

Olympic Competitors of 29 Countries Swarm Over California City's Fields

1467 Athletes Reside at Village; Ticket Sales Increase

CROWDS GATHER

By GEORGE H. BEALE
Editor-in-Chief and Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An enormous city if ever there was one Los Angeles started today upon a week of pre-Olympic activities prepared by the International Olympic Committee.

1932 Olympic Games

Athletes from 29 countries filled Olympic village, crowded the grandstands, crowded the tracks and flooded amusement places.

And where there were no athletes there were officials, fans and journalists.

Business which concerned the Japanese and Mexicans served to illustrate the tremendous excitement over the games July 29 to Aug. 5.

The Japanese track team was the most popular, the Mexican schoolboy high school field-hut-the mops over-ran the field; Los Angeles had the largest Japanese population, and it seemed most of the local colony wanted to help their fellowmen.

The team retired while the field was cleared and then came back to practice behind closed gates.

Los Angeles had the largest Mexican population of any city except Mexico City and 15,000 local Mexican turned out to cheer the Mexican team, which arrived when it arrived here.

So dazed was the crowd that no bus was cleared and then came back to practice behind closed gates.

Los Angeles had the largest automobile population of any city except Mexico City and 15,000 local Mexican turned out to cheer the Mexican team, which arrived when it arrived here.

Ticket Sales Increase

Finally, after ticket sales lines stood in front of every booth while 20 hurried attendants tried to keep up.

The sales passed the $1,000,000 mark in two days, with 100,000 fans-with-tickets daily in the stadium for the 16 days of games.

Small signs sprang the record of any other series of athletic competitions, "Los Angeles Wins the Game," "The Year of the Games,"

that will take part in the games. Hotels were filling rapidly and the atmosphere was electric with great increased interest.

One bit of news stood out.

It was announced by the rate of coffee by its government and the athletes traveled here on the boat that carried the coffee.

Fifty-six of the Brazilian athletes were registered at the Olympic village, built especially to house the male competitors in the games, at 1,467.

1932 GOT TRAINING

HOME (UPI) — The return of the first American team to compete in the games after a period of construction for days of 14, have been issued, and shows that during the autumn and winter period, 1931-32, 1932, the team received military instruction, including rifle practice. Out of the total 750,457 passed tests successfully.

THESE CHANGING TIMES

A number of proud old English country houses are moving as roadhouses these days, says a recent United Press dispatch, because of the financial straits of their owners. Country gentlemen whose houses and centuries old are keeping the wolf from the door by setting up establishments for pleasure-seekers.

As a footnote on the change that has come over England since the war, this item is deeply interesting. The famous old class of landed gentry that ruled England for so many generations is passing out of existence, and the vast country estates that were its distinctive feature are becoming obsolete.

That some of them are being turned into roadhouses is only a symptom of the way in which changing times have dealt with their owners.

THE COUNTY PROBLEM

When the high cost of government is discussed, the organization of the typical American county ought not to be overlooked.

For one thing, counties are far too small and consequently far too numerous. County lines were fixed in the old days when all travel was by horse or on foot. Today, with automobiles as common as they are, the average county could be four times as large as it is without working any hardship on anyone.

The result is that we support far more governmental units than we need. Each of these units has the power to tax and the power to spend; and the upshot is that a tremendous amount of money, in the aggregate, is spent needlessly. Before the taxpayer can get real relief, there must be a sweeping reorganization of the old county government machinery in every state in the union.

THE OHIO MOUND-BUILDERS

News that skeletons of six "mound-builders" have been found in an Indian mound in Ohio is interesting, in that it gives us a new reason for hoping that more light will be shed on the mysterious race that built the middle west's astounding chain of mounds.

Probably everyone living in the middle west has seen at least one of the works of these pre-Columbian people. They are scattered all the way up and down the Ohio valley, and they lap over into the upper Mississippi basin. Serpent mounds, rectangular enclosures, pyramidal structures—they are exceedingly abundant, extremely ancient in appearance, and deeply mysterious.

No one knows who built them or what purpose they served. It seems clear that their builders had a fairly degree of civilization; and no one with even a passing interest in the American Indian can fail to be stirred by the hope that this new discovery may add a little bit to our knowledge of them.

LET'S KEEP POLITICS OUT

After more than a decade of discussion, and several years of negotiations between Ottawa and Washington, the Great Lakes seaway project is almost moving toward realization.

Here is a job that will cost $800,000,000, that will permit ocean steamships to dock within hailing distance of the middle western prairies, that will generate more than 2,000,000 horsepower in electricity and that constitutes, all in all, one of the greatest projects of man ever undertaken anywhere.

It is a job of such size and to such importance, indeed, that the American people cannot permit it to be made into a political football.

Already it is being reported that the project will figure in the campaign—largely, it seems, because of the recent interchange of telegrams between President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt.

It is to be hoped that those reports are wrong. But before the politicians have a chance to drop the issue into the campaign, it might be a good stunt for the average citizen to get straight on the fundamentals of the thing.

The state of New York wants a voice in the negotiations because of the waterway angle. The electricity generated by the waterway will be divided equally between Ontario and New York, and its distribution south of the international boundary will lie New York's responsibility.

New York will have to pay part of the cost of the project. New York wants an early agreement on the total that it is to pay so that it can make adequate preparations for disposing of the power when it is available.

That is all there is to the argument. The plan for an all American seaway that was talked of so much a few years ago—a canal linking Lake Ontario with the Hudson river—is not being heard of any more. The state and federal governments are not in disagreement about the waterway itself, but merely about one of the details incidental to its construction.

Is there, therefore, any reason why the matter should become a campaign issue? Could it not be settled without any attempt to win a partisan advantage for either side?
