IDAHO'S OPPORTUNITY

Idaho perhaps stands on the threshold of a new day.

Her storerooms are filled with wheat and beans and other commodities; her silver mines still hold their treasure, which with a possible extended use of that commodity will add millions to this state's annual income; a bountiful crop year is promised with an abundance of snow on the watersheds; an ambitious people await the opportunity to plant and grow and reap another tremendous agricultural crop; and all the elements which in the past have supplied endless work, opportunity, income and prosperity still exist here.

And the state has a courageous people, else they would not be here at all. The softer element remains in sections awaiting the heavens to supply the rains; but here the ranchers assume the burden of assuring it through their own efforts. Others choose to live in climates where life is effortless and the seasons unmarked by the rigors of winter and summer. We live in high altitudes, among the mountains and have room for breathing and traveling and playing. Others prefer to remain cooped up in the maelstroms of traffic and apartment houses and crime.

This is the bread-basket of the East as well as the Western coast, providing endless opportunity and prospects; where there is yet a frontier; where there is enduring labor and possibility.

Give this section just half a break and it is prepared to show the world what real happiness is. That time is coming, and not far distant. Those who stick, who sacrifice and believe, will be the beneficiaries of the new order. And they will be more than repaid for their trouble.

The Idaho of the future is bound to surpass the Idaho of the past.

POOR ECONOMY

When Congress sets out to trim governmental expenditures it deserves praise from a surprised public. Yet there are a few fields in which reductions are not in the public interest; and one of these is that occupied by the Federal Trade Commission.

This commission has been costing around a million dollars annually. Efforts have been made, because of the financial stringency, to lop this appropriation in half.

The Trade Commission, each year, saves American consumers many millions of dollars. It pays its cost, many times over through its activities in exposing fraudulent claims on merchandise, in bringing about utility rate reductions and in other ways. To cripple it by pulling the strings tighter would be economy of a false and expensive kind. Let us hope that the new administration keeps it operating on its old schedule.

BRITAIN DECLARES FOR PEACE

It is a small wonder that England's House of Commons burst out in hearty cheers when Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon declared categorically that England is not going to get involved in any far eastern war.

Reminded that the present crisis is the most serious since 1914, Sir John asserted:

"The great difference between 1914 and now is that in no circumstances will this government authorize this country to be a party to the Sino-Japanese struggle."

The horrors of the World War are not so far away that the people of England cannot easily remember them, and their relief at this unequivocal declaration is perfectly natural. And that leads one to wonder if similar cheers would not greet a similar announcement at Washington.

It's becoming increasingly hard for fathers to work their sons' way through college.

So far-reaching is the vogue for realism in the theater that there's nothing reserved anymore except the seats.

Office boys who expect to attend grandfather's funeral on the opening day of the baseball season should at least forewarn the old gentleman that the date is April 12.

It's to be expected that President Roosevelt will find a lot of dead wood in government bureaus.

Auto drivers condemn the practice, but hoarders might find it would speed things up to let their clutch slip a little.

The fewer clothes a man wears the healthier he is, declares a medie. Maybe that's what brings such a rosy flush to a man's face the moment he tears his pants.

Small boys may falter reciting the names of other cabinet members, but that they'll put plenty of emphasis on the new secretary of war is darn certain.
