Jaquet, Cameron rake in campaign contributions

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

Two south-central Idaho state lawmakers — House Minority Leader Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, and Senate Finance Chairman Dean Cameron, R-Rupert — are among the top recipients in the Legislature for recent campaign contributions, according to campaign finance reports. Jaquet received more in campaign contributions — almost $35,000 — than all but two state legislators. Cameron took in more than $31,000, which was among the top tier of Republicans, who hold 79 of 105 seats. The most recent contribution period was from 7 through Sept. 30. Reports were due Friday. new state District 23 Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, who was appointed by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter to fill a vacancy, received more than his opponent, raising $15,570 and has $8,465 cash on hand.

Jaquet, who said she's faced two challengers since her first term in 1994, received $35,988.81 from 169 contributors and has $32,768.65 cash on hand. All but 21 donations came from individuals, most of which live in District 25. Donations of $1,000 include Tina Walker of Halley; Barry and Linda Staun of Ketchum; James Johnson, a Democratic Party activist from Washington, D.C.; and Teresa Heinz, the wife of Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass.

School construction work moving along

By Ben Boltan
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls School District is keeping a busy construction schedule, and it's not limited to the Canyon Ridge High School project.

The Twin Falls School Board members this week accepted a bid of $1.16 million for the addition of a multi-purpose room to Harrison Elementary School. The project's excavation work is scheduled to begin next week, said Dale Thornberry, facilities manager for the district. Its completion is anticipated in May 2009.

Elsewhere in the district, other construction projects are further along. At L.B. Perrine Elementary School, a new multi-purpose room is expected to be finished by December.

The addition still needs installation of its windows, flooring and landscaping, said Rex Trammel, the project manager.

The multi-purpose room has basketball hoops and will come in handy for gym classes, said Bill Bruilotta, the principal. Currently, the school's other existing gym also serves as the cafeteria, which ties up the gym space from 10:50 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. for lunch.

That creates a situation that's rushed, Bruilotta said, adding that the multi-purpose room will help that problem. Also, the facility will provide another practice facility for students from nearby Robert Stuart Junior High School.

"They have one more gym now," Bruilotta said.

The multi-purpose room at Bickel Elementary School is expected to be finished in November, and will be the first one finished in the district. Its wood flooring, fencing and landscaping still need to be done.

For Morningside Elementary School's multi-purpose room, construction started Sept. 15 and the concrete footings have been poured. The room is scheduled to be done in April 2009.

At Canyon Ridge High School, crews are pouring concrete and working on the sidewalks, which should be done in about 10 days. Another goal is to get the building closed in before winter, Thornberry said.

"The building should be enclosed before really bad weather hits," he said.

Bonds are providing the funding for the projects. Voters passed a $49.7 million school bond issue in March 2006. Voters passed a 10-year, $33 million plant facilities levy in March.

McCain, Obama get tough, personal in final debate

By Beth Fosky

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — John McCain assailed Barack Obama's character and his campaign positions on taxes, abortion and more Wednesday night, hoping to turn their final presidential debate into a launching pad for a political comeback. "You didn't tell the American people the truth," he said. Unruffled, and ahead in the polls, Obama parried each charge, and leveled a few of his own.

"One hundred percent, John, of your ads, 100 percent of them have been negative," Obama shot back in an uncommonly personal debate less than three weeks

Judge dismisses smoke shop lawsuit

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

A judge has dismissed a lawsuit brought by the Smoke 'N Head shop against the Twin Falls County commissioners for denying him an alcohol license because the license that was eventually granted to him made the suit void.

In his Oct. 3 dismissal, 5th District Judge Michael Crabtree called the lawsuit "moot" because the license for Allen Nagel was reconsidered by the commissioners and approved on Dec. 17, 2007, according to court records. The dismissal was issued with prejudice, which means Nagel can't file anything further and the matter is resolved.

Last November, Nagel sued Commissioners Tom Mikerski, Terry Kramer and George Ure over the original denial of a liquor license, arguing their decision was made without any legal reasoning. He sued between the time the commissioners

Nebraska senator's lawsuit against God is tossed out

By Herb Jenkins
Associated Press writer

LINCOLN, Neb. — An unlisted address is proving to be God's best legal weapon against a mortal but tenacious Nebraska state senator.

A Douglas County District Court judge on Tuesday threw out state

Sen. Ernie Chambers' lawsuit against God because the Almighty wasn't served a legal notice. And the judge doesn't seem to think it's possible to find the Almighty's front door.

"Given that this court finds that there can never be service effectuated on the named defendant this action will be dismissed with prejudice," Judge Marlon Poll wrote in his four-page order.

Just over a year ago Chambers, the longest serving — and maybe the most powerful — state senator in Nebraska history, sought a permanent injunction against God. He said

Incumbent Loesche faces Ritter for Lincoln County Commission seat

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

Two candidates will face off in the election for a seat on the Lincoln County Commission, and it won't be the first time. Charles Ritter, an independent candidate, is challenging incumbent Republican Joy Loesche, who faced him in 2006 for the District 1 commissioner seat and won. The race is on again, but this time Loesche is an incumbent.

Lincoln County commissioners earn $14,333 annually, oversee a budget of $2.7 million, and oversee the county's planning and zoning administrator.

"I'm running for office because hopefully, I can make a difference," said Ritter, 50, who lives in rural Shoshone.

Ritter said he would like to see Lincoln County attract more businesses and industry, though he's says he's not sure what would be the best way to do that. He said he would be open to small businesses or larger businesses coming to the area.

He also stressed the need for the county to keep an eye on its budget.

"I think we need somebody that has fiscal responsibility or is willing to take on fiscal responsibility," Ritter said. "That is a big part of the job to my understanding."

Ritter raises beef cows on a farm and has worked in the past as a firefighter for the Bureau of Land Management.

Loesche, 45, lives in rural Shoshone and is a service writer for Wood River Motors in Hailey. He said he believes in not playing favorites and treating everyone equally.

"Personally, I think I'm fair and want to level the playing field for everybody," he said. He said two important things to get done are finishing work on the county's confined-animal feeding operation ordinance and its subdivision ordinance.

"In the last two years, we've made strides to create new ordinances," Loesche said. He said he's open to CAFOs in the area, provided they meet all the regulations, such as buffer zones between subdivisions.

"It's important to balance the region's agriculture with other growth, like housing," Loesche said.

"We want to protect the agriculture yet still provide for controlled growth, not a haphazard, willy-nilly growth," he said.

Loesche also is a cattle rancher and a volunteer firefighter for Shoshone City and Fair Fire District.

Two newcomers aiming for Lincoln County Commission

By Ben Botkin
Times-News writer

No matter who wins, Lincoln County will have a new commissioner for its District 2 seat.

Two candidates are hoping to fill the seat of Lawrence Calkins, who is not seeking re-election after 12 years in office. R. Wendell Johnson, a Republican, and Marsha Hlatt, a Democrat, are squaring off in the election for commissioner. County commissioners earn a salary of $14,333, oversee the planning and zoning administrator and have a budget of $2.7 million.

Hlatt, 51, of rural Richfield, said she believes that communication should be increased between the county, cities and the sheriff's office. Hlatt, who worked for the Lincoln County Journal for 10 years, said she would listen to her constituents if elected.

"I think there's a lot of people in the county that don't feel like they have a voice on this level and I think that I'm a good listener and I could be their voice," she said. Hlatt said she has talked to a lot of people while working for the Lincoln County Journal.

She said the county should maintain its agricultural roots, but also be willing to balance that with growth.

"At the same time, we need people to move here and we need businesses to move here," she said.

In the past, Hlatt has served on the county's planning and zoning board and the county fair board. Johnson, 72, of Richfield, is a semi-retired rancher and ranch manager.

"I said the county needs to practice fiscal responsibility in tough economic times and avoid letting its workers be attracted to positions elsewhere.

"We've been the training field of other counties and other businesses for quite a long time," he said, adding that he would welcome economic growth and is open to looking for incentives for new businesses.

Johnson has spent three and a half years working as the planning and zoning administrator and two terms as the county's assessor. He said the experience provides him with a good background for becoming a commissioner.

"I'd put my knowledge up against anybody," he said.

While he doesn't believe the county's doing poorly with regulating large-scale confined-animal feeding operations, he said it's important to not let that slip.

"When you have 40, 50 thousand cows, you've got to manage that fairly well," Johnson said.

Faulkner seeks to unseat Jaquet in House 25 race

By Nata Poppino
Times-News writer

Voters in four south-central Idaho counties will get to choose Nov. 4 between one of the most powerful Democrats in the state, and a Republican challenger who says he better represents his large district.

Gooding rancher and former Idaho Cattle Association Jeff Faulkner is challenging state House Minority Leader Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, for her District 25 legislative seat.

Faulkner, 42, knows he's fighting a tough battle. Jaquet is seeking her eighth term, and has the resources to defend her seat — according to the most recent campaign finance reports, she raised nearly eight times as much as he did over the whole of 2008, and five times as much as he did since the primary.

"I took on Goliath," Faulkner said.

But it's a worthy fight, he said, given the makeup of his four-county district. Two of the district's three legislators hail from Blaine County, leaving Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties with less of a voice, he said. Many legislators across the state also hail from urban areas now, he said, increasing the need for another with rural roots.

Jaquet, 65, said she takes exception to Faulkner's view of her performance. She said she regularly addresses issues from all four corners of her district, and rattled off examples such as a bill she helped pass preserving agricultural land, her involvement with the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind in Gooding and a recent e-mail from the mayor of Fairfield thanking her for responding to the city's needs.

"I get constituent calls from all over the district who are asking for help," Jaquet said. Of her four counties, she said, "I've made a really concerted effort to make sure I represent all four."

One issue that will hit just as hard in Gooding as in

Faulkner Jaquet

Ketchum is the economy that prompted Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter to order 1 percent hold-backs for almost all state agencies last month. Jaquet said the holdback was "prudent" but questioned its timing and its effect on the state Department of Commerce. Faulkner said education and transportation projects should have funding priority next year.

"The only thing I don't think we can do is nothing," Faulkner said.

Education in particular is an important subject for Faulkner — his wife is a public school teacher. He said schools are underfunded and teachers aren't paid enough, but that raising taxes isn't the answer and that legislators "need to explore a lot of options."

He supports merit-based pay for teachers, suggesting that a committee of their peers could help award it. Jaquet, who opposed a merit plan put forward last session by Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna, said the money shortage will keep anything similar from passing next year.

Both candidates support the ISDB. Faulkner said he doesn't want to see it move to Boise, one change previously suggested by state officials. Jaquet noted that the school seems to be attracting more students now and that officials now seem generally satisfied with its services.

Jaquet said she supports fixing the state's battered roads through a balanced funding plan, combining a "small increase" in fuel taxes and registration fees with local-option sales taxes for transportation, roads and bridges.

Faulkner seemed less sure about where legislators could successfully pull money from, but said registration fees aren't an option and that he had concerns about raising high gas prices. Local-option taxes may work, he said, though higher prices could chase consumers away from places they're used. And he supported looking into combining county highway districts to save on administrative costs.

"As long as taxpayers are treated fairly, I'm all for it," Faulkner said of the local-option idea.

Whoever voters choose will become one of 105 members in the part-time Idaho Legislature that typically meets from January to March. Legislators are paid a base salary of $16,921 annually, not including per diem for travel.

Man pinned between trucks critically injured

Times-News

A man pinned Monday between two semi-trucks was in critical condition Wednesday at Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise, hospital officials confirmed.

Kyle McGhee, 65, of Twin Falls was injured after he tried to help Kenneth Ardoin, 58, along State Highway 27 near Burley.

Ardoin, of Reeves, La., parked his 2006 International semi in the southbound turn lane because he was having brake issues, according to a press release from Idaho State Police.

McGhee stopped to help, parked his 1993 Kenworth semi, and didn't set his brakes. His truck rolled forward and sandwiched him between the two trucks.

Commercial vehicle inspectors looked at both semi-trucks. Equipment on McGhee's rig was in working condition, police said.

"If the breaks would have been properly set the vehicle wouldn't have rolled," said Idaho State Police Corporal Andy Hitt.

Idaho State Police are still determining whether a citation will be issued, Hitt said.

Smoke

denied his application and then reconsidered it.

The commissioners publicly questioned whether the items at Nagel's store — flavored tobacco, various herbs and plants and glassware to smoke them in — are appropriate for Twin Falls.

The items are all legal, Nagel passed a criminal background check from the state and city, and county police said Nagel was complying with the law.

Nagel chalked up the dismissal to mistakes by his attorney, Pat Brown, of Twin Falls.

"It's due to faulty representation," Nagel said Wednesday. "The reason they denied my license in the first place was that they violated my constitutional rights. I told my attorney I wanted to sue under that premise. Well, he sued them saying I wasn't treated fairly."

In the original complaint, Brown argued the denial was illegal because commissioners "abused any discretion they had" and their decision was not based on any hearings or record and instead on "unlawful discrimination and bias."

Many longtime county and city officials said it was the only alcohol license denied in decades. In Twin Falls County, a 1940 resolution dictates how alcohol licenses are granted. In the resolution, the two provisions for receiving a license are "strict observance" of state laws and paying a fee.

At the time commissioners said they planned to revise the county's application process.

"We actually have a final document on that that we're going to be hearing. In fact I think we're going to be publishing the notice," Kramer said Wednesday. "It's pretty long."

Nagel said he's still down a combined $17,000 in attorneys' fees and lost revenue from when he didn't have the license. But he doesn't plan more action.

"Honestly I think I just want to let things go," he said. "I want to be left alone."

God

the Almighty has made tormented threats against the senator and his constituents in Omaha, inspired fear and caused "widespread death, destruction and terrorization of millions upon millions of the Earth's inhabitants."

Chambers has said he filed the lawsuit to make the point that everyone should have access to the courts regardless of whether they are poor or have the means of billionaire Warren Buffett of Omaha.

But the judge ruled that under state law a plaintiff must have access to the defendant for a lawsuit to move forward.

Chambers, who graduated from law school but never took the bar exam, thinks he's found a hole in the judge's ruling.

"The court itself acknowledges the existence of God," Chambers, who is not returning to the Legislature next year because of term limits, said on Wednesday. "A consequence of that acknowledgment is a recognition of God's omniscience. Therefore, God would have actual notice of that lawsuit."

"Since God knows everything, God has notice of this lawsuit."

Chambers has 30 days to decide whether to appeal the decision and said he hasn't decided yet whether to file one.

During a court appearance in August, while sitting a few feet away from an empty table reserved for God and God's attorney, Chambers argued that courts and the U.S. government already routinely take notice of God.

Courts swear in witnesses with an oath that includes the phrase "so help me God." Plus, the pledge of allegiance describes "one nation, under God," and U.S. currency proclaims "In God We Trust."

Chambers regularly skipped morning prayers during his 38 years in the legislature and often criticizes Christians.

Dairy owner defends 'modest' expansion

Decision in variance appeal expected by Nov. 14

By Nita Poppo
Times-News Writer

Twin Falls County commissioners now hold the future of a local dairy in their hands, the owner's attorney said Wednesday morning.

The county Planning and Zoning Commission denied in June a variance request by Mal Machado, owner of the Providence Dairy southwest of Buhl, which would have allowed him to expand his facility's permit from 280 to 999 cows. The variance is necessary because the dairy sits within a one-mile setback from Salton Falls Creek Canyon.

Machado and his attorney, John Lotzspeich, are now looking to the commissioners to change that decision. During a public hearing, they argued that the P&Z did not have a quorum when it made its decision, and that members ignored their own guidelines for approving variances.

Lotzspeich, who characterized the change as a "modest expansion," said Machado has to expand to stay economically viable.

"This is a very solid facility that you want to keep in Twin Falls County," Lotzspeich said.

According to the variance request, Machado is looking to add the sixth acre of land the dairy sits on from owner John Nunes, as well as 154 more acres from neighbor Richard Svanera. Expanding the facility will help pay for the deal, and the extra land will help Machado somewhere to put liquid waste produced by his cows, he said.

But the request attracted the ire of some former members of a citizens' committee that proposed the canyon setback, adopted six years ago. The dairy was grandfathered into the ordinance and sits 2.275 feet from the rim. The expansion would be built 2,870 feet from the rim, still not at the mile restriction.

County Rich Carlson, representing neighbors of the facility, argued that Machado does not own the land in question and therefore can't ask for the restriction.

"It's a loss in potential increase in value, and that's not what your ordinance is focused on," he said.

But Lotzspeich replied that Machado's lease and potential purchase of the land qualified him as an owner under the ordinance.

"An option to purchase is an ownership interest in the property," Lotzspeich said.

After the hearing, commissioners said the case would be challenging to decide, largely because of the quorum argument. Only four of the seven P&Z commissioners were present for the June decision, and one recused herself, resulting in a 2-1 vote.

County code defines a quorum as a majority of the commissioners. But several legal sources state that abstaining from a vote does not change a quorum, and other Idaho counties such as Caribou have held votes with less than a majority of their commissioners.

It's also unclear whether including the abstention could result in a split vote, which is not always considered a majority.

Commissioners will issue a written decision on the appeal on or before Nov. 14.

BLM starts prescribed burn near Bellevue

Smoke east of Bellevue? Don't worry, say officials with the Bureau of Land Management.

The agency is conducting a prescribed burn this fall in Marip Canyon, intended to clean up the area after a selective logging operation wrapped up last spring. The burn is part of an extensive project in the canyon aimed at improving wildlife habitat and restoring the health of aspen trees and the overall ecosystem, according to a news release from the agency.

This fall's burn will cover between 90 and 200 acres of just more than 900 planned to be burned.

Prescribed burns are often conducted in the fall, when cool temperatures and other weather conditions make it easier to control the fire. The Marip burn will also be timed to minimize smoke effects on the Wood River Valley, according to the release.

Feds botched wolf delisting

Could the removal of wolves from the federal Endangered Species List have been any more of a debacle?

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Donald Molloy ordered the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to restore the predator's endangered status. The ruling was a response to a lawsuit by environmentalists.

It's been less than seven months since the feds stripped wolves of protection, which was extended in 1974. The decision transferred control over the animals to state game agencies in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

But after wolves were allowed to be shot on sight across most of Wyoming — and all three states began planning public hunts — Molloy in July issued an injunction against the killings.

On Tuesday, he went a step further. That means the public dispute over wolves in the Rockies will drag on.

The billings, Mont.-based jurist's order came at the request of federal biologists who acknowledged their failure to prove the animal had fully recovered from near-extinction last century.

The "quickest way" to shore up the government's case that wolves are recovered would be to revamp its proposal, then reissue its rule to downgrade wolves' status in early 2009, according to federal wolf coordinator Ed Bangs.

This whole process makes a mockery of the ESA — and the federal judicial process. Last summer, Molloy ruled that Idaho's and Montana's wolf-hunting rules were up to snuff, but he banned all hunting because he didn't like Wyoming's policy. Clearly, the Fish and Wildlife Service failed to do its homework before making one of the most important delisting decisions in the 35-year history of the Endangered Species Act.

The federal government has spent more than $27 million on wolf recovery efforts in the Northern Rockies. In the mid-1990s, 66 wolves from Canada were reintroduced to Yellowstone National Park and central Idaho. Their population has grown rapidly and has spread across an estimated 113,000 square miles.

Last month, biologists reported the first decrease in that population since the recovery began, from 1,545 animals in 2007 to 1,455 this year. But instances of wolves killing livestock remain common, and wildlife officials warn those will continue without hunting.

It's hard to see how the Idaho Department of Fish and Game and the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks could do any worse job of managing wolves in the Northern Rockies than the feds have. Sometime, somewhere, maybe another judge will give them a chance.

Obama behind voter-registration fraud

Systemic corruption of our election process continues, Barack Obama and his old friends at ACORN and Project Vote are leading the way. This radical revolution is taking place in your backyard. And as I've reported before, this voter-fraud racket is on your dime.

MICHELLE MALKIN

On Oct. 6, the two liberal groups announced the wrap-up of a 21-state voter registration drive targeting low-income people and minorities in battleground states including Ohio, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Florida, New Mexico and Wisconsin.

What's wrong with that? For starters, these two groups are militant partisan outfits purporting to engage in non-partisan civic activity. And their campaign comes amid an avalanche of fresh voter-fraud allegations involving ACORN in many of those same key states.

On Oct. 7, Nevada state officials raided ACORN's Las Vegas office after election authorities accused the group of submitting multiple voter registrations with fake and duplicate names.

ACORN, which receives 40 percent of its revenues from American taxpayers to pursue an aggressive welfare-state agenda, has already helped register over 1.27 million people nationwide. The rest of their funding comes from left-wing heavyweights like billionaire George Soros and the Democracy Alliance.

Project Vote, a 501(c)(3) organization, was founded by left-wing lawyer Sandy Newman to register voters in welfare offices and unemployment lines with the explicit goal of turning back the Reagan revolution.

The two groups are inextricably linked — and at their nexus is Barack Obama. In 1992, Newman hired Obama to lead Project Vote efforts in Illinois. Obama also trained ACORN members in Chicago. In turn, ACORN volunteers worked on his Illinois campaigns and ACORN's PAC endorsed his primary bid with full backing and muscle.

Despite his adamant denials of any association with the group, Obama's political DNA is encoded with the ACORN agenda. The Obama campaign's "Vote for Change" registration drive, running parallel to ACORN/Project Vote, is an all-out scramble to scrape up every last unregistered voter sympathetic to Obama's big-government vision.

In addition to the Las Vegas raid, fraud allegations keep piling up:

• Lake County, Ind., election officials this month rejected a large portion of the 5,000 registration forms ACORN turned in after conducting registration drives in the area all summer. Some canvassers had pulled names and addresses from telephone books and forged signatures. According to local reports, "large numbers of voter registration forms bore signatures all in the same apparent handwriting style" and "apparently the organization's canvassers broke rules to meet ACORN-set voter registration quotas to get paid." The fake registrants included dead people and underage kids.

• Last month, Milwaukee, Wis. officials discovered at least seven felons employed as voter registration workers for ACORN and another affiliated group. They also uncovered a raft of problematic voter registration cards. The state GOP accused ACORN of attempting to enroll dead, imprisoned or imaginary people to voter rolls.

• In Florida, in Orange County alone, ACORN workers turned in multiple copycat forms for six separate voters over the summer. According to the Miami Herald, "One individual had 21 duplicate applications."

Election officials had flagged ACORN's negligent practices several months ago, but it may be too late: In Orange, Broward and Miami-Dade counties, ACORN has signed up 135,000 new voters, nearly 60 percent of them registered as Democrats that constitute a fifth of all new voters in that region.

• In Ohio, large numbers of homeless people received free van and bus rides to register. Shelby Holliday, a reporter for Palatka.net, filmed ACORN shuttling prospects to the polls. She told me she spoke with one homeless woman who told her ACORN "told her who to vote for if she wanted a 'better life'" and told her not to worry about jury duty (one of the reasons this homeless woman didn't want to register) probably because the government probably wouldn't be able to track her down. She was registering with a temporary address.

Holliday interviewed another homeless man targeted by the registration drive who exulted that he was voting for Obama because "I want him to do his thing. You know, do his thing, thizzle."

"Thuz thizzle" is street slang for performing your trademark move. Obama and ACORN have practiced their thuz thizzle together for years: organizing an ever-expanding community of ineligible and marginal voters to expand the Democratic power base. Rules be damned.

Re-elect Twin Falls Sheriff Wayne Tousey Nov. 4

By Garry Trudeau

As citizens of Twin Falls County, we would like to list concerns we have about Twin Falls County sheriff's candidate Tom Carter.

What about his integrity, moral and honest credibility? Is he capable of managing the departments such as the range patrol, the jail, the civil, the patrol and traffic and the courts? What are his qualifications and education to adequately manage the sheriff's office? All we hear him do is criticize Wayne Tousey.

Just because he has been a police officer and a deputy, what training in those sections does he have to be a sheriff in our Twin Falls County and protect the citizens? What are the years of service, not just 20 years; what are the specific years and dates he actually was in law enforcement?

Since Tom does state that all the law enforcement agencies are supporting him, why has he not been hired by one of these agencies since being terminated from the Twin Falls Sheriff's office? From what we see, Tom Carter is not qualified to be in the lead law enforcement position in Twin Falls County.

We will continue to support and respect Sheriff Wayne Tousey for what he has done and continues to do for Twin Falls County. He has done an excellent job as sheriff and is a man of honesty, integrity and moral character. Wayne has been the sheriff for 16 years and served on numerous committees with the Idaho sheriffs, Western states sheriffs, national sheriffs associations and our community organizations.

Vote to re-elect Sheriff Wayne Tousey on Nov. 4.

Sheriff oversteps bounds in re-election campaign

What's OK for the sheriff is not OK for anyone else not on his side of the fence.

I ran twice for county commissioner while employed as a part-time deputy for Twin Falls County. The first time I ran six years ago, I went to the sheriff and asked what I could do that was in the regulations. His exact words: "You cannot campaign in uniform on duty or use any officers on duty or in uniform campaigning for you or in campaign commercials. You cannot run any campaign commercials of you in deputy campaign or use any equipment cars, etc., to promote you in the campaign. I am the only one, because I am sheriff, who can have a uniform on in a campaign ad." I felt those were fair and accepted the county regulations.

Wayne now says the rules are ambiguous and he has the sole right to change them to fit his campaign. According to county regulations, everything he did violates regulation and state campaign ethics laws. The county should not accept any payment for use of officers or equipment without a full investigation.

The sheriff has overstepped his authority by authorizing the use of uniformed officers, vehicles and equipment to promote his campaign. If he uses the ads on TV, he continues to violate the very simple, illegal use of employees on duty in uniform for his political gain and for no other reason. If it's illegal, you can't make it legal by paying for it.

The sheriff sets dual standards that go way beyond the rules, standards, ethics and fence didn't apply. Put a new sheriff in office Nov. 4.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hats off to Marty Jacobs for courage and decency

Marty Jacobs is a refreshing breath of fresh air in what has become a muddling political race for the sheriff of the county of Twin Falls. Marty Jacobs is an honest man of the highest integrity. He is an unselfish, hard-working family man that wants what is best for his family and his community. He has chosen not to participate in the negativity that is so blatantly characteristic of desperate people. He wants to be the next sheriff of Twin Falls County but not at the expense of what the other candidates are doing to each other and to their community. My hat is off to Marty for his courage and his decency.

I am in favor of honesty, integrity, fairness and hard work, which are traits that I see in Marty Jacobs. I am voting for Marty Jacobs for sheriff. He is the best choice for sheriff of Twin Falls County.

Build bridge over Filer Ave. to help prevent accidents

I am a Boy Scout concerned about all the children getting hit walking to school. Another child was hit just the other day over by the high school on Filer Avenue East.

I was wondering if a bridge could be built over Filer Avenue from Maurice Street to the high school to help prevent accidents. This way the children would be up above the drivers getting from one side of the street to the other.

Obama will cost poor and middle class their jobs

Obama and ignorant Americans scare me. They don't understand an economic cycle takes five to eight years to get positive or negative impact in our life.

President Reagan (1981-1989) and President Bush (1989-1993) cut taxes to let the economy grow. President Clinton inherited good economy from the past two presidents. Stock market rallied to 15.5 percent gain. President Clinton raised taxes and interest rate six different times during his last year.

Business people warned the banking committee of "the worst economic crash coming," but politicians had deaf ears. President Bush inherited President Clinton's negative economic impact. The stock market crashed.

President Clinton did not go after Osama Bin Laden when he bombed the American embassy in Africa. Terrorists trained globally for more than eight years and attacked us on Sept. 11.

Vice President Al Gore was an environmentalist. Democrats rejected to drill for oil. Now we have high oil-related inflation; food prices are high.

President Clinton's policy: no down payment for homebuyers used in Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and irresponsible home buyers who bought houses more than they could afford to pay and walked away because no down payment was invested; those are guilty for economic meltdown.

Sen. Mike Crapo and Rep. Bill Saliou voted "no" on the $700 billion bailout.

package without alternative solution presented were irresponsible. Citizens should not pay for do-nothing politicians.

Japan experienced banking system meltdown without politicians' interference, but Japanese government helped out — loaned as much money as needed. In five years the banks returned all money to the government.

People don't understand why tax cut grows economy. Business people can expand more to create jobs. While tax increase drives business to overseas where there are less tax and low labor expenses. The poor and the middle class lose jobs.

Obama's policy makes the poor and the middle-class lose jobs.

People and livestock are damaging watershed

The general opinion in the recent letter to the editor is wolves are bad, a non-native import, the general population is afraid of them, it is not safe to leave the urban area and the reasons to get rid of the wolf are endless. When people are afraid of something, the best thing to do is kill it. The truth of the matter is the wolf is a native species and the Europeans along with the cows and sheep are the non-native species. The latter species are the ones doing the most damage in the watersheds.

The greatest impact in the watersheds, public and private land, is the domestic livestock. The low wildlife populations are the result of overgrazing by livestock and the loss of wildlife habitat, but wildlife problems are being blamed on the wolf.

Usually when livestock leave the summer range, there is not enough forage grass left to feed a mouse from a hawk. There isn't much left for many of the wintering wildlife, since forage consumption is determined by the thinnest lip on the last cow.

The public should remember the lesson learned from the return of the wolf to Yellowstone National Park. The large wildlife species no longer remain along the wildlife bottoms for any length of time, therefore the fish and birds and the condition of the willows and other plant species has greatly improved. In other words the whole riparian condition, wildlife and fish habitat has greatly improved, because of the presence of wolves.

When domestic livestock are not managed, they just remain on the riparian areas for extended periods. The present conditions of most watersheds indicate that there is little-to-no livestock management that improves riparian areas.

In reality, the loss in wildlife populations is due mostly to the degradation of the watershed habitat by overgrazing and other soil and water-related impacts by non-native domestic livestock. The presence of the wolf, native species, brings back a missing part of the ecosystem environment.

Police interview policy reviewed by T.F. schools

By Ben Botton
Times-News writer

present. However, there are sometimes instances when students who aren't suspects are interviewed without parental permission, he said.

In those cases, it could be because of the need for expediency in the investigation or because of potential criminal actions involving parents, McAtee said.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said that now is a good time to look at the policy, noting that the district is currently completing a policy manual review. He said he can understand why police may need to interview a student without a parent present.

"There are those situations where it may involve criminal behavior on the part of the parents," he said, adding that the district and police work well together.

Dobbs wrote a letter on Tuesday to Calma asking that recommended changes be provided to him in writing. He wrote that he would take the information and the draft policy to the Twin Falls Police Chief Jim Mann and ask for it to be placed on the agenda of the next Twin Falls Police Community Council meeting.

The council has community members who give input to the police.

Calma said she doesn't want to pay attorney fees for what the district requested, adding that she has asked the district to retract the letter.

A Twin Falls School District resident wants the district to take a look at its policy concerning police interviews of children at schools.

Paula Calma addressed the Twin Falls School Board at its Monday meeting about the issue, saying there's "much room for improvement."

In response, school officials said they would take the comments under consideration and are always open to ideas.

"Notifying parents and gaining their consent on such matters would be an appropriate and beneficial action," Calma said. "When all parties are involved and respected, there is a greater chance of long term successful resolution."

She said that students should be interviewed with a parent or advocate present, with students informed of their rights.

Lisa Barimi-Garcia, an attorney who came with Calma, said that the policy doesn't include anything about informing students of their rights before the interview.

Roseanne Hardin, the school district's attorney, said the question of interview policy is also a law enforcement issue that the school district doesn't have absolute control over. She said it's important for school districts and police to have a good working relationship.

Staff Sgt. Dan McAtee, who wasn't at the meeting, said police officers will notify parents and read students their rights before interviews, adding that parents can be

Text of Twin Falls School District's current policy:

Student Interview and Interrogations

A police officer wishing to interview a student for law enforcement purposes shall obtain parental permission prior to the interview.

A school police officer who wishes to interview a student should:

1. First indicate to the student whether the student is a suspect.
2. Inform the student that he/she is free to leave at any time.
3. Indicate that the officer is only seeking information.
4. Ask the student whether the student wants his/her parent present.
5. If the student indicates that he/she does want his/her parent present, the officer shall attempt to contact them.
6. If the student is informed that he/she needs an attorney, that he/she is not free to leave at any time, or if the interview is conducted under circumstances indicating that the student is not free to leave, then a seizure has occurred and the police officer must have probable cause that the student has violated the law in order to proceed with the interview.
7. A school official, on the other hand, may interview students if the official has a reasonable belief that the school's need to maintain an appropriate environment for learning outweighs the student's right not to be interviewed.

Twin Falls cabinet maker thrives during difficult economy

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

Andrew DiPietro started a cabinet-making business at a time when housing starts are at an all-time low in south-central Idaho and an economic crisis seems to indicate that things will only get worse.

But the Southern Idaho Cabinet Company is charting its own path during these difficult times.

Since DiPietro started the business in May 2008, the cabinet company has adapted to changes in the economy and even learned to prosper — the business plans to open satellite offices in Idaho Falls and Boise.

DiPietro, a 25-year-old native of Twin Falls, attributes much of his company's success to being prepared.

"Besides working for eight and half years (with another cabinet builder), I also spent a year to do the research on starting my own business," he said. "I didn't want to start my business and then be grasping for things at the last minute."

DiPietro worked with Cooper Norman Business Brokers and Advisors, which helped him establish a business structure, financing and a growth plan.

While researching his business structure, he learned that his business needed to be flexible to market needs in order to be successful.

"There are a lot of guys in the business that don't like to work with different aspects like commercial, residential, manufactured and custom cabinet work," DiPietro said. "We do all of it — we can do residential installation one day, and commercial installation the next."

As the housing market in the region began to slow, he said it was apparent that his company could not rely solely on residential cabinet installation.

Besides installation, the company also custom manufactures three lines of cabinets — the Rock Creek, Trail Creek and Silver Creek.

His company's two full-time employees have a combined 30 years of experience, which allows the business to handle almost any type of job.

"I think one of the most important things you can do is back up your guys," DiPietro said. "My business is only as good as the job they do, so I want my guys to know that I'm here to help them do a good work."

Nuke plant developer seeks to move out of Pink Sheet stocks

AEHI will apply for license in late 2009

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Alternate Energy Holdings Inc., which seeks to build a 1,600-megawatt nuclear reactor in Elmore County, has applied to the Securities and Exchange Commission to be traded on the OTC Bulletin Board.

The listing change would allow the Eagle-based company to expand its stock offerings and provide more reassurances to stockholders that AEHI is a legitimate company, CEO Don Gillespie said Wednesday.

"It gives you sort of the driver's license. If you will in the public arena," he said.

The company is currently traded as a Pink Sheet security, a category for companies that may not meet requirements for a larger stock exchange. It ended Wednesday at 25 cents a share.

Idaho's own cheese

Idaho's own cheese:

Meredith Krapp, who is visiting her daughter from Tacoma, Wash. this week, asked why south-central Idaho doesn't have its 'own' cheese.

"Washington, Oregon and California have their own unique cheeses that you kind of look for in stores," she said. "But Idaho doesn't seem to have anything it can call its own — that's kind of strange with all the dairies around here."

Actually, the region does have a cheese it can call its 'own' —

Oil dips below $75 as OPEC cuts demand forecast

By Stevenson Jacobs
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Oil prices closed below $75 a barrel for the first time in nearly 14 months Wednesday after OPEC, fearing that a severe global economic slowdown is unavoidable, slashed its 2009 petroleum demand forecast.

Another bad day on Wall Street also pressured oil prices, which have tumbled a staggering 49 percent since soaring to an all-time high of $147.27 on July 11. The Dow Jones Industrial average plunged 733 points.

Jim Ritterbusch, president of energy consultancy Ritterbusch and Associates in Galena, Illinois, said oil traders using the stock market as a barometer for economic health were

"undoubtedly" pricing a recession into the market.

"It's just a question of severity," Ritterbusch said. "And given the downward movement in oil, it's beginning to look like a more severe recession than a lot of people had expected."

Light, sweet crude for November delivery fell $4.09, or 5.2 percent, to settle at $74.54 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. It was crude's lowest settlement price since Aug. 31, 2007. In London, November Brent crude fell $3.73 to settle at $70.80 a barrel on the ICE Futures exchange.

Snapping photos with a rugged outdoors camera

Drop the average digital camera on a rocky trail and it could be all over. But not so for Olympus' Stylus 1050 SW, a rough-and-tumble handheld that in my test took such a drop from five feet onto solid stone and still kept on clicking.

THE GEAR JUNKIE
Stephen Regenold

Available this month for $299.99, the Stylus 1050 SW is the latest iteration of Olympus' (www.olympusamerica.com) ruggedized camera. Made for outdoorsy types, the camera has the requisite functionality expected in a point-and-shoot plus the ability to grab 10.1 megapixels of resolution — enough pixels to print out poster-size photographs of your latest summit pose.

Beyond the drop test, in my test of the Stylus 1050 SW so far, I have swam to 10 feet underwater with the movie mode on and have shot outdoors in temperatures near freezing. A solid build has kept the camera safe and fully functioning despite much abuse.

The camera weighs about 6 ounces and measures 3.7 x 2.4 x 0.76 inches — a tiny square that slips in any pocket. A flip-open shutter guard protects the flash and optics and provides a quick way to turn the camera on and off.

A neat new feature is the Stylus 1050 SW's Tap Control, which lets you change settings via taps on the edge of the camera body. Based on an accelerometer sensor, the camera detects slight taps on its case to switch modes, change flash settings, and adjust shadow compensation.

Its photographic performance is on par with other point-and-shoots in this price range, which is good if

Borah Peak offers some serious ice climbing

By Jerry Fisher
The Post-Register

MACKAY — There was a telling moment when Matt Tenaglia and I had pushed our solo climbing beyond the comfort level.

We were ice climbing up the north face of Borah Peak — an imposing slanted wall about 2,000 feet high — and trying to move quickly. We had been warned that this climb could take all day and into the night. To move quickly, we opted to solo unroped as much as possible.

For the first three-fourths of the face we were lucky. The ice was what climbers call plastic — soft and pliable and very reassuring as our tools easily sunk in deep and grabbed. We were cruising up the 45 to 55 degree slopes. Every couple of hundred feet, we would stop and relax, mainly to let our screaming calf muscles recover.

We arrived at a point where the route jogs a bit to the left and heads up to a wide chimney of rock — the exit route to the summit. The ice looked like more of the same plastic, reassuring stuff. And it was good for about a hundred more feet. Then we hit hard ice. The ice took, about the size of hammers with wicked spikes on the end, started bouncing off the hard ice, crampons on our boots seemed to take an extra kick to get them to stick. Instead of one whack and move up, it was two or three or four swings to get the point to stick and feel confident that it would hold your weight. I was suddenly wishing Matt was above me lowering a rope down for me to tie into. But our rope was still hanging on my pack.

I carefully picked my way through the hard ice. My Head outside with family for star counting

Summer is gone, and with it long days ending in late sunsets. While that's a little sad for some, it's also an opportunity to spend some time stargazing with the family without having to stay up too late.

If you're not sure how to get started, there's an activity that requires no specialized knowledge of the sky. For two weeks starting next Monday, you can participate in a program designed to assess viewing conditions and encourage people to view the stars. It's called the Great World Wide Star Count. Very simply, you're asked to go outside after dark (around 8:30 p.m.), and see how many stars you can see in the constellation of Cygnus, the Swan.

SKYWATCH
Chris Anderson

The program's Web site (www.starcount.org) has detailed instructions, so even if you don't know what Cygnus looks like, you can easily find it. (That said, it contains the famous "Northern Cross" asterism and one of the brightest stars in the sky, Deneb.) It's nearly overhead at the end of evening twilight, so you should be able to see it even if you don't have an unobstructed horizon.

The Web site gives you a series of charts, each showing ing a different number of stars in the constellation, corresponding to the view you'll have depending on how much artificial light is interfering with your view of the stars. The time frame (Oct. 20-Nov. 3) was chosen to correspond with the dark of the moon. Obviously it's important to pick a clear night, so clouds don't skew your results.

This is a good family activity, both because it's something a wide variety of ages can participate in, but also because younger eyes are typically the sharpest: Ophthalmologists tell us that visual acuity begins to decline after our late teens, so here's a case where your 10-year-old might well have the edge on you in a heads-up competition.

Next week: The star with the oldest name.

Endurance race comes to Rock Creek on Oct. 25

Times-News

Motorcycle racers and other dirt bike enthusiasts who wish to "mix it up" will have the chance to show their skills in a timed endurance race on Oct. 25 at Rock Creek Race Track in Kimberly.

The race, sponsored by the Idaho Falls-based IMX Endurance Race Series, will include a 4- to 5-mile course strewn with logs, ditches and mud, said Bobbie Sandrock, who with her husband Denis owns Rock Creek Race Track. Racers will ride the facility's motorcycle track, then travel through pasture land where there'll be cows to avoid, as well as the other obstacles, she said.

Riders will compete — and be timed — on the single-track trail one at a time; whichever rider has the best time wins.

"Oh, it takes a good hour or so to go through the course," Bobbie Sandrock said. "The riders come back all soaked and muddy and with a big smile on their faces."

Sign up to 9 to 10 a.m. Children will race at 11 a.m. after a riders meeting that begins at 10. A $30 entry fee is required. Camping space will be available at the race track for $10 the Friday before the race.

This is the first year for Rock Creek to host the endurance race, which replaces the former "Hare and a Hound" event, Bobbie Sandrock said. The last endurance race of the series will be held Nov. 8 at Noisic Park in Idaho Falls.

For more information: Denis or Bobbie Sandrock at 423-4869; or Chaos Motorsports in Idaho Falls, 528-8030.

Steelhead harvest season open

For the Times-News

Now's a good time for anglers to harvest steelhead. Steelhead waters that are open include:

- Salmon River from its mouth upstream to the posted boundary 100 yards downstream from the Sawtooth Fish Hatchery weir, near the town of Stanley.
- Little Salmon River from its mouth upstream to the U.S. Highway 95 bridge near Smokey Boulder Road.
- Snake River from the Washington state line at the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers upstream to Hells Canyon Dam.
- Clearwater River mainstem and Middle Fork from its mouth upstream to Clear Creek.
- North Fork Clearwater

River from its mouth upstream to Dworshak Dam.

- South Fork Clearwater River from its mouth upstream to the confluence of American and Red Rivers.

Limit on the Clearwater is two fish per day, six in possession and 20 for the fall season. Elsewhere, the limit is three per day, nine in possession and 20 for the fall season. Anglers must stop fishing — even catch-and-release — when any of those limits are reached.

Steelhead anglers must have a valid Idaho fishing license and steelhead permit. They may use only barb-less hooks and may keep only hatchery steelhead marked with a clipped adipose fin. All other steelhead must be released unharmed immediately.

In the boundary waters between Idaho and Oregon or Washington, an angler with a valid 2008 Idaho fishing license and steelhead permit may fish where the Snake River forms that boundary but may not fish from the shoreline, including wading and may not fish in sloughs or tributaries on the Oregon or Washington side. An angler may have only the limit allowed by one license regardless of the number of licenses the angler holds.

Consult the 2008-09 fishing rules brochure for exceptions and restrictions. For more information: <http://fishandgame.idaho.gov>.

OUTDOOR BRIEFS

Shoot Sunday at the Jerome Gun Club

The Jerome Gun Club will hold a 100-target sporting clays shoot on Sunday. If you have never shot sporting clays at the Jerome Gun Club, your first 50 targets are free.

Cost is $20 for adults and $14 for juniors under age 18. There is a $3 charge for non-members. Sign up time is 9 a.m. and shooting begins at 10 a.m.

The club is located 11 miles north of the junction of Highway 93 and Interstate 84 at mile marker 64. The next scheduled shoot is Saturday, Nov. 15. For more information: Kenny at 733-6045.

T.F. man wins $1,000 in fish program

A Twin Falls man has won $1,000 for catching a jaw-tagged rainbow trout from the Snake River, calling a toll-free number and submitting information about his catch.

Frank Hernandez' name was drawn from more than 1,300 entries in Idaho's Power Fish program, which encourages anglers to submit information about the fish they catch in the mid-Snake River region.

The drawing was held Sept. 19. The next drawing will be in February.

"We appreciate all those who have submitted information for the drawing and we ask that they continue submitting this information," said Bert Reinert, a biologist with Idaho Power. "The who have called in since Sept. 19 will be entered in the February drawing."

To enter the drawing, anglers need to call 800-388-6211 and enter in Idaho's Power Fish program. The who have called in since Sept. 19 will be entered in the February drawing.

Idaho Power has this year planted about 80,000 catchable-sized rainbow trout at a number of mid-Snake River sites, including Cl Strike Reservoir. A limited number are fitted with the jaw tags, which help researchers evaluate the success of the company's trout stocking program.

Fewer bears wandering into Idaho's capital city

BOISE — Boise appears to be a little less wild this year.

Last fall, Idaho Fish and Game officials received about 20 reports of black bears in the Treasure Valley, along with reports of a large dead and mountain. Boise Workers ultimately had to relocate several bears, and a 450-pound bull calf was shot and killed by Boise police near a busy city road. But this year, there have been no reports of wayward wild animals wandering into the state's biggest city.

Idaho Fish and Game Southwest Region wildlife manager Jon Inchausti says he's been watching the calendar and wondering if the reports are going to start coming in.

So far, it doesn't seem like they will. Inchausti said he didn't see any reports until 2007 — when a low snowpack and limited rainfall led the region dry and reduced the amount of forage available in nearby hills.

There are a lot of fruits and berries up in the hills. That helps to keep the bears and other wild animals from wandering into urban regions.

Private pheasant hunt tickets still available

If you're in the mood to hunt pheasant, now's your chance.

Tickets are available for the Jerome Pheasant Hunt, a private hunt for a limited number of hunters.

About 1,800 pheasants will be planted on a private preserve through next week.

Hunt anytime from dawn to dusk, one day or multiple days. Each $50 ticket has a four-day limit; only a handful of tickets are left. Available at the Chamber of Commerce and the Jerome Recreation District.

Want to join a turkey shoot?

A turkey shoot fundraiser for the Community Youth Life Leans will be held Saturday, Nov. 1, beginning at noon, at the Burley Tri Club on West Main Road.

There will be turkey giveaways and much more. Cost is $5 per round. Lunch will be available.

Loveland, A-Basin open for ski season next week

KEYSTONE, Colo. — Two Colorado ski resorts will be opening for the season Wednesday.

Arapahoe Basin announced Monday that it would open with one lift running at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

On Tuesday, Loveland Ski Area said it would start the season Wednesday too — at 8 a.m.

The resorts have since agreed that both will open at 8:30 a.m. to share the title of being the first in the nation to open. A-Basin was the first to open the last two seasons.

Both resorts say they will have an 11th and 12th lifts reports

What's the answer to harvesting a deer that is diseased?

Question: "I harvested a deer last weekend. I began to cut and wrap the meat I noticed the deer had been previously injured. The site was infected and I'm afraid to eat the meat. Can I turn the deer over to fish and game and get another tag?"

Answer: The short answer is probably not. If the deer you harvested is sick from a disease that is a human health hazard, the Department of Idaho Fish and Game will allow the hunter to purchase a duplicate tag and continue hunting. It is not the department's intent to require sportsmen to consume potentially harmful meat.

If the meat has spoiled or contains damage as a result

ASK THE OFFICER

of being previously injured or hurt, you will not be allowed to take a second deer.

Hunters that harvest game animals and fail to properly care for the animal, resulting in spoiled meat, may be criminally liable for waste.

Many hunters misunderstand the department's role and responsibility in this situation. The department can only guarantee an opportunity to hunt. The wholesomeness of the animal harvested is determined by many factors, including the area where the animal was killed, the animal's diet, its age, the weather, the method harvested, the length of time the animal was wounded, and how it was cared for after it was recovered.

Any one of those items can impact the flavor, texture and wholesomeness of the meat. In some cases they can give the meat an off taste or make the meat inedible; however, that will not automatically mean the hunter is allowed to purchase a second tag.

Wild game animals are subject to many harsh and life-threatening situations in nature. Some result in damage to the muscle and meat. The meat from harvested wild animals cannot be guaranteed "good to eat" like USDA inspected grades of beef or pork.

If you feel the animal you harvested was diseased and poses a threat to human consumption, contact your nearest Fish and Game regional office for an inspection. If a diseased animal is identified and a duplicate is authorized, the entire animal, including its antlers and teeth, must be forfeited to the department.

Search for Massachusetts man missing in N. Idaho suspended

GRANGETTILLE (AP) — The Idaho County Sheriff's Office has suspended the search for a 62-year-old Massachusetts man who has been missing in rugged Idaho terrain since Sept. 19.

Ronald Gray, of Essex County, Mass., was on a hunting trip in the Nez Perce National Forest when he failed to meet his friends as expected at an outfitter's camp on Sept. 23. He was reported missing Sept. 28.

Gray is a retired Massachusetts state policeman and an experienced outdoorsman.

Idaho County Sheriff Larry Deenbrock called off the search because of poor weather and concern for the safety of the searchers. About 1,000 square miles of rugged terrain in the Selway area of the forest have been searched so far, according to the news release.

Steeling your thunder: A layman's guide to steel shot use

With the 2008-09 waterfowl seasons officially under way in both statewide hunting zones, I thought you might enjoy a brief rundown of the various non-toxic waterfowl loadings available today.

SHOOTING THE BULL
Rich Simpson

Many of you will recall that the Fed's mandated the use of non-toxic shot back in 1986 when biologists, waterfowl hunters and conservation groups became alarmed by the large numbers of waterfowl and shore birds dying annually after ingesting spent lead shot. Though these die offs occurred primarily in long-hunted eastern wetlands, the authorities decided to make the lead shot ban national policy for the hunting of migratory species (excluding doves).

To be honest, early steel shot loadings were a dismal failure. Not only were they more expensive than their lead counterparts but, more importantly, they were much less effective. Some hunters (my brother included) were so disappointed by their performance, they gave up duck and goose hunting altogether.

This diminished performance should have come as no surprise. The nature of steel (iron) shell deters its ballistic inferiority to lead. Steel is a less dense metal. In fact, steel pellets are 30 percent lighter than their lead counterparts. Initially, that sounds good because, after all, lighter means faster. And truly, steel shot does outpace its leadier brethren at the muzzle. But out where the birds quake and honk — generally about 40 yards — the lighter steel has shed more of its initial velocity and winds up in sorry second place in knock-down power. To compensate for this disparity, manufacturers recommended that we select steel shot two to three sizes larger than your traditional lead pellet choices. For example, if you traditionally hunt shot ducks with No. 4 lead, you would substitute with No. 2 steel. In place of large doses of No. 2 lead for geese, we learned to thumb BB, BBB, or T shot loads into the magazine.

But that is all ancient history. Today's non-toxic loadings are superior in every way and there are oodles of choices. Page 14 of the 2008 waterfowl regulations lists no fewer than 15 alternative loadings. Modern alchemists have conjured up such mystical combinations as multi-nit, tungsten-iron-copper-nickel, tungsten-polymer, and steel shot with coatings of nickel, zinc chromate, etc. Their efforts have endowed modern waterfowlers with non-toxic shot that matches, and in some cases, beats the performance of lead.

As effective as these modern loadings have proven themselves to be, many are also inordinately expensive. Remington, Federal, Kent, to name a few, charge as much as $25 for a box of 10 rounds of their premium exotic loadings.

Personally, being a mediocre shot at best and also being inordinately thrifty, I shrink at the thought of blasting even a few of those pricey beauties behind a speedy greenhead and into marsh mud.

For my hard-earned dollar, I buy 2 1/2 Winchester XPEET High Velocity Steel and Kent Cartridge Pasteel loads to feed my Remington 870 and Ithaca 37. They both pattern extremely well in my guns and can be had at local retailers for as little as $7.97 per box of 25. Great performance at a great price.

Pattern some of these in your favorite scattergun and I'll see you in the cattails. Good hunting!

you're looking for snapshots or images to post online, though only online if you're used to the crisp imagery produced from an SLR.

In my tests, I found the camera's auto focus undetectable for good outdoors photography. Several times the camera had trouble quickly focusing on the subject and often overexposed bright skies and backgrounds. Few photos taken in this mode were tack sharp.

But the camera is packed with modes to help the average user get a good photo. There's a macro mode for shooting underwater and one for snow, as examples. Advanced shooters can adjust white balance, ISO, focus settings, and other manual features.

In its automatic modes, the Stylus 1050 SW suffers from shutter lag, meaning there is a delay when you press the button. But you can overcome the lag by employing Olympus' Drive mode, which allows for a multiple-frames-per-second capture.

Another issue: Set to its highest resolution, the camera has a delay between each photo taken where you must wait a second before snapping another shot. This diminishes if you use a lower-resolution setting.

In the end, the Stylus 1050 SW can take nice photos, though you'll need to learn to operate and employ its many modes as per the setting you're in and the action scenario. It captures scenery and standard nature shots well and can handle action well with some mode manipulation.

I found it to be a nice camera to take along in the outdoors, as it's small and seemingly unbreakable. It's a solid camera always there and ready to document my adventure no matter the rocky, trail or misstep on a trail.

fill with stars. In addition, Jerome, Twin Falls and other distant towns were identifiable by their clustered illuminations.

But the show wasn't all visual. A bull elk punctuated the silence several thousand feet below with a unique whistle, putting forth a challenge to others. While I had spied a four-point making a fuss of his own earlier in the afternoon, this unseen fellow below me had his own special appeal.

The final push to Smoky Dome's summit requires no special climbing skills and tests only one's lung capacity. And the view from the top is unsurpassed. Since the peak is the most southern 10,000-foot mountain north of the Snake River, it offers a special perspective. Even with hazy air, spotting the isolated Albion, Fardidge and Owyhee mountains is easy. Spin to the north, however, and no fewer than eight ranges compose the horizon, including the Sawtooths and White Clouds.

Of special interest on my outing was a chance to view some of the East Lucker Fire. While some smoke was evident, most of it hung down in the Boise River's South Fork drainage due to the cold morning air. Having burned for well more than a month, the fire was being managed as a "wild land" fire for fuel reduction. With binoculars, I could see small burned patches, but nothing suggesting a hot, destructive fire.

But regardless of what may be viewed, the Soldier Mountains are a special place. And for those yearning to stand on top of a 10,000-footer with relatively easy access, Smoky Dome is an excellent choice.

Ice

heart began to pump harder and my breathing became more labored. The sequence always seems the same: hammer left, kick right, hammer right, kick left. As I rocked my weight onto my left foot the toe popped free and all my weight suddenly fell onto my hands. I yelped like a 10-year-old girl. The thought of sailing down the icy slope for more than a 1,000 feet bouncing and cartwheeling passed through my head. Carefully, sweating a bit more, I moved through the hard ice and up to a ledge where Matt was waiting.

"I would have felt better on a rope through that spot," I confessed.

"I was wishing you would have lowered me a rope through that spot, too," Matt said.

mountain, the north face can go dozens of months without an ascent.

The best time to do the climb is September. It works like this: All the winter snow melts and refreezes through the spring and summer and after the first cold snap — usually in September — the north face transforms into 800 to 1,000 feet of continuous ice. Any earlier in the summer and the climb would be a wallow in the snow. The angle is 40 to 60 degrees (fairly moderate), but still difficult enough to keep your attention. Some years most of the ice is hard and difficult the entire way and other years (as in my case) much of it is plastic in nature.

The hardest section of the climb is the top two pitches. At this point you are tired and things get spicy. The route exits the north face through a rock chimney or couloir about the width of a small bathroom and about 60 degrees steep. The chimney is filled with ice and is about two pitches (rope lengths) tall. Inside the chimney the ice is hard as a rock and probably rarely sees the sun.

There is one tough obstacle in the chimney that took a bit of nerve to overcome: A refrigerator-sized overhanging chokestone. Matt led above the chokestone while I belayed hanging from two ice screws. Above me, dinner-plate sized chunks of ice and fist-sized rocks sailed off the top of the chokestone and bounced down the chimney over my head as Matt smashed his way up the chimney. I was thankful for the protective chokestone until it was my turn to climb over it. Easy rock is a bit more intimidating in boots with crampons.

The last 40 feet of the exit chimney was devoid of ice. It was snow-covered dirt with cracked up rock ribs sticking through. At this point, your ice tools become nearly useless and get in the way more than help. I hung mine from my harness and grabbed loose rock with my gloved hands. There were a few moments of "WHOA" and "YIKES" that hold's pulling free" but within minutes, I reached the top and stepped into the sunshine of the west side of Borah. The climb was basically over. It was about 2 p.m.

We sat for several minutes and drank fluids and ate bars and snacks until we both felt better. A half-hour later we had scrambled up the last bit of easy rock ridge to the summit and found a half-dozen or so hikers in shirts and T-shirts wondering where we had come from and why we were in snow clothing, carrying ice tools and a rope.

After lounging around on the summit for another 20 minutes, the excitement of the north face gave way to the agony of hiking down the regular southwest ridge trail in block-hard mountaineering boots. After two hours of grinding down the mountain, my feet were screaming at me.

The hope of a cheeseburger kept us moving. We stopped at Burger Time in Mackay for a mushroom Swiss-cheese burger, fries and drink. Life is good.

QUESTION: Jim wrote "I heard that because of the new bankruptcy law that I can no longer file bankruptcy." True?

ANSWER: No Jim, not true. In general, the only people who cannot file a bankruptcy under the new law that could file a bankruptcy under the old law are those who have filed for personal bankruptcy under the old law. As far as the filing of chapter 7 bankruptcy under the old law, it extends to two years. Under the new law, those who cannot file under chapter 7, can use one month time less elapsed, may still be able to file a chapter 13 case where they report a portion of their debts through a year or year chapter 13 plan. The new law also incorporates a "mean test" when the debtor's household income is compared to the state median income for the same sized household. Because of this new test, some higher earning debtors may be prevented from filing a chapter 7 bankruptcy case, but in most instances, they can still file a chapter 13 case. The bankruptcy laws have changed and additional disclosures and documentation that were not made in the preparation of a case are now time consuming but the new requirements do not prevent debtors from seeking financial relief through bankruptcy. A consultation with an experienced bankruptcy attorney will quickly identify any potential issues in your case, including whether you might be required to file a chapter 13 bankruptcy case instead of a traditional chapter 7 case.

From that point, up to the summit ridge, we both were tired.

Ever since seeing a photo of some climbing colleagues on the north face of Borah, the climb has been on my list. A local pro climber, Dean Lords, said the climb was one of the best alpine outings in the West — a must do. Despite the hype, few people ever do it. Cameron, McClure vying for Senate seat

By Laurie Welch Times-News writer

Two candidates running for the Idaho State Senate District 26 seat, incumbent Dean L. Cameron, R-Blupert, and Democratic challenger Scott McClure, come from two separate corners of the geographic district.

Dean Cameron

Cameron, 47, is now the second most tenured member of the Senate. He is in the District of northern Darrington, R-Decla.

Cameron was appointed to replace Lynn Tomlinaga in 1991 when Tomlinaga took a job with the Idaho Water Users Association. Cameron said today one of his top concerns is the economy and state budget, which he oversees on the state Joint Finance Appropriations Committee that he co-chairs with Rep.

Musine Bell, R-Jerome.

"We've seen good times and we've seen tough times and we are currently going through one of those tough times. It is my judgment that what is needed is a conservative, steady hand," Cameron said. "Certainly Bell and I have provided that in the past. We've had to stand up against some of our friends and colleagues to curtail spending and keep a balanced budget and because of that we are better suited than we would have been otherwise."

Cameron said legislators have established reserve accounts that were hard-won and now those funds are available to protect public schools and other essential services that government provides. Along with major economic issues facing the state, Cameron said water issues present a dominant concern throughout the district.

"We certainly support the first-in-time, first-in-right constitutional provisions and have provided assistance in acquiring funds for mitigation to resolve some of those issues," he said.

Cameron also serves as a member of the Senate Resources and Environment Committee and believes that his position on that committee is valuable to the district's constituents, Cameron said. The overall cost of healthcare and the healthcare system in general is one of the top reasons he became involved in politics.

"I've worked very hard to be an advocate for consumers," Cameron said. Cameron said his goal is to protect the consumer, mitigate costs and reduce insurance premiums as well as ensure consumers have access to both insurance and health care. With a tougher economy in the 2009 session, Cameron said he believes it will be easier for lawmakers to turn down many requests for higher funding.

The tight budget also gives government a chance to review programs for more efficiency in providing services, Cameron said.

"In difficult times we need good, strong leadership and we need individuals who have been there and know how the process works, how to get things done and how to work with people," Cameron said. "I think I'm best suited to do this at this time."

Scott McClure

McClure, 61, grew up on a farm in Jerome and graduated from Jerome High School.

After completing his college education, McClure worked for U and I Sugar for four years and moved back to the Magic Valley to start a consulting engineering firm in Twin Falls, which does structural and mechanical engineering. He has served as president of the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers, chairman of the Consulting Engineers of Idaho as well as on the Idaho State Board of

Breast pain common — and often harmless

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your practical approach to treatment has been very attractive and helpful. Keep up the good work.

I've worked as a mammography technician since before it became a specialty, so I've had numerous opportunities to address issues and concerns. Recently, a reader wrote concerning pain radiating into the breast. This is a common complaint — so common that we no longer discuss it at conferences. One theory is that arthritis develops in the intercostal spaces, and the pain radiates into the breast.

Many women seem to take comfort in this possibility and enjoy the peace of mind the knowledge brings when other possibilities have been ruled out.

DEAR READER: Breast pain is common and affects as many as seven in 10 women at some point in their lives. Symptoms are most common in premenopausal rather than in postmenopausal women. Alone, pain rarely signifies breast cancer, but the fear is always first and foremost on a woman's mind.

Initial discomfort might be treated with a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory over-the-counter drug, 1,000-milligram capsules of evening primrose three times a day, 400 IU of vitamin E up to three times a day, or hot or cold compresses. Any discomfort or unusual symptoms should always be brought to the attention of a physician or gynecologist, who can perform an exam, schedule a mammogram, ultrasound or biopsy and rule out abnormalities. While not to be taken lightly, the fact that the discomfort could be arthritis is extremely reassuring to most women.

Keep up the good work, and thank you for your articulate letter and the information it contained.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 envelope and $2 to: Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 43-year-old male who has suffered from heartburn or acid reflux for years. Each day, I would require multiple doses of over-the-counter heartburn relief medicines. I also did two courses of Proloac OTC.

I changed my diet to avoid foods containing high acids to no avail. I was on a regular regimen of prescription medications that made me unhappy, so I explored another therapy for this ailment. A friend told me about Professional Engineers. He was a member of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency, but was excused from the position because he did not meet resident guidelines. He is currently chairman of the Magic Valley Chapter of the Ag Appraisers and Farm Managers group in Twin Falls.

"Our parents left us an estate in pretty good shape," McClure said. "When I look at some of the things going on now, I believe that I have the experience and qualifications to do a good job for the people of Jerome and Minidoka counties."

McClure said the state would benefit from a more balanced state government with both an effective Democratic and Republican party.

"You just become complacent if you don't have an exciting opposition there to ask questions and make people accountable," McClure said.

His goals include creating a reasonable approach to the allocation of the Snake River Aquifer, investing in the state's road infrastructure, control of health insurance premiums and investment in viable energy sources for the future. McClure said the legislature has basically turned all of the hard work issues over to the courts and he thinks that puts the state's precious resource in jeopardy.

The aquifer must be looked at as a comprehensive system, he said.

"The state Legislature needs to act," McClure said. McClure said it is more cost efficient to maintain the state's roadways than rebuild them later and allocating no money towards that important infrastructure is irresponsible government. On the issue of health insurance, McClure said Idaho has the second-largest growth in health insurance premiums in the nation.

"It is putting a tremendous strain on the businesses and individuals in this state because that is part of the package that I have to pay to get good employees to come to work for me," McClure said.

McClure said there is something structurally wrong with the way the state's policies are being administered and government must take a look at who they allow to administer or force insurance in the state.

McClure said the best opportunity available right now to address the state's energy needs is through conservation as well as other renewable resources like wind, biogas, anaerobic digesters and geothermal energy.

apple cider vinegar, so I tried 3 tablespoons in a 6-ounce glass of water three times a day for five days. I dealt with the nasty taste of the vinegar and had some initial heartburn/discomfort, but I didn't take any OTC meds. I've been heartburn-free for over a month and have not taken an acid reducer since I began this therapy. The total cost has been about $2 for the vinegar.

Please pass this remedy along to your readers and patients.

OBITUARY

Bob, "Papa Bob," age 55 of Twin Falls, passed away Monday, Oct. 13, 2008, near his country home.

He was born Feb. 10, 1953, in Murray, Utah, to Dave and Rita Hamilton. He lived his first 12 years in Biverton, Utah, before moving to Twin Falls, where he remained the rest of his days. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1971 and married his high school sweetheart, Glenn Ward, on July 9, 1972. Together they have four wonderful children. Bob's life revolved around his family, his two businesses and his love for God's great outdoors. Through his life of service, he coached numerous baseball and softball teams, helped dozens of young men receive their Eagle Scout awards and took opportunities to help anyone and everyone in need.

"Making Memories" was his passion, and he spent most of his time finding opportunities to do the things he loved. His hobbies included riding motorcycles, hunting, spending time with family and friends, and looking for ways to make people laugh. He had the ability to touch people's hearts and was fueled by the reaction he would receive from serving others. Bob cherished the time he was able to spend with his grandchildren and was in the process of building them a huge playhouse to show that love for them.

Bob is survived by his children, Kipp (Lance Williams) Hamilton of San Francisco, Calif., Alice (Matt) Carter, Chloe, Mason and Josie Keaz of Rio Rancho, N.M., Travis (Rebekah) Spencer, Drew, and Bria Hamilton of Flagstaff, Ariz., and Margie (Kris) Riley and Madelyn Scott of Twin Falls; and their mother, G'Lenn Hamilton. Bob is also survived by his father, David Hamilton; his mother, Rita Robbins; and his siblings, Tom Hamilton, RaeAnna Christensen, Kent Hamilton, Kim Hamilton, Flores, and Scott Hamilton; and a fiancé, Ronda Painter.

The funeral will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, at the Twin Falls LDS Snake Center, 421 Maurice St. N., with Bishop Victor Smith conducting. Viewing for friends and family will be from 4 to 8 p.m. Friday, Oct.

17, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" and 9 to 9:45 a.m. Saturday prior to the service at the church. The burial will follow the service at the Sunset Memorial Cemetery. Any monetary donations and contributions can be deposited to Wells Fargo Bank in the Bob Hamilton Memorial Fund. Please join the family in celebrating Bob's life by signing the online guest book at www.McM.cm.

Helen E. Payne

BURLEY — Helen E. Payne, 87, of Burley, went home to be with her Lord on Wednesday, Oct. 15, 2008.

Helen was born Sept. 20, 1921, in Burley, to Claude and Ella Zabeith Miller. She attended schools in Burley, graduating from Burley High School in 1939. When she was a senior in high school, she moved from her parents' farm to town so that she could work. She was employed at the ice cream store called Lundberg's in Burley and Rupert. It was there that she met the love of her life, Phil. They were married Oct. 30, 1941. They had three children, Lynn, Tom and Susan.

Mom was a full-time homemaker. She never was one to sit. She always had a dust cloth in her hand or was found picking up and putting something away. When Mom would do housework, she was the full-time bookkeeper for the corporation. Even though she was the full-time bookkeeper, she succeeded in fulfilling her duties as a wife and a mom. She loved to fly around the country with Dad whenever he had a flight out of seat in the airplane. Together they made lots of memories and friends on the travels.

Mom loved to play pinchhite. She was a charter member of the "Shuffling Eight" card club, she was a great cook. Dad always begged about how good she could cook and the rest of us were in full agreement. She loved to have the family or friends over and make her famous tacos. Whenever any of the kids would come home, the first thing that she ever wanted to do was feed them. She was loved by all. Whenever there was a need, she would drop whatever she was doing to help. She was always found running her grandkids to school or picking them up or helping them with projects.

She loved the mountains. She loved to go camping with her family. Mom's greatest joy in life was having her kids and her grandkids around her. She loved each and every one of them very much. She was a member of the Ebenezer Congregational Church in Paul. She loved her church family that she had there. She made many life long friends there.

Helen is survived by her son, Lynn (Tye) of Victor, Mont., and Tom (Trey) of Twin Falls; and her daughter, Susan Edwards of Burley; five grandchildren, Shannon (Dave) Hartman, Gabrielle (John) Vaughn, Phil Payne, Jon (John) and Tom (Trey) of (Sylvia) Payne; and 10 great-grandchildren. Alex and Spencer Payne, Lukas and Sophia Vaughn, Megan, Caleb, Jacob and Kayden Hartman, and Dylan and Iris Moon. Helen is also survived by her husband, Phil; her parents; one brother, Willis Miller; and two sisters, Wilma Thomas and Ruth Walker.

A celebration of her life will be held 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, at the Ebenezer Congregational Church in Paul. Arrangements are under the direction of Hansen-Payne Mortuary in Burley.

John Oscar Stimpson

SHOSHONE — John Oscar Stimpson passed away Monday, Oct. 13, 2008, as a result of the progressive consequences of Parkinson's disease.

Oscar, as he was known, was born July 24, 1929, in Riverdale, Utah, to William Francis Stimpson and Bertha Bybee Stimpson. He was the youngest of three sons and is predeceased by older brother, Verol Stimpson; and Don Francis Stimpson; parents; three grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

He attended school in Riverdale, Utah, and in Twin Falls, Dietrich and Shoshone, graduating from high school in Shoshone. He also attended the University of Idaho in Moscow.

Oscar married Gertrude (Trudy) Hubert in the Salt Lake Temple on Jan. 24, 1951. Five days before he left to serve in the U.S. Army during the Korean War. Trudy later joined him and was with him during most of his service on bases in South Carolina, Kentucky, Indiana and Wisconsin. They had three children, Lynn (Marcia) Stimpson of Dietrich, Brian (Claudia) Stimpson of Loveland, Colo., Cindy (Gordon) Lawlor of Syracuse, Utah, Viki (Phil) Balston of Dallas, Texas, Lauri (Scott) Cook of South Jordan, Utah, Judy (Grant) Hulse of Poway, California, William (Catherine) Stimpson of Farmington, Utah, Emily (Stephen) Hansen of Aberdeen, Wash., and Heidi (Scott) Stringham of Layton, Utah. They have 46 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren.

Oscar was happiest when surrounded by his family. He enjoyed holidays and many activities with them, including snow skiing, water skiing, dancing, horses and bowling, as well as teaching children and grandchildren his knowledge and skill in gymnastics. He was an exemplary farmer who believed in managing the land under his stewardship in a neat, orderly and responsible manner, always giving great attention to detail. He implemented soil conservation practices and was an innovator in many ways. He served in many callings in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, including clerk, stake missionary, bishop's counselor, twice as Bishop (in Shoshone and Dietrich) and stake high counselor.

He served his community as a board member of the cemetery and convalescent center. He also served on the board for Ward's Cheese and as a consultant regarding crop input for First Security Bank. He taught county extension classes on forge crops for University of Idaho and served on the board for the local housing authority. Oscar truly loved everyone and regarded everyone as his friends. His life was an example of love for his fellowmen, service to God and fulfillment of his responsibility to family, community and church, as well as an example of bearing patiently one's trials and enduring to the end. His legacy will live on in the hearts of his family and cherished friends for generations to come.

A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 17, at the Syracuse Stake Center, 1350 S. 1800 W. in Syracuse, Utah. Friends and family may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 16, at Lindquist's Layton Mortuary, 1867 N. Fairfield Road, and from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Friday at the church. A second funeral service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, at the Shoshone LDS Church, 507 N. Greenwood St. in Shoshone. Friends and family may call from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the church. Interment will be in the Shoshone Cemetery.

The family would like to give a special thanks to all the wonderful people at Legacy Hospice. In lieu of flowers, donations may be given to the Church Missionary Fund. Condolences may be emailed to the family at www.lindquistmortuary.com.

Marguerite Stevens Merritt

WENDELL — Marguerite Stevens Merritt, 97, of Wendell, died Monday, Oct. 13, 2008, at the Mountain View Care Center in Kimberly.

Marguerite was born Sept. 22, 1911, in Wendell, to Arnold and Rachael Pearson Stevens. She was raised and educated in the Jerome. Marguerite was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served in many capacities in the church over the years. She is survived by her sons, Larry, Cliff and Rex Merritt; and her daughter, Elita McGrath. She is also survived by 18 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband; and two sons, Floyd and Marvin. The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Wendell. Burial will follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Visitation for family and friends will be from 4 to 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17, at Demaray's Gooding Chapel and from 1 to 2 p.m. Saturday at the church.

Eunice Elizabeth McClellan

HAGERMAN — Eunice Elizabeth McClellan returned to her Heavenly Father on Tuesday, Oct. 14, 2008, as a result of the progressive consequences of a stroke.

Eunice was born March 15, 1912, in Payette, the third of four daughters. She was married to Frederick Henry and Vida Grace (Rouse) Zimmerman. Eunice attended school in Buhl and Nampa and graduated from Nampa High School in 1930. It was in Nampa where she met and married Vern Harold McClellan on April 19, 1930. Their marriage was later solemnized in 1940 in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple.

Eunice and Vern spent many years working on jobs in the Treasure Valley area while raising their two children. Vern went to work with Eunice's father, who operated a finish carpentry business. Eunice and Vern worked with McClellan Brothers contracting the finish work on the Donnelly and McClellan school gymnasium floors. While in McClellan, Eunice worked as a waitress at the Shore Lodge. The carpentry business of Eunice and Vern back to Meridian and then to the Wood River Valley. The couple settled in Ketchum, where Eunice and Vern welcomed their third child in 1950. Eunice worked in the Sun Valley Gift Shop and then managed the Bessie Art Company souvenir shop in Ketchum. In 1954, she went to work in the post office in Sun Valley until her retirement in 1976.

After retirement, Eunice and Vern relocated to Hagerman, where their family members, they built and co-operated the Polish Palace Restaurant and a four-

Tim Hanks

IDAHO FALLS — Darriel Tim Hanks, 55, of Idaho Falls and formerly of Burley, died Saturday, Oct. 11, 2008, at the Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center.

He was born April 7, 1953, in Burley, to Melvin Darriel Hanks and Melvin Darriel Hanks and Claudia Biggs Hanks. He grew up in Burley and graduated in 1971 from Burley High School. He attended Ricks College and BYU. On April 30, 1977, he married Rhonda Benea Goff in Provo, Utah. Their marriage was later solemnized June 15, 1979, in the Washington D.C. LDS Temple. He worked in retail management in Chicago, Ill., for five years; Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for 24 years and in Idaho Falls the last two years.

He was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, where he served in several positions including the bishopric in the Fort Lauderdale Ward. He served a church mission from 1974 to 1976 in the Washington D.C. Mission. He enjoyed reading but he was especially an outdoorsman who enjoyed hunting, fishing, geology and just being in the outdoors enjoying this beautiful world. Tim was a loving, hard-working, dedicated husband, father and grandfather who greatly missed.

He is survived by his wife, Rhonda Benea Hanks of Idaho Falls; daughter, Carissa R. (David) Kearley of Orlando, Fla.; son, Jarrett Darrell Hanks of Idaho Falls; parents, Melvin Darriel and Claudia Hanks of Burley; sister, Susan (Ildob) Richardson of American Fork, Utah; niece and nephew, Chelsey and Cole Richardson of American Fork, Utah; and father and mother-in-law, Gerald and Patty Goff of Sumriss, Fla.

The funeral will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 18, at the Idaho Falls LDS 4th Ward Chapel, 355 Memorial Drive in Idaho Falls, with Bishop Kevin Hathaway officiating. The family will visit with friends from 6 to 8 p.m.

Man on trial in death of wife devoted to Mormons

BOSTON (AP) — Carla Souza was a dutiful member of the Mormon church, hosting church meetings at her house, taking care of children in the nursery school and going out with missionaries to spread the word about her faith.

Her devotion, prosecutors said, didn't sit well with her husband.

On May 21, 2006, a bloodied Jeremiah Bins walked into the Framingham police station and said he had just bludgeoned his wife and stepson with a hammer, authorities said. Bins allegedly said he was angry over the amount of time his wife spent with members of the church. Souza and her 11-year-old son, Ciancig, had been found an hour earlier by police who responded to her 911 call.

"Can you come to my house, please? I have a problem with my husband," Souza had said, according to court documents filed by prosecutors. Then the line went quiet, and police got only busy signals when they called back. Officers went to the home and found Souza, 37, and her son lying in blood on a bedroom floor.

Jury selection began Wednesday in Bins' murder trial. Prosecution statements are scheduled for Friday in Middlesex Superior Court in Woburn.

Bins' attorney, Earl Howard, has said Bins' confession was coerced, but a judge and his request to suppress his clients' statements to police. Howard declined to discuss the case Wednesday as the trial got underway.

FILER — Betty Jewell Lemmons, 82, of Filer, went home to be with Jesus on Tuesday, Oct. 14, 2008, at 9:30 a.m. at her home.

She was born Aug. 31, 1926, in Golden City, Mo., to Willie Albert Stout and Pearl May Hall-Devill. In 1933, the family moved to Idaho from Joplin, Mo. She attended school in Filer. Betty married Clifford L. Lemmons on Dec. 11, 1941; to this union, they had three children, Connie, Wilbur and Clifford. She was a waitress at the Green Lantern Café and worked at Green Giant seasonally. Betty loved to travel (she would have her bags packed in no time), crochet, embroidery, baseball, NASCAR races, dollar store shopping, church functions at Calvary Assembly of God of Buhl where she was a member, and she cherished her flower gardens. But most of all, she loved her husband and family.

Betty Jewell Lemmons

Betty was survived by her husband, Clifford of Filer; daughter, Connie (Joel) Butler of Filer; sons, Wilbur (Robin) Lemmons of Filer and Clifford (Kathy) Lemmons of Kennewick, Wash.; brother, Bill Stout of Boise; sisters, Peggy Kessler of Sparks, Nev., and Sarah Martin of Tampa; nine grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. She was predeceased in death by her parents, Willie and Pearl; sisters, Heba Potter and Wilma Craft; brother, Jack Lemmons; and two grandsons, Andrew Lemmons and Shane Lemmons.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Oct. 20, at Calvary Assembly of God in Buhl, with visitation from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 19, at Parkes Music Valley Funeral Home, 2561 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. Condolences may be sent to the family at www.mtg-localvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Wendell blanks Bliss for first-ever HDSC boys crown

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Forgive Victor Gonzalez for celebrating like he'd never scored a goal before. Forgive Wendell for celebrating like it had never won a boys soccer district championship before.

Before Wednesday, neither had actually occurred. Gonzalez didn't score the winner, but his second-chance goal from a corner kick proved the lethal blow as Wendell seized his first-ever boys 11th Desert Soccer Conference championship with a 2-0 home win over Bliss. After his header was cleared off the line, Gonzalez made no mistake with his second effort, a right-footed toe-poke that fluttered just inside the left post. "I just saw an opening in the corner and put it there," the senior defender said of his first varsity goal. "It's my first goal, and it just means turned out to be the only one Wendell would need, and he was overcome with emotion after beating Bliss goalkeeper Javier Beltran to the ball and poking it past him. It was tangible in every vital clearance made by the Trojans' defense, which became the first rearguard to post a shutout against the Bears — who practically scored goals for fun during the regular season.

After the referee whistled for full time, Wendell head coach Jon Goss received the Gatorade shower from his players, and a cavalcade of Trojan fans stormed the pitch to celebrate with their champions.

Loss drops CSI to No. 12

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Most teams would consider a precipitous drop in the polls an alarming trend. Then again, the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team isn't like most teams. After the second straight weekend with a disappointing loss in Scenic West Athletic Conference play, CSI — ranked No. 2 in the NCAA Division I volleyball poll just two weeks ago — tumbled out of the top 10 for the first time all season, falling to No. 12 in the poll's latest release on Wednesday. But the Golden Eagles (25-5) are treating it as a means to get away from the pressure, expectations and figurative headhunting that all come with a lofty ranking. "I think this gives us all a chance to breathe, and just start over," said CSI head coach Heidi Cartisner. "We've gone on the road, and it's tough to play out there on the road, but we get (Nos. 5 Salt Lake and No. 11 North Idaho), the teams that recently beat CSI) at home and we're looking forward to it." For some of the Golden Eagles' players, the chance to become the hunted rather than the hunter is appealing. So too is the fact that the enormity of being ranked No. 2 in the nation is gone, at least for now.

"There was a lot of pressure and there was a huge target on our backs. Teams wanted to beat us more than we wanted to beat them," said sophomore middle hitter Alyssa Westbrook. "But now the target's on (SLCC and NIC), and we can relax. We can get back into the top 5), we just need to stop going through the media and realize that teams want to beat CSI." CSI, which hit the halfway point of the SWAC season with the North Idaho match last Saturday, faces what should be a light week. The Golden Eagles travel to conference bottom-dwellers Eastern Utah and Colorado Northwestern on Friday and Saturday, respectively.

Freshman Wins a starting role for BSU

By Dustin Lapray

BOISE — You don't normally associate defensive tackles with the term "sprinter." But with Billy Winn, that's what you get. The 6-foot-4, 283-pound redshirt freshman from Las Vegas, Nev., is one of the few Boise State tackles with that prototypical body. He's just plain big. But the high school sprinter's speed deceives. "It was just something I did," Winn said of his track days. "My coaches thought I had speed, so they put me out there in a speed suit, gave me the stick. They put me on one of the relay teams. I've always been that guy who always wanted to work on speed. I've always wanted to be fast." His personal velocity gives him an edge in the pass rush. His senior year at Las Vegas High School, he recorded 18 sacks, three forced fumbles

The games don't count toward any standings, records, or conference races. One day the opponent is an elite U-18 travel team, another day it's BYU. Both are teams that the College of Southern Idaho won't play when the games actually matter. What these games and this practice season accomplish, however, is perhaps more important than anything that can be instilled during the regular season. That's particularly important this season as the Golden Eagles aim to defend their Region 18 championship. It's during autumn that freshmen find the confidence to play at the collegiate level, that CSI head coach

Nick Baumert gets to get an idea of what his team will look like, and that the top players begin to separate themselves from the more run-of-the-mill athletes. "We scheduled the teams so that the girls could get their legs under them at this level, and they've been competitive," said Baumert, who front-loaded the fall slate with travel teams and stocked the middle and tail portions of the schedule with

NCAA teams like BYU, Boise State, Utah State, Utah Valley and Northwest Nazarene. "I think our pitchers have done a little better than we had expected at this stage. We've got some travel teams coming in this weekend to finish the schedule, so it'll be interesting to see how far we've progressed," he added. This weekend CSI plays host to Montana Tech., a school that will be sanctioned for softball starting in 2010, as well as two travel teams. It'll be the last chance to see what the Golden Eagles can do before the pressure really begins to pile on and

Bobcats, Spartans get wins over Pocatello

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Burley came roaring back after dropping Game 1 to earn a best-of-five victory against Pocatello Wednesday, 23-25, 25-15, 25-14, 25-18.

"We got off to a rocky start," said Kaseb Kerbs, who had five kills and two aces for the Bobcats. "We weren't into the game at the first, but we pulled through after that first game."

Both Kerbs and Burley

coach Tiffany Green suggested that Burley's slow start might have stemmed from the emotional senior night celebration.

"This was a win the kids definitely wanted to win, but we couldn't get a grip on our offense," Green said.

Molly Mills helped the Bobcats out of their offensive funk and finished with 23 kills. Setter Paige Anderson ran an efficient match with 40 assists.

"We've been working hard on our passes so that we can get better hits and I saw some different combos tonight that were really good," Green said.

"Their aggressiveness and intensity was better than it has been in the past."

Burley could have just as easily won Game 1, having led the entire way until the Indians tied it at 21-21. But by that the momentum had shifted.

The Bobcats rebounded from Game 1 to dominate the rest of the night. Carl Parish had nine kills and 11 digs and Teresa Waymont added five kills and three aces.

Another factor in Pocatello's Game 1 play was the Indians were already warmed up from playing Milwau in the earlier match. The Spartans swept the best-of-three, 25-15, 25-23.

Milwau freshman Chelsea Hopewell led the attack with five kills. Breonna Phillips tallied four kills and four blocks.

Defensively, Kendra Bailey had eight digs and Carrie Salvi had seven digs for the Spartans. Salvi also recorded four aces in the match.

Minico setter Haylie Worthington dished out 11 assists.

Gooding knocks out Buhl with controversial goal

Times-News

Danny Lopez successfully lobbed the Buhl goalkeeper in the 72nd minute, scoring the winning goal in hotly-disputed circumstances as Gooding eliminated the host Indians 3-2 on Wednesday.

Lopez's long-range effort was deemed to have crossed the line despite the goalkeeper's best attempts to keep the ball out. Buhl disputed the linesman's decision — the goalkeeper was ejected for his vehement protests — and his position to make the call. But Gooding's head coach Roger Johnson asserted that the linesman was in proper position and made the correct decision, adding that there was no doubt in his mind that it was a good goal.

tally was canceled out by Buhl's Bruno Laza. Lopez scored in the second half to give the Senators the lead again before Santiago Moreno equalized.

Buhl's season ends at 7-5-2, while Gooding (7-6-2) plays Bliss on Friday with a trip to the state tournament on the line.

"We've played every game like it's that way," Johnson said of what's on the line against Bliss. "This is a very competitive league and it could go any way on any day."

Rollins, Hamels lead Phillies into World Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jimmy Rollins got the Phillies rolling with a leadoff homer and they kept right on going. Next stop, the World Series.

Rollins homered in the first inning. Cole Hamels pitched his third game of the playoffs and Philadelphia beat the L.A. Dodgers 5-1 Wednesday night to win the NL championship Series 4-1 for its first pennant since 1993.

"These guys are going crazy right now," slugger Ryan Howard said. "I can only imagine how it is in Philadelphia."

The NL East champions — the losingest team in pro sports history — took advantage of three errors by shortstop Rafael Furcal in the fifth inning and shrugged off another home run by Manny Ramirez.

Now, the Phillies go for their second World Series title, beginning next Wednesday night in Tampa Bay or Boston. The Rays led the Red Sox 3-1 in the ALCS, which resumes Thursday night at Fenway Park.

Philadelphia Phillies closing pitcher Brad Lidge, right, celebrates with catcher Carlos Ruiz after the final out in Game 5 of the National League Championship Series Wednesday, in Los Angeles. The Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 to advance to the World Series.

"After hearing about the '93 team over and over and over again, we finally get a chance to make our mark," Rollins said. "This was an organization that I wanted to change. We were used to losing. I wanted to see what I could do."

Brad Lidge closed it out for the Phillies, who won their lone championship in 1980 by beating Kansas City in six games. They also reached the World Series in 1915, 1950, 1983 and 1993, which they lost to Toronto in six games on Joe Carter's ninth-inning homer off Mitch Williams.

Now they're headed back, carrying the hopes of a championship-starved city that hasn't had a title to celebrate since the 1980s.

Rays swap starters for Game 5

BOSTON (AP) — The Tampa Bay Rays are giving Scott Kazmir the chance to pitch them into the World Series.

The 24-year-old left-hander was moved up in the rotation so he could start in the potential AL pennant clincher against the Boston Red Sox on Thursday night at Fenway Park. The move keeps Kazmir on his regular rest and bumps scheduled starter James Shields to the #5 necessary Game 6 at home Saturday.

"I was very eager for this opportunity to get back out there and try to redeem myself from my last outing," said Kazmir, who allowed five runs in a 4-3 loss in Game 2. "I'm not really going to think about it too much, about 'This win right here will take us to the World Series.' I'm just going to go out there and have fun. Our faith is real loose. It's one kind of we don't even realize the situation that we're in right now," Kazmir will match up against Delvis Matuszaka, who went 15-3 in the regular season and beat the Rays in Game 1 of the AL championship series. The defending World Series champions have lost three in a row since then but it's the brink of elimination, but it's a position that has been in the game since 2004, including Matuszaka's victory in Game 7 of the ALCS against Cleveland last year.

been focused all year on the goal of winning districts ... this is a team that's really achieved that achievement."

For all of Wendell's reassurance at the back, it still wasn't until Gonzalez struck in the 54th minute that victory felt even remotely secure. After the goal, the Bears' shoulders began to slump and it was obvious the game was over.

"We knew we had broken their spirit, but we knew that they were still going to fight too," said Orozco.

Said Bliss coach Daniel Klupp: "It's hard to come back on a team that has fought defensively, especially when you have to get two goals. I don't think they gave up ... it's a game of momentum and two goals really slowed that down. But we told the kids to just turn around and flush (the game), and get ready for Friday."

Bliss plays Gooding for the conference's second and final berth into the Class 3A state tournament. Wendell, meanwhile, can sit back and watch the bracket fill out. The Trojans open up the tournament at next Thursday at Valluue High School.

that honor.

"The passing game, for me, is just something I have always excelled in," Winn said. "I rely on my speed."

Winn stepped into a starting role last week and will start again Friday against Hawaii (6 p.m., ESPN). He's played in all five of the ISU wins this season, churning out nine tackles, 1.5 sacks, a pass breakup and a forced fumble. The freshman got his start by default, when Sean Bingham and Joe Bozakovich both went down with injuries.

"I've kind of waited my turn, waiting to be called and when I was called I stepped up. I just stepped up, carried the flag, did what I had to do."

Winn missed the majority of fall camp due to a minor foot injury. He was out there working with the training staff, running on a volleyball court, working on calisthenics and hitting the weight room.

"It wasn't a season-end or anything, but it was nothing too serious," Winn said. "I was with those guys every day, two or three times a day, trying to get back as soon as I could."

The weight room ethic Winn displays began in high school, where he set a record at the Vegas Open, weightlifting competition with a power clean of 335 pounds.

"I always wanted to be that guy who worked harder than anyone else in the weight room, that's just my deal," Winn said.

Although Winn has the ideal size and speed for a tackle, he said the mental aspect outweighs the physical at his position.

"If you've got the attitude that you're not going to lose to the guy in front of you, that you know you can beat him every play, then that's going to help you a lot more than just showing up to a game, thinking of it as just another game," Winn said.

Although this pass-rush aficionado loves to get after the quarterback, he has no problem playing the grunt role in the run defense.

"If that linebacker is going to hit that hole and make that play, I'll take up two blocks any day," Winn said. "I'll take two blocks and those guys are free to make plays. It's going to balance out."

Winn oozes confidence, but he said he has also gained a newfound humility inside the Bronco football program.

"I think that I've matured, as a person," Winn said. "I'm not so quick to judge. Before I came to this program, I was one of those guys who had a big head. Being up here with these guys and these coaches and seeing how humble they are, it's kind of helped me mature a lot."

Oakley

all do. I think we're to the point where the kids can handle that."

The team often gathers at the Hornets Nest after games. Hornet recommended, taste bud approved, the food joint is located two blocks east of the school. Its menu includes pizza and sandwiches — everything from a basic ham and cheese to the more risky "fire in the hole" sub.

But when it comes to ice cream, according to several sources, the official flavor of the Oakley Hornets is raspberry Oreo.

"It's divine," said Wadsworth.

Vanilla ice cream with raspberry topping and crushed Oreo cookies, it may be had in sundae or milkshake form.

"I heard about it, and raspberry Oreo just didn't sound good. But then I tried it and it's probably my favorite now," Beckie said.

Oakley has found the monotony by playing Simon Says or holding field goal kicking competitions. This past Monday, Oakley's field was covered in snow, so the team ran 2.5 miles then watched "Inspirational" team-building videos on movie's theme, according to Jones: "Get in your happy place and come ready to play football."

"When we're happy and having fun out on the field, we're going to win," Wadsworth said.

The more they win, however, the more the Hornets find it tricky to keep their fans happy.

"A year ago, I think the enthusiasm level of the community was higher because it was something new, and this year it's an expectation," Jones said. "Winning isn't good enough. The community as a whole expects us to blow everybody out."

And they have. Of Oakley's 20 consecutive wins, 13 have ended on the 45-point mercy rule. Some Oakley fans like the lopsided victories. Others get upset that they paid to see four quarters of football and only got two.

"We've had parents get mad at us," said Colten Wadsworth. "We've had parents come up and tell us, 'Why don't you make the game go longer, we came to watch and you might as well make it a game.' Then some parents come and say 'Why didn't you 45 them sooner?' There's no pleasing them."

The secret to Oakley's success this season — besides the undeniable power of raspberry Oreo shakes — is found in its defense, which has allowed just four touchdowns in six games. Oakley has outscored opponents 31-26 this season. Not that any of it matters. Like the past 20 wins, it's in the past.

Philly fans, who always expect failure, can relax — at least for a week or two longer," Howard said. "I don't know what to say."

"Once a game is over, it's over," Beckie said. "We don't look back on last season or how many games we've won in a row. We just concentrate on our next opponent."

With three regular-season games remaining, the Hornets will sharpen their focus heading toward the state playoffs. They may start cutting back on the ice cream and movie Mondays, but that doesn't mean they'll stop having fun.

"You've gotta have fun. If you dread your practice, what the point? Football is supposed to be fun," Hunter Wadsworth said.

The winning streak dates back nearly two years, to Oct. 20, 2006. But the Hornets won't be truly happy unless the streak continues to 26 games — the number they'll need to claim another state title.

"Talent-wise, these kids are probably better than last year's," Jones said. "Whether they've got the heart to finish it is yet to be seen."

Buffalo tries to bounce back by taking on up and down Chargers

By Dave Goldberg Associated Press writer

The San Diego Chargers are the perfect team for this season because you never know what you'll get. Will it be the precision offense that put away New England last week or the team that stumbled in Miami the week before.

"It was a good win," quarterback Philip Rivers said after the 30-10 rout. "And then the dust settles and then we come in here and we're 3-3. That's still where we are. We've got a long way to go."

Long way literally and figuratively — to the East Coast to Buffalo, and then on to England.

This week, they could face Trent Edwards, knocked out early with a concussion in the Bills' last game, a 41-17 loss in Arizona that was their first defeat of the season. Buffalo was fortunate to have a bye, giving Edwards time to recover, although J.P. Losman is one of the league's few back-up QBs with significant starting experience.

This game is pick 'em, which is fitting because last week was full of upsets in a league where former nerds seem to hold for a few minutes. Pick 'em? No one can pick anything?

The Chargers, for example, could be 5-1. But they lost to the last play of their opener to Carolina, then got a bad call from referee Ed Hochuli in Denver, but still gave up two scoring passes to lose one on a fourth down, the other on a 2-point conversion.

And they could muster just 10 points in Miami despite an offense full of weapons, albeit banged-up ones, like the Dalatinian Tomlinson and Antonio Gates. There's a similarity with the Miami game: a 1 p.m. EDT start. That's 10 a.m. PDT, something West Coast teams don't seem to adjust to very well.

To complicate things even more for San Diego, it will go directly from Buffalo to London for the NFL's overseas showcase with New Orleans. In fact, Rivers conceded the Chargers already are worried about packing for the long stay.

"It's getting packed and getting prepared to go and all that," he said. "This is the level of preparation that can get you, so it's going to be key that we zero in."

Based on that ...

LDS missionaries, including BYU player, jumped, stabbed in Australia

SALT LAKE CITY — A BYU basketball player on a Mormon mission and another missionary were attacked and stabbed while returning to their apartment in a suburb of Sydney, Australia. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints said Wednesday that Chris Collinsworth, 19, of Mapleton, Utah, and David Ferguson, 21, of Great Falls, Mont., "suffered multiple non-life threatening stab wounds in an unprovoked attack ..."

when all of a sudden he just gets hit from the side," just slammed," his mother said. Chris Collinsworth said he fought back, but told his parents that several men jumped on top of him. He got stabbed at some point during the "dog pile," his mother said. Allisa Collinsworth said her son told her that Ferguson was cut and injured when he jumped in to get the attackers off his companion. Ferguson bled profusely and Collinsworth used a tie to make a tourniquet, his mother said.

BYU takes 16-game winning streak to TCU tonight

PORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — BYU knows all about the tendency for long winning streaks to end at TCU's Amon Carter Stadium. The Cougars even contributed to that reputation.

In their last visit to Fort Worth, the Cougars stopped TCU's 13-game streak, the longest in major college football at the time.

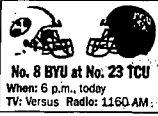

Now, the ninth-ranked Cougars (6-0, 2-0 Mountain West) come back Thursday night with a 16-game winning streak that's best in the nation.

so can BYU escape unscathed three years after Utah, the original BCS buster, came to TCU and watched an 18-game winning streak disappear?

"We expect the same result as two years ago," said BYU linebacker David Nixon, a Texas native.

BYU has to if it wants to keep Bowl Championship Series dreams alive. Not to mention stay atop the Mountain West Conference.

TCU (6-1, 3-0), its BCS hopes dashed by a loss at No. 4 Oklahoma last month, has looked forward to playing the Cougars since January, when a BYU logo was placed on a blocking dummy in the team weight room.

"It's always a rivalry when you have a group sit at the top and no one has been able to knock them off. That's what we're trying to get to," Frogs coach Gary Patterson said.

"We're growing up as a program. It's fun to play the Big 12 teams, but the bottom line to it is you've got to win your conference games."

BYU has won the last two Mountain West titles, and 18 consecutive conference games since that last trip to Fort Worth. Before that, TCU won the championship in its first MVC season.

"We know they are a tough team," said Cougars quarterback Max Hall, the nephew of former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White. "You go into their place, in a hostile environment, to battle, scratch and claw."

While both teams score a lot of points — BYU averages 39 a game, TCU 34 — this game features two of the nation's best defenses.

TCU has the nation's top-ranked defense, allowing 207 yards per game. The Frogs allow only 11.4 points a game, bettered by the Cougars' 10.2, second-best nationally.

"It's got to be our execution versus their athleticism," BYU coach Bronco Mendenhall said. "They have great recovery speed... When you play a team that out-matches you physically, your identity and execution has to counteract their athleticism, so our execution is the answer."

That's the Cougars' quick precision passing game directed by Hall, who has completed 152 of 215 passes (71 percent) for 20 touchdowns and four interceptions. Receiver Austin Collier has four consecutive 100-yard receiving games.

"The good thing about us is that we're not the same every week," Hall said. "A lot of our offense is the same but we find different ways to do it and different ways to mix it up. There is still a lot of stuff that we have that we can still use."

Hall has been sacked only twice this season, mainly because he gets rid of the ball so quickly. But TCU's 27 sacks are five more than any other team in the nation.

Watching Hall, Patterson said it's obvious Hall has confidence in what he's doing.

"He gets the ball out on time. I like to watch from the end zone view and you see a guy throw it and there's not a receiver in the screen and he's throwing right at (a) DB, and right at the last moment here comes a wide receiver into the screen," Patterson said. "They've always done a great job with it. They have great confidence in how they do things."

If BYU can win, the Mountain West will still have two undefeated teams. No. 14 Utah (7-0) hosts Colorado State on Saturday. The Cougars and Utes play in the regular season finale Nov. 22.

they start trying to defend that region title — with one more team, Western Nevada, joining the SWAC pack and aiming to pick CSI off in 2009.

Baumert said that most of the returning sophomores are beginning to take on the leadership roles vacated by the players who moved on from last year's national tournament squad.

One newcomer who could have a similar impact is shortstop Ashley Chappel, of Spanish Fork, Utah.

It's not easy to replace an all-American, as Chappel is trying to do by following in the footsteps of Rachel Evans, but Baumert said she's been impressive in the fall season.

"She's come in and done a really good job at shortstop," said Baumert. "She's even come in and asked (CSI assistant Debbie) Dodds how she can become an all-American. She's got that level of desire."

Softball championships aren't won or lost in the fall. But the groundwork laid in autumn can go a long way when spring rolls around.

Case No. CV-2008-749
AMARA NOTICE OF PETITION AND HEARING
 In the Matter of the Application of: MARVA MARLEEN PETERSEN PETITIONER v. MARVA MARLEEN BROADHEAD Respondent.
 For Change of Name.
 TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS:
 A Petition has been filed by Marva Marleen Petersen, a/k/a Marva Marleen Broadhead, who was born September 22, 1950, in Sidney, Montana, proposing a change of name to Marva Marlene Hart. The reason for the proposed change of name is that the Petitioner is no longer married to Richard Lee Broadhead. That Petitioner wishes to change her last name to Hart for the reason that she has always had a strong relationship with her grandparents whose last name is Hart and she wants to be known by that last name.

Said petition will be brought before this court for hearing at 10:00 a.m. in Twin Falls County, Idaho, on the 11th day of November, 2008, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock a.m., and objections may be filed with that notice. The court will accept sufficient reason why an Order Changing Name should not be made and entered in the matter of the Application of Marva Marleen Petersen, a/k/a Marva Marleen Broadhead.
WITNESS my hand and seal of the said District Court this 16th day of October, 2008.

MEDIUM #83

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1 through 9. That's all there is to it. There's no math involved. The grid has numbers, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. Find the answers for today's puzzle on page E-12.

SAMPLE GENERAL ELECTION BALLOT

TWIN FALLS COUNTY

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On November 18, 2008, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock A.M., that being on the first lobby of TitleFact, Inc., 163 Fourth Avenue North, Twin Falls, ID 83303, C Jon Nees, a member of the Idaho State Bar, as successor trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows: to-wit Lot 1, Block 10, CASTLEFORD TOWNSHIP, Twin Falls County, Idaho, according to the official plat thereof recorded in Book 2 of Plats, page 26, records of Twin Falls County, Idaho.
 Tax Parcel No. RFD05010A
 The Successor Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above-referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Idaho Code Section 60-113, the Successor Trustee has been informed that the address of 395 Winterset Street, Castleford, ID 83301 is sometimes shared in title with said real property. For more information regarding the location of said real property, please contact C Jon Nees at (509) 828-9000.
 Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred by the deed of trust executed by Clinton R. Jackson and Erin D. Jackson, husband and wife, as grantor, to TitleFact, Inc., as Trustee, for the benefit and security of CJS Mortgage, Inc., as Beneficiary, recorded on March 10, 2006, as Twin Falls County Recorder's No. 2006-005819, the beneficial interest in which was assigned to Ronald G. Schoenberger, a married man dealing in his sole and separate property, as to an undivided 67% interest, and Lincoln B. Fisher and Lori A. Bruchman Fisher, husband and wife, as to an undivided 33% interest, under an Assignment recorded under the name of Twin Falls County Recorder's No. 2006-007194.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(K)(1) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.
 The default for which the foreclosure to be made is the failure to pay when due, under the Deed of Trust and Note dated March 6, 2006, the monthly payments for principal and interest of $842.84 per month for the month of April, 2008, and all subsequent payments until the date of sale or reinstatement, with a monthly late charge of $86.28. Unrecorded late charges are $333.52, including the July late charge, and the principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $78,000.00, plus accrued interest at 13% per annum from May 1, 2008. All delinquent payments are now due, plus accumulated late charges, unpaid and accruing 2006 and 2007 real property taxes in the sums of $500.88 and $611.26, respectively, plus interest and penalty, trustee's fees, attorney's fees, costs, expenses, and advances made to protect the security associated with this foreclosure. The amount necessary to bring the loan current through the July 10, 2008 payment, would be $3,451.36 in principal and interest payments, $4.00 in escrow fees, $100.00 in CJS Escrow transfer fees, along with all costs and fees associated with this foreclosure. The beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy this obligation.
 DATED the 14th day of July, 2008.
