Couzens Scoffs at Warner's Report on Stock Transactions

Committee Counsel Charges Harry Warner's Stock Deals Designed To Take Advantage of Public

WASHINGTON (UP) — Harry Warner, who learned the shoe-maker's trade at his father's bench as a boy, testified today before the stock market and securities committee that he had made in 1930 a profit of approximately $7,500,000 dealing on the stock of Warner Brothers, Inc., the motion picture company of which he is the head.

In a room with senators looking on at each other's faces, the representative of the famous brothers who turned the motion picture works into a fortune, defended the development of the stock deals as "ethical and sound."

Senators At Explanation Senator Couzens, Rep., Michigan, said he was not satisfied with this explanation.

William A. Gray, committee counsel charged that the profit had been $9,251,651.40 and that Warner's sales and purchases through dummy accounts and others had been designed to take advantage of a public policy.

Gray revealed that similar transactions in other motion picture stocks were under investigation and named Fox, M.G.M. and one of them.

The investigation steering committee met yesterday afternoon and testified. They decided to hold three more hearings—one a week until Congress adjourns. Plans have not been completed and the stocks to be investigated were not announced.

Gray revealed that the average price at which Warner sold 54 shares of Shastkin and company was $1 and the average purchase price was $2, asserting that they began selling in January 1930 and began buying back in August of that year.

Warner repeatedly denied knowledge of the alleged business, but the corporation, which owned the directors, which included the directors which had been $1 a share.

KREUGER AIDES APPEAR IN COURT

Commission to Superintendent of Affairs of Late 'Match King'

STOCKHOLM, (UP) — Special bankruptcy legislation is being prepared to safeguard interests of Kreuger and Toll creditors, the committee which recommended bankruptcy for the late interest.

The government was expected to appoint a bankruptcy commission to superintendent Kreuger and Toll affairs.

Four directors of Kreuger company were before the committee to police that Kreuger had summoned them in the "secret room" of the Stockholm mansion in which they "help themselves" from a table piled high with various stocks, reported in public that "charges" of adding Kreuger in his gigantic enterprises. Their hearing was continued for a fortnight.

The directors were Carl Lagergren, Sven Hult, Victor Holm, and Axel W. W. Gillis, who had been the accountant, Wendler, described by police as having a very important position in the transfer of stocks and accounts in the dummy companies which Kreuger had formed. A bookkeeper named Hennig is also under arrest.

Another recommendation of bankruptcy was made in the case of the late W. D. Gillis III at Home in Weiser, Ida.

COMMERCIAL GROUP ADOPTS PROGRAM

Members of Organization Elect Route Home From Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today were en route to their homes after the concluding session of government expenditures and taking firm stands on the controversial subject of military bonds, the federal farm bill, and self-puffing the equally controversial prohibition question.

Several "reformatory" expenditures were called for, but no definite action was taken. The resolution also called "elimination of unnecessary and questionable expenditures."

The prohibition question, mentioned in a group of "other resolutions" was referred to a representative committee to examine the whole subject and submit recommendations.

Abolition of provisions under the federal farm bond bought and sold commodities was asked. Increased federal aid for agriculture was recommended.

While it urged "general provision for all those who suffered disabilities because of their war service," the chamber took a firm stand against "speculators" under which men suffering no disabilities from war service are recipients of the same benefits.

The federal prevailing wage law was attacked as "inconsistent." The chamber asked that it not be extended.

Adjustment of Federal anti-trust laws to permit "saturation of the market" was called for. The committee also called for an international conference in an attempt to stabilize the market.

BANKERS POINT TO 'UNFOUNDED FEARS'

Big American Auto Companies Reported Stepping Up Production

LITTLE ROCK, (UP) — Editorial Editor (NEW YORK (UP) — Industrial leaders of banking and industrial circles to check direction by pumping credit into industrial channels during the past week.

Somehow disappointed with results of the federal reserve bank's easy money policy, New York bankers and industrialists have decided upon a unified plan for coping with the depression.

Through a group of six industrial and six bankers, concerted strength would be thrown into the bond market in contrast to the present tendency of bankers to operate independently.

To Small Business Men by group action it is expected that large savings credit reserves of the large banks will find their way into the hands of small business men.

Meanwhile, congressional and administration leaders continued to discuss measures for unemployment aid, the one receiving most approval being a wide-spread "conservation program" of "self-implication" public works.

Home Unfounded Fears Bankers continued to stress the fact that much of the current distress is caused by "unfounded fears." These include talk of suspension of the gold standard and rumors of railroad receiverships.

Actual business indices this week were not of a character to indicate any change in the outlook. Steel operations expanded to 25 per cent of capacity.

The automobile industry was obviously under the influence of curbed auto-purchasing power, but leading companies were stepping up production.

The oil industry continued a bright spot, leading many industrialists to believe that this line would be one of the first to show signs of the depression.

Foreign trade figures of April showed leading countries for April showed continuing contraction during April.

Amelia Earhart Putnam Lands in Ireland When Gasoline Gauge Breaks

LONDON (UP) — Amelia Earhart Putnam today became the first of her sex to make a solo flight of the Atlantic when she put her red monoplane down in a pasture at Culmore, near Londonderry, Ireland, after an adventurous flight from Harbor Grace, N. F.

By telephone from Londonderry, a city on the northern tip of Ireland and about 50 miles in from the coast line, she said she had been only 100 miles in from the coast line when she landed.

"I had to land in a pasture outside Londonderry. I am not hurt and I think the plane is all right."

According to the London Evening Standard, the first person to cross the Atlantic was the owner of the plane in which she landed.

"She took me to the airport," she said, "and I had only 100 miles in from the coast line when she landed."

"The Standard quoted Mr. Putnam as saying she would not fly again. I think I may come to Londonderry, Ireland, after an adventurous flight from Harbor Grace, N. F."

It would have taken four hours to return, however, so I thought I would be safe to go ahead. The next trouble was a leak in the gasoline tank. I was very close to the coast when the leak would have put me on the ground. To add to my troubles, the heavy weather encountered in the storm scattered my signal.

Despite both the engine and weather difficulties I knew I would be able to land safely. The plane landed in a few minutes. I checked the fuel gauge and found it empty.

I had to land in a pasture outside Londonderry. I am not hurt and I think the plane is all right."

"I was surprised to find that she would proceed to Londonderry. She revealed the hazards of the flight. A blizzard, completed, which she had come through, five weeks before she set off on her flight to Paris."

For about 10 hours she flew with the exhaust manifold of the engine burned out. She said she had a little gas. As the red monoplane turned out of the storm, she was in Ireland, she said that her gasoline gauge was broken. "Probably it has been broken for some time through which I flew down. There was lightning all about me. I was very close to the coast when she landed."

I decided to land," she said. "I was surprised to find that she would proceed to Londonderry. She revealed the hazards of the flight. A blizzard, completed, which she had come through, five weeks before she set off on her flight to Paris."

The full American woman, who has a husband and two children, Atlantic flight, appeared surprised by support after one of the most thrilling flying tests any woman ever attempted.

Almost immediately yesterday she received the news of the flight. She said she had been very nervous and was not prepared for the attempt. She mentioned that she had been in the air for 20 hours and was very tired.

Petrolle Wins Decision Over "Bat" Battalino in Bloody Ten-Round Fight

Judges and Referee Vote For Famous Fargo Express

By George Kirtley
United Press Staff Correspondent
FARGO, N. D., May 20.—(AP)—Billy Petrolle, one who has defeated "Bat" Battalino, but he can't make him quit.

At the end of 10 rounds of one of the bloodiest, most ferocious battles ever staged in the Chicago stadium, Fargole, N. D., Minn. Junior welterweight, was awarded the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges. Battalino's victory of two months ago in Madison Square Garden, each weighed 145.

Battalino, cut in four places about the face and head, his nose bled in his eyes and his face smeared with blood, was fighting the unmarked but tired Petrolle at the finish. From start to finish Battalino kept walking into Petrolle, taking his best hooks, jabs and crosses, without wavering.

The crowd of 10,000 watched the former featherweight champion lead with his head, take Petrolle's sharp lefts and rights, trade punch for punch and never wince under a barrage that might have felled any other fighter. The gross receipts were $21,000, of which each principal received about $7,000.

After the fight Battalino was carried to a hospital where three stitches were taken in his forehead, four in a gash in his head from a butt, three in a cut over the right eye, three in his forehead and three across the cheek on his nose.

Battalino, on the short end of betting odds, came near ending the fight in the first round when he dropped Petrolle with a left hook to the face. Petrolle hit the canvas and came near getting up on a short count but he looked at his corner as he came up to his feet at five and did not make into the count reached nine. Then, instead of continuing the fight, he backed away and wiped the blood from his eyes, getting another few seconds rest.

Near the end of the first round that Petrolle opened the blood, opened from the wound during the rest of the fight. In the fourth round Petrolle hit Battalino and opened a long gash above his temple. From this point on Battalino's face was a bloody map.

After with Battalino cut and bleeding, the fight never reached the one-sided stage. Battalino kept rattling the ropes and holding his own in frequent late-to-the-ring and even at times forcing Petrolle to retreat across the ring.

Watch some leading golfer play an iron and you will notice that the shaft is not directly at right angles to the direction line. The right shoe must not fall away from the backswing. If the right shoe is thrown backward instead of being kept on the line of the right foot, some golfers deliberately turn the right toe in toward the ball in the present position of the right foot. THE POT AND THE KETTLE THE newspapers of France have made the Lindbergh tragedy an occasion for reminding their readers that nothing that happens in the United States can be very surprising. They have been calling this country "the land where Capone is King," and have been asserting that it is "under the tyranny of redoubtable and impudent bandits."

SHADOW BOXING AT GENEVA The men who are attending the disarmament conference at Geneva seem to be having their troubles. United Press cables the other day reported that the delegates are utterly unable to agree on what caliber guns should be classified as "offensive" weapons.

Naturally, since there is such a divergence of views, the boys are having a hard time getting together. But they need not despair. Their efforts, after all, are not being wasted. For, in spite of themselves, they are demonstrating to the world how unutterably futile and worthless a disarmament conference can be if it is based, as this one is, on faulty foundations.

Suppose that complete and perfect agreement could be reached about the guns. What then? Would the possibility of future war be made one hair's breath more remote? Would the horrors of such a war be in the slightest degree lessened?
