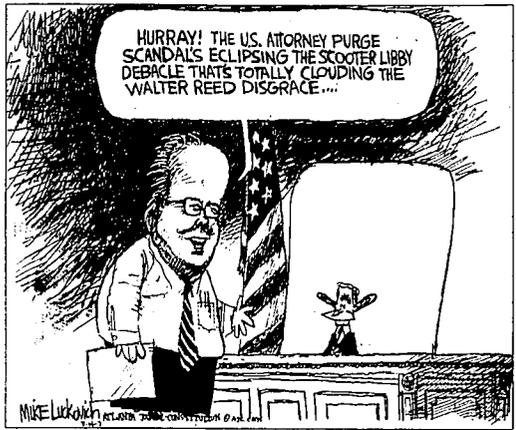

The Justice Department, the Department of Veterans Affairs and parts of the Pentagon already have undergone investigations by House and Senate committees. Similar excursions are almost certain in store for the Labor Department, the Health and Human Services Department, and the Department of Homeland Security — indeed, any part of the federal establishment that affects people's lives and touches on vital interests.

And in every case, inquiring minds will look for links to the White House and its burgeoning bureaucracy of young Republican activists, some of whom have ridden herd on the agencies and departments with breathtaking arrogance.

The previously anonymous aide in the White House counsel's office and the political affairs section headed by Karl Rove, whose names appear in the e-mails that led to the now controversial firing of seven U.S. attorneys, are hardly the only self-important White House employees to order Cabinet officers around.

For the first six years of the Bush administration, these aides were allowed free rein to carry out whatever policy or political assignment they wished — or supposed that the president wanted done. A Congress under firm Republican control was somewhat reluctant if it came to oversight of the executive branch. No Republican committee chairman wanted to turn over rocks in a Republican administration.

You had to feel a twinge of sympathy now for the Bush

from executive branch documents and decisions.

The most important measure strengthened the Freedom of Information Act, reasserting the principle that the public should have access to official documents, provided national security is protected. Bush's first attorney general, John Ashcroft, had issued a ruling that allowed agencies and departments to sequester information unless they were compelled to make it public — placing the burden on the inquirer, not the bureaucracy.

Other bills passed by the House last week expand access to papers in presidential libraries and provide additional protection for "whistleblowers," including government scientists and contractors who report improper activities.

The Democratic sponsors said that this accountability offensive is exactly what people voted for last November, meeting what Waxman termed "the public's call for fundamental reform."

Accountability is certainly important, but Democrats must know that people were really voting for action on Iraq, health care, immigration, energy and a few other problems. Investigations are useful, but only legislation on big issues changes lives.

appointees who suddenly find unsympathetic Democratic chairmen such as Henry Waxman, John Conyers, Patrick Leahy and Carl Levin investigating their cases. Even if those appointees are scrupulously careful about their actions now, who knows what subpoenas for the memos and e-mails in their files will reveal about the past?

They will pay the price for the temporary breakdown in the system of checks and balances that occurred between 2001 and this year — when the Republican Congress forgot its responsibility to hold the executive branch accountable.

It was a fundamental dereliction of duty by Congress, and it probably did more to encourage bad decisions and harmful actions by executive branch political appointees than the much-touted lobbying influence. In reality, many Republican members of Congress did not mind what was happening because they were able to get favors done in that permissive climate. Now, the Democratic investigators will publicize instances of influence by members of Congress and the political fallout will not stop with New Mexico's Pete Domenici and Heather Wilson.

Democrats find it easier to investigate than to legislate. With their major initiatives, from a minimum wage boost to a shutdown of the Iraq War, stymied by Republican opposition, the Democrats are understandably making "accountability" their new goal — meaning more and more investigations.

Last week, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and Majority Leader Steny Hoyer held a news conference to celebrate the fact that the House already had conducted more than 100 oversight hearings on executive agencies.

And they promised that was just the beginning. As Hoyer put it, "Today is a new day in Congress. The days of see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil are over... The United States Congress will no longer be a potted plant or signer of blank checks."

Fulfilling that promise, later in the week the House passed a series of bills that stripped away some of the secrecy

Teacher thanks legislators for personal attention

I would like to thank Sen. Dean Cameron and Rep. Maxine Bell for their very personalized attention to my school class.

I am a teacher at East Minico Middle School in Rupert. We are studying Idaho, and this December we went to Boise to visit the Capitol. While there, we were privileged to meet with our congressmen and tour the House and Senate chambers. The students were excited to learn more about their government.

As part of our curriculum, my students learn American Sign Language, the fourth most commonly used language in the United States. A bill has been presented, SCR 102, to make ASL an official foreign language in Idaho so that it can be used as a foreign language credit in high school and college. My students were interested because they sign and this could affect them. They wanted to give their input. They composed letters and sent them to Mr. Cameron and Mrs. Bell.

In reply, Maxine Bell wrote each child a personal handwritten note. They were so excited to receive it. Then several days later, Dean Cameron sent each student a signed letter. It meant so much to them to be recognized and to feel like their small voices were being heard. It made the whole process of passing a bill so much more real and exciting to them.

Thanks so much to Maxine and Dean for going the extra mile and making our government processes come alive for my students.

Fight against slavery should go back to its roots

If slavery was such a despicable crime, maybe all black Americans should shudder when they look into the mirror. It tolerates no political correctness. The facts are: slavery was well established in Africa long before the first whites ever set foot on African soil. Plus, because of significant support from the African kings, slavery was firmly an integral part of the African tribal economies and had been for hundreds of years.

Remember the natives being captured in "Roots," Hollywood bunk. The truth is Europeans rarely went far from the fortresses. They weren't allowed to venture into slaves' were brought to them. Also, we are continually led to believe the forts and those ugly holding cells were owned by the white slavers — not true. These forts were rented for a monthly fee from local rulers because outsiders were not allowed to own anything. Land uses, even in those days, was strictly controlled by the local black leadership; even the killing of animals was strictly prohibited unless astronomical fees were paid.

The African kings were so much into slavery that when the British government prohibited it, the kings petitioned the British monarch to have the trade re-established.

Ask any American, black or white, who was the founder of the modern human rights movement, and they'll probably answer: Douglas King Lincoln! All wrong! It was Thomas Clarkson, a white Anglican, allied with some other supporters, mostly Quakers, that formed the first abolitionist movement in 1787.

Whites are getting a raw deal, as usual. Regardless of how messy slavery was to eliminate, it was the white culture that provided the leadership and the moral high ground to do so. Blacks were abolitionist for sure but late comers at best. Does slavery still exist? Yes. Where? Africa. So Rev. Sharpton — take your fraud to Africa. MARK SCHUCKERT

AROUND THE NATION

WASHINGTON

Sen. Leahy to pursue White House subpoenas

WASHINGTON — The Senate Judiciary Committee chairman said Sunday he intends to subpoena White House officials involved in ousting federal prosecutors and is dismissing anything short of their testimony in public.

The Bush White House was expected to announce early this week whether it will let political strategist Karl Rove, former White House counsel I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby and other officials testify or will seek to assert executive privilege in preventing their appearance.

The chairman, Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., last week delayed a vote on the subpoenas until Thursday as the president's counsel, Fred Fields, sought to negotiate terms. But on Sunday, Leahy said he had not met Fields nor was he particularly open to any compromises, such as a private briefing by the administration officials.

"I want testimony under oath. I am sick and tired of getting half-truths on this," Leahy said. "I do not believe in the we'll have a private briefing for you where we'll tell you everything, and they don't."

At issue is the firing of eight U.S. attorneys, dismissals that Democrats say were politically motivated. Such prosecutors serve at the pleasure of the president.

Walter Reed contract was delayed 3 years

WASHINGTON — An Army contract to privatize maintenance at Walter Reed Medical Center was delayed more than three years amid bureaucratic hickering and legal squabbles that led to staff shortages and a hospital in disarray just as the number of severely wounded soldiers from Iraq and Afghanistan was rising rapidly.

Documents from the investigative and auditing arm of Congress map a trail of bid, rebid, protest and appeals between 2003, when Walter Reed was first selected for outsourcing, and 2006, when a five-year, $120 million contract was finally awarded.

The disputes involved hospital management, the Pentagon, Congress and IAP Worldwide Services Inc., a company with powerful political connections and the only private bidder to handle maintenance, security, public works and management of military dormitories.

While medical care was not directly affected, needed repairs went undone as the non-medical staff shrank from almost 300 to less than 50 in the last year and hospital officials were unable to find enough skilled replacements.

NEW YORK Anti-war demonstrators march in Manhattan

NEW YORK — Hundreds of protesters calling for the end of funding for the Iraq war or the immediate return of U.S. troops marched Sunday and converged on a park near the United Nations headquarters.

Union members, representatives of Rev. Jesse Jackson's Rainbow/PUSH Coalition, war veterans and others joined the demonstration, one of several staged during the weekend across the country to mark the fourth anniversary of the U.S. invasion of Iraq.

The crowd of a few hundred protesters grew as the procession, which stretched for several blocks, moved on.

Actor Tim Robbins, among the speakers at the rally, organized by the New York chapter of United for Peace and Justice, told the crowd that getting Congress to cut off funds for the war "would be a good way" to get the troops home.

"The American people want this war to end," Robbins said. "That's the message they sent last November in the election. When are we going to start listening to them?"

Police lined sidewalks, and some walked ahead of the protesters as they marched toward the offices of Sens. Charles Schumer and Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Protesters carried signs reading "Impeach Bush," and "Not one more dollar, not one more death."

No counter-demonstrators were visibly present, as they had been at a larger anti-war rally in Washington on Saturday.

PENNSYLVANIA US Airways tries to find seats for stuck travelers

PHILADELPHIA — Thousands of weary travelers faced a third day waiting to reach their destinations Sunday as US Airways struggled to recover from the ice and snow storm that paralyzed airports in the Northeast.

The airline was still trying to find seats for 100,000 passengers systemwide whose flights were grounded by Friday's storm, spokesman Andrew Christie said.

Computer problems, airline staffing rules and other problems slowed US Airways' attempts to clear the backlog. In addition, the airline's flights on Sunday were already nearly sold out with 275,000 passengers booked, the airline said.

"Now we are in the process of repositioning our crew, our planes and I am trying to re-accommodate roughly 100,000 customers who didn't make their final destinations on Friday," Christie said.

"I can tell you the outlook for tonight looks good. We have the flight crews available and the weather is holding up pretty well," Christie said.

Passengers in Philadelphia reported waiting three hours or more to rebook a ticket or reach a reservation agent by phone during the weekend.

Automated US Airways kiosks at Philadelphia International Airport were also down at times, they said.

WISCONSIN Man wrongly imprisoned is convicted of murder

CHILLTON, Wis. — A man who spent 18 years in prison for a rape he didn't commit was convicted Sunday of murdering a photographer, whose charred bones were found in a burn pit outside his home.

Steven Avery, 44, faces a mandatory life prison term for killing Teresa Halbach, 25, on Halloween 2005 near his family's salvage yard.

The jury convicted Avery of first-degree intentional homicide and being a felon in possession of a firearm. He was acquitted of mutilating a corpse. The panel deliberated over 3 days and heard a month of testimony.

Halbach disappeared Oct. 31, 2005, after going to the salvage yard in rural Manitowish County to photograph a mini-van that Avery's sister had for sale through Auto Trader Magazine. Avery called that morning to request the photo, testimony showed.

A few days later, Halbach's vehicle was found in the Avery salvage lot under branches, pieces of wood and car parts. Investigators then spent a week on the 40-acre property and found charred fragments of her bones in a pit behind Avery's garage and in a barrel, along with her camera and cell phone.

Avery's nephew Brendan Dassey is due for trial next month. In March 2006, he confessed to helping kill and rape Halbach.

Prosecutors then added charges of sexual assault, kidnapping and false imprisonment to Avery's case. But Dassey recanted his confession and rejected a plea deal that would have required him to testify against his uncle.

Two years before Halbach died, Avery was released from prison after serving 18 years for a Manitowish County rape that DNA analysis showed he did not commit.

LOS ANGELES Stuart Rosenberg, 'Cool Hand Luke' director, dies

LOS ANGELES — Stuart Rosenberg, a prolific director of episodic television who is best known for directing the 1967 film "Cool Hand Luke," has died. He was 79.

Rosenberg died Thursday of a heart attack at his Beverly Hills home, his son, Benjamin, said Saturday.

Rosenberg began directing television episodes in the 1950s for such series as "The Defenders," "The Untouchables," "Naked City," "The Twilight Zone" and "Bus Stop." He racked up more than 300 TV directing credits and won an Emmy Award in 1963 for an episode of "The Defenders." But after completing his first feature film — "Cool Hand Luke" — he never went back to the small screen.

The film received four Academy Award nominations — although none for Rosenberg — with George Kennedy winning for best supporting actor.

No more heartache for Singh at Bay Hill

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press writer

ORLANDO, Fla. — Vijay Singh was so good in the middle that it didn't matter how bad it got in the end.

All he cared about was winning the Arnold Palmer Invitational, which has caused him no much grief over the years. Singh got it done Sunday with a terrific run of birdies to build a commanding lead, closing with a 3-under 67 for a two-shot victory over Rocco Mediate.

Three times a runner-up at Bay Hill, the 41-year-old Fijian became the first multiple winner on the PGA Tour this year, and his 31st career victory tied him with Harry "Highhorse" Cooper for most by foreign-born players.

Singh also exercised a few demons along the way. His huggy-bogy finish in 1994 left him one shot behind. Two years ago, he hit 7-iron into the water on the 10th hole and lost to Kenny Perry. There was no chance of the hoggymen showing up on a gorgeous afternoon at Arnie's course, not with the lead Singh held.

He ran off four birdies in a five-hole stretch to close out the front nine and stretched his lead to four shots with a sand wedge that spun back with the slope 2 feet on the 15th. That gave him plenty of room for error, and Singh's huggy-bogy finish only affected the margin of victory.

"I love this place," Singh said. "I hate the 10th hole, but I love the rest of it. It feels great. Having won Jack's tournament (Memorial) and now Arnie's, it's a great one to get."

Mediate made three clutch par saves to keep alive his hopes, only to find trouble on the 11th for a bogey. Mediate also shot 67.

Singh finished at 6-under 272 and moved atop the money list with $2.6 million. Vaughn Taylor, who had a two-shot lead over Ben Curtis going into the final round, didn't make a birdie until the 15th hole, and he followed that with two bogeys that cost him a spot in the World Golf Championship next week at Dorset. Taylor birdied the final hole for a 73 to finish alone in third, but he needed second place alone to move into the top 50 in the world.

Curtis made one birdie in his third round of 72 to finish alone in fourth. Tiger Woods delivered a dramatic finish, but not the kind anyone expected.

His tournament ended a few hours earlier with a three-putt double bogey on the 11th, and a bad day then got even worse.

Woods hit his tee shot into the water on the par-3 17th and made double bogey. After chipping out of the rough on the 18th, he hit his third into the water and made triple bogey. That gave him a 43 on the back nine for a 6-over 76, his highest score in a regular PGA Tour event since a 76 in the third round of the Memorial four years ago.

He tied for 22nd, ending his streak of 13 straight top 10s worldwide, nine of those on the PGA Tour. Woods led the course without comment.

Vijay Singh, of Fiji, raises the winner's trophy after winning the Arnold Palmer Invitational golf tournament in Orlando, Fla., Sunday. Singh finished with a score of 8-under-par 272.

Rebels run past Wisconsin

UNLV makes first Sweet 16 since 1991

By Rick Gano
Associated Press writer

CHICAGO — Lon Kruger was beaming. Happy as a coach, proud as a dad.

Thanks to a shooting surge by his son Kevin, the UNLV Runnin' Rebels rallied for the school's biggest win since the 1991 team made the Final Four.

Kevin Kruger shook off a shooting slump, connecting on three straight 3-pointers late in the second half Sunday as UNLV best second-seeded Wisconsin 74-68 in the second round of the Midwest Regional.

Lon Kruger has no trouble acknowledging that winning is great, but watching your son play such an instrumental role makes it even better.

"When we needed baskets and Key was getting the opportunity and not doing it, then that hurts perhaps a little more," Lon Kruger said.

"You hurt for him and his mum. But when he does it, it's a little extra special feeling for sure. I'm not going to deny that. We felt pretty good about all our guys, but he's a little different, obviously."

Kruger was shooting just 1-of-15 in the NCAA's — including 1-of-7 Sunday — when he found the range. He tied it with a 3, then hit another to give the Runnin' Rebels the lead with just under six minutes left.

"Coming off my hand it felt good," Kevin Kruger said. "I just had a little faith. I feel like I'm going to knock down the next one every time."

Seventh-seeded UNLV (20-6) led by 12 at the half, but Wisconsin rallied with 11 straight points. A 16-2 run gave the Badgers a five-point lead to the delight of their red-clad fans at United Center.

But Kruger, who transferred from Arizona State to play his final season for his father, delivered. After his three 3-pointers, he was fouled on another long-range attempt and made all three free throws to make it 64-56 with a little more than three minutes left.

"I kept telling him, 'You are going to make some shots,'" said Wendell White, who led UNLV with 22 points. "He did. That's what happened."

Wisconsin's Kamron Taylor sank a 3-pointer and converted a three-point play with 59 seconds to go to get the Badgers to 70-67.

Curtis Terry had a free throw and a little jumper in the air to give the Runnin' Rebels a five-point cushion with 29 seconds to go.

"There will be some doubters. Some people will say we were lucky, but we don't really care. We're going to the Sweet 16 and nobody can argue with that."

— UNLV senior Kevin Kruger

UNLV's Michael Umeh goes over Wisconsin forward Marcus Landry (1) during the first half of their Midwest Regional NCAA second round basketball game in Chicago, Sunday.

The Badgers (30-6) became the highest-seeded team to lose in the tournament, so far.

"It took a team to go 10-from-20 from '3' to get us out," Wisconsin coach Bo Ryan said. "And to their credit, they were able to do that."

UNLV's first-round victory over Georgia Tech was its first in the NCAA tournament since the 1991 team went to the Final Four behind Larry Johnson, Greg Anthony, Stacey Augmon and towel-chewing coach Jerry Tarkanian. That team was beaten in the national semifinals by Duke's Center.

"From day one we've talked about putting UNLV back on the map," Kevin Kruger said. "There will be some doubters. Some people will say we were lucky, but we don't really care. We're going to the Sweet 16 and nobody can argue with that."

Wisconsin fell into an 18-point hole in the first round Friday against Texas A&M-Corpus Christi before Taylor led them back in the second for a 76-63 victory.

The Badgers rallied again but this time after getting the lead, they couldn't hold on.

Kruger finished with 16 points, seven assists and six rebounds. He was 4-for-10 from the field.

Taylor paced the Badgers with 24 points — 19 in the second half.

Alando Tucker, the Big Ten player of the year and leading scorer in Wisconsin history, added 17 for the Badgers, who were ranked No. 1 late in the regular season. But he managed only six points in the second half and finished 4-for-11 from the field against the aggressive UNLV defense.

"They were tough all game," Tucker said. "They were hard-nosed on the ball and when I caught it on or off the block, two guys were coming at me."

Wisconsin, which lost on the same floor a week ago in the Big Ten finals against Ohio State, was playing its fifth game at the United Center in 10 days.

Kruger, 0-for-9 in a first-round win over Georgia Tech, missed his first three Sunday. But when he finally made one it turned into the biggest play of a 10-0 first-half spurt that opened up a 29-16 lead. Kruger was fouled on the play by Badgers freshman Jason Bohannon and made the free throw to finish off a four-point play.

With an aggressive defense and six 3-pointers the Runnin' Rebels ran out to a 39-27 halftime lead.

When UNLV's Wink Adams went high for a follow-up and fell hard to the floor, he was forced out of the game momentarily. After Terry stepped in at the line for Adams and missed both free throws, Wisconsin got a tying basket by Bohannon and then took its first lead since early in the game at 48-46 on Taylor's two free throws.

Johnson grabs win in Atlanta with late pass on Stewart

Second win in a row for defending Cup champion

By Mike Harris
Associated Press writer

HAMPTON, Ga. — Jimmie Johnson had the car to beat Sunday, but it took a late-race charge to catch and pass Tony Stewart three laps from the end and drive away with a victory in the NASCAR Nextel Cup race at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Johnson, the reigning Cup champion, made it two in a row after beating Hendrick Motorsports teammate Jeff Gordon the previous week in Las Vegas. Johnson had some problems with tire wear late in the 325-lap Kobalt Tools 500 and Stewart, a two-time Cup champion, appeared on the way to his first victory of the year after coming off pit lane ahead of Matt Kenseth and third-place Johnson after the final stops by the leaders during a caution flag on lap 311.

After the green flag waved with 11 laps to go on the 1.5-mile oval, Johnson took just three laps to get past Kenseth, then took off after Stewart in the duel of Chevrolet.

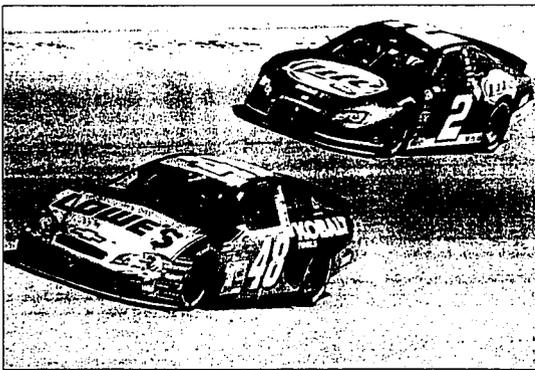

Johnson pulled side-by-side with Stewart just past the finish line on lap 322. Johnson got his nose out ahead and, as the two cars drove through turn two, Stewart scraped the wall.

Johnson easily led lap 322 and pulled away from Stewart, going on to win by about half a lap the final straightaway.

"We just had a great race car," Johnson said. "We just did the right things to get the car hooked up for the short run at the end."

Stewart, who overcame a long pit stop in the early going, was happy with second, but he said, "I wish he had at least given us room to race. But we gained some points today and that's what this team needed."

Kenseth wound up third, followed Jeff Burton and heralded rookie Juan Pablo Montoya, who barely held off Clint Bower to record his first top 10 and by far his best finish in five Cup starts.

NASCAR drivers Jimmie Johnson, left, and Kurt Busch (2) race through Turn 4 on the 100th lap of the Kobalt Tools 500 NASCAR Nextel Cup series auto race at Atlanta Motor Speedway in Hampton, Ga., Sunday.

"I'm getting the handle of it," said Montoya, who also won a Busch Series race on a road course in Mexico City several weeks ago and got as high as third in Sunday's race before slipping a bit at the end.

Johnson, who has finishes of second, first and first since crashing out in 39th place in the opener at Daytona, earned his 25th career victory in his 187th start.

After breaking through to win his first championship in his fifth full season, Johnson said it's not too early to have his sights set on another one in 2007.

"We're thinking championship already," he said. "That's really the mode anymore. You have to think about points and being in the Chase."

Martin, who finished 10th, remained in the lead by eight points over Gordon, who overcame a tire problem and a lost lap to finish 12th. Burton remained third, 11 points behind, and Johnson stayed in fourth, moving to 28th point back.

But longtime NASCAR star Martin, 48, switched teams this year in order to cut back to a partial Cup schedule and has said he will sit out next week's race at Bristol and the Martinsville race the following week, despite leading the points.

The Bristol race next Sunday will also be the debut of NASCAR's new Cup of Tomorrow, which could throw a wild card into the mix, depending on which teams figure out of the all-new, bigger and boxier car first.

SPORTS

Top seed Florida gets by scrappy Purdue

NEW ORLEANS — Florida's tournament experience paid off against plucky Purdue. Al Horford and Corey Brewer each scored 17 points and the defending national champions withstood a game effort by the Hoilermakers 74-67 on Sunday in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Purdue played just about how it wanted against the Gators — slowing down the tempo, rebounding with a smaller lineup and keeping the game close much of the way. But the top-seeded Gators never panicked and made several clutch shots down the stretch to advance to the round of 16.

The Gators (31-5) advanced to play fifth-seeded Butler in the Midwest Regional semifinals Friday in St. Louis.

Midwest Regional Oregon 75, Wintrop 61 SPOKANE, Wash. — So much for the little guys. The ones from Wintrop, at least. Aaron Brooks scored 22 points and third-seeded Oregon smothered the frazzled Eagles to eliminate the last remaining double-digit seed from the NCAA tournament.

The 11th-seeded Eagles (29-5), who upset Notre Dame in the first round, lost for the first time in 20 games to end their most successful tournament in seven years.

West Regional Kansas 88, Kentucky 76 CHICAGO — Let Kentucky have the past. Kansas owns the present.

And with a few more performances like this, the leading Jayhawks might be making some more history of their own.

Chicago native Julian Wright scored 15 of his 21 points in the second half. Brandon Roy added 19 and top-seeded Kansas romped.

Mario Chalmers added 16 for the Jayhawks, who shot a blistering 57 percent to win their 13th, in a row. Kansas (32-4) will play fourth-seeded Southern Illinois on Thursday in the semifinals in San Jose, Calif.

Southern Illinois 63, Virginia Tech 48 COLUMBUS, Ohio — The team that no one wants to play is still playing — thanks to its suffocating defense.

Southern Illinois got three big 3-pointers from Jamal Tatum and pulled away from Virginia Tech. Tatum, the Missouri Valley Conference player of the year, scored 21 points. The fourth-seeded Sabkhs have won 15 of 16.

Tony Young added 17, Bryan Mullins 11 and Randall Falker 10 for Southern Illinois (28-6), which reached the round of 16 for the first time since 2001.

South Regional Memphis 78, Nevada 62 NEW ORLEANS — John Calipari's Memphis Tigers finally have a victory worth bragging about in their run of 23 straight wins.

Chris Douglas-Roberts scored 16 points before leaving with a sprained ankle and his high-flying, versatile teammates took over from there for a 78-62 victory over Nick Fazekas and Nevada. Memphis will take the nation's longest winning streak to San Antonio for a showdown Thursday against third-seeded Texas A&M.

The second-seeded Tigers (32-3) hadn't played a team as good as the Wolf Pack (29-5) since their last loss to Arizona, back on Dec. 20. They showed they were up to the task by never trailing after going down 2-0, and shutting out the Wolf Pack the final 6:17.

Tennessee 77, Virginia 74 COLUMBUS, Ohio — Now the whole state of Tennessee can point itself orange.

Jafun Smith scored 16 points and led a second-half comeback. Chris Lofton scored 20 points and the Volunteers held off Virginia. Fifth-seeded Tennessee (24-10) reached the round of 16 for the first time since 2000 under second-year coach Bruce Pearl, who painted himself orange before a Lady Vols' game last month to show his spirit. Virginia point guard Sean Singletary missed a 3-pointer with 1 second left, then fell to the floor and rested his forehead on the court in dismay as Virginia (21-11) watched its top two scorers come up empty.

East Regional USC 87, Texas 68 SPOKANE, Wash. — If Kevin Durant decides to leave college after one year, it will be without a championship — or even a trip into the second week of the tournament.

Southern California made sure of that, getting 22 points from its more seasoned star, junior Nick Young, in a run-away. No. 5 seed USC (25-11) also got 20 points from Daniel Hackett and 13 points and 14 rebounds from Taj Gibson — a 6-foot-9 freshman like Durant.

NCAA WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT Duke routs Holy Cross

RALEIGH, N.C. — Duke was steamed after its only loss of the season, and someone had to pay. Once again, the Blue Devils took out their frustrations on overmatched Holy Cross.

Abyh Waber hit six 3-pointers and scored 20 of her 26 points during an overwhelming first half, and top-seeded Duke cruised to an 81-44 rout of the Crusaders on Sunday night in the first round of the Greensboro Regional.

Vanderbilt 62, Delaware State 47 EAST LANSING, Mich. — Christina Wirth scored 17 points to lead a balanced Vanderbilt attack, and the Commodores pulled away in the second half.

Vanderbilt led 43-40 with about 8:50 remaining, but chinch 3-point shooting and game power helped the second-seeded Commodores (28-5) take control. Vanderbilt will play Bowling Green in the second round on Tuesday.

Fresno Regional N.C. State 84, Robert Morris 52 RALEIGH, N.C. — Marquetta Dickens sawn't going to let Kay Yow's rising season end in the first round of the NCAA tournament again.

The senior scored a career-high 25 points and North Carolina State (24-9) resumed its late-season surge, giving the program and its Hall of Fame coach their first NCAA victory in six years.

Baylor 68, Chattanooga 55 RALEIGH, N.C. — Jessica Morrow scored 13 points and led the decisive run for the fifth-seeded Bears.

Angela Tisdale and Bernice Mosby added 12 apiece for Baylor (26-7), which never trailed and advanced to the second round for the fourth straight year.

Wisconsin-Green Bay 59, New Mexico 52 IARTFORD, Conn. — Nicole Souils scored 15 points and the ninth-seeded Phoenix opened the second half with a 29-5 spurt to extend their winning streak to 26 games.

move on to a second-round game Tuesday against North Carolina.

North Carolina 95, Prairie View 38 PITTSBURGH — North Carolina knew this wouldn't be difficult, and it wasn't. The Tar Heels made it look so effortless, so easy that the other teams in the NCAA tournament couldn't help but notice.

The Tar Heels needed less than four minutes to open a 20-point lead and cruise after that behind 14 points each from Camille Little and Jessica Breland.

Dayton Regional Mississippi 88, TCU 74 IARTFORD, Conn. — Armani Price scored 21 points and Ole Miss forced 23 turnovers in a first-round victory.

Mississippi (22-10) had 12 steals and used its full-court trapping defense to pull away late in the first half. The Rebels will play second-seeded Maryland on Tuesday in the second round.

Mavs slip past Pistons on the road

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Dirk Nowitzki scored 20 points to help the Dallas Mavericks beat the Detroit Pistons 92-80 Sunday in a matchup of the top teams from the Eastern and Western conferences.

Detroit was coming off its first 5-0 West Coast trip in 15 years, but played without All-Star point guard. Channing Billups, who injured his groin in Friday's game with Phoenix.

Devin Harris added 22 for the Mavericks, who avenged a 92-82 home loss to the Pistons on Dec. 7 by trailing Detroit's game-winning streak.

Ronald Murray scored 18 points to lead six Pistons in double figures, but Detroit had only one other player score. The Pistons led 73-69 early in the fourth, but the Mavericks answered with a 9-0 run that included a three-point play by former Piston Jerry Stackhouse.

Knicks 92, Raptors 74 NEW YORK — Stephen Marbury scored 14 of his 21 points in a dominant third quarter that lifted New York past Toronto.

Rookie Renato Balkman added 15 points and 12 rebounds as an energetic replacement for center J.J. Redick, who battled foul trouble and was held to five points.

Balkman made all seven shots he took, and his rebounding and defense helped spark a 27-5 run that gave the Knicks a 20-point lead.

The Knicks managed only 40 points in the first half, but to score 35 in the third quarter to avenge a loss in Toronto on Wednesday.

Magic 97, Heat 83 MIAMI — Hedo Turkoglu scored 11 of his 20 points in the first quarter. Dwight Howard added 17 points and 11 rebounds, and Orlando ended Miami's nine-game winning streak.

shooting 50 percent and outrebounding the Heat 44-34. Darko Milicic had 12 points and 10 rebounds for the Magic.

Nets 101, Clippers 95 EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Jason Kidd had 23 points and 13 assists, and hit four free throws in the final 18 seconds to lead New Jersey over Los Angeles.

Vince Carter added 22 points and Richard Jefferson had 18 points and 12 rebounds to help the Nets win for the third time in four games and remain in a playoff position with 15 games left in the regular season.

Mikki Moore added seven of his 13 points in the fourth quarter for New Jersey, which forced 10 turnovers by the Clippers.

Rockets 124, Sixers 74 PHILADELPHIA — Yao Ming scored 24 points, Tracy McGrady added 21, and Houston coasted past Philadelphia.

Luther Head scored 13 points off the bench for Houston, while Chuck Hayes finished with 12 points and 13 rebounds in helping the Rockets set season high in points and margin of victory.

Michigan State 69, Delaware 58 EAST LANSING, Mich. — Michigan State's talent, size and depth were too much for Delaware.

Notre Dame 62, California 59 PITTSBURGH — Talyah Cantu made her first career throw with 16:5 seconds remaining after Notre Dame's Charel Allen scored a key basket and set up another, and the Fighting Irish rallied to victory.

Tennessee 76, Drake 37 PITTSBURGH — Alexis Hornbuckle scored 14 points and Tennessee went on a remarkable 34-0 run that lasted nearly 13 minutes and didn't end until midway through the second half. The Associated Press

Orlando, which won for only the sixth time in its last 18 games, also ended Miami's run of 14 straight wins at home by

V. EASY #44

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1 through 9. That's all there is to it. There's no math involved. The grid has numbers, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. Find the answers for today's puzzle on page C7.

Fish tales: What's the real story?

I've spent one afternoon of my life fishing in Alaska. After wrangling with the "big one" for a finger-cramping hour and a half, I landed a 64-pound king salmon that stretched from my chin to my toes. I never fished again.

Although this is a true story, many fish tales are exaggerated, including the risk perception attached to seafood consumption, according to Gary Fornshell and Rhea Lanning, University of Idaho extension educators in Twin Falls.

"People are more concerned about trace elements in their food supply, yet 75 percent of the cases related to illness are caused by food-borne bacteria," Fornshell said. "Risks attached to mercury may be overblown."

ALIVE AND WELL

Jan Mitteldeier

The risk for heart disease may be lower in people who eat fish at least twice a week.

"The benefits of seafood far outweigh the risks," Lanning said. "The risk for heart disease may be lower in people who eat fish at least twice a week. That's the breakpoint when scientists see a positive difference. A recent study in the Journal of the American Medical Association found that eating salmon and other fish high in omega-3 fatty acids cuts the risk of death from heart disease by about a third.

Fish, an excellent source of protein, has less saturated fat than meat. What's more, omega-3 fatty acids lower triglycerides, help prevent blood clots and curtail the inflammatory responses which make sludge-like plaque more unstable. This instability sets the stage for a heart attack that can occur if part of the plaque breaks off and gets stuck in a partially clogged artery.

If you are a woman of reproductive age, you should not ignore the potential risk from mercury exposure. Studies have shown that pregnant women who ate more seafood low in mercury, compared with women who ate less seafood or seafood higher in mercury, have babies with better visual and cognitive development.

Nearly all fish and shellfish contain trace amounts of mercury. Larger fish that have lived longer have the highest mercury levels. They've simply had more time to accumulate it. Fish such as salmon, catfish, light tuna, trout and tilapia are best because they have maximal levels of omega-3 fatty acids and minimal levels of mercury. Many shellfish such as shrimp, clams and oysters contain undetectable levels of mercury, as well.

What you can do

1. Incorporate more fresh fish into your diet — at least two 3-ounce servings per week — but avoid fish fried in heart-damaging partially hydrogenated oil.
2. If you are a woman of reproductive age, particularly a pregnant or nursing mother, stay away from large fish with the highest mercury levels, like swordfish, shark, king mackerel and tilefish, Fornshell says.

Afraid to go ...

Gary Walker of Twin Falls does the breast stroke Thursday morning during a cool-down lap at the YMCA City Pool. Walker says he learned to swim more confidently about six years ago, and it is now a part of his weekly exercise routine.

... in the water? Overcome fear with an adult swim lesson

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sid Lezamid had a weakness as a father. His daughter was on the school swim team, but he couldn't swim.

"When I was little, I got pushed into some water over my head," Lezamid said. The fear of deep water that grew from that episode didn't go away as he got older. But hoping to swim with his daughter, the Twin Falls real estate broker signed up for a lesson.

"If someone would have told me that within two weeks I could touch the bottom in the deep end, I wouldn't have believed it," he said.

It turned out that learning to swim as an adult was easier than he had imagined. His swim instructor at the YMCA in Twin Falls had him comfortable in water over his head within a few weeks, and Lezamid is thankful he signed up for lessons.

"The older you get, it's more and more threatening and harder to do, but I'm very glad I did it," he said. "It's never too late to learn... I feel like I'm a better person and a better parent because of it."

Gary Walker

Lezamid's instructor at the Y was Jeremy Belliston, who teaches both adults and children. Belliston said fear is often the reason adults don't learn how to swim.

"They're just terrified of the water," Belliston said. "The biggest thing is to build trust with them."

As he does with children, Belliston begins with adults stand in shallow water, holding the edge of the pool. As they feel comfortable, first blowing bubbles, then lifting one leg, then both, still holding on, then face in the water, then moving to the deep end. It's a progression Belliston has found successful during the two dozen private lessons he

Learn to swim

Swimming lessons for adults and children are available through the YMCA in Twin Falls.

No group lessons for adults are offered, but private lessons are available. Cost: $35 per half-hour for non-members, $25 per half-hour for members. Scholarships are available for students with financial need.

For information or to sign up, call Jeremy Belliston or Celeste Walz at 734-2336.

Also at the Y are group water aerobics classes that do not require a high level of swimming ability.

has taught.

Although the Y has offered group lessons to adults in the past, they never proved popular. Belliston suspects that adults are intimidated by learning in a group, instead preferring one-on-one attention.

The major difference between teaching adults and teaching children is that the adults tend to learn more quickly, he said.

"Adults have the fine motor skills working on their side," he said. And if they've signed up for lessons, they're committed to overcoming their fears.

The most common reason adults take swimming lessons is so they can swim with their children, Belliston said. About 70 percent of his students don't know how to swim when they start. The other 30 percent want to improve their skills, to learn swimming strokes for fitness or to participate in triathlons.

Gary Walker, a Twin Falls optometrist, wanted to swim better.

Before signing up with Belliston, "all I could do before was just a side stroke, basically," he said. "I knew I could really improve and learn some new strokes if I took the swimming lessons."

Walker likes in the summer and skis in the winter. To keep in shape, he walks three days a week, and now he swims two.

"It's overall improved my flexibility and kept me healthy," Walker said. "By staying in shape, it has allowed me to improve that quality of life."

Belliston recommends that everyone learn to swim. Not only is it a good way to get fit, it is an excellent exercise for people with injuries or those who are concerned about reducing impact on their joints. The Y even has an agreement with St. Luke's Magic Valley Regional Medical Center allowing the hospital to use its pool to help rehabilitate patients after surgery.

Perhaps most importantly, though, swimming is a safety issue.

"Accidents can happen, at any minute," said Celeste Walz, aquatics director at the Y. "You could possibly save a life."

For Lezamid, worries about whether he could help someone drowning are now lifted.

"If something ever happened, and I had to save someone, I couldn't do that" before taking lessons, he said. "I couldn't save myself. I couldn't tread water."

Today, he can comfortably go in the pool at a friend's house and can swim with his daughter.

"It's something I very much enjoyed," Lezamid said. "It made me feel a lot more complete about myself."

An inspiration to others

CSI's oldest fitness student celebrates 95 years

By Ariel Hansen
Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — In a circle of white- and gray-haired heads at a College of Southern Idaho fitness class, Eunice McClellan doesn't stand out. Until you learn she's 95.

McClellan is the oldest registered student at CSI, old enough to be great-grandmother to some of the college's freshmen. She doesn't act her age, though, according to the class instructor. Her friends and classmates agree.

After the "Over 60 and Getting Fit" class at the Hagerman High School gym on Thursdays, the participants put all their stretching and sweating to waste. Slices of chocolate and carrot cake went fast in celebration of McClellan's milestone birthday.

Each classmate had the opportunity to share a birthday wish with McClellan. A few examples: "You go, girl!" "You are a true inspiration to all of us," and "You're my hero!"

McClellan said she has kept busy all her life but attributes her longevity to healthy living — no alcohol or smoking — and good genes.

"The only thing I can say is, keep active," she said.

Even at 95, McClellan gardens regularly.

Horror movies can teach Virgo a lesson

IF MARCH 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: What is most important to your happiness and partnership matters in the year ahead. Like a farmer who plows under the stalks from the previous harvest to make the ground ready for new crops, you may be compelled to leave the past behind. You may make any key changes or decisions in May, August or December when you could stir up controversy. Make successful alterations in your life during May and September, or wait until January when your common sense and practical ideas will prevail.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can't make progress with the brakes on. Put agreements and partnership matters in the back burner for a few days. The harder you push, the more likely someone will oppose your plans.

TAUHUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Loyalty is put to the test. Consider whether you and another person are linked by fate or by necessity. It might be wise to withstand pressures put on you by another person or by your ambition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Calculated risks are likely to prove to hold more risk than however, be a good time to use the kickstand and briefly park your ambitions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Snooze: you win. Sleeping your way to the top might mean maintaining a low profile and ignoring petty squabbles, rather than actually getting involved in a series of intimate encounters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ignore an obsession. This isn't the best time to buck the system or wrestle over principles with the boss. Whatever you initiate could cause you or others endless stress and hassle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is no reason to place pearls before swine. Nor is there any reason to be pigheaded.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): No one can make you feel inferior without your consent. If you experience a period when you feel unappreciated, underpaid or unloved, then you have permitted this negativity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): We only love what we understand. If conflict or misunderstandings occur, it might be your job to step away until you have a more complete picture.

calculation. It is difficult to determine what is lust or love. Possessiveness might interfere with obtaining your deepest desires.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your nerves of steel could be getting a bit rusty. Some business matters might cause turmoil if launched today. It isn't a good time to take major risks when dealing with finances or other resources.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Mold circumstances or let circumstances mold you. Any intense passion that grabs hold of you right now could conflict with other desires. Save your energies for better cosmic conditions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Watch horror movies. Those vampire flicks teach valuable lessons about the dangers of inviting strangers into your home. It is time to be more discriminating about whom you confide in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Achieving your goals is like riding a bike. It is almost impossible to maintain your balance while standing still. This might,

Early screening yields best odds of beating colon cancer

DEAR ABBY: In January, the American Cancer Society reported that the cancer death had dropped for the second year in a row. The study noted that there was a big decline in colorectal cancer mortality. This is great news, Abby, but we can't rest on these laurels.

The decline in colorectal cancer deaths is largely attributed to early detection, which is why it's so important for those 50 and over to get tested. I need your help in continuing to get the word out about the importance of getting tested for colorectal (commonly known as "colon") cancer.

Just as every woman knows that breast cancer screening saves lives, every man and woman should know that colon cancer screening also saves lives. Starting at age 50, men and women — regardless of their family history — should talk with their doctors about their testing options for this deadly disease.

Getting tested can stop colon cancer before it starts because the tests enable doctors to detect and remove hidden growths (called "polyps") before they can become cancerous. The tests can also detect cancer in an early stage. When found at its earliest, most treatable stage, colon cancer has a 99 percent survival rate!

March is National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. I hope your readers will become more aware of the need to be tested and discuss it with their doctors as well as friends and loved ones who should be tested.

Thank you for help, Abby. RICHARD C. WENDELL, M.D., PRESIDENT, AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

DEAR DR. WENDELL: You're welcome. And thank you for your important and timely reminder, which proves the truth of the saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Because colon cancer is one of those "silent" diseases that can take hold before a person realizes he or she is in trouble, it's vital that men and women be checked for it on a regular basis.

Some good news: Medicare now covers all the tests for colon cancer. New Medicare beneficiaries within the first six and physicians a chance to discuss health risk factors and schedule cancer screenings already covered by Medicare, including, those for colon cancer.

As always, the American Cancer Society is there to help with a free information kit to assist readers in talking to their doctors about colon cancer testing. Let the society help you stop colon cancer before it starts by calling the toll-free number: (800) 227-2345.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE*

Bobby Wolff

*Cut my card according to my club.

John Hegland

After North's positive response to the strong two-club opening (sensible because of North's good diamonds despite his having only an ace and no king), South assumed he was facing a good suit. When North showed heart support, South just needed the least queen for a grand slam. His jump to five-trump asked for trump honors, and the required diamond honors. However, the grand slam would be a fair contract, simply needing the trump suit to come in for no more.

At the table declarer won the spade lead, crushed the ace and king of hearts, then took his diamond king with dummy's ace and cashed the top diamonds, discarding clubs from hand. However, West ruffed the hand diamond and switched to a club. Declarer won, but still had to lose a club, as dummy's diamonds were not established.

Declarer had made the mistake of not playing the ace; he was actually in. His line would have been the right one in seven hearts, but not in six hearts after the spade lead.

After winning the opening lead, declarer should have played a low heart toward the dummy. Six West goes in with the queen and switches to a club. Declarer wins, cashes the heart ace and diamond king, and plays a heart to dummy. Now the diamond suit is established, and declarer has sufficient diamonds for all his club losses. An alternative — cashing the heart ace and diamond king at tricks two and three, then leading a low heart — works fine too.

ANSWER: When you have no attractive suit of your own, as here, trying to hit partner's hand by leading a spade looks right, even though he has not overcalled in that suit. A spade lead is also attractive since you have a sequence to lead from, providing an additional element of safety. From this holding, the spade 10 would be the normal card to lead.

Straight Talk on Elder Law and Estate Planning

ARE WILLS NECESSARY?
QUESTION: Why would I need a will or trust if my estate passes under Idaho law to my spouse (or children - if my spouse has predeceased me)?
There are a number of reasons, but here are a few: you may wish to leave your estate in trust for your spouse if estate taxes are a concern or if spousal asset management ability is in question.
You may have an incapacitated child whose assistance benefits would be canceled by an inheritance. A special needs trust could supplement, rather than cancel these benefits.
You or your spouse may have children by a prior marriage who stand to receive "too much or too little", depending on which spouse dies first.
Designating a specific child or professional to act as successor trustee or executor can prevent unnecessary sibling quarrels later on.

Fish recipe for beef lovers

Jan Mitteldeier asked for a fish recipe that even beef lovers rate a thumbs-up. Rhea Lanling, a University of Idaho extension educator in Twin Falls, replied with one of her favorites:

FISH TACOS WITH MANGO SALSA

- 2 Trout, tilapia or catfish fillets, 3-4 ounces each
- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- Juice of small lime
- Salt and pepper
- 2 small whole-wheat tortillas or 4 corn tortillas
- Topplings:
  - 1 cup green cabbage, thinly sliced
  - 1/2 cup avocado, sliced

- 1 red bell pepper, thinly sliced
- For the mango salsa, mix together:
  - 1/4 pound tomatoes, husks removed, chopped
  - 1 bunch cilantro, stems removed, chopped
  - 2 small mangoes, peeled and chopped
  - 1 large clove garlic, diced
  - Salt and pepper to taste
  - 2 1/2 jalapenos, seeded and diced (optional)

Coat fish with both sides with olive oil, lime juice, salt and pepper. Place on broiler tray and refrigerate while you prepare salsa and other toppings. Broil fish on high for 4 to 5 minutes until fish flakes. Place fish on warm tortilla; top with salsa and toppings.

Fish

- If you ordinarily eat canned tuna, try canned salmon for extra omega-3s. Neither one stacks up to fresh fish, but if you're reaching for a can opener anyway, canned salmon (with the bones for calcium) is a good choice.
- Fish oil supplements can be a worthy alternative if you hate fish. "It's important to get as many nutrients as you can from real food," Lanting said, "but if you do use supplements, be sure to confer with your doctor first." Or consider adding walnuts, flaxseed, canola oil and other sources of omega-3 fatty acids to your diet.

Health educator Jan Mitteldeier is coordinator of the Over 60 and Getting Fit Program at the College of Southern Idaho.

Student

Until recently, she walked four miles each morning, but she had to replace that ritual with the fitness classes. "I've had to slow down the walking, but this helps."
Her classmates, however, are quick to say McClellan is anything but slow.
"None of us dare complain about our aches and pains with her around," said Marilyn Willmont with a laugh. Willmont has been friends with McClellan for six years and invited her to join the fitness class.

At McClellan's first class, the instructor was careful to take her age into consideration when suggesting ways to modify the exercises, such as sitting in a chair instead of on the ground for stretching.
"Afterwards, she said, 'I did it on the chair this time, but I'm going to do it on the floor next time,'" said instructor Peggy LaBue.

Willmont noted with a laugh that sometimes it's harder for her to get up off the floor than it is for McClellan.

"Some days, I feel she's a lot younger than I," Willmont said. "She's just a bright light."
Though McClellan is deaf without her hearing aid and blind in one eye, friends say she is more self-reliant than some people 20 years younger. Just two years ago, her family decided she wasn't safe to drive anymore and took away her car. That loss of independence bothered McClellan. Willmont said, but it didn't slow her down.

Through the fitness class, McClellan has even improved her ability to live alone.
"After taking the class for a while, said instructor LaBue, "she said, 'Thank you, because I can reach farther up in my cupboards now than I could reach before.'"
Why did McClellan first come to class?
"I didn't want to deteriorate," she said, a little smile twinkling in her blue eyes.

And the party, the clamor over her 95th birthday?

"I am just awed," McClellan said, surprised at all the fuss. It isn't just her age that has her friends and classmates applauding the 95-year-old. It's her decision to continue seeking knowledge and her commitment to keeping active that inspire them.
"It's never too late to have fresh possibilities, new perspectives," said Jan Mitteldeier, coordinator of CSIS' fitness program. "She thinks that's very ordinary, nothing special, and that's part of what makes her extraordinary."

The Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce Mission Statement

The Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce is a non-profit business organization providing members a strong voice, vision and focused leadership to enhance the economic vitality and quality of life in our community.

Legislative Session Winding Down

The Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce has been busy with issues important to business at the Idaho Legislature. Our weekly conference calls with lawmakers have been well-attended and we've shared our support and concerns on legislation this session.

The following priority issues have been discussed during the session. We've seen progress with some, and no progress with others.

If you're interested in politics and how decisions at the State Legislature impact how you do business, attend our weekly Government Affairs meetings Fridays at 7am at the Chamber office.

2007 Legislative Priorities

Workforce Development Issues - Twin Falls Chamber member businesses face increasing challenges to find employees with appropriate skills and training. The Twin Falls Chamber supports assistance to Idaho businesses to retain and recruit qualified workers, workforce training programs, funding for professional technical education, and other economic development support from Idaho Commerce and Labor for existing and future Idaho companies.

Support for Programs to Address Methamphetamine Abuse
Methamphetamine use is a growing epidemic in our state. The effects are far-reaching, impacting the health and safety of our citizens, the cost of doing business, incarceration rates, and needs for welfare assistance for users. The Legislature must support proven programs for substance abuse intervention, education, prevention and treatment. We support the recommendations of Idaho's Drug Court including:

- enhanced communication among agencies
- consolidated funding for proven programs such as Drug Courts
- implementation of a collaborative approach outlined in the Interagency Strategic Plan with performance measures for its goals and strategies

Provide Leadership in Resolution of Water Issues

The availability of water is of grave importance for our State's economy in all areas of the State. We encourage the legislature, in cooperation with the Executive Branch, to act aggressively and decisively in providing leadership to stabilize and recover these water resources for the public good and economic development. The legislature must:

- develop and fund significant water rebadge programs that are in a conformance with Idaho constitutional provisions of water right priority and the protection of property rights;
- eliminate over-appropriation and ensure market-driven water right exchanges (bidding buyer, willing seller) are allowed. We support expanded investments in programs such as CREP and modification of these programs to make them more feasible and to encourage more participation;
- ensure laws are not changed that would allow the export of water out of Idaho.

We also support the Nez Perce-SIBIA Water Rights Settlement, the Snake River Water Rights Act of 2004 passed by congress and signed by the President, and implementing Idaho law that caps the provision of flow augmentation water for listed species

Support Local Governance and Decision Making for Community Colleges

The Chamber understands the value of community colleges as a support for local and statewide economic development and workforce training efforts. While the Chamber supports the concept of a statewide community college network, we encourage the Legislature to ensure local governance and decision making and the involvement of local citizens, including an elected Board of Trustees, in the management, mission, and financial support of these colleges. We also encourage the Legislature to utilize existing community college models in a court of Merit and Twin Falls for any changes to the community college network.

Implement Sales Tax Reporting on a County-by-County Basis

Under the current sales tax reporting system, companies with multi-county sales do not report sales by county, making it difficult to evaluate sales activity within each county. The lack of complete information impedes decision-making by companies evaluating the demographics of an area and by local governments regarding necessary services. We propose the sales tax reporting system be modified and appropriate funding be provided to the State Tax Commission to provide for county-by-county reporting to improve the quality of information available to business and government.

Adequate Funding for Transportation Projects

The ability to travel Idaho's highways is critical for all Idahoans and those who do business within our State. The Twin Falls Chamber encourages support for the following proposals to promote economic development, improve highway safety, and reduce traffic congestion in Southern Idaho:

- The U.S. Highway 93 Alternate route corridor with appropriate funding and construction of the project.
- The reconstruction of Washington Street North and the reroute of U.S. Highway 40 between Kimberly Road and Addison Avenue to improve truck routes in and around the City of Twin Falls.

Small Business Awards to be Presented at Success Breakfast - Nominations Needed!

New this year, the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce will recognize local businesses in 4 separate categories for business success. Nominations are needed in all categories (self-nomination is allowed).

For the purposes of these nominations, small business is defined as a locally-owned or locally-operated business with 1 to 400 employees.

To complete the nomination, please provide the business or individual contact information and details related only to the information requested. Please do not submit additional information such as news clippings, letters of support, copies of other awards, etc. Email to tjshane@twinfallschamber.com or mail to the Chamber office.

Small Business Person of the Year

This award is presented to recognize a local small business person who has demonstrated achievement in ownership or management of a small business as well as leadership in the business community or to one who has made significant contributions to the small business environment. The individual selected will have demonstrated leadership in bringing about business growth and have an outstanding reputation. Management skill may be demonstrated through many facts, including innovation, cost controls, quality of business performance, problem-solving abilities in response to adversity, etc.

Increase the Visibility for your Business

Looking for some great exposure with visitors to the community? The Huzz Langdon Visitor Center is looking for 16 sponsors to fill their new display advertising sign on the exterior of the center. Gain 24 hour a day — 7 day a week exposure. Located on the east side of the Center the sign is highly visible and with record numbers of visitors expected this year, what a great spot to advertise. The annual fee is $600 — just $50 per month! To sign up or to learn more please contact Shawn at 733-3974 or jessica@twinfallschamber.com or shawn@twinfallschamber.com.

Welcome to these new members of the Chamber who've joined the organization recently. Take a moment to stop in to see them and please do business with other Chamber businesses!

Special Accomplishment Award 2007

This award recognizes a small business or an organization in business in the community for at least one year for extraordinary achievement other than excellence in entrepreneurialism, business growth or cornerstone contributions. Major achievements that are especially noteworthy would be eligible for this award as would situations where major challenges have been surmounted. Examples might include the following:

- A small business that made an exceptional change in operations or direction with major results
- Situations where owners or employees have exhibited efforts far above and beyond those encountered in normal business relationships
- A small business that overcame adversity, facing a unique circumstance not generally encountered in the normal course of business and made a comeback in spite of odds against it.
- An organization that has provided exceptional assistance to others in business by assisting them in a unique, complementary or above average manner
- A unique franchise development or other business evolution or process
