Women Open Meat Strike

By ARTHUR C. DECK LOS ANGELES, March 27 (AP)—More than 10,000 Los Angeles housewives went on a meat strike today.

Two organizations, the Housewives League of Los Angeles and Southern California United Conference Against the High Cost of Living, combined membership of more than 10,000 into a war on food prices.

Meatless menus were broadcast through the city by house-to-house canvassers.

The Housewives League, which claims a membership of 2,000 women and says it has "thousands" of other volunteer workers, issued a complete menu for meals which substitute meat dishes with "lima bean soup," "macaroni" and "other vegetable dishes."

The meat boycott is not a neighborhood matter, according to Mrs. J. H. Housley, secretary of the Housewives League.

Washington social leader and aunt of Boris de Witt, "the richest man in the country," is the subject of the campaign's success.

Japan Abandons League; Powers Weigh Reaction

See Chance of Compact Between Hitler, Nippon

United States Sees Eye on Tokio Plans for Mandate Isles in Pacific

By WALLACE CARROLL (Copyright, 1935, United Press)

GENEVA, March 27 (UP)—Japan left the League of Nations today, giving the world a new impetus.

Will she consolidate a friendship with Germany? What is the Japanese navy doing in the former German islands which Japan holds under League of Nations mandate—and will continue to hold despite her resignation?

The first problem concerns Britain. Japan is Britain's eastern neighbor; Germany is an enemy, west, separated by a narrow sea, but separated by less than 200 miles at the nearest point, which is not too far.

U. S. Concerned The second concern is the United States most intimately. The possibility that the Japanese mandate islands will be placed in the hands of the United States is a possibility which has been mentioned here and there as the reason for a change in American naval policy.

France, which owns Indo China and Great Britain, with Hong Kong, and the great East Asia trade and the Dominion of Australia and New Zealand, are also interested in the problem.

Latin Nations Quail Brazil, which incidentally also has left the league. Reaction of interested European powers is expected to be shown by epitomized United Press dispatches.

Germany Welcomes departure. She is unfriendly and unwise. Russia—Joined the league largely because of a force for peace which would not object if Japan wanted to regain. Believes the League is a force for peace with Germany and Japan.

Simms Glowers As-Culbertson Captures Lead

NEW YORK, March 27 (AP)—P. Hal Sims, lowering bidder, captured the lead in the third round of the bridge battle with "Big" Culbertson.

Simms and his wife had entered the evening's play with Culbertson and his wife, 4,700 points ahead and left it 1,700 points behind.

Culbertson showed his game with much chortling. The overtime was sensational and had the blitzers gasping.

Everything had gone against the Culbertsons at the afternoon session. Their during dinner performance, someone gave Mrs. Culbertson a rubber foot.

Thereafter, nothing could stop her. In three rubbers the two had the lead made 4,200 points.

On the 7th hand, the Culbertsons crashed through to a plus score of 130.

At the end of the session, 14 rubbers had been played. The match is for 100 rubbers. Culbertson and Sims, according to the press agents, have been at dagger points for years and the match is to settle once and for all who knows the most about bridge, Mr. or Mrs.

WILL ROGERS SAYS: BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—Today's best bit of news is that Mr. Hitler, who said the reason he was engaging more men with guns was to get ready for the day when he would enter into a treaty with Russia. I guess France didn't enter into a treaty with Russia. It is not as if Russia is in a state of panic. But wonder what the world did for something to say everything. The idea is not by any means new. It is a very old story. It is a very old story. It is a very old story.

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES

Mills Tower, 210 South Street, San Francisco, Cal.

REGISTRATION IS ESSENTIAL

Election of Twin Falls will do well to make sure they are registered before Saturday night so they will be qualified to participate in the important city election Tuesday.

At that time a mayor for the next two-year term is to be chosen, and two councilmen will be named to serve four years each.

Seeking re-election upon their records in office are Mayor Duncan McD. Johnston, one of the most progressive chief executives this city has ever had, and Lem A. Chapin, commissioner of finance, who is completing his second term. He is an independent candidate.

Other candidates are W. E. (Bill) Taylor, and Harold C. Howell, running for election as councilmen, and in addition there is a set of three candidates running on an identical platform. This ticket is made up of Bert A. Sweet, for mayor, and H. H. Hedstrom and Ed Landon, for councilmen.

Thus there are two candidates for mayor and five aspirants for the two positions on the council. Hold-over members of the council, elected two years ago with Mayor Johnston, are O. H. Coleman and J. G. Johnston. They have two more years to serve.

Voters, who are asked to register before Saturday night so they may cast their ballots Tuesday, have the choice of re-electing their present mayor, who is running entirely upon his record, of renaming their present finance commissioner, Mr. Chapin, who is allied with no ticket, and of picking the second commissioner either from the list which includes Mr. Taylor, who has declared himself in favor of the policies of the present administration; Mr. Howell, who is running independently; or Mr. Hedstrom and Mr. Landon, who are campaigning with the ticket headed by Mr. Sweet.

The reason it is important to register is that the cause of good government in this city requires the interested attention of every voter, and unless electors are registered they will be unable to cast their ballots. Those who voted or registered in previous city elections, and have not since moved from their precinct, need not re-register. But for safety's sake it would be well for individuals to check up on their registration. The next thing is to make certain to vote at the election between 9 a. m. and 7 p. m. Tuesday.

This will be more than an election to choose either "Dunc" Johnston or Bert Sweet for mayor; it is an election to determine how much the people of Twin Falls have appreciated the energetic efforts of the present administration in matters of tax reduction, efficient public service, the employment of large numbers of people on federal projects, the bringing here of two public works projects, which created employment and permanent improvement of no little value, the progressive spirit of the administration which has been felt in the city as never before, and the splendid record which augurs a duplication of a forward program during the next two years.

But three days remain in which to register. Make sure you are registered yourself, encourage other members of your family to do likewise and urge your friends to take an interest in this matter, vitally important to Twin Falls and its civic future as will be explained in succeeding editorials.

A POLITICIAN IS HURT

"We now know that it has become sinful for party organizations to accept contributions. We know that it is especially sinful to accept contributions when the party who give them do or hope to do business with the administration."

With such lofty sarcasm does Francis Paulson, state Democratic chairman for Ohio, reply to Federal Relief Administrator Harold J. Hoffman's revelation that the Ohio Democratic machine has been collecting "campaign fund contributions" from firms which sell supplies to the state relief administration. You could not get a better sample of the blind insolence of the politician. Such elegant sarcasm about it being "especially sinful" to shake down people who hope to do business with you!

Why, of course it is especially sinful—and anyone but a politician can see it at a glance. How can we hope to make our democracy work smoothly, when party leaders have such an arrogant obstinateness to the ethics of decent government?

It has been decided that the United States will continue a neighborly policy. Why not? Europe has been a true neighbor to us; at least in borrowing and forgetting to return.

"Wait a minute," Drimveld pleaded. "Let's be reasonable. You can't leave me now."

MILICENT GRAVES glanced from her new fur coat, which was visible through the open door of the car, to the clock. The clock showed 6:35 and George Drimveld hadn't as yet returned to fix the machine. Her capable fingers flew over the keys of the typewriter, finishing the last accepted "play" to insure very truly yours, of the voluminous correspondence.

"The outer door opened with the best secreted 'thud' to reveal a young man in a dark suit, a white shirt and a red tie. He was Drimveld."

"There was a stack of mail that would take 10 or 15 minutes to type, and stamp. Of late this overtime work has been getting to a habit with Drimveld, and Milicent Graves had made up her mind that she'd tell him: 'In a new way, that's just a little more consideration would give her time to freshen up a bit before dinner.'"

But Milicent, however, was hardly in a position to become firm with her employer tonight. She had a favor to ask. So she slipped, and up her notebook and followed George Drimveld into the private office.

"Drimveld stared at her with eyes which glittered strangely. Milicent Graves didn't notice the signs of inner emotion. A sudden sense of valor possessed her. 'Mr. Drimveld,' she said, 'I would like it would be possible for me to get an advance on next month's salary? It happens that I've had some rather heavy expenses this month, and...'

"No," he told her shortly. "I'm sorry, but it's impossible. I've paid you for half a dollar, and that's all. I'll be ready for evening. Your mail is ready for signing. Shall I get it?"

"Not yet. I've got something to dictate to you."

He said irritably, "I don't care what time it is. I told you I've got some dictation. You're going to have to work tonight. You'll have to call downtown. There's a girl like a slave, and I'm not going to be a slave. I don't care how scarce jobs are. I'm going to get a raise or I'm going to quit."

She heard one of the janitors moving around in the outer office, and realized her voice had been high-pitched with rage.

"What I am about to dictate, Miss Graves, Drimveld said, 'is of the utmost importance. I don't want to be interrupted...'

"Before we start in on that dictation," Milicent Graves said drily, "what's the question of finances and overtime. I know that jobs are scarce. Mr. Drimveld, but it takes significant money, that I make a living on."

"I noticed you flashed out with some new dictation," he retorted sarcastically. "Yes, I did," she said, "and I needed it. It was a bargain I couldn't pass up. I paid for it out of my own money. You don't have to give me an advance if you don't want to. What is it, either? You can't leave me now. I'm all upset. Please forgive me."

She turned to stare at him, and suddenly realized that the man was looking at her in a peculiar way. He hesitated for a moment, then came back to the dictating table, spread out her notebook, and said, 'I'll get it for you. What is it, either?'

"No," she said, "without looking up. 'Lock the door as you go out. I don't want to be disturbed.' Be sure the door's locked. If you see a woman in a black evening coat, with a big collar, up around her face, don't let her in under any circumstances. If she's in the corridor when you come back from dinner, don't unlock the office door. Go some place and telephone me. I'll answer the telephone. And don't be long."

"Very well, Mr. Drimveld," Milicent said, with mechanical obedience, but she was thinking that the dinner she could buy at the tea room for 50 cents would unreasonably detain her.

For years I have protected this party and have myself shared it with the benefits which accrued from that murder.

"In order to make this confession intelligible at this late date, it is necessary for me to set forth certain facts. These facts can best be explained by certain documentary evidence, certain newspaper clippings which I will quote verbatim at length."

Drimveld paused in his dictation, turned to the wall safe above his desk. His fingers touched the knob of the combination; then he turned to Milicent Graves.

"I've got to get some documents," he said. "Go ahead and get that mail. I'll sign it. Then you can get it in the mail chute."

She couldn't help but think that, even in his trouble, he was intent upon getting every bit of work out of her he possibly could.

"She went to the outer office, rearranged with the stacks of mail placed in on the desk in front of him. He signed the letters with a firm, steady hand. She folded the mail, placed it in the envelope, sealed and stamped the envelope. Drimveld took some papers from some sort of a sequence.

"Go get yourself something to eat," he said, "without looking up. 'Lock the door as you go out. I don't want to be disturbed.' Be sure the door's locked. If you see a woman in a black evening coat, with a big collar, up around her face, don't let her in under any circumstances. ### DECLINE

WASHINGTON—It is unbelievable but true that a decline in demagoguery was faintly perceptible in the Senate on Tuesday. Only one congressman recited "Tommy this, and Tommy that," which is a new all-time low record for the use of "Ipping-in" bombast. Speeches by a few more delegates from the quarters—those who were over the top of the Paris bar, or the lead MP's who paroled the centennials, but still in the debate was above that of previous bomb hurrahs.

The general run of congressmen made an effort, at least, to discuss valid arguments for the bonus and against it. It was necessary for me to set forth certain facts. These facts can best be explained by certain documentary evidence, certain newspaper clippings which I will quote verbatim at length.

WHEELS

In the inside, there were more politics than ever. There were no more wheels within wheels, it is surprising that no more than one congressman became dizzy enough to vote on both sides of the issue. The foremost reason for this was that the Republican Party was fighting the lobby of the veterans of foreign wars. Ordinarily, the lobby is a force to be feared, but in this case it was a force to be feared.

MOSES

Unimpeachable Blanton of Texas spoke so often on the bonus bill that house members finally got tired of him. He was invited to "sit down," and he did.

There are 310 ex-servicemen in congress, many of whom are against the bonus, but all of whom are entitled to a bonus despite their $10,000-a-year salary and military record.

A group of Louisiana bankers and bankers called on Jesse Jones the other day to ask him to help in the event that they carry out certain threats he is supposed to have made against bankers in Louisiana.

MORE WHEELS

The inflationary aspects of the present monetary policy have been over-emphasized. The truth is the inflationists in congress are linked together by a common interest. They know they cannot get anything important past the White House, and have a defeat-complex. Although they have a majority in both houses, there will not be any inflation legislation this session.

RESULTS

The senate will now go through the same sham wrangle in a few weeks. It will pass an entirely different bill. It does not make much difference which one it passes. Then the Frey business will begin, and senate and the house will try to get together on a bill to send to the president.

The Mississippi is, of course, the chief reason why the state of Louisiana is water-minded. But the entire state is threaded and dotted with bayous, lakes and small streams, and much of the land that borders on these navigable waters is marsh area, which furnishes an ideal home for the muskrat-millions.
