Risch visits health building, other projects at CSI

Not much was left out during Lt. Gov. Jim Risch's tour of the College of Southern Idaho on Thursday. He stopped by the college's wetlands, saw a new stoplight built along Falls Avenue and talked about ways to fund an extension of Cheney Drive on the north side of campus.

But it's CSI's future Health Sciences and Human Services building that was most on his mind as Risch, a candidate for Idaho's open U.S. Senate seat, wrapped up his tour.

"It's always good to visit my baby," he said of the $21 million building he called for as governor as part of a nursing initiative in 2006. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter supported the plan, and the Legislature voted to cover the cost in 2007.

Rising from the ground, the building is expected to open in January 2010 and provide 72,400 square feet for the college's health programs, freeing up space elsewhere for programs offered by Idaho's four-year universities, among other things.

Risch was present at the building's May 16 groundbreaking, and

U.S. Muslim voters are election year outcasts

Many praise Powell's denunciation of those trying to smear Obama as a Muslim

Untouchables. Politically radioactive. These are ways American Muslims describe their status in an election year when Barack Obama's opponents are spreading rumors that he is Muslim, when he is Christian, and linking him to terrorists.

So when Colin Powell, a Republican, condemned using Muslim as a smear — a tactic he said members of his own party allowed — there was an outpouring of gratitude and relief from American Muslims.

"That speech really came out of left field and really shocked us," said Wajahat Ali, 27, an attorney and playwright from Fremont, Calif. "The sense is that it's about time. He said something that needed to be said."

The retired general, who was President Bush's first secretary of state, made the comments on NBC's "Meet the Press," as he

Two-month-old fatal shooting still pending

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

Idaho State Police this week denied a Times-News public information request for audio, video and reports connected to a trooper-involved fatal shooting two months ago that killed a Burley man.

An investigation into the fatal shooting of 29-year-old Cody Hanks on Aug. 16 along U.S. Highway 10 near Kimberly is still pending, according to this week's denial letter from Idaho State Police. "This denial is made because the investigation is still pending or ongoing."

Authorities aren't releasing details of what happened, aside from early press releases issued after the shooting. It's unclear when the investigation will be completed.

Workaday magistrates critical to Idaho courts

The Associated Press

BOISE — Voters electing magistrates on Nov. 4 likely will have little knowledge of the people on the ballot.

The nonpartisan ballot simply asks whether an incumbent magistrate should "be retained in office."

No opponents are allowed. That's how the "Missouri Plan" works when it comes to electing magistrates in Idaho. The state has used the system since 1971.

Supporters of the method say it prevents the magistrate elections from becoming politicized.

"It enhances impartiality and the appearance of impartiality, while still affording the public accountability," for the Idaho Supreme Court Justice Linda Copple Trout told the Idaho Statesman. "But it takes out, almost exclusively, the fundraising and some of the other problems that you have with contested, even nonpartisan, elections."

Magistrates handle criminal misdemeanors, family law matters including divorces, estates and wills, infraction, like traffic offenses, juvenile matters and felony preliminary hearings.

Key to a warm heart? Study says warm her hands

By Donnie Collins
Los Angeles Times

Looking to improve your romantic odds? Get your date a cup of steaming coffee.

That's the implication of a new study from researchers who wanted to see if there was any connection between physical and emotional heat.

To their surprise, they found that people who held a cup of hot coffee for 10 to 25 seconds warmed up to a perfect stranger. Holding a cup of ice coffee had the opposite effect.

If you want to make a good impression, advised University of Colorado psychologist and study author Lawrence E. Williams, a cup of fresh coffee "may bias the situation in your favor."

The study, published Friday in the Journal of Science, is the latest to show how physical properties, such as distance or temperature can unconsciously influence emotional reactions. In a previous experiment, for example, people who were asked to plot temperature points on a graph expressed distant feelings about relatives afterward.

"Our mental processes are not separate and detached from the body," said John A. Bargh, a Yale University psychologist and co-author of the current study.

The study raises the potential for manipulation beyond matters of the heart, Williams said. It was not hard to envision marketers using warm cookies to make connections with customers — and prime them to buy.

By the same token, Bargh said, shoppers who want to resist pushy salespeople could improve their chances by carrying an icy can of soda in their pocket.

But when it comes to personal relationships, researchers said, a

Shooting

The letter was signed by an Idaho State Police special assistant who did not return a call Thursday for comment.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said he gave the case to Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower days after it happened. Bower will determine if there was any criminal wrongdoing in the shooting. Bower did not return a call Thursday.

Twin Falls County and Ada County prosecutors are jointly suing critical incident investigators involving law enforcement officers to eliminate potential biases, said Loebs.

But Loebs is still in the loop, he said. "They lack the information about it, I don't."

The trooper who shot Hanks to death, Michael A. Wendler, went back to work within weeks of the shooting, before the investigation was done.

The shooting occurred after Hanks' arrested. Hanks for suspected DUI and possession of a controlled substance.

Wendler got entangled by Hanks' pickup truck, fired his gun when Hanks wouldn't stop and killed him with one shot, according to an ISP press release after the incident.

Hanks' mother, Kristine Hanks, has said she thinks Wendler acted appropriately and feels sorry for him.

community relations director for St. Luke's Magic Valley. Risch discussed nursing issues and planned federal funding requests from the college, including the Cheney expansion.

In this year's U.S. Senate campaign, Risch has been a vocal opponent of earmarks and has promised to sponsor legislation prohibiting them.

Beck said Risch asked several questions about how campus changes will affect students, including whether the new spotlight improves pedestrian safety and the effects of a plan to take the whole campus off of city streets.

"It's always great to have the lieutenant governor, as well as a congressional candidate, come visit you," Beck said.

Health and safety initiatives weren't the only things that left an impression with Risch. He studied forestry at the University of Idaho, and complemented CSI on what it has been able to do with its 11 acres of wetlands north of campus.

"It's truly impressive," he said.

"troubled" that others did.

"The correct answer is, he is not a Muslim, he is a Christian. He's always been a Christian. But the really right answer is, what if he is? Is there something wrong with being a Muslim in this country? The answer's no, that's America," Powell said.

"Yet, I have heard senior members of my own party drop the suggestion. He's a Muslim and he might be associated (with) terrorists." This is not the way we should be doing it in America."

In this undated photo, Ekshaba Khan embraces the tombstone of her son, Spc. Kareem Rashad Sultan Khan, at Arlington National Cemetery in Maryland. Former U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell collected the photo on ABC's "Meet the Press," Sunday. The New Yorker

Powell said he felt especially strongly about the rumors because of a photo he saw in The New Yorker magazine of the mother of a Muslim soldier in Arlington Cemetery embracing her son's grave, which was marked with a Muslim crescent and star. The soldier, Kareem R. Khan of New Jersey, was 20 when he was killed in Iraq.

"We American Muslims have talked about our patriotism and the heroism of some American Muslims that we were blue in the face, and neither the media nor the people listen," said Seema Hussain — and circulated a photo of him wearing traditional Somali garb on a 2006 visit to Kenya.

Muslims have worked very hard to fight his war on terrorism — and circulated a photo of him wearing traditional Somali garb on a 2006 visit to Kenya.

Kari Ansari, a mother of three from Villa Park, Ill., filed the allegations upon her 10-year-old son's death.

"His opponents emphasized his middle name — Hussain — and circulated a photo of him wearing traditional Somali garb on a 2006 visit to Kenya.

Muslim clothes, they will never elect me because I'm a real Muslim," said Ansari, a founder of America's Muslim Family, a quarterly magazine. "That's heartbreaking for us as Muslim parents."

Obama has combated the claims in speeches and on a campaign Web site dedicated to debunking inaccuracies about him. But the belief persists.

A poll by the Pew Research Center for the People and the Press found 12 percent of voters believed the Illinois senator is Muslim. That poll was released Tuesday — coincidentally, the same day the head of a New Mexico Republican women's group called Obama a "Muslim socialist" and said "Muslims are our enemies." County and GOP officials condemned the statements.

Magistrates

In south-central Idaho only Twin Falls County Magistrate Judge Roger B. Harris, Jerome County Magistrate Thomas H. Borresen and Camas County Magistrate Jason Walker are up for election. There are no judges up for election in Cassia, Gooding, Lincoln, Minidoka or Blaine counties, according to the ballots and clerks.

"We're proud of all the people's court," said Camas County Magistrate Jerod Lee, who faces his first election after his 2006 appointment. "That's where a lot of people are introduced to the people's court."

The state has 87 magistrates who had 482,000 cases in 2007. No many voters know they come up for election.

"I get people saying, 'What are you on here for?'" said Ada County Magistrate

Christopher Bieter, who faces his third election to a four-year term. "I don't think people appreciate there is this election until they see the names on the ballot."

Just two incumbent magistrates in Idaho have been removed from office since 1990. Patrick Costello is one of them. He was defeated in Clearwater County in 1998 after seven years on the bench.

"Obviously, in my case I wasn't happy with how it turned out," said Costello, who has spent the last decade teaching at the University of Idaho College of Law.

"But that's not because it's bad system," he said. "I think it's the best system there is if you're going to elect judges. It's far preferable to having head-to-head contests and the politicization that comes with that, the influence of money and the tendency to demand that people say how they're going to rule as a judge. All of that's unwise."

Magistrates earn $107,043 a year. That's about $5,000 less than district judges, who hear felonies, larger civil matters and appeals from magistrate courts.

There are 42 district judges in Idaho who run every four years and may be opposed by others seeking the job.

"I just said I'd like to see district judges elected in the same way as magistrates."

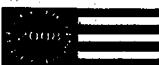

"I understand the public's frustration in saying, 'Well, here's this list of names. I've never been in court. I don't know these people. How do I know whether they ought to be retained in office?' That's a legitimate concern," she said.

Rep. Simpson defends bailout vote

But says new stimulus bill needs more work

ment will make back the money.

He said he has concerns about how the money is used — $250 billion was just injected into banks — but there is oversight and taxpayer protection.

"They haven't yet seen between the relationship of what happens on Main Street and what happens on the side street and everywhere else." It's gonna hit and it's gonna be pretty hard."

Still, he said he doesn't understand why Congress opted for non-voting shares when investing in the banks.

"In the 1930s, when they did that, they bought voting shares. The argument you hear from Treasury is 'we don't want to control the banks, we don't want to get in there and make the management decisions.'" he said. "Excuse me, we're putting how much money into these banks? I want a vote."

Simpson voted against the stimulus bill earlier this year, and he's undecided about the second one being discussed. He wants a bill that improves infrastructure — a move that he said would create jobs, improve transportation systems and provide a long-term spike to the economy.

"They haven't yet seen between the relationship of what happens on Main Street and what happens on the side street and everywhere else."

— U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho

"If you look back at what that $600 check did, it had a one-month bump in the economy," he said. "That's not an economic stimulus to me. To me you do something long-term."

Simpson, who sits on the appropriations committee, predicted more regulation but cautioned against too much.

"My fear is that, based on Congress's history — or government in general — we will over-regulate. I've seen it happen with campaign finance reform. I saw it happen when Enron went down," he said.

Elsewhere, Simpson is confident the federal sugar subsidy program will remain intact, despite the opposition from both presidential candidates. He predicted no changes for at least five years until a new farm bill is written because there's enough Congressional support.

Simpson has pushed for more public land preservation, although his biggest effort — the Boulder-White Clouds bill — remains stalled. He said the Democratic environmentalist base is split on it.

"I think we've addressed every concern that the Democratic staff had," he said. "Now it's a matter of whether they want to do it."

He also said the Idaho National Laboratory operating under a Barack Obama administration "scared" him because Obama says he supports nuclear power but hasn't nuclear opening Yucca Mountain. He also wants the country to reverse its ban on reprocessing nuclear fuel.

Between campaign stops and trying to help fix the financial crisis, U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson managed to receive a somewhat surprising endorsement — Esquire, the New York-based national magazine, ranked him in the top 10 members of Congress.

Simpson

"It's got Halle Berry on the cover. I might send it to her to autograph," he joked Wednesday in a meeting with the Times-News editorial board.

Simpson, 58, is seeking his sixth term in the House, and faces Democratic challenger Deborah Holmes in the Nov. 4 general election for the House of Representatives. Republican Gregory Nemitz, who lost to Simpson in the primary, is running as a write-in candidate. Simpson traveled to Washington on Monday for hearings regarding the financial crisis.

He defended his vote on the $700 billion federal rescue plan, a package some have criticized as covering for mistakes made by investors and banks. But Simpson said it will soften the downturn in the economy and the govern-

Different leadership needed in T.F. sheriff's office

Four times this newspaper has backed Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tousey. In 1996 we praised his "professional ability, leadership talent and tact."

But we can't endorse the 57-year-old independent this time. The sheriff's office is now a divided workplace where anyone who disagrees with Tousey and his managers—or dares run against the sheriff—risks professional suicide.

Top-heavy staffing, blown budgets, spending on an excessive fleet of vehicles, and other management questions are significant concerns, but for us the deal-breaker for Tousey was his use of on-duty sheriff's office employees and a county vehicle to tape two television commercials for his re-election.

The sheriff reimbursed the county for their time, but that's not the point. Asking subordinates to step away from their official duties—which happen to include protecting citizens from crime—will engage in partisan activities is inexcusable.

Not only does it demonstrate that Tousey has a tin ear about how his actions will be perceived by the public, but it shows contempt for the taxpayers.

None of his three challengers is an ideal candidate. Independent Martin Jacobs of Kimberly, 52, was a marine deputy for four years, and lacks administrative experience in law enforcement. Another independent, Felix Garcia of Twin Falls, was decertified by the Peace Officers Standards and Training Academy after he resigned from the Twin Falls Police Department. Garcia, now 46, says he lied to their Chief of Police Lee DeVore about a personal matter.

Tom Carter, a 58-year-old Twin Falls Republican who was dismissed by Tousey after Carter announced he planned to run against the sheriff, may or may not have a problematic work history. We don't know for sure because he won't sign a waiver for the sheriff's office and the Twin Falls Police Department to release his personnel records.

But on the basis of what we do know, Carter seems the best choice.

Carter worked for the sheriff's office for 15 years and says he's not interested in retaliating against sheriff's employees who back Tousey. He also vows that anyone who challenges him for the job in the future won't be dismissed.

We'll see. But if Carter is as good as his word, the climate in the sheriff's office will improve. He also has solid ideas to improve Twin Falls County law enforcement:

- Expanding the department's K-9 unit, using rescue dogs from the Twin Falls animal shelter and training them. That, Carter says, could be a cost-effective force multiplier for the sheriff's office in drug cases.
Putting deputies in public schools, if the schools request it.
Improving relations with city police, up to and including joint operations.
Upgrading the sheriff's office's response to calls. This has been the nastiest political campaign in the Magic Valley in recent memory, and the next sheriff will have a lot of bridge-building to do.

Time for young voters to get mad

To: Voters under 35 Subject: Your future Recommendation: Get angry

WASHINGTON—You're being played for chumps. Barack Obama and John McCain want your votes, but they're ignoring your interests. You face a heavily mortgaged future. You'll pay Social Security and Medicare for aging baby boomers. The needed federal tax increase might total 50 percent over the next 25 years. Plus there's the expense of decaying infrastructure—roads, bridges, water pipes. Pension and health costs for state and local workers have doubtlessly been underestimated. All this will squeeze other crucial government services: education, defense, police.

ROBERT SAMUELSON

Guess what? You're not hearing much of this in the campaign. One reason, frankly, is that you don't seem to care. Obama's your favorite candidate (by a 64 percent to 33 percent margin among 18- to 29-year-olds, according to the latest ABC News/Washington Post poll). But he's outscored his position on these issues to the AARP, the 40-million-member group for Americans 50 and over.

Don't believe me? Go to the ABC site, www.aarp.org. On Sept. 6, both Obama and McCain talked to an AARP convention celebrating the group's 50th birthday. (Go to the Obama video clip on "Voter Guide"). You'll see some wily, slick pandering. There are three basic ways of reducing the costs of Social Security and Medicare: increase eligibility age, trim benefits, and require recipients to pay more for their Medicare benefits (higher premiums, co-payments or deductibles). In his talk, Obama effectively rejected all three.

Or look at the September-October issue of AARP The Magazine, which has a "voters' guide." In it, Obama and McCain receive the opportunity to check boxes agreeing or disagreeing with the AARP's positions on 11 issues. Obama checked agreement on 10. He's not an agent of change but a staunch defender of the status quo. Indeed, he would expand subsidies to the elderly by exempting from federal income taxes anyone 65 and over with $50,000 income or less.

McCain pandered too. In his video, he praised the AARP effectively. He didn't mention benefit cuts. But he hedged. He said today's system is "broken" and shouldn't be inflicted on future generations. In the voters' guide, he didn't check "agree" or "disagree" but merely described his positions. The hint is that, as president, he might try to curb retirement spending. There's a precedent: McCain voted against the Medicare drug benefit.

I am 62. Most of my friends are in their 50s, 60s and 70s. I wish everyone a pleasurable retirement. But we need to overhaul our government retirement programs for the common good and not just the good of the elderly. We have now waited so long that there's no way to do this without being unfair to someone—overburdening the young or withdrawing promised benefits from older Americans. The present financial crisis, by reducing retirement savings, has made a hard job even harder. Still, these federal programs began as safety nets for the needy; now they've become subsidies for living long, regardless of need.

What the debate has lacked so far is a moral dimension. Obama says it's OK to raise taxes on those with incomes exceeding $250,000. Well, why should Social Security and Medicare beneficiaries with incomes of $250,000 get subsidies from the young making less? How about $200,000 or $100,000?

What are acceptable eligibility ages? People live longer; they can work longer. Baby boomers cannot be excluded, because they are the problem.

There can be no "rewriting of the social contract" without benefit cuts, because paying today's benefits inevitably involves much higher taxes, massive deficits or draconian cuts in other government programs.

Even with sensible benefit cuts, taxes will have to rise and there will be pressure on other programs.

What should you do? First, get angry—at the media and think tanks for discussing this problem in misleading euphemisms (for instance, the problem is not an "entitlements crisis"; it's excessive benefits for the old); at the candidates for exploiting your innocence; and at your self for your gullibility.

Next, start picketing the AARP. It's the citadel of seniors' political power and the country's most powerful "special interest." It wields a virtual veto over roughly two-fifths of the federal budget. Your activist groups ought to be there every day with placards reading "Give us generational justice" or "Get off our backs." Ask direct questions of federal candidates about what benefits they'd cut, what they'd keep and why.

You need to appeal to the shame and guilt of older Americans by reminding them that their present self-absorption is not a victimless exercise. Only if older Americans act on their rhetorical pledges of worrying about their children will the political climate change. If you—the young—don't stand up for yourselves, believe me, your elders and your politicians won't.

Newsweek columnist Robert Samuelson writes about economics.

Will tax increase make everything more expensive?

Obama has promised to raise taxes on the large corporations. Will this result in the cost of $10 for a gallon of milk or $8 for a loaf of bread besides a large rise in the cost of all other commodities?

Block has seniority and experience

Voters of District 24, you have a very hard-working incumbent Sharon Block seeking re-election for the State House of Representatives. She has seniority and much experience.

About election letters ...

The Times-News welcomes letters from and on behalf of candidates for the Nov. 4 election. Deadline is Oct. 29 at noon; no election letters received after that will be published. Letters must be 300 words or less, and only one letter from each writer will be published in October. E-mail letters to ethomason@magicvalley.com, fax them to 734-5538, or mail them to Letters to the Editor, Times-News, P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho 83303.

for chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee.

Sharon Block is a member of the Education Committee, where she has supported innovative and traditional approaches to keep the system strong.

Colleagues and friends have discovered she "burns the midnight oil" studying issues and preparing for presentations and debates.

When you visit with her, you sense she is truly well-informed. Vote for Sharon Block! Don't let a good candidate "slip away."

Carter is the obvious choice for sheriff

From a Democrat's point of view:

I have never voted a party ticket and doubt I ever will. Although I consider myself a Democrat, I am from the old school of the "Best man for the job" and in the race for Twin Falls County sheriff, there is an obvious choice.

While working for the Twin Falls Fire Department, I had numerous opportunities to work with Tom Carter and found him to be a man of integrity, honesty and very competent.

I believe that it is why a vast majority of law enforcement officers, as well as myself are supporting Tom for sheriff. STEVE JOHNSON Kimberly

A chance to talk about economic development

At the September Town Hall meeting, we visited about the events of the summer and progress with some of our proposals. This month we will focus on how our economic development efforts encompass Initiative 2010.

READER COMMENT
Lance Clow

The medical community goes to great lengths to provide a holistic approach to health care. We expend tremendous resources to improve quality of life with miraculous procedures to replace lost limbs and failing organs. Not doing so will diminish the quality of life of the individual. The heart of our city is our Townsite. The pulse of our economic health is measured by the vitality of our downtown. Whether you live, work, own property or run a business downtown, a vibrant downtown reflects our overall economic health. There is a saying that three things contribute to the success of a business: location... location... and... location. From 1905 to 1955 our downtown remained "The Place" for a successful business. The population boom of the 50s and economic prosperity followed a national trend of urban sprawl. Retail centers began to develop closer to the shifts in population. Dispersion of retail required vehicle access and parking, while industrial growth and the related infrastructure moved industry away from the city's core. Industry moved to areas that could provide room for growth, transportation and resources like power, water and wastewater treatment. The downtown model has changed and we must adapt. When Twin Falls first began the process of strategic planning in 1994, we were one of the first cities in Idaho to adopt a mission statement and visions to guide our short term emphasis and resources. They don't deemphasize the other important services provided by the city, but identify areas that may need additional support. In the first plans we identified a need to provide additional resources to the police, as growth was challenging to our ability to address citizen concerns with public safety. That didn't mean we'd forego high quality fire protection. All it meant was we wanted to invest more time, energy and money to police protection. The same could be said for the 2008-2013 Strategic Plan and its eight vision statements. The plan is updated every two years. One of our eight vision statements addresses economic development. This year we added "emphasis and implementation of specific plans to revitalize the downtown area, including Main Avenue and the Townsite..." This doesn't diminish our effort to grow the community responsibly through the creation of high-quality jobs. Blue Lakes Boulevard is connected to the Townsite, and the Townsite is connected to Industrial sites, all of which contribute to the economic health of Twin Falls. We will hold our next Town Hall Meeting at noon on Saturday. We can visit about our economic development and urban renewal resources. Do our efforts diminish our ability to respond to inquiries generated by our investment in the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization? Let's talk about the future and your vision. Join us in the Obenchain Insurance community room, 264 Main Ave. S. Please enter using the back entrance from the parking lot on Second Avenue South.

Pick Block to continue representing Magic Valley

If you want a true conservative to represent you in the House of Representatives, you will vote for Sharon Block. Sharon will continue to represent you as she has in the past. Sharon has the freedom we enjoy to control our own destiny. Sharon Block has a proven track record of conservative votes that represent her District 24 and the people of the state of Idaho. Sharon works well with her fellow representatives and senators. She is respected for her opinions and for her work ethics. Sharon has the same values most of us here in the Magic Valley have. She believes in strong families. She believes in an effective academically focused curriculum for our children. She believes in the dignity earned by our elders. Sharon believes in a free enterprise system with fair trade and open foreign markets.

Sharon will continue to represent the people in the Magic Valley with the same concerns she has demonstrated in the past. Please vote November 4 for Sharon Block, Representative District 24.

Obama will lead us down the path to destruction

It doesn't take a prophet or a crystal ball to see where our country is headed; all we need to do is take a page from the past. The plains of Africa are a good place to start. When the lion kills, the scavengers are provided sustenance in the leftovers, and when times are good for the lion, the meat-eaters flourish. When times are bad and a drought limits the success of the lions, there is little left for the scavengers who have become numerous in the good times. By their sheer numbers, the jackals drive the lions off their kill. The young lions starve and the older lions become weak and eventually fall prey to the scavengers themselves. Finally, having destroyed their source of food, the jackals and hyenas turn on themselves and the cycle begins anew.

For years, the special interest groups have been instigating a drought on the natural resources of this nation and the lions have had to hunt much harder. Now, the scraps are no longer enough for the scavengers and they are once again turning on their providers. Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, and the warlords of Japan used a campaign of change and the hunger of the Great Depression to unite the scavengers of the world — and change they did. Now, we have Obama regurgitating the same rhetoric — change, and leading the charge against the lions.

This nation was built on inspiration, motivation, imagination and dedication with the promise of compensation for those who put forth the effort. If robbers like Robin Hood Obama steal from the rich and give to the poor, soon there will only be poor, then they will turn their hunger and greed upon themselves. God help us if he is Robin Hood Obama.

Supporting Cameron important to Jerome

In Lemme County, we are blessed with three very senior and great legislators. In politics, seniority equals more influence for your county or state, whichever it may be. Jerome has Rep. Maxine Helt, Rep. Ben Stevenson and the person this letter is going to address, Sen. Dean Cameron. Support for Sen. Cameron seems all too important due to the fact he has achieved competitive positions that could directly benefit his constituents in Jerome County. Positions like chairman of the State Finance Committee and co-chairman of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee. You can pass all the bills you want, but if you can't back them up with monies from these committees Dean chairs and co-chairs — nothing gets done. Folks, that is the kind of seniority Jerome needs.

Or let's take a look at water. Dean is a senior member of the very important Senate Resources and Environmental Committee, which handles all water issues. His influence helped in the purchase of Bell Rapids and Pristine Springs, which helped to mitigate a huge water conflict. Last but not least, he is a friend in agriculture by being the newest recipient of the "Ag All-Star Award."

Need I say more? Sen. Dean Cameron — let's keep this train on the track.

Award winners deserve our congratulations

On Oct. 6 in Idaho Falls, Idaho celebrated the abundance and diversity of the arts in our state with the 19th Biennial Governor's Award in the Arts. As a commissioner with the Idaho Commission on the Arts, I want you to know of this extraordinary event which received little attention in the news state-wide.

The dozen award recipients came from all corners of Idaho. They were honored for excellence in six categories and for work ranging from metalwork and saddle-making to theater and dance, portraiture and landscape painting, tribal heritage and statewide philanthropy, arts administration, education and community activism.

After being presented with their awards, each winner offered a short message from the stage. Most attributed their achievements in the arts to someone who inspired them at a young age, a testament to the need to emphasize the arts in our schools, homes and communities. Gov. C.L. "Buck" Otter and First Lady Lori Otter gave winning performances as hosts. At one point, Gov. Otter picked up a guitar and charmed the audience with spot-on renditions of campfire favorites.

The evening climaxed with the premiere of a classical composition by former award recipient, Jim Cockey — part of a recent statewide competition made possible by a unanimous vote on Sept. 25, 2007. The Senate version has passed out of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by unanimous consent and is now ready for a full Senate vote. Sen. Joe Biden is the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He has placed the Global Poverty Act on the Senate calendar to prepare it for a vote by the full Senate.

The bill is called the Global Poverty Act (S.2433). It will give the United Nations billions of our taxpayer dollars in a massive wealth redistribution scheme. If passed, the Global Poverty Act will provide the United Nations with 0.7 percent of the United States gross national product above and beyond what we already spend for the same thing.

We have been helping the poor and supplying foreign aid and assistance to the poor for decades — food, medicine, clothing, education, etc. This bill will help charter the abolition of individual freedom, national sovereignty and limited government. The bill commits the United States to ban small arms and light weapons. So say goodbye to the Second Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. It ratifies treaties that the United States has resisted for years. It would give control of our economy, local communities, development and even how parents raise children. No scare tactics — study it for yourself. Do your own research on the Global Poverty Act.

So my question is, are you ready for these two men to rule the greatest country in the world and give it to the United Nations? Where has "We the People" gone, and when did "We the U.N." come? Think before you vote. Do your homework and ask him. Call your representative and ask him if he even read the bill before he voted for it. Or do we need new people in both houses to look out for Idaho's interests.

Block understands Magic Valley issues

I'm writing to support District 24 Idaho House Rep. Sharon Block for her fifth term. Sharon currently serves as chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee and as a member on the Education Committee. Sharon also supports and works diligently for a strong business community and for our agriculture concerns here in the Magic Valley.

Sharon Block knows that business is dependent on the free enterprise system and must be free of excessive regulation and taxation. Sharon believes our farmers deserve fair commodity prices. Fair commodity price includes fair trade and being open to foreign markets for a stronger America. She also believes agriculture requires multiple uses of public lands. Water should be distributed by the Idaho state law of prior appropriation. "First in time is first in right" principle.

Sharon Block understands the issues that are of concern to all of Idaho but especially those of interest to the Magic Valley. She will contin-

Twin Falls' Deep Throat quietly turns 95

Twin Falls' most famous native son just celebrated his 95th birthday ...

W. Mark Felt, aka Deep Throat — the key figure in the Watergate scandal that helped bring down President Richard Nixon — marked his birthday by returning home from the hospital where he had been diagnosed with congestive heart failure, according to the Santa Rosa, Calif., The Press Democrat ...

Felt, then associate director of the FBI, told Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward about the White House's role in covering up the 1972 burglary of the Watergate apartments in Washington, D.C. ...

Nixon resigned in 1974 after tape recordings were discovered on which the president talked about the Watergate conspiracy ...

In 2005, Felt revealed his secret identity in Vanity Fair magazine ... This came as a shock, considering that Woodward had vowed not to reveal Deep Throat's real name until after he died ...

Tom Hanks bought the film rights to the story, and a movie about Felt is in development ... Hanks may play Felt ...

"Mark never complains," his friend and 24-hour attendant, Yara Tikolakeba, told the Santa Rosa paper ... "The high point of their day comes when they get in the car and Tikolakeba drives them to the nearby Pacific Coast or through the hills of Sonoma County ...

For the most part, Felt no longer can summon the memories of his long career with the FBI and of

CSI students lead candidate forum

Legislative, sheriff candidates grilled

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho students Thursday asked tenacious questions and made bawny comments as seven candidates running for state Legislature, and four vying for Twin Falls County Sheriff, campaigned to win the younger vote during a forum at the school.

"If you're an incumbent, I'm not voting for you," CSI student Ted Griffin said, adding he's fed up with the current elected leadership.

That came as good news for most of the candidates in the room, with only four incumbents out of the 11 present.

Legislative candidates at the meeting included: Democrat Peter Rickards, running for District 23 representative; Rep. Sharon Block, R-Twin Falls and her competition for District 24, Democrat Carolyn Elxepuru; state Sen. Bert Brinckett, R-Rogerson, of District 23 and his Democratic challenger Bill Chisholm; and District 23 Rep. Stephen Hargen, R-Twin Falls with rival, Democrat Mike Biber.

Also present were three men vying to replace independent Twin Falls County Sheriff Wayne Tousey: Tom Carter, a Republican and Independents Felix Garcia and Marty Jacobs.

Griffin, like other students and attendees, wanted facts, not conjecture.

Carter, fired last year by Tousey, speculated the sheriff of 16 years kept eight positions vacant.

A student pressed the 16-year sheriff for truth.

"We are pretty much full staffed," Tousey said, adding two positions in the jail have not yet been filled due to a lengthy hiring process involving polygraphs, background checks, oral boards, drugs tests, and various other exams.

Carter, Garcia and Jacobs all said they would put deputies back into public schools.

Students drilled, asking why there aren't as many deputies in schools anymore.

The sheriff said it's not as easy as it sounds. He said his office previously had grants, which expired. Schools also have teaching schedules and city police should be included, he said.

Tousey was questioned on his controversial policy requiring that employees resign if they want to run against him. Then he was drilled about using county employees in a campaign commercial filmed on-duty, which he reimbursed.

"I've done nothing wrong, and my ad campaign is just fine," Tousey said.

The environment and abortion were hot issues Thursday on the legislative front.

"I'm never going to get pregnant," said Rickards, adding he thinks a woman should have right to choose abortion.

Hargen said he's pro-life, but thinks abortion should be allowed in cases of rape, incest or if a mother's life is at risk.

Butler thinks women will get abortions, legal or not. If it's legal, he said, it will at least keep it safe.

"I believe every human being has a right to life, including the unborn," said Block.

"I'm pro-life," said Brinckett. "I'm Catholic," said Elxepuru, adding she's also pro-life.

Chisholm said abortion is a "very personal decision."

Block prided herself on keeping a coal fire plant out of the Magic Valley.

Rickards and Butler said the effort to keep the plant out began as a grass roots effort.

Basic party-line divisions were evident on environmental issues. Agriculture is central to the Magic Valley economy, Block said, as Democratic candidates shot off environmental problems: from too many cows to polluted water.

Debunking the bogus

Idaho Dept. of Finance announces crackdown on credit repair agencies

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

More people are seeking help to repair bad credit as the financial crisis trickles down to communities in Idaho.

But in some cases, fraudulent credit repair agencies are leaving people with worse credit and less money.

Idaho officials announced Thursday that the state has joined others in cracking down on bogus credit repair agencies.

Gavin Gee, director of the Idaho Department of Finance, said that for the past "several months" the department has participated with the Federal Trade Commission and 22 other states in Operation Clean Sweep directed at companies offering or engaging in unlawful credit repair practices.

The operation involved the FTC and 25 state law enforcement agencies in 23 states, including Idaho. Together, the FTC and participating states took actions against 36 companies for violations of the Credit Repair Organizations Act.

According to a statement, the department issued Cease and Desist Orders against American Credit in Redding, Calif., and Financial Freedom Resources, Inc. operating from Clearwater, Fla. Both organizations collected fees for credit repair services before the services were provided — a violation of federal and state law. In addition, neither company was properly licensed to conduct credit repair activities in Idaho.

Gee said that consumers with negative information on their credit reports are often enticed into credit repair programs with the promise that such information will be removed, their credit scores will improve, and as a result they will have

U.S. foreclosure filings up 71 percent in 3Q

By Alan Zibel
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The number of homeowners ensnared in the foreclosure crisis grew by more than 70 percent in the third quarter of this year compared with the same period in 2007, according to data released Thursday.

Nationally, nearly 766,000 homes received at least one foreclosure-related notice from July through September, up 71 percent from a year earlier, said foreclosure listing service RealtyTrac Inc.

By the end of the year, RealtyTrac expects more than a million bank-owned properties to have piled up on the market, representing around a third of all properties for sale in the U.S. That's bad news for anyone who lives nearby and wants to sell their home. While foreclosure sales are booming in many areas, those properties are commanding deep discounts and pulling down neighboring property values. "It has a pretty significant impact in terms of pricing," said Rick Sharga, RealtyTrac's vice president for marketing. RealtyTrac monitors default notices, auction sale notices and bank repossessions. More than 250,000 properties were repossessed by lenders nationwide in the third quarter, 81,000 of which were taken back last month.

Six states — California, Florida, Arizona, Ohio, Michigan and Nevada — accounted for more than 60 percent of all foreclosure activity in the quarter, with California alone making up more than a quarter of all U.S. foreclosure filings.

Detroit and Atlanta were the only cities outside California, Florida, Nevada

As market melts down, businesses brace for RECESSION

With profits slipping, firms across sectors shed costs

By Thomas Heath
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Earnings season, that quarterly ritual when companies report their financial results, is a little over two weeks old. And while the view in the rear-view mirror isn't terrible, the road ahead looks dismal.

The economic contagion that has withered the financial sector appears to be fast spreading across much of the U.S. corporate herd. Several stalwarts of American business, be it chemical giant DuPont, mining conglomerate Freeport-McMoRan Copper & Gold, technology concern Texas Instruments or the Merck pharmaceutical firm, said their profits fell over the late summer months as the financial crisis heated up.

Many are now bracing for the likelihood that the world is spinning into a prolonged recession.

"Every company, whether they are losing money or whether they have huge profits, they are buttoning down," said Mike Tarsala, managing analyst at Thomson Squawk Box. "They are staying with easy things, like cutting the travel budget, cutting costs and shorting their balance sheets the best they can. They are preparing for a storm."

Overall, companies appear to be earning about 11 percent less in profit than they did last year at this time, according to Peter Buchanan, senior economist at CIBC World Markets. That's less than the 19 percent drop in earnings the companies reported for the quarter ended June 30 compared with 2007, but it's little comfort.

"That looks good on the surface, but the real issue is what people are going to be saying next year," Buchanan said. Many companies have reined in their forecasts for the coming months; some said the outlook is so uncertain they would not hazard a guess.

Alcoa launched earnings season two weeks ago with a report that its profit had been halved from a year earlier as demand waned and energy costs increased, forcing the aluminum maker to suspend a stock buyback and delay some reinvestment in the company. Alcoa's stock has taken a beating this year, dropping 76 percent from its 52-week high.

DuPont, Freeport-McMoRan and Texas Instruments all reported lower profit for the quarter ended Sept. 30 compared with the corresponding period in 2007, helping drive down their stocks as well as the rest of the market.

More bad news came Wednesday: Citing declining sales of some key drugs, Merck reported a 28 percent slide in third-quarter profit and a plan to cut 7,200 more jobs. Meanwhile, Boeing, the Chicago-based aerospace firm, reported a 38 percent decline in profit last quarter amid a machinist strike.

Boeing is being whacked on several sides. Besides its machinist strike, it has seen repeated delays in its next-era 787 Dreamliner passenger airliner. The company has inventory it bought at the peak of the commodity price boom that is sitting in storage because of both the strike and a worldwide pullback in air travel, said Art Hogan, chief market strategist at Jefferies & Co. Boeing also said Wednesday it may soon provide financing to credit-strapped customers so they can buy the company's jets.

Tarsala said the most telling fact he gleaned from recent company statements was from Wal-Mart, the world's biggest retailer. (An executive said stores had seen a spike on the sale of baby formula on paydays.) That told Tarsala some Americans were cutting back not only on consumer goods but on basic necessities.

Small businesses can find plenty of help in hard economic times

NEW YORK — Many small business owners believe you should never go it alone — you should always have a support system, whether it consists of financial advisers, mentors, fellow entrepreneurs or consultants, to guide you. It's true in the best of economic times, and it's certainly the case in the current climate.

help these days aren't necessarily early adopters. This is an extremely difficult economy, and even veterans need a sounding board. They find it from a growing number of resources, among them peer or networking groups, mentors, professional and trade groups and government-sponsored organizations like SCORE, an association of executives that counsels small business owners. Very often, this help comes at no cost.

"I've been seeking a lot of help and advice recently," said Jeremy Brandt, founder and chief executive of 1-800-CashOnDebt, a network of professional homebuyers based in Dallas. "A lot of it is about analyzing opportunities, when to get out of certain lines of business ... figuring out what I should cut back on, what should I increase spending on."

Brandt, who's been in business for five years, has two main avenues for advice. He belongs to the Entrepreneurs' Organization, which among other things helps the business owners that are its members form peer groups to discuss the issues they're dealing with. He also has a mentor through the World Presidents Organization, an association of current and former CEOs of major businesses.

Brandt says one of the biggest fellow business owners he is "they're making the same mistakes made 100 times over by their people who have been in the same position." By regularly meeting with peers and mentors, "people who have been in economic ups and downs," Brandt said owners can avoid some of the pitfalls.

Meggy Kayeides also uses a mentor, from a Chicago-area organization, Chicago Community Ventures, whose services include consulting

Students STRIVE-ing toward a better future

By John E. Swazy
Times-News correspondent

The idea to create a transition plan for special needs students has been kicked around for the past several years.

In August, the nuts and bolts of a workable program were finally assembled to form Students Transitioning in Responsibility Independence and Vocational Education (STRIVE).

Hosted by the Filer School District, the STRIVE program is designed to help 18- to 21-year-old students gain the confidence and basic skills necessary to move from a school environment into active roles in the workforce and their communities.

"Until they graduate or reach that age, the law requires districts to provide educational opportunities for students with special needs," said District Director of Special Services

Pamela Huston Powell. "But it seemed inappropriate for older students to continue with reading, comp lit and high school biology classes they've already done for four years, so somebody had to take the bull by the horns."

The process began in 2007 when Powell and Filer High School special education teacher Debra Cooper opened discussions with Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, the Department of Labor and other agencies involved with the Magic Valley Transition Team to decide what form the program should take.

"We also invited other area special ed directors and teachers to join us on this committee," Powell said. "They're really the ones who act in an oversight capacity and assess how well the programs doing."

The STRIVE structure contains five basic objectives tailored to fit the guidelines on a student's Individual Education Plan, or IEP:

These include postsecondary education, employment, community participation, independent living, and adult services.

"What we wanted to do is cover all the areas of transition on our IEPs and get them (students) out in the community doing age-appropriate things," Cooper said. "Many of our students have always relied on mom or dad and never thought

Wendell High School band marches back after 22 years

By Jim Butler
Times-News correspondent

Wendell football fans were in for a treat during Wendell High School's football game last Friday — and not only because the home team beat Gooding 17-27.

The Trojan marching band has been put off back together after a prolonged hiatus to pound spirit back into fans hearts.

Reforming the band after a 22-year hiatus was part of DJ McCarty's vision for the school when he first took the job as band director several years ago.

"I actually said in my interview that I would start up a marching band," said McCarty, who had been a part of a marching band in high school.

But starting wasn't easy as gathering a few kids to maintain plans for a year as well as actually finding kids who wanted to play.

The first part of the year was spent in a "band camp" hammered out. "There was enough of the kids in the band to account for half the cost," McCarty stated.

The school board agreed to help with the cost of the band.

Tune up the band

The Wendell High School marching band will pump out the music during halftime of tonight's football game between the Trojans and Buhl in Wendell. Check out some football, and a band or two, at Magic Valley high school games.

Wendell fans got a taste of the band's new sound.

Principal Tom Anderson and DJ McCarty's proposal to start a band in 1986 was met with enthusiasm by the school and community.

"This was an important event for the school at the time," McCarty stated.

The band's first performance was at the homecoming game.

As a matter of fact, the band's first performance was at the homecoming game.

"Ladies and gentlemen for the first time in a long, long time please give it up for your Wendell High Marching Band!" the announcer boomed over the loudspeaker.

With a change of song, the band played two special different tunes, completing the initial WHS.

To finish the fans were asked to rise and sing the first song with the band.

The school's students and staff were in for a treat.

"Sophomore Chelsea Strickland is a first-year piano student." The most difficult thing about this is staying on time with marching and the music." Strickland says. "We've definitely come a long way."

"McCarty does such an excellent job in everything that he does, so I would love to join."

The school band consists of 45 students which is 20 more than before. McCarty began this endeavor off these 45 members, 15 are in the marching band.

"I'm proud to be a part of a new tradition," Strickland stated.

The band consists of both high school and middle school students, which McCarty hopes will ensure this tradition continues.

The last marching band at Wendell High fell apart in 1986 when the director quit that year. The school had a strong player for the program as from marching band members were also in sports. We could be in both sports and the marching band.

"I'm glad to see that they're bringing it back."

Polls apart: Why polls vary on presidential race

By Alan Finn
Associated Press writer

For more local and national election news, go to magvalley.com and hit the Election 2008 button.

WASHINGTON — Barack Obama is galloping away with the presidential race. Or maybe he has a modest lead. Or maybe he and John McCain are neck and neck.

Confusing? Sure, thanks to the dueling results of recent major polls. In the past week, most surveys have shown Democrat Obama with a significant national lead over Republican McCain. Focusing on "likely voters," an ABC News-Washington Post survey showed Obama leading by 11 percentage points. A Wall Street Journal-NBC News poll had the same margin, while the nonpartisan Pew Research Center gave Obama a 14-point edge.

But others had the race much closer. CNN-Opinion Research detected an Obama lead of 5 points. The George Washington University Battleground Poll had Obama up by 4 points. And an Associated Press-GfK poll showed Obama at 44 percent and McCain at 43 percent — in effect, a tie.

How can this be? Some questions and answers about why the polls differ.

Q: Don't pollsters simply ask questions, tally the answers and report them?
A: No. After finishing their interviews — usually with about 1,000 people, sometimes more — they adjust the answers to make sure they reflect Census Bureau data on the population like gender, age, education and race. For example, if the proportion of women they interviewed is smaller than their actual share of the country's population, their answers are given more "weight" to balance that out. But some pollsters make these adjustments differently than others. And while most polling organizations including the AP do not modify the responses to reflect some recent tally of how many Democrats, Republicans and independents there are, some do.

Q: Are those the only changes made?
A: No. As Election Day nears, polling organizations like to narrow their samples to people who say they are registered voters. They often narrow them further to those they consider likely voters. That's because in a country where barely more than half of eligible voters usually show up for presidential elections, pollsters want their polls to reflect the views of those likeliest to vote.

Q: Is that hard to do?
A: Quite hard, since no one will truly know who will vote on Election Day until that day is over. In fact, virtually every polling organization has its own way of determining who likely voters are.

Q: Why is this such a problem?
A: Because nobody is 100 percent sure how to do this properly. And the challenge is being compounded this year because many think Obama's candidacy could spark a higher turnout than Election Day until that day is over. In fact, virtually every polling organization has its own way of determining who likely voters are. Q: What else might cause differences?
A: The groups pollsters, randomly choose to interview are bound to differ from each other, and sometimes do significantly.

Q: Every poll has a margin of sampling error, usually around 3 percentage points for 1,000 people. That means the results of a poll of 1,000 people should fall within 3 points of the results you would expect had the pollster instead interviewed the entire population of the U.S. But — and this is important — the results are expected to be that accurate only 95 percent of the time. That means that every time in 20, pollsters expect to interview a group whose views are not that close to the overall population's views.

Q: Are people always willing to tell pollsters what they're supporting for president?

A: No, and that's another possible source of discrepancies. Some polling organizations grudgingly prod people who initially say they're undecided for a presidential preference. Others do it more vigorously. The AP's poll, for example, found 9 percent of likely voters were undecided; while the ABC-Post survey had 2 percent.

AROUND THE WORLD

NEW YORK McCain may skip watch party on election night

NEW YORK — Republican John McCain is not going to make his election night remarks in the traditional style — at a podium standing in front of a sea of campaign workers jammed into a hotel ballroom. Oh, the throng of supporters will hold the usual election night party at the Hilton Hotel in Phoenix on the evening of Nov. 4.

But the Republican presidential nominee plans to address another group of supporters and a small group of reporters on the hotel lawn; his remarks will be simultaneously piped inside and to other reporters in a media filing center, aides said.

Aides said Thursday that the arrangement was the result of space limitations and that McCain might drop by the election watch party at some other point.

Council clears way for third Bloomberg run

NEW YORK — In a raucous meeting, the City Council approved a bill Thursday that would allow Mayor Michael Bloomberg to run in a third term. The bill sets a term limits law that voters have twice affirmed in referenda.

The vote was a victory for Bloomberg, the billionaire mayor who has argued he has the financial background and unique expertise to steer the city through what is feared to be the worst fiscal crisis since the Great Depression.

N. CAROLINA Blacks turn out heavily for early voting in South

CHARLOTTE — Blacks are already making up 30 percent of the South, according to initial figures from states that encourage early voting — a striking though still preliminary sign of how strongly they will turn out nationwide for Barack Obama in his campaign to become the first African-American president.

There have been predictions all year of a record black turnout for Obama.

In North Carolina, blacks make up 31 percent of early voters so far, even though they're just 21 percent of the population and made up only 19 percent of state's overall 2004 vote.

Roughly 36 percent of the early voters are black in Georgia, outpacing their 30 percent proportion of the state's population and their 25 percent share of the 2004 vote.

FLORIDA McCain: Obama will say 'anything to get elected'

ORLANDO — Republican John McCain, taking a cross-state bus tour aimed at keeping vote-rich Florida from swinging to the Democrats, accused rival Barack Obama of saying "anything to get elected."

The Arizona senator said Obama had added a work requirement to his proposal to grant a 10 percent universal mortgage tax credit. Obama said the campaign made the change two weeks ago to avoid charges that the proposal provided "welfare" to non-working Americans.

"Thirteen days ago, he changed his tax plan to give the American people had learned the truth about it and they didn't like it," McCain told a crowd at lumber yard in coastal Ormond Beach. "It's another example that he'll say anything to get elected."

inquired about the particulars of the plan.

IRAQ Labor minister escapes suicide car bombing; at least 9 others killed

BAGHDAD — Iraq's labor minister escaped assassination Thursday when a suicide bomber rammed an explosives-laden SUV into his convoy, killing at least nine people in one of the safest areas of the capital.

The blast came on a day when the U.S. relinquished control of a province that includes much of the area south of Baghdad once known as the "triangle of death." Babil is the 12th of 18 Iraq provinces to be placed under Iraqi control, paving the way for U.S. forces eventually to home. Americans will stay in the area to help the Iraqis when needed.

The bomber drove his Toyota Land Cruiser into the convoy carrying Labor and Social Affairs Minister Mohammed al-Radhi as it passed near Tahrir Square in the busy Bab al-Sharji market area — not far from the U.S.-protected Green Zone.

The blast left a 15-foot crater in the road and the smell of gunpowder in the air. The Shiite minister was unharmed, but three guards were killed, ministry spokesman Abdullah al-Lami said.

GREECE Archaeologists unearth Neolithic household gear

ATHENS — A 6,000-year-old set of household gear, including a cooking pot and two wood-fired ovens, has been found in the buried ruins of a prehistoric farmhouse in northern Greece, officials said Thursday.

A Culture Ministry statement said the discovery "provides invaluable, unique information" on late Neolithic domestic architecture and household organization.

ing or other external intervention for about 6,000 years," the ministry statement said. "The household goods are in excellent condition."

The rectangular building, which covers some 624 square feet, was discovered during work to lay water pipes earlier this year at the village of Sosandra near Ardiaka, some 360 miles north of Athens.

BRITAIN Survey: Half of U.S. doctors use placebo

LONDON — About half of American doctors in a new survey say they regularly give patients placebo treatments — usually drugs or vitamins that won't really help their condition.

And many of those doctors are honest with what their patients about what they are doing, the survey found.

That contradicts advice from the American Medical Association, which recommends doctors use treatments with the knowledge of their patients.

"It's a disturbing finding," said Franklin G. Miller, director of the research ethics program at the U.S. National Institutes of Health and one of the study authors. "There is an element of deception here which is contrary to the principle of informed consent."

The study was being published online in today's issue of BMJ, formerly the British Medical Journal.

Scientists have long known the effect of the "placebo effect," in which patients given a fake or ineffective treatment often improve anyway, simply because they expected to get better.

ON THE BIG SCREEN

Rocco DeVillers attended school in Twin Falls before heading to Utah and pursuing a film career. His movie 'The Flyboys,' starring Stephen Baldwin and Tom Sizemore opens today at Twin Cinema 12.

Movie director opens film in former hometown

By Erica Littlefield • Times-News correspondent

In the early 1980s, Rocco DeVillers was a young, aspiring filmmaker and Twin Falls was his movie set.

After school he would make his own movies using a rented video camera and his friends as cast members. He was mesmerized by films like "Star Wars" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

DeVillers is now 38 and has realized his dream: His full-length independent film, "The Flyboys," is opening at Twin Cinema 12 today.

"One of the key moments in my life was discovering filmmaking and discovering that's what I wanted to do with my life," said DeVillers, who will be in town for his movie's local premiere. "I just love thinking back to those times of making those little movies."

DeVillers attended middle school and part of high school in Twin Falls. He would save his allowance and rent a video camera for $20 a day, then recruit his neighbors and friends to star in the films. When he was 14 he got his own video camera, and his productions became more elaborate, with costumes, fight scenes and special effects.

"Whether it was during the summer or in heavy snow, we were always out filming some little movie," said DeVillers by phone from his Salt Lake City home.

After graduating from high school DeVillers made his first full-length film, a drama called "Pure Race." He also refined his post-production skills as an editor on several movies, including "Cowboys and Angels" and "Horse Crazy."

"The Flyboys" has been a long time coming. DeVillers started writing the script with his brother Jason and his friend Richard Dutcher in 2001. The plot of the movie centers on Jason and Kyle, two 12-year-old boys from a small town who share a love of airplanes and flying. The boys find themselves in the middle of danger and adventure when they unintentionally stow away on a plane owned by the mob.

"I wanted to make the kind of film that I would have loved to see as a 12-year-old, but would still like to see today and that would remind me of my youth," DeVillers said.

"The Flyboys" may be an independent movie, but DeVillers believes it can hold its own against any mainstream film. Along with youngsters Jesse James and Bailey McClendon as Jason and Kyle, the cast includes Hollywood veterans Stephen Baldwin and Tom Sizemore as mobster brothers Silvio and Angelo Esposito.

"Working with those two was a lot of fun," DeVillers said.

Editor's take

Local achievers on stage and screen

Take a look at Hollywood and Broadway, and you probably won't see many Magic Valley natives. That's not to say they aren't there, though.

In today's Entertainment, read about Rocco DeVilliers, whose movie, opening in Twin Falls today, stars Stephen Baldwin and Tom Sizemore. In November, we told you about Travis Hamilton, another Twin Falls native who made a low-budget film about a Navajo girl's coming of age.

Perhaps the area's most famous stage-and-screen alumna is Christina Hendricks, who stars in the critically acclaimed "Mad Men" on AMC. She got her start in Twin Falls' Junior Musical Playhouse (JUMP), and we told you about her burgeoning career last fall.

These successes go to show that, with a little passion and talent, even kids from small towns in Idaho can achieve their dreams, whether acting, directing or penning a best-seller (even running for vice president). All they need is support from family, friends and their communities.

So long, and thanks for all the tips

It's been just shy of a year since I took the reins of the Times-News' entertainment section, and it's with some regret that I tell you I won't reach that milestone.

Today is my last day as assistant features editor, in which post I gathered details on everything artsy and entertaining in south-central Idaho and told you all about it.

I'm moving to the Wood River Valley for personal reasons, though I'll still be with the Times-News as its Wood River bureau chief. So you'll continue to see my byline on arts stories — as well as a range of other beats — as I report in Lincoln and Blaine counties.

In the meantime, you shouldn't notice many changes in Entertainment. Features Editor Virginia Hutchins — who has always had a big hand in the section — will take on Entertainment editing while she searches for someone to take my desk.

If you have items for the weekly arts calendar, please continue to send those to ramona@magicvalley.com, but story ideas, "Instant Critic" submissions and other miscellanea should go to lincoln.hutchins@lec.net.

OVAC announces upcoming productions, auditions

Glenn Beck to sign books, tour area

Times-News

Conservative commentator and talk show host Glenn Beck will come to Twin Falls to sign his new book, "The Christmas Sweater," on Dec. 9 at Barnes & Noble Booksellers.

The Twin Falls visit follows two appearances in Salt Lake City on Dec. 6 and Boise on Dec. 8. The tour features a Christmas play with music based on the book, which promoters describe as full of warmth and humor, telling the stories of real people as they come to terms with tragedy, family, redemption, love and the power of faith.

The production — not scheduled for Twin Falls — will be presented as what promoters call a "Living Movie," including cinematic animation projections created for this production. The musical score includes traditional Christmas carols, gospel hymns and original songs. It underscores Beck's telling of the tale, sets the various scenes and punctuates dramatic moments throughout.

At the Twin Falls book signing, 3-4 p.m. Dec. 9 at 1239 A Pole Line Road, Beck will sign unlimited copies of "The Christmas Sweater" or up to two copies of backlist titles accompanied by a copy of "Sweater." He will not personalize any autographs or sign other materials. A store employee will be available to take photos of attendees as Beck signs their books, if attendees provide a camera.

Beck, a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has a syndicated radio show on Premiere Radio Networks, and until this month a television show on CNN.

The television show will resume on FOX News next spring.

Jazz festival Web site receives a new look

Times-News

The University of Idaho's Lionel Hampton International Jazz Festival Web site, jazz.uidaho.edu, has a new look that explores the classic appeal of jazz while providing information about the upcoming festival on Feb. 25-28.

The new design, which promoters describe as visually appealing and easy-to-navigate, provides 2009 festival information, including concert schedules, artist biographies, and volunteer and festival support opportunities. Hampton's vision and legacy for jazz music education is echoed on the site with special focus areas for students. The Lionel Hampton School of Music, which works closely with the festival on the jazz in the Schools educational outreach program, is accessible along with information about educational opportunities and workshops. Information about student performances at the festival is featured, including registration, housing and transportation details.

The site also links to the U of I International Jazz Collections, which were established in 1992 with the donation of Hampton's historical materials.

INSTANT Critic

Theater: College of Southern Idaho Theater Department production of 'Crimes of the Heart'

Seen Oct. 15 at CSI's Fine Arts Center

For a play with six actors and one set I was pleasantly surprised. The play centers around three sisters, all very different but drawn closer by tragedy. The personal drama they faced reminded me of "Desperate Housewives," but the comedy was much better. My wife laughed so hard she cried.

— Chris James, Burley

Fundraiser: Kiwanis Club's October Feast

Oct. 15 at the Turf Club in Twin Falls

Enjoyed the bratwurst and cabbage. Liked the Kiwanis youth projects they supported. And appreciated the event's endearing sense of community. But missed the promised German band, which turned out to be a no-show. I had counted on that combination of live polkas and German comfort food, an October tradition.

On the town: Speed dating, sponsored by College of Southern Idaho Community Education

Oct. 10 at Pandora's in Twin Falls

Speed dating was a smashing success. Over 60 people came nervous and left smiling. It was a great event, and many people hung around afterwards enjoying the jazz. Rumor has it love connections were made. CSI Community Education will offer it again this spring — so look for it!

— Jill Skeen of Twin Falls, speed dating event host

Music: Great Riff Jazz

Seen Oct. 18 at Pandora's in Twin Falls

I didn't actively listen to the music Saturday night. I was too busy engaged in conversation with my drinking mates. I enjoyed what little I heard, however. I especially loved the saxophone. Then again, jazz at Pandora's is always a hit.

Power to the peaceful

There is one thing in my opinion that separates a skilled musician from a phenomenal one. Soul. Those who permeate their music with their own essence, moving you on a deeper level than you thought possible. Their abilities catch the attention of not only their fans, but also fellow musicians. One such local prodigy is Ethan Tucker, with more than half a dozen instruments in his musical repertoire.

Tucker's sound can best be described as organic. He has done his best to go back to the roots of music, tying in blues, reggae, soul, indie and rock. His music focuses on passing energy from himself to the crowd, and vice versa. With songs such as "Power To The Peaceful." It is clear that Tucker supports his message of love and harmony. Tucker thinks that roots music is different from a lot of other genres because it is all about sharing with his listeners and between people in general.

His love for music started with his family. Almost everyone in his family plays an instrument of some sort. However, his inspiration to play music himself started after he watched the movie "Blues Brothers." Added on from there were influences from Taj Mahal, John Lee Hooker, BB King, Bob Marley, and Ben Harper, to name just a few. But life and its experiences are his major influences for writing new music, he said. When he feels a song, he'll sit down and let the music play itself out, not necessarily coercing it one way or another. Just like a true musician should.

Tucker

Tucker has already released a 17-track CD called "Ethan Tucker & Friends: Take Me To The Mountains," featuring such musicians as Taylor Duff, Anthony Newshy and Garrett Anderson. He has played shows all over southern Idaho, including Twin Falls, Boise, McCall and Idaho Falls. His fondest performance memories to date are playing alongside Taj Weekes & Adova at a show in McCall and playing at Hot August Nights here in Twin Falls. He would like to spread his music to the entire Northwest region within the next five years.

To sample songs by Tucker, visit www.myspace.com/tsadheh. He has a free show scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Saturday at farm, 228 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. in Twin Falls. To book Tucker for a show, contact the Magic Valley Arts Council.

I assure you, when you see him in concert and truly listen to his music, you will always remember the name Ethan Tucker. He would say all thanks go to the Creator.

Jeremy "Patches" Roberts has been to numerous local area shows, as well as being the vocalist for a few bands in the past. He is also an avid music enthusiast, and is the founder of Southern Idaho Musicians Network. groups.myspace.com/livetrain-breathemusic

Utah author is featured speaker at SLC writers' camp

Times-News

Award-winning author and novelist Ilanese Parker of Layton, Utah, will be a featured speaker at a writers' camp sponsored by New York Times bestselling author Richard Paul Evans, and Bob Allen. The conference begins Monday in Salt Lake City.

Karen Christofferson, associate to Evans and book producer for Evans' WriteWise company, invited Parker to speak at the conference of aspiring authors after learning of his incredible six-year journey in writing and publishing his epic mystery/adventure novel, "Circle of Doors."

Parker, a Castleford native, has been contacted by a film director and rights acquisition agent from Los Angeles with regard to film rights for "Circle of Doors."

Parker will sign copies of his book at 5 p.m. today at the Layton Barnes & Noble, as part of Davis County School District's "Davis Reads" program Parker has been invited to be a guest editorialist for multiple issues of the military software engineering journal "Crosslink," which is published monthly and distributed throughout the U.S. military and its related contractors.

"Circle of Doors" is in its second print run and is available through major book-sellers. The novel was awarded the 2008 national Silver medal in visionary fiction as part of the Independent Publisher Book Awards at Book Expo America in Los Angeles.

Of the 17 players on this year's College of Southern Idaho men's basketball roster, only one saw the court during last year's 30-2 campaign. So starting No. 8 in the NJCAA Division I preseason poll, released Thursday, is a pretty good omen. "We're excited about it," first-year CSI head coach Steve Gosar said. "It gives us something to shoot for. Are we happy at No. 8? No. We plan to finish eight spots

With two All-Americans returning, Randy Rogers had a feeling his team might wind up in the preseason Top 5. Turns out the seventh-year College of Southern Idaho women's head basketball coach was right.

The CSI women are No. 3 in the nation in the NJCAA Division I preseason poll, released Thursday. "It's good for our kids, good for the program. It just puts a little bit more on you."

CSI breezes past Snow

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

College of Southern Idaho volleyball coach Heidi Cartisser said it was a "different Snow" College team than she was used to seeing. "Maybe it was a different CSI team from earlier in the season as well."

Facing a team that usually threatens before falling short, the No. 12 Golden Eagles jumped all over Snow from the onset, resting to a 25-18, 25-12, 25-17 Senior West Athletic Conference victory on Thursday.

Santia Sanders and Jessica Peacock led CSI (28-5, 6-2 SWAC) with 10 kills apiece, while Britanni Cox added seven while deputizing for injured All-American middle Alyssa Wistrick.

"We just decided that this was going to be a winning week for us," Sanders said. "We're on our home court and we don't want to lose."

Cox's second-straight solid performance helped lift the Golden Eagles in the middle, and carry forward their momentum from Tuesday's scrumming victory against the College of Idaho.

These two most recent victories, combined with the remainder of the regular-season schedule coming at home, have lifted the team's spirits, Cox said.

"It just says a relief for us that we've got the away matches out of the way and we can focus on what we need to take care of," Cox said. "We're approaching every practice as a chance to step up and every match as an opportunity to keep getting better."

For a club that typically gives CSI fits, Cartisser said that the Badgers went away (and frankly she was both surprised and pleased) as that day of events. "They have a lot of good athletes, but they gave away a lot of points and we didn't make many errors."

Senior setter Britanni Cox

College of Southern Idaho volleyball coach Heidi Cartisser (7) celebrates a point with her team during the Golden Eagles' three-game win over Snow College Thursday in Teton Falls.

Cartisser said. "But one of our goals for tonight was to get in and get out so that we could save some energy for Saturday."

Saturday brings the biggest match of the year, when the Golden Eagles host No. 5 Salt Lake Community College. The Bruins could potentially clinch home-court advantage for the regional tournament with a victory, pending the result of their match with North Idaho late Thursday night.

The Golden Eagles, naturally, will do everything in their power to stop that from happening on their home floor, where they are unbeaten this season.

"When we play on our home floor, it just makes us want to play our best and make that even better," Cox said. "We haven't lost on our home floor this year, and we're not about to."

Broncos take on WAC leader San Jose State

BSU looks to move ball on talented Spartan defense

By Dustin Lapsy
Times-News correspondent

Last week, the No. 12 Boise State Broncos beat the defending Western Athletic Conference champion Hawaii Warriors. But that wasn't enough to rise to the top of the WAC standings.

The San Jose State Spartans (5-2) are atop the WAC leaderboard at 3-0 in the conference. The Broncos (6-0, 2-0 WAC) have simply played one less WAC contest than the game Spartans, but after tonight's game (7 p.m. MDT, ESPN2) at Spartan Stadium, only one team will have a zero in the loss column.

The Broncos have had their troubles in San Jose. They have never lost to the Spartans in eight contests, but the last two trips to San Jose have been close. BSU won 23-20 two years ago behind a last-second field goal and won 56-49 in a shootout four years ago.

"It seems like every time we go down there, it's a barn-burner for whatever reason," BSU head coach Chris Petersen said. "They're always tight games, hard-fought games. We'll probably have another one of those Friday."

Both teams enter the game boasting impressive defensive squads. The Broncos have the No. 2 scoring defense in the country (10.5 ppg) and the Spartans are in the top 10 in pass defense efficiency, turnover margin and sacks.

"They're a very, very good defense, no question about it," Petersen said. "Coach Toney, where he comes from, has background, they've always had great defense. Lundy is in his fourth season with the Spartans. He has them primed for an upset and ready for a bowl berth. He ranks fourth among active coaches in all-time NCAA wins with 180 during stints at San Jose State, Arizona and Hawaii.

"His record speaks for itself," Petersen said. "He knows how to win. He knows how to build programs."

For the Broncos to score big against the Spartans, they are going to have to be balanced. To do that, they must run the football, an eerie challenge for Ian Johnson. "I've never collapsed the last time he was on this field."

"I want to leave something more than just my lung this time," Johnson said. "I want to leave it all on the field, but come back healthy, 100 percent and with a win."

Bruins, Spartans tangle tonight for last time as nonconference foes

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

When the Twin Falls Bruins and Minico Spartans get together on the football field next year, it will be as rivals for the Great Basin Conference championship. It'll certainly mean more than when the two teams last tangle at Bruin Stadium for the last time as nonconference foes.

"I think it's pretty important for our junior class, but it means nothing to our seniors," Minico head coach Tom Perrette said of the suspending conference affiliation. "That's a 5A school and they've got 5A athletes and we've got competitive games with them in every sport. It's a big game for the kids just because it's Twin."

Twin Falls head coach Alvin Brynilds said that while his team would like to give Minico something to think about for next year, there's also the matter of building up some momentum for the rest of this season.

"We'd like to give them a little bit to scare away for next year to let them know that we'll be competing with them," Brynilds said. "But it's our senior night, and our seniors want to leave Bruin Stadium for the last time as winners. And we've had a great week of practice."

Both coaches probably shared their plans with the press: Bruin Stadium for the last time as winners. And we've had a great week of practice. "We played very well (against Minico), and one of the things I think I had a concern with was that they would come out tomorrow and Perrette said. "The celebration took place over the weekend and the kids

Raft River's Barrett piles up yards, TDs

By Ryan Howe Times-News writer

Less is more for Raft River senior Bridger Barrett.

Barrett

Last year as a junior, Barrett was asked to carry a huge offensive and defensive load. At times playing both quarterback and linebacker was overwhelming.

This season, Barrett is still the focal point to the Trojans' offense, but now in the single wing he has less to think about and can let his natural athletic ability shine.

"That's what kind of got me last year, I'd start thinking too much and I would stop having fun," Barrett said. "We're all having more fun this year. We have a lot of energy and excitement and team unity."

Most of Barrett's 913 yards and 21 touchdowns have come by taking direct snaps out of the single wing. He has more weapons surrounding him this year, which allows him to take a lesser role offensively and he can focus on what he does well: running the football. He's averaging 9.5 yards per carry.

"The linemen have come a long way from last year. They're doing awesome work there. There are holes everywhere," Barrett said.

Barrett's versatility allows him to line up all over the field. He's also caught six passes for 93 yards and a touchdown, and has completed 4 of 7 passes for 145 yards and another score. Defensively, Barrett has recorded 49 tackles—seven for a loss—two fumble recoveries and one interception. "He's been a tremendous leader for us this year," said Raft River coach Randy Spneith. "Sometimes kids can get a tendency to just focus on themselves, but he really got excited when his teammates do great things. He's always there patting them on the back and is always the first to give credit to everybody else for what he's accomplished."

Barrett has led Raft River to a 6-1 overall record (5-1 Snake River Conference) and hopes the Trojans can return to the Class 1A state playoffs after their one-year hiatus.

"It's redemption, pretty much," Barrett said. "We let a couple games slip away last year and we knew we couldn't do the same thing this year. We're right where we need to be to go to the playoffs. If we play disciplined and have a lot of energy then I think we can do a lot of great things, if we believe in ourselves and come together."

No. 1 Oakley faces 'banged up' Hagerman team today

By Ryan Howe Times-News writer

Tonight's Class 1A Snake River Conference tilt between Oakley and Hagerman lost some of its luster after Hagerman lost last week to Lighthouse Christian, but there is still a lot at stake.

Now, instead of a battle of unbeatens, the 7 p.m. kickoff in Oakley will feature an angry Pirate squad with its back against the wall, fighting to remain in the playoff picture.

"Hagerman's a wounded animal at this point and very dangerous," said Oakley coach Nick Greenwell. "I think they'll come to Oakley Friday more ready than they would have had they easily beaten Lighthouse. They're more dangerous now that they've lost."

Hagerman (6-1 overall, 5-1 SRT) cannot afford to lose tonight and next week against Raft River. Doing so would kick the Pirates out of the playoffs.

"I think we'll bounce back," said Hagerman coach Lonnie Funkhouser. "We need to not let (Oakley) score in bunches, like punt returns and kick returns, one right after another. That's where they put people away early. And we've got to have some drives, get some first downs and run the clock."

Last year Oakley beat Hagerman 54-8. It was the first time Funkhouser had lost to the Hornets in his nine years at the Pirates helm.

"Last year, we got all hyped up to play (Oakley) and they came and shut us down," said Hagerman's Morgan Knight. "Obviously, Oakley's got a lot of speed. We're going to have to really work on containing. We've got a good D-line. They get a lot of stuff before it gets to us (linebackers)."

However, Knight may not get the chance this week. The senior running back and linebacker suffered a sprained ankle last week and is doubtful tonight. Knight has scored 13 percent (14 of 42) of Hagerman's offensive touchdowns this season.

Besides Knight, the Pirates are battling other injuries and will only rotate about 11 varsity players.

"There's no question we're banged up. It's a bad time of year to be banged up," Funkhouser said.

With two weeks left in the regular season, anything can happen to shake up the playoff picture like an Elch A Sketch. Despite a state-best 21 game winning streak, Oakley (7-0 overall, 6-0 SRT) still isn't a mathematical lock to make the playoffs. If they lose tonight and again next week to Hansen, the Hornets would drop to second place and have to win a play-in just to squeeze into the state playoffs.

That scenario, however, is unlikely as the Hornets defense has allowed only four touchdowns in seven games this season while their offense is averaging 51 points per game.

Harris, Ward lead Bruins to region titles

By Bradley Guire Times-News writer

Twin Falls cross country runner Erik Harris trilled the leader. Highland's Dallas Farnsworth, by about three or four yards. He knew it was time to put this race away.

Only he can know how deep he reached inside himself for the extra burst of speed, for the extra energy to get his legs pumping harder, for the extra wind in his lungs, but everyone at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course Thursday could see the output as he raced past Farnsworth to win the final 100 yards of grass to win the Class 5A Region Four-Five-Six meet.

"I decided that this was it—this was my chance to take first in this race," Harris said. "I started to sprint like crazy and got the adrenaline rush. The crowd was cheering me on. It was great."

Harris finished in 16 minutes, 12 seconds, only two seconds ahead of Farnsworth, fellow Bruin Nick Jacobs came in fifth at 16:43. The course was fast as the top 10 completed the race in less than 17 minutes.

"It was a really fast race. It was almost a blur. You just run it, and then it was over," Jacobs said.

Harris, Jacobs, Andre Jay, Alex Schenk and Ian Birch all finished in the top 10 to lead the Bruins to their second consecutive regional team championship. They scored 29 points, beating out No. 2 Highland by four points. The Rams and Idaho Falls will also qualify teams for state.

Harris, Jacobs

Ward, Bates

The Bruin girls won their third straight regional team title, finishing just a few points ahead of Highland. Alex Litzinger of Highland placed first in 18 minutes, 55 seconds and was followed by Twin Falls' Amanda Ward (19:24). Dani Bates had the next best Bruin time, placing seventh. Four of the top 12 spots were filled by Bruin runners.

"We've been running really hard as a team and working together to beat Highland. I think we did a pretty good job of that," Bates said.

Both the Bruin boys and girls teams now await the Class 5A state championship race, which will be run Nov. 1 at Eagle Island

State Park in Boise. The Bruins have seen some of the competition in recent weeks, such as Mountain View. Ward's plan is a simple one: "I'm going to try to stay in the top pack and stay with the leaders."

"The boys know they have their work cut out for them. "Our last couple of races, it's been within a point," Jacobs said. "It's going to come down to the person with the most guts."

Shields, Rays squeeze Phillies in Game 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Squeeze plays, a wacky checked swing and a fresh face out of the bullpen. These plucky Tampa Bay Rays pulled out all their tricks at Tropiquest Field to win the World Series.

James Shields stymied the slumping Philadelphia Phillies, rookie David Price got the final seven outs and Tampa Bay rebounded from a home loss with a 4-2 victory Thursday night that made it 1-1.

The Rays scored on Jason Bartlett's safety squeeze and built another rally when Rocco Baldelli walked on a checked swing that seemed to confuse players and umpires alike.

Tampa Bay never really got a huge hit, but neither did the Phillies as Jimmy Rollins and crew fell to 1-for-20 with runners in scoring position.

The series shifts to Philadelphia for Game 3 on Saturday night, though rain is in the forecast. AL MVP Matt Garza is scheduled to pitch for Tampa Bay against 45-year-old Jamie Moyer, making his World Series debut.

Shields pitched shutout ball into the sixth, working out of trouble just as Philadelphia ace Cole Hamels did for a 3-2 win in the opener Wednesday.

The 23-year-old Price called up in September after he was the top pick in last year's draft, struck out slugger Ryan Howard with two on and did the seventh.

The hard-throwing lefty gave up a pinch-hit homer to Ryan Howard in the eighth, then stayed on the close out against Philadelphia's big boppers.

Garza fuzed led off with a double and a pitch from Price appeared to give tollins' jersey. But it was not called a hit batter and a frustrated Tollins ended up popping out.

Price scored when third baseman Ryan Latorja booted Jayson Werth's grounder for an error, but Price fanned Chase Utley and got Howard on a game-ending grounder to secure Tampa Bay's first ever World Series win.

Phillips' lone hit with runners in scoring position was Shane Victorino's infield single in the fourth — and that didn't even produce a run.

Shields usually flourishes at home where he was 2 with a 2.59 ERA during the season.

All four of his postseason starts have come at tricky Tropiquest Field, including win over the Chicago White Sox in Tampa Bay's first play-off game.

A 14-game winner during the season, the right-hander looked surprised when he was pulled in the sixth after 104 pitches. He doffed his cap to the crowd, and Dan Wheeler retired Pedro Feliz on an inning-ending grounder with runners at the corners.

The Phillies had a chance to rally in the fifth after putting two on with one out. Utley hit a lopper to right that was caught on the run by Baldelli, who fired to first for Shields. Werth for an inning-ending double play.

Baldelli also was involved on a confusing call in the second that helped Tampa Bay make it 3-0.

Tampa Bay Rays outfielder B.J. Upton dives but can't catch a single by Philadelphia Phillies batter Greg Dobbs during the sixth inning of Game 2 of the World Series in St. Petersburg, Fla., Thursday. The Rays won 4-2.

Twin Falls girls blanked by Boise

Jerome sophomore Sergio Madrigal (12) celebrates a goal with Sergio Martinez (7) during a 6-0 win over Middleton Thursday at the Class 4A state tournament in Boise.

Tigers roar into 4A state semifinals

By Dustin Lapray Times-News correspondent

CALDWELL — Domination. The Jerome Tigers spent three quarters of their first-round matchup with Middleton in the state Class 4A boys soccer tournament driving the Vikings crazy in their own end of the field...

Jerome could have heavily relied on junior forward Fernin Martinez, who stood out greatly Thursday at Brothers Park, but the Tigers didn't have it. Fernin forced fear into the Vikings...

His ball skills reached the ridiculous level of domination. The Viking defenders often seemed so intimidated by him, they would allow him the space to make his moves...

"We're just having fun," Fernin Martinez said. "I'm already ready for the next game. We have a great chance to win state." Fernin Martinez scored two goals, one in the third minute of the game...

Fernin led Sergio from about ten yards out in the 39th minute to give Jerome a 2-0 halftime lead.

Timos-Nova

"The Twin Falls Bruins' first trip to the state tournament started with a loss, but coach Katie Kauffman said everyone is staying positive about the situation."

"The girls played really tough," she said. "We had Boise frustrated early, and it took them 35 minutes to make a goal." Kauffman noted all of Boise's goals were quality.

"We didn't give up anything or make crucial errors," she said. "We feel good about the way that (they) played. They made a good showing for first time at state."

Twin Falls will face Sandpoint, which lost 4-0 to Capital, at 9:30 a.m. today at Meridian High School.

Class 4A

BISHOP KELLY 2, WOOD RIVER 0

The Wood River Wolverines were also shut out in the first round of state tournament play with a 2-0 loss to Bishop Kelly (Boise). The Knights scored early in the match and then not again until the final minutes.

"It was pretty back and forth," Wood River coach Greg Gvozdas said. "Bishop Kelly finished more opportunities than we did today."

The Wolverines will face Bonneville, a 6-0 loser against Moscow, at 11 a.m. today at Brothers Park in Caldwell.

"We're not going to give up on the tournament," Gvozdas added. "Hopefully, we can rebound and come home with the consolation trophy."

Class 3A

FRUITLAND 5, BUNL 1

Autumn Yurbie was taken out of action after separating her shoulder during the first-round match against Fruitland. Minutes before the end of the first half, the Bull forward collided with two Grizzlies players and had to leave the game with the score 2-1 Fruitland. The Indians lost 5-1 to fall into the consolation bracket.

"It was an emotionally difficult game," Bull coach Christa Tackett said. "Mercedes Pearson scored the Indians' lone goal early in the match. Bull will face Snake River, which lost 3-1 to Payette, at 11 a.m. today at Valluue High School in Caldwell."

SHELLEY 0, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 0 (SHELLEY WINS 3-2 ON PENALTY KICKS)

The Community School played much better than in its district tie game loss, coach Kelly Feldman said, but the Catbroats couldn't find a goal and ultimately lost 3-2 in a shootout to Shelley at Valluue High School.

Still, Feldman said that the girls were excited with the way they played and could look forward to today's 11 a.m. elimination match with last year's state champion Leton, which was dethroned by Bonners Ferry in a shootout.

"We didn't have any of the mistakes that we did against Huhl (in the conference title game), and our goalkeeper was great. Everyone came to play, we just couldn't put the ball in the back of the net," said Feldman. "It's been my experience that it's the emotion of losing a tight game that's hard to recover from. The girls think they played well, and some of them thought it was really exciting. I think it's just going to be about physical recovery."

AMERICAN FALLS 5, BLISS 3

The Bliss Bears fell to the consolation bracket with a 5-3 opening-round loss to American Falls.

Alex Carney scored twice for Bliss with an additional goal from J.J. Barossa. The Bears will face Aberdeen at 11 a.m. today at Valluue High School in Caldwell.

PAYETTE 2, WENDOLL 0

The first 15 minutes proved fatal to Wendoll's hopes at Class 4A state championship as Payette struck with two goals and held on for a 2-0 shutout Thursday.

"They came at us very quickly, and we

Wood River's Alvaro Emeva (4) heads the ball while battling with Bishop Kelly's Kendall Melvin (18) in the first round of the Class 4A girls state soccer championships at Rodeo Park in Caldwell.

Community School's Kelly Heeney (3) battles with Shelley's Alex Alverson (13) in the first round of the Class 3A girls state soccer championships in Caldwell.

Woodell goalie Alexia Camargo makes a save in the second half of a first-round game against the Payette Pirates during the Class 3A boys state soccer championships in Caldwell.

went up to speed, and we didn't match up," Wendell coach Jon Goss said. "We didn't have a lot of practice. The Trojans tried again and again to put the ball into the back of the net while holding Payette off, but they couldn't find a way. Freshman keeper Alexia Camargo was credited by Goss as a difference maker as he saved 14 shots through the match.

Wolverines drop District IV-V title game to Century, Jerome topples Preston Century swept Wood River 23-16, 25-19, 25-14 Thursday to win the District IV-V title and earn the high seed to next week's Class 4A state tournament.

"The Wolverines will play the Six. That team from District III in the opening round of the Class 4A tournament, which begins Oct. 31 at Skyline High School in Idaho Falls.

at 1 p.m. Saturday at Highland High in Idaho Falls.

RIFT RIVER TAKES THIRD IN SMC TOURNAMENT Rift River eliminated Shoshone before being taken down by Challis in the second place game at the Snake River Conference tournament in Hansen on Thursday.

The Trojans beat Shoshone 25-19, 25-16, 25-19 before losing to Challis 25-21, 25-17, 25-14.

Whitney Holtman totaled 12 kills on the night while Gabeze Nye added 24. The team combined for 45 blocks. "It was two tough matches and it's been a long week of volleyball, there's no doubt about it. The girls came out strong against Shoshone and played well," said Rift River coach Cam Schumann.

Rift River is a good team and they were ready to play."

Rift River plays in Valley at 1 p.m. Saturday at Mountain Home in a Class 1A V state play-in.

Vandals working to improve nation's worst defense

By Josh Wright
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — When it comes to patching holes in a defense that's yielded more runs than any other Bowl Subdivision team, Mark Criner figures the Idaho coaching staff has two alternatives.

"You can yell and scream or you can try and teach it," the Vandals' defensive coordinator explained. "And (we're) trying to teach it the best way we can — over and over and over."

Yet for all their work instilling basic principles, Criner and his fellow coaches seem to be making little headway: Idaho (1-7, 0-4 in the WAC) enters Saturday's clash with

New Mexico State with the perhaps the nation's worst defense in the program's history.

Idaho has allowed an average of 49.7 points in seven losses and a FBS-best 502.9 yards per game overall. As a result, the team has already wrapped up a ninth straight losing season.

The Vandals' extreme youth and a series of crippling injuries have compounded the problem. Defensive anchor Shiloh Cook, a junior strong safety, was out for the season in Week 4 at Utah State and promising linebacker Tre'Shawn Robinson is out of the year after a knee injury two weeks ago.

Keo's absence leaves only four juniors on the traveling squad, Criner said, all of whom are junior-college transfers. Many of other starters and key defenders are freshmen and sophomores. Idaho's greenhorn defense has been particularly poor in two areas: stopping the run and preventing quarterbacks. The team's last three opponents — Louisiana Tech, Fresno State and Nevada — have combined for 946 yards on the ground, while the Vandals rank No. 118 in the nation in sacks per game (.63).

"I take it as youth," junior safety Virdeell Larkins said of the team's struggles. "We're getting (our) stripes. We're taking bumps and bruises and a lot of injuries. There's a lot of things coming into play with this. You've just got to ride the roller coaster."

Although the Vandals have a fleet of newcomers, including an all-new starting line-backer corps from a year ago, Criner refused to put all the blame on inexperience.

"I don't want to give anybody the excuse why we're losing is because we're young," the second-year coordinator said. "That's only part of it. It all comes down to me and the coaches and players. It really does. And we understand that."

BCS spoilers: It's a game flush with implications. At 5-2 and 3-0 in the WAC, San Jose State has a golden chance to grab control of the conference race with a win tonight over unbeaten Boise State on national television.

The 13th-ranked Broncos, meanwhile, could stay on track for a BCS berth with a victory. Just don't bring up those BCS aspirations to Spartans coach Dick Tomney.

"People down here say, 'You've got a chance to spoil Boise's BCS thing,'" he said. "That's the furthest thing from our mind. We're not even thinking about it. We are trying to compete for the conference championship."

The Broncos were ranked No. 12 in the first BCS rankings released Sunday. They'll earn a bid if they end up in the top 12 and if no other non-BCS teams are ahead of them.

Around the conference: Idaho's T.J. Conley moved into the national lead in punting after averaging 52.9 yards per kick last week. He holds a slight lead over Syracuse's Josh Long. ... Even though BSU is putting together another stellar year, you have to wonder what's happened to senior tailback Ian Johnson. He hasn't scored a touchdown in the last three games and he doesn't have a 100-yard rushing game this season. ... Quarterback Diondre Borel posted solid numbers last week, but Utah State still hasn't won since trouncing Idaho on Sept. 20. In fact, two of the Aggies' three wins since the start of last year have come against Idaho.

Pats deny report they're upset with Brady

BOSTON — The New England Patriots denied a report Thursday that they were upset with quarterback Tom Brady for opting against the team's preferred doctors and undergoing surgery on the West Coast.

After published reports said Brady needed two more operations, the team's spokesman said in an interview. In his recent ESPN.com, citing a source that did not identify, reported that the Patriots, as an organization, are upset with the situation because they were clear that they wanted Brady's surgery done under the direction of doctors of their choosing in Boston.

Later Thursday, the Patriots issued a statement affirming their support for the quarterback and led them to three Super Bowl titles.

"This unsubstantiated report does not represent the team's views whatsoever," the statement said. "We have supported Tom Brady one hundred percent from day one of this process and will continue to do so. Today, we reiterate our total support for Tom as he recovers from his injury."

Brady was injured in the first quarter of the season opener on a hit by Kansas City Chiefs safety Bernard Pollard.

"He has been widely reported to have torn an anterior cruciate ligament, but he and the team have not given specifics on the injury or commented on his recovery."

Brady confirmed on his Web site Saturday that he has had two operations on the knee.

The Boston Herald reported Thursday that Brady has undergone two more procedures since then to try to fight an infection. The paper said Brady is on a six-week course of intravenous antibiotics and will continue to have follow-up exams at the clinic in Los Angeles where he had surgery.

OCHO CINCO WILL STICK WITH OLD JERSEY FOR SEASON
CINCINNATI — Chad Ocho Cinco will keep his dual identity for the rest of the season. The Cincinnati Bengals receiver formerly known as Chad Johnson said Thursday he'll wear his old name on the back of his uniform for the rest of the season. It would have cost him a lot of money to make the switch for this year.

"We've just left it alone," he said. In an interview, "I'll just wait and do it next year."

The Pro Bowl receiver legally changed his name to Ocho Cinco last August, shortly before the start of the season. Reebok, which produces NFL jerseys for sale to fans, had a large inventory of jerseys with his old name ready for sale.

The league respected the receiver's name change, but said he couldn't wear "Ocho Cinco" on the back of his jersey until he compensated Reebok for the old jerseys that would now be a tough sell.

EX-KICKER ZENDELIS TO STAND TRIAL ON RAPE CHARGES

POMONA, Calif. — Former NFL place-kicker Tony Zendejas has been ordered to stand trial on charges that he drugged a woman at his sports bar and raped her.

A Superior Court judge in Pomona on Thursday found enough evidence for the case to proceed to trial.

Zendejas, who retired in 1995 after a 10-year NFL career, faces four felony sex charges.

Prosecutors allege that on Jan. 26 Zendejas gave a woman a drink at his San Dimas restaurant, where he was groggy. She told authorities she woke up in a nearby motel and had been raped.

Zendejas, who was arrested in July, is free on bail. If convicted, he faces up to 15 years in prison.

CARDINALS WR HOLD INCREASED WORKLOAD IN PRACTICE

TEMPE, Ariz. — Anquan Boldin increased his workload in practice Thursday, but Arizona Cardinals coach Ben Whisenunt remained uncertain whether his stand-out wide receiver will play Sunday at Carolina.

"He's doing a lot in practice, which is good to see," Whisenunt said. "I think really it's about where he is tomorrow after practice and when we travel to Carolina how he feels."

Ballesteros to have 2nd operation for brain tumor

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Seve Ballesteros' brain tumor is cancerous and he will undergo another operation to relieve pressure caused by swelling and bleeding that have recently developed.

The remaining parts of the malignant tumor, located in a very deep part of the brain, will be removed in Friday's procedure.

La Paz Hospital said Thursday that the surgery is "of great complexity."

Three doctors will operate on Ballesteros. Javier Hernandez, head of the hospital's neurosurgery unit, will be accompanied by neurosurgeons Manuelo Perez Alvarez and Alberto Kik.

The operation is due to begin early in the morning and is expected to last until the afternoon.

The 51-year-old Ballesteros was in stable, but serious, condition before the operation, the hospital said.

Based on an analysis of cells already moved the tumor is classified as an oligoastrocytoma, a type that affects

Weir three shots back at Frys.com Open

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The shootout is on in the desert. Doug LaBelle II and Jeff Malinger shot 7-under 63 on Thursday to share the first-round lead in what promises to be a flurry of battles at the Frys.com Open.

Richard Johnson, the 2007 Nationwide Tour earnings leader who has struggled in his first PGA Tour season, was one shot back at 64.

Aaron Cooperhorn, Chris Stroud, Matthew Greenberg, J.J. Henry, Marco Dawson and Todd Demery shot 65+ under ideal conditions — cloudless and temperatures in the mid-80s, on the 7,125-yard Regator Course at Grayhawk Golf Club in north Scottsdale.

Defending champion Mike Weir shot a

Cabrera shoots 66 at Castello CASTELLO, Spain — Denmark's Soren Kjeldsen shot a 7-under 64 to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Castello Masters.

Argentina's Angel Cabrera, England's Richard Firth, Spain's Ignacio Garrido and Sweden's Peter Hanson opened with 65.

Tournament host Sergio Garcia birdied the final three holes for a 66 on his home course.

Morgan, particularly as the Bruins were gashed once already by Highland quarterback Taysom Hill, but he said a plan is in place to limit the damage.

"Obviously they've got some key players, starting with Mike Morgan. He's left-handed," said Reynolds. "We just want to contain him. I don't think you can stop him and you certainly don't want him to score six touchdowns against you."

For Minors the goal is to play a complete game. The Spartans will have to stop a

BSU

The Bronco offense and the Spartan defense are ranked the same (No. 7 nationally) in pass efficiency. Something's got to give. It will be vital for BSU to get its sometimes lagging run game going, to keep the rush off Kellen Moore and to keep eight Spartans in the box to stop the run, allowing Moore more freedom to survey the field for his targets.

"It's an honor to play these guys, especially in the secondary," Vinny Perretta said. "They've got a couple of NFL-type players. That's going to be a good challenge for the wide receivers."

The Broncos average a little more than 270 yards per game through the air, the same amount the Spartans give up in total defense per game.

says that for every game, every week. But after two trips and two wins by only 10 points in San Jose, you sure can't say BSU will take JSU seriously.

"There will be no surprises this week," Derrell Acree said. "We know what to expect. We know they're coming. They're not going to be lying in the weeds on us."

Offensively, the Spartans are another team experimenting with the spread option.

"They're in a spread, no-huddle type offense again with an athletic quarterback and they have athletes," Petersen said. "The spread is all about spreading you out, isolating guys one on one and if a guy misses a tackle, it's over."

The Broncos recently took strides to pride themselves on making those sure tackles in space, forcing turnovers and disrupting teams' red-zone time.

"We're going to be defensive," Ryan Winterswyk said. "We're not going to let anyone get in our red zone and push us around."

Said Petersen: "We just want them to keep playing with that confidence, that fire in their eyes, that determination," Petersen said. "It's one: play-at-a-time mentality. Just relax and play the next play."

don't pay attention to all that."

What he does pay attention to is improving his game and leading a team loaded with fresh faces. Considering the team's young roster, Azzurri said the No. 8 ranking is positive.

"It's not a bad place to start — top 10 — when you have 13 freshmen and two new coaches," he said.

The Golden Eagles added another freshman to the team Wednesday. Nate Miles joined the squad after being expelled from the University of Connecticut earlier this month.

Miles, a highly touted 6-7 tight end out of Toledo, Ohio, took the scholarship because of his relationship with Quince Watkins left this team a few weeks ago to return to his home in Compton, Calif.

Watkins, a 6-3 shooting guard, originally signed with Illinois and practiced with

Said Plunkert: "I guess it's an accomplishment for both of us, (but) we're all about the team."

As for the national ranking,

"We're just trying to keep it that way," said Lucert. "We're adding (Baker). We're hoping to stay there, so when it gets to nationals, it makes it easier on us."

The Golden Eagles return six players and three of their top four scorers from last year. "I think Bogers said developing some quality depth is the biggest thing (CN) needs to do to compete for a national championship."

But he said his six freshmen and the sophomores who played sparingly in 2007-08 are "showing signs of good things."

(CN) travels to Salt Lake today to play scrimmages against No. 24 Salt Lake Community College. Eastern Michigan will play Wyoming's Clapper, Collette.

2009 TOYOTA COROLLA SEDAN AN UPDATED FAVORITE

RoadWorthy
By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corporation

Forty years after Toyota introduced the first Corolla to American drivers, the all-new, 10th-generation Corolla introduced for the 2009 model year once again provides customers with an economical high-quality choice. Virtually every aspect of the Corolla is improved in the new model, offering more safety features, comfort and performance. Since 1966, more than 30 million Corollas have sold worldwide.

The new-generation Corolla's design, created with input from styling studios in Turin, Italy, strikes a decidedly sportier profile than before, while maintaining the exterior footprint and interior roominess of the previous model. Offered in Standard, S, LE, XLE and XRS trim levels, the Corolla provides room for five, and its trunk has enough space for four golf bags. The new-generation Corolla is less than a half-inch longer than the previous version, less than 2.5 inches wider, and approximately one inch shorter, on the same 102.4-inch wheelbase.

The Toyota sedan's sporty exterior profile is the result of pulling the A-pillar forward and the C-pillar rearward, which also enhances aerodynamic performance for optimal fuel efficiency. The standard body kit on S and XRS models lends a sporty look while also enhancing aerodynamics. The kit includes a front spoiler, rocker moldings, upper and lower rear spoilers, and for improved air management under the car, engine undercovers. Base power for the next-generation Corolla is generated by an all-new 1.8L four-cylinder engine, with a re-engineered 2.4L four-cylinder model powering the sporty XRS model. The base engine commutes torque to the street through a five-speed manual gearbox with a four-speed electronically controlled automatic transmission (ECT) an available option. A five-speed automatic transmission is optional for the 2.4L four-cylinder engine. On the road, the base engine/four-speed automatic delivers a precise and controlled performance that is also smooth and responsive. There is a good balance. The new Corolla is built around a stiff body structure that relies on high tensile-strength steel, gussets and cross members for its strength, rigidity and lightweight construction. Front suspension is by compact, rigid 1.8-lbm-type

MacPherson strut with a stabilizer bar. The XRS is equipped with a front sport strut tower brace, as well. The Corolla's torsion beam rear suspension enjoys a coil-over-shock arrangement that allows efficient packaging along with secure handling and outstanding ride comfort. Inside the cabin, the new Corolla maintains similar headroom, legroom and shoulder room of the previous model, but is redesigned to provide improved comfort, usability and storage. The new driving position is tailored to a wider range of driver heights than before. A tilt and telescope steering wheel in all models makes it easier for taller drivers to find a comfortable position. Reshaped front seats provide improved comfort and support to accommodate a greater range of occupant heights. The double-braced instrument panel bezel contains the tachometer, speedometer, engine-coolant temperature gauge and fuel-level gauge. The speedometer contains a digital odometer/trip meter and shift indicator. The standard 60/40 split folding rear seat offers space and comfort for two adults. A variety of usable, easy-to-reach storage spaces add convenience and usability inside the Corolla. These include center console side pockets; a storage box above the usual glove box; front and rear door pockets that can safely hold 20-ounce bottles; a console box with a large-capacity main tray and a smaller accessory tray; an overhead console useful for storing sunglasses or bumper-door openers; and a rear-seat creel armrest with an built-in drink holder.

2009 Toyota Corolla Sedan By The Numbers

Cell phone users should give it a rest in the ladies' room

DEAR ABBY: Unbelievable as it may seem, this actually happened. I was in the ladies' room in a woman case building when a woman came in talking on her cell phone. She went into the stall next to mine and continued carrying on a conversation throughout her visit—even while washing her hands! I have mentioned this to several people. They say they have encountered the same situation in restaurants, too. Abby, how would you suggest we handle this in the future?

DEAR ABBY Jeane Phillips

—SOME THINGS ARE SACRED IN MARYLAND SACRED: I shouldn't have to say this, but using a cell phone while going to the bathroom is extremely inappropriate. While the desire not to interrupt a conversation is understandable, to talk while in the background noise is reminiscent of an old Alka Seltzer jingle. It is not only an invasion of the privacy of the occupants of the adjacent stalls, but also disrespectful to the party on the other end of the line. How to handle it? Ask the offender to please stop. However, for some people the most effective lesson in consideration for others may be when their cell phone falls into the toilet and must be replaced.

they are not too heavy for him). However, Blaine sometimes forgets to say "please" and "thank you." When my son and I are out and someone gives him something—like a cookie at the bakery—if Blaine forgets and I prompt him, the person sometimes will say, "Oh, it's OK. He doesn't have to say thank you." It's very important to me that my son have good manners and always use those words. How should I respond to those who insist that it's not a big deal for children not to use their manners?

—STRICT MOTHER IN DEERFIELD, MASS. DEAR MOTHER: I applaud you for teaching your son basic good manners, a lesson that will serve him well throughout his lifetime. The person who tells you Blaine doesn't "have to" say please or thank you, speak up and correct the person by saying: "Oh, yes he does." Please and "thank you" are magic words in our family and it's important that my son always remember to say them." Do this not for the adult's benefit, but in order to reinforce the lesson to Blaine.

DEAR ABBY: My 4-year-old son, "Blaine," is well-mannered. He knows to take his hat off indoors, and opens doors for people when friend could come your way. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep raising the pot until you're the last player standing. Your confidence and optimism is well founded and you can take a chance without fear of repercussions. Projects started today will succeed. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Only make promises that you can keep. Take a risk only if it's a sure thing. Examine the details carefully before entering into any agreements and be wary of false information. Get a second opinion. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be a giver, not a taker. Share your love and good fortune with others. Give to friends, relatives, or charities and enjoy the act rather than waiting for the rewards. Treat the world as if it were family. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a few steps up the ladder today. You may have your doubts about a new agreement or partnership but in the end you will find you have made the correct decision. Don't commit funds to a project before you have explored other avenues. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may have your doubts about a new agreement or partnership but in the end you will find you have made the correct decision. Don't commit funds to a project before you have explored other avenues. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lady Luck is smiling. Take a chance, play the lottery, make a bet and you'll find pleasant results. Listen to opportunities and proposals as they become available. A new

IF OCTOBER 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Ambition is building in the background. Your eyes may be bigger than your stomach during December and January, so don't bite off more than you can chew. Avoid a tendency to promise more than you can deliver or to buy more than you can afford. You may be singled out as a leader or give recognition, but your best chance for long-lasting success comes in February through April. That's when you can make sweeping changes and improvements, especially with business, career or your job. Since you feel invincible you will be successful at anything of importance you begin.

HOROSCOPE Jereldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Now is the time to show results. As a project nears completion, you'll find yourself holding the attention of those in power. Don't shy away from the spotlight, as this will be your time to shine as a bright new star.

that grab your attention and you should be surprised at what turns up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Look for hidden agendas. If someone seems too good to be true, it is probably because they aren't quite good enough to fool you. Be cautious when entering into new agreements or making promises.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Remember what friends are for. You may have to offer a shoulder to lean on or lend a sympathetic ear to a colleague. Be the voice of reason and don't let emotion cloud issues that can easily be solved with logic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A change of pace could provide new opportunities. You may find new connections in unlikely places. Explore any new avenues

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The toughest problems can be solved with the simplest of solutions. Don't get out of your way to find an answer when the key to a matter lies right under your nose. You may make a new and lasting friendship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Now is the time to show results. As a project nears completion, you'll find yourself holding the attention of those in power. Don't shy away from the spotlight, as this will be your time to shine as a bright new star.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be realistic. You may have your doubts about a new agreement or partnership but in the end you will find you have made the correct decision. Don't commit funds to a project before you have explored other avenues.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"Never the time and the place And the loved one all together!"
 — Robert Browning

One cast-iron rule in bridge is to draw outstanding trumps so the opponents cannot score tricks with them. But every rule has its exceptions.

In today's deal North-South did well to reach four hearts, the only makeable game. But once the defenders attacked declarer's trump holding, South could not avoid losing control. He had to ensure that the defender with winners to cash never gained the lead.

Declarer took the spade-king lead with the ace and played a trump. West won with the ace, cashed the spade queen, and played the spade jack, shortening declarer. (Declarer could not discard, planning to take the next ruff in dummy, or East's nine of trumps would be promoted.)

South ruffed and played a trump to the 10, a club to the ace, and the trump queen. The 4-2 trump break was now revealed. In the six-card ending, West had control of the clubs and master spades, while East and South each had one trump left.

Declarer realized that if he drew the last trump, he would survive if East had the long club. But the contract would fail if West had the club stopper, since he would cash two spades. Accordingly, declarer left East's last trump at large and played the club king and ruffed a club. Then he crossed to a diamond honor and played good clubs. East was welcome to ruff whenever he wanted, but thereafter, dummy would be high.

ANSWER: This auction shows less than a free bid of two spades on the previous round. That would have been natural and forcing; so your partner's actions here suggest, say, 7-10 points with five or six spades. Given that you have a minimum opening and have located a playable fit, you do not need to do any more bidding. Pass, and hope he makes it.

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1 through 9. That's all there is to it. There's no math involved. The grid has numbers, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. Find the answers for today's puzzle on page E-12.

 Plaintiff,

JUSTIN L. SMITH, d/b/a
COLDWATER DUROCK,
 Defendant.

TO: JUSTIN L. SMITH d/b/a COLDWATER
 DUROCK
 You have been sued by Zions First National Bank, a national banking association, in the District Court in and for Twin Falls County,

the nature of the claim against you is for collection on an overdraft of a deposit account in an amount of $15,949.88 on 08/13/09.
 Unless you file a written response to the last publication of this summons, the court may enter a judgment against you without further notice, unless first you file a written response to the proper form, including the Case No., and paid any required filing fee to the Clerk of the Court, 125 S. Shoshone Street N., P.O. Box 126,
 Twin Falls, Idaho 83303, telephone (208) 736-4225, and send a copy of your response on the reverse side of this summons to the Plaintiff,
 Zions First National Bank, 251 E. Front Street,
 Suite 300, P.O. Box 1536, Boise, ID 83701, telephone (208) 343-5454.

A copy of the Summons and Complaint can be obtained by contacting either the Clerk of the
