Public's Fear of Missing Out On Increase Given As Reason for Trend

By ELMER C. WALKER
United Press Financial Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Another wave of enthusiasm swept over the stock market to new heights today. Gains in many cases surpassed those of yesterday.

After a brief rest in the morning, the advance in the market was resumed in a stupor of enthusiasm around the noon hour and gradually resumed yesterday's gains before the close. The advance was not without reason.

Chiefly because of the fact that in the active issues ranged up to five points, but in the inactive issues they ran as high as a dozen points. Activity was well under way, however, with sales amounting to two million shares, against a million and a half yesterday.
