What could be laid down for all industries, but without any commitment we can say for the benefit of the members of the association that, under present conditions, and as far as the lowest paid class of workers is concerned, the minimum wage of about 32 hours a week at not less than 45 cents an hour for those working in the type of work would do the job.

The national industrial conference board made plans to help the association in its efforts to keep earnings increased for the first time since September, 1930. The increase in the minimum wage cent and was due principally to a 3.6 per cent increase in food prices.
