T.F. to seek $8M-12M in state loans for water projects

By Jared S. Hopkins
Times-News writer

The city of Twin Falls will seek $8 million to $12 million from a state loan pool to help fund its $33.3 million in planned water projects designed to meet a federal mandate.

City officials said if a judge will allow the city to incur long-term debt to fund the package to comply with new arsenic requirements, they will hope to get a loan from the Idaho State Revolving Fund, a typically $20 million to $40 million bucket for municipalities to fund water and sewer projects.

The Environmental Protection Agency in 2001 tightened its drinking water arsenic standards to 10 parts per billion from 50. The city, which got an extension to comply by 2011, has chosen to spend $10 million for water shares in the Snake River Canyon and estimates $20 million is needed to move and blend the water. About $3 million will go to growth-related projects.

Getting the loan is likely, but recipients are based on priority and the troubling economy makes it unclear

Idaho creates wish list ahead of proposed state stimulus package

Twin Falls arsenic treatment included

By John Miller
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter is among state leaders assembling lists of road, water and communication projects — including arsenic treatment, and drinking water storage in Twin Falls — that may benefit from a proposed federal economic stimulus package that President-elect Barack Obama hopes will generate 2.5 million jobs nationwide by the end of 2010.

So far, Idaho's list isn't prioritized. But it includes a highway construction worth $805 million, some of it directed at sections of U.S. Interstate 84 in southwestern Idaho and State Highway 75 near Halley, already part of the "Connecting Idaho" package.

Jason Kretzenbeck, Otter's chief of staff, said the govern-nor is keen on the federal bill to help create jobs, but isn't inclined to support a measure that balls out state government budgets crimped by the recession. Otter also wants states like Idaho to be able to use the money as they see fit, with appropriate limits. Kretzenbeck said,

"What we are arguing as states to the federal government is, 'Don't make this an earmark process,'" he said. "If you really want to push

Coroner's new digs

Construction project to enhance T.F. Co. forensic operations

WATCH: A video tour of the remodeled coroner's office.

Twin Falls County authorities say construction at the coroner's office that ran about 4 percent over budget will enhance forensic operations without impeding on residents' senses.

Two silver ventilation stacks now jet out above the recently remodeled autopsy suite at the Twin Falls County Coroner's office along the residential street of Fourth Avenue North. They were installed to push odors from the autopsy room out of the building and above residents' noses, said Twin Falls County Coroner Dennis Chambers.

Law enforcement officials took a tour Wednesday of the coroner's new digs, which were renovated and expanded under those silver stacks. The new space will let the coroner store "bodies and allow him to draw fluids and perform non-invasive, external inspections on site.

But opening up bodies for full autopsies won't be done there, at least yet.

The coroner had been holding bodies at funeral homes, but will still send bodies for autopsies in Ada County. The new suite doesn't have all the tools or personnel needed to do autopsies, where bodies are opened up and organs and tissues are examined by a doctor certified as a forensic pathologist, Chambers said.

Police search Wendell home for guns, drugs

Authorities haven't named suspects or announced arrests

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

An Idaho State Police SWAT team raided a Wendell home Thursday morning in search of guns and drugs possibly stolen in recent burglaries, according to a press release from the agency.

State police released few details about their actions on Thursday.

ISP authorities aren't saying what, if anything, they may have found at the well-maintained home at 2854 State Highway 46, but they rerouted traffic along the state highway for "safety of the officers."

ISP hadn't announced any arrests by Thursday night or named any potential suspects connected to the warrant search that unfolded at 7 a.m.

But at least one gun seized from the home may have been taken from a home invasion in Gooding County a couple weeks ago, according to Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough.

No one was home during the search.

The U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is also involved in the case, along with Gooding city and county law enforcement officers, and Wendell police, according to ISP.

A spokesman for ATF wouldn't say what role, if any, the agency has in the case.

About 15 law enforcement vehicles were parked in front of the white, two-story home Thursday morning. It has a detached garage, a large shed and a silo on the sprawling property.

No one answered phone calls made Thursday to the residential listing for the address.

One neighbor reached by the Times-News said she was unaware of and shocked by the raid. She said she didn't know who lived at the home.

State launches new scoring process for CAFOs

By Kate Poppino
Times-News writer

The Idaho State Department of Agriculture and Department of Environmental Quality launched a new process on Thursday for investigating proposed confined-animal feeding operations.

The changes, ISDA Deputy Director Brian Oakley said, would adjust the way risk analysis is carried out during siting studies. The old formula, a 12-page, 55-question document, relied on a combination of professional judgment and a point-based scoring system that mixed a risk assessment, management issues and mitigation actions.

The new system separates the mitigation section into a separate document and does away with the related management questions, which the agency feels state law doesn't empower it to handle, Oakley said. That leaves the risk analysis as a one-page sheet with 16 questions to be rated for low, medium or high risk.

After the meeting, Oakley

said he thought the new sheet is a little more restrictive than the old one, and that the dropped questions are either covered by the more broadly phrased 16, or involved information that can still be found elsewhere, such as a CAFO's past enforcement history. An analysis of 26 past CAFO sitings by a University of Idaho professor emeritus found that the new sheet would have increased the number of high-risk facilities.

Officials said in July that they intended to make a series of county-level visits before launching the changes. Those visits morphed into a meeting Thursday in Jerome, attended by members of the public, people in the industry and county officials from across the region.

County officials took advantage of the meeting to question how the siting team works. Counties have the final approval over CAFO permits in Idaho.

A looming problem for the counties may be the fact that the state definition of a CAFO only includes facilities with more than 700 mature dairy cows, 1,000 cattle or other figures above most county ordinances. That, state officials said, means they technically aren't required to send the team out for smaller operations.

John Bilderback, ISDA's siting team lead, noted the team is an "unfunded mandate" that costs ISDA, DEQ and the Idaho Department of Water Resources a combined $2,200 to $2,500 every time it's used. State officials said financial pressures could eventually keep the siting team from visiting smaller facilities, while emphasizing that they do not want such a thing to happen. At the same time, ISDA dairy bureau chief

Mary Patton suggested local regulations mandating siting reports have perhaps "gotten out of hand in a way" in some counties.

County officials said they need the state's expertise and wonder how the inspections could be paid for. Jerome County resident Leo Halper suggested charging CAFO applicants a couple of dollars per animal to help cover the cost; any fee would have to go through the Legislature.

Through the meeting, Oakley said he thinks ISDA will be able to fund all inspections through this fiscal year.

"I don't know about 2010," he said.

Bilderback said counties with open CAFO applications can request another siting inspection using the new sheet. Oakley asked the counties to let him know what they think of the new system over time.

"Let's use this for the next year or two, but give us feedback," he said.

Crash near Hollister kills one

Times-News

A crash near Hollister along U.S. Highway 93 killed an unidentified driver Thursday afternoon, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office authorities confirmed.

The driver of a Ford Bronco crossed the center line and smashed almost head on into a motor home at about 1:50 p.m., said Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office Spokeswoman Lori Nebeker.

A passenger in the Bronco died, and the driver was taken by air ambulance to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, Nebeker said.

"Two people in the motor home, which was headed south, were taken by ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, Nebeker said.

The crash is under investigation, Nebeker said, and no citations have been issued.

Nebeker said names of people involved in the crash might be released today.

Lots of trophy buckles — but no brass ring yet

At the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo tonight and Saturday night, Buhl's Jost Young will be trying to accomplish something no other Magic Valley cowboy has done — at least while actually living in south-central Idaho: win a Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association season championship.

Young, 26, was in the sixth place among barback riders headed into this week's competition at the Thomas & Mack Center in Las Vegas. He was 14th after the seventh round of competition.

Magic Valley cowboys have come close to season titles before, including Jost's dad, Mickey. He finished second in the season's slings among PRCA barback riders in 1978, 1980 and 1983.

And Jost's old rodeo coach at the College of Southern Idaho — a Pro Rodeo Hall of Famer — actually won three PRCA season saddle bronc titles while he was living in Whitehall, Mont., in 1965 and 1967-68, before he moved to Twin Falls ... Davis best finish after he came to Idaho was third in 1977 — part of 13 Top 15 finishes in his career ...

Kent Cooper of Albion was a runner-up in saddle bronc riding in 1984 — part of nine Top 15 finishes in a decade — and Mike Smith of Jerome finished second in steer wrestling in 1993.

But however Jost Young does in Vegas this next couple of days, he's already playing with the houses money.

Last year, he earned $23,906 at PRCA-sanctioned rodeos. This year, it's $94,696.

ISU considers cutting its general ed requirements

POCAATELLO (AP) — Administrators at Idaho State University will consider ridding the number of general education courses students must take to graduate as part of a plan to save money.

At a faculty forum last week, university President Arthur Valias said scaling back on general education credit hours is one of several areas where the school can make up for state funding shortfalls.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter ordered state agencies to cut spending by 3 percent earlier this month because of a downturn in the Idaho economy has reduced tax revenue. The governor announced a 1 percent holdback in September.

ISU has a $77.3 million yearly budget and has already detailed plans to heavily scrutinize hiring and clamp down on other costs.

The general education requirements for students haven't been updated in about 20 years, said Stephen Adkison, an English professor and associate provost for academic programming at university.

"The basic structure is going to continue serving our students well, but we need to tweak it," Adkison told the Idaho State Journal.

The Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities, which accredits and evaluates higher education institutions in seven states, determined in 2004 that ISU had "no systematic assessment" of the results it expects from the general education coursework, Adkison said.

Under the requirements, undergraduates have to complete 128 credits to graduate, with 46 to 50 of those credits from outside their degree program.

The commission suggested the school review the required general education coursework by next year, Adkison said.

N. Idaho inventor receives presidential medal

SANDPOINT, Idaho (AP) — A northern Idaho resident has been awarded the Presidential Citizens Medal.

Forrest Bird of Sagle received the award Wednesday from President George W. Bush at a private ceremony in the Oval Office. The presidential citation lists Bird's groundbreaking work in creating the world's first mass-produced medical respirator.

"It's humbling, it really is," Bird, 87, told the Bonner County Daily Bee after the ceremony. "It makes you realize, by golly, you're just a part of a big, big, global effort in these things we do together. All we work together. Each one of us has a different station in life and we serve one another. That's what makes us Americans."

Other recipients included actor Gary Sinise, who played Lieutenant Dan in "Forrest Gump."

The award recognizes U.S. citizens who have performed exemplary deeds of service for the nation, and is second only to the Presidential Medal of Freedom in honors the president can give to a civilian.

"Through his innovation, (Bird) has helped transform and enhance the quality of life for people around the globe," the citation reads.

Bird invented the "Bird" and "Baby Bird" ventilators. The "Baby Bird," developed in 1970, helped lower mortality rates among infants with respiratory problems.

"The biggest thing in life is that you don't travel alone," Bird said. "I think this honor should be bestowed to all the people that helped me down the roadway of life. I go back through my life and I can recall some wonderful, wonderful people that helped me get to this point."

Bird accepted the award with his wife, Pamela, and several other family members. They spent about 15 minutes with the president and first lady Laura Bush.

"He's a wonderful gentleman," Bird said of the president. "He's a real, real friendly fellow. He presented himself very well and was very down-to-earth."

Besides the latest award, Bird has also been inducted into the National Inventors Hall of Fame, and has an award named after him from the American Respiratory Care Foundation.

Pamela Bird said her husband's thirst for knowledge and enthusiasm for his work drives him.

"It's the passion," she said. "Inventors — the successful ones — don't create for money. That's not their goal. For Forrest and other successful inventors, it's their passion. It's what they do and it's what they live and breathe for. That's what makes them tick."

Ritzzy Yellowstone Club to open despite money woes

By Matthew Brown Associated Press writer

BILLINGS, Mont. — The Yellowstone Club, an exclusive haven for the ultrarich, plans to open for the ski season today as wrangling continues over who will provide financing to keep the club going through the winter.

The club near Yellowstone National Park counts former Vice President Dan Quayle and Los Angeles Dodgers owner Frank McCourt among its 345 members. But the credit crisis and a failed expansion plan have left it mired in debts of almost $400 million.

The club filed for federal bankruptcy protection last month, shielding it from its hundreds of creditors while it comes up with a new business plan.

A federal court hearing over short-term financing for the winter ski season recessed Thursday with no decision. Nevertheless, a club spokesman Bill Keegan says enough cash is on hand to start operations while the larger money troubles are resolved.

"We have every intention of opening as planned (on Friday) and will look forward to welcoming our members for the winter season," Keegan said.

Since filing for bankruptcy protection last month, the club has been at the center of competing loan offers from Credit Suisse and Boston-based CrossHarbor Capital. Credit Suisse already was owed $307 million before the bankruptcy filing and loaned the club another $4.5 million in November.

It now wants to loan the club $23.2 million more — to get near the front of a long line of creditors, a space now occupied by CrossHarbor.

A $20 million loan to the club from CrossHarbor was approved by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Ralph Kirscher in late November. That bumped Credit Suisse from its position as the club's prime lender and means CrossHarbor will be paid first if the club's assets are sold.

Club members pay substantial sums for the privilege of building expensive homes in the resort but they do not own the club itself. Experts have said the lots owned by members could plummet in value if the club operations and ski hill are shuttered during the bankruptcy.

Neighbors must sometimes lose their veto power

“NIMBY” — the acronym meaning “not in my back yard” — is a sensible concept if you happen to live in a small enough community.

Small changes in Dietrich, say, or Declo can affect everybody in town. So everybody should be able to say no.

But not so much once a city gets to be the size of Twin Falls.

Every time a neighborhood association complains or an ad hoc committee of the aggrieved objects to widening a street or installing a traffic signal or laying a larger sewer line, it becomes harder for elected officials to provide a coherent strategy for growth.

And it's happening again in Twin Falls, just as it has so often before.

On Monday, the Twin Falls City Council authorized city staff to design a widening of Falls Avenue West from two lanes to four lanes with sidewalks. A three-lane widening is also possible, though officials said it would take up as much space and cost the same as four lanes.

Engineers and city officials have said the controversial project — last summer about two dozen residents signed a petition in opposition — is needed to avoid congestion as the area grows with homes and businesses.

To grasp that, you need only look at a map. The stretch of Falls Avenue in question — from Washington Street North to Grandview Drive — links a fast-growing population center with places those folks want to go — to work, to school, to the grocery store, to the doctor.

Falls Avenue West is an “arterial street.” At least three large residential subdivisions will be completed nearby and the new St. Luke’s Magic Valley Medical Center is going up along Grandview.

But even if not one more home was built west of Grandview, Falls Avenue West would still have to be widened. To do otherwise would create chaos west of Washington Street and around the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Cities — including Twin Falls — draw up comprehensive plans and master transportation plans to help determine how we’ll get around in the future. That’s how they know when — and how much — they need to invest to make keep the traffic moving.

The cost of the Falls Avenue West project is estimated at $3.5 million, regardless of whether there are three lanes or four. It’s been 30 years since any major work has been done on the road.

As hard as it may be to remember sometimes, we’re a community of 41,000 people now. None of us gets everything we want all the time; everybody has to sacrifice something — even if it’s only personal convenience.

That’s the way cities — and civilization — work. Romans, after all, built a Coliseum — not merely a local boogie ball court. Athenians managed to erect the Acropolis instead of just another police station.

Even though, no doubt, the neighbors were upset.

The Dems' culture of corruption

Howard Dean and Nancy Pelosi can stop clucking now. For the last three years, Democratic leaders cheered GOP ethics woe. Dean accused Republicans of making “their culture of corruption the norm.” Pelosi touted cleanliness as a liberal virtue. But with the eye-popping pay-for-play and bribery case against Democratic Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich topping a year of nationwide Democratic scandals, the corruption chickens are coming home to roost.

MICHELLE MALKIN

U.S. Attorney Patrick Fitzgerald called the breadth and depth of charges against Blagojevich and his Democratic Chief of Staff John Harris “staggering.” That’s an understatement. Anything that breathes was a potential shakedown target. It’s the Chicago way. Democrat Blago’s so dirty he’d hit up a child’s hospital for money. Oh, wait. He’s accused of doing that, too. Democrat Blago allegedly conspired to use his power to appoint President-elect Barack Obama’s vacant Senate seat as a bargaining chip for financial payment. He exploited trading on that authority for an appointment as Health and Human Services secretary or as an ambassador or for installation in a cushy union position. (He discussed this trading scheme with an unnamed “SEIU (Service Employees International Union) official” and unnamed “various consultants” in Washington.)

According to the criminal complaint released yesterday, he also tried to leverage his influence over the sale of Wrigley Field (owned by Tribune media company) in an attempt to get Chicago Tribune editorial writers who called for his impeachment fired.

Fitzgerald says President-elect Obama was not implicated in the plethora of charges against Democrats Blago and Harris. The national media went out of their way to absolve him, too. But declaring Team Obama innocent — especially with Blago crony and indicted Obama donor Tony Rezko in the middle of it all — is premature. (And if you’re wondering why I kept putting “Democrat” in front of the accused corruptocrats, it’s because the mainstream newspapers can’t seem to remember to identify their party prominently the way they do when Republicans are nabbed.)

Chicago’s Fox affiliate reports that Obama Chief of Staff and Chicago hometown heavy Rahm Emanuel was the catalyst for the Blago takedown and suggests Blago-bo tipped off the feds. If so, this raises more questions than it answers about who on the transition team may have talked to Blago and his shakedown artists about what and when. Needless to say, if it were the Republican Bush administration (like the Blago bust, the White House press corps would be frothing like a pack of Michael Velt’s pit bulls.

Democrats and the media can no longer rest on the old rationalization that Blago is an exception to the “we’re cleaner than thou” rule. 2008 was the year of Democratic Reps. William “Cold Cash” Jefferson, Charlie “Sweetheart Deals” Rangel, and former Detroit Mayor Kwame “Text Me” Kilpatrick. It was the year Democratic Massachusetts State Sen. Dianne Wilkerson got caught stuffing bribes from an FBI informant down her shirt. It was the year 12 Democratic leaders and staffers in Pennsylvania’s state Capitol were stung in a massive corruption scandal involving cash, sex and abuse of public office. And it was the year of multimillion-dollar embezzlement scandals at Democratic satellite offices of ACORN and the SEIU.

The Democrats have met the culture of corruption, and it looks like it ain’t just elephants among the jack-asses sopping public office.

Caroline Kennedy for Senate? Not so much

A push is on to make Caroline Kennedy, daughter of the former president, Hillary Clinton’s replacement in the U.S. Senate.

New York Gov. David Paterson, who will appoint Clinton’s successor, has said that Caroline called him recently to talk about the Senate seat, while cousins Robert F. Kennedy Jr. and Kerry Kennedy are publicly promoting her for the job.

Those who know Kennedy say she is pleasant and unpretentious. Certainly she has displayed none of the off-putting behavior that has characterized some of the other members of the so-called third generation of Kennedys. A lawyer and author, she has done some valuable fund-raising work for the New York City schools.

But that hardly means she deserves to be eased into a U.S. Senate seat.

Indeed, a consideration of some of the very characteristics that have made Ted Kennedy such a force in the Senate suggests his niece would be far less likely to succeed there.

Senator Kennedy is a big, magnetic personality, gregarious and funny, so solicitous of other senators that he’s been known to show up at small birthday parties for GOP colleagues — and laugh good-naturedly about how they use him as a bugbear to raise money from conservatives. No surprise, then, that even some Republicans who disagree with him on most everything nevertheless value him as a friend.

Hillary Clinton displayed some of those same traits during her time in the Senate, using her interpersonal skills to impress colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

Caroline Kennedy, however, is not a people person. She’s intensely protective of her privacy, so much so that, according to a Washington Post report, friends are reluctant even to be mentioned in articles about her for fear of being frozen out. To those who don’t know her, she comes off as distant and reserved.

“She’s very quiet and shy,” says one family friend. “I think she is a good person and a smart person, but I just don’t know if she would make a good senator.”

While Ted Kennedy took naturally to political life, Caroline Kennedy hadn’t, at least until her appearances for Barack Obama this year. An indifferent speaker, she has never been much involved in the public fray.

“Yes, she would bring important media attention to any issue she chose, but she is simply not someone who has ever played a significant role in any of the big policy debates,” notes a second Kennedy acquaintance.

Meanwhile, we’ve already seen that political talent isn’t necessarily a trait that has taken deep root among the third generation. Temperamental and rambunctious, Joe Kennedy II proved a poor fit for public life, essentially fouling out of the 1998 race for governor. Likable but lightly informed Max Kennedy stumbled before he was even off the starting block for a planned 2001 congressional run. And in Maryland, Kathleen Kennedy Townsend lost her 2002 gubernatorial bid.

Further, the idea that Kennedy is a logical choice because women want a high-profile champion is a curious one. Despite her fund-raising work, Caroline is someone famous not because of what she’s done but because of who she is. If she’s appointed to the Senate, her selection wouldn’t be based on the merits but on her name.

A U.S. Senate seat is one of the most important posts in the federal government. It is not a barony to be awarded as a political perk to the slightly experienced scion of a famous family.

Despite downturn, California adopts tough climate plan

By Samantha Young
Associated Press writer

California plan at a glance

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — California on Thursday adopted the nation's most sweeping plan to cut greenhouse gas emissions, issuing rules that could transform everything from the way factories operate to the appliances people buy and the fuel they put in their cars.

The Air Resources Board voted unanimously to approve the plan despite warnings it will put costly new burdens on businesses at a time when the economy is in extreme crisis, with California forecasting a staggering budget gap of $41.8 billion through mid-2010.

Republican Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger said he believes the regulations will spur the state's economy and serve as a model for the rest of the country.

"When you look at today's depressed economy, green tech is one of the few bright spots out there, which is yet another reason we should move forward on our environmental goals," Schwarzenegger said in a statement.

The strategy relies on 31 new rules affecting all facets of life, including where people may build their homes and what materi-

Some of the strategies in California's plan to cut greenhouse gas emissions over the next 12 years:

- INDUSTRY
 - Impose an emissions cap on utilities, refineries and other large industrial sources of greenhouse gases.
 - Allow those large polluters to gradually lower emissions by participating in a cap-and-trade market.
- TRANSPORTATION
 - Put into effect a 2002 California law requiring automakers to produce cleaner vehicles. The Bush administration has blocked the law, but state regulators expect President-elect Barack Obama's administration will back it.

Require fuel companies to reformulate fuels so they are a combined 10 percent less carbon-intensive by 2020.

- Give local governments incentives to curb urban sprawl and reduce how far people drive to work or school.
- Require cargo and cruise ships to turn off their engines while docked.
- ENERGY
 - Require utilities to generate one-third of their electricity from renewable sources such as wind, solar and geothermal by 2020.
 - Strengthen energy-efficiency standards for appliances, as well as for existing and new buildings.

—The Associated Press

also they use to do it.

One central piece is a cap-and-trade program, set to begin in 2012, under which power plants, refineries and big factories will be able to buy and sell the right to emit heat-trapping gases. The program could give plant operators a financial incentive to reduce their carbon emissions.

Air regulators said the average Californian could see more fuel-efficient cars and plug-in hybrids on showroom floors; better public transportation; housing nearer to schools and businesses; and utility rebates to make their homes more energy-efficient.

But there will also be costs. Cars could become more expensive, and Californians can expect higher electric rates as utilities increase their use of renewable energy. Homes built with energy-efficient materials could also prove more costly as could gasoline reformulated to release less carbon dioxide.

Kempthorne affirms 'special rule' for polar bears

By Dan Joling
Associated Press writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — As Interior Secretary Dirk Kempthorne announced new rules to reduce the influence of federal scientists on endangered species decisions, he also made permanent a "special rule" that will block steps that could protect threatened polar bears.

Kempthorne on Thursday made permanent a rule that says the listing of polar bears will not be used to limit greenhouse gas emissions, a leading cause of global warming, and the primary reason for the loss of Arctic sea ice, the main habitat of polar bears.

Summer sea ice this year shrank to 1.74 million square miles, the second lowest level on record and 860,000 square miles below the average between 1979 and 2000.

Kempthorne's rule also declares that decisions on petroleum management off Alaska's coast will continue to be governed by the Marine Mammal Protection Act, a law that conservation groups say has been interpreted too loosely to afford adequate protection for whales, polar bears, walrus and seals that depend on ice.

South-central Idaho trails state in projected job growth

Economist says report does not consider quality of jobs or future projects

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

The south-central region of Idaho could see one of the slowest job growth rates in the state, according to long-term projections by Idaho Department of Labor.

The projections, which were released earlier this week, anticipate job growth rates in Idaho between 2006 and 2016 to fall below forecast in every region but north-central Idaho.

South-central Idaho, which has been one of the most stable regions of the state, is expected to see annualized job growth of 1.6 percent, while southeastern and eastern Idaho are expected to match the statewide growth rate of about 2 percent.

North-central Idaho, which includes Lewiston and other communities affected by layoffs in the timber industry, is expected to be the only region that will experience slower job growth than south-central Idaho.

The region, which includes Twin Falls, Burley, Jerome and surrounding communities, has averaged a greater than 2 percent annual growth rate since the national recession began, according to the department of labor.

Jan Roeser, regional economist with Idaho Department of Labor, said the report may not include key factors such as the quality of newly created jobs or future projects that are being discussed in south-central Idaho.

T.F. County sees rise in foreclosures

Numbers are still lower than many other Idaho counties

By Joshua Palmer
Times-News writer

One out of every 644 homes in Twin Falls County was in foreclosure during November, RealtyTrac reported Thursday.

The figure represents a slight increase compared to the previous month when fewer than 40 homes were in foreclosure — or about one out of every 750 homes.

Jerome and Cassia counties saw little or no change from October through November.

The recent increase pushed the average number of foreclosures in Twin Falls County higher than the state average, however, Twin Falls' average is still far less severe than many other counties in Idaho.

About one of every 120 homes is in foreclosure in Canyon and Teton counties.

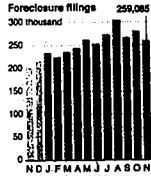

Bankers say the rise in foreclosures in Twin Falls may be caused by layoffs and other economic hardships — rather than defaults on non-traditional loans.

Most local banks in Twin Falls did not issue non-traditional loans such as sub-prime and stated-income, which have led to the downfall of the housing market in other parts of the nation.

Meanwhile, the number of homeowners in the U.S., who were dragged into the housing crisis, fell last month to the lowest level since June as new state laws lengthened the foreclosure process, RealtyTrac reported Thursday.

However, analysts are being cautious about the coming months.

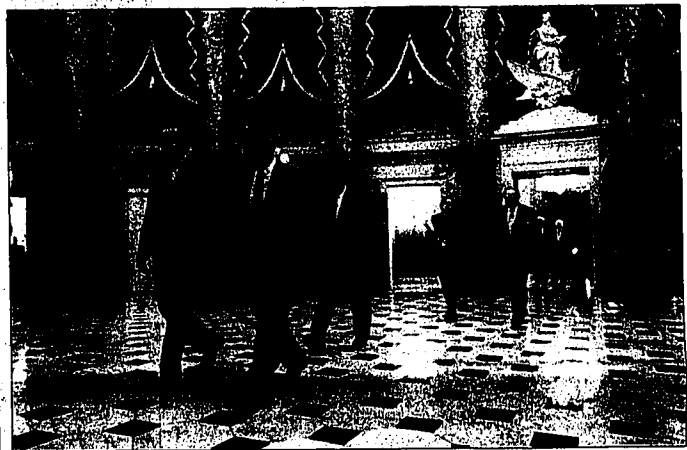

"We're going to have a pretty significant spike in January," said Rick Sharga, RealtyTrac's vice president for marketing. Plus, as job losses mount, "increases in foreclosure activity follow that pretty directly," he added.

Nationwide, more than 259,000 homes received at least one foreclosure-related notice in November, down 7 percent from October, but 28 percent higher than a year ago, RealtyTrac said.

The report comes as Democrats, including President-elect Barack Obama, insist that the government must use some of the bailout funds to halt rising foreclosures.

Auto bailout stalls

Lawmakers return to the floor of the House to vote on the $14 billion bailout for the nation's imperiled auto industry, at the Capitol in Washington.

Obstacle remains in proposed $14 billion rescue

By Julie Hirschfeld Davis and Ken Thomas

WASHINGTON — Republican and Democratic senators struggled into the night Thursday to resolve what was described as one remaining major dispute blocking an emergency $14 billion bailout for U.S. automakers.

The details of the emerging agreement weren't immediately known, nor was the final sticking point.

But Republican senators huddled with their chief negotiator on the progress made in wringing new concessions from the companies and their union, the United Auto Workers, and Democratic leader Harry Reid held out hopes for a vote later in the night.

The talks centered on wage and benefit concessions from the UAW as well as debt restructuring by General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler LLC, and officials from the union and companies were participating in the talks at one point or another.

Whether Republicans senators would go along was also unclear last Wednesday. They revolted against a $14 billion rescue the Bush White House negotiated with congressional Democrats and the House passed on Wednesday.

Leaders stressed that the deal wasn't final.

"All issues are still on the table," said Sen. Dick Durbin of Illinois, the No. 2 Democrat, as he emerged from the talks.

But it was clear lawmakers had made substantial progress toward getting the auto industry aid back on track, and members of both parties were in search of an accord.

"We've got some issues still to resolve but we all want to resolve them," said Sen. Bob Corker, R-Tenn., who led the closed-door talks for his party.

Sen. Chris Dodd, D-Conn., the Banking Committee chairman, who was his party's point man, said staff aides were working on legislative language of a still-emerging deal.

"While we've reached some agreement on a lot already, there are issues that are still outstanding," Dodd said.

Lengthy recession hurting Idaho small business sector

The Business Cycle Dating Committee of the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER), the "official scorekeeper" of the U.S. economy, announced Dec. 1 that a peak in economic activity occurred in December 2007.

As a result, the current U.S. recession officially began in December 2007.

The current recession, now in its 13th month, is likely to be the longest since the Great Depression, according to the announcement. Consensus estimates of economists in recent weeks suggested a return to modest, but positive, U.S. economic growth was likely during the second half of 2009.

Zions Bank Small Business Index shows that the national recession is affecting small businesses in Idaho...

• The Zions Bank Small Business Index for Idaho registered 78.3 in November 2008, up from a revised 77.1 in October 2008.

• Idaho's unemployment rate was estimated at 5.8 percent in the most recent month, up from the 5.4 percent rate of the prior month. Idaho employment declined by an estimated 11,800 jobs during the past 12 months

• The current U.S. recession — likely to be the longest in the post-WWII period — has combined with the global credit crisis to have a major negative impact on Idaho's small businesses

• The U.S. economy lost an estimated 533,000 net jobs in November, the worst monthly performance in 34 years. In addition, job losses in September and October were revised higher by a combined

199,000 jobs

• The U.S. unemployment rate rose to a 15-year high of 6.7 percent.

"I would foresee us having solid and sustainable (job) growth." The Panhandle and the urbanized area around Boise will see the highest job growth at annualized rates of 2.1 percent, say officials with the department of labor — down from the earlier forecast of 2.3 percent for northern Idaho and 2.2 percent for the Boise metropolitan area. In north-central Idaho, the new projections anticipate growth of 1.3 percent, compared to the 1.5 percent annually in the earlier forecast. While the area's job outlook has improved from the earlier projection, it remains anxious for the region that benefited the least from Idaho's expansion following the 2001 national recession. Health care remains the top growth industry for most of the regions as baby boomers move into retirement and Idaho continues to attract retirees from elsewhere in the nation. Health care is expected to be the second fastest growing job market — preceded only by the dairy industry in south central Idaho.

Three Loveless brothers to receive Eagle Scout Awards

Kyle R. Loveless, Samuel R. Loveless and Todd M. Loveless will all receive their Eagle Scout Award at a Court of Honor to be held at 4 p.m. Jan. 4 at the LDS Church located on Fair Street in Buhl. They are the sons of Grant and Julie Loveless of Buhl.

Todd, 16, earned 25 merit badges. For his Eagle Project he made doghouses for the baseball diamond at North Park in Buhl. He was assisted by members of Troop No. 2 and 5. The project took a total of 116 hours. Todd is a sophomore at Buhl High School. He plays soccer, baseball, basketball, has refereed Buhl youth soccer games, and enjoys hunting and fishing.

Samuel, 14, earned 28 merit badges and qualified for one palm. For his Eagle Project he built an equipment storage shed for the Buhl Youth Soccer Association. He was assisted by 18 people and the project took a total of 93 hours to complete. Samuel is in the ninth grade at Buhl High School. He runs cross country, has refereed youth soccer games and enjoys training and hunting with bird dogs.

Kyle, 13, earned 29 merit badges and qualified for one palm. For his Eagle Project he made a sign for the Jess O. Eastman Park in Buhl. Eight people helped him with the project that took a total of 53 hours. Kyle is in the eighth grade at Buhl Middle School. He enjoys running, cross country, soccer and basketball and has also refereed youth soccer games.

The boys are members of Troop No. 2 sponsored by the Buhl 2nd Ward. Their scoutmaster is Jerald Karel.

THE GIVING SEASON

Sleep disorder is encroaching on daytime activities

DEAR DR. GOTT: Will you please address the affliction of narcolepsy in your column? I do OK as long as I am up and about, but, as soon as I sit down, I cannot hold my eyes open. I fall asleep while trying to read. I'm 83 years old and am not taking any prescription medications.

DEAR READER: Narcolepsy is a neurological disorder brought on by the brain's inability to regulate sleep/wake cycles. An inappropriate times, people with the condition experience overwhelming urges to sleep. Daytime sleep periods can last from a few seconds to several minutes, and longer in some instances. Someone with the disorder does not require any more sleep than does someone without the condition, and, in fact, might experience episodes of awakening during nighttime sleep. Narcolepsy is estimated to affect about one in every 2,000 Americans. Statistics for this condition vary greatly from one country/nationality to the next. For example, in Israel, it affects about one in every 500,000, while in Japan, one in every 600 is affected. Symptoms often appear between the ages of 10 and 25 but can affect anyone at any age. There are three characteristics commonly observed in those diagnosed with narcolepsy. The first is the sudden loss of voluntary muscle tone during an episode. The second is hallucinations that occur during the onset of sleep or upon awakening. The third is brief episodes of total paralysis experienced at the beginning and end of sleep patterns. Researchers believe the condition results from some disease processes that affect the brain's mechanism to regulate rapid-eye movement (REM) sleep patterns. Others believe a number of variant forms of genes located in the region of chromosome 6 known as the HLA complex are strongly associated with narcolepsy. Infection, trauma, hormonal changes, stress and an immune-system dysfunction may be present in individuals prior to the beginning of symptoms.

There are two tests physicians believe are most confirmative for diagnosis. The first is polysomnography (PSG), testing that records continuous measurements while a patient remains asleep. The second is multiple sleep latency testing (MSLT), performed during waking hours, which measures a person's tendency to fall asleep. It also records whether elements of REM sleep interfere at inappropriate times.

Narcolepsy cannot be cured, but symptoms can be controlled through medication. Central nervous system stimulants or anticholinergics have been used for a number of years to lower the incidence of sleeping at inappropriate times. Unfortunately, these drugs carry numerous unpleasant side effects. Two classes of antidepressant drugs have been found effective and so far don't appear to carry such severe side effects.

See your primary-care physician and, if necessary, request a referral to a specialist for diagnosis. You may have a completely unrelated condition going on and certainly don't want to subject yourself to medication at your age. Consider taking a brief nap during the day. This simple lifestyle change might be all that you need.

Peter Gott is a retired physician and the author of the book "Dr. Gott's No Flout, No Sugar Diet."

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Donations/Volunteers — The College of Southern Idaho Refugee Center is in need of household items including televisions, computers and rice cookers. The center also needs volunteers to adopt a family for Christmas (provide rice and decorations and food for a holiday meal), and volunteers to work with refugees in a variety of areas. Donated items can be taken to the center, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (closed noon to 1 p.m.), Monday through Friday, at 1526 Highland Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Information: Michelle at 736-2166.

Donations — New Hope Transition Center is in need of several items to help through the winter, including: noodles, canned vegetables, stews and soups, fresh vegetables, large garbage bags, paper towels, toilet paper, liquid dish soap, laundry soap and cleaning supplies. Donated items can be taken to the center, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, at 425 Second Ave. N. in Twin Falls. Information: 733-0823.

Drivers — Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center is in need of volunteer drivers for the "home delivered meals" program for the homebound. Drivers do not have to be seniors (husbands and/or wives or anyone of legal driving age) to help. Contact to drive one or two days a week for an hour to an hour and a half. The center needs people who can be relied on for their appointed routes. Reimbursed mileage for gas is available. Information: Karen, 734-5084.

Drivers — Retired and Senior Volunteer Program is in need of volunteer drivers, age 55 and older, in Shoshone, Jerome and Filer. Volunteers are reimbursed mileage and are covered by excess insurance. Information: Edith, 736-4764.

Drivers — Retired and Senior Volunteer Program is in need of volunteer drivers, age 55 and older, in the Mini-Cassia area to take senior citizens to doctor appointments and for grocery shopping. Volunteers are reimbursed mileage and are covered by excess insurance. Information: Kitty, 677-4872, ext. 2.

Volunteers — Long Term Care Ombudsman Program is in need of volunteers to visit residents in skilled nursing and residential care facilities. Volunteers can be advocates for residents and improve elderly care. Training and mentoring will be provided. Information: Mary or Luene at Office of Aging, 736-2122.

Volunteers — Hospice Visions is seeking volunteers for its hospice home, Visions of Home. Volunteers are needed to assist patients with reading, writing, visiting, playing cards or being a friend during a difficult time in their lives. Call Flo at 735-0121.

Foster parents — Magic Valley Youth and Adult Services is in need of foster parents for local foster children who need temporary homes. Many children in south-central Idaho are in foster care due to neglect, abuse or abandonment. More children who are 10 and younger are in foster care, but less foster homes are available for those 11 and older. Information: 734-4435 or Idaho Care Line at 211.

Mentors — The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program is in need of volunteers, age 55 and older, in Jerome and Twin Falls counties to mentor children of prisoners. Volunteers must undergo a complete background check and be willing to mentor a child for a minimum of one hour each week for one year. Lewis Howard Canine GOODING — Lewis Howard Canine completed his earthly journey on Monday, Dec. 8, 2008.

He was the son of James and Leta Canine and was born Nov. 3, 1921, in Burley. Lewis attended schools in Gooding and Buhl.

He graduated from Buhl High School and was a four-year letterman in football and basketball. He attended college on a football scholarship until he enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1942.

He was assigned to a Marine Air Group and served on the islands of New Caledonia and Bougainville in the Pacific Theater. Lewis and Roberta Harding were married in Lomita, Calif., in 1943. They recently celebrated 65 years of marriage.

After being discharged from the military, Lewis and Roberta returned to Gooding.

and Lewis operated the Harding family farm. In 1955, he went to work for the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association. In 1982, after 27 years of service, he retired from the association. Retirement brought many enjoyable years and miles of traveling for Lewis and Roberta. A few months each winter were spent enjoying Arizona weather. Lewis loved the game of golf and played until his health no longer permitted.

Survivors include Roberta; sons, Jim (Jeanie), John (Cinda), Bill (Cindi) and Don (Janelle); daughter, Carol (Scott) West; nephew, Marvin (Carol) Harding; several nieces and nephews; nine grandchildren; and 14 great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church at 11 a.m. Friday, Dec. 12, Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding. Place in the casket arrangements. In lieu of flowers, please consider the Gooding Hospital Foundation or a charity of your choice.

Omer Kenneth Carter

JEROME — Omer Kenneth Carter, 77, of Jerome, passed away Wednesday, Dec. 10, 2008, at his home.

He was born June 18, 1931, in Short, Okla., the son of Porter Lee Carter and Beulah Cowan Carter. Omer grew up in hard times. He worked harvesting crops from Kansas to Colorado, settling in California where he met the love of his life, Venita Shirley. They were married March 11, 1950, in Jemo, Nev. They lived in Oakland, Calif., where Omer worked for Judson Steel.

They moved to Tracy, Calif., before moving to Jerome in 1958, where they farmed in east Jerome County until 1994. Omer was a member of the Jerome Church of Christ, Valley View Church.

Omer is survived by his wife of 58 years, Venita Carter of Jerome; one daughter, Genece (Terry) Kom of Crestwood, Ky.; and two sons, Lyndel (Karla) Carter of Gooding and Shawn Carter of Fairfield. He is also survived by five grandchildren, Kyle, Nicole and nephews, Jimmy Mont, Kyndel Carter of Twin Falls, Cassidy (Jerry) Hutson of Virginia, Danielle Kom of Kentucky and Jeremy Kom of Kentucky; two sisters, Wilma (Cleo) London and Lessie Chapman, both of Oklahoma. He was preceded in death by one son, Eddie; his parents; and his sister, Faye Collins.

The funeral will be conducted at noon Monday, Dec. 15, at Farnsworth Mortuary Chapel, 413 S. Lincoln St. in Jerome, with Bronson Ode of the Jerome Church of Christ officiating. A visitation will be held where family and friends may call from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 14, and again one hour prior to the service Monday. Burial in the Farnsworth Mortuary Interment will follow in the Wendell Cemetery.

For obituary rates and information, call 735-3266 Monday through Saturday. Deadline is 3 p.m. for next-day publication. E-mail obituaries to obits@magvalley.com. U.S. Border Patrol Agent Nicholas Corbett arrives Feb. 25 at the Federal Court Building in Tucson, Ariz., for a pre-trial hearing. Corbett won't be tried a third time in the shooting death of an illegal immigrant in the southern Arizona desert last year, prosecutors said Thursday.

No 3rd trial for agent in migrant's shooting death

By Arthur H. Robbins
Associated Press Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. — A U.S. Border Patrol agent won't be tried a third time for the shooting death of an illegal immigrant in the southern Arizona desert last year, prosecutors announced Thursday.

The shooting had been condemned by Mexico's president and the decision to drop the case is being criticized by human-rights activists.

Two juries this year were unable to reach a verdict in the case against agent Nicholas Corbett. Cochise County Corbett Attorney Ed Rheinfelmer's office will move to dismiss charges but could refile them if more evidence emerges, prosecutor Doyle Johnston said.

The 40-year-old Corbett was tried on second-degree murder, manslaughter and negligent homicide charges in the January 2007 death of Francisco Javier Dominguez Rivera of Puebla, Mexico.

Corbett fatally shot Dominguez, 22, while trying to take him, two brothers and the girlfriend of one brother into custody just north of the Mexican border near Naco, hours after they had entered the country illegally.

The three witnesses testified that the 6-foot-4, 240-pound Corbett shot Dominguez without provocation as the much smaller man was in the process of kneeling to surrender.

But Corbett's lawyers argued during both trials that he shot in self-defense after Dominguez attacked him with a rock. "Two times is generally the limit on murder trials, and we've left the door open here if we can enhance evidence in the future," said former Arizona Attorney General Grant Woods, who served as special prosecutor for Rheinfelmer's office in the case. Woods said he's interested in particular whether future technology will enable enhancement of a grainy video of the shooting incident.

Dominguez's family filed a wrongful death lawsuit Tuesday against Corbett in federal court.

Corbett has been assigned to administrative duties since being charged in the shooting. Sean Chapman, one of his attorneys, said the defense is glad that his burden has been lifted off his shoulders.

1950s pinup Bettie Page dies in L.A. at 85

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press writer

LOS ANGELES — Bettie Page, the 1950s secretary-turned-model whose controversial photographs in skimpy attire or none at all helped set the stage for the 1960s sexual revolution, died Thursday. She was 85.

Page suffered a heart attack last week in Los Angeles and never regained consciousness, her agent Mark Roessler said. Before the heart attack, Page had been hospitalized for three weeks with pneumonia.

"She captured the imagination of a generation of men and women with her free spirit and unabashed sensuality," Roessler said. "She is the embodiment of beauty."

Page, who was also known as Betty, attracted national attention with magazine photographs of her sensuous figure in bikinis and see-through lingerie that were quickly tacked up on walls in military barracks, garages and elsewhere, where they remained for years.

Her photos included a centerpiece in the January 1955 issue of then-fledgling Playboy magazine, as well as controversial sociobiological poses.

The latter helped contribute to her mysterious disappearance from the public eye, which lasted decades and included years during which she battled mental illness and became a born-again Christian.

After resurfacing in the 1990s, she occasionally granted interviews but refused to allow her picture to be taken.

"I don't want to be photographed in my old age. I feel the same way with old movie stars. ... It makes me sad. We want to remember them when they were young."

— Bettie Page, in an interview in 1998

Page began her one day in October 1950 when she took a respite from her job as a secretary in a New York office for a walk along the beach at Coney Island. An amateur photographer named Jerry Tibbs admired the 27-year-old's firm, curvy body and asked her to pose.

Looking back on the career that followed, she told Playboy in 1998, "I never thought it was shameful. I felt normal. It's just that it was much better than viewing a typewriter eight hours a day, which gets monotonous."

Nudity didn't bother her, she said, explaining, "God approves of nudity. Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, they were naked as jaybirds."

In 1951, Page fell under the influence of a photographer and his sister who specialized in S&M. They cut her hair into the dark bangs that became her signature and posed her in spiked heels and little else. She was photographed with a whip in her hand, and in one session she was spread-eagled between two trees, her feet dangling.

"I thought my arms and legs would come out of their sockets," she said later. Moralists denounced the photos as perversion, and Sen. Estes Efremov of Tennessee, Page's home state, launched a congressional investigation.

Page quickly retreated from public view, later saying she was hounded by federal agents who waved her nude photos in her face. She also said she believed that, at age 34, her days as "the girl with the perfect figure" were nearly over.

She moved to Florida in 1957 and married a much younger man, as an early marriage to her high school sweetheart ended in divorce.

Her second marriage also failed, as did a third, and she suffered a nervous breakdown.

In 1959, she was lying on a sea wall in Key West when she saw a church with a white neon cross on top. She walked inside and became a born-again Christian.

After attending Bible school, she wanted to serve as a missionary but was turned down because she had been divorced. Instead, she worked full-time for evangelist Billy Graham's ministry.

A move to Southern California in 1979 brought more troubles. She was arrested after an altercation with her landlady, and doctors who examined her determined she had acute schizophrenia. She spent 20 months in a state mental hospital in San Bernardino.

A fight with another landlord resulted in her arrest, but she was found not guilty because of insanity. She was placed under state supervision for eight years.

"She had a very turbulent life," Todd Mueller, a family friend and author, told The Associated Press on Thursday. "She had a temper to her."

Mueller said he first met Page after tracking her down in the 1990s and persuaded her to do an autograph signing event.

'Button,' 'Frost/Nixon,' 'Doubt' grab 5 Globe noms

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The Academy Awards picture cleared up late Thursday as "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button," "Doubt" and "Frost/Nixon" led the Golden Globe nominations with five apiece.

The Oscar fate of the year's biggest film, "The Dark Knight," remains uncertain, though, with the Batman blockbuster earning only a single Globe nomination, supporting actor Heath Ledger.

"Benjamin Button" and "Frost/Nixon" earned Globe nominations for best drama, along with "The Reader," "Revolutionary Road" and "Slumdog Millionaire."

Brad Pitt was among dramatic-actor nominees for his role as a man born old and aging backward in "Benjamin Button," as was Frank Langella as Richard Nixon in "Frost/Nixon." The others were Leonardo DiCaprio for the domestic drama "Revolutionary Road," Sean Penn for the Harvey Milk saga "Milk" and Mickey Rourke for the sports-comback tale "The Wrestler."

DiCaprio declined to predict his own Oscar prospects when those nominations came out Jan. 22. He had a firm opinion about Winslet, who has had five past Oscar nominations without winning.

"I think it's been her time for a long time. To me, she's the most accomplished actress of her generation. I would be working with her," DiCaprio said. "To finally do another movie together, after looking for one for so long does feel really special."

Joining Winslet among dramatic-actress nominees were Anne Hathaway for "Rachel Getting Married," Angelina Jolie for "Changeling," Meryl Streep for "Doubt" and Kristin Scott Thomas for "I've Loved You So Long."

Besides Streep, "Doubt" had three other acting nominations, in supporting categories for Philip Seymour Hoffman, Amy Adams and Viola Davis.

Ambulance attendants accused of molesting patients

By Deany Robbins
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — They answer the call 24-7, often risking their own safety to rescue the sick and injured and rush them to the hospital. But some paramedics have been more predator than hero.

Over the past 18 months, at least 129 ambulance attendants across the U.S. have been accused of sex-related crimes on duty or off, an investigation by The Associated Press found. Some of them molested patients in the back of an ambulance.

"It's a dream job for a sexual predator," said Greg Kafoury, a Portland, Ore., lawyer who represents three women who were groped by a paramedic. "Everything is there. Women who are incapacitated, so they're hugely distracted. Medical cover to put your hands in places where, in any other context, a predator would be immediately recognized as such."

Across the U.S., emergency medical technicians have been accused in recent months of such crimes as rape, soliciting minors over the Internet and possession of child porn, according to an AP survey of the state agencies that oversee those professions.

Exactly how many of these EMTs were alleged to have committed their crimes on the job is unclear. But some of more shocking cases include: • A Standish, Mich., paramedic sent to prison in March for molesting a girl who was on her way to the hospital after she was injured at her 15th birthday party.

• A Pinellas County, Fla., paramedic arrested in July after he allegedly sexually assaulted a woman in an ambulance en route to a hospital.

• A Chester County, Pa., paramedic sentenced in July to up to 20 years in prison for engaging in sex and providing alcohol to teenagers he befriended through their interest in emergency medical service.

• A Coppens Cove, Texas, paramedic awaiting trial in January on charges "he exposed and touched an 18-year-old accident victim's breasts while pretending to tend to her injuries."

• A Chattanooga, Tenn., EMT accused in a lawsuit of giving a 30-year-old woman an extra dose of morphine and then completely undressing her in the back of an ambulance even though her injuries were minor.

State health officials in 23 states reported receiving sex-related complaints involving EMS workers. New York reported the most complaints — 17. Thirteen of the complaints were substantiated and resulted in workers losing their certification. Texas reported 13 complaints, Massachusetts 11 and Virginia 10. No breakdown was immediately available showing how many of those allegations involved sexual misconduct on the job.

Several EMS officials said the number of complaints is troubling but does not necessarily point to an industry-wide problem. They noted that the profession employs nearly 900,000 people in the U.S.

"That number in and of itself doesn't shock me, knowing the number of providers we have in the country," said Steve Blessing, state EMS director in Delaware and president of the National Association of State EMS Officials. "It's even one case too many. I think most state directors would say no. But we're bound by reality here."

In Portland, paramedic Lianne Hassard was sentenced to five years in prison in August after pleading guilty to five counts of attempted sexual abuse. Hassard, 62, was charged with inappropriately touching four female patients while they were being taken by ambulance to hospitals.

Three of the women have sued Hassard and American Medical Response, his employer at the time. The lawsuits contend that the company, which operates ambulances in 40 states, failed to react to previous complaints about the paramedic's conduct.

Hassard's behavior came to light last December when a 28-year-old single mother of three, Royshikka Herring, told police that he touched her genitals while she was en route to the hospital for emergency treatment of a gastrointestinal condition.

In a recent taped deposition, Herring's voice shook with emotion as she described how a nurse tried to convince her that Hassard was probably performing an abdominal exam.

"I started yelling at her, because I didn't feel safe," Herring testified. "Somebody I never expected to touch me touched me."

A spokesman for American Medical Response had no comment on the case.

Study finds elephants live longer in wild than in zoos

By Randolph E. Schmid
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Zoo elephants don't live as long as those in the wild, according to a study sure to stir debate about keeping the giant animals on display.

Researchers compared the life spans of elephants in European zoos with those living in Amboseli National Park in Kenya and others working on a timber enterprise in Myanmar. Animals in the wild or in natural working conditions had life spans twice that or more of their relatives in zoos.

Animal care activists have campaigned in recent years to discourage keeping elephants in zoos, largely because of the lack of space and small numbers of animals that can be kept in a group. Debates have been especially vocal in Dallas and Los Angeles.

The researchers found that the median life span for African elephants in European zoos was 16.9 years, compared with 56 years for elephants who died of natural causes in Kenya's Amboseli Park. Adding in those elephants killed by people in Africa lowered the median life span there to 35.9 years. Median means half died younger than that and half lived longer.

For the most endangered Asian elephants, the median life span in European zoos was 18.9 years, compared with 41.7 years for those working in the Myanmar Timber Enterprise. Myanmar is the country formerly known as Burma.

There is some good news, though. The life spans of zoo elephants have improved in recent years, suggesting an improvement in their care and raising, said one of the report's authors, George J. Mason of the animal sciences department at the University of Guelph, Canada.

But, she added, "protecting elephants in Africa and Asia is far more successful than protecting them in Western zoos."

There are about 1,200 elephants in zoos, half in Europe, Mason said in an interview via e-mail. She said researchers concentrated on female elephants, which make up 80 percent of the zoo population.

"One of our more amazing results" was that Asian elephants born in zoos have shorter life spans than do Asian elephants brought to the zoos from the wild, she added in a broadcast interview provided by the Journal Science, which published the results in its Friday edition.

She noted that zoos usually lack large grazing areas that elephants are used to in the wild, and that zoo animals often are alone or with one or two other unrelated animals, while in the wild they tend to live in related groups of eight to 12 animals.

In Asian elephants, infant mortality rates are two times to three times higher in zoos than in the Burmese logging camps, Mason said via e-mail.

Dying to support animal rights? Try a PETA coffin

EDGEWOOD, N.M. (AP) — For animal rights activists, sticking up for furry or feathered critters is a way of life. Now it can be a way of death, too.

A New Mexico company is building all-wood human coffins in a partnership with People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

They bear painted slogans, such as "Lifetime PETA Member" or "I saved 500 animals."

Another serves up a last laugh that plays on a long-running PETA advertisement: "Told You I Wouldn't Be Caught Dead in Fur!"

The coffins, which went on sale last week, are priced from $620 to $670, which includes a $75 PETA contribution. Made of wood, they are designed to be Earth-friendly, with no screws, nails, hinges or animal-based glues.

They are assembled by Dienna Gentler, 44, a former construction worker from Bellingham, Wash., who operates a company called The Old Pine Box in rural Edgewood, about 30 miles east of Albuquerque. She began handcrafting coffins from pine, cedar, maple and other woods in 2004.

In Burley, 'Nutcracker' enters 20th year

By Melissa Davlin
Times-News writer

After two decades, Jennifer Sager still isn't tired of "The Nutcracker."

Sager, owner and head instructor of Centre Stage Studios in Burley, has organized the classic Christmas performance every holiday season for 20 years.

And she's showing no sign of Tchaikovsky-fatigue.

"You can't get tired of Tchaikovsky," Sager said. "He was brilliant."

Sager began teaching in 1976. She received training in England, where she grew up, in Toronto and at Brigham Young University.

Sager remembers the individual Christmas performances by who played Clara, the lead role, that year. To celebrate their landmark performances, she invited the Clara alumni to this year's performance.

"It's like holding a class reunion," she said.

Sager has seen the production mature over the years. The dancers performed in Burley High School's theater until 1999, then moved to the King Fine Arts Center. They added more solos and now bring in more guests performers than they used to.

But through all the changes, she can't name a single production as her favorite.

"They all stand out," Sager said.

Magic Valley Chorale presents Christmas concert

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

You know "Deck the Halls," "Joy to the World" and even "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." But what about "Patapan" or "Pum Pum Pum?"

This year's Magic Valley Chorale Christmas concert will feature "The Many Moods of Christmas," a medley of 18 carols from around the world. Chorale director Joe Casperson said audiences can look forward to hearing songs they know by heart, along with lesser-known carols that might be new to them.

The piece was arranged by Robert Shaw and Robert Russell Bennett, and Casperson said one of the things he likes best is the way Shaw and Bennett blended carols with different tempos and themes.

"It's broader and a little more encompassing," Casperson said. "If you're going to go with something a little less traditional, it has to be exquisite, and that's what they've done." Catch the Christmas music at 7:30 p.m. Saturday or 4 p.m. Sunday at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

"The Many Moods of Christmas" is made up of a series of four musical suites. Many of the songs in the medley originated in other countries, and some are sung in different languages. One song in the second suite is "March of the Kings," a 19th-century French carol written by Georges Bizet, best known for

 "They're all a little bit different, 'cause when you're working with children and different parts, everybody brings their different personality into it." Her favorite role is "whatever is on stage at the time," she said.

Sager isn't the only Burley resident who sees the annual production as a tradition. Daria Burtenshaw, who plays the Scottish grandmother this year, has watched her three granddaughters perform in the play for the past three years.

"We go watch it every single year and I just love it," Burtenshaw said. This is her first time participating.

"I have always been extremely impressed with being a professional job they do," she said. "It's really fun to watch."

The cast:

- Clara — Cambree King
- Ritz — Marka Baker
- Herr Drosselmeier — Steve Floyd
- Clara's father — David Graham
- Clara's mother — Nichole Graham
- Scottish grandmother — Daria Burtenshaw
- Mother Ginger — Jaylynn Twiss
- Snow Queen — Tedi Cameron, Kimberly Hicklenooper
- Dew Drop Fairy — Kathryn Heun, Katie Coats
- Columbine Dolls — Shelly Danielson, Gena Cook
- Haregull — Kendi Hopworth, Jill Hopworth
- Soldier Doll — Macy Broadhead, Halley Wilberger
- Mouse King — Michelle White, Katie Coats
- Dew Drop soloists — Jill Hopworth, Michelle White, Halley Wilberger, Macy Broadhead
- Arabian soloists — Kimberly Hicklenooper, Kendi Dougless
- Guest artists are Megan Olson as the Sugarplum Fairy and Addison Larsen as the Cavalier.

 his classic opera "Carmen." Casperson said the chorale will sing the entire score in French but of "Patapan" is in French as well, and audiences will hear the choir "O Sanctissimus" in the traditional Latin.

Casperson said several members of the choir speak other languages fluently, which is helpful when learning pronunciation. Also, even when a piece is sung in German or French, choral music usually includes English translations.

Casperson said the choir took time to discuss the lyrics, which informs their performance.

"You sing more enthusiastically, and a little more accurately, too," Casperson said.

Sam Beus, choir president, said he has enjoyed learning the nontraditional carols, even though it's been difficult to get the accent right in French and Latin. One of

Beus' favorite piece is "Patapan." The song tells the story of two shepherds who celebrate the Christmas season by playing their flute and drum, and it has a strong, energetic rhythm.

"It liven's things up a little," Beus said.

The choir will be accompanied by the Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra, and Casperson said instrumentation adds to the overall feel of "The Many Moods."

For example, the chorale and orchestra will set the mood for the solemn carol "What Child Is This?" by starting with a classical guitar solo.

Choir member Maggie Arrington said she has enjoyed singing the piece's traditional carols because music is an important part of the season for her. One of the last songs of the piece is "I Saw Three Ships," which reminds Arrington of growing up in Northern Ireland. Arrington said she hopes others will take time to come to the concert and let the music bring back their own Christmas memories.

"We get so rushed and hurried and worried about money, especially with the economy," Arrington said. "This will be a chance for people to just sit back and enjoy the music."

Herrett Center features photography professor's work

Times-News

The "Russ Hepworth Retrospective" will be featured in the Joan B. King Gallery of the Herrett Center for Arts and Science for two months. A free public reception for the artist will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Hepworth, an associate professor of art at the College of Southern Idaho, has taught painting, design and photography for 17 years at CSI. From 1958 to 2002, he managed the art exhibits in the Herrett Center's King gallery.

Hepworth writes in his artist's statement that this, his last exhibition at the Herrett, is dedicated to the memory of his friend Bill Studebaker, who died last summer in a whistleblower accident.

Fifty percent of the photography sales from the show will be donated to the CSI Foundation in memory of Studebaker.

black-and-white photographs from four bodies of work from 1996 and on. Two of them, "Travelers in an Antique Land" and "Rewind," are collaborations with Studebaker, who died last summer in a whistleblower accident.

The other photos come from "20/20 Magic," a collaboration with Shelley McEuen, and "Big Sur to Bodie," that chronicles travels taken this year with Al Weber and David Vestal in California.

Following Tuesday's public reception, the show will be on display through Feb. 14. Admission is always free. The Herrett Center is open 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays, and 1 to 9 p.m. Saturdays. It is

Plan on a party for New Year's Eve

Times-News

Twelve-time "Entertainer of the Year" Danny Marona will come out of retirement for a night — long enough to perform at a New Year's Eve dinner show and dance at Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center in Twin Falls.

Marona's Performing Arts Scholarship Fund, founded nearly three years ago, will receive the profits.

The show, he said, will be a barn burner.

"Since I only perform one night a year, there's no reason to hold anything back," Marona said in a press release. "So I'll be pulling out all of the stops."

He invited two of his recent comedy favorites to join him on the bills: Jill Scaam, who took first place in Marona's comedy competition from a class he taught at College of Southern Idaho, and Pete Peterson, a comedian friend who recently completed a comedy tour of Great Britain. Each will do a 15-minute set.

Dancing will be to the sounds of southern Idaho band Crossfire.

Danny Marona's New Year's Eve Blowout is set for 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Dec. 31. Cost is $85 per person, including dinner. Tickets: Don Hall at 280-2582.

Showing that 'every man' matters Hailey theater creates 'Wonderful Life' characters, '40s radio actors at same time

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Dial in for a double dose of nostalgia this holiday season when Company of Fools presents a live radio play version of America's holiday classic "It's a Wonderful Life."

Nine actors will bring to life the timeless story of George Bailey and the impact one man can have on those around him. Wednesday through Jan. 4 at The Liberty Theatre in Hailey. And audiences will get to watch how a radio show of the 1940s was put together, right down to the crushing of cornflakes with a rolling pin to simulate the sound of ice breaking.

"The play is definitely about the story. But it also gives the audience the chance to see how the sound effects are made and the reaction of actors working together as they take on multiple voices and characters. It's not your typical theater," said director Lynn Allison, a regular with Boise's Idaho Shakespeare Festival and Boise Contemporary Theatre.

The show is based on the story of a despairing George Bailey who receives a visit from his guardian angel, Clarence Odbody, on Christmas Eve showing him the people's lives he has touched.

"We couldn't ask for a more appropriate piece for this time," said Allison. "People are losing their homes, there's a run on the bank..."

"When we chose the show, we had no idea what was going to happen to the world's economy," added John Glenn, who plays George Bailey. "We chose it because this is a timeless story of every man, a story about how everyone is important."

In addition to Glenn, the play features Greg Cappel, Andrew Alburger, Jana Arnold, Kathryn Cherasaro, Scott Creighton, Keith Joe Dick, Denise Simone and Russell Wilson.

"It's an interesting play to do because you have to become actors of the '40s at the same time that you're becoming all these other characters for the radio show," said Arnold, who carries eight voices for the radio broadcast. "And the characters of the '40s involve more presentation — they're not as natural as the characters we'd work together to figure out how to create various sounds. Cappel, for instance, rubs erasers together to simulate the sound of a train moving down the track. He drops a pebble on top of sheet metal pieces stacked in a box to simulate breaking glass. And he creates the sound of wind by rolling a drum across canvases.

"Those who have to go to the restroom during the show will be able to listen to it via a 1930s Silvertron Console that Glenn found at an antique shop in Shoshone and set up in the lobby. And audiences will essentially become part of the production as they respond to the applause meter for WCOP-Radio.

"Until the late 1940s radio networks required that programs be presented live," Glenn said. "And the radio stars made a lot of money — they could make $5,000 for one of the Campbell's Soups broadcasts. That's a lot of money, even today. That just shows how big these radio broadcasts were in those days."

Celebrate 'Christmas Around the World' with Buhl parade

By Blair Koch
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — You don't have to travel far to celebrate "Christmas Around the World," but you may have to travel to Buhl.

On Saturday the city hosts its annual Night Light Parade, with festivities throughout the day. Leading up to the popular parade: new-business ribbon cuttings and open houses, a gift and craft bazaar, a visit from Santa, live music, a chili feed, caroling and the lighting of the city's Christmas tree by the Idaho National Guard.

"We are so excited for this event," said Christine Garrison, Buhl Chamber of Commerce executive director. "The chamber has been working hard for months now to get a variety of activities going on in Buhl all day long. We want residents and visitors from around the valley to enjoy our quaint little town and all that it has to offer."

Flier band Wings Ablaze is ready to rock a crowd during its concert from 5 to 7 p.m. at the West End Senior Center. You know this group is young when its bass guitarist says some of its favorite songs to play are "old music" — like "Every Rose has its Thorn" (by Poison) and Nirvana's early stuff.

"We play a lot of rock and alternative rock covers, and we play our own original music," said Ben Shetler, on bass guitar and backup vocals.

Shetler said the band includes his cousins Andy Shetler on lead guitar and vocals and Chase Stinson on drums. Lead rhythm and electric guitarist Shane Faro rounds out the band. All of the group's members live in Filer and are in their teens — except Stinson, who's just 12. Don't let this band's youth turn you away. Their music is lyrical; it catches you by surprise and keeps a hold on you until the last guitar riff dissipates.

"They're good and fun to listen to," said Cosmic Jolt's owner Becky Hagerott, who has hosted the band a couple of times.

After enjoying Wings Ablaze and The Jordan River Band (playing 3 to 5 p.m. at the senior center), get your fill at the Kivans Club Chili Feed. Bring nonperishable food for donation and help the Kivans help local families in need this Christmas. The all-you-can-eat dinner includes chili and fixings, corn bread with honey butter and dessert. The meal is a steal — just $3 for children 6-11 and $5 for adults.

After dinner, participate in a session of community caroling, just prior to the lighting of the city's Christmas tree in Legacy Square. A flag ceremony by the Idaho National Guard will take place at the tree-lighting ceremony, which kicks off the parade.

west to Maple. The parade disperses when it returns to Broadway.

Floats may be entered up to the parade's assembly at the chamber's parking lot at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Festivities will continue after the parade at the Eighth Street Center, which will host an open house with cookies, hot chocolate and more caroling. The center is also collecting food and toys for Christmas baskets.

Many Magic Valley musicians collaborate for Gooding cantata

By Mary Hanson
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — If you live in a small town and you love to sing, your opportunities can be limited. The same is true for attending live performances.

But the Gooding Community Choral and Orchestra concerts held at Christmastime have become a north Magic Valley tradition, filling the bill for high performance levels and inspiring live music.

The Walker Center auditorium, at 605 11th Ave. E. in Gooding, will be the site of three free performances: at 7 p.m. today and Saturday and at 4 p.m. Sunday. This year the choral and orchestra will perform a traditional "lessons and carols" cantata that includes 11 rich carols and beautiful new songs.

"Festival of Carols" was written by Joseph M. Martin and is directed by Rick Strickland. Soloists are United Methodist Church pastor David Buechler and Cindy Ervin of Gooding.

Martin has written and arranged music for his own piano concerts, as well as for churches, movies and television.

"I don't know exactly why, but I've done a lot of listening and I've chosen Martin's music three times now," Strickland said. "The vocal arrangements can look fairly simple, but in reality the harmony has surprising turns. Several of the original songs that Martin includes in this work are especially effective and beautiful. The "Celtic Advent Carol" is dramatic and stirring.

The audience is invited to join in singing the traditional songs included in the cantata.

"When we come to those, I expect the audience to just join in spontaneously, but I will turn to them so they will know they are being invited to sing," Strickland said.

"We have around 40 choir members from area churches and communities," said Beverly Heuston, publicity chairwoman. "The orchestra is from Twin Falls, Wendell, Jerome, Shoshone and several other valley towns and includes the well-known musical Smith family from Wendell."

Strickland plays cello with the Magic Valley Symphony, and many of his music colleagues practice in Twin Falls and then join the choral for the performances.

"Last year we had standing room only at our performances," Heuston said. "...We have a nice size choral and orchestra, and we are thrilled that we are sounding better than ever."

Organizers suggest a donation to help with the cost of music and supplies.

Mary Hanson may be reached at mhansonmld@aol.com.

Magic Valley teen bands once again lack venue

By Melissa Davis
Times-News writer

For the second time in a year, local top musicians are without a home.

In November, Twin Falls music venue The Shop shut down after police informed owners Corey McCombs and Mikoy Eveleth they needed a special use permit to continue holding concerts.

In October, concert goer Justin Sweat, 26, was charged with felony aggravated battery after allegedly kicking Devin Boudreaux, 22, in the mosh pit, causing him to fall on the concrete floor and suffer bleeding in his brain.

Before the incident, The Shop operated largely off the radar, spreading word about its shows through networking on MySpace and word-of-mouth. The injury drew attention to the venue, which opened in September.

The Shop and its predecessor, The Ranch, were popular with teens and young adults for their high-energy, alcohol-free atmosphere. The facilities hosted punk, ska and hardcore bands from southern Idaho and around the West.

Renee Carraway, zoning and development manager for the city of Twin Falls, said McCombs and Eveleth are welcome to apply for the permit — just like anyone else who wants to operate similar events that regularly attract large crowds.

To receive a special use permit, applicants must prove they are equipped to deal with crowds. The Shop fell short on several requirements, including restrooms for both men and women, handicapped parking spaces, a paved parking lot and fire exits. Major structural changes were out of the question — the owners rented the Hanks Road facility, located in a warehouse. Even if they were allowed to remodel, McCombs said, it would be too expensive.

So where do the musicians go from here?

It's not that Twin Falls doesn't have venues, said Busi Worstell, lead singer of ska band SKITTSH ITZ. But the bar scene isn't attractive to many of the bands and is out of the question for others whose members are under 21. Some venues aren't interested in booking punk bands, while others charge too much. Paying $1,000 for the privilege of playing isn't an option when the band makes only $500 on a good night, Worstell said.

Pete Welch, lead singer for Home Town Hero, said the young musicians are weary of constantly looking for new places to play. "It's become more and more clear that they're more focused on ways to shut us down all while saving face," Welch said.

Carraway denied that City Hall has anything against teen musicians.

"I would say that's not true at all. We would process (their request) like any other," Carraway said. "Our concern is just that all the it's are dotted and the it's are crossed."

The musicians aren't throwing in the towel yet. Worstell is trying to book shows at bars' teen nights, and McCombs and Eveleth are looking at other venue options. In January, the musicians are playing at least one show — a benefit for Sweet, according to a MySpace posting — but the organizers declined to give details.

"I understand that everybody has red tape to cut through," McCombs said. "But I don't think it should be almost near-impossible for kids our age to do it."

BUSINESS JUST GETS BETTER AND BETTER...WHY?

Ask anyone who has the PLATINUM GASAVER installed on their motorhome, truck, van, auto, or gasoline powered farm equipment. Ask them why they are raving to their friends and neighbors about the money they are saving on gasoline.

IT'S LIKE GETTING AN EXTRA 1/4 TANK OF GAS AT EACH FILL UP!!!

The PLATINUM GASAVER is the first U.S. Governmentally documented and verified fuel saving device in existence!!

The PLATINUM GASAVER will:

- Increase gas mileage 22% or more
- Increase a vehicles power, in fact, a 3 to 5 point octane boost (no more paying for premium grade gasoline)
- dramatically reduce emissions
- significantly prolong the life of a gasoline powered engine
- quick E-Z installation.

Road trip the next step for young CSI men's squad

By Mike Christensen
Times-News writer

It's time to add some more weight to the bar. The College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team has done plenty of growing up through its first 10 games inside the confines of CSI Gymnasium. Now it's time to see if the 18th-ranked Golden Eagles can soar while away from home. CSI's first away game of the season tips off at 3 p.m. (MST) today as the Eagles face Dodge City (Kan.) Community College at the Pizza Hut Classic in Liberal, Kan. The Conquistadors are coached by Twin Falls High School graduate Brad Tremble, the son of former CSI head coach Fred Tremble. First-year CSI head man Steve Gosar said today's game and Saturday's contest against 15th-ranked host Seward County CC, represent the next step for the youthful Golden Eagles. A roster filled with newcomers has managed an 8-2 start despite a rash of injuries. But playing on the road in a hostile environment should help the Golden Eagles grow up even more with Scenic West Athletic Conference play on the horizon. Unfortunately, CSI will be without sophomore pre-season All-American Daequon Montreal, who sat out last Friday's win over Salish Kootenai (Mont.) College before playing a limited role off the bench in a loss to Harcum (Penn.) College last Saturday. He tried to practice Tuesday, but his bruised Achilles' heel kept him out of practice all week. "I don't expect him to be able to go," Gosar said

Thursday night from Wichita, Kan. Freshman point guard Jamelle Barrett was limited by a bruised knee last week, but will be back in the starting lineup. Starting center Aziz Ndlaye is still slowed by back pain. He'll play, but won't start, according to Gosar. As for Dodge City and Seward County, both out of the jawhawk West Conference, Gosar said, "Both will be really good tests." The Conquistadors are paced by high-scoring 6-1 freshman guard Rodney Clinkscales. He netted a season-high 37 points against Neosho County on Dec. 7 and scores 20-plus per game. Getting a win today is key for the Golden Eagles as Saturday's contest with the unbeaten Saints (12-0) will be a battle. Seward has six players averaging 9.3 points or more per game, led by Latiq Agard, a 6-4 freshman from Queens, N.Y. Agard tops the Saints with 21.3 points and 6.9 rebounds a night, while both 6-5 guard Antonio Smith and 6-8 sophomore forward Thijinh Moses chip in better than 13 points a game. The two games in Kansas are the only non-conference away games for CSI, which returns home for the James Ray Construction Shootout Jan. 1-3. The players have fall semester finals next week and then head home Dec. 19-26 for Christmas break. Come January, CSI will get guard Carrick Felix (broken wrist) back in the lineup and should have sharpshooting freshman guard Chayne Martin eligible along with freshman point guard Paul Beckdens. The Golden Eagles open SWAC play Jan. 9 at Colorado Northwestern CC.

Prepped for Poinsettia

Consistency is key to freshman Kellen Moore's leadership

By Dustin Lapray
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — As the No. 9 Boise State Broncos prepare for a Dec. 23 Poinsettia Bowl matchup with No. 11 TCU, their quarterback had a chance to reflect on his remarkable freshman campaign. Kellen Moore completed the regular season without a loss (12-0) and he did it with poise, diligence and consistency. All the skills in the world might not have made Moore's teammates follow him, but much of the respect he earned in the locker room came from his work ethic and his obvious amiability. "Obviously I think consistency is a thing a teammate would look at and see, the guys consistently coming in, preparing working hard each game, focusing in and taking care of business," Moore said. Moore's row was no easy one to hoe. He beat out a senior, a junior and a sophomore for the starting QB spot. "I think certainly there was a feeling where 'I'm young, how's this going to work out here?'" Moore said. "I think I've just been lucky to be with these guys. They accept you pretty easily. They've all been awesome guys who just let me be who I am and make plays for me, make me look good." Moore mentioned Jeremy Childs, Vinny Perretta, Tanyon Bissell and Ian Johnson, specifically as players who helped him on the field. "With J.C. and Vinny next to him and I, behind me, I really shouldn't complain at all," Moore said.

Childs was Moore's favorite target (65 receptions) and the QB said he loves the idea of letting Childs loose against the man-to-man defense of TCU. That connection with Childs and the precision preparation of this coaching staff helped get Moore ready to deal with the pressures of playing quarterback. "I felt like I was capable of it," Moore said. "I just never knew when it would come and it came early. Obviously I had some plays where I screwed it up and thrown into triple coverage and J.C. is still making the catch. I get saved every once in a while and I look good." Off the field, Moore dug his head deep into the film room. He says weekly preparation is what made him effective. Having never had to prepare to play in a college game before this season, he said he worked hard to manage his time more efficiently. With football (film, weight room, film, practice film, meetings, film) and school, there hasn't been much time to relax. All the while, he carried the burden of an undefeated season and living up to the tradition of success at the quarterback position at Boise State. He's cognizant of his new place in Bronco history. "All the quarterbacks who have played here have been pretty successful," Moore said. "I'm just sort of carrying that torch in some way." Only one player can carry that torch at a time, and in football it usually seems to be the quarterback who gets charged to hold it high. Perhaps the greatest asset Moore had in his quest this season came in the form of the man he beat out for the right to carry the torch, Bush Hamdan. Hamdan, the senior quarterback who started his first and last game on senior night against Fresno State this season, took the high road. He chose not to frustrate Moore, deny him access to what he knew about football or rant with jealousy. Hamdan instead became a teammate, a friend, a coach for Moore. "I think I was pretty fortunate to have Bush around the whole game, always having him to go talk to after each series. He was really just another coach for me," Moore said. "He'd always talk to me and help me out." Moore hasn't been perfect. He's thrown interceptions and had bad passes. His marksmanship was sometimes off. But he never got down on himself. He completed 70 percent of his passes with a solid 25-9 touchdown-to-interception ratio, all while remaining composed. That could come in handy Dec. 23 against a speedy TCU pass rush that is a key part of one of the nation's best defensive units. "Of the rough spots this far," Moore said, "You shake it off and keep going." He has three more years to go.

Burley outpaces visiting Century Diamondbacks

By Ryan Howe

According to coach Gordon Korbs, the Burley girls basketball team's 59-44 home victory over Century Thursday night was the "best we've played all season as a team."

The Bobcats got solid contribution all around, but it was senior Carl Parish's nine first-half points that helped spark the victory. "Tonight we just relaxed and we had confidence in ourselves and in our teammates, and we just started making basketball plays," said Parish, who finished with 11 points.

Parker hits the hardwood running

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Sometimes high-school athletes have trouble making a seamless transition from one sports season to the next.

For Jerome senior guard Logan Parker, there's no such problem.

One of many members of Jerome's Class 4A state runner-up football team, Parker is a big reason why the Tigers are 4-0 and ranked No. 2 in the state in boys basketball. Through four games, the 6-foot-1 sharpshooter has averaged 18.3 points per game, including a career-high 30 in a 75-51 win over Century.

Yet it's his defense that he takes the most pride in.

"Sophomore and Junior year I think I hit 25 (points) a couple of times," Parker said. "But I just want to come out and do a good job on defense. That's where we're going to get it done is on the defensive end."

Parker

MAGIC VALLEY PREP ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Parker is perhaps less-heralded than his backcourt teammate Kameron Pearce, who's averaging 20.8 per game, but Parker knows his leadership and experience is of great import.

"Me and Kameron both have high expectations. I feel like this is my team, and I need to do what I can to help the team win," Parker said.

A pivotal part in Parker's evolution as a complete guard was his work during the offseason to become more aggressive with the basketball.

"Too often last season he floated around the 3-point arc looking for the big splash, but this year Parker has shown a staunch commitment to taking the ball to the rack when the opportunity presents itself. That makes him a more dangerous player both as a slasher and a distributor when he heads for the rim.

"Logan's been outstanding since the beginning of the season," said Jerome head coach Joe Messick. "He's a good shooter from the perimeter, and he's really added that extra dimension of going to the basket."

Parker has fielded a variety of interest, primarily as a walk-on, from a range of colleges including Blue Mountain (Ore.) Community College, Colorado Christian, perennial NAIA power Azusa Pacific (Calif.) and more. He says he'd rather go straight to a four-year school and play but at this point he's making sure every available option is kept open.

Messick isn't really worried about whether his star senior will get a chance at the next level, or where he'll end up. "I think that as long as (Parker) continues to produce, those things are going to take care of themselves," he said.

And as long as Parker continues to produce, the Tigers will remain a viable threat to take it all at the Class 4A level.

Twin Falls' Sneed signs to play baseball at NNU

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

Meet Zeb the Crusader. Twin Falls senior baseball player Zeb Sneed took advantage of the early signing period and put pen to paper on a National Letter of Intent last week to play college baseball at Nampa-based NCAA Division II outfit Northwest Nazarene University next season.

Sneed was a first-team All-Region Four-Five-Six selection outfielder last season for the Bruins, who finished 22-5 and took home the region championship and state fourth-place trophy.

"Zeb is the type of kid who you can get real excited about," said NNU head coach Tim Onofrei. "He's versatile in that he can play the outfield, first base and he can pitch. Physically, he has all the tools to be a dominant force at multiple positions for us. We are very pleased that Zeb has chosen to come to NNU."

"I liked the atmosphere around the campus, and I liked that they have my major (pre-optometry), and the baseball team is good. It was just a good fit for me. It's real nice that my parents can come watch me still, ton," Sneed said. "They needed a corner outfielder and a power pitcher, and I hit 88 mph up there so they said I should be able to start right in as a freshman. It's really exciting. I can't wait, it's going to be a blast to go out and play."

Zeb Sneed, pictured pitching for the Twin Falls Cowboys Class 4A American Legion Baseball team, recently signed a National Letter of Intent to play for Northwest Nazarene University next season. Sneed is expected to be one of the leaders for the Twin Falls High baseball team this spring as a senior.

The Crusaders believe Sneed can play outfield three games a week and pitch the fourth.

"Twin Falls athletic director and former baseball coach Mike

Federico said he couldn't be happier for Sneed, who moved to Twin Falls from Elko, Nev., after his sophomore year.

"I know for (Sneed) it's a dream come true for him in the fact that he gets to play at the next level. He loves baseball ... he's the field rat, and he always had college aspirations from the minute he came here," Federico said. "He's a wonderful kid, a hard worker ... you couldn't ask for a more polite human being.

"It's one of those good stories where a guy's getting what he deserves. He's made his own opportunities, and I think he'll do well."

Incoming coach Tim Stadelmeier, who has coached Sneed in the Twin Falls Cowboys American Legion program the last couple of seasons, expressed his excitement for his senior to get the chance to play at the next level. He added that getting the deal done early will allow Sneed to focus purely on baseball during the season, without the distractions of the recruiting chase.

"I know Zeb's excited that he's able to know where he's going and have all that pressure off before we get started this spring. He's going to be one of our leaders on the mound, so hopefully that'll take some of the stress off and let him go out there and pitch like we know he can," said Stadelmeier.

Said Sneed: "I can just relax and play, not having to worry about trying to impress anyone or try to get any stats ... I can just have fun my senior year."

Bradford, Crabtree headline college awards

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Tim Tebow won the Maxwell Award for the second year, edging Texas' Colt McCoy and Texas Tech's Graham Harrell for the honor given to college football's best all-around player Thursday night at the college football awards.

The Florida star joined Notre Dame quarterback Johnny Lattner as one of the Maxwell Award. Lattner won in 1952-53.

Tebow, who will lead Florida against Sam Houston State in the Sun Belt championship game next month, was the first sophomore to win the Heisman last year and, on Saturday in New York, could become the second player to win it twice.

The versatile Tebow is fifth in the nation in passer rating (176.7) with 28 touchdown passes and only two interceptions. He hasn't been asked to run as much this season, but still has 564 yards rushing and 12 touchdowns.

Earlier, Tebow took Disney's Spirit Award for service off the field.

Fellow Heisman finalists, Bradford and McCoy, also were big winners Thursday.

Bradford beat out Harrell and McCoy for the Davey O'Brien Award. Bradford directed the highest-scoring team in major college football history. He led the nation in passer rating (186.3) and TD passes (48) while throwing for 4,464 yards.

"It will be an honor just to be there with those guys," Bradford said. "This grant to me, I was a little surprised. It's too early to tell what else will happen."

Tebow won the Davey O'Brien Award last year ahead of winning the Heisman.

Everyone sharing the top awards here "just shows the diversity, the balance in college football today," Tebow said. "I think it's a great thing."

McCoy was the Walter Camp Player of the Year leading the All-America team.

Michael Crabtree, a Texas Tech sophomore, won his second straight Biletnikoff Award for best wide receiver. Crabtree caught 18 touchdowns and has 93 receptions for 1,135 yards. He made headlines for his last-second, winning touchdown catch against Texas.

Running back Shonn Greene of Iowa won the Donk Walker Award as the nation's best running back, finishing ahead of Knowshon Moreno of Georgia and Jason Ringer of Michigan State. Ringer will receive the Capital One Bowl of New Year's Day in Orlando.

The Outland Trophy (best interior lineman) was won by Andre Smith of Alabama.

On the defensive side, Rey Chualup of USC won the Chuck Bednarik Award as the best defensive player over James Laurinatis of Ohio State and Aaron Maybin of Penn State. And the Jim Thorpe Award (best defensive back) went to Malcolm Jenkins of Ohio State, finishing ahead of Eric Berry (Tennessee) and Taylor Mays (USC).

Matt Fodge of Oklahoma State won the Ray Guy Award (best punter) and Graham Gano of Florida State the Lou Groza Award (best kicker).

Nick Saban was selected the Coach of the Year after leading Alabama to the SEC championship game and a 12-1 record.

Chicago Bears quarterback Kyle Orton (18) celebrates with Roberto Garza, left, and Olin Kreutz after scoring a touchdown against the New Orleans Saints during the second quarter Thursday in Chicago.

Gould lifts Bears to overtime 27-24 victory against Saints

CHICAGO (AP) — Robbie Gould and the Chicago Bears handed Drew Brees and the New Orleans Saints another devastating loss at Soldier Field.

Gould kicked the tying field goal at the end of regulation and booted a 35-yarder in overtime to lift the Chicago Bears to a 27-24 victory on Thursday night, giving their playoff hopes a boost.

After leaving Chicago with season-ending losses the past two years, the Saints looked as if they were trying to end that trend. Instead, their slim playoff hopes took another blow.

Brees (11) Mareques Colston for an 11-yard touchdown pass with just over 3 minutes left in regulation to give New Orleans its first lead at 24-21 but Gould's 28-yard field goal as time expired sent the game to overtime.

The Bears won the coin toss, and got another big break when the Saints'

Roman Harper bumped Devin Hester on a deep pass down the middle to set Chicago up at the 15. After Kyle Orton stumbled back and put the ball in the middle of the field, Gould ended it with a 35-yarder.

The Bears still need plenty of help to reach the postseason.

"Bottom line for us, we're still in the hunt," Chicago's Lance Briggs said.

The Bears (8-6) are a half-game behind NFC North leader Minnesota, but the Vikings hold the tiebreaker. Chicago also is a half-game out of a wild-card spot.

Brees, challenging Dan Marino's single-season yards passing record, was 24-of-43 for 232 yards, two touchdowns and two interceptions. He looked more like himself late in the game after a miserable first half. Harassed by the defense, Brees was just 10-of-24 with 93 yards and a 49.5 rating in the first two quarters as Chicago grabbed a 21-7 lead.

Daniel Manning returned the opening kickoff of 83 yards for a touchdown and set up another one with a 52-yarder early in the second quarter as the Bears grabbed a 14-7 lead. Kyle Orton's 6-yard scramble in the closing minute of the half made it a 14-point game.

With their second straight win and third in four games, the Bears finally appear to be hitting their stride after a convincing 23-10 win over Jacksonville on Sunday. They'll try to make it three in a row — something they haven't done since the 2006

Super Bowl season — at Green Bay a week from Monday.

Chicago native and Illinois product Pierre Thomas started the Saints' comeback with a 42-yard touchdown run that made it 21-14 with 3:44 left in the third. Josh Bullucke set up the score, intercepting an Orton pass when it deflected off wide receiver Rashied Davis.

Glenn Pakulak kicked a 30-yard field goal with just over 9 minutes left to set the stage for Brees' go-ahead pass to Colston.

Thomas finished with 87 yards rushing and 59 receiving. Chicago got a scare early when Matt Forte limped to the sideline with a toe injury after his first attempt — a run for no gain on the left side. He finished with 34 yards rushing and 29 receiving.

Orton was 24-of-40 with 172 yards and two interceptions.

Judge extends injunction against NFL suspensions

MINNEAPOLIS — A federal judge extended his preliminary injunction against the NFL's suspension of two players for violating the league's anti-doping policy, a move their lawyer said will let them play the rest of the season.

In his ruling Thursday, U.S. District Judge Paul Magnuson asked both parties to file a hearing agent for steroids.

Jeffrey Kessler, a lawyer for the Minnesota Vikings and Charles Grant. Deuce McAllister and Will Smith of the New Orleans Saints were suspended last week for four games each. They tested positive during training camp for a banned diuretic, bumetanide, in the dietary supplement StarCaps, a marketing agent for steroids.

Diuretics are also used to quickly shed weight. The StarCaps label didn't list the diuretic as an ingredient.

"The players and the union are thrilled," Jeffrey Kessler, a lawyer for the NFL Players Association, told The Associated Press. Kessler said the judge's timeframe is long enough that the players can finish the season and go to the playoffs if their teams make it that far.

Kevin and Pat Williams, who aren't related, are star defensive tackles for a Vikings team that is 8-5 and in first place in the NFC North. They play Sunday at Arizona.

"Since then, there has to be discovery and other proceedings. It's unlikely we would agree on a schedule for a trial until sometime after the Super Bowl," Kessler said.

PIERCE DOESN'T KNOW WHETHER POLICE WILL CALL AGAIN

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — New York Giants middle linebacker Antonio Pierce does not know whether New York City police will want to talk to him again about the Placidio Burgess shooting.

After Thursday's practice, Pierce acknowledged he spoke with authorities last week about the night Burgess accidentally shot himself in the right thigh at a Manhattan nightclub.

The linebacker would not say whether police told him he had been cleared in the Nov. 29 incident at the Latin Quarter. He also was uncertain whether investigators would interview him again.

"If somebody is a lawyer who works in a police department and can give me that information, I would like to know too," Pierce said. "But I don't know."

Burgess faces charges of criminal possession of a weapon relating to the shooting. He pleaded not guilty. He is due back in court March 31.

and tackle Walter Jones are unlikely to play for the Seahawks on Sunday at St. Louis after both stars missed practice again on Thursday.

Hasselbeck came out briefly to stretch with teammates before leaving for medical work on the injured right arm. Backup Seneca Wallace again ran the offense.

Hasselbeck has missed six games this season, including last week's loss to New England.

It is possible Hasselbeck won't play again this season. Doctors have told the three-time Pro Bowl passer if nothing else happens to his back, he will not need surgery and should be fine by mid-February.

Jones was out again with bad knees. Last week, the eight-time Pro Bowl tackle missed a game because of injury for the first time since 1997.

Outside linebacker Leroy Hill also remained out. He has a pinched nerve in his neck.

TAYLOR OUT FOR SEASON, HOPES TO RETURN TO JACKSONVILLE, Fla.

Running back Fred Taylor may have played his last game for the Jacksonville Jaguars.

Taylor was placed on injured reserve Thursday because of a thumb injury, ending his season with three games left and prompting questions about his future with the franchise.

"All of that still has to handle itself," said Taylor, a first-round pick in 1998 who has played his entire career in Jacksonville. "I don't know how it's going to play out."

Two weeks ago, Taylor said it was clear the organization was headed in another direction because of his reduced role and increased salary. He said he had scheduled to make $6 million next season, which seems too high for a small-market team to pay a part-time player.

QB CASSEL RETURNS TO PRACTICE WITH PATRIOTS

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Matt Cassel returned to practice with the New England Patriots on Thursday morning after missing Wednesday's workouts following his father's death.

Cassel took part in stretching and throwing drills during the portion of practice open to reporters at San Jose State, where the Patriots are training between road games in Seattle and Oakland. He briefly left the club after his father, Greg, died Monday night in the Los Angeles area.

Although the Patriots made no announcement, Cassel seems likely to start on Sunday against the Raiders.

"I think it'll be good for Matt," linebacker Mike Vrabel said.

"I don't think anybody can really relate to losing a parent, especially a father, but ... we've got a support staff in there and I hope they can lean on his teammates."

New England (8-5) is in a three-way tie with Miami and the New York Jets for the AFC East lead, but the Patriots have a 21-2 record in December games since 2003.

Less equals more for Tebow, Gators

Editors note: This is the last story in a series on Heisman Trophy finalists.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Tim Tebow did less, and Florida accomplished more.

Tebow didn't come close to matching the gaudy numbers he had last year when he became the first sophomore to win the Heisman Trophy, but he's been maybe even more valuable to the top-ranked Gators this season. Whether it was in the huddle, on the practice field, in the locker room, in the weight room before and after games, Tebow led the way.

He picked up his teammates after the early season loss to Mississippi, motivated everyone to play at the highest level, and was the best when Florida needed him most.

"There's just no way for anyone to know how important he is to us," receiver Louis Murphy said. "He does it all."

Tebow's trophy collection might offer a clue. The two-time Southeastern Conference player of the year took home the Davey O'Brien, Maxwell and Sullivan awards last season. He's already picked up the Wuerffel Award this year, and was a finalist for the Maxwell.

He could join a most exclusive club when the Heisman is handed out Saturday night — Archie Griffin is the only two-time winner of college football's most prestigious individual award.

"I'm just enjoying it, the opportunity," Tebow said. "I'm more focused on trying to win the national championship. It's a great honor to go up there and win. Winning has changed people's perspective of me. All your life you're known as the Heisman winner."

Tebow became the first college football player with at least 20 rushing touchdowns and 20 passing touchdowns in 2007, carrying a team that finished 9-4 and out of the SEC race.

His stats were down this season, but his play never dipped. He made fifth in the nation in passer rating (176.7) with 28 touchdown passes and only two interceptions. He hasn't been asked to run nearly as much, but still has 564 yards rushing and 12 touchdowns.

Most importantly, he has the Gators one win away from their second national title in three seasons.

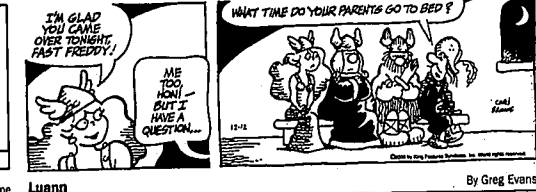

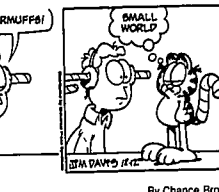

"It's something you dream about, something that's very exciting and something I'm having a great time with," Tebow said.

Tebow acknowledged that winning the Heisman brought added pressure and extra attention from fans, media and opponents. It may have even affected him early on, but he's rarely looked in sync during the first four games. He overthrew receivers, stood in the pocket too long and looked tentative when he did scramble.

"I was trying to be too perfect, too. I wanted it to be a perfect season. I wanted to complete every pass. I was just not relaxing and playing."

Child remains found near missing Florida girl's home

By Mark Waggin
Associated Press writer

ORLANDO, Fla. — A team of medical examiners and detectives was hustling to identify the skeletal remains of a child found in a wooded lot in central Florida Thursday, hoping to solve the six-month-old mystery of a missing toddler.

Caylee Anthony, 3, has been missing since June. On Thursday, less than a half-mile from where the girl lived, a utility worker stumbled upon remains of a small child.

There was nothing that immediately indicated the remains were Caylee's. But Orange County Sheriff

Kevin Beary said his investigators and the FBI would work around the clock and through the weekend to identify the child. Authorities searched the home where Caylee and her mother lived again on Thursday night, looking for more clues.

"Now the investigation continues," Beary said. "There is a lot of lab work to do. There is a lot of DNA work to do. There is a lot of crime scene work to do."

Caylee's mother, 22-year-old Casey Anthony, was indicted in October on first-degree murder and other charges, even without a body. She has insisted that she left the girl with a baby sitter in June, but she didn't report her missing until July.

For the past several months, Anthony's family, police and volunteers from around the country have searched for the little girl.

Lisa Hoffman, a member of the search group EquuSearch, said his volunteers were unable to completely scour the area where the remains were found because part of it was submerged in water during trips in September and November.

Deborah Smith, an independent search volunteer, said she believed the remains belonged to Caylee.

"I'm glad she was found before Christmas so they can give her a proper burial," Smith said.

U.S. military says Iran slows arms shipments to Iraq

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A marked decline in the number of explosive devices coming into Iraq from neighboring Iran has helped reduce the frequency of deadly attacks against U.S. service members, a top U.S. general said Thursday.

The military's view reflects a growing belief that Iran has reduced its level of interference in Iraq, and is no longer providing weapons used to kill U.S. troops, potentially making it easier for the next administration to reach out to the government in Tehran.

President-elect Barack Obama said during this year's political campaign that he was willing to meet with Iranian leaders, a stance criticized by conservatives who cited Tehran's support of violent anti-American Shiite militias.

Now, however, there has been a steep reduction in the use of particularly lethal weapons known as explosively formed penetrators, or EFPs, which U.S. officials say are often designed or built in Iran.

There once were as many as 80 such attacks per month, but the number now is as few as 12, Army Lt. Gen. Thomas E. Metz said at a meeting with reporters.

Metz is director of a military organization whose aim is to reduce the effects of roadside explosives on U.S. troops.

"In the past three months, they have gone way down," Metz said. "Someone has made a decision on the Shia side in connection with Iran — to bring them down."

EFPs now being found are less sophisticated versions built in Iraq, not smuggled in from Iran, he said.

One big assignment

Obama nominates Daschle for 2 health roles

By Kevin Fraking
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Drawing on lessons from past debates, President-elect Barack Obama handed Tom Daschle two prime jobs Thursday and one gigantic assignment: overhauling the health care system so more people are covered by insurance.

Daschle, the former Senate majority leader, is Obama's choice as health and human services secretary and director of a new White House office on health reform.

In previous administrations, the White House and not the Cabinet agency has led attempts to expand coverage, potentially at the expense of the health secretary's decision-making power.

Daschle's joint appointment "ensures that there is one capable voice speaking on behalf of the president when it comes to health care reform," said Chris Jennings, who was President Bill Clinton's senior health care adviser. "Both in the Bush and in the Clinton administration there was a question about who was talking for the president and what level of authority they have. This resolves it from day one."

But would spending time at the White House undermine Daschle's ability to manage an agency responsible for food and drug safety, medical research, and health insurance programs covering nearly 100 million elderly, disabled and poor people?

Jennings said the appointment of an experienced administrator, Jeanne Lambrew, as deputy chief of the new office makes clear that Daschle does not always have to be at the White House. Lambrew has worked at HHS and the White House budget office.

The department will need strong hands at the Food and Drug Administration and the Centers for

Daschle Biography

U.S. House of Representatives, 1979-1986; aide to Sen. James Abourezk, 1972-77; representative for financial investment firm; Intelligence officer, U.S. Air Force, 1968-72; B.A. in political science, Southern Dakota State University, 1968; family wife, Linda Hill; Daschle, three children from previous marriage.

Medicare and Medicaid Services, and Daschle must find a capable deputy and chief of staff.

"Those posts and their ability to manage well will be placed at a premium," Jennings said.

Introducing Daschle at a Chicago news conference, Obama stressed the link between reviving the economy and making health coverage more affordable and accessible to more people.

"If we want to overcome our economic challenges, we must also finally address our health care challenge. I can think of no one better suited to lead this effort," Obama said of the ex-senator from South Dakota.

Daschle, 61, said he believes fixing health care — expanding coverage, improving quality and slowing costs — is the nation's biggest domestic policy challenge.

"We have the most expensive health care system in the world, but it's not the healthiest nation in the world," Daschle said. "Our growing costs are unsustainable, and the plight of the uninsured is unconscionable."

Ron Pollock, who backed Clinton's health overhaul attempts in 1993, said the new office for Daschle is a practical move, not a symbolic one. Pollock said HHS played a pivotal role, but the White House called the shots.

"Now you've got that integrated in one person who has the full confidence of the president-elect, and is well liked and respected in Congress where the reform debate is taking place," said Pollock, executive director of Families USA, which advocates for universal health coverage.

Thomas Miller, a resident fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, said he cannot recall another Cabinet secretary taking on such twin roles. He said titles come and go, but at the end of the day, it's people working 15 hours a day in the West Wing where most of the decisions are made.

"It's structurally difficult," Miller said. "But he's trying to make sure he's not cut out of the action."

Pressure intensifies on Illinois governor to resign

By Deanna Belland and Christopher Wills
Associated Press writers

CHICAGO — Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich kissed his wife, rode in his state SUV to the office and sat down at his desk Thursday in front of a bust of Lincoln and an American flag to portray "a return to normalcy."

It was anything but. An extraordinary drama built through the day in Chicago as the political establishment of Illinois and the nation lined up against him. Blagojevich's approval rating dropped to an all-time low of 8 percent, and friends and foes alike feared if they don't act swiftly to get rid of him, he might commit some kind of political mischief.

"The governor is in office, and he needs to be removed from office," Lt. Gov. Pat Quinn said. "It is an urgent matter. Illinois is in crisis."

Gov. Rod Blagojevich of Illinois, center, and his wife, Patricia, leave their home in Chicago on Thursday. The New York Times/AP photo

The governor showed no signs of buckling to growing demands that he quit or be removed after his arrest Tuesday on corruption charges alleging that he tried to sell President-elect Barack Obama's Senate seat to the highest bidder.

While the governor was working — his spokesmen would not say exactly what — President-elect Obama told a news conference just a couple of blocks away that Blagojevich should go.

At the same time, Illinois lawmakers were organizing impeachment efforts, and the state attorney general said that if the governor were not impeached, she would seek a court order finding him unfit to serve.

Obama, speaking directly for the first time on the scandal that has distracted from his otherwise smooth transition, said he was "appalled" by the allegations.

"What I'm absolutely certain about is that our office had no involvement in any dealmaking around my Senate seat. That I'm absolutely certain of," he said. "That would be a violation of everything that this campaign has been about. And that's not how we do business."

The governor spent the day at his wooden desk, reviewing budget items and talking to his closest aides. Blagojevich spokesman Lucio Guerrero described the governor's mood as "upbeat" and "positive" and said "there's a sense of trying to return to normalcy." He said he knew of no decision about Blagojevich's political future or what the governor might do with the Obama seat.

Blagojevich's next move was the subject of great speculation in Illinois and around the country. Some observers wondered whether he might be seeking a deal with prosecutors to use the governor's office to step down in exchange for leniency.

But there was also worry that the governor might still pick a senator.

Panel blames abuse on U.S. policy, not soldiers

By Pamela Hess
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The physical and mental abuse of detainees in Iraq, Afghanistan and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, was the direct result of Bush administration detention policies and should not be dismissed as the work of bad guards or interrogators, according to a bipartisan Senate report released Thursday.

The Senate Armed Services Committee report concludes that harsh interrogation techniques used by the CIA and the U.S. military were directly adapted from the training techniques used to prepare special forces personnel to resist interrogation by enemies that torture and abuse prisoners. The techniques included forced nudity, painful stress positions, sleep deprivation, and until 2003, waterboarding, a form of simulated drowning.

"The report is the result of a newly two-year investigation that directly links President Bush's policies after the 9/11 terrorist attacks, legal memos on torture, and interrogation rule changes with the abuse photographed at Abu Ghayib prison in less than two years ago. Much of the report remains classified. Unclassified portions of the report were released by the committee Thursday.

Administration officials publicly blamed the abuses on low-level soldiers — the work of a few bad apples," Committee Chairman Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., called that "both unconscionable and false."

"The message from top officials was clear: It was acceptable to use degrading and abusive techniques against detainees," Levin said.

Arizona Republican and former prisoner of war Sen. John McCain, said that because of the survival training and U.S. interrogations of detainees inexcusable.

"These policies are wrong and must never be repeated," he said in a statement.

Lawrence Di Rita, a senior aide to former Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld at the time the Abu Ghayib and other abuses took place, disputed the report.

"This oddly timed report provides no evidence that contradicts more than a dozen other investigations that found that there was no systematic or widespread detainee mistreatment," Di Rita told The AP.

"The message from top officials was clear; it was acceptable to use degrading and abusive techniques against detainees," — Committee Chairman Sen. Carl Levin

Pakistan acts against charity group tied to Mumbai attacks

By Bahar Dogar and Jeff Sklarz
Associated Press writers

Pakistani security forces seal the door of a Jamat-ud-Dawa office in Karachi, Pakistan, Thursday. Pakistan banned the charity and detained its leaders Thursday after it was linked to militants suspected in the Mumbai attacks.

MURIDKE, Pakistan — Pakistan moved aggressively Thursday against an Islamic charity with links to militants suspected in the Mumbai attacks, freezing the group's assets, putting its leaders under house arrest and padlocking its offices.

The moves against Jamat-ud-Dawa could help consolidate India and the United States that Pakistan is cracking down on militants blamed for the Nov. 26-29 assaults, but it also risks igniting Muslim anger at its already shaky, secular government.

The action came a day after the United Nations listed Jamat-ud-Dawa as a front group for Lashkar-e-Taiba, which was blamed for the strikes. The U.N. also subjected Jamat-ud-Dawa to sanctions as a terrorist group, including an asset freeze, travel ban and arms embargo.

Pakistan has already announced the arrests of 20 militants — including two alleged by India to have masterminded the attacks — and has vowed to cooperate with its neighbor.

India, which says the attacks were carried by Pakistanis as well as plotted and directed by militants in Pakistan, remains skeptical of the response so far.

Elements in Pakistan's powerful military and intelligence agencies are believed to retain links with militants, which they have used as proxy fighters against Indian rule in the disputed Kashmir region, raising questions about their willingness and ability to crack down on them.

Islamabad has targeted Lashkar-e-Taiba and other militants before, detaining leaders — including one picked up Thursday — only to release them later. That has bolstered critics who allege the government is not serious about fighting the extremists.

The attacks in Mumbai, India's financial center, killed 171 people and sharply raised tensions between two nuclear-armed neighbors that have fought three wars in the past 60 years.

Jamat-ud-Dawa has been under scrutiny since India named Lashkar-e-Taiba the prime suspect in the attack. U.S. officials have long maintained the two groups were one and the same. Jamat-ud-Dawa denies any links to terrorism.

Lahore Police Chief Pervez Rathor said the group's head, Hafiz Mohammed Saeed, and four other leaders had been placed under house arrest for three months. He did not say whether they would be charged with a crime.

"We have taken action in response to orders from the federal government," he said minutes before the information minister announced Jamat-ud-Dawa had been banned.

Central Bank spokesman Syed Washmuddin said Pakistani banks had been ordered to freeze the group's assets. It is unclear how much money the group has under its control, but its Web site has details of a bank account for donations.

Restaurant bomber kills 55 in Iraq's north

By Robert H. Reid
Associated Press writer

BAGHDAD — A suicide bomber killed at least 55 people Thursday in a packed restaurant near the northern city of Kirkuk where Kurdish officials and Arab tribal leaders were trying to reconcile their differences over control of the oil-rich region.

The brazen attack — the deadliest in Iraq in six months — occurred at a time of rising tension between Kurds and Arabs over oil, political power and Kirkuk.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack at the upscale Abdullah restaurant, which was crowded with families celebrating the end of the four-day Islamic holiday of Eid al-Adha. The U.S. blamed the blast on al-Qaida, which uses suicide bombings as its signature attack.

Police Brig. Gen. Sarhad Qadhi, who gave the casualty figures, said the dead included at least five women and three children. About 120 people were wounded.

It appeared, however, that the target was a reconciliation meeting between Arab tribal leaders and officials of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, the Kurdish party of President Jalal Talabani, on ways to defuse tension among Arabs, Kurds and Turkmen in the Kirkuk area.

Kurds want to annex Kirkuk and surrounding Tarmim province into their self-ruled region of northern Iraq. Most Turkmen and Arabs want the province to remain under central government control, fearing the Kurds would discriminate against them.

Iraq's parliament exempted the Kirkuk area from recent months' provincial elections because the different ethnic groups could not agree on how to share power.

A guard at the entrance said the blast occurred moments after a man pushed his car and walked into it. He was searched because the guards had not been told to frisk customers, the guard said.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

My name is Ozymandias, King of Kings. Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair! — Percy Shelley

When West leads the heart queen against four spades, you would like to test winners. You would like to test winners before clubs: a 1-2 split might allow you to establish a discard for a club loser. However, you do not want to let East on lead prematurely since he might play clubs through you. How should you go about combining your chances?

Clucking the first round of hearts would prove immediately fatal: East might overtake and kick clubs through you. Instead you will win dummy's ace and call for the heart seven. If East plays low, you will throw a diamond from your hand, allowing the ace to fall into dummy's hand. You can then easily establish and reach a low diamond for the 10th trick.

If East must allow you to establish your ruff and draw two rounds of trump with the king and queen. You then cash the diamond ace and discard and he cannot safely play a club. He must therefore play a diamond for you. You ruff in your hand and reach dummy's 10th trick by the ace of trumps. Contract made.

ANSWER: Leaping to slam or into Blackwood would be premature. But you do have racing interest, and the best way to show it is to jump to four hearts. Once spades have been agreed upon, this shows shortage in hearts and is a slam-try. Be prepared to accept partner's decision on whether his hand fits your own.

It's time for mother to put an end to boy's tantrums

DEAR ABBY: A little over a year ago, my sons — ages 10 and 11 — met a 10-year-old boy named "Adam" and have played with him often since. During this time, Adam's mother and I have cultivated a warm friendship that I don't want to lose.

The problem? My sons don't like to play with Adam anymore. They say he cries and stomps on when he doesn't get his way. I have observed this behavior myself. His mother has commented on it to me but doesn't know what to do about it.

How can I tell my good friend that my kids don't want to play with her son anymore? Can I tell her? My sons have "exploded" it up several times now so I could visit with her, but I don't think it's fair to keep asking them to do that. My boys get along nicely with their other friends and would rather play with them. Is there any way to solve this?

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

—BAFFLED IN CHARLOTTE
DEAR BAFFLED: It would be a kindness to tell Adam's mother that it's time to do something she should have done years ago — better than never — and to completely stop the effect his behavior has on other kids, and that if it continues he will have no friends to play with.

The boy is old enough to understand plain English, and also cause and effect. If he is a fatherly young man in the picture, he should also talk to his son.

Adam should also be warned by his mother that if he pulls that nonsense again with your boys, he won't be invited back. Then he should be given one more chance to participate at an appropriate age level and not a 2-year-old's.

DEAR ABBY: My older sister, "Iris," has suffered from depression for years, partly due to the success I have achieved in my life. I have traveled internationally, received scholarships, and now at 26, have a well-paying job and a loving husband.

Iris dropped out of college twice, works a minimum-wage job and has never had a boyfriend. I never brag about any of my achievements, but we talk on the phone often and she knows everything that's going on in my life.

My sister has never openly displayed any jealousy or resentment, but our mother has confided to me that Iris has been taking antidepressants for years and feels that she has never accomplished anything "great."

I have now learned that I'm expecting my first child. I'm afraid that when Iris finds out, she may be devastated. How can I tell her without sending her into a deeper depression, and how can I enjoy the good things that happen to me without feeling guilty about my sister?

—GUILTY ACHIEVER IN CANADA
DEAR GUILTY ACHIEVER: A step in the right direction would be for you to do some reading about chronic depression, so you can understand quite why she has difficulties did not cause your sister's problem. She is taking antidepressants to help her regulate a chemical imbalance in her brain that, apparently, she has been trying to cope with for many years — which would explain why she had difficulty with personal relationships and her studies. If she's not already receiving it, psychotherapy — in addition to her medications — could help her.

The time has come to stop feeling guilty for your blessings. Tell your sister about the baby and let her share your happiness until she's well enough to find it on her own. It could help with her healing.

IF DECEMBER 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

You may attain spiritual heights in December, January and early February when the inspiring rays of Uranus force you to reconsider the most important guiding principles of your life. You are told that you are faced to point your life in a new cosmic direction, but you must tread very carefully, as there are also important responsibilities to be honored. Don't neglect your health or do anything that is not completely legal. Aim for permanence in whatever you do, especially if you can improve your health or purchase tangible goods. In July and August, you may be able to make repaid that will eventually free you from the burdens that tie you down.

—ARIES (March 21-April 19): This is always another day. The people you are in contact with could be abrasive or insensitive to feelings. Look for better timing to make deals or sign papers on anything you're locked in now could prove troublesome.

—TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If you have a backbone. Don't hunch over due to a pile of tasks on your desk and extra responsibilities on your shoulders. This is a light day when you have to work a bit longer than usual to succeed.

—GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A full

HOROSCOPE

moon in your opposite sign can light up relationships and let you see them for what they really are. The dilemma you face is that you might concentrate only on the problems and ignore the upside.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't let the dismal tone of the news and pessimism that your friends put you in a funk. Fight off a tendency to be gloomy and cynical that could get under your skin and irritate you for a few hours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep a stiff upper lip. Trying times require stoicism and forbearance. It might be difficult to avoid confrontations and quarrels, but you can steer clear of situations where you are tempted to initiate them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Hammering your reasons powerfully in strokes. While those who love you understand and appreciate your fervent ambition, others may take offense if you push too hard. Sidestep disagreements and upsets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): All you need to play make Jack and Jill quite dull, but this isn't the time to slack off. There will be plenty of time to romp and roam in the near future, but right now you need to watch your ps and q's.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't bite off more than you can chew. A temporary misunderstanding can cause trouble in relationships or cloud someone's judgment. Avoid wheedling and dealing or signing agreements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This full moon may bring out the worst in some people. Your intimate associates could get moody and out of sorts for a few hours. Past mistakes could come home to roost and spoil your plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Slow and steady wins the race. Being methodical could irritate those who are in a hurry to wrap up the work week. You are smart enough to have developed a list with the top priorities highlighted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Mind your own business and let the medical community concentrate on maintaining a sense of harmony within your private circle. This isn't the time to challenge the guy with the big ego.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ignore the gauntlet thrown on the ground. Challenged could get under your skin and tempt you to take foolish risks. Avoid entering into any contracts or promises that can't be fulfilled or honored

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Dec. 12, the 347th day of 2008. There are 19 days left in the year.

—Today's Highlight in History:
On Dec. 12, 2000, George W. Bush was transformed into the president-elect as a divided U.S. Supreme Court reversed a state court decision for recounts in Florida's contested election.

—On this date:
In 1787, Pennsylvania became the second state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.
In 1870, Joseph H. Rainey of South Carolina became the first black lawmaker sworn into the U.S. House of Representatives.
In 1897, "The Katzenjammer Kids," the pioneering comic strip created by Rudolph Dicks, made its debut in the New York Journal.
In 1906, President Theodore Roosevelt nominated Oscar Straus to be Secretary of Commerce and Labor; Straus became the first Jewish Cabinet member.
In 1917, Father Edward Flanagan founded Boys Town outside Omaha, Neb.

TODAY IN HISTORY

at rescuing the Wye River peace accords. Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles died in Tallahassee at age 60. Former U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall died in Washington, D.C., at age 76.

Five years ago: Paul Martin succeeded Jean Charest in Canada's prime minister. Rolling Stones frontman Mick Jagger was knighted by Britain. Kelko, the killer whale made famous by the "Free Willy" movies, died in the Norwegian fjord that he'd made his home.

One year ago: Republican presidential rivals gathered in Johnston, Iowa, called for a debate in federal spending in a debate remarkably free of acrimony. President George W. Bush vetoed a second bill that would have expanded government-provided health insurance for children. Three car bombs exploded in the southern Shiite city of Amarah, Iraq, killing at least 25 people and wounding dozens. Lee Turner, the rock pioneer and ex-bandmate of The Beatles, died in San Marcos, Calif., at age 76.

TODAY IN HISTORY

In 1925, the first motel — the Motel Inn — opened in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

In 1937, Japanese aircraft sank the U.S. cargo ship Panay on China's Yangtze River. (Japan apologized, and paid $2.2 million in reparations.)

In 1963, Kenya gained its independence from Britain.

In 1985, 246 American soldiers and eight crew members were killed when an Arrow Air charter crashed after takeoff from Gander, Newfoundland.

In 1988, 35 people were killed in a triple train collision during morning rush-hour in south London.

Two years ago: The House Judiciary Committee approved a fourth and final article of impeachment, thus one accusing President Bill Clinton of abuse of power. President Clinton began a three-day visit to the Middle East aimed
