

Idaho House Calls For Investigation Of Gasoline Price

Abolishment of State Insurance Commission Aim of New Bill in Line With Clark Plan

(By The Associated Press)
BOISE, Jan. 13.—The 1941 Idaho legislature moved forward slowly today—seventh day of the session—and aside from approval of an emergency measure providing about $720,000 to operate all state departments for one-tenth of the biennial fund, little to boast of in the way of actual accomplishments.

The house launched an investigation into Idaho gasoline prices and the why-and-wherefore causes of that vital need's exorbitance through a resolution calling for the naming of a joint senate-house committee.

Continuation of the move in the senate was referred to the state affairs committee.

Faring Prices
Introduced by Reps. Taylor of Jefferson, Olney of Bannock and Wiggins of Blaine, the resolution declared that in Idaho "it appears that the price of motor fuel is higher than in surrounding states and that the price varies in different places with equal rapidity." It also stated that the price fluctuates greatly from time to time.

In an explanatory portion of the resolution, the committee on transportation of gasoline in Idaho "should be checked as to means of transport, special limitations on means of transport and the cost of transport."

It was further provided "there seems to be no control of that vital product, gasoline, which is used on every farm and ranch in tractors and trucks. We need adequate state control of a commodity important to all of the people of Idaho."

New Insurance Setup
An amendment in line with Governor Clark's economic program, a house bill was introduced which would take over the administration of the state insurance fund.

The bill would fix at $3,000 per year the salary of the administrator of the state insurance fund.

Other provisions of the proposed act went to the reference committee.

Classification of the present law relating to compensation under the compensation law of the state occupational disease operation law and placing its operation under the provisions of the compensation law.

Placing in the manager full authority to issue the insurance fund and providing that he shall give bond to the state for the performance of his duties in an amount to be fixed by the governor with surties approved by him.

Manager's Powers
Granting the manager "full power to conduct all the business of the insurance fund in the fund and to conduct all business in relation thereto."

We inspect our milk and our water and our meat; we have strict rules for labels on our food and our clothing. We have less restraint on our politicians, perhaps. They can promise one thing and deliver another, but after all, we get another crack at them when the next election comes along! However, if you'll stop and think about it, there's one "law" in America which is more effective than all the rest put together! It is the unwritten law of freedom of choice—your right to choose when, where and how you will spend your money. Your right to patronize one store or buy one brand and pass all others by. ## D. A. R. Members Hear Talk on Six Greatest Men in the World

An interesting address on the six greatest men of the world, as listed by G. C. Wells, and on the United States flag and the good citizenship project, being carried out in the Twin Falls schools, was given by Mrs. Rose Murray North, dean of girls at the Twin Falls high school, following the luncheon yesterday afternoon for members of Twin Falls chapter, D. A. R. of the American Legion. The luncheon was served at the home of Mrs. Marshall Jefferson, with Mrs. E. C. Simpson, C. B. Hume, Mrs. R. E. Simpson, Mrs. Frank Baldwin and Mrs. T. M. Robertson as co-hostesses.

During her talk about the six greatest men of the world, Mrs. North said they had been named by Mr. Wells because they were good citizens and because the world was better for their having lived in it.

The men listed were: Nazareth, Buddha, Aristotle, Aesop, Homer, Bacon and Abraham Lincoln.

The D. A. R. members were introduced by Mrs. H. J. Wall, chairman of the program committee, and later in her talk about the good citizenship project, she said that she was proud to be a part of it.

The program followed with a talk on the flag by Mrs. H. J. Wall, and a report by Mrs. Jinks on the last National meeting.

After the meeting, Mrs. E. M. Sweely, recent of the chapter, concluded the program with a plea that all D. A. R. members use their influence in every way to help America out of the present situation.

'Rubinoff and His Violin' to Be Words of Introduction for Maestro in Concert Here

Rare indeed are the famed people of our time who, in being presented to an audience, have an inimitable object to their introduction. Always it is just Arturo Toscanini or Lawrence Tibbett or Somerset Maugham. But "Rubinoff and His Violin" are the words that will introduce this famous violinist-conductor to his audience at the Twin Falls high school auditorium, Friday evening at 8 o'clock, Jan. 24.

The concert, which will be the first of a series of popular music under the auspices of the high school.

Rubinoff's violin is of supreme importance. It has been in his hands for over 40 years. It was made in 1700 and is insured for $100,000.

Working hard on his first violin in Europe, Rubinoff finally won a scholarship to the Royal Conservatory at Warsaw. At 14 he embarked on his career as a violinist.

The Rites served him well, and in 1907 he was named as a violinist in the orchestra of the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

With the first rays of success to shine in his life, Rubinoff was awarded a scholarship to the Royal Conservatory at Warsaw. At 14 he embarked on his career as a violinist.

By ALLEN EPPES

YESTERDAY: David and Polly have been in love with each other for years. Their marriage has been a success because David's young cousin, who works as a cashier, has him, and David must care for the boy. To complicate matters, the cashier's wife has returned from living abroad and has cast a longing eye on David—which Polly has seen.

Chapter 11
Margo at Work

Mr. Powers was getting ready to go out in the car when David and Margo reached the house.

"Here's that book you wanted," he said, handing the volume to David. "It's an especially fine study of the reformation problem. Take your time about reading it. I've already gone through it pretty thoroughly."

Margo was examining the book. Margo stepped closer to him. "How do you like the book?" she said. "My father was going down town. Why not let me see it?"

"I'm out of practice on the dance floor as an office tennis court," said David.

"Well, it's time you got back in practice," Margo said. "I'll go out to the restaurant with you some evening, won't you, David?"

"I'll be glad to," Margo said. "But you see, I— that is—"

"Forget your responsibilities for just one evening," Margo said. "Go with me. I can't go alone, and getting awfully bored. Please, David."

David looked down into Margo's upturned face.

"How lovely her eyes were," that and that inviting mouth. And she wanted him to go dancing with her. And what was more, he wanted to go with her. Maybe he ought to start trying to get a job in the office and colorful memories for his old days.

"All right," he said finally. "We'll see about it."

"I'll be waiting to hear from you," Margo said, her voice soft and thrilling. "Give me a buzz."

"Sure," said David. And he had that all-gone feeling down inside him, the same feeling he had experienced the day when Margo had nearly smashed their cars. "I'll have to go now," he said.

"Bye, Margo," David said, liking the warm pressure of the girl's slender fingers. "Thanks for having me."

"He ran down the steps, and got into the car with a little of dropping in on us," said the old man. "You must get into the habit of dropping in on us," said the old man.

"Yes, sir," said David.

"You must bring Polly Jenkins up some evening. We can have some bridge. It's a better bridge than I want to see. But I'll be glad to see you."

"Yes, sir," said David. "I'll do that, Polly's a pretty good company."

"The car moved off. David tried to relax. "Get some fun out of it," said Margo. "You know your father. While he and Polly went on living their colorful lives. But they loved each other. That made up for a lot of other things, made up for a lot of the fun other folks thought they had missed."

"More trouble"

"Thoughts of Polly reminded him of the fact that she had something to tell him. He found himself growing more and more anxious to know what it was. He was glad when the girl's work was over, glad when she came to the door, glad when she dishes and putting them away, so that he could go over to the Jenkins cottage.

"Want to come along with me, Peter?" said Margo. "I'll be glad to see you."

"No, thank you, Cousin David," said Peter. "I don't think Aunt Susan likes boys very much. She always makes me feel like I was sort of out of a nutcase."

"You mustn't feel that way, Peter," David said. "You see, Aunt Susan's never come into contact with boys before. She doesn't know that how to treat them."

"Anyway, I'm going to stay at home," said Peter. "I got a book from the library today, and I want to read it."

"What sort of book?" David asked.

"It's about a family that went to live on a broken-down farm," said Peter. "Miss Smith, the librarian, said it was written especially for young folks. And if I should like to read it, Cousin David, I mean, about fixing up the farm."

"I see," said David. He gave Peter a quick hug. "You're all right, Peter. Go on, your Cousin David is here. He went out to the porch. 'Mustn't stay up late reading.'"

"Trouble with me, I always get sleepy when I try to read," said David.

"That's my trouble, too," he said. "Don't let it worry you."

Polly was sitting on the steps when David reached the Jenkins cottage. Aunt Susan was sitting there, feeling any too well, and had gone to bed as soon as the evening meal was over.

"Well, Sweetness," David said, "I'm home. What's on your mind?"

"I've lost my job," said Polly. "There I was, out there, and I had been

Modern Woman Wears Clothes To Bewitch, Not Bewilder, Man

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—American women this spring will try to bewitch men—not bother or bewilder them.

Such was the picture of American designers' spring styles at the House of Fashion Fashion Fair, given with a great flourish last week at a $15 (thousand) supper to celebrate New York's achievements as the current fashion center of the world.

The biggest news of the last few runways, where 500 ensembles from the output of 200 designers, introduced, was an apparent attempt to please rather than amaze and alarm the masculine taste.

Other highlights were capes nearly threatening to crowd spring coats from the picture; a more feminine shoulder, sloped, draped and longer, more padded; a great amount of green—vibrant green, solid green, yellow, pine and greenish green—many off-white, blue and light brown shades—calico, sandstone, brownstone, cement and velveteen for anytime; a great South American influence; many suits, with full-length coats or capes; many full-skirted, glamorous evening dresses; and, as an audience was still slender and perhaps slightly lower. Skirt lengths were about the same.

A major development was the ultra-sophisticated use of knit fashions for evening.

EMPLOYMENT UNIT AID IN DEFENSE

Vocational Survey Will Be Conducted, Head Announces

Requests have been received by the Twin Falls office of the Idaho state employment service for a survey to determine the number of persons available in this section to serve as instructors in vocational subjects related to the national defense program, according to W. George Williams, office manager.

Manager Williams pointed out that occupations of drafted business men include welders, machinists and sheet metal men. Those selected will be trained in schools to be conducted by the federal government. At least five years experience is required on the part of those registering at the office.

Defense efforts have also brought increased activities in other fields at the local office, as clearance cards have been received for iron shop, holtermaking, iron workers shop, layout men, holtermaking, sheet metal men, structural steel.

Authorization has also been received to take applications for those interested in enrolling in refresher course in various occupations. These occupations include auto mechanics, blacksmith, carpenter, building and mill work, foundry-job, gas and diesel, machinist, pattern maker (wood) and sheet metal and welds, etc.

These "refresher" courses, lasting from six to 10 weeks, are not vocational and are for men who have been skilled in the type of work they accept. Training will be conducted at Pocatello, Nampa, Mcgregor and Weiser. Men enrolling must be able to finance themselves during the instruction period.

Leaders Named For Countywide March of Dimes

With the "March of the Dimes" phase of the 1941 campaign against infantile paralysis scheduled to hit its stride by the middle of this week, Lionel T. Campbell, county chairman, announces community chairman who will aid in the drive.

They are: Twin Falls, Mrs. John Deary; Blaine, C. D. Boyer; Piller, Gilbert Smith (tentative); Murrah, Mrs. Howard Harris; Crockett, Fred, Rev. G. M. Baergen; Kimberly, R. H. Denton; Clover, Rev. Walter E. Dannerstedt; Hansen, Mrs. Marie Crockett.

Other chairmen will be named in the near future for Hoagland and Rogerson.

A large dance and smaller social affairs are planned. Twin Falls and various other types of entertainances are planned in other communities, including card parties and athletic events.

"A schedule of broadcasts arranged by the national committee shows that the following programs will be offered:
