MOTHER'S 1919 FEUD FLARES IN-BABY MIXUP

These early pictures throw an interesting sidelight on the sensational baby mixup which occurred in an Atlanta hospital in May, 1919, and which took a dramatic turn the other day when Louise Madeline Pittman, pretty 17-year-old Macon, Ga. girl chose Mr. John C. Garner, ex-governor of Georgia, instead of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel L. Pittman. Mrs. Garner gave birth to girl babies on successive days. Confusion in identification caused the Garners to insist they had been given the wrong child. At the left, Mrs. Garner holds the "unclaimed baby" which died at the age of eight months. At right, Mrs. Pittman is shown with baby Louise Madeline. The Pittmans were given her custody in the fall of 1920. In the center photo are the Garners' other three daughters, Essie, Virginia, and Cecil, as they appeared in 1920. The Pittmans may renew their court fight to regain Louise Madeline's custody.

Martha Ballah has left for her home at Santa Barbara, Calif., after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Gooding, for the past month.

Miss Mary McLaughlin, manager of the 77-1 State lumber yard, was confined to her home by illness. A representative is managing the business during his absence.

The strong resemblance of these four girls convinced Louise Madeline Pittman, survivor of the mysteriously hospitalized baby mixup case that embroiled two Georgia families seventeen years ago, that she was indeed the daughter of the John Garners of Macon, Ga., and not the child of the Daniel Pittmans of Atlanta, who reared her. Now she claims the girls pictured with her as sisters. Left to right, are Mrs. Edna Garner Manning, Virginia Garner, Louise Pittman and Mrs. Cecil Henley.

Negro Faces Big Test in Attempt To Reopen Drive

Joe Favored in Wagering But Former Champion is Confident

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (UP)—The "hittle of the unknown quantity" in 10 rounds or less between Joe Louis, 25-year-old champion Negro, and Jack Sharkey, 35-year-old heavy weight champion from Boston—both trail—goes on in the battle-rite at Yankee stadium tonight.

A crowd of 40,000 or more will see upwards of $200,000. Two months ago Sharkey would have had trouble getting a job as sparring partner for the Bronx Bomber. Today Sharkey talks about fighting for the heavyweight title next year. He figures Louis is a soft touch.

Jackie-Hyde Fighter
Joe Louis, who exploded the myth that Sharkey had broken Harry Willis in 1920 when he was knocked out in 16th round, was "knocked out" and lost to Louis. Sharkey has been the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the ring. No one can tell what he will do when he faces the young Negro.

Louis, not the supremely confident warrior of 1930, is far from the fierce, two-fisted fighting machine who captured sparring partners in training camps prior to his K. O. by Max Baer in 1931. He is a talker of what round will beat his man. He merely says, "I expect a tough fight."

Many competent critics believe Louis will never achieve all the effects of the terrific beating he took at the hands of Max Baer. "I think Louis is gun shy," says one.

Indications in Louis' training sessions were that the Negro will concentrate his attack on Sharkey's midriff—generally recognized as the weak spot in the armor of the former champion.

Two-Pound Edge
Joe Louis held a slight weight advantage over Jack Sharkey when they were scheduled to fight for the 10-round heavyweight bout tonight at Yankee stadium.

Louis lacked 300% against Sharkey's 200% when he fought the former heavyweight titleholder. Dr. W. H. Williams, N. Y. state athletic commission physician, applied his scale to the two fighters. "The Ancient Mariner" said:

"Looks like you're the most nervous man in the world. You're shaking all over. Sharkey wore a two-day growth of black beard and he says much. As always, Jack started at everyone with his 'shyness' act. He was out behind the scenes as Sharkey was checked in."

Joe's fighter hearing, 34-1 in an attempt to bring the matter guard forward for a K. O. punch in the jaw. It is the only fight in which a referee employed the strategy on Sharkey in 1927 and won by a K. O. in seven rounds.

Improves Defense
It also was noted in Louis' camp that when a sparring partner crossed a right to his jaw, Joe Louis with a right hand to the body. Louis also showed he had improved his defense for "knacker" such as Sharkey, who was knocked on his jaw the night of June 20.

Three or four times in his 12-year career Sharkey has shown a habit of seeing his opponent's hand done something to leg the right for himself and then striking back. He has used this strategy for psychologists, such as the case for the former champion's leg after limping out of Jack Dempsey.

Big Betting
Burdett, himself, the bout in 1927. He has been a big betting figure. Considerable Louis has lengthened the odds to 10-1. He has been a big betting figure. Considerable Louis has lengthened the odds to 10-1. He has been a big betting figure. Considerable Louis has lengthened the odds to 10-1.

IN TONIGHT'S HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

"I look on this thing as a walk in the park," Joe Louis seems to be saying in his dressing room.

By dint of professional privilege, I got a place in the grandstand...

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

MANY SPECIES OF BIRDS CARRY COMBS ON THEIR MIDDLE CLAWS, TO ASSIST THEM IN PREENING THEIR PLUMAGE.

SNAILS MAY HAVE ANYWHERE FROM SIXTY-SEVEN TEETH TO FORTY THOUSAND.

Snails do not have teeth in their jaws, but on their tongue, and they secure their food by a rasping process, which wears away the object that is being devoured, in much the same fashion that a file wears down a surface. When their teeth wear sufficient they are replaced them.
