Teacher shortage

Twin Falls High School English taacher Dehra Kemper prepares her classroom Friday for the on the Twin Falls School District this year.

School districts work to fill teacher vacancies

TWIN FALLS — Despite schools in idaho facing a hard market for teachers, the Twin Falls School District should start the year with only a couple of possible vacancies in its teaching staff, administrators said its centring stan, estimated friday.

Sonia DeLeon, the district's human relations specialist, said she expects empty positions for a high school special education teacher and an elementary counselor to be fillied within the next week, despite difficulties statewide in finding educators in those areas.

Teachers for special education, math and sectione have been hard to find for some time, and this year elementary school teachers joined that list, Twin Falls Superintendent Wiley Dobbs sald. Its the first time since he joined the district that elementary teachers were scarce, he said, and he's even talking to Idaho State University about placing one or two interns in dassrooms to help out for 12 to 16 weeks.

Two junior high teachers weren't hired until Tuesday, DeLeon said. In all, the district hired 46 teachers for the coming school year, which for Twin Faus Degins on Aug. 27.

Fatricia O'Dell, the district's new associate superintendent, said maint and science teachers are increasingly lured away by higher salaries in related fields and special ed teachers suffer from high burnout rates. The shortages are more than a regional problem.

"It's become pretty apparent in recent years that we as a state are facing a teacher shortage," she said.

Sali apologizes for remarks about Muslim colleague

By Todd Dvorak Associated Press writer

BOISE — U.S. Rep. Bill Sall has apologized to a Muslim colleague for remarks suggesting the nation's founders never intended for Muslims to serve in Congress.

In the interview with the Christian-based American Family News Network, Sall, a Republican freshman from Idaho's its District, referred to his U.S. House colleague

Rep. Keith Ellison, D-Minn., who last fall became the first Muslim elected to Congress.

The Aug 8 report also includes Sail questioning the wisdom of Senate leaders, who last month invited a Hindu clergyman to give the morning prayer in the chamber.

"We have not only a Hindu prayer being offered in the Senate, we have a Muslim raember of the House of Representatives now," Sail is quoted as saying on the network's Web site.

"Those are changes, and they are not what was envisioned by the Founding Fathers."
The comments sparked criticism from liberal bioggers and Idaho Democrats. A former Idaho Democratic congressman called for Sall to either applogize or resign.
Sall responded days later, sending Ellison an e-mail explaining he meant no offense.

IDWR extends moratorium on geothermal pumps near Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS—It'll be at least live more years before Twin falls buildings are warmed by cothermal heat.

The Idaho Department of Water Resources decided Friday to extend a moratorium on geothermal pumping — drawing warm, underground water to heat buildings or create energy — in a 140-square-mile area near Twin Falls. The ruling means the power of good hermal waters, lauded by environmentalists and scientists as a clean way to produce energy, won't be tapped in Twin Falls for another half-decade.

The area has been under a moratorium since 1987, when scientists discovered the geothermal groundwater system was losling artesian pressure. The moratorium has been extended four times since —in 1992, 1997 and 2002 — including Friday.

The College of Southern Idaho asked IDWR in June to, extend the morntorium again so more data could be collected. Aquifer conditions, says IDWR, have not changed since the morntorium was last extended in 2002, though data from the past 20 years indicate the rate of artesian pressure is slowing. Artesian pressure exists when an underground water system is tapped down slope from its source. The more tags below the source, the lower the pressure. Other parts of Idaho tap geothermal water. A geothermal power plant is under construction near Malta, where steam will power turbines to create electricity. Communities in the Treasure Valley, including Boise, use geothermal heat to warm buildings during winter.

The Twin Falls moratorium will last until Sept 1, 2012. Any petition for reconsideration or reconsideration in IDMB deletion. exceptions to IDWR's decision must be filed before Aug. 31.

This summer, it's as serious as it gets. If Yellow Pine residents doubt that, they could ask Owyhee and Twin Fails county ranchers about the Jo-foot-tall flames of last month's Murphy Complex Fire. HAYDEN (AP) — Idaho law-makers will likely, not support an increase in gas taxes to fix the states road system, a northern tdaho lawmaker Rep. Frank Henderson, R-Post Falls, told the Idaho Transportation Board on Thursday that raising gas taxes would be difficult during the 2008 logislative session. "The acceptance of a higher state fuel tax will be hard to achieve." Henderson told the board, the Coeur d'Alene Press reported.

and practice fields. Just take a jog around 4 p.m. and you might understand a silver of what a football player endures daily, sometimes twice daily.

It gets hot.

The heat is sometimes so raw and dry in idaho that when you sweat, it dries before it has the time to trickle down your face.

These are the hours when endurance is defined. Players reminisce of yester-year when coaches would make you run until someone, inyone, but hopefully never you, vonited on the field. Someone always eventually did and we pited him, but thanked litin grandily. It is hard to concentrate when your body bulges in the heat, beaten by the sun and the orders so judiciously dealt out by coaches, their whistles at the ready:

I hated what my defensive line coach did to me in high school, but by I learned to respect the main. Not really because of who he was (we never really know our coaches as men), but because of what he made me into. He punished us to build us into football players, mean and cruel and strong and passionate. Our energy was focused toward the success of the team and the responsibilities team and the responsibilities of each individual, because we knew that if it was not focused energy, then come Monday morning we would pay for our dereliction.

Judge denies motion to dismiss charges against track coach Graham

SAN' FRANCISCO — A federal judge on Friday denied a motion to dismiss charges against. Trevor Graham, the elite track coach noticed as part of a federal investigation into steroid use by athletes.

Graham was charged in November with three counts of making false statements to federal agents. The government accused him of lying in 2004 which he denied distributing steroids or celling his talketes where they could get them. Graham's attorneys had asked U.S. District Judge Susan illston to dismiss the charges because justice Department officials leaked information to the media. In court documents filed last month, they cited widely published reports by The Associated Press that Graham was expected to be indicted. The stories ran the day before he was charged on Nov. 2, Pederal prosecutors argued the grand jury's deliberations weren't compromised by media leaks.

The final Mass in the original Our Lady of the Snows took place on July 29.

Parishioners contributed $4.5 million to build the new church. Architect Jim McLaughilin drew up the plans, with Dave Wilson Construction building the facility.

The new, 11,290-square-foot building has a smaller footprint because its classrooms and parish hall were placed underneath the church in a daylight basement. The original structure had two wings constructed at the rear of the church housing a kitchen and classrooms. Those wings and and an overflow seating area at the back of the church were removed last summer to allow the new building to be erected.

In addition to scriving as a place of worship, Our Lady of the Snows has long been the site of performing arts events.

Boise bishop prepares to undergo back surgery

BOISE (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishop Michael Driscol of Boise will addenge a substantial and the condition that has causethim long term back pain, the diocese said Thursday.

Diocese spokesman Michael Brown said the 68-year-old bishop is scheduled to undergo a 90-minute procedure called a laminectomy Tuesday at St. Alphonsus Hospital here.

A laminectomy is in response to a condition called stenosis, brought on the spine. The arthritis in the spine that leads to the exposure of spinal nerve roots, Brown said. Patients with the condition typically suffer from significant, chronic back pain, he said.

The said was essentially going to the an out arthiftic tissue around the spinal area that should allow the nerve roots to recede and lessen the pain, Brown said. "He's gone through treatments for it. But at this point, it was time to make a decision on surgery to relieve the pain and to continue his ministry."

The procedures is common and low risk, but typically requires a six-week recovery period, Brown said.

"The books we think we ought to read are poky, dull, and dry; The books that we would like to read we are ashained to buy;

read we are assistance to ouj; The books that people talk about we never can recall; And the books that people give us, oh, they're the worst of all." — Carolym Wells

I admire bridge players who can work things out at the table. But I rely a lot on what I learn from reading. Strangely, 15 years ago in the European Championships, a deal with a very unsual theme appeared in the daily bulletin, and the same theme came un again that yery daily the stranger of the same theme.

buttetin, and the same theme came up again that very day. One can only assume that the declarer, Andrew Robson, had an encyclopedic knowledge of these positions, or that he was an avid bulletin reader. Robson received the heart jack lead against six diamonds. He Robson received the heart jack lead against six diamonds. He won in hand, drew trumps as East pitched a spade, then led the heart king and another heart. East followed low though Robsen knew he had dw though Robsen knew he had dw the heart queen. If true, the club king was probably lying over the queen.

So Robson ruffed and led a low the size of the conduction of the least to the conduction of the least to the conduction of the least to the size of the least to the le

So Kobson ruited and led a club to the nine, endplaying East to lead a club or give a ruff and dis-card. Memo to West: Read your bulletins. If you had inserted the club 10, declarer would have had a real problem!

Incidentally, in the other room, on the same lead and play, by the time declarer led the third heart from dummy, John Armstrong as East had read the full deal acqurately. Accordingly, he rose with the heart queen, trying to look like a man who did not have the club king! Declarer took the bait, ruffing the heart to lead a club to the queen and king. It was down one, and very well-earned IMPs for Great Britain. Incidentally, in the other room,

ANSWER: Your two-heart cue-bid showed at least limit raise bid showed at least/filmit raise in diamonds. Now, rather than drive the hand to three no-trump, temporize with a call of two spades. This is forcing, though you are very unlikely to have four spades or you would have made a negative double at your first turn. This way you will let partner describe his hand better at the channet receible level. cheapest possible level.
