HUNT FOR DILLINGER WIDENED TO INCLUDE TRANSOCEANIC CHASE

Midwest Reorganizes Squads Searching For Bandit

CHICAGO, May 5 (UP)—Three powerful arms of the law combined today in new plans for the capture and capture of John Dillinger in Chicago, while across the ocean British officers investigated a report that the desperado was a passenger on the steamer Duchess of York.

NO TRACE ABOARD S. S. DUCHESSE

YORK, May 5 (UP)—A search for the bandit John Dillinger failed to disclose any trace of John Dillinger, America's most notorious bandit.

The captain ordered a complete search of every cabin, all places where the bandit might be concealed, and even the crew's quarters.

No passenger listed on shipboard annotated Dillinger's description, and there was no trace of his presence anywhere.

Melvin Purdie, Chicago chief of the bureau of investigation of the federal government, said the search for Dillinger since he escaped March 3 from jail in Crown Point, Ind., refused to say why the outlaw was thought en route to Europe.

The transoceanic search developed, federal agents, police and state's attorney's officers perceived no organization of their "Dillinger gang."

Forty expert marksmen of the United States army are to be sent to Europe.

It would avert the possibility of a sudden "flood" of silver into the United States, which would be tantamount to a devaluation of the London exchange agreement and other existing acts.

Senator Pope said that his plan does not require any international agreement.

League of Nations Figures Reveal Swift Progress In America

INDUSTRY MAKING GAINS Advance Places United States In Forefront of Move To Prosperity

By RICHARD L. GIBNEY (Copyright, 1934, United Press) WASHINGTON, May 5 (UP)—Recovery in the United States is believed today to be progressing faster than in other sections of the world following a setback in early months of 1933 that carried American activity well under world trends.

League of Nations figures reveal that the United States has made greater progress to date from its depression low than any other major country with the possible exception of Japan and the Soviet Union.

A part of the rapid rebound in the United States was accounted for in part by the fact that the depression had previously cut down in the United States than elsewhere.

At the close of 1933 official figures showed that the United States had experienced a rapid recovery in industrial production.

CAVALCADE FAVORED AS CROWD WAITS DERBY TODAY

GALETV. RAMPANT AT FAMED TRACK

Mata Hari—Second—Choice to Win; Kentucky Hopes On Bazzer

By STUART CAMERON
United Press Sports Editor.
CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky., May 5 (U.P.)—The great Kentucky derby crowd since the war was over this classic course today to thrill to the 40th running of America's greatest test of the thoroughbred.

Weather was cloudy with forecasts for light showers, but "Everything was offered that they might rain could wait. There was a distinct north wind, Cavalcade, a close second choice, and a tremendous field.

An unexpected but thrilling part of the entertainment was a stable fire that broke out at 2 o'clock, threatened the entire derby field, but only one injury in actual racing. A long shot, and several other horses were led from the flaming structure into the big grandstand.

Mata Hari, one of the favorites, was in a stable only 200 feet from the track, but was not appreciably disturbed by the commotion of Louisville firemen fighting the blaze. In fact, the "dome" barn were saved. Damage was $76,000.

The crowd, totaling 60,000, included the usual tens of thousands of "rags" and "bobs" and was seasoned with such nationally famous figures as Postmaster General F. C. Pennington, Governor Johnson, Kentucky Governor Laffoon, stars of stage and screen, and Mac Vay, former champion Harry Richman and Will Rogers.

By GEORGE HUKSEY
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5 (U.P.)—Blind Julia, beautiful woman and thoroughbred race horse shared honors at Churchill Downs today.

The battery of 60,000 which came from the four corners of America was "so want a mint job."

Beautiful women beelined in colorful attire made a dazzling background.

Thoroughbred race horses, trained on a race course, awaited the call of "boys and girls" to meet them on a mile and a quarter journey in quest of the most coveted of all turf triumphs.

Kentucky's old slogan—land of beautiful women and fast horses—was revived in all its glory. This, the first derby of the new decade, was held at the most glamorous scene in 1934.

Byrne was quartered and could locate the owner or trainer. He hurriedly rode to the racing secretary's office, and had him sign his "X" on the entry blank.

Col. Braddy offered to bet Cash 7. Fifty $1,000 that his jockey, Bazzer, would finish ahead of the Detroit automaker, while the other bet that Cal. Braddy's offer still was begging his morning.

Mule deer is the correct name of the animal which is known through its home range in the black-tail. The black-tail deer is appropriate, because of the large mule-like ears, but to call the animal a black-tail is confusing, since only the tip of the tail is black.

Rescue of 101 From Arctic Ice Wastes Writes Epic of Heroism in Northland

(By NEA Service)

A desperate, desperate spot on the Arctic rim, north of Ezo Strait, which separates America from Asia, is dotted today with tents and temporary snow-hatched huts.

Gradually the Arctic wastes will creep over them, melting the ice beneath them till crack and humiliate; then they will be gone.

Nothing will remain to mark the spot where 101 men and women were rescued from the very edge of the polar ice-pack.

Nothing will remain, that is, except the unbreakable remains of one of the most heroic rescue epics written in the snow and ice of polar lands.

As the rescued Russians slowly make their way back to Moscow, it becomes possible at last to tell a connected story of one of the most heroic, best-organized, and spectacular rescues ever recorded in the northland.

Sick New Route

The first chapter in this epic of the ice-lands was written last August, when the Arctic freighter Chelyudkin sailed for the north.

It was to cut through to the Pacific in an effort to study means of making a permanent route from Murmansk and Archangel (which are just around the corner from Norway) to the Japanese Russian Arctic to Bering Strait, which leads directly into the Pacific off Seattle.

Such a route would make Asia practically a huge island, and be of vast advantage to Russian trade, linking Atlantic and Pacific by a virtually Russian water route.

In charge of the expedition was Prof. Otto Tulyevich Schmidt, headed and patrolled by a veteran of the Arctic explorations.

Scientists Are Rescued

Aboard the Chelyudkin an expedition of 110 men, including five women and a child.

Their first task was to relieve a small colony of scientists wintering on Davydoff Island, one of the Arctic north ice islands.

A month passed, and then imperceptible masses of ice blocked the way to the land.

An airplane had been brought along for just such an emergency, and on Sept. 15 transfer of about 40 members of the Davydoff Island party to the Chelyudkin was completed.

Now there were 101 souls aboard the Chelyudkin, resolved to continue their long voyage eastward through the ice-lands toward the Pacific.

At last, the ice cleared in the straining engines of the Chelyudkin were no longer able to push her over the frozen wastes. She had been making as the crew slipped ice before her prow, led by the icebreaker.

Water Closes Down

She was within a few miles of the land when the ice pack closed in and the ice-pack in which she was imbedded was drifting under the influence of currents that had circled across the ice-lands.

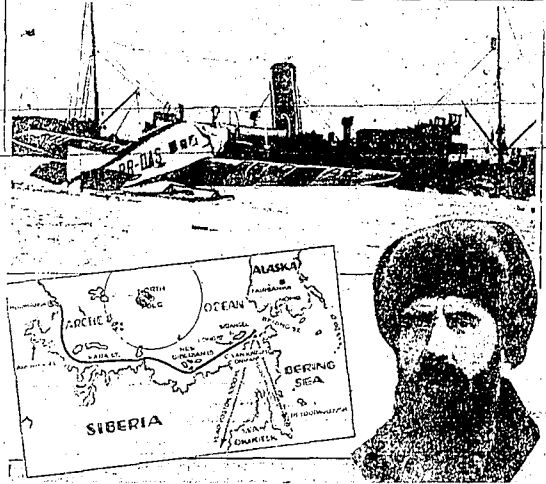

It was November now; winter was closing down.

Two ice-breakers tried to push their way through the pack that was closing about the Chelyudkin. They had to turn back, baffled.

Nights Made Hellish

Literally hundreds of arctic winds, the gushing and screeching of ice hurled by the wind, the long Arctic nights filled the ice.

It was not until February that the ice began to melt, and the grip of the ice pack might crush the iron ribs of the Chelyudkin.

Now's the Season For Making Plans

With the return of spring, the approach of summer, and evidences of improved conditions generally, the whole world feels young once more.

It is the time of new birth... of rebirth... of a revival of old longings and the stirring of new desires.

The spirit of man and woman again is young. You long for new scenes... for new clothes... for new surroundings. A tradition, old as civilization, warns us that if we don't share in this newness, we will suffer from a feeling of defeat, of bitterness, of frustration, of old age creeping upon us prematurely.

Now is the time to buy something new for the house... for yourself... for those around you. Now is the time to plan ahead for a vacation... for a trip, no matter how short a distance it may be away from home... for a car, a boat or perhaps new fishing tackle.

It is a stirring time; and the advertisements are full of interesting news of things you need. You will find it pays to read them carefully — to be sure of satisfaction — to make your dollars go farther.
