U. S., JAPANESE FRICTION HOLDS TO TWO FRONTS

Markets, Violence to Nippon Farmers Topped Possible Causes of War

NAVY FIGHT DISCOUNTED

Mutual Profit on Cotton and Silk Believed Obstacle To Any Conflict

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—An analysis of Japanese-American relations attracting attention here discloses two potential causes of war between those powers.

The discussion of Far Eastern problems does not deal with naval strength. Any naval disagreement is likely to be an effect rather than a cause of developments in international affairs.

In summary, and presented merely as a thoughtful, non-official expression of opinion, the analysis is as follows:

Markets, Farm Friction

If the United States and Japan ever fight it will be over markets for manufactured goods or because of friction between American and Japanese farmers in the country.

Violence to Japanese farmers recently occurred in Arizona. So long as Japanese farmers prosper at a subsistence level below the American standard of living a condition of such racial disturbances is likely. It is impossible entirely to discount that situation as a cause of war.

Economic Pressure

Japan's need for expanded foreign markets may ultimately become so urgent that to Japan's government even war would be preferable to restricting her production of manufactured articles.

So long as Japan exported silk, pottery and similar comparatively non-competitive goods she was not a factor in the competition of the United States, Great Britain, Germany and France for world markets.

A high birth rate increasing Japan's population at the rate of about 300,000 a year forced her from an agricultural toward a manufacturing economy. Americans now are buying Japanese electric light bulbs, floor covering, rubber-soled shoes, matches, lead pencils and so-called goods.

Products Competition

Japanese manufactured products compete with American and European manufactures articles in South America and throughout the world. The first defense of America (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

HITLER'S TRAIN KILLS 15 IN BUS

Nazi Leader Directs Salvage Work After Crash; Nine Women Victims

BERLIN, Dec. 15 (AP)—Fifteen members of a theatrical troupe, nine of them women, were dead today, victims of a crash in which a special train carrying Adolf Hitler struck a bus that crashed in a fur through the barriers guarding a railway crossing near Verdun-on-Aisne.

Those killed were in the bus. News of the crash was made public here when Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, said at the end of a speech at the Sports palace last night:

"We may all thank God for the deaths of our hearts that our Führer has just escaped unhurt from a train crash."

There were stories of consideration from Goebbels' audience. Hitler had been to Bremen for the launching of the liner Sharnhorst. The train, it was said, was damaged, halted. Hitler left his coach, directed salvage work, ordered an ambulance train from Bremen, and kept storm troops in the neighborhood mobilized. Hitler made no statement.

Crowd Escapes Fiery Death in Movie Theater

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP)—The narrow escape of 600 persons from a blazing Broadway theater amazed investigators today.

Investigators at Warner Brothers' Strand watched "Flirtation Walk" while overheard only a blistering shell of ceiling separated them from raging flames.

When by some feat entered high in the auditorium and later forced the spectacular escape of two projection machine operators, Assistant Manager Zeb Epstein stopped on the stage.

"There is a fire in the vicinity," he announced, "There is no danger, but everybody will have to leave."

No Panic

Without panic the theater cleared. As the last of the early evening movie audience, men, women and children, fled out, blazing embers showered the vacant seats. Crystal chandeliers began crashing down.

Firemen rushed to the Tuxen Square section as police checked a crowd of 10,000, found flames shooting from the theater building roof, four stories high.

Just below the roof level machine operators Walter Pitcher and Marcus Rittner, gasping in the oven of their asbestos-protected booth, were trapped. Rittner collapsed.

Escape on Cable

A thick cable hung outside the building, near the South window. Pitcher, supporting Rittner, slid down this in darkness and smoke, until he reached the end of the cable 40 feet below. He called until a rescuer told him to let go. He was only a few feet above an extension roof and did not know it. He was treated for shock at Flower hospital. Rittner, given emergency treatment at the hospital, later went to his home.

U. S. HEADS LOOK TO BANKERS FOR RECOVERY CASH

Count on Large Investors to Supply Bulk of Funds for Further Needs

LITTLE MAN NOT NEEDED

Administration Wants Smaller Income Groups to Spend In Normal Ways

By RICHARD L. GRIDLEY (Copyright, 1934, United Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—The administration is counting on the nation's banks and big investors rather than the "little fellow" to supply the bulk of the $3,500,000,000 additional money needed to complete the government's recovery program. It was learned here.

About $3,500,000,000 must be borrowed if the administration holds to its original spending program, in which a total of $7,500,000,000 was set on the public debt. It stands at approximately $28,300,000,000 today, a new record high.

Encourage Spending

The decision to give big bankers the job of financing most of the remainder of the recovery program, the United Press was informed reliably today, was reached to encourage persons of small means to spend and thus help boost prices, consumption, and employment.

This is directly opposite to the financing policy in wartime when the government was seeking to reduce prices and consumption in order to provide cheap and plentiful war supplies. Then efforts were made to get the "small fellow" to spend, and this force him to use fewer necessities.

"Patriotic" Drive

The decision to do the bulk of the financing of the recovery from the large financiers was made after suggestions for a public bond sale on a "patriotic" basis to small investors had been turned down.

Growing policy in wartime when the government was seeking to reduce prices and consumption in order to provide cheap and plentiful war supplies. Then efforts were made to get the "small fellow" to spend, and this force him to use fewer necessities.

ROSS DRAFTING STATUTE PLANS

Governor Reports Progress On Program; Inaugural On Jan. 7

By MAX G. FUNK

BOISE, Dec. 15 (AP)—Idaho's third inauguration of Governor C. Busby is planned for Jan. 7. Today the Boise Chamber of Commerce began final preparations for a ball following a reception at that state house in the evening of that honor day.

And meanwhile, Ross is working on plans he will outline to the legislature when it meets that midday. He reports progress-formulating plans for legislation which have taken a back seat because of the intense interest in the liquor question.

First of his minor problems probably is the mortgage moratorium law for which must be made on previous legislation.

Ross will attempt to make the "moratorium" laws more far-reaching and effective.

States Tax Possible

A sales tax has been playing about the governor's plans. To date, an effective and pleasing program has not been evolved from careful consideration. Revision of delinquent tax laws seems necessary during the immediate future.

And old-age pension troubles must be eliminated. There is a general old-age pension bill in the legislature. He will suggest remedies.

The findings of the liquor commission, appointed to study possible laws for control of Idaho's newly-permitted liquor sales, will form the basis of Ross' suggestions on control. Plans include the establishment of a "liquor board" to control over sales and dispensing.

Figures in Tulsa Mystery Case

Here are three important figures in Tulsa's puzzling murder mystery, which has the city's wealthy younger set terrified. Above left, Virginia Wilcox, who was to have been kidnapped in the extortion plot police say led Phillip Kommar to why she Correll. Above right, Boris Rogov, fiancé of Correll, who said she believes Kommar is shielding someone. Left, Sidney Horn whose death, closely following Correll's, was called murder despite suicide evidence.

Bailey Lee, Barley, former chief justice of the state supreme court, who was chosen by the voters at the last election as successor to Judge Babcock. The latter was not a candidate for reelection.

Principal address at the banquet was delivered by Chief Justice Alfred Budge, who was accompanied here from Boise by Justice Raymond L. Cliven. The honor guests and others were also called upon for remarks.

J. H. Blundford, president of the Twin Falls County Bar association, presided at the banquet. Other speakers included James R. Bothwell, John W. Graham, M. J. Sweeney, Frank L. Stephen and W. Orr Chapman.

FRANCE SENDS 'REGRETS'

Announces Readiness to Seek Settlement Acceptable to Paris and U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—The United States collected a bare $228,538 out of $150,729,076.23 due today from 13 war countries.

Finland alone paid. Maintaining her perfect record, she arranged transfer of the $22,538 to the treasury's credit at the New York Federal Reserve bank.

The other 12 only notes explaining why they did not pay. The latest communication revealed by the state department was from France, who followed the line of defaulters with a note regretting with "regrets" American invitation to pay $22,508,312.22 due on war debt.

"The French government desires to reaffirm that it does not contest the validity of the debt and that it remains prepared to seek a settlement with the American government on such a basis as may appear acceptable to the two countries," the note said.

The note ended with "assurances of highest consideration."

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—Most of the war debts are worth the paper they're written on because the treasury forecasted the printing job to the bureau of engraving, which produced the bonds and collected $100 each from 13 nations to pay for paper and ink.

The government still is waiting for $11,103,481,007.57 which the bonds represent, but it is happy about collecting the printing bill. Gold ink is expensive. So is vellum paper.

Very Magnificent

Great Britain and Belgium are the only countries which printed their own bonds. Great Britain's are particularly magnificent. There are 100 of them. Each one is for $1,000,000.

This government outfit itself producing bonds for France, which owes at the moment exactly $3,500,000,000. Her debt increased to 20 a minute. It has fluctuated since between the two extremes.

JURY PONDERING DAMAGE VERDICT

Receives Porter-Hendrickson Request Against Finance Corporation

Jury members in the case of J. W. Porter and G. C. Hendrickson, seeking recovery of damages from the Gallagher Finance company, Inc., of Seattle, Wash., were deliberating a verdict this afternoon in the case having been placed into their hands during the noon hour, following the giving of instructions by Judge W. A. Babcock.

Final arguments were heard this forenoon. R. P. Parry of defense counsel speaking for an hour and a half, and followed by E. L. Rayborn and Harry Bennett, representing the plaintiffs. Opening statements for the plaintiffs were made yesterday afternoon by J. L. Hodgins and Mr. Rayborn.

In the action Porter seeks $1,350 for injuries sustained in a auto wreck, allegedly caused by the defendant company's agents, and Mr. Hendrickson sued for $2,287.

Among the 12 jurors who received the case this afternoon is one Negro, Dave H. Curran, an employee of a local barber shop.

NORWALK, O., Dec. 15 (AP)—After setting off seven charges of explosives and firing seven shots at James Garrett, a gang of burglars today held the town of Norwalk, O., for ransom. The gang, which was held by the North Fairfield Savings Bank Co., at North Fairfield, near here, early today.

The bandits remained in the village about three hours, completely isolating it. Telephone and street light wires were cut. The first explosion awakened residents, but they remained indoors with the exception of Garrett, who was fired upon when he ventured forth.

Doke, Cleared of Murder Charges In Poet's Death

Jury Acquits Husband Under "Unwritten Law"

Absolves San Leandro Man for Shooting Youth Who Made Love to Wife

WOODLAND, Calif., Dec. 15 (AP)—Judson C. Doke, confessed slayer of Lemar Hollingshead, his wife's poet-lover, was acquitted of murder charges today.

The jury of 11 men and one woman absolved the defendant in the "unwritten law" in freeing the defendant in the "white hibiscus" case.

Doke received the verdict in matter-of-fact manner, acting as though he had expected it throughout. There was no change in his expression as he heard the words which freed him.

The 34-year-old former city official of San Leandro had based his defense on the unwritten law, claiming a man was justified in slaying another who made love to his wife.

Verdict Expected

The verdict caused the surprise in the courtroom of Superior Judge Chalmers because sometime earlier word had leaked out that the jury was swinging toward an acquittal.

Doke's first trial ended Nov. 10 when a jury of four women and eight men became hopelessly deadlocked on the vote of seven to five for acquittal.

Helen Lenton Doke, wife of the defendant and one of the principal characters in the triangular case which created nationwide interest, was not present during the trial or when the verdict was returned.

She has remained in seclusion, most of the time since her husband killed Hollingshead, and Doke's attorneys admitted recently that they would start divorce proceedings against the unfaithful wife.

Doke's acquittal did not mean that he was completely free, although it did clear him of charges in the "white hibiscus" case.

Two deputy sheriffs from Alameda county waited to arrest him on charges of embezzlement, and return him there for trial. San Leandro city officials also proceeded against the unfaithful wife.

Doke said he was confident he could clear up that matter, insisting he had embezzled no funds but that confusion might have arisen over his bank accounts.

LONG DELIBERATION

WOODLAND, Cal., Dec. 15 (AP)—A jury debating the charges of murder against Judson C. Doke in the "white hibiscus" case, appeared today to be deadlocked as long as the jurors whose disagreement ended Doke's first trial.

When the eleven men and the lone woman on the new jury were locked up last night, it was reported that the jury would be acquitted and five for conviction of the San Leandro man who killed 23-year-old Lemar Hollingshead, college poet and sweetheart of Doke's wife.

Long Deliberation

The jurors had considered the possible verdicts—not guilty, guilty of first degree murder, and guilty. (Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

SIGNED RECEIPTS ADVISED BY AAA

Proof of Payment to Labor Urged on Beet Growers As Safeguard

WASHINGTON (Special). The sugar section of the agricultural adjustment administration calls to the attention of sugar beet producers who plan to sign adjustment contracts the advisability of securing signed receipts from laborers for labor performed on the 1934 crop, to aid producers in proving compliance with the contract. Under the labor clause of the contract, the producer is required to pay all bona fide wage claims arising in connection with the production, cultivation, and harvesting of the 1934 crop, on a condition to receiving final adjustment payments on the 1934 crop.

Must Pay Claims

Before the final 1934 payment is made next spring, each contract grower will be required to furnish a certificate to the effect that all such wage claims have been paid, and if signed receipts from laborers covering such wage claims accompany the certificate, the possibility of disputes regarding the payments will be eliminated, sugar section officials pointed out.

The receipt secured from a laborer should indicate that the payment is made in accordance with the agreement or understanding between the producer and the laborer, and covers all work performed during the 1934 season by the laborer in question, for the grower who presents it. If possible the receipt should specify just what amounts were paid for such labor, including but not limited to, hoeing, and pulling and topping.

Although the securing of receipts from laborers is advised in order to avoid complaints from laborers regarding the wage claims, laborers will have opportunity to make complaints. If made, such complaints will be investigated. Securing receipts from laborers now and filing them with proof of compliance will avoid the possibility of delay in final payments to producers, on account of the labor clause.

"I'm 75 years old and I ain't got a job outside and I don't want out," he protested. "Can I stay here until spring?" His alarm was so unusual that prison officials got a special ruling. He may stay in prison until his maximum sentence is run.

"Thanks," said Woods. "Maybe I'll locate a job by then."
