RECOGNITION IN SIGHT FOR FRANCO RULE

• Britain, France Take New Tack in Effort to Sway Spanish Insurgents From Fascist Nazi Influence

The Associated Press
LONDON, Feb. 11.—British and French recognition of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime as the legal government of Spain apparently is the next move of the democracies to sway the Spanish insurgents from Fascist and Nazi influence.

Informal quarters expressed today that Franco's recognition might be granted next week.

Britain and France seem now to accept Franco as the inevitable victor in Spain's long civil war, want to stabilize Italy and Germany for his sake.

British and French capital for reconstruction in Spain would be the first step toward stabilizing Italy and Germany from within, a permanent foothold on the Spanish peninsula.

The Spanish insurgents conductors of Catalans turned their military might against Valencia, once efforts in the Spanish civil war were concentrated on the movement stuck to its refusal to surrender.

French ministers flew from France to join Gen. Francisco Franco, who was reported from Alcalá, Spain, to have quelled all military commanders in the heart of the country this morning, still holding.

Spain scarcely had time to reorganize its administration in the central Spanish zone before French and British agents left for Valencia, the key port.

At least 20 persons were killed when a British air raid believed to have been made by Italian-controlled air bases on the Island of Mallorca, off Spain's Mediterranean coast.

Wind Saves Ship
From Explosion

WILDFIRED, R.I., Feb. 11.—An offshore wind today blew a burning gasoline fire away from the grounded liner Lightburn and saved it from a possible explosion which would have completed her destruction.

On the which "spilled" into the sea from an automatic fuel tank, was washed overboard by heavy waves breaking over the Lightburn's hull. The fire, which was about 50 yards from the light, burst when it began burning.

The force of wind kept the burning gasoline away from the ship, which carried 72,000 barrels of gasoline and kerosene when it struck the reef last night during the 100-mile run after burning about two hours.

FLASHES OF LIFE

By Associated

EMEGEEN, N. C.—The lone passenger train ground swiftly to a stop in the middle of the road.

Passengers looked out in surprise as the train hopped a hundred yards to an overpass bridge which worked like a seesaw, the finishing touches and stopped rolling.

They saw a construction worker standing on the bridge.

The man had dropped when he poked his head out to gaze at the project.

It was his fatal teeth. The train

Quads Born in Jobless Home

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 11.—(UPI)—Quadruplets were born today to Mrs. Marie Pennetti while her husband, out of job, slept in a waiting room of the hospital.

One of the babies, the first born, died.

Dr. Bruce Austin, an attending physician, said the three survivors, two girls and a boy, an excellent chance for life and said the 35-year-old mother "was in very good condition."

Ralph Pennetti, who died to drive a truck, passed the floor through the window and fell into an exhausted sleep this morning. Awakened by Dr. Austin, he heard the news and said:

"Congratulations. You have triplets!"

Pennetti grimmed and said:

"Quit your kidding. What is it?"

The physician assured him he wasn't "kidding." Pennetti exclaimed:

"Gosh, that makes seven!"

There are four other Pennetts: Ralph, Jr., 11; Angelina, 8; Louis, 6, and Dorothy, 4.

The first baby was born at 8:50 a.m., and died. The second, a girl, came at 8 a.m., the third, a girl, at 9:30, and the fourth, a boy, at 12:30.

Administrators put the boy into an oxygen machine.

SINGER'S CHILD LAWSUIT CENTER

Marion Talley's Lawyer Assists Her Husband Dodge Subpoena Servers

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (AP)—A court battle over the custody of 3-year-old Sonja Eckstrom, newlywed daughter of Marion Talley, opera singer, separation of more than a decade ago, was complicated today by the action of her lawyer. Talley, later, said her estranged husband was "lodging" subpoena servers.

The attorney, George E. Peritz, of Harrison, N.Y., advised detectives had trailed the husband, "Adolf" Eckstrom, her former singing teacher, to his home in New York and attempted to have him into court.

"We've watched his studio and apartment-day and night," he said. "He's been here, but he's always been home, jump ahead of us," Peritz said.

The attorney, who has been Talley's legal adviser since the "American Nightingale" who made her Metropolitan Opera debut at the age of 17, was the mother of a child caught in a legal tangle over custody of the child's supreme court.

The singer said in her statement: "I have been married since December, 1934, eight months after my daughter was born." She married Eckstrom secretly on March 2, 1934.

In her suit, Miss Talley charged that Eckstrom was "a man of immoral character" and "a bad influence on the child-a sufficient home."

She said Eckstrom, then 40, had indulged in "extramarital affairs, including 'Sissies,'" Betty Ruhe, and "Princesses"—in a Manhattan penthouse—and had been given $10,000 to "keep his place."

Miss Talley, who kept secret the birth of the child to avoid hampering her operatic career and radio career, had been granted a divorce.

Exonerated of Alleged Failure to Enforce Laws Predicted

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Some members predicted flatly today that the house judiciary committee would recommend failure to enforce the immigration laws.

Both Democrats and Republicans said privately that they only qualifiedly supported the committee's recommendation to "close a preliminary investigation immediately and to make no presentation. Nothing has been presented to them; they added, to warrant impeachment as proposed.

A House spokesman said: "Unless something turns up pretty soon in the way of a lead for us to follow, my guess is that the committee will make a report back to the house that our investigation has produced nothing," said one congressional source, who declined use of his name.

Another member said he would ask the committee at its next session to postpone the hearing on the bill until a motion to late the impeachment resolution.

The committee could take that action if it can't agree on articles of impeachment for trial in the Senate—or could send the house a simple resolution of censure.

Thomas accused Miss Perkins, Gerard D. Kelly, labor department chief, of being responsible for the imminent cancellation of "hundreds of crimes and misdemeanors" for not pressing deportation charges against thousands of CIO west coast leaders, on grounds that he was an communist.

U.S.B. WOULD TRAIN AVIATORS

Pocatello—School President Points to Facilities For Course

POCATELLO, Feb. 11 (AP)—The hope that the University of Idaho would train the school's cadet pilots to be trained by the federal government was expressed today by Dean J. R. Nichols.

The program will be expanded in the fall and formal applications sent to the university before implementation, Nichols said, adding that he had been advised by the civil aviation commission that several institutions in the country would be designated as training schools.

"The airplane mechanics course is growing rapidly," said Nichols.

A recently completed airfield and new $30,000 hangar and vocational building are now in operation in a favorable position, the dean asserted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Idaho newspaper editors urged the legislature to plan for training thousands of civilian pilots next year through courses conducted in colleges and universities would be taken into account.

The extent of the program would, of course, depend upon the amount of appropriation Congress makes available for the work, which has already been undertaken on an experimental basis, Nichols said.

Robert H. Hinckley, of Utah, a member of the legislative commission, was hopeful of obtaining approximately $100,000. This, he said, would provide for the training of 100 students.

Present experiments are confined to about 100 students, the Utah representative said, adding that Hinckley said that were the programs placed in full operation, the cost of tuition would be negligible.

Each state would be given a quota and that quota would be proportional to the size of its population.

"Each state would be given a quota and that quota would be proportional to the size of its population," Hinckley said.

"Essentially, the authority's program is to propose a five-year plan for the development of a national training system already established and functioning in public and private schools throughout the country," Hinckley said.

We are able to expand the program in the fall to include some colleges, in addition to a few vocational schools," he said.

Sources close to the authority said that selection of the various schools would be based largely upon the availability of flying fields, the availability of flying schools, and other ground school facilities.

Congress to Pay Respect to Pope

House leaders also will ask adoption of a resolution by Representatives to the effect that the

A DEBATING DEMOCRACY

A group of oldsters in a small town in the East are organizing a crack barrel forum minus the crackers. They have set the minimum age-limit for their members at 65; the age at which some modern thinkers and customers would require them to retire past their usefulness.

Their plan is to gather together in a local store and discuss all problems that interest them—politics, crops, economics, business—or anything else peculiar to them.

This particular group is only one of several signs that public affairs are again in the hands of the old-timers and talkers of Americana. Public lectures on any current topic from foreign affairs to local matters are well patronized. The radio forums, such as Town

Meeting of the Air and the Chicago University Round Table, easily attract many listeners but inspire those listeners to go on talking about the discussions after the broadcast programs are over.

There's a good deal of uniformity talk in all this, and some unnecessary emotion. Even so, the crowd is good. Complete lack of discussion of public affairs usually indicates indifference to them. Arguing about them, raising doubts and questions proposing answers, and so on, are part of the democratic process.

WAR VS. WORK

Figures gathered by the International Labor

Office, of which an American has recently been director, show an encouraging trend which may be reflected here last year.

The United States, in the last quarter of 1938, led all other countries in the reduction of unemployment. In the same period, more than half of the nations reporting to the labor office disclosed greater unemployment.

Great Britain, for example, despite its huge rearmament program, had a substantial drop in jobless numbers taking not solved Englands employment problem and probably would not solve ours. Employment is advanced by constructive and commercial acitivity.

It is a good thing to get this matter straight. If we must arm, let it be for the single purpose of defense, with no pretense of creating jobs. War is economically destructive, and preparation for it, however necessary for other reasons, is an economic hardship.

OUR TRIPLE ENTENTE

Our people have read, with mixed emotions:

the report of an unusual event in Mexico City last Sunday. Col. Fulgencio Batista, called

"dictator" of Cuba, was visiting there on a good-will tour like his recent trip to our country. Speaking to the Confederation of Mexican Workers, which is a power in Mexico, he declared that if the independence of Mexico were threatened today it could "count on Cuba's support."

It is not hard to get from this statement the idea that Mexico is pleading Cuban help for Mexico's anti-American encroachments from Uncle Sam. But not so. We have the sympathies of the United States," he added, "in the hope of solidarity among American nations." He evidently has confidence in the good faith of this country.

Then Vincente Toledano, an important lubor leader, took up the theme and told the big audience that Mexico was threatening both of France, England and other free countries in opposing fascism, and that Mexico, Our people are not to be blamed for this.

Toledano, who is a leader in the idealism, liberty and justice cause of "Triple Entente" for the New World.

This is reassuring after the apparent hostility shown us recently in Mexico. Perhaps we have exaggerated that—or else the Mexicans are seeing a new light.

Here is realism; anyway, along with idealism. The American republics have to stand together.

GERMAN JUNIOR PUNISHED

The exuberant, young Finch, German stage humorist, should be a joy to all Germany not to be funny under the Nazi regime.

At least, not in public.

Finck had been in a concentration camp once, and really knew better. But his funny-bone got the best of him. In the cafe where he was the chief attraction—the comedian entertained an audience of "the old landed gentility" who had come to Berlin for an arti-cultural show, by gently razzing the government.

At one point he would step down and draw out the stage-on-his-hands-and-knees, and when the stage would ask him what he was doing, he would reply: "Crawling, of course, the same as you've been doing for years." The old-fashioned landed gentility roared with appreciation.

So now apparently Finck will be doing his crawling in the concentration camp again. He and several other leaders who let the sense of humor overcome their reverence for Hitler. Gophole and Company have been formally expelled from the Reich Chamber of Culture, alias the stage, for "lack of any positive attitude toward National Socialism."

As with so many other Nazi statements, this phrase seems to mean the precise opposite of what he says. The offending actors have had too positive an attitude toward a tyrannical government.

"The Nazi bosses simply can't take it. They are a curiously humorless lot. But then, if they had any sense of humor, they wouldn't be dictators."

THOSE ENDOWMENT FUND LOSSES

C. E. Arney, an old-time teacher in Idaho schools and a former superintendent of schools in Bonneville County, says in a letter to the editor of the Idaho Statesman, that the present session of the Idaho legislature should cancel some of the state's debts to the pension fund provided for the common schools of the state when Idaho was admitted to the union. "This," says Mr. Arney, "is a proposal that I have made from time to time. I have never obtained from a state official since Idaho was admitted . . . In Idaho's admission he made a solemn pledge to the government which gave him the right to do this."

Fred T. Wilson piloted the statehood bill through congress. He was proud of the provisions he has made for the children of the generation to be the recipients of the endowment fund.

Mr. Wilson suggests that Idaho follow the example of Wisconsin, which was "in the hole" with its endowment fund at the close of the Civil War and then had to make a new one. This is the only way to assure that the endowment fund will be available for the future.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

THE CHARACTER
Peter Malone, An adventurous young Euclidian.

His mother, a sister, and staunch supporters.

Yesterday: A newspaper editor, a reporter, a woman who had a job in Burma, and a cast-hawk athlete. If any news breaks there,

Colonel from Burma

The voyage out to Rangoon exceeded expectations. Peter and Peter had optimistic aspirations. As soon as they had settled down to the ship's life, they discovered that the Ayryne was carrying a load of sentimental young people.

There were six of them going out for the season. They were part of the famous "Ayryne Club," which was a sort of society of novelties.

Their light-hearted love affairs enraged them with the newest "chicks."

They were all girls, or boys, or fathers, or with anybody who happened to attract them. They formed themselves, after the first few days, into a social organization.

Colonel Malone, who was the man who ran the ship, and whose spirit was still burning.

Petronella was much excited just now. Her heart beat fast and fast just when the fun started at its wildest and maddest, she would feel her delight suddenly turn to fear, and then again her heart turned 10 feet. What was going to happen to them all? This kind of a place could not last.

Malone was going to be gone for five years to the jungles of Ceylon. Would he be happy there? So many of them had been sent away to Ceylon, and they had not known what became of them.

In their anxiety, the passengers gathered to him. Petrel asked questions too of a tall, gray-haired man of acute appendicitis in a fore-station. He told her other stories that seemed to threaten the gally with the present with a shudder.

When they reached Colombo, six weeks later, the passengers found it difficult to keep awake, and nuzzled each other when they dozed, to make them look at the scenes.

The elephants working timber. On the road home they were driven into a ditch without accident.

The driver, who had been driving for more money, before he would persuade his friends to have the car repaired, had a fit of appendicitis.

Then, after a month of travel, they arrived in London, and drove on, leaving him sitting in the middle of the road with a pinched hand. They left his tail in its rank, and he lay there, in the moonlight, in the warm, breaking waves at Mount Lwinha. They caught up the "Ayryne," which called Petronella was pleased, surprised, but made a little awkward.

With her gray hair friend in government, she had a new and full embroidered shawl. Although he said nothing, he told her with a smile that he loved her.

All this was very old stuff indeed to two hundred of the passengers. But it was very new to the Malone's.

Golden Pagoda

After Colombo, they were suddenly anxious to arrive. The ship had carried them through the bulk of safety against Germany, Italy, such non-sense! Why do we care about the German? We care about the dining room and cocktail-bar. Aren't many of the passengers married, and made-lovers, and mothers?

Those that were left, spent the last few days more quietly, tending to some of the passengers' interests about the future, in sympathy.

The ship entered the brown water from the Irrawaddy.

Land, land, come into sight—

Land, with oil derricks, and against dark trees and a tender morning sky, a small golden pagoda which caught the sun.

Colonel Malone came aboard with the custom house. His tones were stern, but friendly. Peter, the sheepish, meeting him. But his father did not allow it to until the day he died.

"Close your mouth up, our mind to take a good job, at last. You are to report at the head office tomorrow morning. Well, have a bright start at noon, then you can go to the office straight to Miller's chumminess, where you're going to live—"

"Was he going to flatten up the river, or would he be able to get into Rangoon easily?" Peter wondered.

She was thinking on this compunction when she heard the door open.

He would be separated from her, although he had guessed that this would be the case.

"Peter, I'm sorry." It looked as if he could not help confessing her. But father seemed a bit taken aback.
