SCIENCE OF PARENTHOOD

PARENTHOOD, says Helen Hayes, attractive and talented actress, ought to be a separate profession, attempted only after thorough and compulsory training.

Miss Hayes, who in private life is the wife of Charles MacArthur, has a child of her own—a 14-month-old daughter. She says:

"I would not think of caring for her myself without specialized study. All her life she has been under the care of a competent nurse. I know many mothers will criticize me, arguing that only a mother can care for a child properly. That may be true for primitive women, but we have become so civilized that Mother Nature simply can't get to us."

Miss Hayes' statement probably will provoke a good deal of discussion—and, as she says, a good deal of criticism—but after all she is only bringing to a focus a feeling that has been widely current for a long time; a feeling that a great many children would actually be better off if they got less of the fumbling and inexpert maternal care of a mother and more of the trained and intelligent care of an intelligent nurse.

It is quite possible that she is right. Watching the way in which some mothers lug tiny babies to movies, amusement resorts and dances, one can only conclude that motherhood, by itself, does not always bring with it the good sense and helpful care that the job really requires.

Yet, for the ordinary mortal, such an argument is purely academic. The overwhelming majority of women will continue to do as their mothers and grandmothers have done all the way to Eve; they will bear children and rear them, whether they are especially qualified for the job or not, and in most cases the job will turn out better than the expert would dare predict.

For the human race seems to have an enormous capacity for muddling through. Very few of its actions are distinguished by arly very careful planning. There have always been currents in human life to make the judicious wonder what the world might be coming to, and there probably always will be. And yet—well, children have always been borne and reared by parents who had no training at all for the task, and they have grown to manhood and womanhood in fairly good style, and life has gone on, somehow, getting just a shade better and more intelligent with each century.

And that, probably, is the way it will continue to be. A few extra-lucky babies will get the expert care that Miss Hayes mentions. The vast majority of youngsters will grow up just as youngsters have always grown up; and, in one way and another, the results will average a lot better than anyone would expect.

THE KIDNAPERS

The kidnaper seems to have put on a, revival in American life during the past few years. Until comparatively recently, kidnapping was a comparatively rare crime; lately, however, one can hardly pick up a newspaper without reading of some citizen who has been abducted and held for ransom.

The cause probably traces directly back to the racketeering circles that have come into existence in the past decade. In Detroit, for example, the "strong-arm men" who were hired to guard gamblers got their heads together and organized a clique to kidnap the very men they were supposed to guard. In other cities the ranks of professional gunmen probably furnish many recruits for the kidnappers.

However, the problem is far from insoluble. Enterprising and courageous police work will nearly always break up Detroit proved that, about a year ago. Any other city can do the same. The kidnaper is a dangerous outlaw, but he does not occupy a very strong position.

R. E. Shepherd is urging farmers to "go easy" on potatoes and beans. Others warn against wheat and cotton. Eggs and butter are drugs on the market. If this keeps up, farmers will soon be reduced to raising cocklebur—Hailey Times.

A ban has been put on the "Prisoner's Song" at the state penitentiary, it is learned. By special permission of the copyright owners, the parody that is now heard includes the words "Lyda come back to us; we're lonesome and homesick for you." This from Warder Thomas.

The new pen warden in a statement Sunday says that what has to be done now is for officials to think twice as fast as Lyda. He is convinced, evidently, that she is a clever woman!

Mr. Thomas is invited to take a look in Lyda's cell tomorrow morning. Maybe she never got out, or perhaps she returned during the night! Who knows?

A contributor to the Idaho Statesman says he saw Seward cutting down the canal near that city Saturday with two sheets of fly paper for sails.

All of which reminds us of that old wheeze about locking the barn door after the horse is stolen.

Gleanings From the News

A Column Conducted

—by LELAND D. BELL

ROBERT P. SCHRIER, cultural director of the St. Louis-Hawaiian newspapers stands firm in the task of getting the news media to do better things for him. He has called upon the public to help him in his efforts, telling them that the type of news they receive is not good enough for a newspaper. McWhorter will introduce a bill in the legislature to increase the protective tariff you realize how good and everybody is at everything and everybody is doing well.

"There is room for improvement," he said.
