KICK IN' COMES TO IDAHO WITH CLARA BOW IN LEAD

Willard Mack's dramatic play, "Kick In," becomes punch-filled, vividly pictorialized in the new picture version opening Friday at the Idaho Theatre. In this picture Clara Bow, decked out in her flapper characteristics, stars for the first time as a woman who puts her charm against the forces of the underworld. She is a girl who loves from religion to a life of crime. Regis Toomey is a well-known character.

Willard Mack's keen sense of dramatic situation, as well as his ability to infuse any situation with human interest and suspense into any play, is evidenced in "Kick In."

"Kick In" presents a new and unforgettable Clara Bow as well as a new and important cast with their best work in the picture.

Showing for the last time today in the Paramount is the "Tarnished Lady" starring Tullio Carminati and Oliver Brooks.

ERIC VON STROHEIM WHISPERS AMPLIFIED

Eric von Stroheim has amplified five hundred pages of several scenes in "Three Faces East." Warner Brothers' Vitaphone production of the Eric von Stroheim classic is featured with Constance Bennett, now at the Roxy, the picture.

Although film sound engineers have pronounced von Stroheim's voice ideally suited for recording purposes, the untrained mother was unable to record it. As a result of scenes in which the star's voice is heard in a whisper, although the words are clearly enunciated, they were amplified five times to become clear and distinct for the screen.

"Three Faces East" is a dramatic mystery story of international spy system during the World War.

BACK TO THE FARM

The current issue of Golden Idaho and Idaho Motorist, published at Boise under the editorial supervision of Norman B. Atkinson, in its current issue, which is the annual tourist number, not only is quite the most elaborate edition of a magazine ever gotten out in the Gem State, but from the standpoint of content in its 48 pages, impresses itself as a thoroughly worthwhile and substantial publication.

As an example of its mission and purpose, is one of its stimulating editorial comments, particularly pertinent right at this season in this section. Speaking of the interesting and absorbing subject: "Back to the Farm" the magazine says:

One of the most hopeful signs of a stabilized economic condition throughout the country is the decided trend toward making farms into happy and prosperous homes. Too long has there been a feeling that farmers were "picks" with milk on their boots; uneducated "Rubes" exhaling the aroma of stables. The city born who have never known the glorious freedom of country life, never sensed and loved exhilarating dawns and colorful sunsets; never experienced the great adventures in planting and reaping—these have encouraged and fed upon the wrong impressions of farm life. Therefore it was not surprising that few boys and girls desired to become integral parts of farm life and flocked to large cities. This was one of the causes of the present economic crisis.

Now with better schools in the country, better roads, better transportation, the farmer and his family may have all the benefits of city life without giving up their freedom; without the smoke, the grime, the noise, the social problems of congested population. With diversified farming he becomes independent. In more recent years the extension of electric lines into rural communities has done more to make the farmer satisfied than perhaps any other one factor. The overwhelming burden of hand work has been removed to a great extent from the farmer and his son, from the mother and her daughter. Overhead expense has been cut down, conveniences have been made possible, and much drudgery has been banished. Better homes have been made; clubs established; gardens grown up and there is more time for making agriculture a science, rather than a guess and a gamble.

Now a farmer keeps in touch with the market through newspapers, radio, magazines and his agricultural agents. His sons are studying soil chemistry and drainage problems instead of laying worm rail fences. Methods in building a fine dairy herd or a superior strain of swine, sheep, poultry or clover, are worthy of the best brains of the nation and attract the attention of farmers, not parasites. The farm is becoming a stable institution, not a place to make some money and then a stepping-stone to a city. Farming becomes a profession. Farmers become law-makers and governors of the state. Why go to town?

Therefore farms are being made into homes, permanent and beautiful, scientific and challenging, restful and inspirational. Blase city-dwellers are turning to the farm for seclusion from toil, where they can have a part in creating, building and making—where they can glory in the alchemy of sunlight, soil and showers—where they form a partnership with Nature herself.

Many farm-born men and women are going back home to the farm once more and in this great back-wash of a nation, may we find one of the first great steps toward stabilizing economic tendencies of today and tomorrow.

FEDERAL PARTRALISM

A TENDENCY in government, regarded by many as dangerous, is now claiming the attention of those interested in public affairs. It is the gradual development of federal paternalism with a consequent diminution of power of the states. It is a medieval idea, detrimental to both national and state governments.

Already it has been proposed that the federal government collect most of the taxes and return part of them to the several states. Only recently the federal authorities have stepped into the Chicago picture, to punish gangsters who have laughed at city and state officials. There are pleadings for federal aid in this of that.

The idea of a strong central government is sound. But if it becomes so strong that it destroys the initiative and self-reliance of the states, there is danger ahead. Calvin Coolidge warned of the tendency seven years ago. He who doesn't clean up his own backyard isn't likely to care much about how the public street looks. So it is with the states.

A happy day Saturday is deserving of the attention of the public in general. The event is significant, and the cause of disabled veterans is most worthy. But a happy day all alone!

Gleanings From the News

A Column Conducted
By LELAND D. BELL.

QUOTATIONS.—"Chances are, before we can solve the problem of crime we must know the difference between the drunk and the sober," said Professor Alton R. King of the University of Southern California. Professor King says if they realize they are intoxicated, but the drunk driver is stupefied, he says, "it is impulsive. It is the man who drives enough to snare his flagrant companion who is to be feared on the highway," said Bell.

THE LIGHT LIQUOR drinker is a greater menace in traffic than the drunkard, says Professor Alton R. King of the University of Southern California. Professor King says if they realize they are intoxicated, but the drunk driver is stupefied, he says, "it is impulsive. It is the man who drives enough to snare his flagrant companion who is to be feared on the highway," said Bell.

TOM SHAKLEY, the old-time racing driver, 48 years old, a handymen of the literate horse racing track at Kansas City, Missouri, has been granted a lifetime免 from racing. He is kept about 100 miles away from the track to drive, says Tom, "so we won't get him into action recently. Shaky thinks Jim Jeffries, who has just come to take Dempsey, Tunney, Sharkey and Schindler to the boxing ring and beat them up, is a good fellow." Tom says, "I am not afraid to fight him in an age of soft men."

THAT'S ALL.—An additional sad note in the death of Charles W. (Speed) Hinman, who was killed in a car accident, for a crew of aviation students, less than two hours before Hinman's oil company met him in a head-on collision with a truck in Managua on the telephone. "Very, very painful," says Jim Jeffries, "but I am glad he got out of the car alive."
