Officials develop plan to fill in for Canyon View

Hospital looks to acute-care program to replace teen behavioral unit

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Local health care providers will work through a subcommittee of a regional Idaho Department of Health and Welfare board to address shortages in teen mental health care, they decided Tuesday.

A year and a half after St. Luke's Canyon View Behavioral Health Services closed its teen inpatient program, officials with the hospital, Twin Falls County and Health and Welfare met to figure out how to fill in the gaps. The program, which took up a 12-bed wing of the 28-bed facility, averaged 1.6 patients a month before it closed, hardly enough for effective care or to keep employees from leaving for other jobs, officials said. At the same time, Canyon View was seeing a rising need for adult inpatient services, but couldn't bring adult patients into the unused teen space.

At Tuesday's meeting, hospital officials pointed to a number of benefits of the closure and ways they have tried to compensate for it. Since the change, the facility's adult population has sharply grown, St. Luke's Magic Valley CEO Mark Schwartz said, displaying a graph showing an overall decrease in the number of adults turned away. It's a trend commissioners said they didn't think the county's indigent program shared, though they hadn't run their own numbers.

The hospital, working with other health providers in town, is taking steps to improve its outpatient offerings, Schwartz and others said, hopefully helping teens

Tell it to the judge

City expects to petition judge in 45 days

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

Thursday is Thanksgiving Day. In about a month it will be Christmas Day.

The city of Twin Falls is preparing for Judgment Day.

In about 45 days, city officials hope to appear before a judge and receive approval to incur long-term debt to fund a $33.3 million water package to meet

Environmental Protection Agency arsenic standards tightened in 2001. If rejected, the city would be forced to ask voters in an election that needs a simple majority to pass — a decision officials have ruled against for fear it could be rejected and jeopardize compliance.

The petition was filed Tuesday and the city is waiting to hear back on a hearing date. City Attorney Friz Worderlich said.

The city has pledged $10 million to purchase water rights, estimates $20 million is needed to transport and blend water; and is adding $3 million of the total for a separate project to cover growth-related needs. The city has weighed its options and assumes the current course is best, but officials said they can't proceed without incurring long-term debt.

But Idaho's Constitution prohibits cities from taking on more than a year's worth of debt without approval of a judge or voters. Judicial confirmation means the city can ask a judge to approve debt that is used for an "ordinary and necessary" expense. The city plans to make long-term loan agreements with state agencies.

Officials estimate it will take 24 to 30 months to finish the project, which could put the city up against the January 2011 deadline.

The city is only asking the judge whether it can assume debt — not whether it has to meet the federal mandate. But the city says it has no choice but to comply with the mandate, and the only way it can do so is to incur debt. Assistant City Manager Travis Rothwell, echoing council members and city

Maj. Eddie Patterson, based in Twin Falls with the Salvation Army, passes while playing Christmas songs Tuesday at the Magic Valley Mall. The Salvation Army began its Angel Tree project at Center Court in the mall.

More than 250 families seek help through T.F. Salvation Army

By Ben Borkin
Times-News writer

Christmas music flowed through the Magic Valley Mall Tuesday, as Salvation Army musicians played "Silent Night" and "Jingle Bells."

In addition to the tunes, the Salvation Army decorated an evergreen tree with tags bearing the names and holiday hopes of children.

For those youngsters, dreams of a jolly Christmas are pinned on the hope that a passerbey will stop at the tree and choose the tag with their name. The tags also have their Christmas wishes: books, toys and games.

With the holiday shopping season just around the bend, the Salvation Army had its Angel Tree kickoff at the Magic Valley Mall on Tuesday. This year, the need is stronger than ever.

"This is the year to give," said Maj. Eddie Patterson of the Salvation Army.

noting that the economy has been troubled.

More than 250 families are seeking help through the Salvation Army this year in Twin Falls. Of those, 75 percent are new to the Salvation Army this year, said Becky Bonnett, business manager of the Twin Falls Salvation Army Corps.

Shoppers can help families out by selecting one of the youngsters and buying what's needed. The tags also include children's clothing sizes.

From there, they can drop off their purchases at the mall's customer service department or the Salvation Army office in Twin Falls. The gifts are tax-deductible.

The Salvation Army helps with toys, clothing and food for families during the Christmas season. Another tree at the mall has the names of senior citizens needing a helping hand for the holidays.

There's another way to give, too. Salvation Army kettles will be at the mall on Friday, along with helpers ringing bells.

"The mall is so great to let us put kettles out," Patterson said.

AG clears Burley Council

Office investigated open meeting complaints

By Damon Hunziker
Times-News writer

The Burley City Council has avoided a small-town scandal, along with any references to "meeting-gate" or "sewer-gate."

In September, Cassia County Prosecutor Al Barrus referred a complaint by Burley resident John Walsh to the Idaho attorney general's office concerning a potential violation of Idaho's Open Meeting Act by the City Council.

The alleged violation relates to a bid granted to Walton Construction for a sewer line to service High Desert Milk during a May 19 council meeting.

When the meeting began, the council didn't have a quorum and therefore moved into a status-planning meeting. Walsh told investigator Scott Birch that, once business appeared to have been concluded, Walsh and others left the premises.

Afterward, Councilman Gordon Hansen was contacted by phone — which established a quorum, allowing the bid to be awarded.

Walsh alleged that the meeting had been "reconvened" without proper notice and told the investigator that he found nothing advertised the next morning on the city hall bulletin board.

The attorney general report concludes that the Seconds? Come on, it's only salmonella

What's your favorite Thanksgiving food poisoning story? Mine comes from my wife's family.

Her uncle, once upon a time, was married to a woman with a dubious grasp of cooking and food-borne pathogens.

Fortunately, my wife's mother holds a doctorate in microbiology.

So when Sally showed up for Thanksgiving dinner, she found her then-sister-in-law in the kitchen, fussing over the turkey.

"I don't know what's the matter," the woman said. "This turkey just won't cook."

Sally immediately noticed why. "Well ... it's not in the oven," she pointed out. "Oh, I've had it in the oven," the woman replied. "Off and on since about 6 o'clock last night."

"Let me get this straight," Sally said. "You've cooked the turkey, taken it out of the oven, let it sit in the open air, and then put it back in oven and cooked it again?"

"Oh, several times," her sister-in-law admitted. Sally said she once, rushed out into the living room, and declared — in her best stage whisper — "Everybody! We're eating mashed potatoes tonight!" I came from a mixed family of Salt Lake and Sweden — the two worst cooking nationalities on the face of the planet — so violent stomach cramps were never that unusual.

One Thanksgiving, my Aunt Myra placed a completely frozen turkey in the oven at 8 a.m., expecting it to be done in time for a 4 p.m. meal. It wasn't, but the unlucky few who sampled the bird the following day were really, really sorry they did.

One year, we even got poisoned by my cousin's Jell-O salad.

See, the two essential ingredients in eastern Idaho Mormon Jell-O salad are giant chunks of canned fruit and mayonnaise. The whipped dressing is dropped in dollops on the top of the salad, which is placed inside a Tupperware container.

The Tupperware goes on the floor of the back seat of the car on the way to dinner so it doesn't tip over. Fair enough—but the dog also rides in the back seat. And if Fido somehow cracks the Tupperware seal ...

Along with Jell-O that year, Cousin Myra was bringing the gravy to dinner. Some of it dripped down the front of the stove and her Golden retriever, Trouble (I'm not making this up), licked it off. Then he got into the Jell-O in the back of the car — just enough to lick off some of the Miracle Whip.

Well, it turned out to be a cross-contamination fiasco. One or another of my kin-folk was in the bathroom all day and well into the evening.

The dog, however, was apparently OK until he got into the garbage after dinner and found the giblets. We heard canine reining sounds from the kitchen, and then he retreated into the living room and my Uncle Flap's brand-new off-white carpet.

Gotta tell you, nobody knows the Trouble I've seen.

Reclaiming the feast

By Karen Bossack
Times-News correspondent

Many thought a Ketchum Thanksgiving Eve tradition went up in smoke along with the Sawtooth Club, the popular eatery partially destroyed by a September fire.

Turns out the rumors of that tradition's death were greatly exaggerated. Tonight Sawtooth Club Owner Tom Nickel will hold what would have been The Sawtooth Club's 17th Annual Thanksgiving Eve Bash across the street in his other restaurant, The Roosevelt Tavern and Grille.

True to tradition, the party will feature two-for-the-price-of-one dinners and a night-long Happy Hour.

"I had been so busy trying to get the Sawtooth Club rebuilt in time for Christmas that I hadn't really thought about it," Nickel said. "But several customers asked me about it and I thought, 'What the heck. Let's continue the tradition. God knows we need a party in Ketchum right now.'"

A tradition that involves stuffing yourself with fare from filet mignon to Cajun shellfish pasta might seem unusual, considering some Americans fast in preparation for a Thanksgiving feast.

But it's become a favorite among both locals and Thanksgiving visitors looking for a place to eat. "I started it as a way to celebrate the opening of the ski season, which usually starts Thanksgiving Day," said Nickel. "Anything to get the energy up."

Nickel hopes to keep the energy flowing by offering live music on Friday nights to fill the void created when Whiskey Jacques — Ketchum's main source of nightlife — burned to the ground in the September fire.

The live music will start just after 10 p.m. Friday with the Mark Slocum Band playing classic rock. The Kim Stocking Band will follow on Dec. 5.

On Dec. 13, Nickel plans to reopen The Sawtooth Club, "even if it kills me." There will be an open house from 3 to 6 p.m. with

Store Moroso grants the brick work on the new shelves behind the bar of The Sawtooth Club in Ketchum. Owner Tom Nickel said on Dec. 13 he plans to re-open the club damaged in a September fire, "even if it kills me."

free food, eggnog, hot buttermilk pancakes, beer and wine. At 6 p.m., the Sawtooth Club will begin serving dinner again for the first time since Sept. 14.

Nickel said all 35 workers laid off because of the fire are coming back to The Sawtooth Club. Ketchum Fire Chief Mike Elle said the September fire remains under investigation as police await a crime lab report and continue to talk to various individuals.

"We know a great deal of it and we will probably never know who unless someone comes forth with new information," he said.

Business owners say it's difficult to say how much the fire has affected other businesses along Main Street because both the national and local economy soured shortly after the fire.

"A lot of people are getting laid off around the valley and you've got to believe that's affecting business," said Rico Albright, who owns Rico's Pizza. "It strikes me, though, how quiet and how dark that block is. It looks like a couple teeth are missing from a row of teeth, and it's so dark at night when the lights come on. It's lost all its vibrancy."

The fate of Whiskey Jacques and the old Ore House building, both of which burned to the ground in the fire, remain up in the air.

Whiskey Jacques' Owner Karin Martin got the go-ahead from Ketchum's

Planning and Zoning to build a two-story building with a deck on top at the bar's former site. But she indicated she is awaiting the insurance settlement before proceeding.

George Kirk, co-owner of the old Ore House building which was vacant at the time of the fire, said he is reviewing design concepts with architects and prospective tenants.

He said he would like to restrict the building to two stories and include ground-level open space. But he worries that he may not be able to achieve the best design if he has to begin building within six months of the fire to avoid having to comply with new zoning regulations that would require him to Nickel is just thankful the rebuilding part is almost behind him.

"I remember watching the fire and thinking, 'Woe is me,'" he said.

Two Twin Falls schools hit by thefts

Thefts and vandalism were discovered at two Twin Falls elementary schools on Wednesday, police said.

Perrine Elementary School had three broken windows and a DVD player stolen, said Lt. Craig Stotts of the Twin Falls Police Department. Two modular classroom buildings, each had a window broken, and a window also was found broken on the southeast side of the main school building.

The window in the main school building was broken with a landscaping brick, Stotts said, adding that the hole wasn't big enough for entry. The DVD player, valued at about $100, was stolen from one of the modular classroom buildings, police said.

At Oregon Trail Elementary School, graffiti with obscenities was found on a window blind and two kitchen knives were stolen from the cafeteria, Stotts said.

There was no sign of a forced entry at that school. No arrests have been made.

County, hospital set mediation date

Twin Falls County and St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center will meet Dec. 16 for mediation regarding an ongoing dispute over remodeling the hospital's downtown clinic, officials from both sides confirmed Tuesday.

The meeting will be held in Twin Falls. Idaho Falls lawyer Marvin M. Smith was previously announced as mediator.

The conflict centers on how much the hospital should pay to remodel its downtown clinic for use as county office space. The county owns the building, and the 2006 agreement that sold the county-owned hospital to St. Luke's requires the health company to provide $3 million in in-kind services.

Called for to resolve disputes in the sales agreement, the mediation will be non-binding. Hospital officials originally sought to take the matter to a judge for binding arbitration.

Two convictions so far in gambling case

ISP seeks to put leak rumors 'to rest'

By Nate Poppino
Times-News writer

Two people charged earlier this year as part of a Twin Falls gambling ring will pay fines and serve probation for illegally operating slot machines, while a third is still working his way through the court system.

The three originally faced four misdemeanor charges each after a year-long Idaho State Police investigation ended in the 2007 seizure of 17 video gaming machines from the Pioneer Club, 1517 Kimberly Road, and from a house at 445 Second Ave. S. The machines were similar to slot machines, police said.

Pioneer Club owner Marvin Pierce and former Dale's Donut owner Dale Black were both sentenced Nov. 18 to pay $575 in fines and court costs and serve one year of probation. Plith District Magistrate Judge Roger Harris also withheld 60 days in jail for each man.

Both men pleaded guilty to the charges and only faced one count each of possessing a slot machine, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said. But their compatriot, Erik Jonsson, who owns the house, still faces an additional possession count and two counts of misdemeanor gambling. A pretrial conference for Jonsson was set for Tuesday, but was continued to Dec. 16 because his attorney was at a trial in Cassia County.

A guilty plea from Jonsson may still be a possibility. His case is "still in the talking phases," Loebs said.

If Jonsson does plead guilty and is offered the same deal, that would mean an investigation that could have led to felony charges would end up producing only three misdemeanor convictions. But that's just the way things work, said ISP Lt. Gary Kaufman.

The state attorney general's office reviewed the case, but decided only the misdemeanor charges would stick and passed it to the county, Kaufman said. Such cases can often take a year to investigate, he said, no matter what charges they end up producing.

"We investigated, we did as much as we possibly could, interviewed as many people as we could," he said. "This is the decision of the prosecutor."

Though Pierce told police he knew about the ISP raid of his business ahead of time, Kaufman said the agency did not in fact have a leak as previously speculated. Pierce, he said, said police were coming because of a similar raid in Jerome.

"I really need to put that rumor to rest," Kaufman said. "No one tipped anyone off."

Hispanic commission seeks better census

By Jessie L. Bonner
Associated Press writer

BOISE — The state Commission on Hispanic Affairs is working with the federal Census Bureau to provide a more accurate count of minorities living in Idaho in 2010.

The commission estimates at least 20,000 people of Hispanic heritage, as well as other minorities, were left out of the last census in 2000. The government counted 101,690 people of Hispanic heritage in Idaho eight years ago, nearly 8 percent of the total state population then pegged at 1.3 million.

"The Filipinos, the Chinese, we were all undercounted," said Miriam Santiago-Fonseca, a specialist with the state Hispanic commission. In May, the Census Bureau estimated 147,426 of the 1.5 million people living in Idaho in 2007 were of Hispanic heritage, making up nearly 10 percent of the total population.

A full count of minorities during the next major census in 2010 is critical in obtaining state and federal money for programs that serve these populations, Santiago-Fonseca said.

Homeless and migrant populations, as well as members of the gay and lesbian communities, were also missed during the last census, according to the commission.

Zee Quintana, a specialist with the regional Census Bureau office in Seattle, has worked with the commission to assemble a task force of minority representatives in Idaho and provide a more accurate count of their populations in 2010.

"In 2000, I don't think we had a target plan to reach out to minorities," Quintana said.

The regional Census Bureau opened a Boise office on Monday as one of a dozen stationed this year in Idaho, Washington, Alaska, Oregon and California. The agency plans to open 22 more local offices in these five states in 2009.

"Minorities historically have been undercounted in the census the federal government conducts every 10 years," said Alan Porter, a demographer and graphics expert with the Idaho Department of Labor.

"It's not like a conspiracy or anything, just some groups are harder to count," Porter said. "Some people are more mobile, some groups might be more suspicious of the government. It's just kind of the nature of the beast."

Overall, the census scheduled to begin in April 2010 is expected to yield a better count because the government will be using a shorter questionnaire, Porter said. Previously, the Census Bureau sent out both long and short forms.

The longer version was sent to one in six households and included a 40-question survey asking people everything from how many bathrooms were in their home to what time they left for work in the morning.

Storm puts fire-scarred Southern Calif. on edge

LOS ANGELES — Southern Californians living near areas scarred by recent wildfires sandbagged around their homes and in some places were told to leave them Tuesday as a storm approaching from the Pacific brought a threat of floods and mudslides.

Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger ordered state agencies to prepare to aid local organizations in case of disaster.

"The state stands ready to help local governments protect lives and property," he said.

A low-pressure area about 700 miles off the coast was heading northeast and could bring an inch of rain through Thanksgiving and up to 4 inches in the mountains, said Stan Wasowski, a forecaster with the National Weather Service in San Diego.

Flash flood watches were posted through this evening for areas where grass and brush that normally anchors the soil, helping to prevent mudslides, burned away. Some places could get a half-inch of rain in an hour, the Weather Service said.

Rain began to fall Tuesday night northwest of Los Angeles in Santa Barbara County, where an evacuation order affecting at least 600 homes was issued for burned areas at risk of mudslides and floods, said county spokesman William Boyer.

E. Idaho man sentenced in child rape case

ST. ANTHONY — An eastern Idaho man convicted of raping and impregnating his girlfriend's 10-year-old daughter has been ordered to spend at least five years in prison. Guadalupe Gutierrez-Juarez, 38, was sentenced to five years to life in prison Tuesday in 7th District Court. He pleaded guilty in September to felony rape as part of a plea agreement.

He was arrested in April after the girl gave birth by a Caesarian section at Madison Memorial Hospital, setting off an investigation by police.

The girl's mother has also been convicted and sentenced in the case. Last month, Isabel Chasarez was sentenced to between eight and 10 years in prison after pleading guilty to felony injury to a child for failing to provide proper prenatal care for her daughter.

Investigators say the girl became pregnant at age nine, sometime between August and September 2007.

City official claims discrimination in firing

HAYDEN — A former department head with the north Idaho city of Hayden is contending he was fired for trying to help ease the workload and make other accommodations for an employee with cancer.

Kevin Clement, 53, fired last summer as the city's public works director, said he has filed a tort claim and a separate discrimination complaint with the Idaho Human Rights Commission, related to steps he took to try to help Jim Franks, a 60-year-old department employee battling cancer.

But Clement contends those efforts were stifled by City Administrator Jay Townsend.

"Townsend told the department employees that his job was to watch where the money went," according to the discrimination complaint.

Townsend confirmed Monday that Clement had been fired in July.

Franks, who worked as a heavy equipment operator, recently quit after two stints on the Family Medical Leave Act, Townsend said. He also said it was the city's intention to keep Franks on the books as long as possible in hopes he could return to work.

BLM decides against drilling near parks

SALT LAKE CITY — Drilling leases on and near the border of national parks in Utah have been pulled from an auction block.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management announced its decision late Tuesday after negotiations with National Park Service officials who objected to noise, lights and air pollution near Arches National Park, Dinosaur National Monument and Canyonlands National Park, all in Utah.

Some of those parcels were within 1.3 miles of Delicate Arch, a freestanding span of 33 feet that is the signature landmark at Arches near Moab, Utah.

Hundreds of thousands of acres throughout Utah will still be auctioned off Dec. 19 for oil and gas drilling.

In all, the Park Service objected to 93 parcels where drilling could drown out the sounds of wind, water and wildlife for visitors, possibly contaminate nearby seeps and springs, and worsen ozone levels, Mike Snyder, the Denver-based regional Park Service director, wrote Monday in a protest letter to the bureau.

Isn't it a shame killer is short on spending money?

The state of Idaho is cutting into Vicki Arlene Jensen's prison portfolio. Jensen, a 39-year-old former Gooding resident who is serving a life sentence for murder at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Center says she should be excused from repaying the state for death benefits it paid to her victim's daughter because Jensen only makes 20 cents an hour in her prison job.

She filed an objection after discovering the state was deducting money from her prison account, saying she'll never be able to pay off the debt. Court records don't indicate how much the state is subtracting each month.

Not only is Jensen wrong, but she should be working overtime.

On Sept. 9, 1999, Jensen, Autumn Marie Pauls and Matthew Madison Pearson entered Aleta Diane Ray's Twin Falls apartment, pointed a .22-caliber handgun at her and pinned their victim on the floor. Jensen, a registered nurse, held the syringes — one with methamphetamine, one with insulin — and straddled Ray. Pauls and Pearson each pinned down an arm.

Ray begged Jensen not to inject her with meth because she was allergic to its ingredients.

"I don't care, you're going to die," Jensen replied.

After Jensen injected Ray, the three moved her to the bedroom, where they watched her struggle for breath.

They fled the apartment before Ray was dead, leaving the woman alone with her 3-year-old daughter.

Ray's offense? She was dating Jensen's estranged husband.

Pearson and Pauls are serving life sentences, with possibility of parole. Jensen will never get out of prison.

Ray's daughter, meanwhile, is 12 now. It's doubtful she remembers much about her mother.

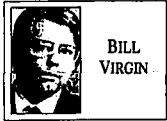

So you'll excuse us if we can't muster much sympathy for Jensen. When her case is heard in 5th District Court next month, the judge should reject her plea and send her back to Pocatello without spending money.

Our view:
If convicted murderer Vicki Arlene Jensen has to scrub floors for free in a Pocatello prison for the rest of her life, she can't begin to repay her debt to her victim's daughter.

What do you think? We welcome your views — points from our readers on this and other issues.

There's an up side to down-and-out

SBATTLE — The economy does not go into hibernation in a recession. Even during the Great Depression, someone was starting companies, innovating, making things and putting people to work on the same things businesses do when times are good. But the motivation for those actions changes when customer traffic and credit dry up. Keeping costs in check is always a good idea. Coming up with new products and new ways of operating is rarely amiss. But an economic calamity such as the one in which American business finds itself tends to heighten the need and urgency to do more than hunker down or give up.

BILL VIRGIN

And some of the things that people are doing now could determine not just which companies will survive to thrive in the rebound, but how soon the economy as a whole enjoys that recovery.

With that in mind, here are two crucial, interconnected trends to watch as the Great Unpleasantness continues to unfold:

• Consolidation: Mergers and acquisitions happen all the time. In good times they're prompted by the desire to grab more market share or new markets, to diversify or to expand into lines of business that offer promising returns.

In bad times, mergers and acquisitions happen because it's a chance to remove a competitor from the market (if they don't do the job themselves), it's an opportunity to add an asset that might have value when the economy recovers, and because the target asset is cheap.

That might explain the motivation to buy, but what explains the willingness to sell, especially at the bottom of the market? Companies would prefer to sell out for top dollar, but selling at the bottom is still preferable to getting nothing at all, which is what owners will be paid if the company falls on its own.

The banking industry has already started the round of consolidation. Expect to see more. Retailing, the airlines, perhaps auto manufacturing, even technology will see the number of players reduced.

Consolidation winnows out the weak, those with poorly thought-out strategies or poorly executed business plans — a sort of economic Darwinism — leaving the survivors to lead the next round of expansion.

• Entrepreneurship: Then again, maybe the number of players won't change, depending on the industry or market segment. Even as some companies are taken out, others will spring up to replace them.

People aren't likely to be starting a lot of new banks for the next few years, since new banks thrive in good economic times and with lots of available capital, neither of which happen to be abundant at the moment.

But people, including some from the banking industry, may be tempted to start their own companies because they've been involuntarily freed up from their current employer.

None of this is to gloss over the breadth or depth of the pain the economy and its participants are likely to face in the coming months with a chorus of "the sun'll come out tomorrow," or to suggest that sunrise is imminent. It won't be pleasant. But even in grim times the economy, and the people and companies that comprise it, are never standing still. Even when the economy appears to be in retreat, it's also gathering itself for the next dash forward.

Sick-leave issue connects with every worker

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — For Amy Stear, the motivation for the victorious binding referendum here for paid sick days was a woman who had to choose between her job and a mid-afternoon flu shot for her child. "The doctors lectured her for not bringing her child for shots," said Stear, the Wisconsin director of 9-5, the National Association of Working Women. "So he worked out with her job that she had to get off one day at 2 for an appointment at 3."

But on the day of the appointment, someone at the woman's job called in sick. The woman's supervisor asked her to stay. "She was so upset," Stear said in a recent interview. "She picked up her things and said, 'You said I could be off.' She left and they wrote her up and threatened to suspend her without pay. No one should ever have to choose between a child and a paycheck."

On Election Day, 69 percent of Milwaukee voters decided that businesses must provide full-time workers nine days of paid sick leave a year. Firms of fewer than 10 employees must provide five paid sick days. Milwaukee is just the third city after San Francisco and Washington to mandate paid sick days.

President-elect Barack Obama supports federal legislation for seven paid sick days being pushed by Massachusetts Sen. Ted Kennedy. Obama has said America could not accept a work world where "taking time off to take a sick parent to the hospital is a fireable offense."

According to the McGill University Work, Family and Equity Index, 102 nations provide 31 or more days of paid sick leave. Milwaukee, beset with high concentrations of poverty, did not wait for Obama's Washington. A petition drive that garnered more than 40,000 signatures and a door-to-door grass-roots campaign that dropped 200,000 leaflets all over the city drowned out the whining of the business community and the mayor, who claimed that sick days would do in the local economy.

"It was an issue that connected with all workers on so many levels, even if their jobs had paid sick days," said Stear, 54, a longtime labor organizer. "Milwaukee has one of the highest rates in the country for asthma. (The Asthma and Allergy Foundation ranks Milwaukee as the nation's third-leading asthma capital.)"

Parents need to take their children to the doctor in the daytime. We hear all the time of parents who make their older children stay home with sick younger children because they have to go to work no matter what. ... How many times has someone gone to work with the flu because they can't afford to lose a day's pay and then made everyone around them sick?"

Undaunted by losing the sick-leave vote by more than a 3-to-1 margin, the Metropolitan Milwaukee Association of Commerce plans a legal challenge to the ordinance. Its president, Tim Sheehy, last week told the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel, "We face the prospect of dire economic consequences."

But no such dire consequences were found in San Francisco. The city's overall job growth remains competitive with neighboring counties, according to the Institute for Women's Policy Research. The restaurant industry actually experienced a higher growth rate during the first year of the law than the year before. Kevin Westlake of the Golden Gate Restaurant Association told the San Francisco Chronicle, "Sick leave is one issue where people just looked at adjusting their policies and moved on. It hasn't been a big issue."

Perhaps that is because workers who are not stressed out about choosing between children and paychecks are happier workers. "It has been the most exhilarating experience of my years as an organizer," Stear said. "This issue connected the faith-based community, labor, healthcare workers, and educators. People decided the quality of life is not getting any better and we're not going to sit at tables begging. They went out and took democracy into their own hands."

FALLOUT FROM A DEFLATING ECONOMY

Regional jobless claims make dramatic one-week jump

Twin Falls pays out more than $220,600 in unemployment as claims up nearly 17%

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The strain of an economic downturn is becoming more apparent in south-central Idaho where jobless claims last week increased nearly 17 percent compared to the previous week.

Idaho Department of Labor officials say they are seeing an increasing number of applicants for jobless claims as fewer businesses hire temporarily workers and existing businesses reduce their workforce.

Twin Falls reportedly paid out more than $220,600 in unemployment benefits for the week beginning Nov. 16.

Burley paid out more than $66,500 during the same week. Twin Falls paid out more than $103,600 during the same time period in 2007, while Burley paid out about $36,000.

Across the state, more people are seeking jobless benefits as the job market grows thinner.

The number of unemployment insurance benefit checks issued in Idaho last week jumped over 20 percent from the previous week.

A total of 18,907 benefit checks were issued during the week ending Friday, up 3,212 from the previous week and double the same week in 2007. The average increase for the third week of November is around 700, or about 8 percent.

Over 8,600 more jobless workers have also collected federally funded extended unemployment benefits.

"This is another indication of the severe weakness of Idaho's economy," said Idaho Department of

Gov't announces new loan programs

Credit card companies to receive money

By Martin Crutinger and Jeanine Aversa
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The government, still struggling to manage a severe financial crisis, unveiled two new programs Tuesday that will provide $800 billion to try to help unfreeze the market for consumer debt from home mortgages to credit cards.

The announcements by the Federal Reserve and the Treasury Department represented the latest modifications to the largest government bailout in history, a program designed to keep the troubled financial system from dragging the country into a deep and prolonged recession.

Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson has been criticized for continuing to keep the focus of the government's response to the crisis.

Paulson on Tuesday defended all the changes, saying that there was no one response adequate by itself to deal with what he termed a once- or twice-in-a-century financial crisis. He said that was why the government was having to keep modifying its response.

"It is naive for any of us to think that when you are dealing with a situation of this magnitude that a bill could be passed or a single action taken to make all the issues go away," Paulson told reporters at a briefing on the new programs.

To try to increase the availability of home loans to borrowers, the Federal Reserve said it will buy up to $100 billion in direct obligations from mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac as well as the Federal Home Loan Banks. The Fed also will buy $500 billion in mortgage-backed securities, pools of mortgages that are bundled together and sold to investors.

The profit when a consumer debt will lend up to $200 billion to the holders of securities backed by various types of consumer loans. It will be supported by $20 billion of credit protection from the $700 billion bailout package that was enacted last month.

Peggy Jackson, director of the College of Southern Idaho Older Workers Program and a consultant for the Idaho Department of Labor, helps Ignacio Palmer and his daughter Melinda, 4, in 2007 at the Idaho Department of Commerce and Labor in Twin Falls. Jackson claims jumped almost 17 percent last week compared to the previous week, say labor officials.

Idled Idaho workers may be eligible for additional federal benefits

Times-News

The Idaho Department of Labor is notifying thousands of unemployed Idaho workers that they may be eligible for additional federally-funded extended benefits.

Under legislation signed by President Bush last week, workers who have exhausted both their regular state unemployment benefits and the initial allocation of federal extended benefits may be eligible for up to seven additional weeks of benefits if they still have not found jobs.

Workers currently receiving their initial allocation of extended federal benefits will have the extra seven weeks as they are due under the new law automatically added to their benefit entitlement.

Those who have already exhausted their initial federal extended benefit allotment will be notified about the availability of additional benefits and advised to contact their nearest Labor Department office for more information.

"As Idaho's job picture continues to erode, these additional benefits will allow the unemployed to pay their bills and support local businesses," Department Director Roger B. Madsen said. "We're already working with many of these people on training and education programs to help them find the kind of jobs that will surface once the economy begins growing again."

Workers who lose their jobs through no fault of their own receive up to 26 weeks of unemployment benefits. The amount and length of payment is determined by the wages they earned the previous 15 months. The average benefit in Idaho has been around $270 per week this year. The maximum weekly benefit amount is $364.

Last week's legislation increased the value of the extended federal benefits from 50 percent to 80 percent of the regular state benefit amount, or up to another seven weeks of benefit payments.

Lack of information leaves south-central Idaho off list of best places to get a job

CNN.com published a review on Monday that listed the best places in the country to find a job.

Idaho Falls and Pocatello were at the top of the list, but communities in south-central Idaho were nowhere to be found.

Twin Falls, Burley and Jerome should have been on the list based on the criteria that CNN used to compile the rankings.

But don't blame them for

BIZ BITES
Joshua Palmer

the exclusion.

The news organization based its decision on data obtained from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, which doesn't gather labor data on small communities — they simply don't have the resources to do it.

So, the list of best places to find a job were ranked using the best data that was available.

Or was it? CNN cited Pocatello as having an average annual unemployment rate of 2.4 percent in 2007. But according to reports from Idaho Department of Labor, the Pocatello metropolitan actually had an unemployment rate of 2.7 percent — six-tenths of a percentage point higher than Twin Falls and Jerome.

Preliminary unemployment data for 2008 was also a little fuzzy.

CNN reported that unemployment in Idaho Falls was about 2.5 percent, while the state department of labor said it was more like 3.9 percent.

But inadequate data is a common problem when reporting on local economic issues.

There is very little economic data on small communities at the local level. For example, monthly snapshots of population change, GDP, personal income and other economic indicators is only available for places like Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

This forces decision makers, and yes, even the media, to analyze data that might not be the most current.

Does it affect economic policy at the local level? Regional economists say 'no' because most decisions are made over the long-term — when more accurate and comprehensive data is available.

Does it affect our ranking in national media polls? Apparently, it does.

Congress expecting more sacrifices from automakers

By Tom Kirscher and Ken Thomas Associated Press writers

DETROIT — A list of job cuts, shuttered factories, canceled bonuses and commitments to fuel-efficient cars won't be enough next week when U.S. automakers get another shot to persuade Congress to give them $25 billion in loans.

Through the Thanksgiving weekend, teams will be tagging more meat to throw at skeptical lawmakers who vilified the automakers' top executives the last time they went to Washington. That means executive pay cuts, union concessions, and perhaps even higher fuel economy requirements and a glimpse at top-secret product plans.

At General Motors Corp., the largest of the Detroit Three and probably the most needy, teams are preparing a detailed plan, first for GM's board on Monday, then for delivery to Congress by a Dec. 2 deadline. The House Financial Services Committee plans to hear testimony on the loan requests Dec. 5.

Steve Adamke, a spokesman for committee chairman Barney Frank, D-Mass., said Tuesday that each company is expected to submit a report that will be made public to "give confidence to the people that we're not giving good money after bad."

People with knowledge of the plans being built by GM and Chrysler say they will contain more than just details of past restructuring. At GM, the company has slashed production and cut its U.S. payroll from 177,000 eight years ago to the current 104,000. Chrysler LLC's workforce was slashed 123,000 10 years ago to about 66,000 today.

The person briefed on GM's preparations, who didn't want to be identified because of the plan hasn't been finalized, says it is likely to include new, more visible sacrifices from top executives, even working for $1 per year. Also on the table are concessions from the United Auto Workers, including elimination of the much-criticized jobs bank in which laid-off workers keep getting most of their pay.

Executive pay cuts are almost a certainty, given the language in a letter House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., sent to the automakers last week demanding detailed plans.

"In return for their additional burden, taxpayers also deserve to see top automobile executives making significant sacrifices," Commerce Secretary Carlos Guterrez and Energy Secretary Samuel Bodman said the carmakers have to show they "have a product mix and cost structure that is competitive in the U.S. marketplace."

"That includes addressing 'labor, management and legacy costs,' as well as how the industry will meet fuel efficiency standards, among other factors," the secretaries wrote to Frank and Sen. Chris Dodd, D-Conn., the Banking Committee chairman.

Worse than in '07

WASHINGTON — The economy took a tumble in the summer that was worse than first thought as American consumers throttled back their spending by the most in 28 years, further proof the country is in the throes of a painful recession. The updated reading on the economy's performance, released Tuesday by the Commerce Department, showed gross domestic product shrank at a 0.5 percent rate in the second quarter.

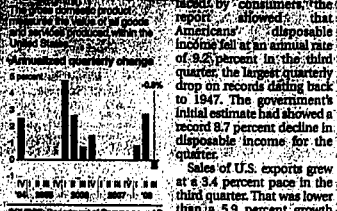

FDIC adds 54 more banks to its 'problem list'

No banks from south-central Idaho listed

By Madlen Reed Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said Tuesday the list of banks it considers to be in trouble shot up nearly 50 percent to 171 during the third quarter — yet another sign of escalating problems among the institutions controlling Americans' deposits. The 171 banks on the FDIC's "problem list" encompass only about 2 percent of the nearly 8,500 FDIC-insured institutions. None of the banks based in south-central Idaho were on the list.

"We've had profound problems in our financial markets that are taking a rising toll on the real economy," said FDIC Chairman Sheila Bair in a statement, adding that Tuesday's report "reflects these challenges." Banks across the country have been hurt — and in some cases, devastated — by the collapse of the subprime mortgage market and subsequent problems across the lending spectrum. As the FDIC report shows, the number of troubled institutions is rising at a quickening pace, a trend that has already begun to reshape the banking industry. The FDIC said total assets held by troubled institutions climbed from 578.3 billion to $115.6 billion — a figure that suggests that the nation's top 20 banks aren't on the list, even though they are getting slammed, too, by the growing credit crisis. The FDIC does not reveal the names of the institutions it deems troubled.

But Ely, a banking consultant based in Alexandria, Va., pointed out that the assets held by problem banks represent less than 1 percent of those held by all U.S. banks. "We're still talking about a fairly small portion of the industry," he said.

And on average, only about 13 percent of institutions on the FDIC's list end up failing. Still, banks that don't make it can end up collapsing anyway — the two biggest bank failures over the past year, Washington Mutual Inc. and IndyMac Bancorp, had not been on the FDIC's list of troubled banks. Wachovia Corp., which nearly failed before it got bought by Wells Fargo & Co. in October, had not been on the list, either.

Nine banks failed in the third quarter, decreasing the FDIC's deposit insurance fund to $54.6 billion from $45.2 billion in the second quarter. This quarter, the pace appears to be picking up — nine banks have already failed since Sept. 30, including Downey Savings and Loan Association, based in Newport Beach, Calif. "To some extent, a bank failure is a regulatory failure," Ely said. Regulators, if they address bank problems early on, can convince a troubled bank to sell off assets, raise capital or find a buyer, he said. "My hope is they're moving faster on these problems."

Yellowstone Club officials negotiate with lender

By Matt Goeas Associated Press writer

BUTTE, Mont. — Officials with the Yellowstone Club and its lender began private negotiations Tuesday after a closed-door hearing with a federal bankruptcy judge.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Ralph Kirscher said he hoped the two sides were making progress and could reach an agreement.

"What that is exactly, I don't know," Kirscher told a courtroom of lawyers and others with a stake in the bankruptcy hearing. He said he was giving both sides until about midday to come up with a deal.

"Negotiation in Chapter 11 is paramount to getting things done," he said, adding that if the Yellowstone Club and its lender can't reach an agreement, it'll be up to him to sort things out.

Before the negotiations began, Kirscher held a closed court session, saying he needed to find out what was happening with the Yellowstone Club and its long list of creditors.

The club near Yellowstone National Park is a getaway for the extraordinarily rich, including Microsoft tycoon Bill Gates and Los Angeles Dodgers owner Frank McCourt.

The Yellowstone Club sought protection in bankruptcy court on Nov. 10. A $4.5 million loan recently arranged through Credit Suisse was enough to sustain the club for only three weeks.

Kirscher said the current economic turmoil is making it more difficult for the Yellowstone Club to make financial arrangements. The Yellowstone Club was founded by billionaire Tim Blissett and his former wife, Edna. She now controls it as part of their recent divorce settlement.

"We've had profound problems in our financial markets that are taking a rising toll on the real economy." — FDIC Chairman Sheila Bair

What The U.S. Treasury's Trust In Banner Bank Means To You.

A Message From The President & CEO

If there's one thing you can conclude from all the ups, downs and economic storms we all have weathered in the last few months, it's this.

Your money is safe at Banner Bank.

Many of you may have heard that Banner Bank has been selected to receive funding from the Department of the Treasury. What this actually means is that regulators and government officials have recognized how we've maintained a steady, well-capitalized core and expect us to remain on that course for the long term.

In essence, the stated purpose of the Treasury program is to stimulate lending by the stronger banks, thereby providing funding to businesses and consumers to accelerate the climb out of this recession. We pledge to do our part to use these funds to provide sound loans in the communities we serve.

Another way we protect your money is with FDIC insurance. Through Banner Bank and our sister bank, Islanders Bank, we are able to substantially increase your FDIC coverage. For example a couple could be insured up to $1,600,000 through proper account structuring. And business-wise, Banner participates in the FDIC program that guarantees all deposits in non-interest bearing accounts, and offers collateralized repurchase agreements for your peace of mind!

So if you haven't considered Banner Bank or would like to expand your current relationship with us, we invite you to visit bannerbank.com or drop by any one of our 86 branches or loan offices. We have the deposit and lending products in place to put your mind at ease.

Germ alert: Motorists warned to steer clear of flabed trucks carrying chickens

By Mike Stobbe Associated Press writer
ATLANTA — You've heard about the chicken that crossed the road. But have you heard the one about the chickens traveling down the road? It's no laughing matter.

the back of an open truck can shoot a bunch of nasty bacteria into the cars behind them, researchers have found. Drivers stuck behind such a truck should "pass them quickly" advised study co-author Ana Itule, a researcher at Johns Hopkins University.

Even so, it's not clear that germicidal debris will make you sick. None of the scientists who studied this problem got sick. And the disease-causing bacteria in question are normally spread by food or water, not air. Rule and her colleagues at the Bloomberg School of Public Health focused on the so-called Delmarva Peninsula, a coastal area that includes parts of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. The region is a chicken mecca, with one of the highest concentrations of broiler chickens per acre in the nation. The researchers chose a 17-mile stretch of highway connecting chicken farms in Maryland to a processing plant to the south in Accomac, Va. They rode in four-door cars with all the windows down and the air conditioning off. They checked the cars for bacteria after driving when there were no chicken trucks around. And they checked for bacteria after 10 trips behind flabed trucks carrying crates of broiler chickens. They collected bacteria from air samples, door handles and soda cans inside the car. In all the truck crashes, they found high levels of certain bacteria, including some that are resistant to antibiotics.

Longing for leftovers?

With these recipes, you won't dread dinner's aftermath

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

For Anne Mason, the best part of Thanksgiving food is not the big turkey dinner itself.

It's the next day, when she and her husband, Scott, put the leftovers to use.

"By the time I get dinner on the table on Thanksgiving Day I'm too full to enjoy it because just cooking the dinner somehow seems to fill me up," said Anne, who with her husband has run the popular Ketchum Grill for the past 18 years.

The couple often plans Thanksgiving dinner with leftovers in mind, right down to the spices they use.

"There's so much rich, heavy and sweet stuff at Thanksgiving we like to make our leftovers spicy to wake up the taste buds."

— Anne Mason

Hence, the enchiladas. And the chipotle yams.

The yams, which have graced the family table for 20 years, can even undergo another round of leftovers as soup, Scott said.

Some years we have had so many yams left over that they have appeared at the Ketchum Grill as the soup for the weekend following Thanksgiving. Mmm good," he said. "We also love

Ketchum restaurateur Scott Mason turns leftover turkey into enchiladas, and he spices his Thanksgiving yams so they'll be suitable for soup the second time around.

Hagerman chef puts leftover turkey to work

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Cooking has long been an adventure for Kirt Martin, ranging from his French grandmother's cooking of wild game to his U.S. Navy tour of Vietnam, expanding his culinary horizons at every port of call.

Consequently, Martin is quick to challenge people to think out of the box when it comes to something as traditional as Thanksgiving dinner — and its leftovers.

"People get so locked into the idea that if pheasant's in the title, we can only use pheasant for that recipe. Step out — substitute turkey for pheasant or chicken. Substitute turkey breast for veal cutlet," said Martin, who runs the Snake River Grill in Hagerman.

Martin introduced a nationally televised cooking show, "Cooking on the Wild Side," on The Outdoor Channel in 1999 and published a companion cookbook.

More recently, he launched a company called Cooking with Kirt and a Web site (www.cookingwithkirt.com) to host an interactive cookbook of video clips.

"Turkey is priced well, and the things you can do with it are endless," he said. "You can do a quick saute when you come home and have a nice, quick healthy meal.

"You can even slice off some breast cutlet lobes before you cook the turkey, pound them out and lightly bread them with bread crumbs and fresh herbs. Saute them in 50/50 olive oil and butter — the olive oil makes it so it won't burn but you still have the butter flavor. Then add a cream sauce, mushroom sauce or marinara sauce.

Or do the same with cooked turkey breast, but warm it up in a microwave and pour the sauce over."

Here are a few of Martin's suggestions for using leftover turkey:

TURKEY SALAD

- 2 pounds cooked turkey, chopped
- 1 cup celery, chopped
- 1/2 cup Spanish onions, chopped
- 1/4 cup fresh parsley, chopped
- 1/4 cup green onions, thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon lemon pepper
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons fresh dill, chopped
- 1 cup pineapple, chopped
- 1 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup red bell pepper, chopped

Mix all ingredients well in a large bowl and chill.

TURKEY BURRO RANCHERO

- 2 pounds cooked turkey, pulled
- 6 cups chicken stock, concentrated
- 1 cup fresh tomato paste
- 2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1 1/2 cups Spanish onion; wedge cut
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon garlic, chopped
- 1 cup bell peppers, wedge cut
- 1 cup Monterey Jack cheese
- 1/4 cup fresh cilantro, chopped
- 1 cup cabbage, shredded
- Comstarch to thicken
- 6 flour tortillas
- Sour cream to garnish

To make the sauce, bring 4 cups chicken stock, 1 cup onion, bell peppers, 1 tablespoon chili powder and tomato paste to a simmer; thicken with cornstarch and season with salt and pepper.

To make the filling, saute garlic and 1/2 cup onion in butter until translucent; add 2 cups chicken stock and 1 tablespoon chili powder; bring to a simmer and add the cooked meat. Season.

To serve, place a cup of meat mixture on a warmed tortilla, top with shredded cabbage, cilantro and cheese and roll up the shell. Top with sauce, garnish with sour cream.

What you need to entertain during the holidays

By Terri Sapenza
The Washington Post

The day and time are set, and the menu is planned. Now it's time to focus on the basics.

We asked several experts for their thoughts on household essentials for holiday entertaining. If your supply is low, after-season sales are great for stocking up.

Our experts: Sue Bluford, floral designer and party organizer; Susan Gage, caterer; Almee Dominick, event planner.

Folding chairs

I have at least six on hand, our experts say, but only if you have a place to keep them.

"If you have room to store them without creating clutter, then it always pays," Bluford says. Renting is another option.

All-purpose wineglasses

In addition to crystal glasses, Dominick stocks cases of all-purpose, dishwasher-safe stemmed glasses.

They're less expensive and provide less worry. "I don't feel badly if someone breaks one, and I can just throw them in the dishwasher at the end of the night."

You'll want at least two glasses per person, one for cocktails and one for setting the table. And don't worry about having a matched set. "Using mixed glassware is just charming," Gage says. "And breaking one isn't going to ruin your set."

Cocktail napkins

The choice was unanimous: white hemstitched linen. "It's a nice, crisp, fresh look, which you can dress up with a monogram," Bluford says. "The more you use them and wash them, the better they get." (For dinner napkins, Gage suggests 20-inch square white cotton napkins that can be bleached.)

Place mats and runners

Our panel prefers these in place of full tablecloths.

The look is "lighter, airier, homier and gives a good reflection," Gage says. They are a younger, less traditional look, Dominick says, "and you're not covering the table that you probably just spent a fortune on."

Candles

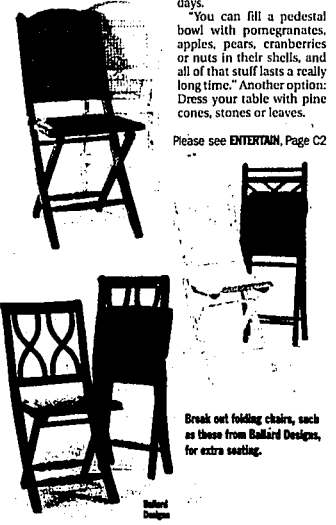

Our experts prefer to mix and match shapes and sizes to keep things interesting (round, square, tapers, pillars, votives). Bluford prefers thick candles, Gage likes filling a hurricane lamp with acorns, cranberries or kumquats and a pillar candle, and Dominick likes tapers for "the height and because they put a nice light on people's faces." And all agree: Keep them unscented.

Flowers

Simple is better. "Get loads of one type of flower," Bluford recommends. "Don't try to mix and match and arrange. The more of one type, the greater the impact." But you don't always have to use flowers, Gage says, especially during the holidays.

"You can fill a pedestal bowl with pomegranates, apples, pears, cranberries or nuts in their shells, and all of that stuff lasts a really long time." Another option: Dress your table with pine cones, stones or leaves.

potato cakes for breakfast the day after Thanksgiving and, of course, turkey sandwiches and turkey with rice soup until the last bone is gone. No part of the Thanksgiving meal goes to waste — even the memories are rescued and saved.

Here are the Masons' Thanksgiving leftover recipes:

LEFTOVER TURKEY ENCHILADAS

- 3 cups leftover turkey, diced
- 1/4 cup sliced olives
- 1/2 yellow onion, diced
- 1/2 bunch cilantro, chopped
- 1 poblano pepper, diced
- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 cups jack or mozzarella cheese, grated
- Pinch of salt
- 12 corn tortillas
- 4 (4-ounce) cans green enchilada sauce or 2 cups homemade

- tomatillo sauce
- 4 tablespoons corn oil

In a mixing bowl, mix all ingredients except 1 cup of grated cheese, the tortillas, the green enchilada sauce and the oil. Add salt if needed. Sift one tortilla at a time by sautéing lightly in corn oil. Roll some of turkey mixture with each tortilla, making fat cigar shapes.

Place one by one into a baking dish large enough to hold all the enchiladas seam side down. Cover with the enchilada sauce and remaining cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes. Serve hot with black beans and Mexican rice.

CHIPOTLE YAMS (THEN, CHIPOTLE YAM SOUP)

10 yams (the orange ones — not sweet potatoes, which are white inside)

- 3 cups heavy cream
- 2 chipotle peppers (for a small can of 3 or 4 peppers)
- Juice from one lime
- 1 large yellow onion, diced
- Kosher salt to taste

Peel and slice the yams. If you are using a Cuisinart, use the 2-millimeter blade for slicing. Place in a casserole or baking dish large enough to accommodate.

Puree or chop finely the chipotle peppers, the sauce from the can, onion and lime juice. Stir in cream. Season with salt and pour over the sliced yams. Bake at 375 degrees for 1 hour and serve.

Use the leftovers to make yam soup by pureeing the leftover yams with chicken broth in a food processor until the desired consistency is reached. Heat to boiling and check for seasoning. Serve hot and garnish with leftover cranberry chutney or sauce.

TURKEY CORN & LIMA BEAN SOUP

- 1/2 tablespoon butter
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 garlic clove, chopped
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 2 1/2 cups water
- 4 cups chicken stock
- 2 celery ribs, sliced
- 1/2 cup leek, sliced
- 1 carrot, quartered and thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup fresh green beans, sliced
- 1/2 cup lima beans
- 1/2 cup corn kernels
- 6 ounces cooked turkey, cubed
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 thyme sprig
- Salt and pepper, to taste

Melt the butter in a large saucpan over medium heat. Add the onion, garlic, celery, leek and carrot and saute, stirring frequently for 4-5 minutes until just softened. Stir in the flour and continue cooking for 2 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Gradually pour in the water, stirring constantly and scraping the bottom of the pan to mix the flour. Bring to a simmer, stirring frequently, and cook for 2 minutes. Add the stock and stir until smooth. Add the green beans, lima beans, corn, thyme, bay leaf and turkey meat. Season with salt and pepper. Bring back to a boil, reduce the heat to a simmer and cook for about 35 minutes. Serve with crusty bread.

SURVIVING THANKSGIVING DINNER

Good gravy

The Washington Post

In addition to using a richly flavored turkey or chicken stock or broth to make gravy, consider adding other flavor enhancers.

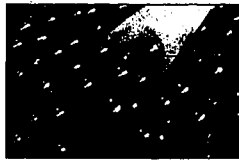

- Wine: Use white instead of red, because the latter can turn the gravy an odd purple-gray color. Use no more than 1/4 cup of wine for every cup of stock or broth.
- Roasted garlic: For every cup of gravy, whisk in 2 to 3 tablespoons of roasted garlic paste. (To roast garlic, top off the top of a head of garlic so that its cloves are exposed a bit. Drizzle with olive oil and wrap tightly in aluminum foil, then roast for about 40 minutes in a 400-degree oven. Squeeze the cloves into a small bowl and mash to form a puree.)
- Caramelized onions or shallots: Chop onions or shallots and cook slowly (for at least 30 minutes) in butter until very tender and dark golden brown. Add about 1/4 cup for every cup of gravy.
- Liquor: Sounds like a good idea, and it is. But don't overdo it. Add no more than 2 tablespoons of bourbon, cognac, brandy, port wine, Madeira or sherry for every cup of gravy.
- Chili peppers: Use a dedicated spice grinder to finely process dried ancho, chipotle or habanero peppers, depending on the level you like. Do not use store-bought chili powder, which might contain other spices. Add the freshly ground pepper to the gravy gradually, by the quarter-teaspoonful, to taste.

Creative cranberry sauce

The Washington Post

Substitute brown sugar (preferably dark) in any cranberry sauce recipe that calls for white (granulated) sugar. Brown sugar will deepen the sauce's flavor and color.

- Rinse the cranberries and sort through them for shrivelled berries and stems.
- Place them in a heavy saucpan, along with the remaining recipe ingredients to make about 2 cups of a basic sauce, we use 1 cup of dark brown sugar and 1 cup of water for 12 ounces of berries).
- Cook, stirring often, until the cranberries come to a boil and burst.

• Cook until the fruit's juices thicken. The longer the sauce cooks, the thicker it will be when cooled.

Sweet potatoes with streusel

The Washington Post

A pecan streusel topping is the right alternative for those who prefer their sweet potatoes unencumbered by the usual melted marshmallows. The topping can be prepared up to 8 hours in advance and stored at room temperature.

potatoes or yams (about 6 medium-size, or 3 pounds, peeled): Combine 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup packed light brown sugar and 6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) unsalted butter at room temperature in a bowl.

pecans mix well. • Roast the pan of sweet potatoes or yams in a 375-degree oven for about 20 minutes, with just enough heavy cream poured over them to barely cover. • Sprinkle the streusel topping evenly over the dish. Return to the oven and roast for 30 minutes, until lightly browned. Serve hot.

Thanksgiving advice: Keeping the plumber away

Times-News

Thanksgiving feasts are responsible for so many kitchen sink and sewer clogs that the day after Thanksgiving is the single busiest day of the year for Roto-Rooter, a national provider of plumbing and drain cleaning services.

- Roto-Rooter offers this advice for keeping clear of clogs:
 - Never pour fats or cooking oils down drains. They solidify in pipes. Instead, wipe grease from pots with paper towels and throw the paper towels in the trash.
 - No stringy, fibrous waste in the garbage disposal (such as poultry skins, celery, fruit and potato peels). Disposals can't sufficiently grind these items.
 - Make sure the disposal is running when you put food into it. Don't wait until it's full to turn it on. • Wait 10 minutes between showers so slow drains have time to do their job. • Never flush cotton balls, swabs, hair or facial scrub pads down a toilet. They don't dissolve, and they cause clogs.

Cake plates and plate stands

"Everyone should have one really fabulous cake plate," Bluford says. They provide height on a table and make room for more food. Gage loves three-tiered plate stands. "You can put desserts on them, cakes, charcuterie. There's no end to what you can do. And you can change the plates for a different look, from elegant to country."

Platters

Stock up on platters after the season when they typically go on sale, Dominick says. "An interesting serving piece can make even a frozen dessert look really special," Gage recommends. Having at least one platter to serve cheese on. "There are so many great cheeses around, and it's not something that requires a lot of work."

Bar basics

A glass water pitcher is a nice basic for serving anything from water to pre-mixed cocktails, Bluford says. Also a good idea: "a large container that you can use to make a self-service bar out of," Dominick says. This can be a monogrammed silver tub or a galvanized metal bucket. Lastly, she says, always have a few bottles of red and white wine around, as well as chilled champagne.

"You never know when there's going to be something to celebrate."

Bold Cajun blends, Chinese five-spice powder, Caribbean jerk, garam masala from India, Middle Eastern baharat, Thai green curry paste — each of these blends of spices and herbs has its origins as a cornerstone of a regional cuisine. Traditionally developed over time and honed through generations, spice blends are calculated combinations of fresh or dry ingredients that create a symphony of flavors. Walk the spice aisle of any store and an endless variety abound.

But make your own and you'll be delighted at how fresh, vibrant and aromatic the flavors are. And you can tailor your blends to suit your tastes and your family's palates.

To make dry spice blends or powders, use a spice mill or coffee grinder, for a more rustic version, use a mortar and pestle and a little elbow grease. To make spice pastes or fresh blends that incorporate such ingredients as garlic, lemon and herbs, try a food processor or blender. Dry blends will keep for weeks properly stored in an airtight container; fresh will keep refrigerated for a week or less. Ready to punch up a last-minute meal?

Start with a single spice or herb and build around it. This foundation doesn't need to dominate the mix, but it's a base. Construct your blend along the lines of a classic or create your own medley.

For example, not only does allspice fit into a traditional Ethiopian berbere blend alongside cardamom, garlic, coriander, fenugreek and red pepper, it also marries well into a chili powder of garlic, oregano, coriander, cloves and a range of chiles. Amaranth-colored, white or black currant seeds, each with its own flavor, might be the basis for a Southwestern-style rub or an Indian-style masala for braised vegetables.

Two of the lesser-known traditional spice blends, poudre de Colombo and charmolina, are terrifically versatile, easy to make and great to have on hand for everyday cooking.

Poudre de Colombo, or

A North African charmolina marinade saffers jumbo shrimp paired with lemon and grilled on skewers over a hot flame.

Colombo powder, is the quintessential spice blend of the West Indies. Recipes vary. There's a fresh-paste Colombo of ground chiles, garlic, lemon and aromatics; the powder is a dry blend of toasted spices, including mustard, cumin, coriander, turmeric, peppercorn and fenugreek (toasting the spices gives the mix an earthy, rounded profile). It's used as a flavor base in a traditional stew of the same name, although it also can be used as a marinade or rub for any meat.

Charmolina — a North African blend of fresh herbs and spices that includes garlic, lemon juice, parsley, cilantro, salt, pepper and oil — can be stored in the refrigerator for up to a week. In this recipe, garlic, ginger, parsley, cilantro and red pepper are ground to a paste, then mixed with ground cumin, bay leaf, saffron, cayenne pepper and Spanish paprika.

The paste is mixed with olive oil and then stored overnight for the flavors to develop. Use charmolina as a 30-minute marinade for fish, a finishing sauce for meats and vegetables, or even a dip with bread.

To really show off a batch of poudre de Colombo, try the dish called Colombo pork loin curry from "Creole," a new cookbook by Babette de Rozieres. Pork loin is marinated in a blend of onion, garlic, cumin, habanero chiles, vinegar and oil, then quickly stewed in a broth that's flavored with half a cup of poudre de Colombo (there's also a fresh paste of garlic, ginger and habanero chile). Potatoes, zucchini and eggplant are cooked quickly in the broth, and the spicy dish is finished with a splash of fresh lime juice.

Charmolina is a perfect complement to fish and shellfish. For an fabulous entree that, with some planning, requires very little last-minute effort, marinate jumbo shrimp for a couple hours in a charmolina blend, then thread them onto skewers with sliced fresh lemon and grill over a hot fire. The flavors are vivid and bright, rounded out with just the faintest heat from the cayenne.

You can blend even more ingredients into your spice blends. Sweeten poudre de Colombo with some agave syrup or honey and rub it on a pork roast or rack of ribs. Combine the powder with a citrus marinade for zesty chicken on a hot fire. Mix charmolina with a little yogurt as a marinade for lamb chops, or thin it with a little more oil and use it to baste halibut or salmon on the grill.

At the end of the day, it's your blend.

CHARMOLINA

4 garlic cloves, minced
1 tablespoon minced ginger
1/2 cup chopped parsley
1/2 cup chopped cilantro
zest and juice of 1 lemon
2 teaspoons sweet Spanish paprika
pinch cayenne powder
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 dried bay leaf, crumbled
pinch saffron
1/2 cup olive oil
1/4 teaspoon salt

Using a mortar and pestle, or in the bowl of a food processor, grind the garlic and ginger to a paste. Add the chopped parsley, cilantro and lemon zest and coarsely mash. Stir in the lemon juice. Stir in the paprika, cayenne, cumin, bay leaf and saffron and grind to incorporate.

Slowly pour in the olive oil while blending to form an emulsion, then stir in the salt. Adjust the seasoning as necessary, then cover and refrigerate at least 1 day before using.

Total time: 20 minutes. Servings: Makes scant 1 cup. Store the charmolina for up to 1 week, refrigerated, in an airtight jar or plastic bag.

GRILLED SHRIMP CHARMOLINA

1 pound cleaned, tail-on jumbo shrimp (12 to 16) charmolina (see related recipe), divided

1 large lemon, sliced crosswise into 1/8-inch slices

oil for the grill

Combine the shrimp and 1/3 cup charmolina in a large plastic bowl or resealable plastic bag and marinate in the refrigerator for 2 hours. Ten minutes before removing the shrimp from the refrigerator, soak the bamboo skewers in water to prevent the wood from burning. Remove the shrimp from the marinade and thread with the lemon slices onto the prepared bamboo skewers.

Heat the grill to medium-high heat. When the grill is ready, oil the rack and place the skewers on top. Grill the skewers until the shrimp are fully pink and opaque, about 2 to 3 minutes per side. Serve immediately with the remaining charmolina sauce.

Total time: 15 minutes, plus marinating time. Servings: 2 to 4.

Flavorful fish in 20 minutes

By Bonnie S. Bernick
The Washington Post

Ina Garten made sure to include this quick dish in her new "Back to Basics" cookbook, because "everyone who tastes it goes home and makes it the next day," she says.

We feel that way about a lot of her recipes, as Garten's cooking remains straightforward and accessible. The Contessa was delighted to tell us that she got the recipe from the coat-check girl at the hair salon she uses in Paris.

Serve the fish with oven-roasted vegetables such as fennel, green beans or tomatoes. If the book is within your reach already, Garten suggests her Parmesan Broccoli or Orange Pecan Wild Rice as suitable side dishes.

Adapted from her "Barfoot Classics: Back to Basics" (Clarkson Potter, 2008).

MUSTARD-ROASTED FISH

4 servings

4 skin-on mild white-fleshed fish fillets, such as black rockfish or Alaskan red snapper (6 to 8 ounces each)

Kosher salt, plus 1 teaspoon for the sauce

Freshly ground black pepper, plus 1/2 teaspoon for the sauce

2 to 3 medium shallots

1 to 2 teaspoons capers

8 ounces creme fraiche

2 cups water

2 tablespoons Dijon-

style mustard

1 tablespoon whole-grain mustard

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees. Line a rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper, or have a baking dish ready that is large enough to hold the fish in a single layer (the fillets can overlap slightly).

Season the fillets lightly on both sides with salt and pepper. Place them skin side down on the sheet (or in the dish).

Mince the shallots (to yield 2 tablespoons) and drain the capers (to taste); place both in a medium bowl, then add the creme fraiche, both of the mustards, 1 teaspoon of the salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper, stirring to combine. Spoon the sauce over the fillets, making sure the fish is completely covered. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes, until it is just barely cooked through.

Serve hot or at room temperature, with sauce from the pan (or dish) spooned over the top.

Perk up broccoli dishes

By Margy Perry
Special to Newsday

Don't get stuck serving the same vegetables prepared the same way night after night. Here are three variations on the broccoli theme. Broccoli rabe should always be blanched before sautéing, or braising; broccoli should be steamed, microwaved or sautéed only to the point where it is bright green and crisp-tender (to preserve both nutrients and flavor), and broccolini is best when briefly sautéed.

SAUTEED BROCCOLINI

Broccolini is a hybrid — a cross between broccoli and Chinese broccoli, or gai lan. Broccolini looks like long, lean broccoli, but unlike broccoli, the stalks are as appealing to eat as the florets. Some say it is sweeter than broccoli; I think it is comparable but a little more flavorful.

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 3 cloves garlic, thinly sliced
 - 1 pound broccolini
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Salt to taste

1. Heat the olive oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium-high heat. Add the garlic and cook 15 seconds. Add the broccolini and cook, tossing occasionally, for 4 to 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Add 1/4 cup water to the skillet (it will sizzle and splatter a little) and cook 1 to 2 minutes, or until broccolini is crisp-tender.

2. Remove from heat, toss with lemon juice and salt to taste and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Per serving: 111 calories, 4 g protein, 9 g carbohydrates, 1 g fiber, 7 g fat, 1 g saturated fat, 34 mg sodium. (The olive oil is responsible for about half the calories; to cut back, use 1 tablespoon or less.)

BROCCOLI RABE

Reduce much of the bitterness of broccoli rabe by blanching (cooking briefly in boiling water) first.

- 1 1/2 pounds broccoli rabe (rapi)
- 4 slices bacon

- 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- Salt to taste

1. Bring a large pot of lightly salted water to a boil. Add the broccoli rabe and cook 5 to 6 minutes, or until bright green and crisp-tender. Drain and coarsely chop into 3-inch pieces.

2. Meanwhile, cook the bacon in a large skillet. Remove from the pan and drain on a plate lined with paper towels. Pour off all but 1 tablespoon of the bacon drippings.

3. Add the cooked broccoli rabe to the skillet containing the bacon drippings and stir in the red pepper flakes. Cook, tossing, 1 to 2 minutes. Crumble the reserved bacon, toss with the rabe. Add salt, if desired, and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Per serving: 114 calories, 8 g protein, 8 g carbohydrates, 0 g fiber, 6 g fat, 2 g saturated fat, 201 mg sodium.

HOISIN BROCCOLI

Control how sweet and how hot this is by the amount of hoisin and chili sauce you use.

- 1 tablespoon sesame oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 4 cups broccoli florets
- 1/3 cup lower-sodium chicken broth
- 2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
- 1/8 teaspoon (or to taste) Asian chili sauce

1. Heat oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium-high heat. Add the garlic and cook, stirring, 15 seconds. Add the broccoli and cook, tossing, for 1 minute. Add the broth, cover the skillet and cook about 3 minutes, or until the broccoli is bright green.

2. Remove the cover and continue cooking until the liquid is evaporated and the broccoli crisp-tender, about 2 more minutes. Stir in the hoisin and chili sauces, toss thoroughly, and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Per serving: 71 calories, 2 g protein, 8 g carbohydrates, 2 g fiber, 4 g fat, 1 g saturated fat, 202 mg sodium.

COLOMBO PORK LOIN CURRY

Adapted from "Creole" by Babette de Rostres. To make the ground rice, toast a single layer of rice in a heavy-bottom skillet over medium-high heat for 5 minutes until golden, shaking frequently. Cool the rice and grind to a fine powder using a spice or coffee grinder; sift the rice through a fine mesh strainer to remove any large particles.

- Marinated pork:
- 2 pounds pork loin, cut into 2-inch cubes
 - 1 medium onion, chopped
 - 4 cloves garlic, chopped
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons minced ginger
 - 1 to 2 habanero peppers, seeded and minced
 - pinch ground cumin
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
 - 2 tablespoons canola oil
 - 2 tablespoons white-wine vinegar

Place the meat in a large sealable plastic bag or nonreactive container. Add the onion, garlic, ginger and peppers, then the cumin, salt and pepper. Pour in the oil and vinegar and mix well. Cover and chill for 2 to 3 hours. Shake off and discard the excess marinade.

- Colombo curry:
- 3 tablespoons canola oil, divided
 - 1 cup marinated pork
 - 1 cup chicken broth
 - 1 onion, chopped
 - 2 cloves garlic, chopped
 - 1 sprig thyme, leaves removed and chopped
 - 1 sprig flat-leaf parsley
 - 1 bay leaf
 - 2 cloves
 - 1 or 2 habanero chilies (optional), as desired, seeded and minced
 - scant 1/2 cup poudre de Colombo (see recipe on this page)
 - 2 cups diced potatoes, peeled and cut into 3/4-inch cubes

- POUDRE DE COLOMBO
- 3 tablespoons cumin seeds
 - 3 tablespoons coriander seeds
 - 1 tablespoon black or brown mustard seeds
 - 1 tablespoon fenugreek seeds
 - 1 tablespoon black peppercorns
 - 1 teaspoon whole cloves
 - 3 tablespoons turmeric

In a large sauté pan, combine the cumin, coriander, mustard and fenugreek seeds with the peppercorns and cloves. Toast the spices over medium-high heat until fragrant and lightly browned, 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from the pan and cool, then grind to a fine powder using a spice the onion, garlic, thyme, parsley, bay leaf, cloves, chiles and poudre de Colombo. Season with 3/4 teaspoon salt, or to taste. Cover and bring to a boil; cook for 15 minutes.

Stir in the potatoes, cover and reduce the heat to a gentle simmer. Continue to cook, at a bare simmer, for 20 minutes, until the potatoes are just tender. During the last 10 minutes, remove the pork (keep it warm) and stir in the eggplant and zucchini. When the vegetables are tender, strain them and add them to the pork. Discard the bay leaf, parsley sprig, thyme sprig and cloves.

Bring the sauce to a simmer and gently rain in the ground rice, whisking until it's fully incorporated with no lumps. Simmer the sauce until the rice is cooked and the sauce is thickened, about 5 minutes. Add the lime juice and the remaining oil, and season with 1/4 teaspoon salt, or to taste. Pour the sauce over the meat and vegetables and serve immediately.

Toast the turmeric over medium-high heat until fragrant and lightly browned, 2 to 3 minutes. Combine the turmeric with the rest of the spices.

Total time: 15 minutes, plus cooling time. Servings: Makes about 3/4 cup. The spice mixture can be stored in an airtight jar or plastic bag for up to 6 weeks.

Times-News
Downtown kitchen store Rudy's — A Cook's Paradise, plans a free lefse demonstration from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, led by the Nelson sisters.

Don't confuse lefse with lutefisk — cod preserved in the traditional Norwegian way of soaking it in lye. "Lefse seems to be universally palatable to all, whereas lutefisk has been known to be more of an acquired taste," a Rudy's announcement said. "Lefse will be no lutefisk on the premises. We promise."

Roasted pork tenderloin and mushroom marsala

By Stephanie Witt Sedgwick
Special to The Washington Post

This one-pot dish has the flavor profile of classic veal Marsala but requires less prep work.

It can be made with any type of mushrooms. Oyster, portobello and tree ear varieties are particularly good here. Serve with steamed asparagus, roasted Brussels sprouts or sauteed summer squash and rice.

Using a large shallow non-stick braiser works best here, but a roasting pan or a deep saucpan that's ovenproof also can be used. Makes six servings.

ROASTED PORK TENDERLOIN AND MUSHROOM MARSALA

1 tablespoon olive or vegetable oil
2 tablespoons unsalted butter

Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
1 1/2 to 2 pounds pork tenderloins, trimmed of silver skin and excess fat
1 pound assorted mushrooms, stemmed and cut into bite-size chunks
1 medium onion, cut into 3/4-inch chunks
1/2 cup dry Marsala (Sicilian dessert wine)
1/2 cup low-sodium or homemade chicken broth
2 tablespoons finely chopped flat-leaf parsley leaves

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

Heat the oil and 1 tablespoon of the butter over medium heat in a large braiser, deep saucpan or heavy roasting pan large enough to hold all the ingredients.

Season the trimmed tenderloins all over with salt and pepper, then add to the pan. (If the tenderloins are a little long for the pan, cut them in half crosswise.) Cook for 6 to 7 minutes, turning the tenderloins halfway through, so that they are browned on the bottom and top. Use tongs to transfer them to a large plate. They will not be cooked through.

Served with Brussels sprouts, this dish can be made with any kind of mushroom.

Increase the heat to medium-high and add the mushrooms to the pan. Cook, stirring, for 2 to 3 minutes, then add the onion. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes, until the onions start to soften around the edges. Season lightly with salt and pepper.

Return the pork tenderloins to the pan, which will be a little crowded, then place the pan in the oven and roast for about 20 minutes, until the internal temperature of the tenderloins registers 160 degrees. Use tongs to transfer the tenderloins to a plate; cover loosely with aluminum foil to keep them warm.

Return the pan with the mushrooms and onions to the stove over medium-high heat. Cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until the pan juices have almost evaporated. Add the Marsala and broth; cook for 3 to 4 minutes, until the liquid has reduced by half.

Cut the remaining tablespoon of butter into several small pieces and add to the pan in several additions, stirring as the butter melts. Taste and add seasoning as needed. Remove from the heat.

Cut the tenderloins crosswise into thin slices and divide among individual plates. Top with a portion of the mushroom sauce and a sprinkling of parsley. Serve immediately.

Sophisticated dinner in 40 minutes

By Bonnie S. Benwick
The Washington Post

Oddly enough, this sophisticated recipe's complementary trio of ingredients — pungent herb, anise-y vegetable and licorice liqueur — do not add up to flavor overload. The components are quick-braised, then reduced to a chunky sauce in the food processor, providing a nice alternative to tomato-based pasta options.

If you would rather not cook with alcohol, gently warm 5 tablespoons of non-alcoholic wine and 1 whole star anise in a small saucpan over low heat for 5 minutes. Let sit for 3 minutes, then add to the recipe where the Pernod is called for.

Serve with a salad of soft butter lettuce. Adapted from "In Season: Cooking with Vegetables and Fruits," by Sarah Raven (Universe, 2008).

JAM EWING/Washington Post

SAGE, FENNEL AND PERNOD PASTA

4 servings

6 medium shallots
20 sage leaves
3 medium or 2 large fennel bulbs
5 tablespoons Pernod (may substitute ouzo, sambuca or arak)
5 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons unsalted butter, melted
3 tablespoons olive oil
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
8 ounces dried or fresh tagliatelle pasta (may substitute papardelle or thin egg noodles)
1/4 cup pine nuts
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese, for garnish

Preheat the oven to 475 degrees.

Trim and peel the shallots, then coarsely chop them along with the sage leaves. Place the mixture in a Dutch oven or medium, heavy-bottomed pot with a lid.

Discard the tough outer layers and cores of the fennel bulbs (reserve the fronds for another use, if desired);

coarsely chop the remaining fennel (there should be about 8 cups) and add to the Dutch oven or pot along with the Pernod, water, butter and oil. Season lightly with salt and pepper; stir to combine, and cover. Place in the oven to cook for 10 minutes. Check to make sure the fennel is not sticking; add Pernod or water as needed so the vegetables are well coated. Cover and cook for 15 minutes.

During the last 15 minutes of cooking, bring a large pot of salted water to a boil over high heat. Add the tagliatelle, cook according to package directions and drain, reserving 3 tablespoons of the pasta cooking water. Toast the pine nuts in a small dry skillet over medium heat for 3 to 4 minutes, shaking them a few times to keep them from burning. Remove from the heat.

Transfer the vegetables to a food processor along with any remaining liquid; pulse over the course of 15 seconds or just long enough to combine the ingredients as a sauce without pureeing them. Taste and adjust seasoning as needed.

Combine the pasta, sauce, cooking water and pine nuts in a large serving bowl.

Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese, serve hot.

AFGHANISTAN
Men are arrested in acid attack on schoolgirls

KABUL — Even amid the everyday brutality of war, it was an especially horrific attack: Assaults earlier this month splashed battery acid on a group of Afghan girls, punishing them for going to school.

On Tuesday, Afghan authorities announced the arrests of 10 men described as Taliban militants in connection with the Nov. 12 attack in the southern city of Kandahar, the birthplace of the Taliban movement.

Men on motorbikes carried out the assault, targeting a group of about a dozen girls who were accompanied by several female teachers. Eleven schoolgirls and four adults were hurt, and at least two of the girls were hospitalized with burned and blistered faces.

The attack drew worldwide attention, with condemnation from human rights groups, the United Nations, Afghan President Hamid Karzai and first lady Laura Bush.

In announcing the arrests, officials in Kandahar said a Kandahar militant had paid the men to plan and carry out the attack. The payment, totaling about $2,000, was said to have taken the form of a bounty for each student or teacher they managed to burn.

ILLINOIS

Obama: Recovery will trump deficit fight

CHICAGO — The economy growing weaker, President-elect Barack Obama said Tuesday that recovery efforts will trump deficit concerns when he takes office in January. Yet he pledged a "page-by-page, line-by-line" budget review to root out unneeded spending.

The president-elect set no goals for reducing the federal deficit — now in record territory and headed ever higher — an obvious contrast to Monday's announcement that he hopes to create a recession-busting 2.5 million jobs by 2010.

He spoke as he appointed Peter Orszag, currently head of the Congressional Budget Office, to be his own budget director.

Obama's comments came at his second news conference in as many days, an unusual pre-inaugural burst of activity that he said reflected "the extraordinary circumstances" he will inherit on Jan. 20.

With his Electoral College landslide victory, Obama said he possesses a "mandate to move the country in a new direction, and not continue the same old practices that have gotten us into the fix we're in."

At the same time, the Democratic president-elect pledged to consult with Republicans and approach his administration with humility "and a recognition that wisdom is not the monopoly of any one party."

THAILAND

Protesters swarm airport, flights cancelled

BANGKOK — Protesters swarmed Thailand's main international airport Tuesday, forcing the cancellation of departing flights just hours after their comrades opened fire on government supporters in a clash on the streets of the capital.

It was the boldest move yet by the People's Alliance for Democracy in a monthlong campaign to topple Prime Minister Somchai Wongsawat, whom it accuses of being the puppet of a disgraced fugitive predecessor, billionaire Thaksin Shinawatra.

Tuesday's events saw for the first time the open use of guns by the alliance's so-called guards and the entanglement of foreigners — the thousands of tourists trapped at the international airport.

The protesters appeared intent on forcing the military to intervene and bring down the elected regime. Army commander Gen. Anupong

Pochinda has repeatedly ruled out a coup, though he has also said the army "will keep peace and order to protect the public and uphold important institutions like the monarchy."

The alliance has staged a number of dramatic actions in recent months. It took over the prime minister's office in late August and twice blockaded Parliament — one time setting off street battles with police that ended with two people dead and hundreds injured.

FLORIDA

Miami judge rules against Florida gay adoption ban

MIAMI — A judge on Tuesday ruled that a strict Florida law that blocks gay people from adopting children is unconstitutional, declaring there was no legal or scientific reason for sexual orientation alone to prohibit anyone from adopting.

Miami-Dade Circuit Judge Cindy Lederman said the 31-year-old law violates equal protection rights for the children and their prospective gay parents, rejecting the state's arguments that there is a "supposed dark cloud hovering over homes of homosexuals and their children."

She noted that gay people are allowed to be foster parents in Florida. "There is no rational basis to prohibit gay parents from adopting," she wrote in a 53-page ruling.

Florida is the only state with an outright ban on gay adoption. Arkansas voters last month approved a measure similar to a law in Utah that bans any unmarried straight or gay couples from adopting or fostering children.

VENEZUELA

Chavez welcomes Russian warships

LA GUAIRA — Russian warships sailed into port in Venezuela on Tuesday in a show of strength as Moscow seeks to counter U.S. influence in Latin America.

Russia's first such deployment in the Caribbean since the Cold War is timed to coincide with President Dmitry Medvedev's visit to Venezuela, the first ever by a Russian president.

Russian sailors lined up along the bow of the destroyer Admiral Chabanenko as it docked in La Guaira, near Caracas, and Venezuelan troops greeted them with cannons in a 21-gun salute. Two support vessels also docked, and the nuclear-powered cruiser Peter the Great, Russia's largest navy ship, anchored offshore.

President Hugo Chavez, basking in the support of a powerful ally and traditional U.S. rival, wants Russian help to build a nuclear reactor, and invest in oil and natural gas projects.

Official: Gates to stay at Pentagon

By Beth Footy and David Espo Associated Press writers

CHICAGO — Seeking experience in a time of war, President-elect Barack Obama will keep Defense Secretary Robert Gates in that job — if only temporarily — and he has chosen a retired Marine general to be his national security adviser, officials said Tuesday.

Gates and retired Gen. James Jones bring years of experience to the Cabinet of a 47-year-old commander in chief with a relatively thin foreign policy resume.

Obama, who rolled out the key components of his economic team this week, plans to announce his foreign policy braintrust after the Thanksgiving holiday.

Gates, who has served as President George W. Bush's defense chief for two years, will remain in the Cabinet for some time, probably a year, according to an official familiar with discussions between the two men. A Democratic official said Jones was Obama's pick to head the National Security Council, the part of the White House structure that deals with foreign policy.

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because Obama has not authorized anybody to discuss the deliberations.

Along with the expected selection of Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton to head the State Department, Obama's latest moves solidify a national security team with strong power, but also strong centrist and establishment ties that run counter to his campaign calls for change and a speedy withdrawal from Iraq.

The intelligence side of Obama's team made shaker headway Tuesday as John Brennan, who had been considered Obama's pick for CIA director, withdrew his name from consideration. Brennan cited a groundswell of criticism about his association with the Bush administration's sanctioning of harsh interrogations of terror suspects. Former Adm. Dennis Blair has emerged as a likely candidate for director of national intelligence, which oversees CIA and other intelligence agencies.

Gates, a moderate with long-standing ties to Republican administrations, and the Bush family, would fulfill an Obama pledge to include a Republican in his Cabinet.

Retaining Gates provides stability for a stretched military fighting two wars during the turbulent changeover in administrations. Keeping Gates might afford Obama a sort of extended transition, in which critical military issues are left in trusted hands while Obama focuses most intensely on the financial crisis.

DIABETES AWARENESS MONTH
The Genetics of Diabetes
You've probably wondered how you got diabetes. You may worry that your children will get it too. Unlike some traits, diabetes does not seem to be inherited in a simple pattern. Yet clearly, some people are born more likely to get diabetes than others.

We would like to say thank you to all of those special people who give their time to be a...
Home Care Worker
Thank you for sharing your time and love in caring for others, and for choosing to make a difference.

Type 1 diabetes
In most cases of type 1 diabetes, people need to inherit risk factors from both parents. We think these factors must be more common in whites because whites have the highest rate of type 1 diabetes. Because most people who are at risk do not get diabetes, researchers want to find out what the environmental triggers are.
One trigger might be related to cold weather. Type 1 diabetes develops more often in winter than summer and is more common in places with cold climates. Another trigger might be viruses. Perhaps a virus that has only mild effects on most people triggers type 1 diabetes in others. Early diet may also play a role. Type 1 diabetes is less common in people who were breastfed and in those who first ate solid foods at later ages.
In many people, the development of type 1 diabetes seems to take many years. In experiments that followed relatives of people with type 1 diabetes, researchers found that most of those who later got diabetes had certain autoantibodies in their blood for years before. (Antibodies are proteins that destroy bacteria or viruses. Autoantibodies are antibodies "gone bad," which attack the body's own tissues.)

Molly Faye (Julian) Craft

Molly Faye (Julian) Craft, 70, of Boise, died Monday, Nov. 17, 2008. After a long courageous battle with cancer, our beloved Faye left us to be with her Lord and Savior.

Faye was born July 14, 1938, in Twin Falls, to Jake and Mary Julian. She graduated from Buhl High School in 1956. On May 22, 1956, she married John Alexander. They had three sons, Ronald John, Thomas Eugene and Charles Lewis (Gus). They did a lot of traveling and were stationed in Germany with the Army. Their marriage ended in 1964.

On Nov. 30, 1966, Faye married the love of her life, Donald Craft. They had one son, Michael Shane. They live in Buhl. Her sons, Iwona and Oklahoma. Don was a sales representative for International Harvester. While in Oklahoma, Don passed away in 1979 at the young age of 42. Faye then returned to Twin Falls, later joining the LDS in the top 10 of her class. On March 8, 1985, she married Carlton Smith. They lived in Boise, and she worked for Sealing. She then moved to Boise and was employed at Albertsons.

She worked as an office manager to Twin Falls again and was working for Magic Valley Regional Hospital, as a medical transcriptionist. Carl died in 1991. Faye is preceded in death by her parents; Don Craft; Carl Smith; her son, Ronald; son, Thomas; son, nephew, Scott Zimmerman; and a great-niece, Jessica Mancheski. She is survived by two sons and their families, Gus (Maria) Alexander and son, JB of Dayton, Nev.; Shane Craft and son, Douglas and daughter, Michaela of Seattle, Wash.; Faye's sister and family, Shirli (Bob) Peppley and son, Gus (Christine) Peppley and their sons, Gage and Lucas of Nampa; their daughter, Genry (John) Raposh and their daughters, Makenzie, Madelin and Olivia of Nampa; Faye's brother, Chuck (Gina) Julian and their daughters, Loren (Steve) Mancheski and son, Matt and daughter, Angi Julian and her son, Chad. She was a daughter of Monika Urena, all from Wisconsin.

Faye loved God, who was the source of her strength through her 17-year battle with cancer. She loved her family and friends, especially on days and moonlit nights, music, puzzles, mysteries, laughter, visitors, cheesecake, Idaho spuds and her pets. She had a quick wit and a quirky sense of humor. She loved to read. She loved to travel. Most of all, she loved to make people laugh. Her family will greatly miss her.

Faye's memorial service will be held Friday, Dec. 5, in Buhl, by Pastor Jerry Peters at the West End Cemetery, following a dinner at the United Methodist Church in Buhl. Faye was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church on Cole Road in Boise. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the Legacy Hospice in Meridian.

Mary Katherine Henderson

WENDELL — Our Mom, Mary Katherine Henderson finished the last chapter of this earth on Saturday, Nov. 22, 2008, surrounded by family and friends.

She was born Jan. 31, 1919, on the Bacon Ranch in Jerome, to Charles Everett and Roxey Ellen Posey. She attended Jerome schools. After living and working in Idaho, Mom left the area and met and married Orville George Stringfellow. Mom and the Marine Corps master sergeant traveled the world for 13 years before Mary Ellen was born. Shortly after Mary's birth, Orville was killed in an auto accident in California.

Mom and Mary moved back to Wendell. It was two years later that Mom met Burrell Henderson. They were married in Elko, Nev., in 1953. To Katherine, L. Katherine (Kay), Marshall and Elizabeth (Teenie) were born. Family was what Mom had always wanted and, within eight years, it was complete. We were the most perfect children a mom could have dreamed of in the beginning. She was a room mother and our best supporter during our grade school years. Mom took many jobs to help support our family. She worked the night shifts at the mine. Gladys, L. Simpson and finally Typewriter, where she retired after many years of nearly perfect attendance. She was a part of the group that rode a bus from Jerome to Burley. Life wasn't any easier, but she was the best of every situation.

Mom was a member of the Wendell United Methodist Church, Star of the West No. 35, Order of Easter Star and Garnet Court No. 5 Order of the Eastern American Legion Auxiliary and the Hope Society. When Mom joined an organization, she participated wholeheartedly, whether it was birthday cake at the Magic Valley Manor and Goodwill Rehabilitation, washing and folding clothes at the HOPE store, cemetery hospitality or just being the person who made sure food was available.

Mom was an active grand and great-grand to many kids, some related and others by association. It didn't matter to her. Twelve grandkids produced eighteen great-grandkids. Mom enjoyed the "Wall of Fame" in her room every day. She is preceded in death by two husbands, two brothers, two sisters and two grandkids. She was the last of her family's generation. She is survived by several nieces and nephews, including Allan Posey, Mylene Posey and Judith, both of Jerome, and Wilson Wright of Rupert. Mom leaves four capable adults to carry on her good deeds, Mary (Jack) Packard of Wendell, Kay (Dennis) Zerke of Paul, Margaret (Teresa) Henderson of Burley and Elizabeth (Owen) Fallon of Wendell.

The family would like to thank Aspen Grove Hospice and Associates and Family Practice of Wendell for their excellent care and compassion.

The funeral will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday, Dec. 1, at the Wendell United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Mike Hollomon officiating. Burial will follow at the Wendell Cemetery. Services are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Wendell Chapel.

Pastor Vince Frank

PAUL — Vincent Duane Frank ("Pastor Frank") to those who knew him) was to be with the Lord on Saturday, Nov. 22, 2008, after suffering a massive heart attack.

Frank was born July 16, 1949, in Billings, Mont., the son of Henry and Elizabeth Frank. He was the fourth of a child more loved by parents or doted on by older siblings than this only son and brother of five older sisters. He grew up in Laurel, Mont., where he and his family made a living farming and ranching. Vince graduated from high school at Billings West and from college at Rocky Mountain College with a pre-med major. It was at that time, however, he realized his true calling was the ministry. He entered Dallas Theological Seminary in the fall of 1973 and married Marcia Sage on Jan. 4, 1974. Vince left Dallas five years later with a master of theology degree and four children to join the ministry with Paul Congregational Church, a church family who became one of God's greatest treasures to him. It was a relationship which lasted 29 years. Throughout the years, God blessed Vince and Marcia with eight more children, giving him the "full crop of arrows" (Psalm 127:3) to always want to dedicate to the ministry. Some of his greatest joys were coaching Little League and gardening. He also drove truck part time for Trans-Systems.

Vince was preceded in death by his parents, Henry and Elizabeth Frank; and a sister, Frances Haman. He is survived by four beloved sisters, Gloria (Raymond) Robertus of Laurel, Mont., Elsie Bernhardt of Park City, Mont., Shirley (Everett) Schoessler of Floy, Minn., and Connie Fredericksen of Laurel, Mont., as well as a huge family tree of nieces and nephews. He is also survived by his wife, Marcia; as well as his 12 children and 24 grandchildren, Heidi (Ben) Sackett and Triny, Hannah, Jasmine, Hope, Benny, Ivy, Sierra, Dexter, Belle and Fanci; Gretchen (tison) Willes and Jacoby, Kaleb, Alex, Morgan and JJ; Luke (Heidi) Frank and Caden, Emerald, Will, and Cary; Ben Frank and Austin and an honorary grandson, Luke Arthur; Katie (Caleb) Bailey and Titus and Aysha; Mollie (Jon) Miller and Genesis; Adam, Gabe, Jed, Shalom, Barak and Andrew.

Our father left such a legacy to his family, he had no interest in material things but an undying commitment to God's word. Perhaps his greatest tribute is the fact that the treasure each of his children would most like to inherit is his old, worn out truck. It was his father's same tenacity, strength and dignity in death that he showed us in life and is a man forever adored by his family for his convictions, his work ethic and his love for all of us. We can think of no other tribute for him than 1 Timothy 4:7, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith."

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, Dec. 1, at the Paul Congregational Church, 121 N. Second W. in Paul. Burial will be in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call from 5 until 8 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 30, at the Paul Congregational Church. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Russmen Funeral Home of Burley.

The Tigers dominated the Bruins 52-26 Tuesday with three Jerome players scoring in double figures. Jerome junior guard Aubree Callen led all scorers with a game-high 15 points and seven rebounds. Senior Jordan Hofffield followed with 12 points and sophomore point guard Carrie Thibault added 10. In the first quarter, Jerome put 16 points on the board before the Bruins could score and the Tigers held a 23-12 lead at halftime. "Our offense feeds off our defense," said senior Allison Bruckner. "In practice we push and foul 24-7." The Tigers held the Bruins to a cold shooting night at 22 percent (10-for-45) while Jerome was 20-for-45 for 44 percent.

"We came out intense and in a trapping defense," said Jerome coach Brent Clark. "We had some hot and cold streaks because several of the kids haven't played a lot together." Chelsea Reimler led the Bruins with 14 hard-earned points and five boards. "I felt like I needed to step up and do what I had to do to get open," said Reimler. "It's good to have a game like this against a team like Jerome. We believed we could play with them, but we just made some bad decisions." A positive note for Twin Falls was that the Bruins had only 18 turnovers — two less than Jerome's 20. "We didn't foul as much as we have been doing and we outscored them in the second quarter," said frustrated Twin Falls coach Nancy Jones. CSI men drop to No. 10 in latest poll

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

After coming up short in a battle of Top 10 teams, the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team slipped three spots in the latest NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Top 25, released Tuesday. The Golden Eagles are No. 10 this week after an 87-81 home loss to Midland (Texas) College last Saturday. Midland moved up one spot to No. 8 as only one team in the Top 10 — top-ranked Cowley County (Kan.) Community College — stayed in the slot it occupied a week ago. The Scenic West Athletic Conference now has three teams in the Top 25, with No. 13 Salt Lake CC and No. 25 North Idaho College joining the Golden Eagles.

Looking back on the loss to Midland, first-year CSI head coach Steve Gosar said his team's game plan largely unfolded as desired. Said Gosar: "Our effort was good enough to win. Our defense was good enough, I thought we guarded their shooters good enough. And at the same time, we got to the foul line like we needed to." While the Golden Eagles attempted 53 free throws, they made only 31 for 58 percent. "We're a team that gets to the line. That's what we do. We had our opportunities. ... We just couldn't finish the play," said Gosar. CSI (5-1) will look to get back to its winning ways Friday at Saturday as it hosts Chemeketa (Ore.) Community College at 8 p.m., Friday and Phoenix College at 8 p.m., Saturday as part of the Donnelly Sports Invitational.

Still recovering: CSI will again be visiting Carrick Felix, a 6-foot-6 freshman out of Avondale, Ariz. Felix started the first three games of the season, but a hard fall against Central Florida CC on Nov. 8 left him with a hairline fracture of the scaphoid in his wrist.

Felix sat out last week's three games of the Gordon Paving/Mountain West Components Invitational and said Tuesday he'll likely be out two to three more weeks.

2008 MAGIC VALLEY PREP MVP: BOYS CROSS COUNTRY

DAVID FILLMORE

Burley boys cross country

Natural ability isn't enough. A burning desire isn't enough. What sets champion runner David Fillmore apart is his blue-collar, hard-nosed work ethic. His efforts have garnered him a wall full of medals and awards throughout his high school career, and he can add one more to the collection as 2008 Times-News Magic Valley Prep MVP for boys cross country.

After finishing second at four races during the cross-country season, Fillmore made sure to save his best performances for when it counted most. He won the District IV-V meet. He then took third at the Class 4A meet in what he describes as the best cross-country meet of his life, clocking in at 16 minutes, 6.04 seconds.

It was a fitting end to the senior's decorated high school cross-country career. He progressively got better, finishing third at districts as a sophomore, second as a junior, and first as a senior. At state, Fillmore was in the top three for the second straight year. Fillmore puts in so much road work that his family barely recognizes him anymore, and most of his competition only recognizes him from behind. He is quick to credit his success to teammate Taylor Bean. The two Bobcats push each other to their limits every day in practice, refusing to let one another submit to the pain. Fillmore also gives credit to coach Kevin Green, who pushed us to levels that we wouldn't be able to reach without him.

But Fillmore isn't finished. After he leaves up his sneakers for the Burley basketball team this winter, he will be back outside in the spring, gear up to defend his state track title in the 800 meters. He not only plans to repeat as state champ, but to also break Burley's school record and the state record in the race.

To do so, Fillmore knows he needs to push himself harder than ever before. He knows he needs to run his heart out and win the battle of mind over matter. He knows he has to peak at the right time. Basically, he needs the same work ethic that carried him through the cross-country season.

Burley overcomes cold shooting in win

By Ryan Howe
Times-News writer

Despite cold 27-percent shooting in the second half, Burley held on for a 40-27 win over Pocatello Tuesday. "Wayne [coach] scored a game-high 16 points and Kassi Kerbs added 13 for Burley, which improved its record to 4-2. "That's what we expect out of (Wayment) every night," said Burley coach Gordon Kerbs. "But we still need to get her some help in the post." The Bobcats built a quick double-digit lead and were up by 21 points midway through the third quarter. The cushion proved invaluable as Burley's shooting, though waned, especially during a six-minute scoreless drought in the fourth quarter. Gordon Kerbs felt that playing their sixth game in 11 days perhaps contributed to the Bobcats' shooting woes. "It's concentration. I think our girls were so wide open their eyes were getting this big and they were rushing a little bit, instead of stepping into the shot and hitting it right," Kerbs said. "Pocatello did a good job of mixing things up and keeping us off balance. Our kids did well executing the things we want to do, but you've got to make shots." Burley performed well defensively. While six players scored for Pocatello none reached double figures. The Indians were led by Brenna Brigham's nine points. "We got the win, and that's what we came here for, but it's not the best we've ever played," Wayment said. "Overall we played well, we just weren't shooting as well as we'd like to. Shots just weren't falling." Burley is still searching for a consistent third scorer to complement Wayment and Kassi Kerbs, something the Bobcats will need as they meet tougher opponents on their schedule. "We've six games in, it's time. We're a quarter of the way done and it's time to mature a little bit and become varsity basketball players," said Gordon Kerbs, while quickly adding, "But we're close to becoming a pretty good team." Vick pleads to state dogfighting charge

The Associated Press

SUSSEX, Va. — With a steady gaze and another apology, Michael Vick took an important step toward returning to pro football. The former star quarterback pleaded guilty to a state dogfighting charge Tuesday, and the prosecutor dropped an animal cruelty count. Surrey Circuit Judge Samuel Campbell accepted the deal and gave Vick a suspended three-year sentence — far less than the maximum 10-year term he could have faced. "The move clears the way for Vick's possible transition to a halfway house, and brings his aim of another chance at professional football closer. Wendell girls get best of Valley

Times-Herald
Two former Canyon Conference rivals got reacquainted Tuesday night as Wendell girls' basketball team marched into Hazelton and took a 66-56 win over Valley.

Jaci Lancaster led all scorers with 20 points for the Trojans, who also had Kristin Brandtma for 14 and Jori Fleming add 12.

Alyssa Henry and Ashley Kraus each had 12 for Valley (3-1), and Camille Sizemore added 10.

"Both teams were shooting the ball well and they just stayed hot," said Valley coach Brian Hardy.

Wendell is at Hagerman on Tuesday, while Valley is at Shoshone next Wednesday.

Senior Jesse Dill and freshman Moriah Dill scored 19 points each for the Blue Devils. Shayla Porter added 11 points in the win. Only three players scored for Hazelton, and Ashley Bridges paced the Red Devils with six points.

"The team was impressive, and the freshmen came in and did a nice job as well. I am proud of the team and their defensive play," said Dietrich coach Acey Shaw.

Dietrich (1-2, 1-0) will host Magic Valley Christian next Thursday.

The Hornets held the Indians scoreless in the first quarter to establish a lead that would not relinquish.

Vick was temporarily brought back to Virginia on Leavenworth, Kan., where he is serving a 23-month sentence after pleading guilty to bankroking a dogfighting operation. In the federal case, Vick admitted helping kill six to eight pit bulls that did not perform well in test fights, including by electrocution, drowning and hanging.

Vick remained in Virginia on Tuesday afternoon awaiting transport back to Kansas. He is scheduled for release next July 20, and will serve three years of probation. He also has been suspended by the NFL and would need commissioner Roger Goodell's approval before rejoining the league.

His latest plea is important because it resolves the remaining charges against him, which is required under federal law if he is to move into a halfway house.

According to both the Courant and the Associated Press, Miles had previously agreed to counseling that could lead to the felony charge being dropped.

Husband plans infidelity if wife is incapacitated

DEAR ABBY: I need some serious advice. I was diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis a year ago. My condition is stable. I have taken the necessary precautions such as dietary changes, exercise and prescription medications.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Logan," recently proposed. I gladly accepted. Logan is a kind and amicable man who has been married eight years. This is my second marriage and his third.

DEAR ABBY: What is the appropriate time frame for courting before becoming engaged?
—NEW FIANCEE SELIGMAN, ARIZ.

And now, Dear Readers, I will continue the tradition of offering the Thanksgiving Prayer that was written by my dear mother, Pauline Phillips. No Thanksgiving would be complete for me without it:

Oh, Heavenly Father, We thank thee for food and remember thy hungry. We thank thee for health and remember the sick. We thank thee for freedom and remember the enslaved. May these remembrances stir us to service.

today, especially if they revolve around business or finance, might not make the impression you hope. Sparkle silently in public places.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Social gatherings can bring a surprise. Everyone is thinking about the day off or holiday plans, so business activities might grind to a halt.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Guard against taking people and things for granted. Your extraordinary confidence will let you wedge a foot in the door but you might not be able to successfully present ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It takes more than brains and brawn to get ahead on the treadmill. Your efforts to get a pet project off the ground might run into a few snags.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): All's well that ends well. Minor aggravations will dissipate but launching a new project too quickly may not be wise.

celebrity status for a few hours. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Imaginative tactics can't break up an impasse. Take it easy and don't force financial issues.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Desire rules its head. There might be something you passionately want, but you must ask yourself if you want it because someone else has it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Traditional values keep you afloat. Go along with the herd, but maintain a little cynicism where money or future plans are concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If achieving your goals seems to be out of reach, you just haven't been looking for steppingstones or a leg up.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use charm to brighten the room. Your unique qualities may set you apart from the pack or put you in a leadership position.
