YANKEES APPEAR THREAT TO RULE OF PHILADELPHIA

New York Has Abundance
Of Good Players for Coming Season

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (UPI) — The New York Yankees threaten to end the three-year reign of the Philadelphia Athletics during the 1932 season.

At the close of the 1931 season, the Yankees were given the ball in a slugfest, and the present outlook is that New York will be still stronger the coming season.

The Yankees have a problem, however, in that they are including 17 youngsters, the largest group of new talent added to any club. The Yankees seem to have more pitching than there is anyone around, and there is ample room in the Yankees' weak fielding. Right-handed pitcher would be the best buy, but with a major league possibilities.

The Yankees' infield of Gehrig, Lazzeri, Lary and J. W. Sennett has been as the strongest defense in the league, but the two young ones have not been up to scratch in 1931. As regulars in 1932, they are Jack Saltzinger, second baseman from St. Paul, and Frank Crosetti, shortstop from San Francisco. Saltzinger, who batted .310, was rated as the best fielder in the American association last year. Crosetti, who batted .291, was the Yankees' third best. The Yankees' pitchers when no one is available, 244 and led the Pacific coast league in runs scored with 141. Saltzinger is 27 and Crosetti 21. If Crosetti is good, Lyn Lary is likely to move to third in place of Saltzinger.

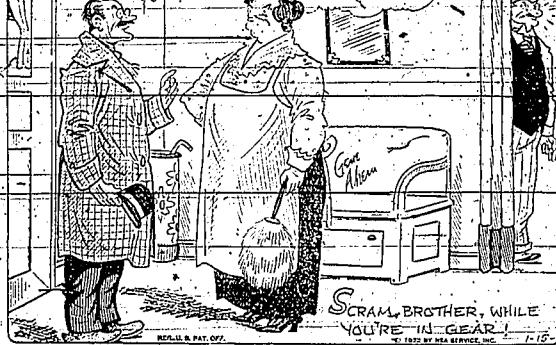

Babe Ruth, beginning his ninth season in the majors, has shown a decided improvement in 1931, although he may not cover as much ground in the outfield as he did a few years back. Earle Combs, center field, and Red Chapman, left field, are the makings, in left, round out a great outfield. In reserve, the Yankees have Slim Williams, Dally Cook, and Eddie Haas. Newcomers include batted .353 for Toronto last year and George Seltzir, who batted .324 for Jersey City.

The Yankees' probable lineup includes:

Player	Bat. Av.
Gehrige	.341
Saltzinger	.340
Crosetti	.291
Chapman	.286
Combs	.315
Ruth	.324
Dickey	.327

INDIA'S REBELLION

It is quite evident that the British are approaching a final showdown in India. Gandhi lies in jail, and exceedingly strict repressive measures have been put into force by the English government. New troops are on the way, and the All-India National Congress and its affiliates have been outlawed.

Apparently, the British have embarked on a kill or cure program. Either they will thoroughly stamp out the fitfully burning independence movement, or they will lose out entirely and Mr. Gandhi's aims will be realized. After years of talk, decisive and violent action is about to begin.

The whole civilized world will await the outcome with keen interest. On the surface, the odds are overwhelmingly in favor of the British. But Gandhi wields a power that cannot accurately be measured in advance. If his foes make the mistake of underestimating it they will have ample reason to regret it.

THE HISTORIC PANTHER

THE papers printed an unusually interesting little picture the other day—a photograph from a German shipyard, showing workers dismantling the ancient German gunboat Panther.

Intrinsically the Panther was just another gunboat. But historians will always remember it; for the Panther, through the machinations of international diplomacy, almost started the World War three years ahead of time.

In 1911 there was revolt in Morocco, where the French claimed to exercise a special sphere of influence. At the height of the trouble the Panther dropped anchor in the harbor of Agadir to protect German interests—and caused such a fluttering in European chancelleries that only prompt and energetic action by England prevented the war from starting then and there.

Now, obsolete and rusty, the Panther is being broken up. Few people recognize the name; but for a few days, 20 years ago, it was the most famous warship on earth.

ON BORAH

(William J. Abbott in Christian Science Monitor)

SENATOR-BORAH contributed to the peace and good will of the Christmastide the assertion that the United States "ought to come out of Europe and stay out." The senator has long been an advocate of recognition of Russia, and one wonders whether the application to the rest of Europe of the rule of non-intercourse which the state department now applies to the Soviet republic would satisfy him.

I have all possible reverence for "elder statesmen," with whom Mr. Borah by virtue of his 24 years in the Senate is certainly to be classed. But I question whether they always keep up with the evident and irresistible course of public affairs. Nothing can be more certain than that it is as impossible for the United States to get out and stay out of Europe, as it would be impossible for Russia to endure always as a self-governed national voluntary outpost from international society. For, more, and more international agreements are coming to be looked upon as the only practicable method of solving questions which 40 years ago were looked upon as matters of purely domestic concern.

It is obvious that the disorganized state of the currency in many nations is going to face an international monetary conference. Senator Cordell Hull has just offered the highly intelligent suggestion that an international conference on tariffs will be necessary to accomplish a general reduction of excessive tariffs, as nearly as possible simultaneously by the various nations. The world disarmament conference, in which the United States is to take a leading part, is, of course, scheduled for Geneva in February. An international conference on debts and reparations is called for The Hague in January. Shall the United States be represented? Is it wise finance for the chief creditor to be absent from such a debtors' debate? A list of international conferences held in the last year and those scheduled for 1932 would fill a column. In most of them the United States is represented officially or unofficially.

The panic with which Robinson-Cruise first contemplated the print of a human foot on the beach of the island which he had held for his own sole occupancy seems sometimes to be paralleled by the dread with which some elder statesmen contemplate the process by which the United States is being deprived of its historic isolation and made a participant in the worthy activities of the civilized world.

Hoover should nominate Baker to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy left by Justice Holmes. He might then eliminate a commanding political oppon-

"WOMEN WITH THE HOE" IN RUSSIA

"Men's work" is women's work, too, in Russia. Robust, sturdy peasant girls are strikingly pictured here, with shovels, rakes and hoes over their shoulders, as they toil in the fields at Mirninoevo, North Caucasus, for the day's toil. They're members of a "village commune."

"DULL" DAYS

Our Advertising Manager sends a little shopping-tip to Gentle Readers

You have noticed that on some days there is more advertising in your newspaper than on other days.

Friday, for instance, we carry many messages to help you with your over-Sunday shopping. Certain department stores have their favorite days for advertising certain merchandise.

But—here's the tip—on days when the paper seems "thinest," you sometimes discover the biggest bargains. It stands to reason that some advertisers prefer to run their announcements on days when the advertising columns are less crowded. And thus by looking sharp on the seemingly dull days you encounter surprises!

In fact, we don't think there's ever a time when one can draw an honest yawn and say "nothing in the paper today."

When it comes to advertising-news, there's nothing in the paper that one can afford to miss!
