MANY NEW BOXING CHAMPS CROWNED

Holders Eyo Futuro Anxiously Dethroned

NEW YORK, March 3 (UP)—The year 1933 found an almost unprecedented number of champions being crowned into office along with President Roosevelt. In a little more than two months, seven new champions have been crowned.

Because of this trend, Jack Sharkey probably has the easiest job on his new world heavyweight belt. He is a very superstitious fellow.

The epidemic of "championitis" started January 13 when Freddie Goetz, Cleveland middleweight, scored the N. B. A.'s first heavyweight title from Tommy Paul of Buffalo by knocking the doctor in a 10-rounder at Chicago.

The same night Jim Doherty of New York won recognition as middleweight champion in New York City by scoring a technical knockout over Frank Battaglia of Canada.

Cordeiro Jones, colored boxer of Florida, captured the 147-pound world lightweight belt on January 21 in Cleveland by knocking out Sammy Sluggart, former Heavyweight champion of the "arena" round of the National Professional Boxing League.

At the next evening, Yungie Cruz, light, Fresno middleweight, knocked Jacky Pappas' "scholarship" crown with a knockout verdict in San Francisco.

NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM

Despite the unprecedented confusion which has surrounded the incoming administration at Washington, occasioned first by the extremely critical national situation, secondly by the attempts on the life of the president-elect, and now by the unfortunate death of Senator Walsh who was about to assume the attorney-generalship, it appears that Roosevelt himself is quite the master of the situation, and has already convinced the most skeptical that his own physical handicaps are no deterrent to him in the capacity as the new national leader.

He presents the unusual spectacle of being a martyr-President even before he assumes office. With him when he takes the official oath tomorrow will be the heart and soul of the nation over which he has been called to govern.

Dauntless is his attitude, and he appears to be the very personification of that virtue—one which is among the most needed attributes of this generation.

This does democracy march on. This nation has grown great, powerful, dominant as a democracy—a policy which the American people stand committed to; we cherish our form of government; thousands have given their lives to preserve it; and in this period the nation is now given a new birth of freedom, a new leader, a new martyr with its peerless leader, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

It is fitting that this change comes apparently at the appointed hour. President Roosevelt, as he can be called commencing tomorrow, has upon his shoulders one of the greatest responsibilities that has ever befallen a man.

His success will mark the success of the nation; and no one can conscientiously question either the ability of his new President or the determination of the American people to achieve the inevitable goal of prosperity, happiness, and security which has ever been the ideal of the Republic.

BETRAYAL OR DEFEAT?

Senator Borah's assertion to a New England manufacturer that Congress could not confer extraordinary powers on the president "without the cowardly betrayal of its constitutional obligations" is probably perfectly true. About the only trouble is that that cowardly betrayal seems to have taken place already.

That it should be Congress' job to make a sweeping change in governmental organization and drastic cuts in governmental expenditures goes without saying. But Congress has had ample time in which to do it, and it has demonstrated pretty clearly that the job is just naturally beyond it.

The one certain thing is that the job has got to be done, and it has got to be done right. If Congress can't do it—and do it speedily—it can do nothing less than give the president a free hand at it.

SIR MALCOLM'S FEAT

Sir Malcolm Campbell's feat of driving an automobile at a speed of 272 miles an hour seems to have left a number of commentators more or less up in the air. We are already beginning to hear plaintive comment to the effect that the stunt accomplished nothing, proved nothing and did no one any good.

That, probably, is all very true. Sir Malcolm's race against the clock was "pure" sport at its very purest, and nothing more. He spent his own money and risked his own life, and he never pretended that he did it for any reason but his own satisfaction.

Sir Malcolm has done what he set out to do, and he probably is pretty well pleased. It was his party, and if it suited him the rest of us needn't kick. He has proved a car go faster than most of us ever thought.

THE TRIBUTE TO GLASS

In all the discussion of cabinet choices which has filled the newspapers during the last few weeks, perhaps the most striking thing is the unanimity of the tribute which has been paid Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

When it was reported that Senator Glass would be secretary of the treasury, there was an almost complete chorus of satisfaction. Then, when it was announced that he could not see his way clear to accept the post, there was an almost equally complete expression of regret.

And that, now, has been followed by nation-wide expressions of satisfaction that the veteran Virginian will continue to be on the job in the Senate, giving the country the benefit, from that vantage point, of his wisdom and his ability.

It is not often that a man in public life evokes such a tribute.

Glimpses of the ladies' new spring chapeaux in pill-box, up-till and fez varieties are apt to give us a new appreciation of that old phrase, "mad as a hatter."

Senator Fess says money will flow freely as soon as business revivifies. That's a great help.

The reason so many people don't like the average radio broadcast is the average radio broadcast.
