HOSTILITY RISES TOWARD BOISE'S BUSINESS DRIVE

STEAM ENGINE DRIVES PLANE THROUGH SKY

OAKLAND, Calif., April 13 (UPI)—William and George Juster, sons of a New Jersey railroad executive, tried to impress the mechanics of a steam-powered airplane today, preparing it for an official inspection at Oakland airport Monday.

The brothers, young Princeton engineering graduates, took the engine apart and put it back together yesterday, remained "several minutes" with the mechanics, and then, after a short time, the mechanicals said it was the "best test flight ever." The engine, which weighed 500 pounds and developed 100 horsepower, had ordinary biplane.

MRS. JUDD TURNS AGAINST MOTHER

Condemned Woman Becomes Fury Personified in Cell at Florence

STATE PRISON, FLORENCE, Colo., April 13 (UPI)—Mrs. Judd, who had been arrested from a state of frantic effort to save herself from the gallows, Whirlwind Judd, turned suddenly into a fury personified as attack against her mother last night.

Waiting impatiently, she

"bounced" April 21, herated her hard parent on the latter's couch to demand outside.

Guards Take Hand

Matrons and guards had to be called to assist Mrs. Judd in the service of her hysterical daughter. She ran狂怒地 against her brother, Burton, who had been sent to her.

Condemned a dozen of 12 prisoners and storekeepers will be selected to determine the safety of the prison and entertainment features of the institution, the capitalistic standards, large stocks, and other advantages of Judd's

Good Crowd Sees Miller Conquer Calahan Here in Stubbornly-Fought Bout

SHARKEY-CARNEVA FIGHT JUNE 29TH

Fifteen Round Battle Will Be Staged in Garden's Long Island Bowl

NEW YORK, April 13 (UPI)— Jack Sharkey will defend his heavyweight title against Primo Carnera in a fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl on June 29. This date was approved yesterday by the New York State athletic commission.

Permitted to stage the bout was the American Boxing Association, which after the花园的 withdrawl its request for June 15. The commission thought June 16 close enough to the opening of the Yankees stadium, June 8, which is being promoted by Jack Dempsey. Carnera will sail from Italy April 24, arrive early in May, and be back in Boston, after a Canadian exhibition tour.

Close Competition Marks Rifle Match

Organized by Frank Wherry, who served in the U.S. Cavalry, the members of the Twin Falls rifle club meeting at the Elks building, Red Rock, the last night of their annual coast-to-coast competition, witnessed the closest finish in the scheduled eight round battle.

Closed Out Fast

Both men appeared 160 pounds. Calahan opened the final with a body blow, which was followed by a wrist lock which put the man to the mat but Calahan, who previously had won the Washington state, snatched out and the men sparred. Calahan found Miller finally to be broken out of the ring and, in his first round, put the man to the mat again. Calahan then punched Calahan with a headlock as he returned to the ring, having clinched a headlock on Miller after a body slam.

The second round opened with plenty of action, Calahan again having clinched a headlock to put Miller down to the mat. Calahan protesting Miller's use of his fist and wouldn't come back in the ring. Miller, however, continued counting him out. With ten seconds gone of his allowed twenty to return to the ring, Calahan again clinched a headlock, followed by a wrist lock which put Miller to the mat. Then followed another round of clinching, Calahan, former Jerome muscle man, thought of a lot of new vocations Reed might have for him. Miller took advantage of the combined effort to slide out of the hold and, therewith, presented Calahan with a headlock as he returned to the ring, having clinched a headlock on Miller after a body slam.

Calahan Scores First

The third round brought the fall in the match with Calahan again clinching a headlock, followed by a wrist lock which brought the sticky-clam to the floor where he came up to a double headlock and forced the pair to just clinch within 30 seconds after the round started.

The fourth round brought Calahan pursuing the same tactics but Miller beat him to the draw and sent him to the floor with a fly-kick and a double headlock, which brought the desired result and the falls were even.

The fifth round brought Calahan out for blood and after a series of wrist-locks Miller worked free to win the body slam. Calahan clinched a headlock and went to the dressing room for the collection of the crowd but found the arena in a dead silence.

The semi-wind-up round, Bob

THOMAS JEFFERSON

Today marks the anniversary of the birth one hundred and ninety years ago of Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States.

Fortunately this matchless leader lived to attain the age of 83, his death, peculiarly, falling on July Fourth, the anniversary of the date which he helped to make famous through the Declaration of Independence of which he was the author.

In those four score years he achieved undying fame which still makes his name the epitome of Americanism, let alone the distinguished honor which is his as the founder of the Democratic party.

Aside from being President, he was in turn Secretary of State under Washington, Governor of Virginia, succeeding Patrick Henry, a brilliant orator, lawyer and author. He served in the Virginia House of Burgesses, and in the Continental Congress, and in that capacity drafted and signed the Declaration of Independence, "the greatest document ever struck off by the hand of Man."

His memory will be honored here at a public meeting and banquet Monday evening of next week, this county having the distinction of being the home of a Jefferson club which was founded some twenty years ago and has been an active force ever since.

Jefferson's home, Monticello, is now a national shrine. On his tomb there is his epitaph, written by himself. It is noteworthy that of all his achievements, he chose three accomplishments, for which he wished to be known. It runs thus:

"Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia."

But the world is indebted to him for more than these, and today is proud to pay him tribute for his contributions to mankind.

LABOR'S FRIEND IN THE CABINET

It is one of the ironies of fate that Frances Perkins, whose appointment as secretary of labor was objected to—violently—by spokesmen for organized labor, should turn out to be the staunchest and most effective friend labor has ever had in a president's cabinet.

It is not merely that Miss Perkins is seeking the same objectives that labor is seeking. Her conception of her job itself is the important thing.

Her theory is that the secretary of labor is put into the cabinet to be organized labor's spokesman. If labor is to have a voice in the high councils of the government, the labor secretary must be the mouthpiece.

To realize what a complete departure this theory is from accepted practice, you need only look back over the record of the labor secretaries during the past dozen years.

Nor is that all. Miss Perkins not only feels that she must fight labor's battles; she is not in the least backward about mapping out a definite program which goes miles beyond anything that has been seriously considered before.

She is rapidly establishing as an administration principle the belief that true prosperity must rest on the prosperity of the workers themselves—that good times cannot tinkle down from above, but must be built up from the very bottom, and that one of society's prime duties is to see to it that its workers get a fair break.

In line with this belief, she is trying to do two things: to get the unemployed hooked up with jobs and to make certain that those who have jobs get a decent amount of pay for their work.

Nor is that all. By the cool determination with which she has tackled her work she has put new life into the whole organized labor movement in America. She has helped solidify it, she has given it a program and she has enormously increased its influence.

When labor's spokesmen look back at the protests which her appointment drew from them, they must feel more than a little bit silly.

SACRIFICES FOR SCIENCE

It has often been remarked that the great discoveries of science frequently have to be paid for in human lives. Of nothing is this truer than the X-ray.

A recent cable from London points out that 15 scientists are dying, in various parts of England, because of the work they did to develop and adapt this great boon for the use of mankind. They are dying by inches, painfully; but because of their courage and devotion the lives of a great many other people have been and will be saved.

Furthermore, they have helped to rid the X-ray of its dangers. It can be handled safely, now. Scientists henceforth will not have to make such sacrifices.

The history of human bravery holds few brighter chapters than this.
