NEW DEAL HEADS MOVE TO LESSEN INTERNAL STRIFE

Administration Deplores Rows Between Individualistic Executives

PUBLICITY FROWNS ON

Roosevelt, Himself, Quashes Feud Between Moffett And Jokes

By LYLE G. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (UPI)—Impartially within the New Deal is a reform movement to reduce or conceal some of the friction developing among individualistic executives.

The last hoped for the plan is that it will keep disputes among New Dealers off newspaper front pages. The intent of those publicized squabbles was between Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes and Housing Administrator

Hull and Peck Clash

President Roosevelt himself had one. scarcely a week before Secretary of State Cordell Hull and George Peck, presidential foreign trade advisor, were debating tariff policies.

The row which finally led to the resignation of General Hugh S. Johnson, as NRA administrator was the longest and most spectacular of family fights. Secretary of Labor Perkins forced the attack on Johnson, backed by Donald R. Richberg, director of the executive council, and several others.

There followed a period of comparative calm in NRA for which responsibility rests upon S. Clay Williams, big businessman who formerly headed the eminently successful Reynolds Tobacco company.

Before Miss Perkins and Johnson disagreed the center of dispute was in the state department where Raymond Moley, No. 1 brain trustor, installed an assistant assistant. Moley, and Secretary Hull did not get along and the professor departed after a newspaper airing of his troubles.

Moley Powerful Factor

Mr. Roosevelt retained Moley among his principal advisors, merely removing him from Hull's sight. As a private citizen Moley is a more potent White House counsel today than are some of the men in official positions.

Mr. Roosevelt recognized some time ago the need for centralized New Deal effort. On Sept. 28 he centralized policy making in organizations headed by Richberg. He became assistant to the President with these duties:

1. Director of the Industrial Emergency Committee.

2. Executive secretary of the executive council.

3. Executive director of the national emergency council.

Since then the co-ordination machinery has been further centralized. But there still remains a team work which impedes government and troubles officials. Mr. Roosevelt is expected to do something about that when he returns from Georgia.

POISON BISCUITS KILL TEXAS TRIO

Greenville Woman Mistakes Arsenate of Lead for Baking Powder

GREENVILLE, Tex., Nov. 27 (UPI)—Three persons were dead today, victims of a housewife's mistake in preparing biscuits for her family.

Marion Teague, 33, the husband, died of signs of arsenic of lead poisoning. His father-in-law, R. J. Phillips, 72, and 5-year-old son, Bobby Joe, succumbed earlier.

Mrs. Teague, a daughter, Clara Bell, 7, and Mrs. Teague's brother, Otho Phillips, 10, were desperately ill.

Mrs. Teague, resident of Cash, near here, reaches for a can of baking powder while stirring a batch of biscuits. Her groping hand found the poison and instead

All members of the family became sick after eating the biscuits.

Mrs. Teague, although in great pain, was able to tell officers what happened. Investigators learned the poison used to kill insects was kept in a baking powder can in the cupboard where Mrs. Teague also kept cooking equipment and staples.

Actress Must Pay Huge Fine Or Lose Coat

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (UPI)—Betty Hamilton, American actress now appearing in English productions, has hardly a stitch to wear when she visits her relatives at Meadowville, Pa., because customs officers are holding her "pink coat" and other warm overgarments against a fine of $4,400.

"Pink coat," said Customs Inspector L. J. Murin, running his hands through the coat, "is holding him when the actress arrived from London."

"You," said Miss Hamilton. "Lovely, isn't it?"

"How about this foreign label?" the inspector asked.

"I guess it was made abroad," Miss Hamilton admitted.

"Well," the inspector said, "it's a cold night and you're wearing a thin dress. I'll let you have your coat to your hotel, but you'll have to come back and settle it."

Customs officials say Miss Hamilton didn't reappear. They finally located her and took over the full coat and other foreign garments, assessing fines and penalties of $4,400. When the fines are paid, Miss Hamilton can have her clothes. They cost her originally $2,700.

FEDERAL LIQUOR LAW PERSONNEL BEING REVAMPED

Morgenthau Directs Complete Reorganization of Enforcement Staff

1,000 DETECTIVES FIRED

Failure to Pass Examinations Given as Reason for Wholesale Ouster

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (UPI)—Complete reorganization of the federal liquor law enforcement staff was under way today under personal supervision of Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

The reorganization, the United States Attorney General said, was made necessary by the dismissal of about 1,000 of the 1,400 investigators of the alcohol tax unit of the internal revenue bureau since they failed to pass civil service examinations as provided in the McAdoo rider.

Postings Filled

The jobs already are being filled from the list of 2,600 applicants who successfully passed civil service examinations for the positions of enforcement agents. About 8,000 took the tests.

Treasury officials said dismissal of the investigators, most of whom had formerly been employed by the department of justice, liquor enforcement, during prohibition, had thrown the enforcement problem into chaos.

The investigations are to be discharged Friday.

ALABAMA SEEN AS STANFORD ROSE BOWL OPPONENT

CARDINAL ELEVEN PREFERENCES GOPHERS

Colgate and Temple Are Also Under Consideration for New Year's Clash

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Nov. 27 (UPI)—Stanford vs. Alabama—that's the setup for the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena next New Year's day in the opinion of almost every one of the Stanford campus.

The Stanford Cardinals, unbeaten but tied once this year, already are in, having been the unanimous selection of the Pacific coast conference as the western representative.

Alabama must get by Vanderbilt on Thanksgiving day to get the bid which the western choice is privileged to extend to an eastern team of its own choosing.

Minnesota Impossible

Stanford players would prefer to play Minnesota because, as Quarterback Frank Alutitz put it, "if we beat" Minnesota "we'd really done something." But Big Ten conference rulers make the unbeaten, untied Gophers unavailable, and leave the unbeaten, untied Alabamas as the next best choice.

Other teams under consideration include Colgate and Temple university.

Stanford has been the only one who truly coached football at Stanford. Colgate, led by Andy Kerr, was overlooked for some reason last year when the Cardinals chose Columbia for the midwinter classic. The slight caused Kerr to remark that his team was "unbeaten, untied, uncoached on—and uninvited."

Temple, taught by "Pop" Warner himself, is not regarded as a major team by western critics.

To The Masters

All masters, the great state managers who sit and say in St. Paul's collection, in keeping, absurdly silent "until after Thanksgiving," Coach "Tim" Thorsen reflects every one to Minnesota with a remark that "any old 'A' selects will be all right with me."

In 1920 in the Rose Bowl, Alabama defeated University of Washington, 20-10. The next year they tied Stanford, 7-7. In 1921 the Alabamians overwhelmed Washington State, 24-0.

Stanford in four appearances has captured the Rose Bowl. Notre Dame defeated the Cardinals, 27-16, in 1922. The Stanford-Alabama game two years later was tied. In 1928 Stanford need out Pitt, 7-0. In 1934 Columbia defeated the Pacific coast champions, 7-0.

LUND MAY GET PLAYER TROPHY

Stellar Halfback Considered By Many Big Ton's Best Performer

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Correspondent
CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (UPI)—Final notes of the season from a Big Ten press box:

One Jig. Ten about describes Ohio State's intricate offense as "barnyard football" that has a habit of working . . . while in the equivalent of saying "Dizzy Dean throws a baseball like a country boy."

Most Big Ten coaches agree that Minnesota and Ohio State met, the Gophers would win by two touchdowns or more . . . in four games against the same conference opponents, Michigan, Chicago, Iowa and Indiana, the Gophers scored 147 points to their opponents' 10 and the Buckeyes scored 140 points to theirs' 7.

The scores were almost identical in three games and exactly the same against Michigan, 34-0. In five conference games Minnesota scored 181 points while Ohio State scored the same number in six conference games.

One word impressed . . .

Pug Lund, Minnesota's captain and all-American halfback, is favored to win the Big Ten's most valuable player award.

Harry Kipke's literary efforts are regarded by many as contributory to Michigan's dive from the championship to the cellar.

When Illinois' intricate lateral-forward play worked it was called the "flying trap" but when it failed it was called the "mule-dazzle." One sportswriter had a pun on "The Man on the Flying Trap" all written to use in covering the Illinois-Wisconsin game, but didn't have anything on the "russell dingle" so he had a bad time getting out a lead telling how Wisconsin won, 7-3.

Draus Vast Crowd

Minnesota played to 350,000 spectators in eight games, including three sellouts . . . $8,000 at Iowa City, $4,800 at Pittsburgh, and $8,000 at Minneapolis, for the Michigan game. The Gophers, with the world team in Chicago, packed the stadium. In addition the Minneapolis packed house, the Wolverines attracted the Big Ten's largest crowd—$8,078 for the Ohio State game at Columbus.

Northwestern's victory over Wisconsin and Michigan and ding-dong battles with Illinois and Notre Dame in the last four games may save Dick Stanley's season.

Northwestern's slumbering winter Harvard for an international series.

'TWAS GREAT DAY FOR O'DEA

Playing inspired football for the greatest of their gridiron heroes, Pat O'Dea, Wisconsin's Badgers pulled an upset in defeating the heretofore unconquerable Illinois eleven, 7-3. O'Dea, called the greatest punter of all time, disappeared after matriculating from Wisconsin in the '90s, and all trace of him was lost. Recently he reappeared in identity in California. Pat is shown here, at left, with Captain Jack Bender, of the victorious Badgers, as he witnessed his alma mater's victory.

Henry Ford Rumored in Market for Tiger Club

By HENRY McLEMORE
UPI, NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (UPI)—Putting the aperitif here and there! Report it that Henry Ford will purchase the Detroit Tigers to make the team his. Not long ago there was a hot rumor that Ford planned to buy the St. Louis Cardinals and transfer them to Detroit, where we suppose they would play under the name of the Detroit St. Louis Cardinals.

Ollie Dutra, national open golf champion, was a clerk in a hardware store when Gene Sarazen first won the title in 1922. Dutra, 30, of Toledo, Ohio, is the 200-meter champion of 1924. Yesterday night the night of his first win, he won the most graceful fighter of all the football players. . . . Chris prepared for football with a course in aeronautics . . . Young Jackie Wendt, Philadelphia pitching ace, started life as a lumberjack . . . Little man, a play of pretty big part in building a baseball championship team, for Judge Emil Fuchs, who has spent more than $800,000 for players, has yet to see his Boston Braves finish better than fourth.

Another long-legged Schwartz boy will soon be running at Notre Dame, to help Billy Schwartz, brother of the famous Macys, in a show of "Jinks from Art" . . . Jack Dempsey in a run on pro football and wants to buy a club . . . Alabama's undefeated football team has no training rules, competition for varsity jobs being in only the fit survive.

If you want to take the trouble and believe in such things, you can prove on paper that the little Tufts team in 13 points better than Minnesota, 22 better than Stanford and three touchdowns stronger than Alabama . . . Notre Dame, however, in the old-fashioned Olinings . . . The Irish selected Army with panache Saturday, the same way they did when the two teams met for the first time in 1913. . . . The Army combination of Buckler and Blaneck should be dangerous—but the boys are expert players . . . Eddie Christopher, of the Rockford, Ill., team, is the most graceful fighter of all the football players. . . . Chris prepared for football with a course in aeronautics . . . Young Jackie Wendt, Philadelphia pitching ace, started life as a lumberjack . . . Little man, a play of pretty big part in building a baseball championship team, for Judge Emil Fuchs, who has spent more than $800,000 for players, has yet to see his Boston Braves finish better than fourth.

Art (Wheaton) Shultz, of Indianapolis, has a new number . . . Ten-year-old football uniforms weight 22 pounds . . . Today they weigh a shade under nine pounds. University of Iowa scientists have discovered that the better golfers hold their breath while making a shot . . . At 62, Steve Donoghue, English hockey, is still holding wins . . . In Philadelphia, weary of gambling with the weather, plan a stadium that will have a sliding roof over a playing field 400 by 200 feet . . . When the sun is shining, the roof will be rolled back.

THE ROSS VOTE

Study of the official state returns in the recent election discloses a peculiar situation, and one which is important in any appraisement of the results.

There has been wonderment expressed at the comparatively small majority given Governor C. Ben Ross on the Democratic ticket, and the narrowness with which he won in many counties.

True it is that his majority was 17,654, but when it is considered that the average majority of the other candidates on the Democratic ticket was 36,503 there is a discrepancy which has been difficult to interpret.

Here is the unusual explanation: Governor Ross polled practically the normal strength of his ticket, despite the fact that he had to carry the load, lead the campaign for the state ticket and become, in a sense, the issue, at least so far as his opponent was concerned. Taking all this into consideration, his total vote of 93,313, was only 4,000 votes less than the average secured by the other members of his ticket. But here is where the unusual angle appears: The average vote for candidates on the Republican state ticket, outside that for governor, was 60,874, while Frank L. Stephan polled 75,659, or 14,785 more than the average. Where did these votes come from? They did not come from Ross, or at least not more than 4,000 could have come from him, for he polled within 4,000 of the average Democratic vote.

There is only one explanation, and that is that thousands of voters on the state ticket voted only for Stephan, and not for his Republican colleagues.

Comparing the total vote for governor, and the total of the average votes for the other candidates on the Republican and Democratic tickets, it is seen that the governor vote is more than 10,000 in excess of that for the other offices.

Just why 15,000 persons who voted for Stephan would not also vote for the remainder of the Republican ticket would be interesting to learn, but the fact remains that this is why Governor Ross' majority was 17,654 while the average of his fellow candidates was 36,503, with the Ross vote within about four per cent of that secured by the other Democrats on the ticket.

President Roosevelt's constant smile is due perhaps to his amusement at the way people try to figure out what he means by what he says.

VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS

Sometimes the different items in the day's news tie up closely.

Here's a little sample:

The wires a few days ago reported that the National Planning Board has submitted its findings, after some months of study, urging long-range national planning "as a means of richer life for the masses and an indispensable bulwark against violent explosions."

This was hardly out of the oven before another story came floating over the wires—this one a dispatch reporting that the ineffable Huey P. Long of Louisiana was preparing to run for the presidency in 1936.

These two items seem as far apart as the poles. But they are directly and logically connected with each other, after all.

It does not take more than a moment's thought to make one realize that this projected presidential candidacy of the loud voice from the delta is an excellent example of the "violent explosions" which the national planners' report forecasts.

For there is always this to remember about Senator Long: He is, after all, the spokesman for a large number of people who feel that, if he does not speak for them, nobody will.

He may represent demagogery at its most dangerous, but he also represents a blind but powerful resentment which is boiling up from the bottom of the kettle and which is bound to have an outlet.

People do not hand political power over to such men out of pure perversity or wrong-headedness. They do it out of desperation.

Such men come to the top on a wave of public unrest; and this unrest appears only when large numbers of people grow convinced that it is hopeless for them to expect to get anywhere by proceeding along more orthodox lines.

The great irritating factor in all this depression has been the fact that it has been without any obvious physical cause. We have the plant to provide all our people with an abundance of everything they need, if we can only find the way to set it going.

If we don't succeed pretty soon in devising some sort of broad plan that will enable us to do it, the masses of people who are not horrified by the conduct of Huey Long in the White House is apt to reach an alarming total.

For naval armaments, the Japanese seem to have overlooked the "I" out of limitation. They are in violation instead.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

By CARLETON KENDRICK Of THE ENCLADE.

BEGUN BEHIND TODAY

When CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for THE BEE, found dead on Oct. 10, 1934, police employee NICHOLY GRIFI, famous criminologist, to solve the murder mystery, he turned to the authorities of PHILIP B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent, following the arrest of an important criminal to be Cathay, who was accused to be a girl called MARIE BRIGGS.

The day following Morden's death Cathay, who had visited him before his death, had stated that he had been asked to meet him again.

Front Alice with KENNETH HODGES, accused the pair of killing Cathay.

Mrs. BLANCHE MALONE, the wife of Mrs. CATHAY and Cathay's chauffeur, was seen recently in town, but refuses to talk.

"Do you," asked the criminologist, "know anything about an either wife, Mrs. Bridges, now known as Stella Mackley, is staying there?" and CHARLES MORDEN, who had been told her name, told him that she was the woman who had accused Cathay was PETE MALONE.

PHILIP B. CATHAY, Cathay's chauffeur, explained to Griff and Mordern his theory of Cathay's death.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS STORY*CHAPTER XXXIX

GRIFI nodded to the lawyer.

"You tell him," he said.

Cathay turned, facing Blacker, who said, "speaking slowly and with grave emphasis, 'the plot, whatever it was, was about to culminate. This man, Malone, knew that Cathay would not be in a position to make any complaint. In other words, he had anticipated the cancellation check which the agent signature wouldn't be found among his effects. A 'check-up' of the hotel register would show that Cathay was registered there that night; that the man who had cashed the check had exhibited documentary evidence showing he was the real Frank Cathay. Of course this matter would not come up until months after Cathay's death."

"The attorney representing the Malone claim, whatever its nature, would demand that the estate produce all documents and vouchers which were in his possession. The canceled check could not have been destroyed because it would have been retained by the police and the conspirators decided to silence Morden before he could convey that information to his newspaper."

"You consider the murder of Morden connected with the plan of this Peter Malone?" the lawyer inquired.

"I think," Griff said, "there can be no slight doubt about it. Morden found out something. He was murdered because it was vital that this information Morden had acquired be suppressed and the conspirators decided to silence Morden before he could convey that information to his newspaper."

"I THINK you're right," the attorney said, "but I do not care, at the present time, to allow myself to get side-tracked on the matter of the Morden murder. After all, you must admit it may have been due to other causes. In other words, it may be one of the coincidences which happen in real life and which are so baffling to an investigator. For instance, it is very possible that this woman, Esther Ordway, actually had no connection with the possession of Cathay before his death. It would, therefore, make an excellent demonstration of the gullibility of the public."

"And what?" asked Blacker. "The nature of this claim that Malone was the one to make it?"

"I wish I knew," Cathay said. "I can surmise and I can suspect but my obligations to my client, gentleman, prevent me from communicating my suspicion or my surmise. If ever goes as far as to seal my lips upon facts, save such facts as I believe I may communicate with you afterwards to my client."

GRIFI stared in fixed concentration at the patterned carpet of the hotel hallway.

"I think," he said slowly, "that I see what you have in mind."

"I am quite sure you do," Cathay said readily enough, "but I cannot hold ready enough, "but I cannot

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

IN 1933...
$125,000,000
WAS PAID FOR TOYS
MADE IN THE UNITED STATES, AND TWO AND A QUARTER
MILLION DOLLARS WORTH WERE BROUGHT IN FROM OTHER COUNTRIES.

From the figures of the United States Department of Commerce, on the amount of money paid out annually to manufacturers for toys, it may be assumed that about twenty out of every thousand dollars of American income is spent for children's toys.

WATER DECISION BRINGS PROTEST

Jerome Petitioners Object
To Emptying Canals
In Winter

JEROME, Nov. 27 (Special) — Plans were being made today for a meeting later this week, at which time representatives of the Water Users' association will come with the board of directors of the Twin Falls Canal Company in an attempt to reach a solution to a problem said to have been created when the board recently decided against the running of water in the canal system this winter.

At meetings held over the weekend a committee was named, consisting of William Walter, W. T. Conant, Clyde Bass, John Colman and William Welge, 850 names were secured to a petition of protest and a vigorous campaign was launched to secure the water rights as has been customary in the past.

R. E. Shepherd, general manager of the company, is at present in Spokane attending a meeting of the Federal Land Board. His return is awaited for a settlement of the issue.

It is argued, in opposition to the shut-off move, that the value of a large amount of hay to sheepmen will be reduced if the water is turned out this winter.

Graveside Services Held for Baby Girl

"Simple" graveside services were held yesterday afternoon in Twin Falls Cemetery for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. and G. H. Hinszergardner, members of the Church of the Brethren. Interment was unceremonious as the Drake mortuary could not at the hospital

Sixty Letterman Back; Tryouts
Scheduled for Dec. 17

Twenty-fourteen, garage operator, applying a coat of top dressing to his own car, in contrast to the tradition which says that a garage owner's car, like shoes, make up old men's teeth in particular, indulging in what he believes that in the heat he can do following a walk with a cold which affected his voice. People, talking about the weather, reminiscing on what it was a year ago at this time, predicting what it will be a month hence, swinging their heads and deciding the good old winters of the good old days are gone forever. Christmas decorations commencing to make their appearance in windows along Main Street, packed with a wool cap pulled down over his ears. Legionnaire-elect, revealing that his mail is getting heavier every day as he receives an increasing amount of propaganda for, and against, prospective legislative measures. A growing list of persons confined to their homes with colds, the grippe, tonsillitis, sore throat, etc.

tail or another speech for the try-out.

Lettermen among the candidates are Mike Bowyer, Leonard Arington, Ambrose Evans, Tracy Gibson, Bob Stephen and M. C. Buhler.
