Other track events, Grange drills and a 4-H club girls' styling review kept a large crowd in the grandstand during the entire afternoon.

Dun & Bradstreet See Hope For Expansion Gaining U. S. Headway

NEW YORK. Aug. 24 (UPI)—Indications of a vigorous expansion of business this fall are stronger now than they were a month ago, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said in a weekly trade review today.

TRADE UPTRENDS LOOM STRONGER

Late summer in some sections of the country may delay the fall upswing, "but the buying movement gives promise of developing to a greater degree of intensity than last year, and its continuance over a more protracted period will leave less of a gap before commencement of the new buying season," Dun & Bradstreet said.

"Business and improving business are, according to Dun & Bradstreet: "The local travel season since 1934."

"More generous release of funds for federal home-renovation program broadens hope for long awaited revival of building trade."

Proposed to simplify the NRA administration which will help business to proceed with less interference.

Majority of strikes have been settled "and the interest which the government is taking in dispelling the threats of outbreaks during the next month gives hope that the strike wave may be definitely on the ebb."

Reports on retail distribution provided basis for more encouraging than at any time since last April. The news above the abnormal expansion of a year ago is placed conservatively at 5 per cent.

Bucking Horse Listed

William Riley's entire string of bucking horses has been contracted and will be one of the main attractions. Some of the best riders in the country have notified the committee of their intention to compete.

The Chamber of Commerce and the Sorosis club are rapidly completing arrangements for their exhibition.

Crowning of the rodeo queen will be a feature of the first day's program, followed by a big parade in which there will be approximately 30 floats entered in Gooding's annual festival. Invitations have been extended to Gov. C. Ben Ross and Sen. William E. Borah to lead the parade.

On Monday, Aug. 27, a booster trip headed by car containing a public address system, will make a tour of the entire south side and the towns this side of the river.

BURLEY YOUTH, 18, DROWNS IN RIVER

Ray Clark, Home on Furlough From U. S. Navy, Loses Life in Snake

BURLIN, Aug. 24 (Special) — Ray Clark, 18-year-old son of Mrs. Ruby M. Spangler, Burley, drowned here yesterday afternoon at an old Snake river swimming beach one quarter mile east of the Overland bridge. He was seized by cramps, according to Vern Moyer, Burley High school girl, who was the companion.

Miss Moyer called for help when he went down, and a large number of people who gathered almost immediately searched for an hour and a quarter before the youth's body was recovered 50 feet below the place where he had disappeared. The search was led by Sheriff Preley Pace and Chief of Police Clark. Artificial respiration proved useless.

The youth left his sophomore high school classes last year to enlist in the United States navy and returned last Saturday on a furlough.

The body rests at the D. E. Johnson funeral home.

CHITTA, Siberia— Been wall-ing to a town that American readers could pronounce Chitta, that's an old American word. Came up through Korea, then the length and breadth of Manchuria. Was two days on the Chinese Eastern railway. That's the one way to buy a ticket, like this fine sis won't sell. She just kid-ding them. Tell you, some time about all the military preparations on both sides. I had some time I would tell you. This is the heart of eastern Siberia. All a beautiful prairie, not a tree, not a fence. Just break up to your stirrups. Tomorrow we pass around beautiful Lake Baikal.

U.S. OPENS NEW OUTLAW EFFORTS

Pushes Hunt for "Baby Face Nelson After Ambuscade Kills Van Meter

Van Meter's association with Dillinger began in the Indiana state reformatory. Because of an unruly record both were transferred to the penitentiary at Michigan City. Later both were paroled. They had been close friends and entered several robberies together. Van Meter collaborated in planning the escape of 12 former inmates from the penitentiary, and then led the 12 in robbing the Dillingers' home at Lihua, O.

Six New Dead

Since that day six members of the gang have been killed. Several others are in prison. Only four—Nelson, Dillinger, Joseph Burns and George Peck—are at large.

Joseph Jenkins, one of the men who escaped from Michigan City, was shot soon after the break. Herbert Youngblood, Negro who bluffed his way out of Crown Point jail with Dillinger, was shot in Michigan. Eugene Green was shot in Chicago in April by federal agents, and Tommy Carroll, gunman de luxe, was killed in a battle at Waukegan, Ill., June 7. Dillinger was the last of the gang to die prior to last night.

Nelson is rated as national public enemy No. 1 since Dillinger's death. He is particularly wanted for slaying Federal Officer W. Carter Baum in escaping from a raid on a gang hideout at Little Bohemia lodge near Spider Lake.

"Finger Man"

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 24 (UPI)—Homer Van Meter, son of Wayne outlaw slain by police at St. Paul, Minn., last night, was the "finger man" for the famed Dillinger gang.

It was Van Meter who laid plans for bank robberies, raids on police arsenals and other depredations of the gang.

Of all the Dillinger gangsters, Van Meter was the only one to appear before a court of law. He was bound to be, officials said.

For that reason he was content to stay in the background and let the other mobsters do the actual bank robbing.

Fierce Fighter

But Van Meter had a rat-like courage. He was a fierce fighter when his back was against the wall.

Possessed with an ingratiating personality, Van Meter was able to perform tasks for his gang which sound like fiction.

The most notable example was the Peru police "fattening job."

Van Meter walked into the Peru police station one night and asked for a policeman who had gained considerable fame locally for solving a big case.

Feasted Palaeon

He told the policeman that he was a writer for a detective story magazine and wanted to write about his work in the case.

The policeman told his story, then he showed the gangster around the station, pointing proudly to the new arsenal, containing machine guns, bulletproof vests and uniforms.

Van Meter thanked the policeman and promised to send him a copy of the story.

The next night John Dillinger and Harry Pierpont walked into the station, held up the men on duty and cleaned out the arsenal.

New Group Marshalling Forces For Probe of Recovery Program

"Any suggestion that I am cooperating with the Republican party or the Republicans in Indiana is just pure invention. Such a movement has been brought to my attention but I am not taking part in it."

Similarly reassuring quotations were offered by Senators Harry F. Byrd, D., Va.; Josiah W. Bailey, D., N. C.; Thomas P. Gore, D., Okla.; and Millard Tydings, D., Md. All of them, bated the New Deal-time-to-time during the 73rd Congress.

BEE HIVE GROUP PLANS PROGRAM

Twin Falls Bee Hive girls will give a realistic campfire scene for their part of the Swapna day program to be given tomorrow at 2:30 in the Little Day Bants tabernacle.

In fact, nearly 80 per cent of the cases offered state assistance in attacks from the disease were treated in special hospitals and sanatoria. When the disease became imperative removal of the patient becomes imperative according to the policy at present being followed by the medical doctors.

The "electric" banditry came into the world about 1886.

Actress Advice to Let Spouse

Divorce Suit

(Copyright, 1934, United Press) HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24 (UPI) — Mrs. Gregory Ratoff, former actress, was receiving her mail at the home of Sue Carol, film star, today despite a superior court injunction that all mail for her own home go to "anonymity."

"I listened to the judge, but when I got home I found Al and another man asleep in the bedroom—I thought of sleeping on the davenport," she added, "but then I realized how ridiculous the whole situation was."

Under terms of a court order, Mrs. Ratoff was allowed $300 monthly maintenance but was told to share her home with her husband. She has filed a complaint in her divorce plea.

And there will probably be a lot more coming after that, Franckie was told by film executives.

A $5,000 damage suit against Joe Egli, film director, was dismissed by Alberta Vaughn, attorney, for a very good reason.

Miss Vaughn asked that amount for injuries received while riding with Egli in his car before, during, and after it was involved in a collision.

That was a year ago. Things are different now, her attorney told the court. Egli and Miss Vaughn eloped to Yuma last April, he admitted.

Hires Boat To Fete Friends

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (UPI) — Harry Couch, retiring insurance corporation executive, has chartered a Potowmack River steamer so he may give farewell party to more than 2,000 Washington associates.

He has invited the 1,400 employees of the R. E. C. and the 600 members of the Arkansas State society. The excursion will take place next Monday. Sandwiches and pop will be served.

Canada's poultry population is said to be six times greater than its human population.

Stomping down on the accelerator full force ("floor board socking") pumps gasoline into the cylinders faster than it can be used economically. Super-Shell, because it is "balance-refined," contains the volatile "QUICK ACTING FRACTIONS" that give lightning pick-up. Thus you always get faster response (and less waste). And you don't need to "sock the floor board."

NEW DEALERS

Twin Falls is the meeting place today for a group of enthusiasts who have organized under the banner of the Young Democratic clubs.

It was only last week that similar group of Young Republicans met at McCall and perfected a statewide organization.

These groups are typical of the times. They are evidences that the younger generation not only wants to be heard in the present scheme of things, but intends to take a hand in the scheming.

In the national government, younger men are playing important roles. This is a part of the New Deal. Developing rapidly is the Junior Chamber of Commerce movement—for young men. And now the youth of the land invade the staid ranks of party politics.

The net result, doubtlessly, will be that there will be a refreshing addition to the party ranks, with some new ideas implanted in campaigns, elections and government itself.

In addition the young political clubs will go a long way in educating new voters in their responsibilities.

What develops at the first state convention of the Young Democrats clubs here today and tomorrow will be important in the present campaign. After all, the purpose of the organization is to elect to office the candidates of its party.

Twin Falls welcomes the group and trusts that the convention will mark the founding of a statewide organization which will be permanent in character.

AN URGENT PROBLEM

If, as Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins once remarked, an outbreak of strikes is a sign of recovery, we must be heading back toward prosperity at a terrific clip. The strike vote which will call out half a million textile workers on Sept. 1, unless some speedy adjustment be made, is only the latest in a rapidly increasing list of bitter industrial disputes.

And whatever the significance of these strikes may be, as regards recovery, one thing is certain: they are horribly expensive things for everybody involved, and they constitute a pretty heavy load for our reviving industrial machinery to bear.

In spite of the N.R.A.'s fine words, we haven't yet found a very efficient way of adjusting them, or preventing them; and a discovery of that kind comes close to being the most pressing need of the day.

CONFLICTING POWERS

One of the oddest conflicts within the machinery of the New Deal is coming up for settlement just now. The administration is pondering the overlapping fields presided over by the N.R.A. and the federal trade commission, and it is hinted in Washington that these two bodies may eventually be combined.

The federal trade commission is a body set up to see that industry be kept from making large scale combinations that might be against public policy. Its theory dates straight back to the old anti-trust days. The N.R.A., on the other hand, holds that a large degree of industrial combination is both necessary and wise.

Thus, naturally, there has been a good deal of conflict. It is high time that it be straightened out. The government can hardly fight combination with one hand and help it with the other.

ONLY HALF A MILE AWAY!

There is something exceedingly eerie and pleasantly shivery about Dr. William Beebe's descent into the ocean depths in his "bathysphere." By sinking half a mile below the surface in his steel sphere, this scientist has explored a whole new universe. He has seen a region which, certainly, no man ever saw before.

These stories about his trip make excellent reading. Dr. Beebe peers out of his windows and sees a place of everlasting night and everlasting silence. Monstrous forms, oddly illuminated with myriads of lights, glide slowly past. The whole scene is one that few might have invented.

Here, indeed, is exploring in the grand style. Flying into the stratosphere or hiking to the poles hardly compares with it. Dr. Beebe travels a scant half mile—and sees a new world!

"A Governor Guided by Divinations," is the title of a contribution by W. H. Gillis, former Filer attorney, which is published in the September issue of American Mercury. Gillis, now practicing law at Weiser, is a former speaker of the Idaho house of representatives, and was attorney-general. His article, which appears in The State of the Union department of the magazine, is certain to create no little controversy, especially during the present campaign for it is a critical analysis of the political career of the chief executive.

Two famous bridge experts got into a fist fight at a recent tournament. And they weren't partners, either.

BIGGEST HICKE TODAY

ROBERT RAECHURN, 18, and his mother, Mrs. Raechurn, a slender girl of 16, live in the small town of York, suburb. The Raechurns have had reverses and boots twice not without strife.

MARYA DIVINSKY, slender girl in her late teens, is a member of the Yacht Club and Boots' sweetheart because she is not invited to "knit-in" parties and birthday parties, and she is not invited to go swimming with the girls.

CLIQUE HIGHLIGHTS—WATERMAN

Next day Boots overcomes her crowd discussing her. Mrs. Waterman, who says only when she has a date with Marya does she feel like her Boots' mate, shows shock and surprise by this announcement.

CLOWN ON WEDNESDAY

CHAPTER III

"WHO was that brought you home?" Mrs. Raechurn, established in a deep chair on the porch, with her endless knitting, asked merrily as the girl came up the steps.

"Oh, just nobody at all. The man who teaches the younger swimming at the club."

Mrs. Raechurn pursed up her thin lips over so slightly and, although she made no further comment, her daughter knew the incident had displeased her. Dinty Adrian was not very well; everyone knew him but Dinty's inner circle was a little closed corporation. Now come were looked upon with the darkest suspicion. Although a few minutes from the apex of Manhattan, the small, compact suburban town had the tightness and narrowness of spirit which might have belonged to some provincial village far removed from any center of civilization.

Boots went on into the house, nodding to Linda, who was setting the table on the side porch. This morning, everything had been lovely. Birds, sunshines, flowers, even the smell of soda as Linda sang over her wash ... all had contributed to Boot's sense of well being. But now a cloud hung over all. The girls who pretended to be her friends had taunted her openly, cruelly. Well, she would go to the party tonight. She would show them how much—or how little—she cared.

"Not hungry?"

She came back from her dreams to say halloos with the salad, "Too hot, I guess."

"Do you have a good awin'?" Her cheeks flamed with the memory of it. "It was all right."

"I declare, Barbara," her mother's frosty voice came to her ear in a clatter, "I declare, I don't know what's on earth Daddy renewed his membership in that club this year for, anyhow. You act sometimes as though you didn't care about it, and we could ill afford it."

Familiar words. Familiar words, but Boots scarcely listened. Occupied with her own thoughts, her own misery, she let her mother drone on.

To make matters worse you lot let every Tom, Dick and Harry drive you home. Who'd I was a girl!"

It didn't matter. It would be over soon.

No more upbush! Boots almost snapped to the surprised Linda who, with a rather battered appearance on her haphazard, was handling around the dish again.

Sighs, indeed, when her heart was breaking!

But later in the cool of dusk when bathed, powdered and scented, she presented herself at the living room door for her mother's approval. Boots' spirits had lifted a little. After all it was midsummer, she was young, and

She had never danced before with anyone whose step fitted her own so perfectly.

Nowhere along the shore vienna were tuning up for the movement of the dance.

"Looks nice!" Mrs. Raechurn said, of the crisp, billowing organdie. Boots knew her.

"I'll just run you down, dear, and stop to meet the 7:10 as I come back," said Mrs. Raechurn, capably. This was one of her "good days," her daughter observed, with quiet satisfaction. Mrs. Raechurn often said, with a certain melancholy air of quiet pride, "We subject to bad headaches."

The two women spoke little, threading their way through streets shaded by the rays of the late sun. Everywhere lawn sprinklers played and small children, kept on beyond their usual haunts, hour became of the heat and "daylight sayings" played dolorously in idle yards. It was all very pleasant, very domestic and peaceful.

"Have a good time, dear," Boots clutched her brief wrap of brown chiffon velvet around her and went swiftly up the flagged walk to the door. The doorman smiled at her. "Evening, Miss Boots."

Mrs. Waterman, a dowager with entirely marcelled silver hair and a dynamic air of being equal to any situation, trudged her matinees thither toward the young girl.

"So, like you could come, my dear. Ours is the table in the west window. I always like to be in the west window ... one goes the sun out."

Boots, who knew the younger set always chose the east room because the long veranda gave onto the sound, winking it possible for endearing flirtations to be carried on under cover of starlight and the lapping waves, smiled brightly in return.

It was even as she had expected. Not a soul at Mrs. Waterman's table was under 60. Miss Florida Flaming, the village "spaceman," enveloped in black tulip with hand and silver in her hair gray looped and only hair, no hands Mr. Waterman old William Francis himself. Vincent Paul Halligan, who taught English at the high school and coached the amateur players to Shakespeare in his spare time, was there with a host of brown organdie on one shoulder, looked coolly past her, but Halligan smiled and Patty nodded coolly and the boys said, "Hello, Boots," as she danced虐待地 past them. She could feel the sting of Sylvia's calm, disdainful, unsmiling smile as she passed.

Someone—it was the older Adrian boy who fancied himself a bit of a master of ceremonies at these affairs—silenced the orchestra for a moment and announced a "change partners" interval.

Boots slipped out of Mr. Halligan's arms on the music stopped and the drums "ta-ta-ta" filled the air. She still held her head gallantly but with all her soul who was wishing to be out of this warm, crowded room, with its trailing, luring, life confetti, in a confusion of melting silence an inflationary psychology and thus stimulate buying.

PROSPECTS

This is just one of the plans being talked about. In fact, it is the only logical inflationary plan being discussed. There is no reason to believe it will be adopted. Instead, there are very good reasons for believing that the government has made no definite monetary plan and that it is more than thirty days off course. It seems to be holding in a way along cautiously, with no commitments publicly or privately, indefinitely delaying the decision until it sees what the future economic situation will turn out to be.

Nothing could be done about this plan anyway until November 6. The government allowed ninety days for action of silver and the ninety-day period will expire then. Also, the congressional session ends and the full handing of the treasury will then be completed.

Joe Mark is down in your hat for a check along about November 15.

Hyde Park is a retreat where President Roosevelt can run wild in and out without any fear of being the whale.

HISTORY Of Twin Falls City & County

As Gleaned from Files of The Times

15 Years Ago

Mrs. David Oliver and Miss Alice Benoit will entertain on Wednesday evening to honor Miss Leahy Williams, whose marriage to Harry J. Benoit will take place Sept. 16.

Col. W. O. Waller, well known local auctioneer, who has just completed an engagement at the big Elmer rummage, leaves today for Salt Lake City to serve as one of the auctioneers at the coming sale of the National Wool Growers' association.

Mr. Lester, a farmer, residing four miles southwest of Kingbird, has produced a yield of alfalfa that sets a new record for that crop. From 17.6-18 acres of ground Mr. Lester has just harvested 273 bushels of alfalfa, which he has marketed for 40 cents per pound, or $10.60 for his entire crop.

County commissioners appoint the judges too often on the recommendation of some politician or precinct committeeman who is as ignorant of their qualifications as are the commissioners who have no means of knowing. Often these judges appoint clerks who are their friends, who sometimes may be efficient, but often slow and unreliable, all of which contributes to such conditions as existed in primary of Aug. 9.

Judges and clerks are no indication for competent help; $4 is maximum for primary and $6 for any general election, regardless of time actually served, which in No. 6 this last election amounted to less than 30 cents per hour, including continual night service. Now, Mr. Editor, can it be expected that competent people will long continue to give adequate service for one-half the pay of common labor as fixed by our present law?

We voted on 18th amendment in 1933, our governor saw fit to name the counting board and only permitted single board. Polls open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. The law says continuously open until 7 p.m. (Does any sane person expect this law to be broken?) When the law of hunger asserts itself, it is greater than any law of legislative creation.

I humbly ask . . . some common-sense changes in election laws to give election boards some consideration, whereby they may be able to give some information when called for.

Certainly some changes in present election laws could be advantageously made, and when pointed out may receive proper consideration.

REGEN HURTS TODAY.
BOOTS HAD BEEN IN and pretty belongs to the younger set here. Fabulous New Year's Eve party at Yacht Club, and danced reverently. RIVERA, RIVERA, rich girl in town, is also a party at Yacht Club and Boots is there. But she is not invited. She accepts an invitation to a dinner to be given by Sylvia's party by HIDE, WATERMAN, one of Sylvia's social contacts.

Boots overheard her, eyes wide, looking about, her acceptance of the invitation. "I wonder who it is," she thought. "I wonder if the Yacht Club she meets is HARDY WHITMORE, one of Sylvia's friends? I wonder if he comes for a ride in his automobile. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY."

CHAPTER IV

At Sylvia's table the glasses were filled and emptied; and filled again. Great red roses in a crystal vase, drooped to the heat and smoke and scuttled their petals on the white cloth. Food cooled on the plates, while girl and boy laughed, talked, danced and wandered back again.

Meanwhile, Hardy's absence did not go unnoticed. Patty's sharp eyes instantly caught it. Isabel was conscious of his departure and Sylvia herself, although apparently ignoring it, was perfectly aware of his defection.

One of the boys, with the malevolent intent of amusement, inquired slyly, "Where's Hardy got to?"

Isabel pounced her small slipper against him hard, shouting for silence.

It did not matter, really, to hardy to himself, anyway. There were more than enough men to go around. Why did they always have to know? To Sylvia—nay her feelings! She would not admit, even privately, the hold that Sylvia had on the crowd. Sylvia's parties, Sylvia's money and her big car and the friends that she drew in, were undoubtedly impressive. Sylvia's friends of the world, in her debt, in a way, and had to sing her favors. Laddie's father worked for Mr. Rivers, and when Patty's allowance fell short, it was Sylvia who came forward, having happened to know, and paid for Laddie's fare, train into the city, even silk stockings sometimes.

"As for me, I don't owe her anything," Isabel reflected, with satisfaction. "But, but she's really that black chiffon dress, when they were in the play together. Isabel had been asked to play Mrs. Hudnut in "Not for a Day" at the high school, and later Sylvia had made, with apparent cordiality: "I want you to keep it. No, but really, I mean it."

Isabel had been tempted beyond her strength. The black chiffon had made her creamy skin look creamy; it had brought out every subtle glint in her copper-colored hair. It was the sophisticated sort of fresh young girls drawn apart, and their mother's return to buy for them.

So she had kept it. And she had found, after that, it was not so easy to be simple and natural with Hardy. It was easier to fall in with her mood, play up to her, like hawk the contradictions that rose to one's lips when Sylvia made one of her cool, outrageous, extravagant pronouncements.

SYLVIA had not been able to buy Boots—not, in very truth, tried. No, from the instant they had met, not between the two girls, had been war—to the knife. And now (Isabel thought) Boots was committing the crowning crime of all, walking on with Sylvia's man.

"This party's died on its feet," Sylvia announced, suddenly, in a silence. "Let's do something. How Suddenly the girl heard her name called in the silence.

"Isabel! Isabel!"

shouted Henry!"

They gathered up their things;

Sylvia's white and olive bag, her feathery wrap, Patty's compact, Isabel's hatpin. It was late, Isabel thought. The older women had begun to look tired. And Boots' husband was not at Mrs. Waterman's table. Oh, well—

Just as Isabel skirted the mud-splashed dais, a shout went up out of doors. One of the men who always hung around the club—not exactly an attendant, just one of the "regulars" in blue jeans and a battered cap, went running down the pier. Isabel heard the words, "Man overboard!" She ran, too. Everybody, it seemed, was on the pier at once: batless girls in trail frocks, men in dinner clothes, others searching the black horizon.

"Young fool!" she heard a white-haired, mustached man say, angrily. Then a woman cried, "They've got him," and the words ran from mouth to mouth. "Hardy . . . it was Hardy . . . and everyone knew he was a white-with-a-black nail. What could have happened?

The night was calm, the sound was running smooth an black glass.

Isabel's heart began to beat very fast. She was fond of Boots—always had been. What if anything had happened to Boots?

She had lost the others now; Sylvia and Patty and Laddie were nowhere to be seen. She tried to ease over the shoulders of a tall man just in front of her and failed. Isabel was thoroughly frightened now. She pushed her way through the crowd, back toward the clubhouse. Some of the younger people were making great joke of the whole thing.

"Well, if they will get ashasted!" she heard a high, giddy voice saying, merrily. Isabel was terribly angry. Imagine anyone making fun of anything so terribly nervous,

BOOTS wasn't there. Oh, Isabel said to herself, wildly and despairingly—the word had happened. Hardly had met the boat. Boots, tangled in those fluttering skirts, had been lost. Boots was a fine swimmer, but you couldn't do much with a leg drawn round around you. Foolish, foolish, unloving Boots!

"It can't—can't hear it," Isabel said hoarsely to herself, huddled against some hawthorn bushes in the bank of shrubbery surrounding the house.

Suddenly she heard her name called in the distance. "Isabel! Isabel!"

She trembled all over. Was it true, then, that ghosts came back to haunt you?

"What?" she quavered bravely.

"Who is it?" she peered into the darkness, unable to distinguish a thing.

"It's me—Boots!" said the voice steadily. "I'm here in the summer house."

Isabel demolished the space between the shrubbery and the old, rustic, embowered summer house in two jumps. Yes, it was Boots' house and not her ghost who sat huddled in the shadow.

"What on earth's the matter?" Isabel's teeth were chattering.

"There's such a racket down on the pier," Boots said in a fretful voice. "I didn't know what to do. I've lost my shoes."

"Lost your shoes?" The full tide of relief flowed over Isabel. She reached out a tentative hand, grasping her friend's shoulder. "You're not—not wet!" She said with apparent irrelevance.

"No, of course not. Why should

SESSION MONDAY ON WATER SHIFT

Gathering at Pocatello will ponder elimination of winter run.

Definite move to eliminate the winter run of domestic water in the Twin Falls Canal Company system will be undertaken by officials of the project at a hearing to be held in Pocatello commencing at 10 a. m. Monday.

Under terms of a petition filed by the company with the state reclamation commissioner, the water which ordinarily would be released to be stored in American Falls reservoir for use during the irrigation season.

Carey-over Depicted

It is pointed out that action is necessary now to prevent depletion of water stored in storage reservoirs. To create new water resources for Twin Falls, Buhl and other cities, now dependent upon supplies from the canal system, test wells are being sunk at Buhl and here to establish the depth of an assured water supply.

In connection with the hearing, which is to be held before the state reclamation commissioner, W. W. Carey, a statement has been issued by Lynn Crandall, Idaho Falls watermaster of district 36. He says: "In connection with plans for conserving water on Snake River the two Twin Falls projects have contemplated eliminating their winter water now used for stock and domestic purposes and storing same in the American Falls reservoir during the winter months."

"For many years past," Mr. Crandall states, "these two projects have used about 300,000 acre feet of water during the irrigation season for domestic purposes. To eliminate this use will require the construction of numerous wells and cisterns on the projects in order to supply the small towns and individuals with water who are not already supplied with water. An proposed to eliminate this winter use of water will be contingent upon the Minidoka project of the United States department of reclamation being supplied with power by the Idaho Power company in exchange for power from other points owned by the government."

To consider transfer of the hearing job for next Monday at Pocatello, apparently to consider the question of transfer of winter domestic use to winter storage in the American Falls reservoir.

Mr. Crandall stated he expected the upper valley would probably be well represented at the Pocatello meeting owing to the fact a number of upper valley water users have water and stock in the Twin Falls reservoir which might be affected by the proposed plan by the Twin Falls Canal company.

BRITISH SERVANT WORRY VANISHES

Englishwoman Find Increasing Number of Girls Entering Domestic Work

LONDON, Aug. 24 (UPI)—British housewives are jubilating over the welcome news that their old enemy, the servant problem, is dead—or if not quite dead, very nearly so.

According to the latest tabulation of the registrar-general, there are now 183,000 maid-governesses in household work in Britain and Wales, though there were at the time of the 1921 census, the total number of girls doing this kind of work had now reached the figure of 1,322,000, an increase of 16 per cent on 1921.

More in London

In London itself, where the servant problem was the cause of many sleepless nights for anxious housewives, there are fully 11,000 more girls employed as household servants than there were 13 years ago. The latest figures show that they are 184,000 in the metropolis now.

This improvement is believed to be partly the result of chronic unemployment in some fields of work filled mainly by women. In recent years a number of women have been got under way for bringing young girls from the dislocated industrial areas of northern England and southern Wales to training centers where they can be taught domestic work. Many of the trained girls are now employed in London and other large cities where the servant problem was formerly acute.

PRESS GAG SEEN BY SEN. SCHALL

Minnesota Lawmaker Asserts Administration Planning Own News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24 (UPI)—Sen. Thomas D. Schall, D., Minn., believes the administration plans to set up a national press service to replace the United Press, Associated Press and Hearst News services.

"The present plan," said Schall here, "is to make a small charge for the service, but consideration is being given a suggestion—that loyal administration papers be furnished the news service free."

"This plan is essential for the passage of the press censorship bill to be offered at the next session of Congress because censor will cause the suspension of the press," he said.

Mr. Schall also maintained that the news department was in negotiation of a list of 37,000 persons in Washington who are employed by foreign governments and business interests to break down tariff barriers and force foreign goods made by cheap labor into the markets of the United States.

"Everyone of these alien-induced foreign propagandists," said Schall, "is openly advocating press censorship."

Demand for Snake-Skin Takes Boost

LONDON, Aug. 24 (UPI)—There may not be an awful lot of snake charmers around these days, but British women are falling hard for the snakeskin as an aid to their charms—but now, according to Sir Philip Gundliffe-Lister, the British colonial secretary.

As a result of imperial preference duties, large quantities of python skins are coming to England from Nigeria to be made into slippers for the women of Britain. Gundliffe-Lister stated in the house of commons during a debate on the colonial office estimates.

SOUTHWEST GETS CHILLY WEATHER

Cold Wave Returns Bizzling Temperatures of Last Week's Heat

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 24 (UPI)—A cold wave has moved eastward out of the Colorado Rockies today, bringing the lowest temperatures of the month here since last winter.

Mercury which a few days ago was feathering at the upper extremities of thermometers dwindled into the 40s and 50s. At Amarillo, N. D., it dipped to 32. To the northward in Canada sub-freezing marks were reported.

Wraps in Demand

Wraps were taken out of moth balls and window long; open for a breath of cool air were closed when residents over a wide area awoke today. Blankets were in general demand last night.

The government weather bureau here said the cool wave would hold tonight and would push into Oklahoma. A duplication of this morning's minimum temperature of 51 was in prospect here.

In the Denver mountain region Denver reported a low temperature of 54, Pueblo, 52, Yellowpine park 56 and Haile, Mont., 40. The weather bureau said previous reports of snow at Pueblo were erroneous.

Heat Turned On

In Lincoln, Neb., a week ago sweltering in 100-plus readings, heat was turned on in office buildings. Heavy wraps were general. The minimum temperature was 48. The record low for this date was 45 in 1881.

An all-time low mark for Aug. 24 was 47 reported at Omaha. Saturday it was 100. Precipitation was negligible.

The Washita river in Oklahoma was back in banks after a sudden rise sent water flooding over dry lands where cattle had been grazing for water. Light showers were reported from scattered points.

West-central Texas had good rain last night. Decatur reported 2.38 inches. Gainesville, in north-central Texas, reported 2.77 inches. Showers were general over wide areas. At Amarillo the mercury dipped to 58.

CRIMINALS HUNT JOBS AS POLICE

They're Getting "So Bold To Apply for Positions On Frisco Force

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Criminals have become so bold that none of them are hunting jobs on city police forces.

Acting Attorney General Homer Cummings yesterday announced that 400 applicants for positions in the San Francisco police force during the latter part of July, 34 were found to have criminal records in the federal files here.

San Francisco is the first city to adopt the policy of sending applicants' fingerprints to Washington to be checked against the federal files in which criminal information from all parts of the country is centralized.

Criminal Records

Of the 400 San Francisco applicants, 13 were found to have been arrested for burglary, five for prostitution, two for vagrancy, three for passing bad checks and others for burglary, embezzlement, purse-snatching, assault to kill, possession of burglary tools and other offenses.

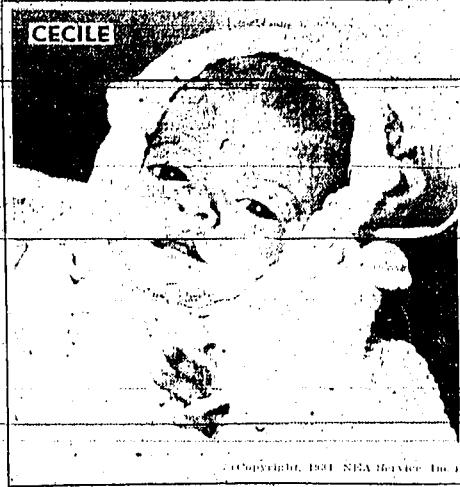

Since 1929 the federal government has been checking the fingerprints of a large proportion of applicants for federal civil service positions. In its first year this check showed that one out of every 13 of the applicants who were fingerprinted had past criminal histories. Last year the proportion was one out of 43.

Grace and circumspect, Cecile is one of the quietest of the quintuplets, joining only mildly in the clamor that goes up as mealtime approaches in the Dionne nursery. Of the unvoiced type that takes things as they come, one could imagine her a nurse when she reaches womanhood.

U. S. Too Large for Scotland Yard Plan, Cummings Asserts

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Attorney General Homer Cummings yesterday announced that establishment of a gigantic Scotland yard in America would fail to meet the complex problems involved in stamping out crime in this country. "The aims and functions of that famous organization are hardly adaptable to our problem," the attorney general said in a speech for the Commonwealth club here.

"There are many curious inapprehensions about Scotland yard," he said. "Contrary to popular belief, Scotland yard is not a detective force and does not have jurisdiction throughout England or the British Isles."

Limited Scope

It is simply the metropolitan police force of greater London and is one of the 187 police forces in England and Wales.

"Even if we were convinced that Scotland yard's operations in its present area were suitable for potential application here, the problems could not be compared to those which exist in the United States."

"Let me take the Urschel kidnapping case by way of illustration. Mr. Urschel was kidnapped in the state of Oklahoma, held captive in a remote rural section of Texas. A portion of the ransom money was exchanged in Minnesota, another portion was paid in Texas, one of the guilty parties was located in Colorado, and the other in Tennessee, Minnesota, Texas and Illinois."

Wide Area

"There are seven states have an area of about 683,000 square miles, which exceeds in extent the combined area of Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Switzerland, England, Scotland and Wales."

"The terrain to be covered by the forces brought into play to identify and capture the perpetrators of this infamous crime is out of all

ECONOMY

PAOLA, Kan., Aug. 24 (UPI)—Homer Cummings for the proponents of economy in political campaigning:

William L. Joyce, 76, Marion county prosecutor, who is a candidate for reelection, today filed his expense report for the August primaries. It listed three postage stamps—9 cents.

"I plan to make an economic campaign this fall," Joyce commented. "Two years ago when I first defeated the medium, he filed campaign expeniture to the limited area of a country such as England."

Cummings said he hoped to establish a national institute of criminology to study not only practical problems but also the practical side of police work. The institute will be discussed at the conference on police to be held in Washington in December.

The attorney general, directing force of the great federal drive against gangsterism, said the time had come to call a halt on the glorification of the criminal class." The real heroes, he said, are the courageous judges, public officials and officers of the law."

CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSE SHEETS

Outlays Made by Aspirants in Primary Election Handied To County Auditor

Find in the reports of candidates in the primary election listing expenses of campaigning have been filed at the office of Frank J. Smith, county auditor.

Among the aspirants who were unopposed for election listed fully the amount of their filing fees. These included Smith himself; L. E. Morris, constable; H. W. Merritt, for surveyor; Cora E. Stevens, county treasurer; Ralph E. Lehman, for auditor; Judge Guy L. Kinney, probate court; H. M. Holley, justice of the peace and W. A. McMurtry, county surveyor.

Others listed their expenses as follows: Charles A. North, for prosecuting attorney, $76.01; C. A. Balog, for the same position, $30.25; W. A. McKinster, running for sheriff, $45.80; J. W. Taylor, for prosecuting attorney, $77; George R. Hart, for county commissioner, $22.00; James L. Barnes, for the same position, $16.75; and Robert Hay, third member of the board, $7.90.

WORKERS HIT CHECK FEE

SANDUSKY, O. (UPI)—Because banks here charge a 10-cent fee for cashing checks, FERA workers have demanded cash on pay days, claiming they cannot afford to pay the deduction. Sandusky banks recently placed in effect a service charge on all checking accounts.

PHILLIPS NAMED BANDIT SUSPECT

Husband of "Hammer Slayer" Hold for Probe in Big Brooklyn Robbery

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24 (UPI)—
In connection with the $427,000 Brooklyn robbery was identified today as Armour Lee Phillips, 40, husband of Clara Phillips, notorious "hammer player" of Los Angeles, Calif.—Phillips—who was arrested here as a suspicious character with Leo Giorgio, 29, Brooklyn, N. Y., admitted his identity, according to police.

Phillips, 40, a central figure in the sensational trial of his wife who is now serving a 35-year jail sentence for the killing of Mrs. Alberta Mendow, a stenographer, because the other woman was friendly with her husband.

No Evidence

While Phillips and Giorgio were arrested as suspects in connection with the Brooklyn holdup, detectives said they had "absolutely nothing" on the men at present. Phillips was held without bail for a further hearing Monday on "anxious characteristics."

The two had tried to dash past a drag net across roads leading into the city.

At a brief magistrate's hearing Giorgio and Phillips held they had come here to collect a $150 debt.

Meanwhile, police arrested a third suspect in the Brooklyn robbery. He gave his name as John Brady, Brooklyn.

Pittsburgh Union Waits Reply

Owing Intervention-in Aluminum Tieup

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24 (UPI)—Pittsburgh Central Labor union today awaited President Roosevelt's reply to its request that he enter the Aluminum Company of America in a tieup.

In a telegram wired late yesterday the union warned thousands of other workers may join in general or sympathetic strike unless the company "recede from its present position."

It urged the President to "use your personal influence" in forcing the company to agree to arbitration under labor conciliator Fred Keightley's peace plan.

Appeal to Phoebe

Answers were also expected from Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Labor Secretary Frances Perkins and Postmaster General Frank Clegg.

All telegrams were signed by P. F. Farman president; W. L. Woodhouse, secretary.

In a bitter statement, the union charged Aluminum company with deliberately "hurting to work" petitions in an effort to break the strike.

"Not one union man" was on the back to work committee, the union claimed, announcing petitions, printed alike, were circulated in the company's six closed plants at the same time.
