A cargo pilot begins his taxt to the runway Friday afternoon at the Twin Falls airport. A house committee approved a bill that would raise taxes on fuel for aircraft. To revenue would go to airport maintenance, including the Twin Falls airport.

Legislative committee approves 1.5 percent hike

BOISE — The House Revenue and Taxation Committee approved a bill Friday to increase taxes on gas for airplanes in hopes the money will fund maintenance at airports.

The 11-3 vote will send to the House floor a proposal to raise by 1.5 percent both the cost of aviation gusoline — by 7 cents per gallon. The change yould raise about $429,000 to be distributed among Idaho airforts, according to Idaho Transportation Department distributed among dail addi-forts, according to Idaho Fransportation Department Aeronautics Advisory Board. The money would contribute to a shortfall in funds that were withheld the least two years from seven primary airports in Idaho, including those in Halley and Twin Falls. Both airports received $15,000 in 2006. Aviation fuel taxes have not increased since 1991. John DeThomas, administrator for Division of Aeronautics, said that revenue has remained static for the last 10 years. However, only about half the $429,000 would be used for grants if Congress fulls to pass a measure to match the funding should found other maintenance and personnel costs. ITD officials said they aren't sure whether Congress will follow through.

If the bill becomes law, the aeronautics advisory board would have to adjust its budget request for next year, which is

Abandoned central Idaho mine scheduled for arsenic cleanup

KEICHUM (AP) — An abandoned mine in central Idabo near a popular recreation area contains arsenic concentrations that pose "extremely high risk levels," according to a report adopted by the U.S. Dreast Service. Livingston Mill, which is scheduled to be cleaned up this stammer, is a 30-ace site about 26 miles southeast of Clayton. It is a historic ore-processing facility with two mills and five large raillings deposits of about 60,000 tots.

such a thing would be possible in New York.

The 350 pictures and two videos on the camera showed several adults, an older woman and three children. Half put them at New York sites like the Empire State Building. The other, half had the group enjoying warm weather and froikking at kid-friendly theme parks.

Ascher castly pinpointed Florida. The group had stood in front of a sign indicating Clearwater, Fla. and possed at 16th Heliman's Beachcomber Restaurant there.

They also took a pirate-themed hoat ride where the kids got mustaches painted on their faces. Ascher zoomed in on the group to see name tags on their shirts. He spotted an Alan, an Eileen, a male Noel and a female Noelle, plus a Clarman. Under their names was written? "HE"

When Ascher checked the videos, he saw nothing telling, just the children dancing and swimming. But in the background, he heard frish accents.

OK, Ascher figured, the imera's owner is from Enter some fresh eyes.

Enter some fresh eyes. Ascher's mother, Nancy, and slster, Emily Rann, scoured the pictures for clues he might have missed. Nancy was par-ticularly confident, having reunited people with their lost belongings before. She once found a California woman's wallet in a cab in Florence, trally and spent all day on her trail before making a hand-over at an American Express office.

"I thought, with all this data in the camori, there's no way

After several phone calls and a visit to the hotel to show the pictures around, Nancy Ascher persuaded an employee to search the Radisson's puest records by first name and country of residence, a Noel from Ireland had stayed there on the date stamped on the photo. Nancy Ascher charmed the hotel employee into sharing the guest's e-mail address. Wonderful.

Except that when Noel some the hotel employee into sharing the guest's e-mail address. By now, school was resuming, and Ascher was prepared in pice the camera to his morn so she could take over. She had figured out the name of the Florida pirate-hoat cruise and was trying to reach its opperator.

But first Ascher took a final look at the photographs.

He pored over some from Dec. 30 that didn't include the children. The photos showed signs for hars in Manbattan's East Village: The Thirsty Scholan, Telephone Bar, Burp Castle. There also were multiple interior shots of a tavern, but they didn't seem to fl with what Ascher knew of those other three bars.

Then he stopped on another picture, shuwing two people outside an apartment building. Seemingly accidentally included in the picture was something Ascher had missed the first time; an awning in the background that read "Standings," Ahal Standings is a bar nest to Burp Castle. Ascher checked its Web site, and the interior matched the pictures on the camera.

Ascher found Standings' owner, who reached he had worked bee.

Labor Department proposes changes to Family Medical Leave Act

WASHINGTON Bush administration is pro-posing the first changes in more than a decade to regulations that give workers unpaid leave to deal with family or medical emergencies, a move that concerns some of the law's supporters who want to law's supporters who want to see it expanded. The Labor Department announced Thursday it had sent the first proposed changes to regulations governing the Family and Medical Loave Act to the White Hunse's Office of Management and Budget for approval.

While refusing to outline the changes, Assistant Labor Sceretary Victoria A. Lipnic said the proposed regulations will not reduce the number of people today who can take advantage of FMIA leaves. "People who are currently eligible under this law do not lose their eligibility," she said. But Debra Ness, president of the National Partnership for Women and Families, suggested that officials should be typing to expand the law, no change regulations. "Tim worried about any effort to cut back or weaken the projections of this law," said Ness, who has not seen the proposed changes. "This is a time where we should be working to expand the protections in place for working families."

The 1993 Family and Medical Leave Act grants eligible workers up to a total of 12 weeks of unpaid leave during any 12-month period for such things as caring for a newborn or a sick family member, or because the employee has a serious health condition. If ementally covers employers Act this year to include six months of leave for military families when a service memberg east but.

Lawmakers also allowed military family members to take FMIA leave for "any qualifying exigency" relating to a family members call up to active duty or deployment.

The Labor Department is supposed to write regulations to define what a "qualifying exigency" is, Lipnic said. Those regulations are part of what they sent to the White House for approval, she said.

The FMIA expansions are part of a $606 billion defense bill authorizing a 3.5 percent pay raise for troops. Once Places likely to see changes include in medical certification for FMLA leaves; unscheduled Intermittent leave for people claiming chronic health conditions; and for employee awareness of FMLA rights.

"Our overtail theme and goal in these regulations is to reduce uncertainty in the workplace for all parties, employers and the employees," Lipnic said.

In a report issued in June, the department noted that people with chronic health conditions were taking unscheduled intermittent FMIA leave that some companies say is distrutive. It said these complains were presalent among industries with time-sensitive operations, such as those in the transportation, delivery, assembly line and public safe-ty sectors.

French bank trader was dealing in tens of billions of dollars

PARIS - The rogue futures trader who allegedly cost French bank Societe Generale $7.14 bilbank Societe Generale $7.14 bil-lion had been betting on an even larger scale — with tens of bil-lions in fraudulent deals, the bank sald Friday. France's No. 2 bank apologized to shareholders after discovering what appears to be the largest trading fraud in history to be car-ried out by a single person. The news Thursday ratted an already jittery banking sector at a time of jobal economic uncertainty. A bank official said Friday that 31-year-old. trader Jerome Kerviel's positions had reached "several tens of billions of curos" — a staggerfag sum for a bank with a market capitalization of 35.9 billion euros ($52.6 billion). The official spoke on condition of anonymity in line with bank policy.

of anonymity in line with bank policy.
French presidential aide Raymond Souble said on Lt Itelevision that the trader had been dealing with more than 50 billion terros (873.31 billion) — a figure greater than annual gross domestic product for entire nations such as Morocco, Slovakla, according to according to figures. The bank said Kerviel appears to have netted no personal financial gain from the alleged schemes.

Paris prosecutors were conducting a preliminary investigation that combines two legislation.

The decision is a blow to Rudy Giuliani, the former New York mayor in a close fight with McCain for support of voters in the Cuban-American community — and to keep his candidacy alive. It also is a set-back for Mitt Rommey, the former Massachusetts (governor in a close race against McCain. Martinez, a Republican who was born in Cuba, emigrated to the United States as a teenager and is popular in Miami's Little Havana neighborhood. It remains to be seen whether Martinez' endorsement will translate into votes given that a significant percentage of voters already have cast absentee and early ballots — many before Giuliani's drop and

Gooding hospital finalizes land deal

Purchase sets officials on path to new building

By Nate r Opposition of the Country Memorial Hospital officials took a major step toward opening a new hospital Friday, with the final paperwook completed for a 1.5-acre donation from the city of Gooding.

The hospital has signed the closing documents on 12.5 more acres located south of the intersection of U.S. Highway 26 and Idaho Highway 46, CIGO Earl Fitzpatrick said, providing a total of 14 acres for construction of the new building. The hospital paid $299,020 for the two plots of non-city land and received a total of $50,000 donated back from the purchase price, he said, setting the stage for later work once financing is secured for construction.

With the land deal complete and a preliminary floor plan of the hospital mapped out, Fitzpatrick and the hospital work of the control of the control of the first plan to form a nonprofit on manage the hospital of the hospital motor of has fall selling the public on the proposal, which Fitzpatrick said is the only way the bospital could get enough money to build the new facility. They will continue designing and planning the new building over the next 10 weeks while they wait for the result of the learing.

"That's a big trigger for our financing side, because we can't really take on the debt for the project until we have that come through." Fitzpatrick said of the hearing, There's still a chance that the nonprofit plan — a partnership with St. lake's Health System — could be deemed illegal at the hearing, and Fitzpatrick said Friday there is still no backup plan for funding the new building. After two-year delay, state Senate panel approves new drug prison

By John Miller Associated Press writer

BOISE — Lawmakers voted Friday to kick-start a drug treatment prison planned south of Roise that's been plagued by two years of delays plagued by two years or delays.

The Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee unanimously approved a lease-purchase agreement in which Idaho will pay 550.4 million over 20 years to a 10ah-based company to build the 400-bed facility. After two decades, Idaho will own the building. If the full Senate approves, the measure will go the House. If it gets a final OK, the building should be completed in about 22 months on land ear existing state prison near existing state prison facilities, officials said.

The plan for a so-called Correctional Afternative Placement Program facility was batched in the 2006 legislature, as lawmakers sought to provide an alternative so those convicted of drug- and alcohol-related crimes could avoid time in a traditional prison and get crimes could avoid time in a traditional prison and get treatment instead Since then, however, it's been delayed by ambiguity in the state's competitive bidding process that provoked complaints from companies sying to build and nn the facility.

That's finally been worked out. Late last year, Management & Training Corp., based in Centerville. Corp., based in Centerville, Utah, won the contract to build and operate the prison. Now, lawmakers need to sign off on the details of the lease-

Company scales back gold mining proposal

BOISE (AP) — A Canadian company seeking to mine for gold and silver near the finy, remote town of Adanta has told the U.S. Forest Service it has decided to move the proposed mine off public land and not use a process involving cyanide.

The Boise National Forest amnounced the changes Friday after Toronto-based Adanta Gold Corp., submitted a request to withdraw its operations plan and instead unine on private patented lands in the area.

It would also use existing road casements to move equipment.

The agency was in the process of analyzing the environmental impacts of the company's mining proposal, but has now shelved that project because it no longer involves Forest Service land, said Dave Corp. The Boise National Forest Corp. Acting Forest Supervisor.

Acting Forest Supervisor Frank Guzman said the company still intends to move ahead on plans to extract an estimated 500,000 omcess of gold and silver near Albanta, instoric mining area 60 miles east of Boise.

Company officials with Adanta Gold Corp, in Toronto and Boise did not immediately return calls from the Associated Press on Friday.

In a news release, the company said it had "changed the strategie focus of its Adanta Gold project from bulk mining cyanide heap leaching, to a combined open-pit and underground operation with an on-site milling facility.

As for cyanide use, the company in its news release said that its plans for 2000 include the "construction of pilot plant with no cyanide circuit."

Among the reasons for the change, the company included "climination of major permitting burdles which will reduce permitting timemitting hurdles which will reduce permitting timelines."

While the Forest Service will likely no longer have any say in the mine, Bruce Schuld of the Idaho Department Quality said the mine owners will still need to meet standards set by the state.
"There's a number of different roles that the DEQ might play with a mining operation that's wholly on private land," he said, Surface mining, he said, would require the company to submit a reclamation plan to the Idaho Department of Lands, with that agency the soliciting comments from DEQ, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, the Department of Fish and Game, the Department of Mater Resources and other agenries. The Twin Falls girls basketball team might have honned its seniors at their last regular season home game Friday, but there's no mistaking that it was Aubree Callen's night.

The Jerome sophomore poured in a game-high 27 points, 17 of them in the second half, as the Class 4A No. 2 Tigers polished off their regular season in style with a 54-51 win over Twin Falls at Baun Gymnasium.

Callen hit four 3-pointers and was 9-for-12 from the charity stripe, as she almost single-handedly commanded the tempo of the game. She also worked well to get her team involved yet she was unafraid to occasionally improvise, spot up and launch a 24-foot bomb, which naturally found nothing but twine.

NG. 2 GS) AT NO. 8 SALT LAKE CG

THIS goes deeper than basketball, farther into the depth of the athlete's psyche than playing for civic pride or personal glory. For the No. 2 College of Southern Idaho and No. 3 Salt Lake Community College men, this game is about will. The will to not only survive, but thrive. The will to not only compete, but dominate.

IS CSI's vaunted offense unbreakable, or will the Bruins' defense prove impassable? Will supreme talent prevail, or will victory smile upon undeniable grit? Forty minutes of play will tell the story.

THEIR will to thrive will be put to task. Their unblemished seasons put on the line. For one team, dominance will be proven. This is what they've been waiting for. Today, the Bruins and Golden Eagles face their ...

Through the season's first 19 games, the CSI and SLCC teams have been identical in success, disparate in methodology.

CSI basketball is a high-wire act marked by sudden, furious bursts of athleticism and the most potent offense in all of college basketball with its 115.7-point scoring average. It is, at times, utter chaos.

SLCC basketball is about control. The Bruins strip their opposition of its comfort with a measured, methodical attack and a defense that handcuffs its target into a NJCAA-low 51.1 points per game. It is calculating, patient, and the exact opposite of CSI.

CSI and SLCCs differences extend from philuso-physiology. Both are embodied by their starting sophomore power forwards: the Golden Eagles' Juan Pattillo and the Bruins' Andy Palmer. The 6-foot-7 Pattillo is all Bash and muscle, grace and fury at the same time. The NICAA Preseason All-America selection is quite simply one of the most talented athletes in the Junior college ranks, and everyone knows it.

Babe Ruth's nephew convicted of defrauding the IRS of $360,000

TRENTON, N.J. — Babe Ruth's nephew was convicted Friday of defrauding the Internal Revenue Service of about $300,000 by filing flase Income tax returns.

George Herman Ruth, 54, of Indianapolis, Ind., and William Robert Pilkey. 63, of Killeen Texas, were convicted by a federal jury on one count conspiracy to file false claims and 60 counts of filing false claims.

During a three-week trial, prosecutors said the pair operated their scheme from January 2001 to December 2004 while they were inmates at the Fort Dix Federal Correctional Institution.

Ruth had been serving a 33-month sentence for mail fraud. Pilkey was serving 10 years for a drug conviction.

They were charged with filling 176 false individual income tax returns that contained fraudulent claims for refunds.

Prosecutors said the pair used their own names and names of others, including fellow inmates and former inmates, to file false returns for tax years 2000 utongly 2003. They mailed the returns to third parties, who the mailed them to various IRS service contexts.

Clemens' meeting with congressional committee staff postponed to Feb. 5

WASHINGTON — Roger Clemens' meeting with a congressional committee investigating steroids in baseball was pushed back to Feb. 5.

Clemens originally was asked to appear saturday for a deposition or transcribed interview with staff members from the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee. That panel has called a Feb. 13 hearing where Clemens and his former personal trainer. Briam McNannee, are among five witnesses slated to appear. Clack Knoblauch, a former teammate of Clemens' with the New York Yankees, was subpoenaed to appear for a deposition or transcribed interview on Tuesday, although the committee said he has yet to be served.

Ivanovic, seeded fourth, saved two match points but spraged a forchand wide to give Sharapova the title, to go with her virus at Winthledon in 2001 and the 2000 U.S. Open.

On a hot, sunny day with temperatures reaching 93 degrees, people in the crowd were fanning themselves, and Sharapova retreated to tthe shade behind the baselines to gather herself between points.

It was Australia Day, so organizers put small national flags at each seat. But there were plenty of Serbian and Bussian flags, too.

Most of the signs scattered around packed Rod Laver Areas were pretty clear, including one that said "Quiet please Marla," referring to Sharapova's high-pitched grants that get louder and louder as pressure rises.

Both players showed some nerves in the first set, with Panovic particularly shaky, committing 19 unforced errors to

I have two small children who live with us. Jerry has been a wonderful husband and stepfather. When we married years ago, we both wowed our own homes. We jointly decided to rant mine and live in his. Whenever we go away on a vacation, his children use our home without asking. There have been parties, complaints from neighbors, our house left in disarray, and 'friends' I don't know steeping in my children sheets, in the past, Jerry tolerated this behavior.

Now that my children and live here, I asked my husband to talk to his children and live here, I asked my husband to talk to his children about this. He did, and things have toned down, but they haven't stopped.

It bothers me that they use our home when we're not here, I feel it's an invasion of privacy, lack of respect and a risk, Jerry feels it's their home, too, and he's rehuctant to be firm with them, I don't hink they or their friends should be here when we're gone. Am I out of line'?

Help is on the way — and 51-year-old Mark Chartier will have it no other way.
For more than six months: Chartier has spent the larger part of every day working as a volun-teer for The Sabatation Army in Twin falls.
Though maintenance is his primary post, his services also include a fair amount of janitori-al duties at the local church and its adjacent community center.
Tie's been awssome — and shows up every day, 'said Salvation Army bushiess manag-er Becky Bonnett.
It is the devotion of volun-teers like Chartier that helps many faith-based organizations across Magic Valley offer assis-tance to as many in need as possible. Doomsday dwelling Utah polygamist carves homes into rock

SALT LAKE CITY -- The SALE LANE CITY — The way things were going, Bob Foster figured the end was near and there was no safer place to be than inside a rock in southern Urah.

That was 1979.
Nearly 30 years later, Foster still lives in a mammoth sandstone slab south of Moab, an astonishing creation he calls Rockland Ranch.

Through the years, Foster has carved eight homes and a Through the years, Foster has curved eight homes and a "charity house" into the rock, creating, comfortable and even Insurious dwellings, when he started it all, Foster was a younger, stronger man one driven by appendyptic fears and his fundamentalist Mormon faith to find a safe haven to reach is polygamous family. He found it on figures in the sught and the safe haven to reach his polygamous family. He found it on figures in the sught and suffer and the suffer of the world spot off a twisting, red dirt road and dominated by a massive sandstone formation. "It was crystal clear this is the place," Foster said, "I knew I was to cut holes in rocks for a grigue center." Foster signed a 50-year lease for the property, located on state school trust land, and began blasting homested holes in the sandstone. There are 22 years left on the lease, which runs about 165,000 per year, but Foster doesn't expect the government to last that long, So his work continues. "I didn't expect I'd be here ment to last that long, so his work continues.

"I didn't expect I'd be here i'd didn't expect I'd be here here I am," said Foster, 82, who has three wives (this first wife divorced blim) and 38 children. "I told the Lord I'd be out here until I was 75, but he had other plans."

'The Lord made me so strong'

Foster is a lanky man with bright blue eyes and skin mottled by rock blasts and desert sun. He once worked as a seminary teacher for The Church of Jesus Christ as a seminary feature in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The IDS Chirch, which publicy disavowed polygamy in 1890, excommunicated Foster in 1972 after he became a fundamentalist and took three vives. Iwo had taken seminary classes from him years before they married. He was convicted of bigamy in 1974 and spent 20 days in jail doing "hard labor" — washing the sheriffs car.

The experience, though, helped give urgency to his Money to fund the project came in strange and, in Foster's view, miraculous ways. Tourists would take a less-traveled fork off a state road, wind up at "The Rock," chat with Foster and contribute a few bucks. A man once showed up with a truckload of ammonium

a tourist's windshield.

"He laughed, handed me a $100 bill and drove off," he said. "Everybody that came through here was handing me money."

Homes with a view The homes, which range rom 1,700 to 6,000 or so The homes, which range from 1,700 to 6,000 or so square feet, are surprising-ty-comfortable. The interior of the rock is cool in the summer; wood stows keep the homes toasty in the winter. And the views are fantastic.

Generators and solar power provide electricity, water comes from a 3,000-gallon water reservolr atop the rock. There is an orchard, a volleyball court, an outdoor kitchen and miles of open space that is perfect for four-wheeling. For about 20 years Foster lived "flat alone" at the rock with, for various lengths of time, his wives and children — about 23 of whom spent most of their childhoods there.

The odd home fronts attached to the rock continue to draw strangers who want a closer look. They get a tour and a rousing conversation that typically circles around Foster's main focus: religion.

Many of his views are on the Web at www.strongdelusions.com. As for polygamy, its purpose is the same today as it was in the days of Abraham, Foster said.

"If God has a man he wants multiplied, he puts him into plural marriage," he said. "It's not a sex party, it's to get children here."

Such laws are often abused to settle local disputes and discriminate against minorities, according to the U.S. State Department's latest report on religious freedom in Pakistan.

The several ornate churches in Karachi — Paklstanis largest concentration of Christians — date to the Pritish occupation of the subcontinent and seem to be the oldest structures stand-ing in its rough- and-tumble streets. They are protected as historical landmarks by the government and surrounded by tall walls, although security for Sunday services appears no more heavy than the presence of an armed quard or two.

The service at St. Andrews, an Anglican church, combined local traditions with Christian practice. Men and women sat mostly separate on opposite sides of the church, where the altar was covered with woven carpets. The music and littings were in the local language Urdu, and a keyboardist was accompanied by a man heating on the bongo-style drums common to south Asian music.

Built originally by the British military, the wonden church pews are carved with the insignal of various units. One even bears the United States' eagle seal and the inscription "U.S. Forces' dated 1942-1946, commentating the apparent presence of Americans during World War III while the subcontinent was under British occupation before its 1947 independence and parittion into India and Pakistan.
