IDOC: murder suspect's mental state may improve

By Andrea Jackson
Times-News writer

An elderly man accused of shooting his estranged wife and killing her much younger boyfriend last summer along a quiet residential street in Jerome isn't competent enough to stand trial.

But that could change, according to Idaho officials, who say 73-year-old Fortino Leon doesn't seem to be mentally ill.

Leon, 73, is charged with first-degree murder for the July fatal shooting of Javier Zavala-Paniagua, 22, outside a residence at 221 Fifth Ave. E.

Leon is also charged with aggravated assault for shooting his estranged wife, Maria Leon, 41.

Young children in the neighborhood said they watched the shooting while playing outside. A neighbor said he tried to stop Leon

"Mr. Leon is judged as not competent to assist in his own defense at this time."

— Thomas Gouldner, director of mental health services at the Idaho Maximum Security Institution from driving away after the shooting.

Leon was committed in September to determine his mental status.

Shortly after his arrest in July, Leon appeared at a court hearing complaining of memory problems. He also said he wanted his medication and his son.

He was put into the custody of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, but was ultimately sent to the Idaho Maximum Security Institution for mental health observations.

"Mr. Leon is judged as not competent to assist in his own defense at this time," said Thomas Gouldner, director of mental health services at the prison, in a Dec. 10 letter filed at 5th District Court in Jerome.

"However, if he is provided with appropriate interventions from attending Department of Correction clinical staff Mr. Leon may be re-evaluated for

Some say Burley booze vote may impact library levy

By Damon Hunziker
Times-News writer

Some Burley residents are concerned that the divisive issue of whether to allow Sunday liquor sales could affect another issue on the same May 26 ballot, namely whether to extend the public library's operating override levy.

The Burley City Council on Tuesday voted to add a citizen vote on a proposed ordinance to allow the liquor by the drink sales on Sundays, an issue that has already prompted its share of public strife.

"The (liquor) ordinance will pass overwhelmingly. What they've done is kill the library vote," said Jim Bryant, one of the most vocal supporters of Sunday liquor sales. "The drinkers aren't going to vote for a library — and that's another one of (Councilman) Vaughn Egan's pet projects, so he'll be defeated twice in May."

Several residents have expressed similar sentiments since the City Council voted to place the issue on the ballot, but not everyone agrees. "I don't think it'll make any difference or have an effect on the library, but how the hell do I know?" Councilman Dennis Curtis said.

Curtis, who voted in favor of placing the liquor ordinance on the ballot, acknowledged that he may have voted differently if Councilman Jay Lenkersdorfer hadn't made a motion for the public to vote on the matter.

"I don't feel good about my vote, but I didn't feel like I could vote against an election," he said.

Only two members of the council voted against Lenkersdorfer's motion — Dennis Dexter and Steve McGill.

"We've already had a lot of speculation from the opposition — but, yeah, I can see

Needy line up for help from Community Action

By Neta Poppino
Times-News writer

On the map of Magic Valley charities, all roads seem to lead to the South Central Community Action Partnership.

The nonprofit — one of many nationwide created in the 1960s by federal legislation — is a local clearinghouse of need. Funded primarily through federal grants administered through the state, the agency runs a number of programs in eight counties, both on its own and in partnership with almost every other group in the region. Its services include gas vouchers, emergency medical services, heating assistance, transitional housing, food boxes, clothing and even a referral service to other charities, all aimed at pushing people to one day be self-sufficient.

"If there is a need we can provide for it, we will," Executive Director Ken Robinette said.

And there is indeed need this year, he said. The shaky economy has led to large waiting lines at the agency's offices, with people seeking a wide variety of assistance. On some days, Community Action staff aren't able to get to them all.

"You can only reach so many people in a day," he said.

The good news, Robinette said, is that this year is one of the first in a long time where community action agencies have felt strongly supported by Congress. Much of that support has been targeted at

Much of south-central Idaho should wake up this morning to another coating of snow, if predictions from the National Weather Service are accurate.

Storm forecasters expected a meteorologist's region to leave behind anywhere from 1 to 12 inches of snow, depending on the area. But more than the amount, wind may be the biggest factor this morning, with possible drifting and blowing snow predicted in all areas.

The Page 2 Valley and the Sawtooth Mountains were expected to be the hardest hit. A winter storm warning from the NWS is in effect until 11 a.m. this morning, and predicts as much as 8 inches of snow in valleys and a full foot in the mountains. Fifth District Judge Jason Walker Thursday decided to give IDOC more time to try and resolve Leon's mental competency issues. Walker sealed Leon's future mental health reports, but kept the most recent one open to the public because he said it is innocuous.

The report filed Thursday says Leon's mood is stable.

Walker appears to be of average intelligence and manifests no signs of mental illness, according to the report. "His cultural background and beliefs regarding the construct of justice seem to also be contributing factors to his current level of comprehension."

Walker will get an update on Leon's mental competency on March 19 during a status hearing in Jerome.

why it could be a concern," McGill said. "This liquor thing will bring a lot more voters to the table, and when people see that it's going to cost them money, property owners tend to vote no."

"This was a decision, as Dennis Curtis stated in a previous meeting, that the council was elected to make for the city."

Egan chose not to respond directly to the issue but said, "It's really necessary to have this library levy extended because we're working on our new building and we don't want to come up short on that."

Mayor Jon Anderson said the two issues on the ballot could cause a problem because people usually turn out to vote on one issue and are surprised to see additional items on the ballot in off-cycle elections. If voters don't know what an issue is about, he said, they vote against it.

"I believe this vote could be the very thing that exemplifies Burley's positive future," Burley Director Julie Woodford said. "What people do is their personal choice — the same as when they choose a book in this library."

A storm warning that includes most of the County is in effect from 11 p.m. Thursday to 5 p.m. today, and a predicted 2 to 5 inches of snow could fall early this morning at elevations below 6,000 feet. Higher elevations could see 10 inches, it stated.

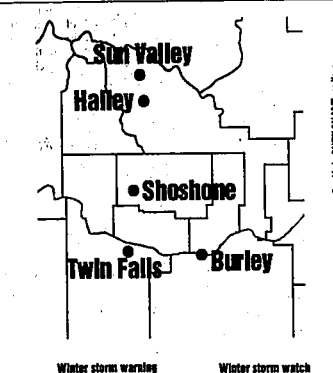

An advisory for the rest of the Magic Valley ends at 11 a.m. today, and warns that 1 to 4 inches of snow could fall across the valley — slightly more in mountain areas. Despite the small amount, the advisory states gusty winds could pose a problem for drivers.

"Commuters in the western Magic Valley will need to consider the impact of new snow cover on all area roadways Friday morning," it states.

School and transportation officials and law enforcement across the region made it clear Thursday that they were ready for whatever showed up.

Heather Williams, superintendent of the Gooding School District, noted mid-afternoon that snow was melting outside her office, and said the district's snow removal crew was on duty for this morning. Today is the district's last day before its winter break, she said, and students are holding Christmas parties.

"It can definitely make driving treacherous," Miller of the Idaho Transportation Department's maintenance crews started preparing for the storms Thursday afternoon. Spokesman Nathan Jerke said the storms are "business as usual."

Rick Dittmann, with the National Weather Service's Pocatello office, said more storms are expected in the next week — one possibly in a week and perhaps another on Wednesday, Christmas Eve.

Enforcement of the ordinance will begin once signs to clearly mark the truck route and alert drivers to the turn restrictions have been posted.

Maps of the truck route and materials relating to the ordinance are available at Jerome City Hall, 152 E. Ave. A. Information: City Administrator Ben Marchant, 324-8189.

BSU students sue school officials over club money

By Rebecca Boone
Associated Press writer

BOISE — Six Boise State University students are suing the school, saying BSU discriminates by refusing to provide student activity fee money to religious clubs.

Attorneys with the Virginia-based Center for Law and Religious Freedom filed the lawsuit in U.S. District Court on Thursday on behalf of students Tanya Cordova, Justin Ranger, Paul Beskow, Samantha Thorson, Jesse Barham and Alex Canfield. Three BSU officials — Michael Lallibert, vice president for student affairs; Kelly Stevens, student activities director; and Teri Rapp, the financial technician for the Associated Students of Boise State University — are named as defendants.

The students say BSU is engaging in viewpoint discrimination by barring only religious clubs from getting student activity fee money.

BSU collects student activity fees from every student attending the school, according to the lawsuit. That money is allocated to approved student clubs by the Associated Students of Boise State University, the student government body.

Approved student groups get $2 for every $1 they raise according to the lawsuit, and religious student organizations are the only groups that are expressly excluded for seeking or receiving the student fee funding.

BSU recognizes more than 200 student groups, according to the lawsuit, including the Secular Student Alliance, a gun club, political groups and others. Eighteen of those are categorized by the school as religious — including the Intersity Christian Fellowship, the Muslim Student Organization and the Vedic Philosophical and Cultural Society — and don't receive student activity fee support.

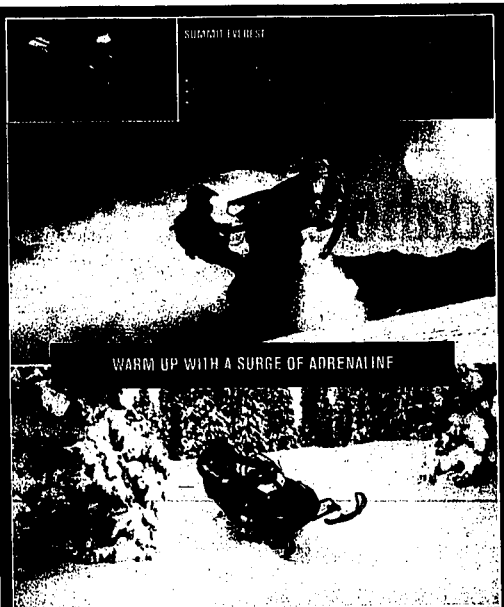

University officials say the policy was intended to comply with the Idaho State Constitution, which expressly forbids state money going to religious organizations.

But other schools in the state — including the University of Idaho — do allow religious groups to receive money from student fees, according to the lawsuit. Boise State University spokesman Frank Zang said the school doesn't have a specific policy of its own barring religious student groups from getting club funding, but that it abides by the state constitution.

Zang said the university would turn the matter over to the state attorney general's office for a legal review.

The students are asking a judge to declare that the BSU policy violates their constitutional rights, to bar BSU from collecting student fees from the students until the school stops excluding religious groups, and to stop any student fees that are already collected from being disbursed to any groups until religious student groups are included.

MillerCoors to tone down energy drink

BOISE (AP) — In a deal with Idaho and 12 other states, MillerCoors LLC said Thursday it will remove caffeine and three other ingredients from its Sparks alcoholic energy drink.

A coalition of state attorneys general complained the stimulants reduced drinkers' sense of intoxication and were marketed to young drinkers, who were already more likely to have risky behaviors in driving and other activities.

Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden said consumers will ultimately be safer and make better choices as a result of the company's decision. "The stimulants in these beverages mask the effects of alcohol," Wasden said in a statement. "I realize it is a decision that will cost the company a lot of money. MillerCoors deserves applause and recognition for its leadership in what must have been a very difficult decision."

MillerCoors based the decision to remove caffeine, taurine, guarana and ginseng from Sparks and not produce caffeinated alcohol beverages in the future.

The company also will pay $550,000 to cover the cost of the investigation into Sparks.

Wasden cited a study by Wake Forest University researchers who found that college students who mix alcohol and energy drinks engage in increased heavy episodic drinking and twice as many episodes of weekly drunkenness.

In May, Idaho and other states reached a similar agreement with Anheuser-Busch to stop producing alcohol energy drinks.

The two settlements mean nearly 85 percent of all alcohol energy drinks that were available at the start of this year will be eliminated from the market.

Idaho cities catch federal bailout fever

Is there anybody who doesn't deserve a taxpayer-funded bailout? Makes you wonder. The U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities sent a wish list to Capitol Hill last week that included about 300 projects in Idaho communities — Burley, Rupert, Buhl, Glenns Ferry and Hansen among them. Price tag: $535 million.

Apart from that, state governments have developed their own wish lists. Industry groups have their hands out. And trade associations will give the new Congress plenty of projects to choose from as it develops a package could range from $500 billion to $1.2 trillion.

"Everybody is coming to Congress now," Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, told the Post Register of Idaho Falls. "That's the problem with these bailouts. When do you say no?"

At the beginning, that's where. "It's a wish list of everything that everybody wants," Simpson said. "It's not going to happen. There's not enough money in the United States."

The specter of taxpayers bailing out other taxpayers is simply a logical extension of the rescue that began with financial institutions in October and may be extended to the auto industry soon. In a free-market society,

Our View: It's not up to all the taxpayers in the United States to fix the broken infrastructure of Idaho cities and towns.

government isn't designed to do that. Success and failure are two sides of the same coin. Are the public works projects on the mayors' list worthwhile? No doubt. But they're the responsibility of the citizens of those communities, not everybody else. Yes, bailouts would create jobs — 18 in Rupert, 115 in Buhl, 175 in Burley, 73 in Glenns Ferry and 219 in Hansen, according to the mayors' association. But the economic stimulus package likely to emerge after President-elect Obama is inaugurated can't be a Christmas tree of make-work projects. That stimulus is likely to be financed through deficit spending. Is it fair to ask taxpayers from Alaska to Florida to spend decades paying down the cost of a sewer bridge in Burley and a new bridge in Glenns Ferry? America became powerful and prosperous largely because ours is a self-reliant society that doesn't wait around for others to fix problems or exploit opportunities. Government handouts aren't the way out of our current economic mess.

The animal spirits that drive capitalism

HONG KONG — The stranger, a Western businessman, slipped into the chair next to me at an Asia Society lunch here in Hong Kong and asked me a question that I can honestly say I've never been asked before: "So, just how corrupt is America?"

His question was occasioned by the arrest of the Wall Street money manager Bernard Madoff on charges of running a Ponzi scheme that bilked investors out of billions of dollars, but it wasn't only that. It's the whole bloody mess coming out of Wall Street — the financial center that Hong Kong money men had always looked up to. How could it be, they wonder, that such brand names as Bear Stearns, Lehman Brothers and AIG could turn out to have such feet of clay? Where, they wonder, was our Securities and Exchange Commission and the high standards that we had preached to them all these years?

One of Hong Kong's most respected bankers, who asked not to be identified, told me that the U.S.-owned investment company where he works made a mint in the last decade cleaning up sick Asian banks. They did so by importing the best U.S. practices, particularly the principles of "know thy customers" and strict risk controls. But now, he asked, who is there to look to for exemplary leadership?

"Previously, there was - America," he said. "American investors were supposed to know better, and now America itself is in trouble.

THOMAS FRIEDMAN

Whom do they sell their bundles, rating agencies, bond sellers and homeowners all working on the IBG principle: "I'll be gone" when the payments come due or the mortgage has to be renegotiated. It is both eye-opening and depressing to look at our banking crisis from China. It is eye-opening because it is hard to avoid the conclusion that the U.S. and China are becoming two countries, one system. How so? Easy, in the wake of our massive bank bailout, one can now look at China and America and say: "Well, China has a big state-owned banking sector, next to a private one, and America now has a big state-owned banking sector next to a private one. China has big state-owned industries, alongside private ones, and one Washington bails out Detroit, while America will have a big state-owned industry next to private ones." The differences are starting to blur. For two decades, a parade of U.S. officials came to China and lectured Beijing on the necessity of privatizing its banks, said Qu Hongbin, the chief economist for China at HSBC. "So, slowly we did that, and now, all of a sudden, we see everybody else nationalizing their banks." It's depressing because China in many ways feels more stable than America today, with a clearer strategy for working through this crisis. And while the two countries are looking more alike, they appear to be on very different historical trajectories. China went crazy in the 1970s, with its Cultural Revolution, and only after the death of Mao and the rise of Deng Xiaoping has it managed to right itself, gradually moving to a market economy. But while capitalism has saved China, the end of communism seems to have saved slightly unhinged America. We lost our two biggest ideological competitors — Beijing and Moscow. Everyone needs a competitor. It keeps you disciplined. But once American capitalists no longer had to worry about communism, it seems to have gone crazy. Investment banks and hedge funds were leveraging themselves at crazy levels, paying themselves crazy salaries and most of all, inventing financial instruments that completely disconnected the ultimate lenders from the original borrowers, and left no one accountable. "The collapse of communism pushed China to the center of the world (America) to the extreme," said Ben Simpfendorfer, chief China economist at RBS.

The Madoff affair is the cherry on top of a national breakdown in financial propriety, regulations and common sense. Which is why we don't just need a financial bailout; we need an ethical bailout. We need to re-establish the core balance between our markets, ethics and regulations. I don't want to kill the animal spirits that necessarily drive capitalism — but I don't want to be eaten by them either.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Highway district is doing a great job on Justice Grade

Cheers to the members of the Hagerman Highway District for the wonderful job they have done by making the Justice Grade safer for travel.

Because of more traffic, daily school bus travel, people new to the area, teenage and elderly drivers, winter driving conditions, bright sunshine, possible drunken drivers, etc., for quite some time we have been concerned that the grade was "an accident waiting to happen." Regardless of the cost, a human life is priceless. Our thanks for a job well done!

City needs to fix dangerous intersection

Dangerous North College Road and Washington Street North:

Well, surprise, surprise, an accident sent a teen driver to the hospital on this dangerous corner on Wednesday afternoon Dec. 10. I pray for her recovery. I have a special needs son who resides near this corner. He dashes across this very busy street to attend classes there at the school on CSI. If he has no ride, I cringe every time I approach and proceed through this intersection in my car. There should be a crosswalk for pedestrians and, of course, a light. Shame on Twin Falls to "consider" a traffic light in 2010. Bob Knight was so right. He was involved in the accident. He claimed, "This is a damn mess." It is time now for the city of Twin Falls to be responsible before my son gets killed, or another innocent driver is hurt or maimed. I can smell the lawsuits coming!

Funding is crucial to helping Idaho's mentally ill

I am writing to express my concern for myself as well as others who are receiving services for their psychiatric and social troubles. I attend an outpatient mental health clinic in Burley. I have been a consumer of mental health services for 24 years and have received services for 12 years at the clinic I mentioned. All of us can easily understand the financial crises that our country will face in the coming months or years. The Legislature is making crucial decisions

"I don't want to be laid off. I want to go to work tomorrow... We all want to work. That's all we want to do. It's scary, man. It's really scary."

— Jerry Fogarty an employee at the Chrysler Trenton engine plant in Michigan after Chrysler announced it will close all its North American manufacturing plants for at least a month.

"It looked like the breach delivery of a baby, coming out of the brain. To find a perfectly formed structure (like this) is extremely unique, unusual, borderline unheard of."

We'll get through these tough times

The other day I was talking with local educators about the 2009 legislative session and they brought up several funding needs — which is usually the case when I meet with constituents this time of the year.

But, as I reminded my friends, the 2009 session is not going to be a "usual" year. It's quite apparent that the growth in the economy is not there. Sales tax revenues are down and unemployment is at a 15-year high. Industries and businesses throughout Idaho are closing.

What's happening in Idaho is mild compared to what other states are facing — especially states to the east that rely heavily on the banking and insurance industries. President-elect Barack Obama and national economic experts are telling us that things are more likely to get worse than better. I do not question those conclusions.

So what does this mean for Idaho and the 2009 session? I've been hearing a lot of stories in recent weeks about how budget cuts may harm services to the poor and disabled, or various education programs. I hear talk about how the prison population is likely to go up as a result of a falling economy and how roads will should? He wants the department heads to set priorities, just as families must do with their personal budgets.

As the process works, the governor will come up with his plan for state budgets and those of us on the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee will work with that foundation. It gives the committee an opportunity to go through the budgets, seriously evaluate state programs and establish priorities.

We're not alone in this process. Some of the sharpest minds I know are on the governor's and legislative budget staffs. Talking with state agency heads, they too are committed to doing their part to ensure quality services for Idaho.

To make this happen, it's going to take a lot of people working together for the common good. And it's going to take patience and understanding on the part of fellow Idahoans.

Rep. Maxine Bell, a Republican who represents Jerome and Minidoka counties, is serving her tenth term in the Idaho House of Representatives. She is the chairwoman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Bailout watchdog: Where's the spending plan?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top watchdog for the government's financial bailout said Thursday she's frustrated by the Treasury Department's refusal to explain how it's doling out billions in taxpayer money.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

The New York Mercantile Exchange said the January contract for crude oil, which closes on Friday, fell 9 percent, or $3.84, to settle at $36.22 after dropping as low as $35.98.

Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson originally intended to use the money to pay risky loans from banks, freeing them to make new, safer loans. Shortly after the money was approved, however, Paulson announced the money would instead be used to buy stock in U.S. banks.

Crude plunges as economy struggles, spending falls

Oil continued its downward march Thursday as mass layoffs pushed the U.S. economy deeper into recession, signaling a dramatic pullback on energy spending.

That's why some investors are considering the option of reporting "theft losses" under the IRS rules. Taxpayers who are defrauded by investment advisers or brokers can claim a deduction, as well as offset tax liabilities from the past.

Another potential recourse for investors would be to claim that the past taxes they paid on "fictitious income" from Madoff should be recouped, said Stephen Bristetone, a law firm Meltzer Lippe Goldstein & Bristetone who is representing Madoff investors on tax issues.

Under the rules, an investor who lost $20 million from Madoff and whose adjusted gross income was $10 million can claim a theft loss of about $19 million. To calculate the theft loss, investors must reduce the amount of the loss by 10 percent of their adjusted gross income plus $10,000, according to Robert Willens, an expert on tax and accounting issues for Wall Street firms.

Both parties who have been closely following the discussions suggested the banks could be a tactic to extract more hefty concessions from the companies and union in exchange for granting short-term loans from Treasury's financial industry rescue fund.

New director, opportunities

Janet Dobbs of Twin Falls works out during her water aerobics class at the YMCA pool on Elizabeth Street last summer. The facility will reopen on Jan. 3, and feature 4,200 square-feet of renovated space.

T.F. YMCA facility sees vast improvements

Twin Falls YMCA Grand Re-opening

When: 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., Jan. 3
Where: 2754 Elizabeth Blvd.,
Twin Falls
What: The Twin Falls YMCA, under remodel since mid-August, will re-open to feature 4,200 square feet of space that has been worked on. The event will include snacks, fitness professionals to help and live information, live radio remote broadcasts and other attractions.

Not only does the YMCA have a fresh and colorful atmosphere in store for Twin Falls, but a new director as well. Chief Executive Officer Gary Ettenger has been working with the YMCA located on Elizabeth Boulevard since mid-August, fueling an intense remodel two weeks after his arrival.

The remodel includes an extreme gutting of the building; however, the structural integrity has not been altered. In reconfiguring around 4,200 square feet, Ettenger has sacrificed personal office space to expand childcare facilities, which will be equipped with viewing windows for parents. Each workout room has been altered or upgraded to accommodate every current and new patron involved. The main gym will contain a cardio theater powered by wireless transmitters, allowing users easier access to entertainment simply by plugging into receivers. There are various rooms offering core training, stretching, meditation and a Quick Fit room programmed for members with a limited amount of time. This private setting includes 12 exercise stations that integrate 28 minutes of hardcore strength and cardio. It is expected to be one of the main attractions, providing a sense of comfort for those involved.

"We do not want anyone to feel intimidated to come in," said Chairman of the Board Michael Preece. "We want them to feel like they belong here, because they do."

Another important feature includes the children's XR-Zone. This area is designed for children ages 8 and older to incorporate gaming with exercise. "Good job," with a two thumbs up is the consensus of Auston Simer, a 7-year-old who anticipates using the upcoming space. It will offer high-tech video equipment by including a motorized climbing wall, Dance Dance Revolution dancing pads, the Makoto sports arena and other interactive activities that will keep the children interested while providing a healthier lifestyle.

Funding for the project is coming mainly from internal sources but also from donations by various companies, including Idaho Power, which is improving parking lot lighting. While Legend Fitness of Knoxville, Tenn., is providing top-of-the-line workout equipment, the employees of YMCA are sacrificing their own time to help improve the buildings' overall look. Their contributions have helped augment approximately $240,000 worth of changes that would normally cost around $400,000.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Woodmen raise money for soldiers

Modern Woodmen of America members in Twin Falls recently held their Heroes at Home fundraiser and raised $5,320.42 to be used for home repairs for active-duty soldiers. The total includes $2,500 donated by the Modern Woodmen's home office through the organization's matching fund program. Sears donated the grand prize for the fundraiser, a 46-inch Sharp LCD television.

Students donate Christmas tree

Josie Jullard and her seventh-grade Student Success Class at Robert Stuart Junior High School decorated a Christmas tree and entered it in the Festival of Trees contest held recently at the Herrett Center at the College of Southern Idaho campus. Mary Swartz and Irene Haney also assisted the class with decorating the tree.

The students' tree won first place in the 4-foot-tall category. At the conclusion of the Festival of Trees, the students' tree was sold and the money donated to the St. Luke's Neonatal Children's Hospital.

Historical essay contest held

The Twin Falls Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is now accepting entries in two American history essay contests from public school, private school and home-schooled students throughout south-central Idaho.

For students in grades 5 through 8, this year's topic is "What message did the Gettysburg Address communicate to our world and nation in 1863? How are the ideals articulated in the speech still relevant for our country today?"

Essays must be 300 to 600 words for students in grades 5, or 600 to 1,000 words for students in grades 6 through 8.

Students in grades 9 through 12 are eligible to enter the Christopher Columbus essay contest with the topic "Discuss five perils faced by Christopher Columbus' expeditions and how Columbus and his crew overcame them."

Students may describe natural perils or perdition brought on by the task of leading an expedition of several ships and crewmembers through uncharted waters. Students also should explain which of these same perils continue to threaten ships and how advances in technology have changed the way sailors cope with these challenges today. Essays should be no longer than 750 words. Complete contest rules may be obtained by calling Diane Greene at 308-1810 or e-mailing greene@northrhn.net.

All entries must be postmarked by Jan. 15, 2009. Local winners will be recognized at a reception in February 2009, and will have their essays forwarded to the Idaho State DAR for consideration for state-level awards.

The DAR is a national organization promoting patriotism, education and historic preservation.

On the evening of Dec. 7, several members of the Twin Falls Lions Club met at the closing of the annual Festival of Trees to help wrap and prepare the trees for delivery. Monday morning, three members picked up large U-Haul trucks and brought them to the Herrett Center to load for delivery of the sold trees around the Magic Valley. # Hemorrhoids are a relatively simple problem to treat

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 77-year-old female who, from time to time, will suffer from hemorrhoids that swell out. I was wondering if you would write something in the paper about this subject.
DEAR READER: Hemorrhoids are veins around the anus or in the lower rectum that become swollen and inflamed. They are the result of straining during bowel movements, or a condition of aging, chronic constipation, diarrhea or pregnancy. Excessive rubbing and cleaning around the anus can also lead to irritation, itching and bleeding. Treatment is geared toward relieving symptoms, and there are several methods to be considered. The first is a simple sitz bath two or three times a day that involves putting a small amount of very warm water in a bathtub and squatting in the water. Preparation H, other creams and suppositories are available over the counter at your local pharmacy. Treatment by a physician includes rubber-band ligation, in which the internal hemorrhoid is banded, the blood supply is cut off, and the hemorrhoid dries up after several days. Infrared coagulation requires a device to burn hemorrhoidal tissue. Sclerotherapy consists of a chemical solution injected around blood vessels to shrink the hemorrhoids. When these methods fail to produce good results, hemorrhoidectomy — surgical excision — can be done. If you make an appointment with your primary-care physician, who can advise you whether to start with an over-the-counter or to undergo a more complex procedure for relief. DEAR DR. GOTT: Lately, my bowel-movement habits have changed. They used to be extremely regular and the correct consistency and shape. A few months ago, I started eating a Fiber One bar for breakfast every day.

They are filling and taste good. Most days, they held fire through lunch. Then, two things happened. The gas I would have after eating lunch was awful. And I experienced a change in regularity and consistency. I could only attribute it to the Fiber One bar, as that was the only thing I was doing differently. I stopped eating the bars, hoping things would return to normal. They didn't. My movements are inconsistent, and I'm having to strain. I tried a laxative. Big, violent mistake. I didn't like it, nor did it help. A stool softener helped a little, but I'm still not happy. I'm concerned there may be a blockage. DEAR READER: You don't indicate your gender or age or a medical condition that might play a role. Therefore, it is rather difficult for me to provide a meaningful response.

There are several reasons for a change in bowel habits. A change in diet other than the Fiber One bar, medication or an increased stress level in your daily living may be to blame. You could have Irritable Bowel Syndrome or a blockage from yet another undiagnosed condition. Any change in bowel habits should be followed up on. Begin with your primary-care physician for testing. If any question of diagnosis remains, he or she can recommend you make an appointment with a gastroenterologist, a digestive tract specialist.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send a self-addressed, stamped No. 10 envelope and $2 to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

The building is not the only thing undergoing a remodel. All 64 staff members are going to be first-aid, CPR, and AED certified to provide optimum levels of safety and knowledge. There will also be more hands-on interaction without requiring a personal trainer. "We want there to be a high-tech, comfortable work-out with trained professionals, we don't want it to just be a gym anymore," Ettenger said. Officials expect the remodel to be completed by Dec. 29, and the grand re-opening will be held Jan. 3. There will be fitness professionals on the floor, healthy snacks, live radio remote broadcasts, and hands-on activities for all ages to participate in.

Former officer convicted of genocide in Rwanda

ARUSHA — A former Rwandan army colonel was convicted Thursday of genocide and crimes against humanity for masterminding the killings of more than half a million people in a 100-day slaughter in 1994. Survivors in Rwanda welcomed the watershed moment in a long search for justice. The U.N. courtroom in Tanzania was packed for the culmination of the trial of Theoneste Bagosora, the highest-ranking Rwandan official to be convicted in the genocide. Onlookers were silent as the 67-year-old was sentenced to life in prison. "Let him think about what he did for the rest of his life," said Jean Pierre Sagahutu, 46, in Rwanda, who lost his parents and seven siblings. He escaped by hiding in a septic tank for 2 1/2 months. Former military commanders Anatole Ntengiyurwa and Aloys Ntabakuze also were found guilty of genocide and crimes against humanity and sentenced to life in prison. The former chief of military operations, Brig. Gratien Kabiligi, was cleared of all charges and released.

More bones found near missing toddler's home

ORLANDO — Investigators probing the disappearance of a Florida toddler say they've found more bones that appear to be a child's near where a skull was found last week. Authorities have said they believe the skull belongs to Caylee Anthony because of its size and location. It turned up a few blocks from where the toddler lived with her mother and grandparents. The 2-year-old was reported missing in July. On Thursday, Orange County Sheriff's Capt. Angelo Nieves says authorities found further "significant" skeletal remains in the same area. None of the remains have been identified — the skull and earlier finds have been undergoing DNA and other testing.

Lawmakers brawl over U.S. free trade pact

SEOUL — Brawling South Korean lawmakers tried to sledgehammer their way into a parliamentary meeting room barricaded by the ruling party as the National Assembly descended into chaos Thursday over a free trade agreement with the United States. Opposition parties were incensed by the ruling Grand National Party's move to submit the agreement to a committee on trade, setting in motion the process for the accord to win approval in the legislature. Security staff and aides from the ruling party stood guard outside the room to keep opposition lawmakers away after the committee's GNP-affiliated chairman invoked his right to use force to "keep order" in parliamentary proceedings. Scuffles broke out as dozens of opposition members and their aides attempted to push their way into the office. TV footage showed people from both sides shoving, pushing and shouting in a crowded hall at the National Assembly building amid a barrage of flashing cameras.

Jack 'Papa Jack' Willard Hayes Sr.

Our beloved "Papa Jack" departed from this earth to be with the Heavenly Father while at home in Twin Falls on Thursday, Dec. 11, 2008, at the age of 92. He was surrounded by his closest family members through the end of his battle with cancer.

Jack was born in Douglas County, Ore., on Aug. 1, 1916, to Frank Willard Hayes and Ora Hayes (Reynolds). He was preceded in death by both parents; his beloved brother, William Ross Hayes; his half brother, Oliver E. Mann; his first wife, Rosalyn Hayes; his second wife, Dorothy Hayes (Flawitzer); his sons, Eugene Hayes, Vicky Imber, Wayne Segal and Michael Anthony Mazer. Survivors include his sister, Elizabeth (Lizzie) Stages; his children, Jack Hayes Jr., William Hayes, Roy Hayes, and his grandsons, Ian Segal and Michael Anthony Mazer. Survivors include his daughter, Elizabeth (Lizzie) Stages; his children, Jack Hayes Jr., William Hayes, Roy Hayes, Diana Hayes; and his youngest son, Michael Adam Hayes; as well as his ex-wife, Jo Ellen Brown; along with numerous nieces, nephews, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Jack grew up during the Great Depression, spending many of his early years on the Tiger Lily Ranch with his parents. He was a very talented musician, playing both the clarinet and saxophone, and started his love of music by playing in the dance band "Tom and the Kitzens." Shortly before World War II, Jack started working for the Southern Pacific Railroad, beginning his 45-year career in the railroad roundhouses, and eventually worked his way up to become a locomotive engineer. Jack also served his country during World War II in the 78th Infantry Battalion 2nd Platoon in the U.S. Army, after the war, he returned to his job on the railroad and purchased his first home using the GI bill. He was a member of the Elks Lodge and a lifetime member of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Jack was a longtime resident of Roseville, Calif., where he raised many of his children with his wife Dorothy. After losing his wife, Jack devoted his time to his children, career and tending his ranch in Placer County. In the late 1970s, he met and fell in love with his third wife, Jo Ellen, and at the age of 64, he fathered his final child, Michael Adam. After retiring from the railroad, Jack and his son moved to Twin Falls, where Jack pursued his second passion of auto mechanics and restoration at his shop, A-1 Auto Refinishing.

Jack was always a very spiritual man and was a member of multiple churches, but eventually became a longtime member of the Faith Assembly of God Church in Twin Falls. He was very active in the church, playing in the church's band and fulfilling various roles within the church, including teaching and mentoring young men. Dr. Christensen and "Dr. Jackie" (Jackie Turner, NP) for their tender care of Jack throughout his last years.

A private memorial service will be held for the family, close friends and church congregations. Jack's remains will be laid to rest in the Twin Falls Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, the family wishes that supporters make donations to their favorite charities. Arrangements are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

Nadine Sanders

NAMPA — Nadine passed away peacefully in her sleep Thursday, Dec. 18, 2008. She was born Aug. 9, 1913, along with her twin sister, Pauline, to Rob and Martha McCutchen in Urbana, Mo. Mom was an athletic tomboy who rode horses until she got a saddle or bit, taught herself to swim in the creek and played basketball on the Urbana High School girl's basketball team.

She married Joe Sanders in 1932, and they were married 72 years at the time of his death. During the Depression, Mom and Dad drove to Idaho in a Model A Ford and settled in the Jerome area. They lived in a converted turkey shack during their first winter. Mom loved Idaho because there was always plenty of food. You could grow anything and hunt and fish. She kept a full freezer at all times.

During the early years, she cooked for shepherders and Idaho Power crews who were setting poles to carry electricity. During the war years, she worked at the bean house. In 1944, Joe and Nadine moved into town. A daughter, Kathy, was born in 1947.

Mom was full of energy and never said still. She kept an immaculate home. Dad was her enemy and bleach was her friend. She didn't like to cook but she cooked three meals a day and left the kitchen spotless every time. Nadine tirelessly sewed clothes and doll clothes for her daughter and her daughter's friends. She learned to fish and spent many happy hours trying to out fish Joe.

Mom and Dad engaged in many innocent, simple pleasures and picnics and potlucks and lots of laughter with many friends and relatives. Mom's specialty was deviled eggs because "you never have to take any home." Mom was the epitome of common sense and friends came to her when they needed good advice. She was a favorite mom to her daughter's friends. She didn't beat around the bush. You knew what was on her mind and she was usually right. She tried to be tough, but she had an incredibly soft heart. She always fought for the underdog.

Mom spent the last 10 years living in Nampa, close to her daughter and son-in-law. We will miss her every day of our lives. There could be no better mom. She knew how tough the world could be so she prepared her child to cope with life's challenges. She had high expectations, but you always knew she was on your side, no matter what. She was the world's best granny. Her granddaughter was the light of her life from the day she was born. As a mother-in-law, she brought her son-in-law could do no wrong.

Nadine was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Joe; brothers, Don, Otis, Dale and John McCutchen; and sisters, Bessie Scott and Pauline Sommerhouse. Nadine is survived by her daughter and son-in-law, Kathy and Terry Martin of Nampa; granddaughters, Joy and Andrea of Austin, Texas; and sister, Lucille Booth of Springfield, Mo.

Words cannot express the gratitude we feel for the wonderful care and affection Mom received during her last years from Pat, Kerrie, Angie, Penny, Nancy and Phyllis. A celebration of Nadine's life will be held at a later date. Memorials can be made in Nadine's name to the Nampa Meals on Wheels program at Mercy Medical Center, 1512 12th Ave. Road, Nampa, ID 83686.

Conservative leader

Paul Weyrich dies at 66

By Patricia Sullivan
The Washington Post

Mrs. Weyrich, 66, the conservative thinker who coined the phrase "moral majority," founded the Heritage Foundation and became an influential leader of the U.S. religious right, died early Dec. 18, a foundation official said.

He died at a Northern Virginia hospital, the official said, but it was not immediately known what the cause was. Weyrich has been declining health since he injured his spine in a fall in 1996, and he also suffered from diabetes. Both of his legs were amputated at the knee in 2005.

"Paul was one of the giants of the conservative movement, a man committed to family, faith, and preserving and expanding freedom both here in America and around the world," U.S. Minority Leader John Boehner, Ohio, said in a statement.

More than any person, excluding President Ronald Reagan, whom he attacked as insufficiently conservative, Weyrich stitched social-issue conservatives into the fabric of the Republican Party. He brokered the marriage of religious and secular conservatives, and founded the Heritage Foundation in 1973 as a counterbalance to the liberal Brookings Institution. His work launched the influential network of conservative think tanks and radio shows that contributed to the culture wars of the past three decades in U.S. politics. His Free Congress Foundation virtually invented the use of grass-roots direct-mail fundraising campaigns for conservative politicians and social causes.

At a 1978 gathering of religious leaders, Weyrich talked about a "moral majority" in the United States. The name was adopted by a conservative group led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who helped engineer an alliance of religious and economic conservatives that went on to help elect three Republican presidents.

A blunt speaker who created enemies even among those who agreed with him, Weyrich was called the "Hobbespierre of the New Right," and "pillar of the modern conservative movement," but in 1997 he was dropped by NEI; the television network he founded three years earlier, after he repeatedly attacked Republican Party leaders.

"We are radicals," he famously said, "working to overturn the present power structure in this country." He undermined Texas Republican Sen. John Tower's 1989 nomination for defense secretary by publicly denouncing him as a womanizer and drunkard. His attacks in his column, "The Unlabeled Texas Republican Sen. John Tower's 1989 nomination for defense secretary by publicly denouncing him as a womanizer and drunkard." His attacks in his column, "The Unlabeled Texas Republican Sen. John Tower's 1989 nomination for defense secretary by publicly denouncing him as a womanizer and drunkard."

Weyrich, in a 2001 letter to supporters, wrote that "Christ was crucified by Jews who had wanted a temporary ruler to rescue them from the oppressive Roman authorities. ... He was not what the Jews had expected so they considered him a threat. Thus He was put to death." The letter ignited a controversy about some claiming he was anti-Semitic. Weyrich said he was misunderstood but later apologized for the language.

About the same time, Weyrich began a public feud with the Rev. James Dobson, a founder of Americans' shared reverence for traditional morality, after President Bill Clinton was acquitted by the Senate of alleged crimes stemming from his affair with White House intern Monica Lewinsky. He advocated that conservatives create their own schools, neighborhoods and institutions to fight back against what he considered a depraved American culture.

Irish iconoclast Conor Cruise O'Brien dead at 91

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Conor Cruise O'Brien, an Irish iconoclast who led several lives as a diplomat, government minister, author and newspaper editor, has died, he was 91.

A government announcement Thursday did not give the cause of death, although Cruise O'Brien had faded from public life since suffering a stroke in 1998 and several broken bones from a fall in 2007.

Tributes poured in from Dublin's political, academic and literary establishment — many of whom championed unpopular causes, relished enemies and arguments, and challenged Ireland on its twin devotions to nationalism and Roman Catholicism.

"His political views were not always in accordance with those of my own party over the years but I never doubted his sincerity or his commitment to a better and more peaceful Ireland,"

Cowan said. Cruise O'Brien first gained fame in his early 40s when he served as a senior United Nations diplomat seeking a solution to civil war in the Congo in 1961.

Clinton foundation opens books; Saudis, Indians among donors

By Beth Foley and Sharon Thiemmer Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — The world opened its wallet for Bill Clinton. Governments, corporations and billionaires with their own interests in U.S. foreign policy gave the former president's charity millions of dollars, according to records he released Thursday to lay bare any financial entanglements that could affect his wife Hillary Rodham Clinton as the next secretary of state.

Saudi Arabia, Norway and other foreign governments gave at least $46 million, and donors with ties to India delivered millions more. Corporate donors included Celestis, a space firm, at risk of losing its lucrative government contract to protect U.S. diplomats in Iraq, and Web company Yahoo, involved in disputes over surrendering Internet information to U.S. authorities.

It released only the names of donors and a range of their contributions. It did not identify each contributor's occupation, employer or nationality or provide any other details. The foundation said separately Thursday that fewer than 3,000 of its donors were foreigners but it did not identify which ones.

Presidents typically do not release the names of donors to their foundations, and the Clintons were no different. There also was no legal obligation for them to do so.

The foundation notified all donors by letter within the last 10 days to let them know their names would be published on its Web site. Almost 3,000 of its donors were asked to have their donations refunded rather than have their names released. The foundation has a robust fundraising operation that solicits money by e-mail and direct mail. It said 90 percent of the donations to the foundation were $250 and under.

Other high-profile Clinton donors don't suggest inevitable collisions between U.S. policies and their giving. Celestis, a space firm, Steven Spielberg, Paul Newman, Carly Simon and Chevy Chase all gave. Sports figures included New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, Formula One driver Michael Schumacher and owner of the Indiana Pacers basketball team.

The records account for at least $492 million in contributions to the William J. Clinton Foundation, a nonprofit created by the former president to finance his library in Little Rock, Ark., and charitable efforts in dozens of countries to reduce poverty and treat AIDS.

President-elect Barack Obama named Hillary Clinton as secretary of state contingent on her husband revealing the foundation's contributors, to address questions about potential conflicts of interest.

The foundation disclosed the names of 20,000 donors on its Web site Thursday, ending a decade of resistance to identifying future foundation activities and paid speeches to an ethics review, step away from the day-to-day operation of his annual charitable conference and inform the State Department about new sources of income and expenses.

According to Clinton's list, Saudi Arabia gave $10 million to the foundation. Other government donors include Norway, Kuwait, Qatar, Brunei, Oman, Italy, Jamaica and Tanzania in the Canary Islands. The Dutch national lottery gave $5 million to $10 million.

The Blackwater Training Center donated $100,000 to $25,000.

It was not immediately clear whether the disclosures would raise any serious challenge to Hillary Clinton's nomination to be secretary of state. The two senior lawmakers on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sens. John F. Kerry, D-Mass., and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., wrote to colleagues on Thursday and said the president's disclosure "is designed to establish greater transparency and predictability with regard to the activities of the Clinton Foundation in the context of Sen. Clinton's services as secretary of state."

Shortly after the documents were released Thursday, Hillary Clinton made another appearance at the State Department for meetings with transition aides and officials. The trip was the latest of several to the building for the former first lady since she was nominated by Obama. Her first visit was Dec. 8, after which she had dinner with Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice.

After negotiations with Obama's transition team, Bill Clinton promised to reveal the contributors, submit

Blackwater radio logs: Guards were under fire

By Matt Auzzo and Lara Jakes Associated Press writers

WASHINGTON — Radio logs from a deadly 2007 shooting in Baghdad cast doubt on U.S. government claims that Blackwater Worldwide security guards were unprovoked when they killed 14 Iraqi civilians.

The transcripts of Blackwater radio reports, obtained by The Associated Press, describe a hectic eight minutes in which the guards repeatedly reported incoming gunfire from insurgents at Iraq's police.

Five guards face manslaughter and weapons charges for their roles in the shootings. A sixth has pleaded guilty. Prosecutors said the men unleashed a gun attack on unarmed Iraqis, including women, children and people trying to escape.

But the radio logs from the Sept. 16, 2007 shooting suggest otherwise. Copies of the logs were turned over to prosecutors by Blackwater.

Because Blackwater guards were authorized to fire in self-defense, any evidence their convoy was attacked will make it harder for the Justice Department to prove they acted unlawfully.

The logs, which document radio traffic heard by the company's dispatch center inside the U.S.-controlled Green Zone, show that the Blackwater convoy known as Haven 23 repeatedly called small arms fire—or SAF—from insurgents within one minute of shutting down traffic in Baghdad's Nisour Square.

"Mult Insurgt SAF @ R23," the log states at 12:12 p.m.

One minute later, the Haven 23 convoy reported taking fire from Iraqi police: "R23 rpt- I's shooting @ R23."

It's unclear why Iraqi police would fire on the Blackwater convoy. Prosecutors could argue the police fired because they believed Blackwater was attacking civilians. It's also common for insurgents to dress as Iraqi police or military officials.

Haven 23 was told to leave the square and return to the Green Zone at 12:14, according to the logs. But one minute later, the convoy reported that one of its heavily armored vehicles was disabled. Gunshots jumped out of another truck and set up a tow rig, still under fire, according to the logs.

"R23 in trfc still under sporadic SAF," the log shows at 12:20 p.m., as the convoy made its way back to the Green Zone.

"Unless these guys are lying to their command watch in real time, making up stuff, that's real-time reporting that they were taking small arms fire," said defense attorney Thomas Connolly, who represents Nick Slatten, a former

Undisturbed chamber of magma found on Hawaii

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A geothermal power company drilling a mile and a half deep on one of the Hawaiian Islands has for the first time encountered an undisturbed chamber of magma, or molten rock, scientists reported this week.

Before the discovery, which was made in 2005, the only access to magma had been on the Earth's surface in the form of lava from volcanoes.

This is Jurassic Park. This is first contact. Here we see this (continental) stuff being produced in its natural habitat," said Bruce Marsh, a geologist at Johns Hopkins University, who described the findings at a meeting of the American Geophysical Union in San Francisco.

The ocean floor and volcanic islands like Hawaii are made of basalt, a black rock that in its molten form is the "mother fluid" of the 4.5 billion-year-old Earth. How it gave rise to the continent that formed the continents 2.5 billion years ago is a crucial question in geology.

The geothermal company "recognized immediately that this was something very anomalous," said William Tinkler, one of the two geologists at the plant, which generates 20 percent of the electricity used on Hawaii's Big Island.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Flights resumed in and out of Las Vegas, but schools and highways were closed Thursday after a record-setting snowfall coated marquesas on the Strip, weighed down palm trees and blanketed surrounding mountain areas.

Genre wins over a T.F. venue

Jazz fans have a new haven in Twin Falls. Pandora's is going all-jazz for its Friday and Saturday music acts, said Kurt Handley, co-owner of the Old Towne restaurant.

Previously, the restaurant varied its lineup with blues and bluegrass, recruiting jazz musicians only every other weekend, Handley said. But the feedback for those performances was so great, it decided drop the other acts—and add weekly Tuesday jazz performances.

It's a throwback to when Mugger's inhabited the renovated historical building and hosted jazz every Sunday, said Pandora's patron Phyllis Mascari of Twin Falls.

"It was a wonderful way to spend a Sunday afternoon," she said.

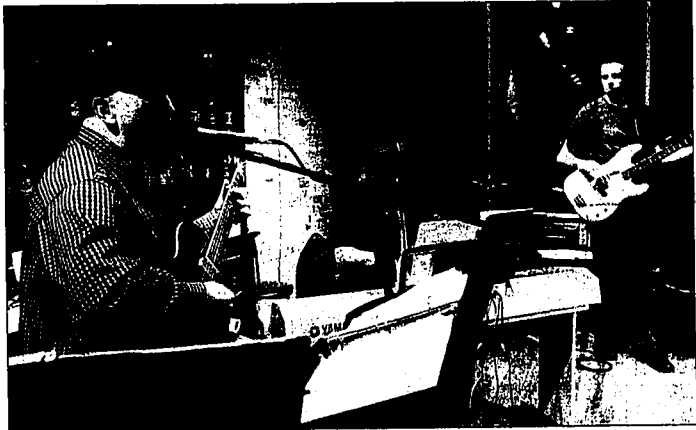

Now, she enjoys Pandora's just as much.

"I love to go, and my 85-year-old mother loves to go," Mascari said, adding that drummer Tony Bowler always says hello to her mother. "It makes her feel like a million bucks."

That's the kind of experience Handley wants his customers to have, and he hopes they will be just as thrilled about the restaurant's conversion to jazz.

"The (customers) that I've told are excited about it," Handley said. "They think that Twin Falls needs a little bit of culture, and jazz is a good easy way to get into culture."

Members of Great Riff Jazz perform on a recent Friday evening at Pandora's restaurant in Twin Falls. Pandora's owners decided to go with all-jazz live entertainment after the community showed hearty interest at previous events.

Dale Bostock, left, and Dawn Pettita, both of Twin Falls, enjoy an evening at Pandora's in Twin Falls. Although jazz is not a favorite genre of the two friends, they say it makes for a pleasant evening.

Nearly free

Sun Valley has long had a reputation as a playground for the wealthy, and there are certainly many fantastic ways to spend a lot of money in town — candlelight dinners with bottles of champagne, overnight stays in luxury suites or boutiques full of unique gifts.

But there's also plenty to do without breaking the bank. The (finally) snow-covered hills beckon visitors from across the region and the world for both the sports and the view, and the holiday season is an especially alluring time to visit.

Here is a list of activities that will fit any wallet, from the nearly free to the splurge. But don't let this list limit your imagination — the Wood River Valley offers many more ways to get away and play this holiday season.

• For the cost of a tank of gas, you can have an afternoon of fun with the whole family in Halley. Bring a thermos of hot chocolate, a few snacks and your warm clothes, and head up to the skating rink at Roberta Mc Kercher Park, between South Third and South Fourth avenues just off Idaho Highway 75. The skating is free, and so are the skate rentals during the hours that volunteers staff the park (after work on weekends, and mid-morning to dusk on weekends).

• If you're in town on Saturday, stop by Sun Valley Village for a night of free entertainment. Starting at 5 p.m., listen to carolers, visit with Santa, check out the ice and snow sculptures, then warm up with hot chocolate and cookies. The resort's impressive Christmas tree will be lit at 6 p.m. On Christmas Eve, similar activities

Ballet: Eugene Ballet Co. production of 'The Nutcracker'

Seen Dec. 10 at College of Southern Idaho

The Eugene company's show fit as nicely on the CSI stage as a present under the tree. Yun-Dyung Kim did splendidly as Clara, pairing nicely with Juan Carlos Arroyo-Cordero as Hans. Some levity — and pyrotechnics! — in the mouse kingdom scenes made it a less staid version of the holiday classic.

— David Cooper, Times-News deputy editor/news

Theater: College of Southern Idaho's 'A Christmas Carol'

Seen Dec. 6 at CSI's Fine Arts Theater

First, a complaint: If one person speaks in a British accent, everyone should. But I loved the play. C.R. Call, who plays Scrooge, enlivens the whole production, and the singers are fantastic. Left with a grin, ready to decorate my Christmas tree and bake sugar cookies.

— Melissa Dawlin, Times-News features writer

Live jazz: CSI Jazz Ensemble's fall concert

Seen Dec. 4 at College of Southern Idaho

What a treat to the ears! I felt like I was back on a cruise ship taking in entertainment. The ensemble is to be soundly applauded for their excellent, fast-moving, professional concert — complete with two fine vocalists. I find that all CSI Music Department concerts should not be missed!

— Joy Hoogesteger of Twin Falls

Holiday: Festival of Lights Parade

Seen Dec. 5 in downtown Twin Falls

Although the blinding cold warranted that I wear my entire closet of clothes to stay warm enough to view the entire parade, I enjoyed the event. I admired the bikers who braved the cold on their decorated motorcycles and consider them my favorite sight of all the beautifully decorated floats.

— Justin J. Jackson, Times-News photographer

Holiday: St. Luke's Magic Valley Health Foundation's Festival of Trees

Seen in Twin Falls, Dec. 7

The festival was a very festive way to spend a Sunday afternoon. Not only were the trees delightfully decorated, it was fun finding where they were tucked away in the Herrett Center. Every corner brought a new surprise. We ended our visit with an exciting light show in the planetarium.

— Sandy Salas, Times-News graphics designer

Choral music: 'The Messiah,' Part I

Performed by the College of Southern Idaho's chamber choir and orchestra, Dec. 6

Perhaps the only person who loves Handel's "Messiah" more than me is director Carson Wong. To me it is simply not Christmas without either singing in or watching a "Messiah" performance. This year's concert was wonderful. The soloists were excellent, the orchestra played beautifully and the choir gave their all.

— Sandy Salas, Times-News graphics designer

Music: Buhl Middle School and High School choirs' Christmas concert

Seen Dec. 11 at Buhl High auditorium

Lovely voices sang international Christmas songs even with a dash of Swahili, but it was "Breath of Heaven" that touched us so deeply. Beautiful dresses and robes included, but the professionalism surprised me more. Mature behavior and serious expressions on their faces made it a night to remember.

The musical production includes more than 100 performers, singing and dancing all night, becoming a Ketchum tradition. Tickets: 726-9124.

Theater group to reprise 'Laramie' production as January fundraiser

Times-News

The Laramie Project, a play with an anti-hate crime message that was presented by the Random Acts of Theatre group at the College of Southern Idaho this summer, will return for three nights in January.

Proceeds will be turned over to the Graydon Stanley family to help with medical expenses incurred from an attack on Graham Stanley in Tempe, Ariz., in September, a CSI press release said.

The Laramie Project was written as a play and has been produced as a movie about the 1998 beating death of Matthew Shepard, an openly gay student, in Laramie, Wyo.

CSI theater director Tony Mannen, who plays a role in the production, said cast members came up with the idea to bring the play back to the stage for the Stanley benefit.

"This isn't just a play about gay bashing," Mannen said in the release. "It's a look inside the minds of the Laramie townspeople. On a larger scale, it's about all of us and how we think about, talk about, and treat people with different lifestyles or points of view." Mannen said the connection between the play and what happened to Graham Stanley is simply that Graham and his friend, who were severely beaten in a random attack, were victims of hate. Stanley spent almost two months in Phoenix-area hospital following the attack, which occurred as he and a friend were walking in a Tempe neighborhood back to their Arizona State University dorm. He has since regained mobility and most of his memory and has been able to resume most of his daily activities.

Graham's father, Graydon Stanley, is dean of students at CSI. "I'm humbled by this generous offer," Graydon Stanley said in the release. "This incident has awakened our family to just how precious and how fragile life is. It has also given us a new look at the goodness in people as we have received so much from so many."

The Laramie Project will be presented at 7 p.m. Jan. 8-10 in the CSI Fine Arts Theater. Tickets are $10 per person and available at the door.

Carolers, a concert and a cabaret

Sun Valley turns on the music

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

Sun Valley is beefing up its fun quotient off the slopes as holiday revelers filter into the resort.

The resort is offering a new dinner show in its Lodge Dining Room on Saturday. Four professional singers will perform a Christmas concert Tuesday in the historic Sun Valley Opera House. And many of the entertainers will be on hand to serenade diners at Sun Valley's new Christmas feast on Sunday.

"It's all brand new. We've never done it before," said Kate Randall, Sun Valley's assistant marketing specialist.

The programs will supplement the long-standing Christmas Eve Ice show, torchlight parade and fireworks display.

"Wally hired me with the idea of providing more live entertainment at Sun Valley, and that includes doing some things before Christmas that will attract people," said Sun Valley's new entertainment director, John Mauldin.

The "As Time Goes By" Holiday Cabaret in the Lodge Dining Room on Saturday will pair a dinner show with a dinner menu of appetizers, broiled filet beef, tenderloin, pan-seared sable fish and bananas foster.

Four performers will perform selections from the 1920s through '60s, including "Cheap, Young and Beautiful," "God Bless the Child," "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime," "Everybody

Two dozen Sun Valley Carolers, who make the rounds of Sun Valley restaurants and shops in the days leading up to Christmas, will perform at Sunday's new Holiday Feast in the Sun Valley Inn, at Saturday's Luminary and Tree Lighting Festival outside the Sun Valley Inn and at the Christmas Eve Ice show.

Loves Somebody Sometime," "Mr. Bojangles" and "It's a Wonderful World."

"It's styled after an old-time dinner show like they had in the movie "White Christmas," said Melodie Taylor-Mauldin, one of the singers. "We sing and dance and act. There are funny moments and touching moments—it points out that the life we experience always finds its way into our music."

"It's not an out-and-out Christmas show, but it does have some Christmas selections," Mauldin added.

The entertainers are Trisha Baker, who performed at Lagoon Theme Park for three seasons and with the Sun Valley Carolers for four; Taylor-Mauldin, who has performed in a number of musicals, including "Gorgeous George Gershwin" and Opera Idaho's "Barber of Seville"; Brandon Ellison, an Omaha, Neb., performer who met his wife in Sun Valley; and Craig Williams, who is studying musical theater at Western Wyoming Community College.

They will be accompanied by a four-member jazz combo: pianist Ben Salisbury, Donald Kelpp, Patrick Clark and Greg Wheeler.

The dinner show seats are $79 and $89. Dinner starts at 7:15 p.m.; the show, at 8:30 p.m. Call 208-622-2800 for reservations.

The Christmas Concert on Tuesday night will fill the opera house with a variety of traditional and contemporary Christmas music, including "O Holy Night," "What Child is This?" "Ave Maria," "Count My Blessings" from the movie "White Christmas" and "Baby, It's Cold Outside."

The 90-minute concert will feature Mauldin, a tenor who has been praised by the Salt Lake Tribune for his "appealingly light, flexible tenor voice." A part of Sun Valley's "Forever Plaid" quartet, he has soloed with the Honolulu Symphony, Phoenix Bach Choir and Vancouver Symphony, among others. And he has performed in "Mikado" and "La Traviata."

He will be joined by his sister Leslie Mauldin, who toured as a soprano soloist with the Israeli Philharmonic and co-starred in USA Network's "Silk Stalkings." Baritone Jason Detweiler has performed with Opera San Jose, Virginia Opera, Sacramento Opera and Opera Idaho. And his mezzo-soprano wife, Michele Detweiler, was a principal artist with Opera San Jose for five years.

They will be accompanied by pianist Robert Hatvani, an award-winning Ukrainian composer; concert violinist Paul Hatvani of Hungary; and cellist Stephen Mathis, who plays with the Boise Philharmonic.

Doors open at 7 p.m. Tuesday, and the show starts at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $35; tickets are available at the door or 208-622-2115.

Both the Lodge Dining Room cabaret performers and the Sun Valley Carolers will perform at a new Lumelight Family Holiday Feast being offered from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

A traditional Christmas buffet will be offered up in the Lumelight Room of the Sun Valley Inn. Tickets are $29 for adults and $16 for children 12 and under.

There will be family-style seating, first come first served.

'Neat little musical version'

Let Dickens' classic put you in the Christmas spirit

By Karen Bossick
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Steve d'Smith has a license to be miserly this Christmas. He's practicing his best Scrooge scowl.

d'Smith will portray that crusty misanthrope of Christmas in the musical version of "A Christmas Carol" tonight through Wednesday at newStage Theatre in Ketchum.

While he aims to please, his crotchety outlook is not endearing him to everyone.

"My roommate is saying, 'Enough! Keep that to the theater,'" d'Smith said.

This 80-minute musical of Charles Dickens' immortal 1843 Christmas tale features music by Tony-nominated composer Mark Waldrop and Dick Gallagher.

There are snatches of familiar Christmas carols like "I Saw Three Ships." But they're interspersed with snatches of songs like "Guess Who Kicked the Bucket Last Night," the jig "Fozzligwig's Ball" and "Break the Chain."

"See this chain I drag behind me ... it's a chain of woes, a chain of tears, a chain I was making for all those years ... foot by foot ... link by link," Jacob Marley booms to his former business partner.

"There have been a number of musical versions, including the one with Albert Finney, whom I met here when he was filming 'Breakfast at Champions.' But I really like this one," said d'Smith. "It's a neat little musical version that's not very long, and it touches all the important issues."

The top issue, according to d'Smith, is Ebenezer Scrooge's transformation from unhelpful, self-engrossed man into generous benefactor who embraces all.

"From what I can tell, Scrooge never got to experience Christmas for the most part," d'Smith said. His father emotionally abused him, keeping him at school when other kids went home to be with their families for the holidays. He decided if he had to stay at school he was going to make good use of it by throwing himself into his studies. I think that's how he became a workaholic — as a way to block things out. But he got so wrapped up in work he couldn't show his girlfriend the love she required and deserved."

This is the third year Laughing Stock Theatre and newStage Theatre have presented the musical. It was reprised at the request of cast

IMMORTAL TALE

Musical version of "A Christmas Carol," by Stock Theatre, runs today through Wednesday, 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Tickets: $20.50. Minors $10 for children 12 and under. $10 for children 13 and over. On Sunday, tickets will be $10.

and audience members; many of the latter cried, tapped their feet and sang along with the show's catchy ending last year, said Keith Moore, who plays Cratchit.

"Audiences love it because it puts them in the Christmas spirit. And it's good community theater because we can utilize so many cast members," he said.

In fact, this year's production involves 40, including a number of children who are double cast.

KAREN BOSSICK/For the Times-News
Steve d'Smith has been reading a plethora of books and plays to understand what makes Ebenezer Scrooge tick. Harley artist Judy Stoltzfus painted the icicle-encrusted London backdrop.

"Seasonally, this is one of the best you can do that involves children," said music director Patty Parsons. "We've had many, such as Tara Burchmore, come back year after year. They move into different roles as they get older, and that keeps it fresh."

The choreography has also changed, and d'Smith has reinvestigated the role of Scrooge, in a bid to show the audience what might have made Scrooge tick.

"For older guys in theater this is one of the big five roles," he said. "It's right up there with Willy Loman, King Lear, Fagan in 'Oliver' ..."

Coming home for the holidays — and a concert

By Erica Littlefield
Times-News correspondent

Singers Jalme Thietten and Caleb Collins are coming home to Twin Falls for the holidays.

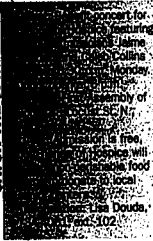

Thietten and Collins are both living in Nashville and working on their respective music careers, but they haven't forgotten their hometown. Thietten and Collins will perform a benefit Christmas concert for Friends of Hospice at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the First Assembly of God in Twin Falls. Admission is free, but Friends of Hospice will accept non-perishable food items to donate to local senior citizen centers.

"We hope to see a lot of people out to support a good cause," Thietten said by phone from Tennessee.

Thietten said the concert in Twin Falls came about because she wanted to come home for the holidays and do something to benefit the community. She contacted Collins to get him on board, and they started looking for organizations to partner with.

One of Thietten's friends suggested a concert for Friends of Hospice, and Thietten thought it was a perfect fit. Thietten said she was already familiar with hospice work because her father, Gary, owns Idaho Home Health and Hospice.

"It's a much-needed thing," Thietten said. "When it comes around to the holidays, sometimes the elderly are forgotten. Hospice does a phenomenal job at reaching out to them."

Thietten and Collins have both been busy with their music over the past few months. Thietten's newest single, "My Chance," was released in September, and Collins recently released his holiday album, "Christmas."

Thietten said the concert in Twin Falls will feature traditional Christmas songs like

"O Holy Night," "The Little Drummer Boy" and "Ave Maria."

Friends of Hospice is an organization that raises funds for families who are unable to pay for hospice care. Lisa Douda, vice president of Friends of Hospice, said part of the concert's purpose is to honor hospice families past and present. Douda said organizers have had a great response to the idea of a concert with two hometown favorites.

"People want to support them, and they want to support us," Douda said.

The belle of the bowls

On the eve of the college bowl season, we rank this year's 34 bowl games from the prettiest matchups to the ones not even their mothers could love.

Rankings and analysis by Times-News sports editor Mike Christensen

1. BCS Championship Game
NO. 2 FLORIDA (12-1)
VS. NO. 1 OKLAHOMA (12-1)
6 P.M., JAN. 8, FOX

This one should be fun. A pair of Heisman Trophy winners square off in Oklahoma's Sam Bradford and Florida's Tim Tebow. The talented QBs lead units ranked first (Sooners) and third (Gators) nationally in scoring offense. Translation: Expect points aplenty. Florida has the better defense, making the Gators a slight favorite, but this should be one of the better title games since the BCS was adopted.

2. Poinsettia Bowl
NO. 9 BOISE STATE (12-0)
VS. NO. 11 TCU (10-2)
6 P.M., DEC. 23, ESPN

The payout check won't say BCS on it, but this game is classier than most of the big-money matchups. TCU boasts the nation's best run defense, meaning Ian Johnson and company may have tough sledding. The BSU offensive line will have its hands full with the Horned Frogs speed rush and freshman QB Kellen Moore will have to be sharp. But the Bronco defense is certainly capable of slowing TCU, making this a low-scoring, but very intriguing matchup.

3. Rose Bowl
NO. 6 PENN STATE (11-1)
VS. NO. 5 USC (11-3)
3 P.M., JAN. 1, ABC

The Rose Bowl gets its desired classic Big 10-Pac 10 matchup, showcasing a pair of teams that were a win away from the title game. The Trojans are making their fourth straight appearance in "The Granddaddy of Them All." If Penn State's spread offense can produce against a stout USC defense, this could be a classic. The Trojans have been Rose Bowl regulars of late, so they'll need to avoid complacency.

4. Sugar Bowl
NO. 6 UTAH (12-0)
VS. NO. 4 ALABAMA (12-1)
6 P.M., JAN. 2, FOX

Will this be a repeat of the 2007 debacle that saw Hawaii obliterated by Georgia? Nope. These two teams are both tough on defense, so points will be precious. Neither team is especially explosive offensively, but Alabama looks slightly better on each side of the ball, particularly in the trenches. If senior QB Brian Johnson plays with poise, Utah could be in position for an upset. If not... Roll Tide.

5. Fiesta Bowl
NO. 10 OHIO STATE (10-2)
VS. NO. 3 TEXAS (11-1)
6:30 P.M., JAN. 5, FOX

The Longhorns think they belong in the title game. They'll take out their frustration on Ohio State, thereby making their bid for a split national title courtesy the Associated Press poll. Heisman runner-up Colt McCoy and company should produce enough touchdowns to bury a Buckeye team that has struggled against quality opposition this season and been blown out in recent BCS games.

Broncos' Woodruff more than a big guy

By Dustin Lippary
Times-News Correspondent

BOISE — There was a time when Andrew Woodruff tipped the scales at 340 pounds. A time when a pro scout said he just looked big and slow. But look at Woodruff now.

He checked his diet, trimmed to 305 and stayed there throughout his senior season, which he'll cap Wednesday when the unbeaten and ninth-ranked Boise State Broncos face No. 11 TCU in the Poinsettia Bowl (6 p.m., ESPN).

"I feel good," Woodruff said. "As far as conditioning, I'm in the best shape since I have been here. Just being able to keep that foot speed. Keeping your conditioning up really helps you."

It's kind of frightening to think of a man that massive being fleet of foot, but Woodruff (as most everyone in the program calls him) is. He's had two shoulder surgeries, which limits the time-tested lifts you'd expect him to boast about. He has been working on total fitness.

"I focus more now on explosion and the on-field strength," Woodruff said. "I don't bench as much as I used to, don't squat as much as I used to, but being more complete is more beneficial for me right now, core strength, speed, hip explosion, that kind of stuff."

Woody was told if he remained at 340 he would get a spot in the Canadian Football League (is from Victoria, British Columbia) or in another league, but to get to the NFL, he'd have to drop weight.

"Once I started losing the weight and started feeling better about it, I had to realize it was for me, to be a healthy person off the field and feel more confident about myself," Woodruff said. "That has expressed itself on the field."

Woodruff played left guard and left tackle this season after spending previous seasons at right guard and right tackle. He anchored an offensive line that gave up only 11 sacks during a 12-0 regular season.

Preseason doubts about the offensive line spread around fall camp like a sixth-grade rumor. Woodruff was the only sure thing. Four starters were gone and a slew of young linemen were

Woodruff

6. Holiday Bowl
NO. 13 OKLAHOMA STATE (9-3)
VS. NO. 17 OREGON (9-3)
6 P.M., DEC. 30, ESPN

Like offense? Tune in to this one. These teams ranked seventh and eighth nationally in scoring offense (41.9 and 41.6, respectively). Both can score in bunches and give up points in bunches, making this a "whoever has the ball best" type of game. Cowboys RB Kendall Hunter and Ducks rusher Jeremiah Johnson lead two of the best ground games in the country.

7. Las Vegas Bowl
NO. 16 BYU (10-2)
VS. ARIZONA (7-5)
6 P.M., DEC. 20, ESPN

Remember when folks were talking about BYU making the BCS title game and Arizona winning the Pac-10? Both squads faded down the stretch, but they still have potent offenses under coordinators that were previously assistants at Texas Tech. BYU quarterback Max Hall looks to atone for an awful outing at Utah against a Wildcat team making its first bowl appearance since 1998.

8. Cotton Bowl
NO. 7 TEXAS TECH (11-1)
VS. NO. 25 MISSISSIPPI (8-4)
NOON, JAN. 2, FOX

Texas Tech was certainly deserving of a BCS bid. Instead, the Red Raiders face the one team that managed to beat top-ranked Florida this season. Tech QB Graham Harrell tries to prove he belonged among the Heisman finalists, while Ole Miss signal caller Jevon Snead looks for a big game in his home state. Tech's record is more glossy, but this one could go either way.

9. GMAC Bowl
TULSA (10-3)
VS. NO. 22 BALL STATE (12-1)
6 P.M., JAN. 6, ESPN

This game offers a look at two of college football's best quarterbacks. Tulsa's David Johnson and Ball State's Nate Davis lead a pair of powerful offensive units. Both these schools were upset in the conference title matchups and look to bounce back in a high-scoring affair. Tulsa loves to pull out all the stops offensively, so if you like trickery, tune in for this one.

10. Capital One Bowl
NO. 15 GEORGIA (9-3)
VS. NO. 18 MICHIGAN STATE (9-3)

Two of the best running backs in the nation will grid it out in Georgia's Knowshon Moreno and Michigan State's Jevon Ringer. Georgia, the preseason No. 1, suffered through three disappointing losses in the Southeastern Conference, but still looks stronger than the Spartans, who were blown out in their regular-season finale against Penn State.

Big third quarter lifts Wendell past Declo

By Ryan Hows
Times-News writer

One quarter of high-intensity basketball was all the Wendell Trojans needed to pick up a 38-33 nonconference road win at Declo Thursday night. Wendell got 12 points from Jael Lancaster and eight points apiece from Kristen Brandsma and Krystyl Miller as the Trojans improved to 7-1 overall (3-0 Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference).

Wendell's 14-2 run in the third quarter — sparked by Miller's back-to-back 3-pointers — blew open a close game.

"When we play all four quarters, we're pretty good," said Wendell coach DeLon Huse. "We haven't done it lately. The girls still have to learn to mentally get themselves ready. But the positive thing is we came out in the third quarter and did what we needed to do. I thought the difference was we took care of the basketball and played really good defense." After Declo (7-5) took a 20-19 lead on a Sarah Silcock jumper early in the third quarter, Wendell's Lancaster answered with a 3-pointer, sparking a 17-point quarter that ended with the Trojans up 10.

"We came out in the third quarter strong because we picked up our intensity a lot more," Lancaster said. "It got a little rough at the end (of the game) and there wasn't a lot of control. I think we handled everything pretty good and we kept our lead. It wasn't pretty, but we won."

Declo battled back with a furious and physical full-court press in the fourth quarter, cutting its deficit to four.

But the Hornets simply couldn't get shots to fall. Wendell was able to hold on for the win despite scoring just two points in the final period.

Slotten surges to great start for TFHS

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

It's not atypical to see a freshman wrestling at 103 pounds turn into a 145- or 152-pound grappler by the time he's a senior.

Slotten

To go up from 152 to 171 in just a single season, however, is a little more inordinate. But that's what Twin Falls junior wrestler Zak Slotten has done this season. After placing fifth at the Class 5A meet last season at 152, Slotten has made the jump to 171 this year — though head coach Salid Dabestani says he could still conceivably qualify at 160 by the end of the season as he is nowhere near the 171-pound limit. Regardless of his weight for districts and state, Slotten has not only moved up to 171, he's thrived.

Through his first nine matches, the junior didn't even concede a point, much less taste defeat. He credited the rigorous regimen of a Twin Falls practice as no small part of his early-season success.

"The coaches push us really hard, and it helps me get better every day," Slotten said.

"Then you just have to be really determined when you're out there than on the mat in competition," said Dabestani. "Zak is very strong physically and his technique is getting better by the day — far better than last year.

"He's got a good level of mental maturity that I always look for in my wrestlers and his confidence is really high. And I'm confident it will be even higher later in the year."

Slotten took his first loss Wednesday against Minico's Miguel Simental, dropping his record to 9-1 plus a forfeit on the season.

Though he won't see Simental at districts or state, Slotten said he could take some things from his match against last year's Class 4A state runner-up as he looks to build the foundation for his own state run in 2009.

"I don't really think it's confidence (to be taken from the mat), but it shows me what I need to do to get better," Slotten said. "Anytime you wrestle good competition like (Simental), it's a good thing."

Whether he ends up at 160 or 171, there's little disputing that as long as Slotten continues on the path he's set for himself, he'll be one of the ones to beat when February rolls around.

Bear-Cat Wrestling Invite starts today in Jerome

By David Bashore
Times-News writer

The time-honored tradition of the Bear-Cat Wrestling Invitational is upon us, the first big test to see how wrestlers stack up in comparison to each other, and to their own aspirations.

Seventeen teams are scheduled to descend upon Jerome High School today for the two-day meet, and the Tigers are excited that it's their turn to host the meet, which alternates between Jerome and Twin Falls every other year.

"It's fun to get on the mats in a tournament like this to see where the kids are at," said Jerome head coach Des Case. "It's usually a good test early in the season to see where you're at and how things stack up."

The Tigers will field a full squad, including last year's 103-pound state champion Cory Cummins, who will wrestle 119 at the event. Case is optimistic about the chances for Cummins and the rest of the team to make an impact at the early-season event. "I know our kids are working hard in the room, and we're just trying to get better each day," he said. "A tournament like this, we get to see where we're at. Hopefully we're close to the top but you never know until you get out there."

Twin Falls, while entering a somewhat depleted roster, figures to have a good chance of finishing high with the number of top-class wrestlers the Bruins will enter. Among them are Tommy Keeter and Zak Slotten, as well as returning state champion Todd Anderson.

"We won't be taking a full team due to illness and kids being hurt — let them get better. I say," said Twin Falls head coach Salid Dabestani, who expects to send 11 entrants to the meet. "But our top wrestlers will be there and we'll be very competitive with the ones we bring."

Minico will be back to defend its Bear-Cat championship, as the Spartans topped Highland by 19 points to claim the title in Twin Falls last year. Miguel Simental, last year's Class 4A runner-up at 171 pounds, leads a group that should compete for the team title again this season. Buhl, Burley, Gooding, Kimberly and Wood River are also scheduled to attend, as are out-of-state schools Elko (Nev.) and Ontario (Ore.). Action begins at 3:30 p.m. today.

Manning nearly perfect as Colts beat Jags

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— Peyton Manning was nearly perfect, exactly what the Indianapolis Colts needed to overcome all the emotion the Jacksonville Jaguars got from Richard Collier's return.

Manning completed his first 17 passes, picked apart Jacksonville's secondary and led the Colts to their eighth consecutive win and seventh straight playoff berth.

Manning finished 29-for-34 and threw for 364 yards and three touchdowns, and the Colts secured the No. 5 seed in the AFC playoffs with a 31-24 victory over the Jaguars on Thursday night.

Indianapolis (11-4) took its first lead of the game when Keiwan Russell intercepted a pass from David Garrard and returned it 35 yards for a touchdown and a 31-24 lead with 4:48 remaining.

The Jaguars had two chances to tie it, but both drives ended with sacks. Garrard drove Jacksonville to the 7-yard line with 23 seconds remaining, but Maurice Jones-Drew sprained his knee on a reception, and since the Jaguars had no timeouts, there was a 10-second runoff.

Garrard misfired on first down, then got sacked by Dwight Freeney to end the game.

The Colts overcame a 14-0 deficit in the second quarter and a 24-14 hole early in the fourth. They won without receiver Marvin Harrison (hamstring), running back Joseph Addai (shoulder) and linebacker Gary Brackett (leg). Coach Tony Dungy said earlier in the week that a victory would allow him to rest many starters next week against Tennessee. So Indy could get as many as 17 days of rest before opening the postseason.

The Jaguars (5-10) lost for the seventh time in the past nine games and fell to 2-6 at home this season. This one may have been more emotionally draining than any of the others.

Indianapolis Colts quarterback Peyton Manning, top, throws a second-quarter pass as offensive lineman Tony Upton, center, blocks Jacksonville Jaguars linebacker Clint Ingram Thursday in Jacksonville, Fla.

 Jerome lost a tough road game to Madison, 66-62. "Our defense picked up in the second half," said Jerome coach Brent Clark. "We've been averaging giving up 34 points and we gave up 40 in the first half. We played well after that. We got behind the eight ball and coming back took a lot out of us."

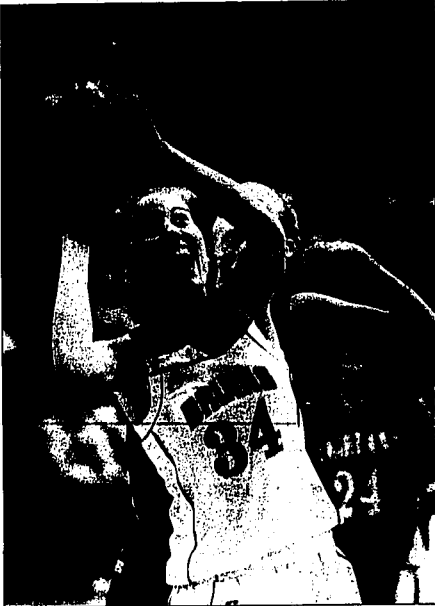

After Madison held a 40-28 lead at the half, Jerome outscored Madison 34-26 in the second half.

Aubree Callen had 22 points for the Tigers and Carrie Thibault posted 13. Jerome (10-2, 2-1 Great Basin West) travels to Bishop Kelly on Saturday.

Hansbrough breaks UNC scoring mark

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Tyler Hansbrough scored 20 points to break North Carolina's career scoring record and help the top-ranked Tar Heels remain unbeaten with a 91-73 victory over Evansville on Thursday night.

The reigning national player of the year finished 7-for-14 from the field and had nine rebounds for North Carolina (10-0), which shook off a slow start and stretched the lead to double figures shortly after Hansbrough passed Phil Ford for the record midway through the first half. Ford, now an assistant coach with the NBA's Charlotte Bobcats, finished his career in 1978 with 2,290 points.

Hansbrough, who needed nine points coming in, tied Ford on a jumper from the left wing with 14:05 left in the first half. He set the record by finishing in a hank shot over two defenders with 7:11 to go.

Tyson added 16 points for the Tar Heels, while Danny Green had 14, including the 1,000th of his career.

Shy Ely scored 23 points for the Purple Aces (7-2).

NO. 8 GONZAGA 84, TEXAS SOUTHERN 42
 SPOKANE, Wash. — Josh Heyweitt scored 21 points for Gonzaga in one of the few scheduled events that occurred after the city was hit by almost two feet of snow.

Micah Downs added 14 points for the Bulldogs (9-1), who rebounded from a loss at Arizona in its previous game by posting its highest point total of the season. This was Gonzaga's first home game since Nov. 18, after six road contests.

NO. 9 LOUISVILLE 77, MISSISSIPPI 68
 CINCINNATI — Earl Clark had career highs of 25 points and 16 rebounds for Louisville, adding a little more misery to Mississippi coach Andy Kennedy's day.

Samardo Samuels added nine points and 13 rebounds as the Cardinals (7-1) went their fifth straight.

David Huertas had 20 points for the Rebels (7-4), who fought gamely after a tumultuous day that began with Kennedy's arrest on misdemeanor charges following an altercation with a cab driver (see D3 for story).

thrown into a rotation that changed throughout the season.

"We had a lot of ups and downs, especially on the O-Line," Woodruff said. "I had to learn how to be more open to change and just be ready for anything to happen."

That was true for all five line-men. "Each guy having to question where he was going to play next week made it a lot more interesting," Woodruff said. "It forces you to focus harder and that transfers onto the field, just being able to handle anything that's thrown at us."

The constant change made for a better O-line in the long run, according to Woodruff, "because more guys played time and they're more comfortable with each other."

Woodruff used his new-found speed to protect redshirt freshman quarterback Kellen Moore, who Woodruff said, "has to learn how and company will need to be at their best against TCU's speedy defensive front led by All-American defensive end Jerry Hughes."

Woodruff, a history major, took his final exam this week. The Pointsettia Bowl will be his last college game. Whether or not he plays beyond BSU, he will couldn't meet equally lofty expectations this year.

11. ALAMO BOWL
NO. 21 MISSOURI (9-4)
VS. NO. 23 NORTHWESTERN (9-3)
6 P.M., DEC. 29, ESPN
 Missouri's Chase Daniel will surely put up some numbers in this one, but his counterpart may have an even bigger day. Northwestern QB C.J. Bachner isn't a star, but he may look like one against a Tiger defense rated third-worst in the Football Bowl Subdivision.

22. PAPAJOHNS.COM BOWL
N.C. STATE (6-6) VS. RUTGERS (7-5)
1 P.M., DEC. 29, ESPN
 Remember when Rutgers was 1-5? Six straight wins have the Scarlet Knights bowling once again and they face a team that started 2-6, but won four straight to end the year. Both are on a roll, but Rutgers looks should take this one.

12. SUN BOWL
OREGON STATE (8-4)
VS. NO. 20 PITTSBURGH (9-3)
NOON, DEC. 31, CBS
 Another matchup of elite running backs, the Sun Bowl pits OSU's Jacquizz Rogers and Pitt's Lesha McCoy. Both of these teams came up just shy of claiming conference crowns and BCS berth out of the Pac 10 and Big East, respectively.

23. OUTBACK BOWL
KNU (8-4) VS. SOUTH CAROLINA (7-5)
9 A.M., JAN. 1, ESPN
 Iowa quietly won eight games in the mediocre Big 10. Steve Spurrier's squad still can't compete with the best of the SEC. Not much reason to get out of bed for this morning contest.

13. ORANGE BOWL
NO. 12 CINCINNATI (11-2)
VS. NO. 19 VIRGINIA TECH (9-4)
6 P.M., JAN. 1, FOX
 Meet the biggest dud of this year's BCS lineup. The Big East and ACC were both mediocre this season. Cincinnati needed a late rally to win at Hawaii earlier this month. Tech struggled early, but did win three straight to end the year, including a resounding win over Boston College in the ACC title game.

24. ARMED FORCES BOWL
HOUSTON (7-5) VS. AIR FORCE (8-4)
10 A.M., DEC. 31, ESPN
 Houston scores in bunches behind QB Case Keenum and a potent air attack. Air Force's ground game can put up the clock and put an end to the contest in styles makes this an intriguing matchup, even though it's a rematch of a Sept. 13 game won 31-28 by Air Force.

14. CHICK-FIL-A BOWL
LSU (7-5) VS. GEORGIA TECH (9-3)
5:30 P.M., DEC. 31, ESPN
 Georgia Tech's offense could have a heyday against an LSU defense that has been woeful much of the season. The Tigers have also struggled to consistently produce offense. Still, they are the defending national champs and should give the Yellow Jackets a game.

25. MUSIC CITY BOWL
NO. 24 BOSTON COLLEGE (8-4)
VS. VANDERBILT (9-4)
12 P.M., DEC. 31, ESPN
 Boston College's reward for losing the ACC title game? A matchup with a Vanderbilt squad that limped to a 6-6 record after a 5-0 start. Not much to get excited about here.

15. GATOR BOWL
CLEMSON (7-5) VS. NEBRASKA (8-4)
11 A.M., JAN. 1, CBS
 These teams both started 3-3, but finished strong. Bo Pelini's team won five of its final six, but will need a good day defensively against Clemson's running back James Davis and C.J. Spiller.

26. EAGLE BANK BOWL
NAY (8-4) VS. WAKE FOREST (7-5)
9 A.M., DEC. 20, ESPN
 A rematch of a Sept. 27 game, which Navy won 24-17. That makes this a bit of a dud, but the game should at least be close.

16. CHAMP SPORTS BOWL
WISCONSIN (7-5)
VS. FLORIDA STATE (8-4)
2:30 P.M., DEC. 27, ESPN
 Wisconsin was a Top 10 team early in the season. Florida State went in and out of the Top 25 all year. Two teams that didn't meet expectations try to end the season on a positive note.

27. NEW MEXICO BOWL
COLORADO STATE (6-6)
VS. FRESNO STATE (7-5)
12:30 P.M., DEC. 20, ESPN
 The Rams are looking to bowl. The Bulldogs were never themselves after a Week 2 loss to Wisconsin. Fresno State is the better team, but CSU probably wins this one simply by having more interest in the affair.

17. MENENGE CAR CARE BOWL
WEST VIRGINIA (8-4)
VS. NORTH CAROLINA (6-4)
11 A.M., DEC. 27, ESPN
 Dynamic Mountaineers QB Pat White tries to cap his collegiate career in style against a North Carolina team with pass defense. Both these teams were Jekyll-and-Hyde squads this year. If they both show up, this could be a dandy.

28. LIBERTY BOWL
KENTUCKY (8-4)
VS. EAST CAROLINA (9-4)
3 P.M., JAN. 2, ESPN
 East Carolina came to play against BSU in the Hawaii Bowl last year. The Pirates should win another bowl against a middling Kentucky squad.

18. EMERALD BOWL
MIAMI (7-5) VS. CALIFORNIA (8-4)
6 P.M., DEC. 27, ESPN
 Cal is playing close to home and should put on a show for its fans. Bears running back Jahvid Best piled up nearly 1,400 yards this season and could run all over a Miami defense that hasn't done much against the run this year.

29. TEXAS BOWL
RICE (9-3) VS. W. MICHIGAN (9-3)
9 P.M., DEC. 30, NFL NETWORK
 "Rice" and "Western Michigan" don't do much to pique one's interest, but if you look deeper, this is a fun matchup. Rice QB Chase Clement and Western Michigan signal-caller Tim Hiller can really rack up yards and touchdowns.

19. HUMANITARIAN BOWL
MARYLAND (7-5) VS. NEVADA (7-5)
2:30 P.M., DEC. 30, ESPN
 The team that almost won the ACC plays the team that almost upset Boise State. As BSU fans know, Nevada QB Colin Kaepernick can move the ball. He and running back Val Tuua should give the Wolf Pack a fighting chance against the Terps.

30. ST. PETERSBURG BOWL
MEMPHIS (6-6) VS. SO. FLORIDA (7-5)
2:30 P.M., DEC. 20, ESPN2
 Yawn. South Florida was one of the 15 squads, but faded after a 5-0 start. For that they play a 6-6 team from Conference USA.

20. HAWAII BOWL
HAWAII (7-5) VS. NOTRE DAME (8-6)
6 P.M., DEC. 24, ESPN
 Expect Notre Dame's bowl listing streak to reach 10 games on Christmas Eve. The Warriors are at home, and get better and better as the season progressed, while the Irish faded to a 6-6 mark. This one could get ugly unless the Irish show some fight.

31. INTERNATIONAL BOWL
BUFFALO (6-6) VS. CONNECTICUT (7-5)
10 A.M., JAN. 3, ESPN2
 Turner's week turning Buffalo into MAC champs in just over a season. The Bulls first-ever bowl game should be a high-scoring affair against Connecticut.

21. INSIGHT BOWL
KANSAS (7-5) VS. MINNESOTA (7-5)
3:30 P.M., DEC. 31, NFL NETWORK
 The overachievers (Minnesota) meet the underachievers (Kansas) after a one-win season in 2007. The Gophers are going bowling. Kansas went 12-1 in 2007 and won the Orange Bowl, but

32. NEW ORLEANS BOWL
TROY (8-4) VS. SOUTHERN MISS (6-6)
6 P.M., DEC. 21, ESPN2
 Troy's offense can entertain and Southern Miss is playing its seventh straight bowl game. Not much else to say here.

33. MOTOR CITY BOWL
FLORIDA ATLANTIC (6-6) VS. CENTRAL MICHIGAN (8-4)
5:30 P.M., DEC. 28, ESPN2
 Two reasons to watch: Florida Atlantic quarterback Rusty Smith and Central Michigan QB Dan LeFevour. Both could make it to the next level.

Richmond, Montana meet in FCS title game

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — A day after losing their third game of the season, the Richmond Spiders had a players-only meeting.

"We sat down with the team and said, 'What do you want to do? Do you want to pack it up and go home?'" Richmond defensive line-man and team captain Lawrence Sidbury said. "We knew the conference championship was out of reach but we could still make it to the playoffs. Once you reach the playoffs, the sky's the limit."

After the 4-3 start, Richmond hasn't lost a game and will face Montana on Friday in the Spiders' first Football Championship Subdivision title game, a game that was dominated in the last three years by Appalachian State.

The Grizzlies (14-1) only tripped once in their path to Chattanooga: a 45-28 loss at Weber State, which they would later avenge in the quarterfinals of the playoffs.

Montana has appeared in five national championship games in the last two decades, winning twice, and was the team to beat this season in the Big Sky Conference.

BALL STATE ANNOUNCES NEW COACH
 MUNCIE, Ind. — Stan Parrish, Ball State's offensive coordinator the past three seasons, signed a four-year contract on Thursday and promised a smooth transition as the new coach of the 23rd-ranked Cardinals.

He replaces Brady Hoke, who resigned this week to become the coach at San Diego State, and his first game will be on Jan. 6, when the Cardinals play Tulsa (10-3) in the GMAC Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

MARVE'S MARVE WILL NOT PLAY IN BOWL GAME
 CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Miami quarterback Robert Marve's season began with a one-game suspension, and it'll end with another.

Marve will not play in the Emerald Bowl next week because of a violation of team academic rules, which he told The Associated Press was regarding "a miscommunication about absences for a class."

Marve's coach Randy Shannon said he can't reveal any specific details about Marve's situation, other than it would be a one-game issue. Jacory Harris will start when Miami (7-5) plays California (6-4) in San Francisco on Dec. 27.

GEORGIA TECH'S JOHNSON GETS NEW 7-YEAR CONTRACT
 ATLANTA — Georgia Tech first-year coach Paul Johnson was given a new 7-year, $17.7 million contract on Thursday.

The school said Johnson, who led a team picked to finish near the bottom of the Atlantic Coast Conference to a 9-3 record and its first win in eight years over rival Georgia, will receive $2.3 million for 2009, plus incentives. Johnson was voted ACC Coach of the Year. The Yellow Jackets are ranked 11th in the AP poll and will meet LSU in the Chick-Fil-A Bowl on Dec. 31.

Feds' rights to baseball drug tests back in court

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Federal appeals judges would skepticism Thursday that prosecutors had the right to seize urine samples of more than 100 major league players not originally involved in the BALCO drug investigation.

In a case dealing with the government's search and seizure power in the digital age, an 11-member panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals must decide whether prosecutors legally seized the names and urine samples of 104 players during a raid in April 2004.

"There has to be limits when the government seizes vast amount of information on a computer," Major League Baseball Players Association lawyer Elliott Peters said.

The federal agents who took the material from the Long Beach-based Comprehensive Drug Testing Inc. had a search warrant for the test results of just 10 players, but discovered on a computer spreadsheet that the test results of additional players.

The players' association went to court, and lower-court judges ruled the additional names were seized illegally. A three-judge panel of the 9th Circuit reversed those decisions twice in 2-1 votes, but the entire 9th Circuit set the reversal aside and decided to hear the case en banc.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Douglas Wilson argued Thursday the government had a legal right to investigate all of the players who tested positive because their names and test results were on a single document containing the names of the 10 players listed in the search warrant. Wilson said since the government was entitled to 10 players' test results, it was entitled to the entire spreadsheet.

Wilson's argument was attacked early and often by at least six judges, who expressed doubt that a computer spreadsheet is analogous to a paper document, which investigators have a right to seize so long as it contains evidence listed in the search warrant.

"When you are talking about computers, a single document can contain vast amounts of information," Judge Kim Wardlaw said.

Judge Mylan Smith was even more pointed, complaining that allowing the government on narrowly focused investigations to seize computer databases, hard drives and spreadsheets containing large amounts of information "would probably be frightening to the public because there's no end to it."

The case deals with samples from 2003 survey testing of major league players, which the union and management agreed would remain anonymous.

So far, career home run leader Barry Bonds is the only major league charged in the case, which has yielded more than a dozen convictions of drug dealers, track star Marion Jones and her former coach, Trevor Graham.

Wilson's argument was attacked early and often by at least six judges, who expressed doubt that a computer spreadsheet is analogous to a paper document,

THE ACES ON BRIDGE
Bobby Wolff

"Thinking is the most unhealthy thing in the world, and people die of it just as they die of any other disease."
— Oscar Wilde

After North cue-bid twice in support of hearts, South used the grand slam force to find out that he was facing the three aces he cared about, so bid seven hearts. How do you plan to make the contract after West leads the club 10?

The best way to make a club 10 trick is to ruff two diamonds in hand (producing six trump tricks and seven black winners). So, win the club ace and ruff a diamond. Next cash the trump king. If all follow, draw trumps and claim.

But when the hearts are 4-0, as in the diagram, you will go down if you ruffed the first diamond with the trump six. You will be unable to cross to dummy, both to draw trumps and take a second diamond ruff. Oops!

You have enough entries to dummy, but only if you spot the danger of the bad trump break before it is too late.

Ruff the first diamond with the trump nine, cash the trump king, and lead a spade to dummy for a second diamond ruff high. Then cash the heart queen and lead the trump six to dummy's eight. Now you can draw the last trump with the ace, pitching your club loser, then run the spades.

If East has four hearts, you must hope to cash three spades to pitch dummy's club. Then you can ruff a club high and claim your contract.

The question of children slows growth of budding relationship

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 38-year-old woman who has been dating a 32-year-old man I'll call "Vinny" for three months...

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

Vinny told me he has developed feelings for me, but that he wants to have children of his own someday...

My problem is, Vinny continues to call me several times a day and every night before he goes to bed...

and you are not interested in having more, that could present a serious problem. If you ARE interested, then there is also the issue of your biological clock.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend, "Joe," and I went to college together and now, years later, we live in different parts of the country...

DEAR BEWILDERED: Frankly, the way you are asking me about your people I care a lot about Vinny and would like to be with him.

Because we always stay at each other's homes when we visit, going to see Jane now, of course, means having to be around her husband...

IF DECEMBER 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Sal off into the sunset with a special someone and experience your own "happy ever after" this year...

DEAR ABBY: I frequently dine out for business meetings. What is the proper way to "NOT" have someone ask you a question and you have just taken a bite of food...

DEAR LOVES HER: By all means. Your visits will no longer be two college friends getting together because a third person has been added to the mix.
