BENEFIT FROM COLD

IT IS, as everyone who has read the old copy book maxims knows, an ill wind that blows nobody any good.

Expiring winter recently came to life and struck most of the middle west with a severe and extended dose of cold weather. This was unpleasant for practically everybody, and much more than that for a few.

But for the coal miners of Illinois it was a lucky break. More than 5000 miners got full-time jobs as a result of the sudden cold snap. The icy blasts that made other citizens mutter uncomplimentary things about the weather man meant full pay checks again for these men.

BRAINY CHILDREN

THE exceptionally brainy child is better-looking than other children and tends to be a good deal taller, stronger and heavier.

This is the conclusion reached by a survey made at Columbia University recently, where some 56 gifted youngsters were painstakingly examined.

Doubtless the Columbia experts could produce statistics to buttress their claim. But it is amazingly easy to think of famous men who must have been striking exceptions. There were, for instance, Steinmetz, the crippled dwarf; Lincoln, one of the ugliest men who ever lived; Stonewall Jackson, awkward, clumsy and almost grotesque; Roosevelt, sickly and puny; Napoleon, far below normal height; Lenin, thin and wizened—but why go on? The list could be a long one. The rule can hardly be an iron-clad one.

TRANSATLANTIC AIR MAIL

REVELATION before a Congressional committee that the backers of those proposed transoceanic dirigible lines are ready to spend $15,000,000. on giant airships if the United States will grant contract mail privileges indicates that the day of regular commercial aeronautical service beyond the seas is not far away.

By this time the big dirigibles have pretty clearly proven their reliability. And evidently a number of unemotional financiers have concluded that transoceanic dirigible service could be made dependable and safe enough to warrant investment of a huge sum of money.

That puts it up to Congress. The present may be a poor time to come seeking a mail subsidy for a new venture of this kind; but it is clear that the establishment of such air-lines is not very far away—if the plan fails this year, it will probably go through next year or the year after.

VON HINDENBURG

JUST 14 years ago the people of England, France and the United States were unanimous in hoping that the worst possible bad luck would accompany Paul von Hindenburg of Germany in anything he might attempt.

Today the people of these three countries are happy because this same Paul von Hindenburg has scored a great triumph.

A decade and a half ago success for their hopes depended on failure for Von Hindenburg.

Today they find the outlook for the world good deal brighter because of his success.

Nor has Hindenburg changed. He is much the same man today as he was in 1918—older, a little slower, perhaps, a little more weather-beaten, but essentially unaltered.

The whole world has changed. In 1918 Hindenburg stood for a cause that was threatening most of the things that western civilization prizes. Today he seems a stout bulwark against one of the severest threats western civilization will ever be called on to face.

Massed against him, in the recent German election, were men and forces that had no program to offer but destruction. A Fascist or Communist victory in the election might have meant a world-shaking catastrophe. Hindenburg stood for the sanity, the endurance, of the German people. His victory, whose final ratification in the run-off election seems assured, serves notice that Germany has not yet been driven to desperation.

And there is a heartening moral to be drawn from his personal triumph, too. His victory is proof that sheer force of character can count for more, in a tight place, than genius itself.

No one has ever claimed that Hindenburg is a great statesman. He is not an orator. He is not a clever politician. He is not apt, by a stroke of insight, to find a solution for Germany's problems overnight.

He is simply Hindenburg, a man who can be relied upon, come what may, to be faithful to his duty. That in the present crisis, is enough.
