PROBERS DELVE IN SILVER SHIRT REVOLT DETAILS

Congressional Sub-Committee Pushes Secret Hearings On Amazing Plot

EVIDENCE UNDER COVER World Complications Fanned By Counsel If Results Are Made Public

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8 (AP)—Behind closed doors, a congressional sub-committee today delved into allegations of the Silver Shirt League, which allegedly planned a "pull" last May to seize control of the city of San Diego as the first step in a revolution.

Secret hearings were ordered in the midst of a revolution in the "international complications" might arise out of the testimony.

Details Withheld Details of the fantastic plot were withheld on three hours of testimony yesterday. Volney Davis, Mooney, counsel for the sub-committee headed by Rep. Charles Kramer said:

"This evidence will never be made public, because it is so voluminous and so complicated that it would be impossible to make it public."

Subsequently, witnesses were warned not to attempt proceedings would be brought should they reveal anything to the press to avoid contact with reporters.

International complications were threatened on another front when Dr. George Gyanling, German vice consul, was invited and refused to testify. Diplomatic immunity exempted him from subpoena.

The connection with the case apparently, tested on similarity of the names of his private secretary and a "John H. Jones," head of the American Labor party. Neither was connected in open testimony with the Silver Shirt League.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—General Hugh S. Johnson today announced the new list of restrictions on small town business.

The order was explained as an outgrowth of President Roosevelt's relaxation of the NIRA's hold on small business last May.

Only last Saturday Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, NRA critic, offered free counsel to a small Idaho town, baker, who feared prosecution for violation of a supposed Blue Eagle order.

Two Restraints The only restraint continued in that on child labor and fair trade practices, except for price fixing.

The order applies to businesses in towns of 2,500 population or less. Exemption from hours, wages, operations, pre-empting and code authority assessments is granted.

Other types of present projects include drilling and construction of wells, cleaning and cribbing springs, cleaning rivers and creeks, straightening streams channels, improving canals, building by-pass canals and pumping.

CITIES PUBLIC DEVOTION 'Collapse of Many In Vast Crowd'

By FRIDERICK A. STORM ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 8 (AP)—Speaking at a program in honor of the famous Mayo brothers, President Roosevelt today declared that the unselfish service of medical leaders is necessary for the success of his own social program.

The president's program, announced by William J. Mayo and Dr. Charles H. Mayo, who he referred to as "neighborly fashions as Dr. Will and Dr. Charles."

Many in the audience of 50,000 were stricken by the heat and were relieved from the amphitheater for emergency treatment.

A blazing sun beat down, sending the temperature to above the 100 mark.

Strecher bearers moved through the crowd at the president talked, carrying the heat-stricken victims to improved first hospital.

Those of us who are concerned with the problems of government and economics," Mr. Roosevelt observed, "under special obligation to modern medicine in two very important respects."

Unprecedented Resources Move To Ease Suffering, Halt Future Repetition

RELIEF HELP ALLOTTED Ickes Orders New Speed for PWA Projects in Arid Territories

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—From almost every agency of the New Deal a tremendous flow of dollars poured into the arid regions of the Mississippi today, designed to ease human suffering and at the same time lessen the chances of disastrous droughts in the future.

The alphabetical agencies have marshaled unprecedented resources of cash and huge construction programs. Other government bodies, looking to the future, are planning, as well as may be, for the future crops of the east and normally fertile area.

Orders Speed Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, now on an inspection tour in the drought area, ordered his forces to expedite all construction projects affecting the drought areas.

Ickes revealed PWA had spent more than $300,000,000 in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Texas, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota and Oklahoma. He said $108,500,000 had been allotted.

NEW DEAL POURS CASH IN DROUGHT

Unprecedented Resources Move To Ease Suffering, Halt Future Repetition

Public works officials listed the following major projects they believe would alleviate drought suffering:

- 1. The $22,700,000 Casper-Alouva dam and reservoir in Wyoming.
- 2. The Fort Peck canal, dam and reservoir which will create a 170-mile-long artificial lake at the Missouri river's headwaters, I.W.A. thus far has spent $50,000,000 for the project.
- 3. Flood control, dam and channel work on the Mississippi river, financed by more than $85,000,000 of federal funds.
- 4. The construction, bank stabilization and government work on the Missouri river. Almost $25,000,000 has been spent.
- 5. Nebraska's Aid
- 6. The $4,500,000 Hamilton dam and reservoir on the Colorado river 10 miles above Austin, Tex.
- 7. Development of a drain in the "cotton basin" of the Luis valley, Colo., financed by $900,000.
- 8. The $10,000,000 power development projects on the Loup and Platte rivers in Nebraska.
- 9. The $4,500,000 Hamilton dam and reservoir on the Colorado river 10 miles above Austin, Tex.
- 10. Development of a drain in the "cotton basin" of the Luis valley, Colo., financed by $900,000.

I.W.A. agencies also have expended large sums on highways, and irrigation, Indian reservations, National parks, and subsistence homestead projects.

Drought Aid - Subsistence homestead officials said that were "using every effort" to speed up programs in drought-stricken states. More than $1,000,000 has been set aside. Low-cost housing units are under construction in Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

The relief administration spent $19,025,000 during July for drought relief. The bank account appropriated $25,000,000 for that purpose.

The drought has tempered AAA crop restriction plans but the fundamental idea remains, officials emphasized today.

Enough must be grown to assure an adequate and constant supply of food, feed and clothing, but not so much that crushing surpluses will reappear.

Two Farms Policies - To carry out this policy two programs were laid to be necessary. The first is the regular "adjustment" plan now in operation. It is so arranged farmers who sign AAA contracts may be called upon either to reduce, maintain at an accomplished level, or expand acreage.

The second is a storage plan, still in nebulous stages. In years of record crops farmers would hold record production of the market as insurance against famine in seasons of shortages. They would stock part of their grain and cotton on "float" until the market value of the commodities stored.

If another severe drought occurs, the hoarded supplies could be sold. If there was no demand for these stocks they would be released to the government.

Prominent Shoe Dealer Will Open New Establishment At Tacoma

Thomas McElwain, who for 18 years has been in the shoe business in Twin Falls, has announced the closing out of his store here and the opening of a larger store in Tacoma, Wash., where he will have the exclusive agency for Fiprahelm shoes. He has completed plans for an entirely modern shoe establishment in Tacoma, and says he expects to leave, with his family, about Sept. 1.

He reviewed the steady growth of his establishment, since he opened it 12 years ago and expressed regret at the necessity for breaking ties with friends and business associates.

McElwain has been active in many civic and community enterprises during his residence here.

The committee will have to get the comment of the German embassy in Washington. Dr. Gysling said in refusing to appear.

Names Similar - He said the check in question had been endorsed by his secretary, E. W. Rohmer, to cash for his personal expense.

He emphatically characterized the confusion of names as "a foolish mistake."

Only the similarity of names connected Dr. Gysling in any way with the investigation. A witness testified, however, that the Silver Shirts were "sympathetic with the Nazis."

Two witnesses accepted the witness stand during the short open hearing. Both indicated they were unofficial agents but neither was identified with the United States secret service. S. B. EL

DEMOCRATIC Candidate for OF TWIN FALLS

I believe it is the law of every citizen to assist and work out any problem of our country. I believe in a fair and just law and the public and the young men and women of our community.

I believe that your County requires that you should be ready to assist in the work of the County Board.

I believe in a country and fairness. Your support in election will be appreciated.
