Coal Prices Advance As Negotiators Fail To Reach Agreement

Administration keenly interested in seriousness of labor contract deadlock, says conciliator

(By T. A. Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 21.—Diminishing supplies pushed soft coal to higher price levels today to the benefit of foreign mines as James F. Dewey, federal labor department conciliator tried to bring deadlocked operators of the 8-state Appalachian area and representatives of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) to an agreement.

Dewey disclosed that he had a conference telephone call with his first operator negotiator from Washington. When he emerged late today, he said no progress had been made and added that "the administration is keenly interested in the seriousness of the situation."

Efforts Continue

The administration, he said, was given assurances an agreement would be reached by today, but an adjournment was taken and negotiations were suspended.

"Today I was directed by the secretary of labor," Dewey asserted, "to come back to find out what the situation was. Apparently, no name has been made."

Asked about the possibility of presidential intervention, Dewey said: "I do not know how far the emergency powers of the administration extended."

In Washington, President Roosevelt, who had called a meeting to call the disputants together if no settlement was reached. He made it clear he was not certain at the moment how extensive his authority was.

338,000 Men Idle

The old two-year contract for soft coal miners in the Appalachian region expired March 31, and the mines closed April 3, leaving about 338,000 men idle.

In the meantime, operations were regarded as likely, anthracite operators and miners would agree on a new contract to replace the one expired April 3, and the miners were awaiting between 100,000 and 125,000 men, opened Tuesday and were expected to begin today next Monday.

Complaints on mounting coal shortages reached the blimminum county today, and the state of South Wales, came word that numerous orders from the United States in the last few days brought a boom to the depressed mines of the South Wales coal industry.

COURT UPHOLDS STATE'S CLAIM

Federal Judge Rules Endowment Fund Loans Not Outfawed

BOISE, April 21 (AP) — Federal Judge C. G. Clegg ruled today that the state's claim to $10,224, or 10 percent of the school funds of $17,101, held by the state in trust, cannot be upheld, to prevent a commonwealth from recovering on loans made from endowment funds and legal grants to state institutions.

Statutes of limitations provide that certain claims shall not outlast the lapse of a stated period.

The opinion was far-reaching, because:

1. It was directly in opposition to an opinion handed down January 29, 1929, by third district Judge C. E. Whetstone of Boise, who overruled Attorney General J. W. Taylor's argument that the state's claim to interest did not apply to prevent recovery by the state of thousands of dollars loaned from state endowment funds.

2. It reinforced the right of the state to proceed to collect $69,983 in delinquent payments it is now making to itself to secure its endowment funds and unpaid interest totaling $137,021 on such mortgages.

3. It provided an antecedent for a report of the 1933 legislative investigating committee, headed by Senator W. Scott Hall (R-Oreland), which found that the state's claim to $13,730,127 in endowment funds for lastly in permitting claims to be outlawed on the basis of Judge Whetstone's opinion.

The legislature enacted a measure providing that the statute of limitations should not apply to state claims for debts arising from contracts involving endowment funds.

Judge Cavanagh's opinion was in line with a ruling made by District Judge James Porter in Twin Falls, in 1930.

Attorney General Taylor said the federal court's ruling would stand until the state appealed to the state supreme court from Judge Clegg's ruling.

"As far as the administration act and the state's claim to the proceeds in trust, public school lands to the state, the proceeds naturally remain as a part of the state's endowment funds," he said.

He added that the state's claim to trust funds were not subject to the same favorable conditions which were not accepted by the state at the time of the grant. Judge Cavanagh ruled that the state must prove that the conditions nor disprove such funds by enacting "limitation acts" preventing recovery of the trust funds.

He said the state must prove that it had the power to accept such sacred and trust funds and after loaning it out, to give it, as a condition, upon the non-payment of the loan."

Federal Action

Judge Cavanagh's opinion came in an action brought by the United States government to condemn certain land in the state for a "right-of-way" for the Black Canyon canal.

The government had set aside $12,000 in the state's endowment fund to pay the joint expenses of the joint venture trust, to distribute it.

Centon presented an application to the state to have it declared that the state must prove that certain of the condemned land on the grounds the state's claim to the lands had run against the state's claim to the land.

Attorney General Taylor presented a claim of $21,354 to the state, the amount $17,104 was to go to the state endowment fund and $4,250 Ady.

to the federal fund of the state. The state's power, however, also allows a claim against the federal government.

Judge Cavanagh's opinion also wrote:

"It is apparent that the unpaid amount of $10,224, is not sufficient to satisfy the state's claim to the school funds of $17,101, held by the state in trust, and therefore insufficient to dispose of the state's claim to other claims whose claims are subsequent to the state's first mentioned claim."

In view of the conclusions reached the magistrate has directed the payment of the sum of $17,104 to the state as to the $17,104 covering the amount of the claim which are based on any statute of limitations of the state and that the same is held to be "at first and prior right of payment" of the funds now on deposit with the state.

The state's other mortgage claim on the balance of $4,810.55, securing the payment of the $10,224, will be paid off after the lapse of a stated period.
