KING ATTEMPTED TO SWING ARMS SALE, QUIZ TOLD

British Ruler Intervened for English Firm, Senate's Probers Hear

IDAHOAN READS MESSAGE

"Advertising" Cruise of Navy Ship to Turkey Revealed At Inquiry

BY RONALD G. VAN TINE
WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Testimony that the king of England intervened in negotiations between an American munitions firm and the Polish government in 1932 in behalf of Vickers, Ltd., English armament company, was presented today to the senate munitions committee.

Louis L. Driggs, president of the Driggs Ordnance and Engineering Company, New York, testified that the king intervened the Polish ambassador to London to a conference about the Driggs firm's efforts to sell arms to the Poles.

Pushed Vickers' Cause

"The king intervened in behalf of Vickers," Driggs testified.

Sen. James P. Pine, D., Idaho, read a cablegram from Driggs' Polish agent dated Jan. 20 1932. It read:

"King of Great Britain summoned ambassador in London and intervened in 3-inch or 75 mm 50 cal. guns on new mobile gun mount.

Letter December 18th, 1932, continues:

"Mobile standard gun mount but port and starboard hold stations stop."

You must hasten summoning commission in America. Anxiously await your telegram promised for today."

Chief Competitor

Driggs said Vickers was his chief British competitor.

The reference to "chief" in the cablegram, Driggs said, was to "the chief of ordnance."

Driggs testified that the king's intervention was "the same kind of gesture that the British royalty

Mother at Ice Box Crime Scene

Mrs. Henry Payne, Wilton, Cal., sorrowfully surveys the family冰box where the bodies of her two daughters, Mary, 6, and Miriam, 7, were found stuffed into compartments a foot wide by 16 inches deep and 20 inches high. Police say an older brother, Orlin, 16, admitted assaulting his sisters but denied placing them in the冰box, where they suffocated. Orlin faced murder charges.

Jubilee Pageant Offers Highlight Here Tonight

Cast of 200 Ready For Colorful Drama

Complete with a cast of nearly 200 persons, picturesque and colorful costumes and setting, and travails of love and adventure in the history of Twin Falls, tentatively the pageant "Magic City Epochs" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. today at Lincoln field as a highlight of the Magic City Jubilee and a dramatic event of real significance.

Adam S. Bonnion, personality director of the Utah power company authority on western history, will open dedication ceremony with an address; "The Winning of the West." Mrs. Anna H. Hayes will read an original poem, "The Spirit of the West," as another part of the prologue.

Samuel and Daniel.

Next will come the pageant proper, which tells of the story of Twin Falls, tract in song and dance. A Wilton Park, chairman of the pageant committee, is in render. Special numbers will include soprano solos by Mrs. O. P. Duvall, interpretive dancing by Rhoda Phillips, numbers by the Letter Day Saints' quartet, and music for the square-dance played by the Becker brothers, old-timers.

Again a background of sand hills and pine trees constructed by Eddie Billings, an Indian dance will open the program. Next comes scenes which represent the early settlers, then the coming of irrigation, the date of incorporation. (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

PARIS AND ROME DECIDE ON PACT

Agreement Will Place Giant Army Against Germany When Needed.

(Copyright 1934, United Press) HOME, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Italy and France have concluded an agreement which will place 1,000,000 men in the field against the German Reich the moment the Berlin government makes an overt move.

The stunt was held on Main avenue shortly after 1 p.m. and was taken part in by eight other picked contestants. Harry Benoit all but lost the race, overcoming Magel's lead on the quarter-stretch. Whether Benoit made the complete circuit, from the center of Shoshone and Main avenues, down the latter street and around the fountain, was being debated this afternoon.

Benton Sleeter

In a ceremony following the contest, Miss Rose Beckwith, queen of the jubilee, turned her scepter over to Magel. Queen Beckwith was accompanied by her maid of honor.

Starting with Magel tonight will be his "hand-maidens," Lee Miller, winner of the race, dressed as a cowboy; Jud Clark, disguised as a clown; W. L. Tanner, wearing a red "underwear" ensemble; Bill Gravas, who used vegetables to batten his mount; Kyle White, drug store cowboy; Paul Thier, in a riding outfit; and Mel Dellong, posing as a pilot. Benoit was attired as a cricket player.

Whistler judging will take place at noon tomorrow, with general announcing of results and presentation of each contest will take place between 1 and 4 p.m.

Stunt Flying

The airplanes which will make up the pageant tomorrow night will fly in formation over the city, and do stunt flying. It was stated.

Buddy Bruce, parachute jumper, will make a 1500-foot free fall before opening his chute. (Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

HITLER BADLY SCARED, SAYS PSYCHOLOGIST

Alleged Leader of Motor Car Theft Ring Steps Into Police Trap

ROCHESTER, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Charles L. Baker, 35, alleged "brain" of a southwest auto theft ring, today prepared to return to Holbrook, Ariz., after a rendezvous with his family here led to his arrest.

Suffering from delusions, otherwise abnormal.

Death Threat Sent

MARDI GRAS IS PLANNED

Burlesque Parade Scheduled as Feature Today; Whisker Judging Saturday

Large crowd today continued to invade Twin Falls to take part in the Magic City Jubilee which will come to a conclusion tomorrow with a new feature, a six plane air circus over the city between the hours of 3 and 6 p.m.

Highlight of the commemoration celebration is expected to be reached at the evening with the staging of the pageant "Magic City Epochs" commencing at 7:30 Lincoln field, with fireworks marking the finale, and a Mardi Gras parade commencing at 9 p.m. in front of the high school.

No Admission

It was stressed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee today that admission to the pageant would be free.

This afternoon's events included business and professional men's donkey race, at which time a burlesque "queen" of the Mardi Gras was chosen. Billy Bruce gave another exhibition, parachute drop, this evening, and announced the "Burlesque Queen" Mardi Gras, and a band concert is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at city center.

Magel Is "Queen"

Frank Magel, 16, in this afternoon's business men's donkey derby, was crowned "queen" of the Mardi Gras and will preside at the burlesque parade scheduled to get under way at 9 p.m.

The stunt was held on Main avenue shortly after 1 p.m. and was taken part in by eight other picked contestants. Harry Benoit all but lost the race, overcoming Magel's lead on the quarter-stretch. Whether Benoit made the complete circuit, from the center of Shoshone and Main avenues, down the latter street and around the fountain, was being debated this afternoon.

Little Eva" Goo Unafrain at Court-Dance Execution

For Slaying

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 7 (UPI)—Eva Goo fears nothing will save her from the electric chair, she told the United Press today.

"I know I'm born—but I'm not afraid," she said.

She looked convulsively as she talked through the bars of her cell.

"No, I'm not afraid. What have I got to live for anyway? My friends"—and her thick lips screwed into sneer—"must be happy today; happy to know that I'm going to die."

She was bitter toward the jury of 12 farmers which yesterday found her guilty of murdering her crippled stepbrother, Harry Whiting, and the girl who was spared because she turned state's evidence.

She could collect $8,000 insurance this afternoon.

BORAH DEMANDS CURRENCY STEPS

Wants Expansion, Silver and Monopoly End Through Elmer Party

(BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 7 (UPI)—There are three things Sen.

William E. Borah, militant Progressive Republican of Idaho, wants to see done, he declared in an address here last night.

These three things are:

1.—Termination of monopoly.

2.—Expansion of currency.

3.—Remonetization of silver.

Scorpe Party Label

"And it doesn't make a particle of difference to me which party does them," he declared. "I want them done."

"Notwithstanding the drought," he said, "we are in a land of plenty, have transportation, and war-time conditions of depression, we have the industry of the people—all that is needed to make a nation great—and yet we find literally millions without a means of living."

"We must have gold and silver to start the machinery of civilization moving again."

He was arrested at a local tourist park yesterday by Sheriff O. Williams of Navajo county, Ariz., A. B. Porter, deputy, and local officers.

Two police officers said they sought him for that of July 14. He trail led them through

New Mexico, Oklahoma,

Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Washington and Idaho.

Both Leaders Expect to See Pennants Clinched in Two Weeks

BY THERON WRIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Members of the New York Giants and Detroit Tigers baseball teams who are in a mathematical tussle already have made up their conclusion that the 1934 pennants, now as far as the winners are concerned, will be over two weeks from today.

The Giants, in fact, expect to wind up matters a week from Sunday when they close their homestay against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Detroiters figure their worries will be over after they conclude with the Yankees at Navin Field Sept. 20.

John Drey Bahadur

An analysis of yesterday's engagement with the Giants, Charlie Grimm's Chicago granddaddies have practically eliminated themselves as contenders. They are nine games behind, with twenty to play.

If the Giants lose the rest of the Cubs games and break even with the Pirates and Cards, they will still go into their closing games against the Reds, Braves, Pirates and Dodgers a half dozen games ahead.

Detroit expects to hold pace with the Yankees, now five and one-half games behind, until New York arrives at Navin Field for the crucial series. The Detroiters figure on wiping up then.

Win in 12th

Yesterday's season between the Giants and Cubs went twelve heats before "Memphis Bill" Terry singled Joe Moore home with the winner, 2-1. Ray Parsons and Jim Lee won the route, the former giving away five hits, and striking out nine.

St. Louis stayed seven games behind, beating Brooklyn again, 7-6. Doubles by Joe Medwick and "Lippy Leo" Durocher, a walk and four singles gave them five in the fourth. Tex Carlton pitched for the Cards.

The Wangers, Paul and Lloyd, accounted for the important runs against Pittsburgh, winning 4-3. They are only three games behind in the skirmish for fourth place.

The Reds and Phillips, rained out, will play two games today.

Yankees Win

New York cut Detroit's lead to five and a half games, taking a 5-3 decision from the White Sox.

Boston cut Cleveland's lead to two games in the race for third place in the American League, driving Mel Harder off the hummock in the 10th, after he had pitched seven scoreless innings. The Red Sox won, 6-1.

Detroit and Philadelphia were rained out and will play doubleheaders today and tomorrow. Washington and St. Louis, also rained out, have scheduled a pair this afternoon.

IDAHO ELK WILL BE GIVEN FOOD

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow (Special)—Some 2,000 elk which ordinarily winter in the Selway forest, in northern Idaho, will probably need to be fed this winter, reports J. R. Robertson, deputy state game warden, who consulted recently with feeding authorities of the University of Idaho college of agriculture on the relative values of the various feeds available.

Fires raging in the Selway, recently started, have destroyed most of the natural vegetation upon which the elk normally would have fed during the coming season.

GRANT LOSES

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 7 (UPI)—Donald Budge, red-haired young Californian, tormented the National tennis champion with his second match upset, when he defeated Bryan Grant of Atlanta, 5-0, 6-3, 6-4, 6-8, 6-10, in a third-round match.

Hoderick "Moose" Czechoslovakian, eliminated Grayson Mengin in five sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

SOCIAL CENTERS

With the reopening of the public school system attention is again directed to school problems and the place the school occupies in the community. The smaller the place, ordinarily, the greater is the responsibility of the school, the closer it is to the community, and in consequence it is more often discussed and involved in local affairs.

In many such places the school and the schoolhouse are the center of local activities. Indeed, in the early days here schoolhouses were put to real use, serving children by day, and for meetings at night; becoming the church on Sundays, the political forum during campaigns, a place for the periodical dances, the community voting place, and in the end answering as a true social center.

In most places the schoolhouses continue to serve for a variety of needs, but there are exceptions. A false sense of propriety has prevented the young people making as full a use of the school as they are entitled. They have been literally driven away from the school for many of their social affairs.

In this enlightened age, such a system should not be continued. Young persons in this day find the fence one of the most common of diversions, yet they have not been permitted to indulge in this amusement excepting when the affairs were arranged at some public place, without the guidance and supervision obtainable under direction of school authorities.

It may yet be too early in some communities to open the schools for such social affairs, but the time is not far distant when this ban will be looked upon with amazement.

Schools and school buildings in this age should be just as much the social center of the community as they were "back in the good old days."

The Democrats have their Sinclair, but the Republicans have their Borah. That old political war-horse is going over Idaho now rousing Ned with orthodox Republicans, and right on the heels of the Hoover statement, too. He says in effect that he is off of the ex-president, which is not a very nice thing to do in the light of the Palo Altoan's attempt to assume the leadership of the Republican party, the efforts of the Republican leadership in this state to smooth over the numerous uprisings within the party and unite for success this fall. It seems that Borah is not only the "lone wolf" of the United States senate, he is also the big, bad wolf of Idaho Republicanism!

If the scant new bathing suits for men haven't done anything else, they've proved we don't have to go to India to find a lot of people who're built like Ghandi.

ROOM FOR LENIENCY

The stalemate which has held up Soviet-American negotiations for settlement of all those old debts and claims continues unbroken. So far, no very definite details about it have been made public; all that can be ascertained is that the two nations are finding it impossible to come to an agreement—and until they do the hoped-for revival of Russian-American trade can not begin.

Some of the debt is accounted for by loans made to the ill-fated Kerensky government, just before the Bolshevik revolution. The rest is made up of private claims for property lost or destroyed during the upheaval.

It is worth considering whether the United States would not be wise to adopt an exceedingly lenient attitude in connection with these claims. If Russia is prepared to buy heavily from American manufacturers once a debt settlement is reached, we may be losing more than we gain by holding out for a full settlement.

While they're drafting codes, maybe something can be done so the wolf at the door won't stay on a 24-hour shift.

EXPORTS PICKING UP

In spite of tariff barriers and other obstacles, America's export trade seems to be slowly regaining its health. Or, if that is too optimistic a statement, it is at least feeling better than it was a little while ago.

Official figures compiled in Washington show that during the first six months of 1934 the United States exported just a little more than a billion dollars' worth of goods—a higher rate than that shown by either 1933 or 1932.

If things keep on at this rate, exports for the year will run above the $2,000,000,000 mark, which they haven't touched since 1931.

Least we grow too jubilant, it might be well to point out that we are still far below the 1929 high-water mark, when we exported goods worth more than $5,000,000,000. But we at least seem to be on the way up.

TAKEN BY DEATH

YESTERDAY: Today, the younger set of Greenwich, Indianapolis, New York, suburb, the "Richards," who finally has birthed.

One night at the Yacht Club she is put in an embarrassing situation by HARRY WILSON, one of Sylvia's guests, who had been telling Sylvia endlessly about the "Jubilee," handicapped boats, with which he and I.N.D., the swimming instructor, have got in love with her, and have boats to play with and asks for time to think it over.

She asks him to return from a short distance away, but he has another hour about her resignation from the club, but for a moment, she is silent, then says, "I WAY, young author, and they have a good talk. How sees them NOW GO ON WITH THE WRONG CHAPTER XVI

"I don't know what you're talking about," she told RINA "and slowly, "I—and Denby Fenway? Why? I couldn't sleep. I just came out for a breath of air—I happened to run into him. This," Booth avowed, "is only the second time I have ever spoken to him."

"You seemed to have a lot to say to each other," Rina accused. "He had been running up to her just where the path dipped away from the water. Her brown hair blown every which way by the狂风 morning wind, he braided himself on a hillside, looking at her.

Then she was gone, a silvery white figure running wildly down the shaded path between the birches. She must have been mad."

"Let me pass," she said coldly. "I've got to get home. They don't know where I am."

A screen of trees hid this particular spot from the main road. RINA took two great strides and her hands were on her shoulders.

"Let me go!" she commanded. "You're hurting me!"

"So that's the way it is," growled her captor. "You've been stringing me along, two-timing me—with the idea of follow from the big city."

"Oh, how can you be so silly?" Petulantly she said "it," striving to shake herself free. "I've told you—you can believe it or not, just as you like—that I barely know him."

Rina released her. "He's rich," she pursued grimly. "He's probably got a swell line. No wonder you like him better. You've probably been laughing at me for the little I am."

"How can you say that?" she demanded indignantly. "But it was just now that few moments ago had talked to Denby the contrast between the two had shocked upon her—one so easy and naive and polished, so highly sure of himself, the other big and male and boloring. Yet it was RINA who had made her pulses beat faster.

They were hooting louder now in spite of her annoyance.

Her mood changed. She was his champion, his friend.

"Don't be cross," she said softly. "I told you I was fond of you yesterday. Why can't you be entangled with that?"

SHE threw a fleeting glance over her shoulder in the direction from which she had just come. If Denby should take it into his head to stroll this way it would be rather awkward. Please, Denby, have him go the other way, she prayed.

RINA had big arms folded, now. Her head was toward, she was staring at her firmly.

"You're my girl," he stated. "No body's going to take you away from me and that's a fact. You're mine, mine, mine."

"I'm not," Denby declared, full of enthusiasm. "I'm not, I'm not, I'm not."

"How can you say that?" Lols demanded, suddenly. "We'll have a boyish time, probably a little later, a nice long talk. How sees them

"I don't know what you're talking about," she told RINA "and slowly, "I—and Denby Fenway? Why? I couldn't sleep. I just came out for a breath of air—I happened to run into him. This," Booth avowed, "is only the second time I have ever spoken to him."

"You seemed to have a lot to say to each other," RINA accused. "He had been running up to her just where the path dipped away from the water. Her brown hair blown every which way by the狂风 morning wind, he braided himself on a hillside, looking at her.

Then she was gone, a silvery white figure running wildly down the shaded path between the birches. She must have been mad."

"Let me pass," she said coldly. "I've got to get home. They don't know where I am."

A screen of trees hid this particular spot from the main road. RINA took two great strides and her hands were on her shoulders.

"Let me go!" she commanded. "You're hurting me!"

"So that's the way it is," growled her captor. "You've been stringing me along, two-timing me—with the idea of follow from the big city."

"Oh, how can you be so silly?" Petulantly she said "it," striving to shake herself free. "I've told you—you can believe it or not, just as you like—that I barely know him."

RINA released her. "He's rich," she pursued grimly. "He's probably got a swell line. No wonder you like him better. You've probably been laughing at me for the little I am."

In some areas on the peninsula of Lower California, periods of from three to five years pass without a drop of water falling. Prairie dogs, rabbits, kangaroo rats and many other small animals live successfully through these periods without suffering for lack of moisture.

FILE PAST COLUMBO'S BIER

Throngs View Body of Happy Troubadour After Rites At Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Fans who'd acclaimed him "Hans Columbo" a high place, in the radio and film world filed past his bier today, as the "Happy Troubadour's" body lay in state after impressive funeral services at the great church of the Blessed Sacrament here.

The bronze coffin remained closed at the service in conformity with the rites of his faith, and was returned afterward to a funeral parlor where it was opened, to await burial plans.

Interment was delayed for the arrival of a brother and sister from the east and to allow Columbo's widow, a half princess of her favorite son, Mrs. Julius Colombo, generally ill of a heart attack, but not been informed of her son's death, physicians fearing she would be unable to withstand the shock.

STATE FIREMEN NAME OFFICERS

Southern Idahoans Chosen on 1934-35 List as Group Ends Parley

RIGGERTON, Sept. 7 (Special)—Riggett, a different yesterday claimed the three-day convention of Idaho State Firemen's association held here this week.

The group selected: Jack Boyd, Wallace, president; succeeding B. C. Card, Preston; Fred Margotta, Rupert, first vice president; Carl Smith, Moscow, second vice president; George Buhler, Ketchum, secretary and treasurer. Members of the board of trustees are G. A. Nichols, Malad; R. H. Stewart, Buhl; and Herbert Canine, Burley.

The firemen will hold a four-day session next year, with one day of business to be transacted in Coeur d'Alene and a three-day drill school in Spokane.

A banquet at the Catedonia hotel, convention headquarters last evening was the final program event.

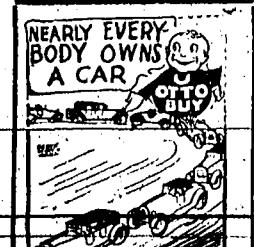

MAGUIRE SELLS BUHL PHARMACY

BUHL, Sept. 7 (Special)—An announcement is made of the sale of the Buhl Pharmacy by H. C. Maguire to Franklin Squires and his son, Frank N. Squires. The store will be operated by the latter, who is a graduate pharmacist from the University of Washington.

Maguire, who has been president of the Nevada club, tendered his resignation at this week's meeting, prior to the departure of himself and family for Springfield, Mass., where he will join a large drug concern. James D. Pence succeeds him as head of the service club.

DAUGHTER REPEATS HONOR

There's a queenly strain in the voice of Laura McKee Thompson, right, and her daughter, Shirley, 19. Twenty-five years ago Mrs. Thompson was the original queen of the famous Pendleton, Ore., roundup, and now Shirley has received the coveted honor to rule the silver jubilee anniversary of the affair.

SAVANT HUNTING DINOSAUR RELICS

New York Expert Seeks Utah
Topography by Means of Air Photographs

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Dr. Harold Brown, of New York, director of the American Museum of Natural History, expects to find fossilized remains of prehistoric monsters in Utah.

The plane dropped over the Deseret topography, remains of a once-great Salt Lake, photographing the area of most modern bone-busters.

Brown transferred his activities to Utah from the Beartooth shale region in eastern Montana, where he first used a plane to locate strata that are burying grounds for dinosaurs.

Accomplishes Much

He reported that since Sept. 1, the plane had accomplished more in Montana than a year's ground work.

Dr. Brown, Brooklyn, Broome, plan a aerial-photograph, archaeo-logical survey near Vernal and Jensen, Utah, the Sun River west near Green River, Utah.

Later his survey will be extended into Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming and South Dakota.

DRUCE RIDICULES
NAZI GERMANS

BARI, Italy, Sept. 7 (UPI)—Premier Mussolini had to abandon the chief of his secretariat because of the German invasion of Ethiopia into Germany.

In a speech repudiating the principles of the Nazis, and evidently referring to Germany, he said:

"We can look with contempt on the doctrine of a certain race which did not know how to write while we had Caesar, Virgil and Augustus."
