COUNCIL TO AID MAGICIANS CLUB IN CITY CLEANUP

Cooperation Voted For Plans For Spring Renovation Of Twin Falls.

The Twin Falls city council voted yesterday to cooperate in a city-wide clean-up campaign sponsored by the Magicians club, organization of local魔术师, which Bob Scott and his club will participate. An appropriation was voted for purchase of materials for the clean-up, the scour trap making the best record in the campaign, following the one used by the city of Murray, Utah, Bob Scott, who was interviewed by a committee from the sponsoring Magicians club, said. The details of the clean-up were outlined, but the council expressed unanimous approval.

The resignation of Alex W. Murray, Twin Falls plumbing inspector, submitted several weeks ago, was accepted by the council, and Harold William Morris, city engineer, was appointed to succeed Murray in the office.

A delegation of Twin Falls citizens appeared before the council to indicate their support of a proposed amendment to the city ordinance, providing for tests of cattle from which the city's milk supply is derived, to prevent any possibility of spread of undulant fever infection. The amendment was adopted.

The measure will go into effect soon, however, so that they might be given sufficient time to meet the demands of the ordinance.

The measure has passed its second reading, but no date for placing it on the ballot has been set.

The council passed, subject to the approval of the building inspector, a construction permit for modeling and construction of an addition to her residence at 422 Fourth avenue east.

LARGELY ATTENDED TRIBUTE IS GIVEN

"There are the dead that die in the Lord from beneath," said the spirit, "for they rest from all their labors and their works follow me." So spoke the Rev. H. E. Temple Starkey, namesake for Mrs. Frank Starkey, his pastor, in his homily at the impressive funeral service delivered by Rev. E. Temple Starkey for Mrs. Starkey, his pastor. His loyalty and devotion to high Christian ideals were emphasized by Rev. Starkey, who said that Mrs. Starkey, the first church, in which Mrs. Starkey was an active worker during the past 10 years' residence in Twin Falls.

"My Jesus, I Love Thee," and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" sung to the tune of "Morning Has Broken" were the choirs.

Palbearers were Frank Dawson, Ord. H. H. Heaton, Frank Boughton and Stanley Goff.

Mrs. Bellverine, wife of Frank Starkey, was in charge of the services.

Services were held Saturday morning following several months' illness.

NEXT WEEK'S EVENT

The third annual Free Cooking School to be conducted in Twin Falls Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week by the Idaho Evening Times will attract literally thousands of women intent on improving their ability as homemakers, and as kitchen managers.

Certainly the most prosaic man will not deny that food of late has taken on new significance. It's a safe choice has much to do with the family's health, and its attractiveness is equally important in keeping even the keel of domestic felicity!

Right here in Twin Falls there has of late years been given a new impetus to food and grocery shopping. Where now the newspapers are replete with advertising news about where and how and when to shop and at what prices, a decade ago these same newspapers perhaps only carried grocerymen's announcements reading "stable and fancy groceries, and cured meats."

Nineteen thirty-one is the day of appetizing food, prepared menus, electric refrigeration, baker's bread, electric stoves and sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, and the ultra-modern in everything from linoleum to dishes.

In a desire to do its part toward making the Happy Kitchen happier, the Evening Times in conjunction with numerous dealers in all lines is conducting this school next week so that women of the community will be apprised of the facilities at their command in homemaking, to familiarize them with the newest accomplishments in food preparation, and serving and the new economies which may be effected.

The school will be conducted for the benefit of the average housewife and what is important—it is free. You and your club members and friends are invited for each and every day of the school.

THE GREATEST AUTHORS

ONE of the best ways to start a fine argument is to make up a short list of the best American novels. No matter what books you select, there will always be plenty of people to disagree with you; and since there is no way of proving or disproving your correctness, the argument can go on and on as long as anybody feels like arguing.

John Galsworthy, who is surely one of the greatest living novelists, recently named what he considers the four greatest American novels. He selected "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," by Mark Twain; "The Scarlet Letter," by Hawthorne, and "McTeague" by Frank Norris.

Now we can sit back and wait for the various critics to fall upon him and tell him where he is in error. In the meantime, Mr. Galsworthy's list is interesting on its own account.

Probably the most notable thing about it is that it overlooks the great writers of the present day. Hawthorne belongs far back in an earlier, almost forgotten generation. The present generation usually lists him with the great unread. Mark Twain, likewise, although far from being ignored today, represents a vanished era. Only Norris comes close to the present, and even he concerned himself with the San Francisco of the 'nineties.

But where are the writers of today—those writers whom earnest critics exalt mightily, as if they and only they, among all Americans, had been permitted to see the true inwardness of things? Where are the great exponents of frankness, the sober weighers of tragedy, the acidulous critics of American hypocrisy and immaturity?

Where, to be specific, are Messrs. Lewis, Dreiser and Cabell? Mr. Galsworthy seems to have ignored them. Above "Babbitt" and "The Genius" and "Jungen" he places a simple tale of colonial New England, two romances of the pre-war Mississippi and a story of Polk street in San Francisco at the turn of the century.

Naturally, there is nothing final about Mr. Galsworthy's selections. There are plenty of qualified judges who are convinced that Mr. Dreiser and Mr. Lewis have more to say to us than had Mark Twain and Hawthorne. But the English novelist's list at least serves to remind us that American literature was not born after the World War.

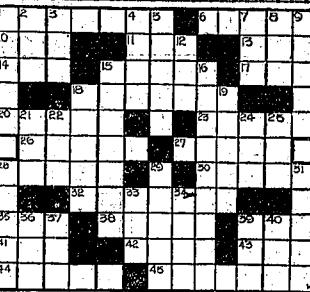

There were able writers in the land before most of the present-day reading public were born; and it is just possible that some writers of the present generation have been praised a trifle more generously than they deserve.

DO WE NEED A THIRD PARTY?

SOME of the most brilliant thinkers along political lines have declared recently that the United States needs a third political party. They assert that new ideas and ideals are needed, that a new outlook backed by platforms radically changed from those of the old line parties is necessary. That is a matter for debate.

That such a tendency is finding favor in some sections, especially in local elections, seems apparent. Grouping for a way to solve their problems, many politically-minded individuals have broken away from the old parties and have succeeded in nominating and electing what may best be described as independent candidates. It is not at all unusual to find independent
