3 NATIONS HOLD DEMOCRACY FATE, DOUMERGUE SAYS

America, France and England Represent Last Bulwark, Premier Declares

DENIES DICTATOR AIMS

French Leader Seeks Power Only to Assure Stability For Government

BY KARL A. BICKEL
President of the United Press (Copyright, 1934, United Press)
PARIS, Oct. 1 (UPI)—Premier Gustave Doumergue of France, in an exclusive interview today with the United Press, declared that the safeguarding of world democracy is in the hands of three nations—the United States, Great Britain and France.

Himself engaged in a fight to prevent the fall of the great stronghold of European democracy, Premier Doumergue drew a parallel between his own efforts and those of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Parallels Roosevelt.
Like Mr. Roosevelt, France's good-humored political peacemaker is moving to concentrate greater executive strength in the hands of the chief of the government. If there is any divergence in the parallel, it is on the currency question.

Taking a definite stand, as an advocate of sound, gold money and against inflation and artificial tampering with currencies, and pointing to his opposition to Socialism and Communism, France's subtle leader directed attention to the similarity of efforts by the French and American governments to find a way out of the world crisis without sacrificing the principles of democracy which were born of their two revolutions.

Demands Power

Physically a small man, but a powerful figure in the stormy European political arena, M. Doumergue spoke in the rich accent of his beloved Provence, and in simple phrases declared he is not seeking to set himself up as a dictator when he asks France to give the prime minister greater power than that possessed by any Frenchman since the last Napoleon.

"I am not a dictator," he insisted. In that phrase he summed

More Ransom Money Found

"It's my money, and I hid it," Bruno Hauptmann asserted when confronted with $840 additional Lindbergh ransom bills found in a trunk in the garage next door in Bronx, New York. Five holes had been bored in a block of wood and the money stashed in them, the ingenious device being held here by District Attorney Samuel Pinsky, left, and Police Inspector Sullivan. The little pistol held up so gingerly also was in the hiding place.

Bronx Prepares to Try Hauptmann as Jersey's Case Lags

"MYSTERY WOMAN" SEEN AS IMPORTANT WITNESS

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 1 (UPI)—Gov. A. Harry Moore announced today that Bruno R. Hauptmann would be extradited to face charges in New Jersey before he could be brought to trial on extortion charges in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1 (UPI)—Bronx county officials prepared to call a jury panel this week for the extortion trial of Bruno R. Hauptmann, but New Jersey's plan to extradite the kidnapper came suddenly to have been delayed by lack of conclusive evidence.

Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey announced that evidence on which Hauptmann might be tried for kidnapping or murder was not sufficient to warrant extradition of the prisoner at present.

"Unless the attorney general has something I haven't heard about," Moore said, "we haven't any more reason to bring Hauptmann over here now than we had last week."

Attorney General David Wilentz and other state officials conferred at Trenton on the case.

Other developments:

1. It failed that others were involved in the kidnapping, strengthened by disclosure that bank deposits of two batches of ransom certificates were not linked with Hauptmann, indicating another man.

2. Hauptmann's journals—several hundred containing records of business transactions—were examined at Polk's office.

3. Foley reiterated that the mystery woman of the case still worked as his maid and companion and witness in establishing Hauptmann as the engineer of the ransom negotiations. He would not say if she was detained and it was said not even his associates knew her name.

4. A complaint charging extortion against Hauptmann, was dismissed in West Farms court on request of Foley's office, which noted out he was under indictment in county court on the same charge.

Hauptmann repeated his assertion that Hauptmann was "the only one concerned" in the extortion charge and said there would not be a superseding indictment.

He has twice interviewed the unidentified mystery woman but her position in the case will not be revealed until the trial starts.

Hauptmann was calm in his cell today. He took some exercise and appeared less worried.

WILL ROGERS says:

NEW YORK—The greatest aid that I know of that any man could give the world today would be a correct definition of "liberty." Everybody is running around in a circle announcing that somebody's liberty is being violated. I think that might be one group's "liberty," might be another group's "poison." Course I guess absolute "liberty" couldn't mean anything but that anybody can do anything they want to any time they want to. Well, my best work can tell that that couldn't work. So, the question arises, "How much liberty can I get and how much liberty can I keep?"

Attorney General David Wilentz and other state officials conferred at Trenton on the case.

G. Ross, and will be followed by the annual meeting of the State Democratic Central Committee.

ROOSEVELT ASKS WALKOUT TRUCE

Charts Unprecedented Plan to Seek Temporary Truce in Labor Bickerings

Critic, prouder of a continued fight than of the chief executive's advice, abandoned his old Americanism and settled upon this note of optimism:

New Order Emerging
"I am happy to report that after years of uncertainty, culminating in the collapse of the spring of 1933, we are bringing order out of the old chaos with a greater certi-tude of the employment of labor at a reasonable wage and of more business at a profit. These economical and industrial developments hold promise of new advantages for the nation."

President Roosevelt promised internationally that the New Deal agencies would continue to operate for the betterment of American civilization.

Safeguards Vital
"Men may differ as to the particular form of governmental activity with respect to industry and business," he said, "but nearly all are agreed that this period must be left without anesthesia and without reasonable safeguards lest it destroy not only itself but also our prosperity of civilization."

He said that his first great task after March 1933 was to save the country's banking system. This was done, he said, and then the New Deal efforts were directed to business, insurance, commodity and farm home ownership and industry basic.

"In all of these efforts the government has come to the assistance of business and with the full expectation that the money used to assist these enterprises will be repaid," he said. "I believe it will."

Second Step

The second step to restore normal business, he continued, was "to clean up thoroughly unwholesome conditions in the field of investment." In that connection he observed:

"Only a very small minority of the people of this country believe in gambling as an substitute for the old philosophy of Benjamin Franklin that the way to wealth is through work."

The President discussed frankly the present status of the Nation. He told him he recognized and paid tribute to the able and energetic leadership of General Hugh S. Johnson, recently resigned as recovery administrator.

"We admitted that the heavy industries had not progressed as rapidly as general business, but said, there was no magic formula nor economic panacea which could cure than overnight."

TEXT

In this we have had mistakes from many bankers and business men, most of whom recognize the need of security in the market value of securities, in the building of sound machinery and building in the sale of unsound mortgages and in many other areas in which the public lost the men the opportunity they had sought for years to improve bank conditions through which have been called self-government in industry. If the banks which have been written have been too complicated, if they have gone too far in such matters as price fixing and limitation of production, let us remember that as far as possible, consistent with the immediate public interest of this past year and the vital necessity of improving labor conditions, the representatives of labor and industry were permitted to write their ideal into the codes. It is now time to review these actions and to work to determine through deliberation in the light of experience, from the standpoint of the good of the individual, of society, as well as the general public interest alone? No, and let it be recorded that the British bankers

Statutes Resolved

"There may be a serious question as to the wisdom of many of those devices to control production or to prevent destructive price cutting which many business organizations have insisted were necessary, or whether their effect may have been to prevent that amount of production which would make possible lower prices and increased profits to consumers. Another question arises as to whether in fixing minimum wages on the basis of an hourly or weekly wage we have reached into the heart of the problem, which is to provide much annual earnings for the lowest paid workers as well as minimum needed wages.

"Nearly all Americans are simple and calm people. We do not get greatly excited nor is our peace of mind disturbed whether we be business men or workers or farmers. By avowing principles concerning the unconstitutionality of some of our measures of recovery and relief and reform. We are delighted by functionary laws or political editorials. All of these can have been heard before. More than twenty years ago when Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson were attempting to correct abuses in our national life, the great Chief Justice wrote:

No Rhyme or Reason
"There is great danger it seems to be to arise from the constant battle which prevails where anything is opposed or objected to, of referring without reason or reason to the constitution as a means of preventing its accomplishment, thus creating the general impression that the constitution is but a barrier to progress instead of being the broad highway through which alone true progress may be employed."

"It is time that we made a clean-cut effort to bring about the united action of management and labor, which is one of the high purposes of the recovery act. We have been through more than a year of education. Step by step we have created all the government agencies necessary to insure at a general rate, industrial peace, with justice for all those willing to use these agencies whenever their voluntary bargaining fails to produce a necessary agreement.

Ask Fair Trial
"There should be at least a full and fair trial given to these means of ending industrial warfare, and in such an effort we should be able to secure for employers and employees and consumers the benefit of free competition in wage cutting which depresses management, but it is an unalterable fact that the restoration of other billions of sound investments to a reasonable earning power could not be brought about in one year. There is no magic formula, no economic panacea, which could revitalize over night the heavy industries and the trades dependent upon them.

Substantial Gains
"Nevertheless, the gains of trade and industry, as a whole, have been substantial. In these gains and in the policies of the administration there are assurances that all will be done to keep men and women with the confidence—that we are definitely re-building our political and economic system on the lines laid down by the new deal—lines which, I have so often made clear, are in complete accord with the underlying principles of orderly popular government which Americans have demanded since the white men came to these shores. We count, in the future as in the past, on the driving power of individual initiative and the incentive of fair dealing, profit strengthened with the necessities of those engaged in the public interest, which rest upon us all. We have the right to expect that this driving power will be given patriotic and wholeheartedly to our nation."

Formative Period
"Accordingly I propose to confer within the coming month with small groups of those truly representative, of large employers of labor and of large groups of organized labor, in order to seek their cooperation in establishing what I may describe as a specific trial period of industrial peace.

With Ask Trial
"Those who are willing to join in establishing this hoped for period of peace, I shall seek assurances of the making and maintenance of agreements, which may be mutual, relating to working conditions, hours and working conditions, may be determined and any later, if justly and fairly, either by agreement or, in case of disagreement, through the mediation or arbitration of state or federal agencies. I shall not ask employers or employers permanently to lay aside the weapons common to industrial war. But I shall not both groups to give a fair trial to peaceful methods of adjusting their conflicts of opinion and interest, and to experiment for a reasonable time with measures suitable to civilianize our industrial capacity."

Broad Liberty
"I am not for return to that definition of liberty which for many years a free people were having gradually regimented into the service of the privileged few. I prefer and I am sure you prefer that broader definition of liberty under which we are moving forward to greater freedom, to greater security for the average man than he has ever known before in the history of America."

Divorce Action Started
On grounds of non-support, Mrs. Ruby Alexander has commenced suit in district court against her husband, Del Beckett. The plaintiff asks for restoration of her maiden name of Ruby Shuler. Rayburn & Rayburn are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Public Works
"Closely allied to the NRA in the program of public works provided for in the same act as designed to put more men back to work, both directly on the public works themselves and indirectly in the initiation applying the materials for these public works.

Public Works
"Closely allied to the NRA in the program of public works provided for in the same act as designed to put more men back to work, both directly on the public works themselves and indirectly in the initiation applying the materials for these public works.

Those who say that our expenditures for public works and other means for recovery are waste that we cannot afford, I answer that no country, however rich, can afford to waste its human resources. Demobilization caused by vast unemployment is our greatest extravagance. Morally, it is the greatest menace to our social order."

"Some people try to tell me that we must make up our minds that for the future we shall permanently have millions of unemployed just as other countries have had them for over a decade. What may be necessary for those countries is not my responsibility to determine. But as for this country, I stand or fall by my refusal to accept as a necessary condition of our future a permanent army of unemployed.

"On the contrary, we must make it a cardinal principle that we will not tolerate a permanent army of unemployed and that we will maintain our national economy to end present unemployment as soon as we can and then to take wise measures against its return. I do not want to think that it is the destiny of any American to remain permanently on relief rolls."

Ridicule Critics
"Those fortunately few in number, who are frightened by boldness and cowed by the necessity of making decisions, complain that all we have done in immediate and urgent need. Now that these people are coming out of their storm clouds, they forget that there were even a storm. They point to England. They would have you believe that England has made progress out of her depression by a do-nothing policy, by letting nature take her course. England has her peculiarities and we have ours but I do not believe any intelligent observer can accuse England of indecisiveness.

ST. LOUIS CARDS TAKE NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT

Red Birds Win Right To Oppose Tigers in World Series Games

Dizzy Dean Blanks Reds as Dodgers Win Over Giants in Tenth Frame

NEW YORK, Oct. 1 (UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals brought one of the major league's most hectic seasons to a grand finale by winning the National League pennant, and today are preparing to meet Detroit in the world series.

This last-minute triumph unquestionably provided the most thrilling chapter of the campaigns in the National or American circuits, although the brilliant pennant march of Mickey Cochrane's Tigers was an epic in itself.

These two great clubs, which had won 100 victories from two long, grueling, topsy-turvy seasons that saw the New York Giants and Washington Senators dethroned as champions of the National and American leagues and the rise to power of new clubs and players.

Giants Lose Again

Frankie Frisch, in his first full season as player manager of the Cardinals, clinched the pennant yesterday, while the Giants lost to Brooklyn, 8 to 6. It would have been clinched anyway just a few minutes later when the Cards took their fourth straight game from Cincinnati, 9 to 6. Thus St. Louis finished two full games ahead of New York.

Dizzy Dean registered his 30th victory of the season when he shut out the Reds with seven hits. It was the National League's champion pitcher's seventh shutout this year, and his 10th since his first year in the Giants' fold. The circuit's leading pitcher in 1934, in fact, he and his brother Paul won 49 of the Cards' 95 victories.

Every St. Louis player except Dutch Mehlbeck, wounded in the 14-hit attack on St. Johnson, Frey and Stotz, Delaney and Collins made home runs. Collins' blow tied Mel Ott for the league's home run championship. Each made 35.

Candy Stengel's Brooklyn Dodgers, who had won 87 of the 100 games of the Giants this year, still went to the league by driving out three runs in the 10th to tame their second straight game from the Giants. With the count tied at 8-8 in the 10th and the bases loaded, Blondy Ryan fumbled Lopez's grounder, permitting Leahy to score. Chapman's long fly drove in Cuculich. Davis' long fly drove in Stengel. The Dodgers made 12 hits off Fitzsimmons, Rehmeyer and Hubbell, while Neely and Dickey had only seven from Brooklyn's bunting.

Cube Wins Again

Meanwhile the third-place Chicago Cubs took two games from the fifth-place Pirates, whose full-time this season earned a mid-season shift of managers, with Pie Traynor replacing George Gibson. The Cubs won the opener, 8 to 2, behind Lew Warneke's nine-hit pitching and aided by a six-run burst in the sixth. They took the nightcap, 5 to 2, by virtue of two hits, all of them doubles.

Budini's Braves clinched fourth place for the second straight year by taking both ends of a double-header with the Phillies. They won the first game, 4 to 3, when Randy Moore's single in the 10th drove in the marginal run. Four hits and an error in the seventh of the nightcap provided two runs and a 4-3 victory. The game was called because of darkness.

Tigers Annex Two

In the American League, the Tigers, who beat Mickey Cochrane's guild to the pennant in his first season as manager, wound up a glorious campaign by besting the St. Louis Browns twice, 10 to 6 and 6 to 2. This gave the Tigers a total of 101 victories, a brilliant showing for a club that was accorded little chance to go places early in the season and for a club that was a game behind the Yankees July 4. Crowder and Rowe pitched for Detroit. In the opening, and Bradshaw followed in the ninth.

Budini's Braves clinched fourth place for the second straight year by taking both ends of a double-header with the Phillies. They won the first game, 4 to 3, when Randy Moore's single in the 10th drove in the marginal run. Four hits and an error in the seventh of the nightcap provided two runs and a 4-3 victory. NEW YORK, Oct. 1 (UPI)—The football throttle will be jolted wide open this weekend. All the tardy grid power will roar the pipelines, express an "I" sweep across the nation, spilling important sectional, inter-sectional and traditional encounters throughout the country.

LIBERALITY

There should be no hesitancy on the part of the board of education in reaching a speedy decision in the matter of opening the high school gymnasium to social affairs.

Certain it is that there will be some criticism of the contemplated action, but that is to be expected. Everyone does not see eye to eye. Many mothers and fathers, we are told, would like to see dancing permitted in the gymnasium, where proper control can be had, where drinking can be eliminated and where the height of decorum can be observed. Those sponsoring the idea are looking at the problem from the moral as well as the social standpoint, and they are to be complimented in coming out in the open and petitioning the school board to let down the bars which for so long have prevented use of the gymnasium floor for a pastime and amusement which is now well-nigh universal.

Young folks dance nowadays, as they have for generations. Keeping the gymnasium closed is not going to prevent those who dance from indulging in the custom. To open it will bring them into a social environment certainly no worse than any in which they now come in contact.

After all, the wishes of the parents should be respected. The beliefs of parents will vary in this matter as it does in many others. Respectable parents who themselves indulge in dancing quite naturally do not wish to deprive their sons and daughters of enjoying similar recreation. Those opposed have the privilege of denying such indulgence.

In this community where more amusement is a crying need no damper should be put on an effort to provide just this. The school board members, most of whom indulge in dancing themselves, personally should be favorable to giving opportunity to the younger element privileges they themselves enjoy. If those interested in the movement will make their likes known there should be no question as to the board's action.

LEGALIZED LOTTERY

New York City's effort to finance at least part of her unemployment relief burden by means of a gigantic lottery emphasizes the pressure of this relief problem.

The lottery is a game of chance which has been held illegal throughout the United States for several decades. Federal authorities do not allow data on lotteries to be sent through the mails.

All this is because the people of the country generally have come to realize that a lottery costs more than it is worth. It encourages the gambling habit, and creates a steady drain on the resources of people whose means are limited; furthermore, it is not even uniformly a good thing for the lucky winners.

And, yet this device, condemned by public sentiment for years, may be adopted by the largest city in the country.

For New York faces no ordinary crisis. Fully one-fourth of all the city's inhabitants are on city, state, or federal relief rolls. The city needs $50,000,000 a year to take care of them.

Pressure of that kind can crumble almost any opposition to it. The city can overwhelm almost any prejudice or habit of mind. For the problem is one that cannot be dodged.

The jobless must be cared for. Ponder over the things that could happen in a city like New York if more than a million people, unemployed and flat broke, were suddenly told to shift for themselves.

And the whole business is a warning for the rest of the country—one of those fire-hells in the night that Thomas Jefferson used to talk about.

WHAT DO THEY FACE?

It is probably a sign of returning prosperity that college and university enrollments have risen this fall. For the first time since the academic year 1929-30, there are more young people in higher institutions of learning than there were in the preceding fall.

Increase in the number of students whose expenses are being paid by their parents is an obvious reflection of better times. Increase in the number of students who are working their way through college must, similarly, indicate that jobs are more plentiful. But the whole picture sets one wondering. What sort of world will face these youngsters, when they are graduated? Will it be a world ready to use their youth and enthusiasm and training—a world ready, in other words, to put them to work?

Or will it be the kind of a world young graduates have faced in the last few years—one in which all kinds of labor, intellectual or manual, are a drug on the market?

she didn't think so. She smiled at him mirthly and the square-shouldered man smiled back at her protectively. "Poor little kid," he thought. "This month?" he rushed into this. "It must be patient."

One blowy November weekend boots went up to the house in Larchmead to see her parents. Her mother had written to say that her father was anxious to see her, although he wouldn't admit it for the world. Rather nervous about her reception, she had walked down to the big, shabby, dilapidated house. The foraythorn bushes dropped bare and diagonals beat across the porch. There were a few scarlet barberries on the hedge lining the walk. How strange it was to return and find everything just the same when one had been away so long!

She was a smart little figure in her brown tweed suit, a small brown felt hat clasped on her fair head so that the curly on one side were fully exposed. She looked nothing at all like the proverbial bright daughter. The big, bare hand was red, pinkish—Edward's.

"I should have come before," she said later to Mrs. Florida, helping the latter with the evening meal. "Well, you know your mother's been carrying a heavy load." Mrs. Florina had added. "She's worried more than she will say, I know."

Bit by bit, when the invalid had been settled for the night, and the two women were downstairs in the shabby living room, Doris drew from her mother the truth about their family finances. Taxes had gone up faithfully. Mrs. Bachman had twirled her thin fingers nervously. The endowment policy had practically been eaten up. She didn't know whether she would be able to hold on to the house or not.

Doris snuffed wistfully, while on the back of an envelope. She could leave Florida, come out here.

Thirty-five dollars a week was not a great deal, with commutation and lunches taken out, but the residue would help.

"How much do we owe, exactly?"

Her mother looked at her with surprise. This was a new daughter, resourceful, businessey. She went to her desk. The taxes were paid, she explained, but there was a com-

INCREASING THE HEAT UNDER BOILING WATER DOES NOT INCREASE THE TEMPERATURE OF THE WATER!

10-1

After water reaches the boiling point, its temperature cannot increase. Increasing the heat under a vessel of boiling water in only wastes fuel, for the extra heat goes toward changing the water into steam.

LOSS $3,000 IN BLAZE AT FARM

Barn, Haystacks and Granary Consumed by Flames at Herron Place

Loss estimated at between $2,000 and $3,000 was sustained by Alfred Herron when flames consumed a barn, three stacks of hay, and a granary Saturday night. Cause of the fire had been undetermined to day.

Leaving the equipment, and in the absence of the family, members of which were in town, neighbors and passing motorists numbering several hundred quickly gathered, and with buckets of water from the cistern and nearby ditches, succeeded in confining the blaze to the farm lot.

The family home, as well as the property of three nearby residents on the corner, were endangered, but lack of strong breeze added in preventing the flames from spreading.

Discovery of the fire was made at 8:30 p.m. by a passing motorist who notified neighbors. The Herron family first learned of the loss upon arrival home from Twin Falls, and Mrs. Herron fainted.

In addition to loss of hay and buildings, some farm machinery was destroyed, along with 200 bushels of wheat and a shed.

SCREEN KIDDIES' DANCE TEACHER TO OPEN STUDIO

Mrs. Marie Dunn Helm, former instructor of MGM's Famous Kiddies, will open dancing classes here Friday of this week. Mrs. Helm taught dancing here more than two years ago.

Since that time she has worked for the MGM studios in California, and has been state supervisor of the firm's work in Houston, Tex. For the past two months she has been supervising a group of professional students on Paramount Pictures' lot in Texas.

During her work at the MGM studios in California she worked with Shirley Temple on personality development. She taught the child star the song and dance routine which Twin Falls audiences witnessed in "Stand Up and Cheer." Personality development, Mrs. Helm says, is the thing in which she is most interested.

Big league pitchers know that power is not enough. The important thing is to control that power—particularly in tight situations where you've got to bear down to win.

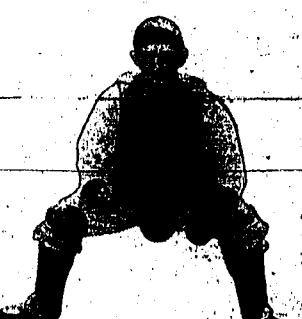

The Ford V-8 gives you all the power you need—and some to spare. But that's only half the story. It performs superbly because it gives you sure, effective control of that power.

Speed that takes you over the pathways of the world and brings you safely home...as fast as you want to go. Stability on curves and a feeling of confidence in every tight situation. A quick change of pace that saves you minutes in traffic.

The Ford V-8 shortens distance, not so much by its potential top speed, but by the swiftness with which it resumes running speed after the inevitable stops and pauses.

It's a seasoned campaigner—this Ford V-8—and it has proved it can take it in many severe trials. It has scored important victories in road races at Elgin, Jacksonville, Los Angeles and Targo Florida. On Labor Day, three Ford V-8 cars broke all previous stock car records for climbing Pike's Peak. The Fords in this climb were equipped with high-compression cylinder heads, optional equipment for altitude driving. The V-type engine holds every major speed record on land, on water and in the air.

Every day—on every road—in the hands of hundreds of thousands of motorists—the Ford V-8 is proving its leadership both by outstanding performance—and by low cost of operation. Drive it yourself and see what a tremendous difference the V-8 engine makes.
