LAZZY VANCE BOUTIGHT BY REDS IN UNEXPECTED DEAL

SALE SURPRISES MAJOR LEAGUERS

Former Brooklyn Speed Ball King Won Only Six Games During Past Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Lazzy Vance, one of the outstanding pitchers of the past decade, was being measured today for a Cincinnati Reds uniform while club owners of the National league returned home after the annual schedule meeting.

The sale of Vance to the Reds by the St. Louis Cardinals, a league member at the Waldorf Astoria, it indicated that Vance, a former major league pitcher, was the greatest hurler in Brooklyn baseball history in the end.

The big, red-faced right-hander of smoke ball fame, whom the Dodgers paid $25,000 in 1929, the highest salary ever given a pitcher, was sold to Powell Crosley, Jr., of the Cincinnati associates probably for the winter price of $75,000.

Nears 41

Approaching 41, Vance appeared in only 29 games last season—he won that many in 1924 of his 1923 season he won 23 and lost 26. Much of the record seemed to come from the restful season of 1924 when he won 23 and lost 26. Vance, who obtained his in a trade from the St. Louis Cardinals, had 10 years with Brooklyn. He is entering his 32nd year of professional baseball.

Despite his age and service, Crosley, Larry MacPhail and Bob O'Connell of the Reds have seen that Vance may have an even greater value than the one he had in the past. Vance's sale to the Reds was a surprise, as he was expected to be sold to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Buyer

The reorganized Reds also made two other moves in their drive to boost the club out of the National cellar. They purchased Les Mullins, a second baseman from the Detroit Tigers, and signed Val Plafiech, veteran catcher, who was released by the Pirates last year, as a coach.

In another deal, the Cardinals sold Edman Allen, a first-fund outfielder to the Philadelphia Athletics for a straight cash transaction, it was understood.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Dapper Henri, French tennis champion, gave the United States an even chance to win the Davis cup, from England, today.

The former world ranking number, who arrived yesterday from South America for a professional tour, surprised most American critics with his opinion regarding the United States chances.

Cocket pointed out that playing on grass courts would work to the advantage of the Americans. It will be a first time since 1927 that the closing rounds will not be played on hard courts.

Moreover, Cocket, who said England has no player to team with Fred Perry in the doubles, to present a strong combination. He believes the "United States" would face England, and that the match advantage virtually assured. He had little hope of France making the challenge.

JAPANESE WANT U. S. FRIENDSHIP

Tokio Statesmen Realize That National Trade Depends
On America

BY MILES W. VAUGHN
(Former Far East Manager for United Press)

NEW YORK, (U.P.)—What Hiroshi Saito (new Japanese ambassador) to the United States, really meant in his interview with the United Press in London last week was that Japan wants the closest sort of friendship and understanding with the United States.

A Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and his associates in Tokyo want this friendship—because they want a real friendship based on a feeling of equality—because they believe Japan cannot succeed in her program in the Orient without at least tacit American support.

The reason they feel they must have support in this country are:

1. Japan exists as a great power largely because of her commerce with America. She sells the United States practically all her export raw silk. With the money from sales of this silk she buys United States cotton, ships it to Osaka and weaves it into cloth there, and sells the cloth through out Asia and other parts of the world. Japan literally lives, commercially speaking, on silk and cotton and hence admires herself to be, to an extent, dependent on American markets.

Four Naval Race

2. Japanese fear a naval race with the United States and they want to avoid it, because they know that if Americans really set out to build the greatest navy in the world they can do it. Such a navy would mean an end of Japan's dream of becoming unequalled.

Bombing the dominant power in Asia.

Despite Ambassador Saito's intimations to the contrary, many Japanese fear a war with the United States. The ambassador is entirely correct when he says Japan does not want such a war. But they fear it may come.

Charles H. Henderson, RFC Board member, whom President Roosevelt has named a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Hirota His Ambition

They cannot forget that Hirota, for a half century has worked consistently toward a program of domination of the Orient. They do not believe Russia will abandon that program. They are ready to fight to prevent Moscow from achieving it.

There is where the United States comes in: the power which American opinion supports, if a Russo-Japanese war should come, is in a better position to win; just as the groups which the United States supported won the World war.

Twilight Romance Ends

LOS ANGELES, Calif., (U.P.)—Their twilight romance having lasted only three months, Andrew Elkensberry, 39, Civil War veteran, and Mrs. Lily Howell Elkensberry, 71, each sought a divorce here.

Mrs. Elkensberry said her husband failed to provide for her; Elkensberry said his wife repulsed his amorous advances.

GOODING BOY IS MISSING SUNDAY

GOODING, Feb. 7 (Special)—Therman Mansuet, 13 year old boy, disappeared Sunday. He had been playing at the home of Gay Winters who lives on a farm east of here. C. Barker, a local man, who took him to Jerome. Nothing has been heard of him since.
