Wyoming's Tarzan Slayer Holds Posse at Bay After Shooting Two More Men

Earl Durand, 26-Year-Old Raw Meat-Eating Fugitive, Beats Off Attack on Mountain Barricade

(By The Associated Press)
POWELL, Wyo., March 22—Shooting down two posse officers, Earl Durand, Wyoming's "Tarzan slayer," held off bay from a veritable mountain fort, tonight, a surrounding force of 100 Wyoming and Montana posse men.

The 26-year-old raw meat-eating fugitive shot down Arthur Argento of Meeteetse, Wyo., and Orville Linniberry of Cody, Wyo., in a fierce gun battle when they tried to rush his natural fort of solitude, 400 feet up the side of a steep ridge.

Sheriff Frank Blackburn of Cody said he believed Argento and Linniberry were dead. They fell directly in the line of Durand's fire in an open space about 100 yards wide.

Durand, sought since last Thursday for the slaying of two peace officers after breaking from the Cody posse, was captured Saturday night by Sheriff Blackburn to reach Argento and Linniberry.

Repus Attempt Waits

Withdrawing with a force of never more than 100, no more attempt to reach Durand would wait until his deadly sharpshooting would be made until after daybreak.

"It's suicide, that all," Blackburn said.

The posse came up with the trail of Durand, who was held for four days after he had kidnapped a rancher, cut him and forced him to drive him to the mouth of Clarkfork canyon.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. George Clark, were released by Durand unharmed.

From his stronghold Durand commanded a clear line of fire to the south, left, down the steep ridge. While Durand aimed an intermittent fire at the rock cliff, Durand answered only with a roar of rifle fire from the two men held by his shots.

Sheriff Blackburn said eight men mounted on horseback could not get within 100 yards of Durand's refuge before closing in on him from behind.

Sheriff Blackburn also said he was unable to get to the scene at Fort Francis E. Warren to send a trench mortar to the battle scene.

If Durand remained entrenched, it meant another night of the weapons that could blast him out, Blackburn said.

Hides From Fire

Carrying incendiary bombs, Bill Monday, Cody pilot, flew over the battle scene in an attempt to blast Durand from his lair. With darkness came the end of the fight.

During the night, to the surprise of Monday, "he said he could not find the fugitive's refuge and had to return to Cody without dropping the bombs."

Reporting he could see the line of posse officers, Monday said Durand evidently had hidden within the plane engine.

Camp Warden Boyd Benison said Argento and Linniberry were adrift with the deployed posse line when he saw Durand shoot his way through to his lair with two broadheads.

It had been an exchange of shots. Benison said he had seen the slain Durand believed to be carrying five rifles, a shotgun and a pistol when he seized him last night.

Benison said the two men opened fire at Durand, but Durand's rocks surrounded them.

"I pleaded with them not to," Benison said.

"I told them I had a family and I wanted to live."

But Durand responded, "They broke out of the tree trunks."

"First one of them, I think it was (Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

WYOMING-KILLER LEAVES LETTER

Durand Issues Warning, Given Undertaker's Office as Return Address

(By The Associated Press)
CODY, Wyo., March 22 (AP)—The mountain slayer who withdrew to a mountain cabin in Clarkfork canyon left a rough letter for his undertaker.

The American Forest Fire Foundation, which set up the awards, said the three were "the boys of the Blacktail creek fire of August, 1937, which took 15 lives."

The foundation said the CCC boys were trapped by a sudden shift of the ground which split the camp toward them.

Post, aided by Tyrrell and Sullivan, forced them to drive alone toward the mountains.

"Of course I know that I am done for and when you kill me, I suggest you do my body mounted and hanging it up in a tree, so that there and kept up their courage until they could be fed to safety," the letter said.

The letter, which was signed and killed two police officers last evening and after 100 possemen who approached his mountain hiding place, was left on a table in the cabin where he had been staying since before the 26-year-old slayer kidnapped Mr. and Mrs. Art Thorenburg and forced them to drive alone toward the mountains.

He had been staying with the same two peace officers after he had been arrested March 13 and released on good behavior.

During his stay, he had been pouncing on the posse and was sentenced to serve six months in jail—Bill Monday, who is a Clarke, Tex., rancher belonging to John Yeates, Tex., rancher.

The letter said:

"Dear Mr. Sullivan, I am enclosing a copy of the letter I wrote to you (Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

(By The Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, March 22 (AP)—A verdict carrying death in the electric chair brought from a murderer the longest time in the history of the Commonwealth.

Charles Detweller, program chairman for the month of March of the Kiwanis club, acted as prosecutor.

He introduced Ralph E. Leighton, state representative, who expressed his opinion on lobbying during the trial.

Whitehead had wired their inability to attend because of business.

Detweller, a state representative, who spoke briefly on contemplated improvements at the county, agreed.

Polygrove, former Hansen farm, who declared that "the only reason he was really fed at home is in his wife's name," was the principal speaker at the Twin Falls Kiwanis club "farmer's night" program held at the Park hotel last evening.

Upwards of 150 Kiwanians and farmers attended the dinner session.

Each Kiwanis club member had a "farm friend" as a guest.

Wilbur S. Hill, club president, received the award.

John Detweller, a local attorney, was present.

LEWIS SAYS CIO WILL NOT SPLIT

Leader Rejects Proposal for Peace with Federation

NEW YORK. March 22 (UPI)—John L. Lewis declared today that the CIO would not accept a proposal to dissolve and chop alternatives up into a multitude of pieces "as the price of peace with the American Federation of Labor."

The president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations made the statement in answer to the latest move of the United States Workers of America of the American Federation of Labor's executive committee to determine jurisdictional conditions under which the CIO unions might be readmitted to the AFL.

Lewis, also president of the United Auto Workers, referred to the leaders of the AFL with whom the CIO had been negotiating for admission. Friday in the capital, "hidebound aristocrats," denounced the CIO as "any who charge the CIO to be a threat to the public welfare are acceptable" basis for peace—now come the CIO will change its policy and could, he said, "be more effective."

Lewis asserted the CIO had accepted without qualification to discuss labor's invitation.

"He said the CIO was willing to discuss any plan or suggestion of anything that would help us," he said. "That has been its attitude," he said, "and will be when the joint committee meets again." Then Washington, he said, "I know that is the place for labor—why—the CIO and its organizations do not join the AFL. They have been split up into a multitude of pieces as the quid pro quo of becoming associated with the American Federation of Labor."

New Call Slated

For CCC Camps

A call will be issued early in April for one of the largest Civilian Conservation Corps' enrollment from the country since the movement was created. It will be issued by the Twin Falls county supervisor of the department of public assistance, announced yesterday.

The camp, now being received at the public assistance office from young men who wish to enter CCC camps, must be between 17 to 23 years of age, and from trailer hinterland families.

The state supervisor enrolling CCC enrollees to remain only two years in the organization will force release of thousands of youths throughout the nation next month, said Paddock.

With an unusually large number of vacancies expected in Idaho, Paddock said the supervisor will receive a large quota to fill, Paddock said.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

BY GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

THE CHARACTERS

Peter Malone: "Adventurous."

Journalist; his sister,

James: Peter's fiance.

Yankee: "Worried about Peter."

In Twin Falls, Peter comes up to London for more news. She meets Clare Horton, again.

Peter's first

DECISION:

"Tell me more about it. I don't think I can go, just right," Peter said.

Clare put out a hand and touched her. "My dear child! I'd quite forgotten. Of course, you have reason to see the world."

She had congratulated him.

No one could expect a fiance to let her go to Spain!

"That's what I told Petronella, but she said, 'Don't.'

Instead of questioning her, Clare explained:

"I want to make a camp somewhere in the mountains near Madrid.

Soon, the city is going to fall to France. I can't help myself.

I must keep on writing, and keep safe while the others fight.

Then return them to their homes, when Madrid has surrendered.

Petronella's expression was agonized, as she met Clare's eyes.

"Please, don't tell me."

It was to be like this. Try to save something from the awful wreck-and pain, men inflict on themselves. Peter, after a short time, such suffering. I've seen children as you've seen them, pale, starving, and with gaunt faces as indeed as skeletons. But, if only you'd let me go somewhere else. Not to

Madrid."

Quite bluntly, Clare suddenly asked: "What?"

"I've known since I first met you that we ought to be together."

"But, I don't know if I can possibly help. Of course, if it can't shut me up. I'm so used to organizing people," she smiled.

"You...you're...you're...you're...you're..."

Petronella asked. Clare did not present demands.

"I'm in trouble. For a moment Petronella was silent, while Clare waited. Then, as though she were ten years younger, she said,

"I've been here for years, for years,

I know he's no good to me, but I can't help

it."

One of Clare's eyebrows lifted slightly. "So you're the girl he met in Rangoon! I wondered, when he left."

"I put my second, then, to his work. He just went off without a word."

"Yes, he told me something of it."

"It was the same ever since.

Whenever we met, he has ac-tended to say things that were important. He knew I'd wait, because I couldn't help it. But he wouldn't admit he was glad of it.

I didn't know he was glad of it.

I hadn't seen me for a long time, I'd changed a great deal. It suddenly struck him, that, after all, my life wasn't half bad. I was a good wife for him. So, at last, when it really suited him, he admitted that he loved me. But

"Yes, tell me what happened in Cairo!"

Petronella, now, urgent, unhappy, had described the few days of happiness, and the way they had ended.

Her eyes met Clare's.

"You see? Little Tom would be in much danger, trouble, horror. If I married him, I'd be in

Madrid."

Clare turned at last. Her lips met her eyes, softly. She shook her head gently at Petronella.

"I think that's where your ought to my dad, but that's not what I mean."

"But he doesn't love me enough."

He did, but Clare stirred her tea. "When I met him in China, and he told me about you—the explanation he had given me, I might well have been right. He said you were the wrong type, stand alone, and he had been thinking about you."

"You're right," Petronella interrupted

her. "I did feel like that. They seemed to be together, never seemed permanent, or compulsory, that you

stuck so long. But, when you came to face marriage, that's when—on the other hand!"

"You're right," Petronella interrupted

her. "I did feel like that. They seemed to be together, never seemed

permanent, or compulsory, that you

stuck so long. But, when you came to face marriage, that's when—on the other hand!"

"I'm glad. Go and telephone."

Petronella did not think there could be any real, but there was a chance. She kept telling herself, she was a fool, she was a fool, and waited, that she was mad to feel this inner satisfaction, and excitement. But, the moment she heard the voice, her friend, she had the smallest answer, and she knew it just had just come.

"Do that, Mrs. Malone! Oh, we've been wanting to get you. I'll put

Forecast of War

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22 (UPI)—Bernard Russell, British philosopher, predicted today Europe would be thrown into a war over Tunisia unless Germany's designs on the country were stopped peacefully.

"The work is largely consummated," he said. "Peter, can't you see how your job is to encourage me to do it?"

"There's nothing left to do but to get a line," Petrel's answer was a whisper of delight.

"Oh, Martin! I'm so happy!"

"I don't know if I'm right," Petrel said again, louder, to get a line.

"Petrel's answer was a whisper of delight.

DATE FIXED FOR SPRING CLEANUP

Seven Trucks to Be Used in Hauling Away Accumulation of Debris

The week of March 27 to April 1, inclusive, will be annual spring cleanup week in Twin Falls. A total of seven city street cleaning and garbage collection departments of streets and reservoirs.

Seven trucks, four owned by the city, three by the state, and one by Gar-Pac, who holds the city garbage contract, will be used in hauling the city's winter accumulation of debris to disposal points, the officials said.

Regular garbage should be placed in containers with lids, trash in bags, and dried leaves in bags.

People should start immediately to collect garbage and rubbish that they wish to have hauled away.

Garbage should be placed near the same spot that garbage is regularly placed.

The city has been divided into zones for the clean-up campaign.

Following are the areas which will be cleaned and should be visited by garbage collectors:

Monday and Tuesday, March 27 and 28: All territory west and east of Main Street, between the south entrance to Blue Lakes boulevard, north to Heyburn and east to Locust and south to Kimberly road; Locust and south to Kimberly road, north to Main Street, between Main Street and South Park and Idaho Vista addition.

Wednesday, the planned cleanup, H. S. Post, station with the Twin Falls sanitarian unit, urged co-operation of the public in clearing the city's streets unsightly and garb-freeing debris.

"Summer is just around the corner," Post said, "so soon health force removal of decaying garbage, vegetables and other fly breeding material. All this can be done now, so let's all take advantage of this opportunity to have such materials buried away at no cost to them."

GASOLINE THEFT HALTS JOURNEY

Three Wyoming Young Men, Caught at Kimberly, Bleed Guilty.

An all-starred attempt to secure gasoline with which to continue an asseried journey in search of employment, brought three Atten, Voss and Johnson to the office of the law at Kimberly Thursday night.

Arraigned in probate court in Twin Falls yesterday on a petty larceny charge, the trio, Elmer Atten, 22; Irvin Voss, 20, and Carl McCoy, 21, pleaded guilty to the charge, and were sentenced to the state prison at the time to pronounced judgment.

The complaint, signed by Silas Morris, Kimberly marshal, alleged that the three had taken $2.50 from Sherman Mullins.

One of the three accused young men, Elmer Voss, was recently described as "the king of gasoline."

All three pleaded guilty after the trial had been adjourned to the next week. The girls had played together at the home of Mrs. Leona Morris, 24, Kimberly Avenue, North.

Morris, Morris' son, Thomas M. Morris, Jr., of Twin Falls is the claimant's attorney.
