Boos, Jeers, Cheers Echo Throughout Vast Stadium

By a vote of 681 to 172 the convention rejected the minority platform proposal, with permission to the American people of an unqualified question of repeal or retention.

For more than four hours the convention listened to platform planks, many and the 225 interpretations of an evidently wet gallery. Long after midnight the last speaker had his say.

Rivals' Blunders Continue to Aid New York Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Bill Terry is planning a monument to "unearned victory" as rivals' blunders continue to boost his New York Giants up through the National League ranks.

Yesterday, for example, an error in the eighth inning enabled the Terrycrunch to make five runs where none should have been scored, and down the Cubs, 5 to 3.

When an error, the Giants had retained the Brooklyn Dodgers in fourth place. They have won eight out of ten games under Terry's management.

Heavy hitting by former Brooklyn players, now with Cincinnati, enabled the Reds to down the Dodgers, 5 to 1, dropping Brooklyn to second division.

Pittsburgh trounced the second place Braves, 5 to 2.

The Phillies downed the Cardinals, 7 to 4 in a game called at the end of the sixth inning because of rain.

In the American league, Lou Gehrig's 14th home run in the second inning accounted for the New York Yankees' lone tally, as they lost to the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 1.

Washington and the Athletics continued in their second-place tussle. The Senators lost to Detroit, 7 to 6, and the A's lost to the St. Louis Browns, 9 to 3.

Chicago's Indians overhauled the Red Sox, 9 to 3, crushing the Sox with their 43rd defeat in 54 starts.

CHICAGO, (UP) — Not since the handsome Dr. Jekyll's potent brew got the boat of him, has any man managed such a startling metamorphosis as that accomplished by Robert Moses Grove during the months between the end of the 1931 baseball season and the beginning of the 1932 spring.

This time last year, Robert Moses, who is known to the trade as Lefty, was just about the orniest man in baseball. When he wasn't out there in the middle of the lawn pitching, the man long-windedly brandished a look on his scowl that said better than words.

Keep out, ported, no responding, and advance at your own risk.

In short, Robert Moses was a conceited, smug, snarled braggart.

Now, Indiana and gamblers, got a load of the 1932 Grove. Why, he is just about the sweetest character you ever knew. He smiles, greets strangers with a cheery "hello," and wonder of wonders, actually welcomes interviewers who seek his opinion on such pressing matters as the future of the "fast ball," and "is it true the Athletics aren't a happy, happy family?"

Last year the sneered interviewers with a look that would freeze first class gin and such encountering remarks, "Now, I ain't got nothing to say," and "What the hell are you picking on me for?"

Not only there have been dozens of, reasons advanced for sudden right-about-face. They range from a change in diet to a Yuletide Lefty had one night after he had fright-

"Dizzy" Dean Falls To Show Up after "Burst of Temperament"

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Jerome "Dizzy" Dean's unexpected resignation from the St. Louis Cardinals will be of short duration, according to manager, Gabby Street.

The eccentric young pitcher departed yesterday, ostensibly for St. Louis, after telling friends that he and the St. Louis club had misinterpreted him and his wife.

"He'll be back soon," Manager Street said. "I'll swear I don't know what's happened to Dean this time. Just another burst of temperament I guess."

"No, I know nothing about his charges that we had misinterpreted him or that the St. Louis office had refused to give money to his wife when she requested it."

"Dean's a mighty good pitcher, but he's just a big boy."

Street said everything would be smoothed out as soon as Dean arrived in St. Louis.

Win, Lose or Draw, Jack Sharkey Plans To Continue in Ring

By Stuart Cameron
United Press Sports Editor

OKLAHOMA CITY, N. Y. (UP) — Jack Sharkey, trained down to fighting weight, today spent a day of serious loafing, talking about his future, and denying he will quit the ring.

"Win, lose or draw against Max Schmeling," he said, "I am not quitting the ring. I know everybody, almost, thinks I will do it. Tunny if I win. I want. Why should I?"

"I've been after the title for about four years. I want it now for the glory more than the money. But the money I can earn from every one of these fights. It is too much to be kind of with a polite bow to the other heavyweight. I'm not saying I never will quit as an undefeated champion. But I sure am going to get in that one more fight and make a lot of them."

"First, though, I'm planning a trip around the world with my wife, and then I'll think about boxing again. All of this goes on the idea I'm going to beat Max, and I think I am. If I lose, I don't know what I will do. But I have no plans for quitting."

Sharkey has lost the fat around his waist. He was overweight during the winter. There was an indication of a grouch, and a pair of fat legs. Sharkey dropped some of this excess pounds during the past fortnight. Most of it came yesterday when a strenuous ring session brought him from 206½ to 201½.

AN AMAZING PLANK!

The embodiment in the Republican national platform of a definite plank recommending that the people be asked to vote on a proposition to modify the national "dry" laws, must come as a sad blow to the followers of Hoover who saw in him the personification of prohibition, and stalwart defense of the Eighteenth amendment as "an experiment noble in purpose."

When the Republican national convention in Chicago early Thursday morning voted 681 for the modification of the prohibition law, while the remaining 472 votes were for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, it is clear that the delegates were not voting "wet" and "dry" but were voting to determine just how wet the plank should be.

Such an evidence of so-called wet sentiment in the Grand Old Party is almost revolutionary for this overwhelming sentiment against prohibition could not have been mustered three months ago. Verily the Prohibition boat is sinking fast, and the great party of Hoover and Cannon and Willebrandt and Borah and John Thomas and Addison T. Smith, has given it a list from which it shall not presently recover.

Only last fall Senators Borah and Thomas and Congressman Smith and French stood out against permitting even a referendum on the Eighteenth amendment. Now their party in national convention splits forty percent for repeal and sixty percent for modification—a far cry, if you please, from a "dry" attitude!

We repeat, it is revolutionary. The conclusion is inescapable that the Republicans as a national political party have admitted that the "experiment" under Republican administration has failed. Which admission, we submit, is far-reaching and indeed shocking to those vast numbers of persons who have for years found in the bosom of the Grand Old Party a dry haven, offering protection against the rising tide of state liquor control. It is to weep!

WATCH OUT FOR SELF-MADE HEROES!

What this country needs, our foremost statesmen seem to agree, is a good 5-cent hero.

So the boys are all doing their very best to provide us with one. Very successfully, too, one might say, because heroes seem to be all over the place.

The epidemic of heroics is likely to become rather horrible before this 1932 campaign is over because the heroism disease is both highly contagious and insidiously progressive in the individual system.

Most of our current heroes now seem to be a little bit pathetic. One need not overlook the fact that job-holding politicians are likely to work themselves into lathes of self-alleged heroism with the utmost sincerity, but neither can one forget that the national emergencies that led to the present epidemic have not yet produced an office-holder willing to take any chances.

Political heroism appears to differ from ordinary heroism in that an act of ordinary heroism involves some risk—of your life or job or something. Political heroism involves no risks at all. Anyway—

The heroism season seems to have started when old Charlie Crisp of Georgia suddenly became acting chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, began to defend the sales tax.

He made an instant hit when he bared and beat his chest, announcing that he was willing to sacrifice his political future for his country.

His performance still looks creditable in retrospect, but when he found the House rising to applaud him every time he spoke he began to go through the same act day after day until finally he was a candidate for the Senate with every chance of being nominated and elected.

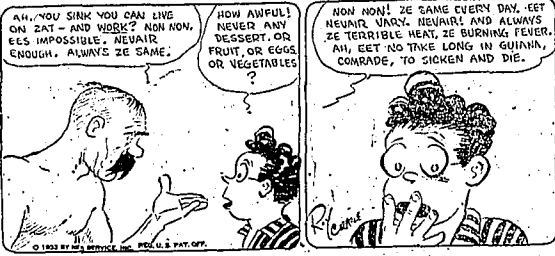

That started most congressmen trying to out-heroe each other. Minority Leader Henry T. Rainey was tearing his hair over the sales tax, threatening awful panics and dollars worth 20 cents if no sales tax were passed.

Even Speaker Jack Garner, who usually hates hunk, leaped into the breach after it had all been closed up and joined the ranks of those who had saved the country single-handed.

President Hoover himself, who is going to be heroized more than anyone else in the campaign—and damned more as well—went into training when he dashed to the Senate the other day to demand that it pass a tax bill which it would have passed the night before had he not sent word through Senator Dave Reed to please wait until the treasury provided new estimates.

Other administration heroes are headed by Secretary of War Pat Hurley, who can be depended upon for publicity-making historicities as often as he gets the chance. And every pre-convention session finds our Senator Borah making a last ditch fight for something or other, threatening havoc if he isn't heeded. In 1928 it was Hoover and agriculture and this year it's a dry platform plank. Borah has yet to wreak havoc.

In the campaign nearly all candidates will be offering to lay down their lives to save the country from Bolsheviki, the wets, the dregs, the grasshopper plague, foreigners in general, the Mediterranean fruit fly, Tammany Hall, the pope, bimetalism, the Farm Board, the natives of Hawaii or the Lindbergh kidnapers.

It ought to be a big year for heroics!

One of the most elaborate and beautiful parties of the season was the dinner dance given by Dr. and Mrs. T. O. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boyd and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kough at the Terrina hotel in honor of T. O. Boyd, Jr. and Sidney Graves who leave Monday to join the Marine corps. After dinner thirty guests adjourned to the hotel home for dancing. Lunch was served during the evening. Mrs. Herman Boyd and Mrs. L. L. Trece-orchestra presided. The Altira orchestra brought the music.

Do you inhale? 7 out of 10 smokers know they inhale. The other 3 inhale without realizing it. Every smoker inhales—for every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Of course you do! Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it! Do you inhale? More than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been-furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

Twin Falls Man Tells Of Travels in Letter

Gene Ahern Describes Visit To Historical Spots During Recent Sight-Seeing Trips.

Editor's note: The Nevada Times is privileged to print another of the travel letters of Gene Ahern, well-known local resident, who with Mrs. Ahern, only recently returned from his latest adventures of exploration.

By GENE AHERN This "wanderlust" that takes hold of me in the Spring has to be fed upon desert and a few mountains, although it flows into the desert—so this last "fest" was to be all taken care of with a new country and something different. I had already, for three or four months, planned just what I wanted to see and to get in all the places of interest within a limited number of miles, say between 300 and 400.

I had been through the southwest for the last four or five years, but there was the eastern part of Arizona that I had yet to do; so, having divined all the maps and knowing just where they were located, for "we" started. It used to be "I," but as a few of you know, it is "we" from now on.

We stopped at Scotts Bluff, Neb., which is a real lively city. It is a little larger than Twin Falls, and drove out to the Old Oregon, a national monument, it being a piece of route on the Old Oregon Trail, but how the trail came to be so far north of the desert, I do not know. It has been traced by the able to find out. Although it veered south from there, it is believed that the trail went to the north, was because it was the route of the old trail, and the Lewis and Clark expedition, and all it follows the Platte river.

I have read a couple of books on the trails and trails of the pioneers, but I have been unable to find just where the old Oregon Trail struck south so that it could connect with our present idea of the trail. Anyway the bluff was a landmark for the pioneers, as it could be seen from a long way down the river. A man by the name of Scott was abandoned by some of his friends some 45 miles from this bluff. He was left to die and he crawled for this distance to this point, and this place was named Scotts Bluff. For further details see several library books dealing with our early history of the West.

The next place of interest to us was at "The Garden of the Gods." While there we took in Williams canyon, a unique little canyon which is very narrow. So many of you have been to the "Garden" it is useless for me to tell of the wondrous rock formation at this place. Colorado Springs was quiet before we left. That day we drove to Waldenburg, Colo., and next morning we headed west over the mountains. At Lovell Pass we were up 8000 feet. It was pretty up there among the pines, peaks and snow, although it was not hot. On the other side we came into the other country of Colorado. From the foot of this mountain the first settlers of our United States came up from Mexico. This was about as far north as they came. From here on south we saw the old villages and pueblos of the Spanish, Indian and Mexican people.

From Colorado Springs we drove to "Cañon City" where the state's penitentiary is located. A few years ago this prison was very much in the headlines, it being the first prison to stage a prison plot. From here we drove to the Royal Gorge bridge, it being 1100 feet above

PERCENTAGE OF HOME OWNERS IN U. S. SHOWS INCREASE OVER 1920

By NEA Service America as a land of home owners is revealed by preliminary estimates of the housing division of the Department of Commerce based on the last federal census. According to this estimate 50 out of every 100 families in the United States own their own homes.

This proportion of home owners shows satisfactory increase since the federal census of 1920, when those owning their own homes constituted about 46 per cent of the families of the country. This ownership shows an increase which more than balances the decrease in ownership of farm homes.

There is a sharp contrast in the figures on home ownership between the United States and Great Britain. Building societies, similar in their purpose to the building and loan associations which have flourished in this country for many years, have grown rapidly in Great Britain since the World War and have been much encouraged by government authorities.

Present estimates, however, are that there are but 2,000,000 families in Great Britain owning their own homes either clear or under mortgage. With a population of approximately 45,000,000 British families would constitute but 20 per cent, as compared with more than 50 per cent in the United States.

While geographical conditions undoubtedly have some influence on the matter of home ownership, the lack of area tending toward capitalism, the figures on home owning undoubtedly reflect also the difference in wage rates and general living conditions between the two countries.

ments of our United States. Santa human, one has a "collection" of some 100,000. Thus, San Francisco, etc. These old houses were passed through that in some "EXPERIMENT" in our own lands, "rales" of the day when "TIMES WERE GOOD."

At Twin Falls we found one very interesting Indian pueblo, a terraced village of some hundred and fifty dwellings built on a cliff. The houses of these Indians are the nearest we have seen anywhere on our trip. Rooms all white-washed and very neat. We were in several of them buying pottery and taking a few pictures. They are a very industrious people and are always doing something, so much different from the Sioux Indians of south Idaho.

Santa Fe is the "City Different." No modern buildings are allowed to be constructed. That is, business buildings. The streets are narrow and "one-way" traffic about the whole town. This being the capital, it is a very busy place. The governor's palace, the state museum, Bishop's house, and a Catholic school are here, besides the old places of interest. Santa Fe market, the old of the Santa Fe Trail, and the history that surrounds the deeds of the days gone by, live in and around this city.

The attitude at Santa Fe is a little over 7000 feet and is very different during the summer. From here the "Harvey Detours to Yellowstone," are started. This aspect of his travel took different paths of interest in and about the mountain has put Santa Fe in a position to make the traveling trade that is enjoyed by no other city in the country. The Indians to their majesty make this place very picturesque. They sell pottery and blankets on the streets and from tourist parks of the hotels, one can buy such things as jewelry, Merz, Lery, from them and feel he is getting the original.

All of this southwest country grounds of desertion. They were given in for the Indian census and married Rev. Dr. 1827 and very "homes," that is, prohibitive relief, around a year ago. A property act and if one can get a few old houses, Hawaii riding Edna 21000 a month regardless if they are out, dog or has been abandoned.

The BUTTER-KRUST process is entirely different from the way ordinary bakers bread is made and a trial will prove it to you. We have no objection to our NEW BUTTER-KRUST Bread on the market in our territory and we want every house-wife to enjoy the privilege of having it fresh every day if she likes it and wants it whether she live in Twin Falls or in some inland town or on a ranch miles from the nearest store. If you cannot obtain NEW BUTTER-KRUST Bread, just send us 30c (stamps or coin) together with your merchant's name and we will mail you 3 big long loaves by parcel post, packed in a special container, all charges prepaid. We will continue to do this only, until you are able to buy it from your local merchant. NEW BUTTER-KRUST Bread is the best loaf we know anything about and we want you to use the coupons below, hoping you will think so too.
