OFFICIALS PROBE KRIVITSKY DEATH

Samuel Clineberg, which Krivitsky once told a congressional inquiry was his real name, Clineberg has been found in a hotel room near the national capital, part of his identification card was missing. The coroner had listed the cause as suicide.

But J. B. Matthews, research director of the house committee on un-American activities, before whom Krivitsky had appeared to discuss Russia's espionage system, viewed and body and exclaimed: "This is fantastic and unbelievable. Krivitsky always feared that the OGPU would get him. He once told me: 'They'll get me sure as hell. The OGPU is going to assassinate me today and I'll be dead, don't ever believe that I committed suicide.'"

Detective Sergeant Dewey Cunniff, who is investigating the death, said that he had seen Krivitsky after knocking repeatedly on the door without receiving an answer, the door opened with a man who looked like Clineberg on the bed, partly dressed. There was no sign of a struggle.

Two notes were found nearby. One was in English and the other addressed to Waldman, New York attorney, who claimed that Krivitsky was his client.

Blames Secret Police
Waldman, before departing from New York for Washington to demand a full investigation, had said: "There is no doubt in my mind that this is the work of the OGPU (Russian secret police)."

Inspector Bernard Thompson of the Washington police said issuance of the suicide certificate would mean the case was regarded as closed.

"On the face of it," he said, "it looks like suicide, but we are not making up any possibilities. We are working on all the angles, although every bit of physical evidence points to a suicide."

Thompson declined to release the contents of the two notes at this time. He said the Russian had been translated, he said, and was being studied.

Thompson said he had been before the Dies committee on un-American activities in October, 1938. Before a "wide-spread" investigation, he declared that "undoubtedly" there would be secret agents among the United States army and navy.

His official connection with Russia in 1937, he said, was broken by Stalin over the purge of that year.

While in Russia through an interpreter, he declared that 35,000 members of the Russian Red army officers were "detained" by Stalin in 1937, that 300,000 or 400,000 of the soldiers were called to imprisoned and "millions" interned in concentration camps.

Soothing Syrup

By NORMAN CHANDLER

Chairman, Newspaper Publishers Committee

MAKE no mistake about it—it isn't necessary to have accurate news. It isn't always even pleasant.

But accurate news is necessary if you want to live in a democracy. If you are content to have a government do all your thinking and all your governing for you, then it is quite all right for your newspapers to tell you pleasant little nothings, to soothe you, flatter you, deceive you.

For instance, the newspapers in any totalitarian state give their readers glowing tales of the goodness and righteousness of the "Leaders," and paint horror pictures of "those stupid people in America who try to govern themselves!" This pleases their masses—and satisfies them.

And the totalitarian press also decides what businesses are to be allowed to exist. If you were a merchant in such a country, you would be told, perhaps, that this Tuesday was Fish Soup Day. No matter how much you might like to offer beef stew to your customers, you must advertise fish soup.

FISH SOUP DAY

that fish soup was lacking vitamins or short on calories and not worth as much per can as beef stew. The dictators would decide such questions.

Maybe a few Americans would be content to live under such a system. But most of us wouldn't.

We want our news raw. We want it real. We want it uncensored. We want our advertising to tell the truth and to hit hard. We want the best man to win at elections and the best product to get the customers.

As long as we keep on wanting these things—keep on demanding them—there's no danger of losing our freedom. We may back the wrong candidate, pass the wrong law or buy the wrong brand of overalls once in a while, but as long as we have the right to criticize and to compete, the right to have the truth even when it hurts, we'll have some sort of democracy.

And only when we become such moral cowards that we prefer soothing syrup to straight-from-the-shoulder reporting will we see our newspapers edited by the head of a government bureau and supported by subsidy.

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, composed of over 350 leading American newspapers, publishes this column gratuitously each week. The forces which unite these newspapers in their recognition of their responsibility to you, the reader.

FORD DEFEATED IN LEGAL ACTION

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Order to Re-instate Employees

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The supreme court refused to take a hand today in controversy between the Ford Motor company and the labor board, with the result that the company apparently must reinstate 23 employees, although it declared for union activity.

The court, in two decisions, also clarified the legality of anti-picketing injunctions. It held that picketing activities may be enjoined if they are not violent, merely because the pickets were not employed at the place they were picketing.

Although the court, as usual in such matters, gave no reason for its refusal to review the Ford case, it has said in several decisions that the courts are not to substitute their judgment for that of administrative agencies and that labor orders must be upheld so long as they are based on substantial evidence.

In other labor decisions, the Ford company, whose labor policies have led to the demand from some quarters that it be declared government defense contractor, was held responsible by the board for deaths on persons distributing union leaflets at its River Rouge plant near Detroit in 1933.

A circuit court of appeals in Cincinnati upheld the board's order that the company reinstate 23 employees with back pay, and that it cease alleged interference with collective bargaining efforts. The company had contended that the men were discharged for poor workmanship or misconduct.

The picketing cases, both involving unions in Chicago, found the National Labor Relations board with Justice Frankfurter writing the majority of opinions. They were decided today.

In a suggestion restraining an AFL balustrade and contending that unions from picketing the Boca W. Swing beauty parlor, was held an unconstitutional interference with freedom of speech. The proprietor of the parlor said the picketing started after his 15 women employees refused to join the union and he declined to compel them to do so.

DEATH SUMMONS FORMER SENATOR

Final Tribute Arranged at Salt Lake City for Reed Smoot

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP) Reed Smoot died today in death to his native Utah today.

The body of the 73-year-old former United States senator and veteran Latter-day Saints church leader, accompanied by his widow and stepson, left St. Petersburg by train at 1 p. m. (EST) and was expected to reach Salt Lake City Thursday.

The co-author of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, Smoot died of heart failure at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he had spent the last year of his life in Utah last year.

Funeral services will be held at Salt Lake City, at a time and place to be announced.

At the Utah capital it was announced the funeral rites would be conducted in the LDS tabernacle, probably Friday, with burial in the city cemetery.

Smoot, who died in the legislature from 1903 to 1933, was regarded as an expert on tariffs, taxation and public utilities. He was a member of the Republican national committee.

He also was high in councils of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints. His position as one of the twelve apostles of the church resulted in a contest of his first election as senator, but he was elected after a lengthy campaign.

Opponents contended his early unpopularity in the church, but Smoot contended, however, that there was nothing in his record in the church that superseded his obligations as a United States senator.

BIRTH OF AN IMMORTAL FORCE. Ninety-four years ago, in the little town of Milan, Ohio, an immortal force was born.

Edison will live forever? Because the force created by Thomas Edison is forever growing. The tremendous goal it is doing the entire world multiplies time and again as the years roll by.

If Edison did nothing more than usher in the era of electricity, the world would owe him a tremendous debt of gratitude, but he did more than that.

Edison was a direct worker. All his life this force he personified and gave to the world labored not for Thomas Edison, but for the world.

Today is Edison's birthday. He did not found a nation nor save one from destruction, but Thomas Edison takes his place beside America's greatest industrial nation on the face of the earth.

The bargaining is not served by union expansion through the type of coercive tactics that have been used in the past.

The logic is unassailable, even if, as argued by the opponents, it would not consider the economic and sociological reasons why a jurisdictional strike is bad.

Whether congress intended to extend such immunity, as maintained by the majority opinion of the court, is beside the point.

Coming at this time the decision places upon labor leadership an obligation such as it has seldom, if ever, before had to assume.

FARM INSTITUTE HEARS SPEAKERS

Two-Day Grange-Sponsored Program for County's Farmers

FILED, Feb. 10. An inspiring address by the Hon. William H. Clegg, U. S. Senator, was the first of a series of addresses on importance of the American home and agriculture of the cultural specific closed today's program of the Grange-sponsored two-day Farmers' Institute.

Men's meetings are being conducted at the Fairgrounds and these will be the first Grange held. H. L. Spencer, extension agronomist and state seed commissioner, and H. W. E. Larson, extension soils specialist, spoke on commercial fertilizers and their use.

Sponsored by the Twin Falls County Pomona Grange with extension service, the session included meetings for both men and women, starting at 10 a. m. The women's meeting will open at the same time, with Mrs. Moore, extension poultry specialist, as first speaker for the joint men and women's session.

Stressing that "the American home is the foundation of everything America represents," Mr. Clegg, speaking before the women's meeting, declared that "there is no reproduction when people in the world are starving."

Mr. Clegg treated the value of the American home and the woman with the ability to utilize with economy what she has," continued the speaker.

She counseled that Americans "look the world square in the face and have faith in God" for "no country has ever left God out of the picture and reached this stage of civilization. It is our duty to acknowledge that we are facing a critical period here in the United States and we have the courage to face it," she said.

Talks Hybrid Corn
Speaker Spencer, appearing before the men's meeting, said hybrid corn, called heterozygous corn, is superior to Twin Falls county, and outyields the open pollinated strains. Before choosing the cross, he stressed the importance of the reliability of the seed, he added.

He suggested acreage of white clover be increased because Poland and the Balkans are unable to supply us. At one time Twin Falls county produced most of the Lullin white clover grown in the United States, according to Mr. Spencer. Two new varieties of red clover, called Michigan and Cumberland, give possibilities for extended market as green hay crops. Corn for silage is best adapted for resistance to the disease, anthracnose.

Hear of Fertilizers
Professor Larson spoke upon "Commercial Fertilizers and Their Effect on Crops and Soil." He discussed the functions of phosphatic and its effect on crops. The suggested application rates for phosphatic and ammonium sulphate for lower rates. For the best results, he recommended triple superphosphate or Annonka. He suggested phosphatic sweet clover with spring grain or corn to plow under in the fall, using scarified seed so that it will germinate and not interfere with the coming crop. "If phosphatic is used to fertilize the soil, it will be necessary to follow, like beets and potatoes, will not need additional phosphatic," said Professor Larson.

SCS Head Speaks
R. N. Irving, coordinator of the soil conservation service in Idaho, spoke this morning on the importance and value of soil conservation and showed colored slides of the nation's capital, Idaho scenes of lumber, grain and cattle industries of Idaho, as well as irrigation scenes and pictures of the losses at top soil due to erosion particularly sheet and gully erosion.

He stressed the loss of $1,000,000,000 due to loss of top soil, saying that nearly one-half of the top soil in the United States has been washed away. Pictures showed methods used in Idaho to combat this condition. Conservation districts have been established throughout the state to cooperate with farmers and various agencies. In 1929 experimental farms were established and in 1933 demonstration projects were organized, he added.

Rutler Appears
Dr. A. K. Rutler, inspector in charge of the bureau of animal industry in Idaho, discussed "Live-Stock Diseases and Their Control." He gave a complete analysis of the Bangs disease and its control. During the past two years rapid progress has been made in elimination of this disease by treatment of 1000 head of cattle for group treatment. Although $40,000 was appropriated by the legislature for such $20,000 more is needed. Previously the federal government had paid all expenses of extermination and highway to stock owners, until, because of shortage of laws, state appropriations had to be made to meet federal appropriations. He spoke briefly on sheep, sickness of horses, and mules, swamp fever, tuberculosis of cattle, foot-and-mouth disease, and other new diseases in Idaho.

Miller Speaks
Addressing the women's meeting, Mrs. Mary Ann Reber, supervisor of nurses in the South Central District Health unit, discussed "The History of Public Health in the United States."

Burley Will Send Fifteen for Draft
BURLEY, Feb. 10.—Thrift club for men was recalled here this week by A. K. Gilchrist, clerk of the local draft board and 15 men will leave Feb. 10.

Since Oct. 15, there have been 50 volunteers in Chautau county, according to Mr. Gilchrist.

THIEVES PILFER PARKED MOTORS

Stolen Property Dropped in One Machine While Looting

Auto thieves accumulated a wide variety of loot over the weekend, and in one case they left an article stolen in one car in another machine they were pilfering.

This occurred Sunday night, according to a call from the Nazarene church, in front of which the car was standing when entered. The thief or thieves took an aluminum roster from the rear, and while prowling through the machine dropped a steering wheel cover, apparently taken from another auto.

Wesley Scott, 217 Third avenue east, reported a somewhat similar experience as his car was entered twice in one week, with the thief or thieves breaking the windshield and taking side curtains from the machine.

Tires, Wheels Taken
Theft of a U. S. Royal tire and wheel from his car while it was parked at the corner of Second street east and Third avenue was reported by Harry Capps, route 3, Twin Falls. The machine from which the property was stolen Saturday night was a 1940 Chrysler.

Carl J. Smith, 121 Lincoln, reported disappearance of a Goodyear tire and wheel also a wheel from his blue 1941 DeSoto, Thursday or Friday night.
