

WEST HOPES FOR $1 SILVER PRICE

Roosevelt's Purchase Decree May Bring Wilder Demand, Producers Think.

Idaho took the lead for the first time in years in 1923 due to development of the great Sunshine mine at Kellogg, Idaho. Previously, Utah was the leading state.

In Butte, Mont., much silver is recovered from copper deep mines.

So, fundamentally, the trend is over the price of copper, lead, zinc and other non-ferrous metals.

Silver is by-product, for the most part.

Tell Wages Day?

Yet, it was pointed out, one dollar per ounce silver would support many a poor load, zinc and copper nation. The tell might start wages day the dog pound dollar silver.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah Aug. 10 (UPI)—Here in the record of western silver production last year, estimated by the U. S. bureau of mines:

become a reality. But until that time no mineral producers in this section of the Rockies won't develop high blood pressure over the silver situation.

State Frank J. Maloney, operator of mines in Nevada, Utah, Montana and Idaho:

"It is step by step to the right direction but several more steps should be taken. We should keep on walking until we pass the dollar per ounce mark—and then take a few more steps."

Said F. H. Walker, representing the San Francisco mining exchanges:

"If this thing works out it will eliminate unemployment west of the Mississippi. The order should prove a spur to silver mining."

Scribe Opens Davis Cup Quest — But Meets Grief

BY THEON WRIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (UPI) — Sidney Wood and Frank Shulke, the last of the four young men who played on American Davis cup team and didn't win, come brought up sharply to give the ball "top." When the ball is induced the player in "topped" instead.

The wrist movement turns the racket into parallelism and the hand into a straight line, the grip being

HELP SETTLE THE QUESTIONS

The great questions of the day in Idaho are: Who will be nominated to run for governor and for congress? Aside from the county races these offices are the most hotly contested.

Both Republicans and Democrats have three aspirants for the gubernatorial nominations, while in the congressional race the Republicans have eight candidates, and the Democrats mustered seven.

Few persons are gambling on the results, although by the end of the week the races should narrow in both instances.

Right now it appears that this section is not going to be left entirely in the cold, what with Wilson, Democrat, and Stephan, Republican, seeking the governorship, and with Yeamans and Robertson, Democrats, and Hackman and Dworshak, Republicans making strong campaigns.

With such a large number of candidates on both tickets for the congressional nominations, it appears to be any man's race on both tickets. Such a few votes might change the balance.

Interest in the election is increasing noticeably, as the result of the several rivalries, and will be the means of bringing out a large vote on election day.

It is up to the people to register before the closing of the books Saturday night, and to make certain they go to the polls next week, so that the sentiment of the electorate will have been registered.

No one who fails to take an interest in the campaign and who does not vote, can have any particular complaint over the results.

Help decide the choice of your public officials at the primary, Tuesday.

THE COUNTRY COULDN'T WAIT

Long after recovery from the depression has been completed, we shall probably be arguing earnestly about what caused the recovery.

Was it due to this, that, or the other specific measure adopted at Washington? Or did it come-of-itself, in spite of what Washington did?

This argument has begun already.

On one side you have the theory that our cyclical swing, from prosperity to depression and back again, has been steadily increasing in velocity for half a century, and that this last time it carried our economy down so far that our whole social organization would have collapsed if a remedy had not been applied.

On the other, there is the belief that this depression differed little from its predecessors, and that recovery would have proceeded just as fast—if not, in fact, a little faster—if Washington had kept its hands off entirely.

This latter viewpoint is expressed by Neil Carothers, director of the College of Business Administration at Lehigh University.

Economists, says Prof. Carothers, realize that the causes of a depression "spring from our system of capitalistic production, in which goods are made far in advance of the market by means of borrowed credit and invested funds. It seems to be established that depression comes when this credit-securities-investment system of production becomes overstimulated."

Now this, says Prof. Carothers, is a system which inevitably rights itself. It never quite capsizes. Economists, he adds, "know that the only cure is that one remedy for all human ills—time."

The chief trouble with this theory seems to be its belief that human affairs are carried on in a vacuum.

When an economist talks of producers, consumers, investors, and so on, he is not speaking of units in an academic chess game; he is speaking of human beings who have a native way of getting angry when they lose their money and their jobs, and who will stand privation only about so long before they go out to bust something.

A depression like the last one might right itself, if given plenty of time; but the people who are living through it are apt to tear the house down while they are waiting.

Depending on time to effect a cure is like depending on time to relieve an attack of acute appendicitis; it may work—and, on the other hand, the patient may die.

In a highly organized country like ours, which happens also to be a democracy, it is impossible to let nature take its course in an acute depression. The strain on the social fabric is too great.

Talk of geysers in Yellowstone national park losing power, says the former director of that park, is just so much gush.

Our own politicians might take a tip from Hitler. He makes himself sole ruler and then lets the people vote for him.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGUN HERE TODAY
JANE FERRY comes to New York from the West where she has been a success of her life. Amy has been a success of her life, too, but Jane and Amy Jackson broke the engagement Jane had forced upon them.

In New York Jane obtains a position in a real estate office and finds she has no work with Roger Thorne, married, but there is a chance for her old love. Jane is temporarily disengaged, but she is determined to reveal the truth.

Jane, who enters the World War Hospital, goes to a trading camp in Texas with Amy and little Nancy. Amy, who is expecting a child, has come home for a brief holiday, and then she tells Amy that Jane Ferry is coming to Marburg. Amy agrees to invite Jane to tea.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIV

WHEN Amy learned that Jane and Miss Ross had accepted the invitation and were actually coming to tea, her first reaction was a quickening and tightening of the nerves. She could not help it. "Suppose we see Mother and Alice," she suggested to Howard, "and then—then—"

"Jane Ferry is coming to Marburg," she told Amy. "She is coming to tea. You mustn't be afraid."

"I'm afraid, Nancy. She'll be here to come in the moment this time to have the little girl born again. She won't be seeing her. She might come, and Jane was always ready to take advantage of weakness."

"Of course, Nancy! I am stupid!" Nancy was remonstrative. "She'll adore it. And she's awed with people. See, Amy, and show-off-like so many children!"

So it was established that Nancy should be there and wear her Christmas red dress—it tailored her fair skin. Nancy should have a cup of camomile tea, and a cookie or two with the grownups. "I wonder if it's wrong," thought Amy. "When Jane comes what a darling she is! I might want her. Mayne I ought to keep her out of sight."

The decision plagued her, but she did not change it. "There's never any one being a coward," she thought, as she gave an extra shine to the silver, laid out lace-edged napkins, filled the sugar-bowl, arranged her tea-table at the side of the fireplace. She had not told Howard in her hurry letter that Jane was there. She would wait until the tea-party was over. Then who could be definite? When everything was ready, she dressed in good taste and came downstairs, before Mary to play herself into a color mood with bits of the Wall-Papered Chiffon and who was still playing when Alice arrived. She was a little clumsy, for the day's use of her body was gone, but she felt better, clearer, the mind had done that. Alice begged to bring the hot water and start the kettle.

"It's a hoot," said Alice. "Mary, Mary's to pour the tea and you can do the rest. I'm going to sit down and be a lady at a party

"AND was I silly to get myself and Howard all worked up about it?" thought Amy. "I might have known that Jane wouldn't care."

Alice poured the tea. The talk went on. Mary Jackson drawing Jane out, the others listening. Jane was very prima donna. She was exquisitely dressed, natty, half-complexion groomed with style and dash.

Any found herself enjoying the performances. Jane saying, "What delicious home-made cookies!" with the faintest accent on the home-made; Jane unashamedly noticing the broken poker handle and the clip in the sofa chagr. Jane's tales of her new office and her great difficulty in finding really efficient employees.

"Alice was the best to have," then Mrs. Lowe. As Miss Ross and Jane said gaily. Mary Jackson asked Amy: "Are you going to throw up this evening? don't I hear you're late?" and Jane, overheard

"Alice, Jane, you silly! I never thought of such a thing! Don't be childish. And for heaven's sake don't raise up old nonsense about Howard! I hadn't the least idea—" She was talking to the air. Jane was stalking off down the dining room path alone.

PAUL MALLON'S NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-Moving Events in the Nation's Capital by an Expert Interpreter and Commentator.
(Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon)

WASHINGTON—A foremost financial advisory service told its clients confidentially a few days ago that Senator George H. W. Norris will be the Republican presidential candidate in 1936. That would not mean much to you unless you happened to know that, on the inside, the prediction really came from a topnotch insider in the Hoover administration who is even yet close to Hoover.

How much it means, after you know that, also may not be clear. The most popular theory is that Senator Norris, the old-line man, feels the ungodly thoughts of the sphinx of Palo Alto. If true, that would be interesting, particularly in view of the incompatibility of Borah and Hoover during the latter days of the Hoover administration.

OPPOSITION

Shortly after the backfiring Borah boom was launched, Congressman Culkin, of New York, arose at a Republican county meeting there and said: "Bertrand Snell, number one boy of the home, born a Negro—He's our party candidate for President!"

Mr. Culkin might as well have launched his boom confidentially, because all the notice he got was three paragraphs on page 18 of the New York Times.

But that makes two Republican candidates who have been pushed out on the stage now, whether anyone knows about it or not.

BACKGROUND

Snell is one of the few New Republicans still holding a high official position. Everyone has expected for some time that he would be put forward seriously by his friends.

But this mention of Borah has a more interesting origin and background. Even some of his enemesis in the House can picture thinking for a moment that Borah is the strongest man who could be nominated in the existing situation. The Republicans want the farm states back, and Borah is the logical man to get them. He is leading much of the most serious opposition to the New Deal.

Yet those who know Borah most intimately are convinced he will be drafted. Inwardly, he is more angry about the Republican set-up than he is about the New Deal. A rather widespread organization of young Republicans has clustered around him out through the middle West, the West and the South, and he is a man who would whether he would care to undertake a presidential campaign in his 71st year (he is 80 now) is another question. He certainly would not consent to be a sitting duck.

CRITICISM
There has been more inside than outside criticism about President Roosevelt going off to Hawaii for such a length of time while a more-than-seasonal summer slump was in progress.

For that reason, the president will spend less time at Hyde Park and Warm Springs than had been planned for the next four months. However, further criticism cannot legitimately be made regarding excursions to those two places, as he usually takes the capital with him when he goes.

PRICE-FIXING
The price-fixing feature of NRA has been more widely noticed than the secret cabinet committee appointed to go into the legality and advisability of federal price-fixing measures. The report will advise against price fixing.

NOTES
Our students of foreign affairs are beginning to wonder if Hitler is really trying to step out of his old character. They noted that his Von Hindenburg speech showed a striking recognition in contrast with his previous speeches and acts.

The brain trust has certainly scattered. Prof. Warren is writing for the Committee for the Nation and his ex-pal, Prof. Rogers, is in India trying to find out what makes silver glitter. They could not be further apart.

A Democratic senator, down south, is conducting his whole campaign for re-election with

WOOL MEN PLAN GATHERING HERE

Mid-Year Convention Listed
For City After Annual Ram Sale

Mid-year convention of the wool growers of the city will be held Aug. 16 according to D. H. Smith, Ashland, Oregon, president of the association. The meeting will follow the annual ram sale which will be held that day at Eller. At the public auction 800 rams of Hampshire, Suffolk, Suffolke-Hampshire, and Lincoln breeds will be sold, Smith said.

Demonstration of the new legislation passed by the last congress which places under contract the grazing lands of the public domain will form part of the program. Other discussions will include the old ewe buying program if definite action has been taken to start such a drought relief measure in the reducing of the ranges of old ewes no longer fit for breeding purposes.

H. L. McLean, manager of the National Wool Growers' association, who was in Washington last evening, during the passage of emergency measures, hearing on the sheep industry, will be a speaker on the program.

Jane abandoned the subject and took up another. "Aunt Ross told Howard I looked rather worn when he was here and she said he seemed to have changed a good bit—he wasn't sociable and gay like he used to be."

"Oh, my dear!" said Amy, shirly, having a very good time. "How absurd! He didn't look a bit worn but awful well."

It was fun to annoy Jane. Amy was wickedly diverted by the way it was coming on. "He had been wrought up and down and frightened, all this was the reverse. Jane had enjoyed an hour of display at the tea-party and that was enough. Amy had no more than a natural wish to check and punctuate Jane's high-flying patronage. She found it comic, but she didn't mean to put up with it. Not for a moment. So she was totally unprepared for the outburst of anger which hit her. Right-minded defense provoked.

"Go ahead. Don't me of it!" Jane cried furiously. "Your do me, ordering Howard! And let me remind you that you sneaked behind my back and took him away from me. If you hadn't fit very well we'd have deviated and adored Howard now. Instead of yours. You want everything—you only ask me to your house to throw it in my face that you're no happier than I am."

"Why, Jane, you silly! I never thought of such a thing! Don't be childish. And for heaven's sake don't raise up old nonsense about Howard! I hadn't the least idea—" She was talking to the air. Jane was stalking off down the dining room path alone.

PICK CAREFULLY, CAVANAGH SAYS

Declaras Legislature Session Will Be Most Important In State History

"The approaching session of the state legislature promises to be the most important in the history of Idaho," said Dan J. Cavanagh, Twin Falls Democratic county chairman and candidate for representative-at-large. "It is the most important session since the statement made by Governor Clegg in his budget message that nearly a quarter million acre feet of water could be preserved in American Falls reservoir in need for winter than in the time to the Twin Falls reservoir," he added.

Cavanagh pledges his support to the co-operation of legislation with the federal acts passed by the last session of congress.

In the last session of the house he was chairman of public works committee, and also was a member of the banking, appropriations,eronautics, steering, and sitting committee. Owing to his former service in the house he feels he is better qualified than ever to serve his constituency. He said he has "no hesitancy in standing on his record, and gladly invite any criticism if any there be."

CHAPMAN URGES MARTIN SUPPORT

Prominent Democrat Praises Aspirant, Raps Record Of Gov. Ross

An appeal for support of Frank Martin, one of three Democratic aspirants for nomination as governor on the Democratic ticket, was made here last night by Orr Chapman, Twin Falls attorney, and spokesman for the party, in a prepared speech which he delivered at the Hotel Meissner, both hotel and audience which numbered approximately 100.

He denounced the administration of Gov. C. H. Ross and made his behalf of the candidates of Sen. T. Dan Connor, Eller, and Sheriff E. F. Prater, both seeking renomination on the Democratic ticket.

Chapman is scheduled to speak tonight at Pocatello, and at Idaho Falls Saturday evening.

"Grand Old Man"

Martin, Chapman said, "is the mentor of the Idaho bar, a sterling pioneer, an splendid Democrat—in brief, that grand old man of Idaho Democracy."

He added that under Martin the party could "restore the government of the state of Idaho to the people's electorate."

Chapman restored a charge a week ago that Governor Ross, according him of building up a political machine, of perpetuating the cabinet form of government in violation of "the oft-repeated personal promise and the solemn pledge" of his party, and rated the chief executive for making a third term "against precedent."

Challenges Ross

The governor's attitude toward agriculture, labor, party organization, the wet and dry issue, Gunneman's prosecution, and the national administration was challenged, and he added that "irregularities have occurred in the state highway department with respect to highway construction."

In paying tribute to Senator Connor, he assailed the Democracy of his opponent, Mayor Duncan McD. Johnston, and said that "before any person received honors at the hands of the Democratic party he at least should have supported the Democratic ticket in our election campaign."

Supports Prater

He urged Prater's reelection because he said that official was "honest, industrious, efficient, honest and trained."

His hearers were asked to register and to vote. "If we select the best available timber as nominees for the various offices throughout the state and counties, the Democratic ticket, with supporting the administration and the program of President Roosevelt, will deserve to win, and will win, and with Frank Martin as its leader in this state, it will bring the New Deal to Idaho."

YOUTH RECOVERS AFTER ACCIDENT

William French Brought to Home of Parents After Mystery Mishap

William F. French, Jr., 20, victim of a mysterious accident 60 miles south of Pocatello, died yesterday in recovering at the home of his parents here, having been brought from the hospital at Pocatello early yesterday by his father. The young man believed to be suffering from brain concussion.

A deputy sheriff of Oxford, Idaho, saw him walking on the road near there a week ago last night, and the next morning received an anonymous phone call stating there was a man lying along the highway. French was taken to Pocatello in an unconscious condition and carried several miles without the arms and shoulders around his neck. The young man's father went to Pocatello immediately upon learning of the accident, and brought him home early yesterday.

MONGREL SAVES MAN IN SWAMP

HUDSON CITY, N. J., Aug. 10 (UPI)—Steve Lacey, 30, of Union City, owed his life today to the bloodhound strain in Chuck, a pet dog of somewhat uncertain origin owned by Mark Hampson.

Chuck's owner, who lives in a "mountain" already, was shot in his ancestry, because he followed a trail for 7 hours after smelling one of Lacey's shoes and led police to where Lacey was hunk up to his neck in a bog.

Lacey, unemployed, went into Recapture swamp to pick herbs for his wife and five children and slipped into the bog. Barely ill from mosquito bites and exposure, he was taken to Clark's hospital, where it was said he probably would live.

Taps Sounds for Last Veteran of Alabama Troop

MILFORD, Ala., Aug. 10 (UPI)—Taps sounded today for the last member of Company I, 2nd Alabama Confederate regiment, as they bore E. J. Darlin, 86, to his final resting place.

Darlin entered the gray ranks at the age of 16, enlisting a ruse. "They called me if I was over 16," Darlin related, relating in his words, "I lied and said I was, although my age was only 15. A friend had told me how to get by the age test. I had written on the number 'one' and 'eight' on separate pieces of paper and placed them in the pocket of my clothes. So, technically, I was over 18."

JOHNSTON TALKS TO BUHL GROUP

Twin Falls Mayor Outlines His Program in State Senator Race

BUHL, Aug. 10 (Special)—In conjunction with county candidates of all parties at a meeting of the New Deal Club here last night was followed by an address by Mayor Duncan McD. Johnston, running for the nomination as state senator on the Democratic ticket.

He outlined his platform platform, pledging himself to work for the payment of old age pension by the state instead of by the counties, and to eliminate the twin county commissioners and their clerk instead of a new one county. He said the change had been brought about by his opponent for the nomination, Sen. T. Dan Connor, Eller.

Among the candidates introduced were James F. Alshia, for supreme court justice; John H. Robertson, for congress; Harry W. Barry and J. R. Crawford, for state representatives; Ray E. Wilkinson and George R. Hart, for county commissioners, and E. F. Prater, for sheriff. J. W. Taylor, prosecuting attorney candidate, preceded.

Power Concern and Barber Shop Stage Open House Today

Featuring modern air conditioning equipment, open house is being held today by the Idaho Power company and by the Sanitary Barber shop, 132 Main Avenue north.

At the Sanitary shop refrigerating equipment, installed by the Detweller Coal company, local distributor for Frigidaire, is being demonstrated, and at the power company's office—incorporated air conditioning, on Main Street, installed by W. H. Reiter, is shown.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Jane Moore; two children, Ralph Moore and Mrs. Carl Eichna, both of Parma; four step-children, C. M. Holman and Mrs. L. R. Vaughn, Richfield; Mrs. S. F. Combs, Buhr; and Mrs. C. F. Wathen, Meridian; and a brother, Paul Moore, Stillwater, Okla.

Extensive damage to an Orange Transportation company truck resulted when it turned over at the southeast corner of Filer and Main this morning, officials of the concern stated today.

The vehicle was righted, but could not be moved. It was learned following an investigation made by sheriff's officers at a highway traffic officer. The driver, E. A. Young, escaped uninjured, as did Max Pink, pioneer Twin Falls hardware buyer, whose light truck was also damaged when it collided with the larger one.

Accounts of the accident state that Pink had approached the highway from Main street, entering the triangle formed by Main and west. Young is reported to have received his machine in an effort to avoid striking the pink truck, and in so doing ran off the highway where the larger vehicle turned over. It was en route to Boise, and contained a variety of merchandise.
