President Suggests Two-Acre Minimum for Rural Home; Outlines Plans for Trip to West Coast

(By The Associated Press)
HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 30.—President Roosevelt, lifeless in a shirt-sleeve, today evocated more elbow room for rural home builders and then ranged over a wide variety of subjects, including labor legislation, Postmaster General Parley's cross-country "soundings" trip, travel plans and the visit of British royalty.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had seen news dispatches that Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced he would be receptive to the presidential nomination on a pledge not to seek more than one term, but it was noncommittal beyond that observation.

He said Parley's reports on his swing through the country were very favorable.

Labor Relations
The president said he had noted that the National Labor Relations board would amend its regulations to give employers the right to ask for a collective bargaining election.

There had been some question, he said, as to whether the board had the power to do that under the labor relations act.

The president said his acres overlooking the Hudson, proposed for his home county an ordinance limiting rural home owners to build on tracts of at least two acres with a minimum frontage of 100 feet. He suggested that the act of the nation might similarly expand its country dwellings.

Extra Acres
The extra acre, he said, makes all the difference in a family which is out of work. It still able to raise most of its food.

With reference to his projected trip to the San Francisco exposition, the president said he would learn from congressional leaders this week whether congress might adjourn by July 15. If congress can't get out, he said his trip would be deferred until after that date.

If it appears that the legislature will keep at work to August 4, he said he would push off for June 15. He said he would go straight to San Francisco after visiting the great Smoky Mountains national park in North Carolina and Tennessee and would not drop in on the exposition at Park World, Texas.

He said he had no plans to return to Washington this week, but the Canadian Rockies or by way of the Grand Coulee, Bonneville and Fort (Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

Virginian at Gettysburg, Ohioan at Arlington Touch in Addresses on New Controversies

(By The Associated Press)
With booming guns, oratory and quiet visits to flag-decked graves, America Tuesday expressed its traditional Memorial day veneration for those who died in the uniform of its fighting forces.

And to the things usual to the day—services at Gettysburg, at Arlington National Cemetery and a parade in New York—there was added a meaningful ceremony off the New Hampshire coast.

There, the guns of gray warships roared in salute, and a coast guard plane dropped wreaths upon the water in memory of 20 men of the navy entombed within the steel walls of the sunken submarine Squalus.

In Washington, the house of representatives chose Memorial day for its annual commemorative service for members who died within the last year. Widows and relatives sat in a semi-circle about the rostrum, headed by the speaker, with prayers, eulogies and music honoring the memory of the eight deceased.

For President Roosevelt and most high officials, the holiday was a day of leisure and rest. The chief executive, at his home in Hyde Park, inspected plans for improvements to his hillside retreat where he and Mrs. Roosevelt plan to entertain the king and queen of England at a picnic a fortnight hence.

Some of the day's oratory reflected the political and economic controversies of the times.

At Gettysburg, Pa., scene of the great Civil war battle, Senator Byrd (D-Va.) the first speaker, ever to deliver the Memorial day address there, asserted that old sectional animosities have been replaced by new class animosities.

The unity of the country is threatened, he said, "by racial and religious prejudice and envy, hatred and jealousy between those who have accumulated property and those who have not."

"What will it accomplish," he asked, "to achieve national unity only to be divided by economic dissension?"

"What will it profit us to reject that the unity of states is strong, and in a memorandum," the navy paid memorably today in the delicate task of shifting the Squalus from the bottom of the Atlantic.

The extreme danger and the excitement of the salvage task was emphasized this morning when the sailing occurred among the 20 lines already attached to the sunken hull by the rescue ship Falcon.

There was little outward sign of emotion among the 150 persons who attended a 20-minute service at Portsmouth navy yard auditorium.

Britain's Ruler at Western End of Trip Assigns Mediator Role to Canada; Audience Cheers Address

(By The Associated Press)
VICTORIA, B. C., May 30.—King George VI today called on Canada to become a mediating force between the east and west, widening her role of interpretation for the benefit of mankind.

The king's unhesitating Areche, he waved his hand, and said in effect, "go north, young man."

Speaking at the official luncheon of the British government of British Columbia, the British sovereign discussed Canada's future in the realm of world affairs, citing emphasis to the thought held by British and Canadian statesmen that the world would be divided into two camps, the United States, and in a larger sense, between the east and the west.

The king and queen looked to Europe, her Pacific winds to Asia and the far East," said the king.

Diminishing Barriers
"As science reduces the barriers of space, the world will come to be a more thoroughfare between two hemispheres. Some of the people of the world will come to realize that property lies in cooperation and not in competition."

For the first time in Canada, a speech by King George was interrupted by applause.

When the king said "some day the peoples of the world will come to realize that property lies in cooperation and not in competition," 229 guests at the British Columbia luncheon broke into spontaneous clapping and cheering.

The king and queen also heard some of the best of the "three kings and a tiger" called for by the king's ministers.

Just as the company was seated the whole room was startled by a sudden explosion of a flash light cracker, showing signs over nearby hills.

The king read his address slowly, phrase by phrase.

Prime Minister T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia, prefacing the king's address with two references to the United States, saying the royal statesman were awaited there by the advance troops of the United States, as well as Canadians were waiting to hear the king's address.

There were few adventurous young men among the party, formally dressed in the style of the British Columbia official ranks at the government luncheon, but the king's address was heard with interest when he said:

"Once those northern wilds were fringed by the sea."

Franco Charts Course Of Nationalist Spain

Fighters Bend Efforts to Reconstruction of War Ravaged Country

MADRID, May 30.—General Francisco Franco expressed the desire before thousands of his Nationalist followers today that Spain "be strong so she will be able to assure her peace."

"I want Spain to become a fortress, but I do not want her to become a fortress to plunge herself into any adventures," he asserted after 11,000 women falangists (Falangists) in blue and red uniforms paraded in the women marching in the parade.

Foreign representatives, and the German, Italian, Portuguese and other envoys.

And while approximately 23,000 Italian fighters in the Spanish Civil War were preparing to sail home this week from Cadiz, Franco was speaking up for the work of reconstruction.

Thousands of Republican prisoners and demobilized military soldiers were being put to work on big public works projects; every available man was being put to work on building up the Spanish merchant marine, and thousands of technical engineers, soldiers, and workers have been assigned to rebuilding war-damaged ports.

General Franco declared: "Those who think that armaments and heavy forces are sufficient to win a war are mistaken. The next step is going to be more terrible than the first. It is going to be a war of attrition, a war of nerves, a war of factories and central and important places—so that destruction will be the first step and then you will be it."

"For an army discipline is essential. It may be a matter of discipline and what a sense of patriotism on the part of you women will be needed in the event of a war. I want you to work for peace and be the flag-bearers of peace."

Holiday Brings Customary Budget of Violent Deaths
(By The Associated Press)
Memorial day brought its customary budget of violent deaths today, "weekend" from Saturday through Tuesday.

In Utah states and the District of Columbia reported 182 automobile fatalities and 60 killings. Air crashes, shootings and miscellaneous forms of accidents resulted in 103 deaths.

Upwards of 250 were killed, and in 1937 more than 300—deaths and 30 violent deaths in all; 13 were killed by automobiles in California; and 6 each in Illinois and New Jersey including last night.

In Michigan, 20 were killed by the four-day holiday. In Pennsylvania, 10 were killed by automobiles in the metropolitan New York area, although millions thronged to the world fair at Flushing Meadows beach, and other resorts.

At least 8 persons were shot to death, two in Kentucky, the Geneva school of the truck, and his three passengers escaped with minor hurts. Michaelis said the Stupper car crashed into his truck during a heavy downpour of rain which obscured the highway.

RECLAMATION FOR IDAHO DEMANDED

Dworshak Charges State Neglected in Recent Development

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Asserting he could not understand Idaho had not shared in recent irrigation development in the west, Representative Henry Dworshak today demanded immediate development of supplemental water supply facilities on the upper Snake river. He said failure of the department in charge to undertake construction of dams on the upper Snake and its tributaries would be in a large measure responsible for expected crop losses in southern Idaho this year due to inadequate water supplies.

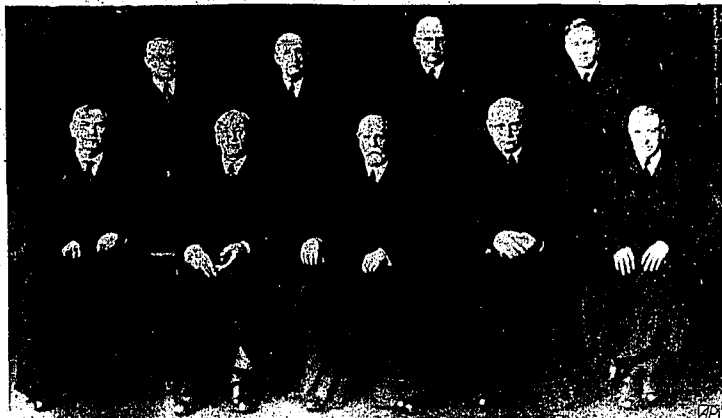

"The Snake river flows for several hundred miles through southern Idaho and its precious waters furnish the life blood for thousands of people in our state," Dworshak said in a letter to Reclamation Commissioner John Page.

"With the exception of the Island Park development on the north fork of the Snake river, there has been no irrigation development on the river during the past 12 years. During this period many millions of dollars have been expended by the bureau of reclamation for development in many states, and I fail to comprehend why Idaho has not shared in this program."

The representative of the second congressional district said he felt it was "unwise" to delay further in the development of supplemental water supplies, and urged the commissioner that surveys had been made for an immediate reclamation program.

"If these crop losses could be averted, the resulting savings could be applied to construction costs of reservoirs, and therefore it is economically sound to urge the construction of dams to impound water otherwise lost," Dworshak wrote.

U. S. REGARDED AS WAR PRIZE

POCAHELLO, May 30 (AP)—A Memorial day message was told by Governor C. A. Holtzman here today that "one of the first and foremost requisites of real peace is security."

"The prevailing warlike mood throughout the world," he said, "America does not want war; it desires peace. It is the only nation in the world that has a price for a dictator who makes a mistake if he had hopes of success."

In my opinion our chances of avoiding an unprovoked attack lie largely in never permitting such hopes of success to sprout. Strength is the corner stone of security.

"We are not to be happy and contented, then we must have security. The force most potent in all the world for deterring attack comes from the armaments which we are ready to use. It is not arms alone, but the will to use them, which is the real deterrent. We are not to be happy and contented, then we must have security. The force most potent in all the world for deterring attack comes from the armaments which we are ready to use. It is not arms alone, but the will to use them, which is the real deterrent."

RECOGNITION ASKED FOR OAKLEY CITY OF ROCKS

Charles Brown, Oakley publisher, the Oakley Valley chamber of commerce and the many descendants of pioneers in that vicinity, aided by friends throughout Idaho and Utah today are continuing an energetic fight to secure recognition for the "City of Rocks," as a national monument.

This outstanding spot of weird rock formations, a section of Idaho rich in pioneer lore, ranks as a major attraction for native Idahoans and tourists as a place to spend a day's vacation.

Two routes are available to the City of Rocks. The first, which is recommended by the valley chamber of commerce for travel about July 1, and thereafter goes from Twin Falls to the north fork of Murtaugh on highway 30. This is the cut-off route and makes the trip approximately 58 miles from Twin Falls. Detailed directions can be obtained at Oakley.

The other route is from Twin Falls to Burley, a distance of 45 miles, then from Burley to Oakley, a distance of 16 miles, making the entire distance, including the drive from Oakley to the site, approximately 78 miles. The road out of Oakley to the City of Rocks will be adequately marked by the middle of June, according to present plans.

Here, in the shadow of the "oddities of nature" are the grotesque, unmarked, of more than 400 pinnacles, who gave their lives that a nation might progress. They were massacred by the Indians who sought to gain the "spice lands" from gaining the lands they called their "happy hunting grounds."

One of, if not the greatest, Indian-White Man battles ever waged across the pages of western history took place at Aliso creek. In the very heart of that section which modern day men and women are seeking to have set aside for posterity.

Five Escape

It was in the summer of 1861 when more than 300 soldiers, traveling in 40 wagons from Missouri, rode into the City of Rocks. Five persons, one a babe in his mother's arms, trekked up the rocky slopes and were buried in unmarked graves where they fought and died.

Outraged by the fact, the Indians numbering in the thousands across the pages of western history, and shortly after the wagon train had camped and taken to the trail by the Indians who sought to gain the "spice lands" from gaining the lands they called their "happy hunting grounds."

CCC WORK HELD AID IN FORESTS

Idahoan Praises Improvements of 'Everlasting Benefit to State'

BOISE, May 30 (AP)—Civilians Conservancy Corps youths have constructed improvements of "an everlasting benefit to the state," Idaho's Forests, State Forester Franklin Girard asserted today.

"No conservation program ever inaugurated has had such far-reaching effects, in practical benefits achieved in addition to the conservation of young timberland throughout the United States," Girard said in a press statement, adding:

"All of the work done is of a permanent nature and will be of everlasting benefit to the state of Idaho and particularly to the state forestry department."

He said that at the peak of CCC employment in 1933 there were 22 state camps in operation in Idaho. In 1939 there are only four such camps although there are many others sponsored by federal agencies.

State-sponsored camps have built roads, bridges, forest lookout towers, telephone lines, machine shops and a fish hatchery, and have engaged in blister fire, control work and reforestation projects.

Work of the CCC, Girard said, has resulted in "more accomplishment in permanent improvements than otherwise would have been possible over a long period of years even with an expenditure of a vast sum."

"Maintenance of the state camps financially is 100 per cent federal and when it is realized that the costs, based on expenditures to date by the government, approximate $2,000,000 for state camps alone, the record is impressive. This sum is in addition to that expended by the federal government on purely federal projects."

"The operations have been carried out efficiently and expeditiously and with great credit to permanent value."

Pioneer Woman Telegrapher Dies

CHICAGO, Idaho, May 30 (AP)—Mrs. Iva Johnson, 83, who was a telegrapher for Brigham Young, died at her home in this town Wednesday afternoon. She was born at Springville, Utah, in 1854, and was one of the first women in Utah to become an operating telegrapher and was employed in that capacity by the noted Latter Day Saints church leader.

She lived for many years in Utah but came here several years ago to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. S. M. Aker.

The body will be taken tomorrow to Hanover where funeral services will be conducted Thursday. Burial will be made there.

In addition to the daughter her survivors include another daughter, Mrs. M. C. Brauer of Twin Falls, a sister, Mrs. Thos. J. West of Orchard and three grandchildren, Mrs. Iva Roberts of Twin Falls, Mrs. Eleanor Easley of Durban, N. C., and Mrs. Clarence Gaudes, also of Durban.

L.D.S. Services for Burley Resident

BURLEY, May 30—Funeral services for Forest Lee Nickerson were held Sunday at the Third ward L. D. S. church with Bishop Stanley Larson officiating. A mixed quartet sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and the hymn "The Spirit of God." Another mixed quartet, under the direction of E. C. Gibson sang "My Father," President Charles S. Clark of the Cassia Stake, L. D. S. church, Oakley, was the first speaker and other speakers were Eugene Pickett of Marion and Gilbert Hardy of Burley. "Rock of Ages" and "Somebody Will Understand" were sung by the quartet, sponsored by Bishop Larson and the beneficiaries of the church.

Interment was in the Oakley cemetery, with grave dedication by Charles Dayley.

Friends who were friends of the deceased and flower bearers were members of the Third ward Relief society.

While other communitaries have risen in Japan, this one has been dropped by nearly 30 per cent.

VANDENBERG IN STRONG POSITION

Single-Term Proposal Seen as Product of Party Councils

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—The Republican nomination of Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, re-opened the Washington political question mark with his indication of receptiveness toward a single-term, coalition movement in his behalf.

The Vandenberg formula for Republican success next year is a single-term, coalition movement in his behalf. It appears to be the product of proposed consultations in Republican congressional circles as to ways and means of capitalizing on the difficulties President Roosevelt has encountered with Democratic factions in this congress, and on a possible third-term try by the president.

Alliance Slighted

To some observers, it seems certain that Michigan Republican backing Vandenberg will attempt to draw supporters of Dewey from the use of Dewey of New York into an alliance. Various straw polls Dewey has not done as well as Dewey of the list of Republican 1940 possibilities. He is young enough, however, to look ahead to the presidential year, with a vice presidential nomination in 1944 as a stepping stone. That Dewey has not drawn Dewey support to the Vandenberg camp.

There was no mention of this in either the Vandenberg statement, naturally or by Republican congressmen who commented on it. Yet Vandenberg's suggestion that the Republican nominee be elected in advance to quit after a single term opens a door to negotiations for a Republican-western, ticket combination, with some veteran like Vandenberg at the top; and Dewey or some other youthful congressmen at the running mate. Should the ticket win the vice presidential nomination in 1940, it appears primarily to be a far coalition with Dewey as a dissenting from Mr. Roosevelt's spending, labor or foreign policy, or from his possible third-term candidacy.

OLD CARS SHY $390 ON PARTS

Modern Extra Equipment Big Item in Price Comparison

To bring his low-priced touring car up to the minimum performance standards required today, the motorist who buys a used car would have to buy more than $390 worth of extra equipment and accessories.

His total cost would have been cut by $100 if he had bought a car of today's inexpensive closed cars completely equipped.

"Not only has the average price of all automobiles dropped, materially over a period of years—but examination of price movements in the industry reveals—but considered in terms of the equivalent equipment which the new car buyer today gets without extra charge, today's economy cars are substantially cheaper over than the 1937 touring car which was a price leader in 1935."

The bottom-priced car could not have been supplied at any price, of course, with such a list of accessories as four wheel brakes, all-steel closed body and other essentials which automobile engineering and research have since made available. Yet 1935's cheap car also lacked such items as self-starting, battery generator, windshield wiper, speedometer and many other parts which today's motorist would not think of doing without.

Not only has the average price of today's new car buyer is getting better bargain, as the current economy car gives him at least 200 miles per gallon of gasoline at comparable speeds than did the price leader of 1935.

500-YEAR-OLD BALLAD TELLS OF QUINTUPLETS ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—About 500 years ago comes the news of quintuplets born to Isidoro and Maria Gutierrez de Lopez of the kingdom of Valencia, a part of modern Spain.

Believed to be the first historical record of quintuplet birth, the case was unrecorded and translated from ancient Spanish folk-tales by Dr. Arthur Campa, professor of Spanish at the University of New Mexico.

The Lopez case was first traced by the mother and babies died.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

THE CHARACTERS
Joeylyn Russell, beautiful and highly young heiress.
Mack, round but poor young farmer.

Chapter Four
TWO DIFFERENT HEILINGS
Tally's sister Gretchen leaped over the wheel, spooked. "I'm so sorry, Miss Russell. I totally Tally. He should have written you about us coming. We'll try not to be any bother."

Joeylyn observed that the girl was small and frail, pretty in a sort of helpless, feminine way. Yet she noted that her hair was unbecomingly crimped with a gas that had her fringe and bangs did not match, and that her sleeky slip dress was obviously home-made. Gretchen read the impression of approval in Joeylyn's face and was embarrassed and self-conscious as she compared her clothes and hat to the other girls. An unwanted sense of inferiority began to rankle her.

"I'm Betty's mother," she offered, sure that this was one accomplishment the other girls would be superior about. "She's five years old. My... my husband, Andre Landau, was killed in an airplane crash three years ago."

"How dreadful!" Joeylyn murmured, glancing at Betty.
"Can I come to your party?" Betty asked, her round eyes imploring.

"Don't pay a note of attention to Mrs. Mack, but... the long trip has her as fitfully as the cat. What she needs is a bath and some sleep. Don't you worry about it, Miss Russell. We'll manage."

"Mother, can't you keep her quiet?" Gretchen complained.
"Tally ordered," Gretchen said, "I'll get you some ice-cream after while. Shut the car door. Moms, will I be back in 15?"

"But, where's Gram?" Gretchen cried, for a minute ago she had seen her grandmother.
"A wicked grin turned up one corner of Mrs. Mack's mouth. "Oh, she wandered off somewhere. Probably to have a reunion with the old fellow. He'll find his way back to the side behind the wheel and started the car. "See you later, Miss Russell."

Joeylyn swallowed hard. "You and your family will have dinner with us, of course. We dine at seven."

As Tally intently looked the car and tumbled toward the rear of the mansion Joeylyn thought that she had better get lower in the back. Mack person evidently thought himself her equal just because her sentiments and grandmother's were the family half of this estate. Oh, why had her grandmother done such a thing? And especially two different kinds and breeds of families! The disaster the Russells had so long dreaded, and which she had so long would not occur, had at last descended with a vengeance.

As Mrs. Mack's the clipped green of the lawn Joeylyn decided that Tally was an arrogant, insolent fellow who certainly did not belong in his place. Of course hand-in-me in a brunny way if he went in for stalling men with cleft chin and ragged beak. Well, she'd have to let her guests, she decided grimly, be only hoped she could resist the story amusingly.

Yet, upon reaching the nearest table she perceived there would be no relating necessary, for old Tally Mack was the center of an amused group who directed to his dithering, cackling voice with avid ears.

Someone had put a glass into his hand; another had set a plate of hors d'oeuvres within reach; and between eating and drinking he appeared to be having the time of his life. "Bying Joeylyn, he called out.

"There, folks, what was I telling you? She's the spittin' image of her Grandmother! I'd bet you could see red-headed temper, too! Tally's a man black as white and makes him say 'I'm so glad you got along with a mite near, Joe.' I want a real road look at you!"

Joeylyn, crimson with displeasure, approached. "Lordsanity!" she said softly. "She's even got that there widow's peak in the middle of her forehead just like her grandmother. Makes me think of the time we was sitting on the porch spooning and Josie says..."

"Please, Mrs. Mack!" Joeylyn interrupted. "Your grandson has taken your family to the house and they are looking for you. I'm sure you're anxious to rest after such a three some journey."

A smile alighted in his eyes. "Now, Miss Josie, that's right kind of you, but I ain't a bit tired. Why, that there trip was fun and a codger like me in a piece even if it didn't quit in Texas into twenty years. Guess I'd still be there if them dang'ed bugs hadn't there cotton up and if your grandma hadn't wanted us to come here and live with you folks. Why, she went to Texas. I bailed all over this while during world. Yesir, this whole second world war she had to go and grandpa run off with your grandpa I swore to never look at Boston again and I never did, but she sorta looked at a lot of other ports!"

The girl winked meaningfully at the young men who were seated close. Some might be gals in some of them ports, too. I member a gal in Bombay."

Joeylyn fled. What a dreadful old man! she was on the verge of hysterical tears. If the time came called Thordyke in the billiard room. Pulling him into deserted afternoon she had gazed at the bed what had happened.

"File, he's telling me most terrible things. Thordy! Returning my party... oh, Thord, do some thing!"

Thordyke's pale blue eyes glinted with indignation. "Come along with me, Lynn. I'll put him in his place!"

Millar's laudator greeted them as they stepped out on the terrace. It looked as if every young man had taken the audience around old Tally Mack. Thordyke, on his spur of the moment, pushed through following Gretchen.

"Oh, Mr. Mack," she broke in on an involved story. "This is not a brother-in-law of yours, is it?"

"Howdy," grinned the old man, his eyes snapping with excitement. "You don't look a mite like your grandpa, young man. Reckon you take after old Homer... old Pooker. We can call him back in Boston. That's the trouble with these here folks... they ain't got no grandpa and they ain't got no grandpa and me 'em on a hay ride."

"I'm sure they aren't interested," Thordyke in reply. "This is Joeeylyn's party and she has already arranged for the building officers, and Mr. Fraser lost control of her car when she drove in front of a milk truck driven by Harry Warrick who had the right of way."

A 14-year-old boy, Bruce Farr, on his way to attend L. D. S. High school, was struck by the car. Examination at a hospital disclosed he was not injured except for a bruise on the arm.

Mrs. Fraser was not injured and the car was only slightly damaged.

"I'll carry you up and I'll carry you down. THAT IS THE BEST WAY TO LIVE. I SUSPECT GOD'S GOOD PLAN WAS ALWAYS TO LIVE LIKE THIS."

Condie Addresses Aecquia Graduates

RUPERT, May 30.—State Superintendent of Public Instruction John W. Condie, delivered the commencement address to the members of the 1933 graduating class of Aecquia high school Thursday night at the Aecquia school.

The program included: Presentation of Aecquia school band, directed by Burton Thorne; invocation, Rev. J. C. Cattull; trumpet trio, "Trumpets of Three"; Dallett Parker, rick-out on Dale Carnegie's great humorous essays and called them "How to Know Friends and Alienate People."

That was all very well, too, but Mrs. Mack had been listening to a backhanded title from Margaret Halsey. "With Malice Toward All," she had heard at least the compliment of taking to the pattern. You can't take off a book, or even a title, by running away from the point.

It is the more unfortunate because the Halsey book simply begs for a parody of some sort. With proper bias and whip-lash for a writing implement Miss Halsey could be switched about the ankles and left for the goats to nibble, almost automatically. What Mr. Tressler has provided is a kind of ruckered tone jack Tressler, trailing down to Florida and back in a car stuffed to the domelights with Tressler contraptions, children at almost all times with Tressler.

Miss Halsey has a style, too, and this is likewise wide open to caricature. But there is nowhere in "With Malice Toward All" the slightest indication that Mr. Tressler has noted that fact. If he is taking on my style, indeed, he is looking off the rather rough and ready British writer.

These are some excellent lines, of course. This paragraph describes the ship on which he reaches America: "To give you some idea of the size of this vessel, two days from now we dock in New York and the captain has already started slowing her down. It took two days to get her started full steam and three are remaining full speed. No other ships venture on the Atlantic while the Queen Maudslayi is making her voyage, so many have been captured by her tremendous bow-wave."

I wonder whether such a ship really moves? This is an episode in a certain tourist camp that has its delights, some of the most amusing, a large Virginia lake is amusing, and scattered here and there, are other bright moments, as, however, Mrs. Margaret Halsey's book is still uncut.

Castford Holds Pre-School Clinic

CASTLEFORD, May 30.—A pre-school health clinic, which was the first of the kind in this county, was held at the Baptist church Monday morning.

Dr. J. W. Wainwright, V. H. Anderson, Edward W. McElwain and W. E. Deays were in charge, assisted by Mrs. Harry Wilson and Mrs. Blakeslee, public health nurses.

Dr. W. K. Hreschold, was in charge of arrangements. Other members of the committee were Mrs. E. D. Logan, Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Earl Saxton and Mrs. Charles Strathmore.

DRIVERS PREPARE FOR AUTO DERBY

A dozen owners of Model T Fords have manifested interest in the 100-mile dirt track race and a sizeable list of entries is expected for the event, Filer Legion officials said. The race, a haulover like the 100-mile 500-mile Memorial auto racing feature, brings a maximum prize of $100 and splits into two classes. The race will start at 2 p. m. Sunday, June 4.

The race is open to all Idaho amateur drivers. No pilotage or professional drivers are permitted to participate. Last Sunday Governor C. A. Bredford started the drivers who raced 100 miles on the Western Idaho fairgrounds in the stands.

IDAHO TO MARK SOLDIER GRAVES

World War Veteran Directs State-Wide Registration Project

BOISE, May 30 (AP)—There were flags and flowers on countless thousands of graves throughout America today. Hundreds of communities paid homage to the wartime dead.

It was Memorial Day. But in deserted spots in other cemeteries, in tiny secluded barrens, in places their locations seem forgotten, were the unmarked graves of soldiers who once fought for their country.

To ferret out those unmarked graves and to record permanently their location, is a task that was underway today in Idaho. Directing it is a World War veteran, James Donovan of Boise, who labored many years as the American Legion's Idaho department graves registration chairman in an effort to obtain legislation setting up the project.

His project was achieved during the 1939 legislature which appropriated money to pay a sponsor's share of a $30,000 works progress administration project.

Preliminary work is complete and we plan to start shortly after June 1 on the actual task of locating the graves, plotting them on blueprints of every cemetery in Idaho and making a card index showing their location," said Donovan, former surgeon's assistant at the United States Veterans' facility here. "We estimate there are about 8,000 soldiers' graves in the state."

They are located from the Canadian border to the Utah line and from the extreme west to east. "We are going to dig up any historical records of interest in connection with the graves and hope to record every man's wartime service record of every man."

Donovan said registration work would begin in Thursday county in the panhandle. It probably will be concluded about Nov. 1.

Robbery Suspect Shot to Death

VENUS, Tex., May 30 (AP)—Ed Franks, uncle of Burton Franks, 22, who is on trial for the bank robbery slaying of W. D. Wilson, was found shot to death at his home here. Ed Franks, free on bond under charge of being an accessory to the killing of the Mayagreed bank president, was found in his children's room, a shotgun at his feet. Justice of the Peace J. W. Brewer said he would withhold his verdict until tomorrow.

Burton Franks is on trial at Wauahatche for shooting Wilson in the course of robbing the First State bank at Mayagreed on May 19. In the course of the trial yesterday defense counsel, seeking a delay, described Ed Franks as a guiding influence in the robbery.
