

Administration Puts Squeeze on Senators

At Postal Employees Convention

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Administration Housemen engaged in a desperate effort today to round up sufficient votes to bring the neutrality bill out of the Senate after two months but there was no sign they had met their goal.

Both Senators George (D-Ga.) and Gillette (D-Iowa), regarded as the two "doubtful" senators on the committee, refused to commit themselves on how they will vote when the committee meets Tuesday to consider reporting a bill.

George told reporters, "I never felt it appeared to him 'highly improbable' that there would be any action on neutrality in this session."

The statement pledged the administration was so far from a statement which was issued yesterday in behalf of 34 senators can be accepted as a statement of fact and it is true that many senators subscribed to it then it seems to me that action at this time is not 'highly improbable' he said.

Union and Administrators Arrange Meetings to Discuss Protest

(By The Associated Press)

A nationwide walkout of WPA workers continued yesterday, while the American Federation of Labor and the National Industrial Conference Board arranged separate meetings for Wednesday to discuss this unprecedented protest against the working hours for persons on relief.

William Green, president of the AFL union, said today that the new 10-hour-a-week relief law is "a political and economic statement we propose to battle the new 10-hour-a-week relief law."

The new act demands that union workers be given a previously arranged arrangement of separate meetings for Wednesday to discuss this unprecedented protest against the working hours for persons on relief.

Cleaning!
Home-Furnishings

Curtains, rugs, draperies, upholstered furniture... all these are cleaned better in our plant because we use correct methods, ingredients and proper equipment. Rugs are treated to a veritable shampoo, then rinsed absolutely clean with barrels of rain-soft water, hung to dry and afterwards fluffed to a rich texture. Draperies are put through the careful processes of our dry cleaning department... inexpensively... yet with every possible attention.

Upholstered furniture is treated to our special method which leaves it as attractively luxurious as the day it was purchased. Your curtains receive special treatment... properly washed and then carefully stretched to their proper dimensions while drying.

We suggest again that you call on us for these important services when you plan seasonal or everyday cleaning activities in your home.

These Two Additional Troy-National Processes Bring You Further Satisfaction

Fantom-Fast Invisible Identification for your laundry. A special method enables us to "mark" your laundry without the use of pen and ink. It's another quality process at no charge in our finished or rough-dry services.

Stain-Pruf water-proofs... Protects linens, curtains, shower curtains and summer washables against most fluid stains. Wash auto or expensive outdoor clothing benefit from Stain-Pruf because a Stain-Prufed garment will retain its original finish twice as long.

NOTE: Every garment or household furnishing is fully protected by adequate Fire and Theft insurance while in our possession.

F. D. R. TO FIGHT FOR LOANS BILL

President Prepared to Battle for New Lending Measure

WASHINGTON, July 8.—President Roosevelt is prepared to put all of the steam at his command in the drive for the new lending measure.

Administration leaders on Capitol Hill continued to work hard for this measure just as hard as he will for the neutrality bill. His demands on neutrality already have set actors to furling before a vision of long debate through the hot months.

Recent conferences at the White House have brought to these leaders the word that they are not to be misled by the casual manner in which Mr. Roosevelt tossed the lending proposal to congress. They now feel that there has been nothing casual about the president's intent. He was in doubt about the measure until the last day of the three billion dollar lending plan.

Those who go wrestling for votes are convinced that the president is in the idea line dominant for the six months intervening between now and the next election season.

Increase Bonds

A measure embodying the legal changes needed to carry out the program into motion is being placed together after a study of the authority of the various agencies involved. Chiefly, the new powers needed will be to increase the amount of bonds that the treasury may issue, and to guarantee by the federal government.

The fight over such a measure promises to be somewhat less vicious than that which is in prospect for the neutrality bill. The chief opposition to the lending plan thus far has been aimed at the $200,000,000 loan expansion of the export import bank's facilities. Loans to foreign governments was the phrase that caught the eye in that paragraph. Bank officials say their chief operations are more in the nature of underwriting loans and guaranteeing foreign collections than in making actual loans, that only an infinitesimal part of their work has been money to foreign governments. Nevertheless, strong arguments are being made against this section.

However promptly the lending plan might be put through, it is certain that congress will be here several weeks longer. The big foreign "guns" in the senate are being "brought to heel" by the use of neutrality that will shake the headlines for weeks to come.

Lead Opposition

Into this fight will be thrown all of the administrative resources in an effort to remove the restrictions which the house wrote in against the sale of arms to nations able to come and get them. Senate sentiment over the measure runs along several lines. The opposition to the administration runs at considerable and led by such hard-bitten veterans as Borah, Hiram and Johnson of California, the Republicans who tracked Woodrow Wilson across the country twenty years ago to take pot shots at his league of nations.

Opposed of a score already have signed a round robin in the senate pledging opposition to the Roosevelt neutrality plan. This in itself is a gesture reminiscent of "the league battle." A round robin was signed then—Borah and Johnson were signers then, just as they are in the present case.

New talk of a third term continues to circle about Franklin Roosevelt. It was not alluded to by the visit of Paul V. McNutt to Washington on his return from Pauline's plane. McNutt would not mind being the Democratic candidate in 1940. He is not as much of a subject as is Mr. Roosevelt.

JUNIOR POLICE LEADER VISITS

The founder of Idaho's Junior Police, Joe L. Marker of Idaho Falls, national vice commander of the United States Junior Police and president of the board of the Idaho organization, on a visit to Twin Falls is to be guest organization playing a part at the Stridholm church this morning.

Mr. Marker, while here will be guest organizer at the Twin Falls Methodist Episcopal church and will play a part at the close of this morning's services.

Non-members of the organization will also be established in Twin Falls. Durley and Rupert with their officers, being appointed, Marker announced.

To sum up the program of the Junior Police Marker stated its four main objectives are as follows:

- (1) to promote juvenile crime prevention.
- (2) to promote safety education amongst youth of the state.
- (3) to train young people to respect the law and those whose duty it is to enforce the law.
- (4) for youth protection.

CITATION LAUDS AUTO-ENGINEER

'Constructive Imagination' Credited to Graduate in Award

BY DAVID J. WILLIAMS
DETROIT, July 8.—Held for his encouragement of fundamental research, he holds a commanding place in one of the great industries of the world.

Thus reads a citation accompanying a degree of master of engineering awarded by the University of Michigan to Fred M. Zeder, an auto engineer.

"If there be such a thing in present-day industry," Zeder's friends say, "the status, which credited him also with a 'constructive imagination,' told all too conservatively of a career richly punctuated by notable achievement.

You don't hear or read as much publicly about Zeder as you do about some of the other leaders in the designing of the automobile, but his place is high up on the list of individuals who made the motorcar.

Zeder is chief engineer of the Chrysler Corporation. He is also one of its vice presidents, but the important thing to the 33-year-old engineer is the 'prospects of the future' and construction is that he is an engineer.

Engineer's Mission
"The engineer's mission in life," he says, "is to make the world a happier place in which to live."

As a result that his engineers know they have traveled only to the fringes of their great science," Zeder holds that the "prospects of the future" will depend upon projects the engineer has conceived.

For nearly 10 years Zeder was head of Buick's engineering department. In 1929 he became associated with Walter P. Chrysler, who then was executive vice president of the John D. Willys interests. He headed an engineering firm of his own from 1921 to 1923, and when Chrysler organized his own company a few years later Zeder went along and destined the first of the Chrysler line.

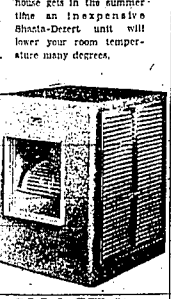

Zeder, popularly has been called "one of the outstanding leaders in the development of the modern automobile." Thus it is that more than ordinary weight attaches to his new honor that heads-of-the-line engineers are "many broad frontiers to explore; from the content of their fountain still greater benefits will be extracted that will result in even better, safer and possibly less costly motoring in the years to come."

Significant Advance
Many of the significant advances in automotive engineering in recent years have been pioneered or aided by the large, heavily-built Chrysler engineer. Such noteworthy achievements as the development of high compression engines; hydraulic four-wheel brake; down-draft carburetors; constant mesh and silent operating transmissions, are among them. There are also the more universal application of rubber in automobile construction; the design of cars with low centers of gravity; automatic clutch control; and many other advances that have contributed to comfort and safety in motorcar operation.

Prosperity, in Zeder's opinion, results from new products "and not the destruction of crops," which is his way of expressing emphatic disapproval of the political philosophy that over-production retards prosperity. He believes, the engineers should redouble the political machine "with fewer parts" and "find work for the politicians."

BASEBALL SEASON AT HOME

Tribe President Denies Attempt To Move Team

LEWISTON, Idaho, July 8 (AP)—Lloyd Harris, president of the Lewiston Indians, Inc., tonight denied that he or anyone with authority to represent the Lewiston baseball club has been at Idaho Falls today.

"We expect to be able to finish the season here," he asserted. "At any rate a petition for rechartering of the club would be an attempt to circumvent the fact that the Lewiston club is the only one that will be in the town."

"At the moment, moving the franchise is not being considered. We may have to play some of the games early in the evening, but we will be played as scheduled if we have to play on Main street."

POCATELLO, July 8 (AP)—A situation in baseball circles here is causing the Lewiston Indians to be the subject of much speculation.

There are many angles to the case, Harris said, and an appeal is being considered by the Lewiston club.

IT'S A "HONEY"

Once around your field and you'll say that this Oliver 10-foot Grain Master is a "honey" in every way. It has real threshing machinery in it—no depending on dumping on the ground to get the grain loose from the straw—the Oliver threshes it out to the bin! It cleans it so that you get the highest possible grade. Down grain, heavy straw, rough ground have no terrors for this machine. It is Oliver quality throughout and that means that it is generally oversized in every way to guarantee you long years of low-cost operation. The Grain Master is light in weight and light in draft. Full advantage has been taken of modern methods in its design and construction. The Grain Master rolls along easily on rubber-tyres which reduce draft as much as 50%. You save power, fuel and repair expense with all these things. Grain Master sells at a very low price. If you want a real harvesting-threshing unit, and in so do our Oliver Grain Master—the machine that ends harvesting troubles for its lucky owners. It has a special combine motor drive and an 8, 10 or 12-foot header. With an Oliver tractor in front of it, you have the greatest low-cost harvesting combination you've ever seen. Take a look at our Oliver tractors, too, when you're out.

AMERICAN ALL-STARS HOLD PITCHING EDGE

Ruffing, Bridges and Keller Take Turns In Classic

National League's Outstanding Players to Face Three of Best Hurlers of Year in Any Circuit

By SID PEDER.
NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—The American League, long famous for proving that the straight line between home plate and the bleachers is the shortest distance to the scoring column, has "discovered" the pitcher's box for this year's all-star game.

Oh, sure, the junior circuit will have some pretty fair ball clouters in their swinging when it tangles with the National League's "mid-season" extravaganza at Yankee stadium Tuesday before a crowd that may go over 70,000 and the National boys will have a couple of better than green hands on the mound, as usual.

But not since this inter-league hurrying was thought up by a Chicago sportswriter back in 1923 have the American leaguers come up to edge in the twirling department as they have Tuesday. In fact, a dozen games so far, in which the American sport is held to a distinct superiority in the closing department.

In this the Red Buffing of the Yankees, Tommy Bridges of the Tigers and Max Baer of the Cardinals are expected to take the mound for the American League, while Ruffing, Bridges and Keller are expected to take the mound for the National League.

Lately the Red Buffing has been the fact that the New York Yankees have been nominated, virtually a unit, for the American league squad, the Belling commission has installed the American League All-Star team, and the American league squad, the Belling commission has installed the American League All-Star team, and the American league squad, the Belling commission has installed the American League All-Star team.

Big First Baseman Wins In Homers, Advances in Other Departments

NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—The man of the week among National leaguers is John Robert Mize, Cincinnati's left fielder. The big first baseman is beginning to threaten his reputation as the "big guy" in the National League by leading the league in homers, slugging percentage, and batting average.

His batting average has risen to .323 in 1938, a significant improvement from .288 in 1937. Mize has hit 18 home runs and has a slugging percentage of .548.

SILVER WIELDING TOP PAPER MONEY

Bills Making Gradual Inroads on Cartwheel Popularity in West

RAIL LARK CITY, July 8 (AP)—The dollar bill is making good roads on the cartwheel popularity out west, where men are men and silver dollars wear holes in their pockets.

The banker, the baker, the color guard and just plain Mr. Q on-the-street, agree unanimously; blame it on the tourist.

The silver dollar began telling its wealth about in the form of gold dust in a leather pouch the west has been a hard money country.

Old timers insist the highway robber could claim his share of the credit for making the westerner a coin carrying individual and the popular belle of the stable.

Stage and freight wagon holdups yielded thousands upon thousands of dollars to the hands of that day.

Silver—was insurance. The money was much easier than eluding a posse with a stoxhorse or sack full of dollars slung on the saddle. The west, therefore, ching to come as a sort of holdup insurance in the hands of that day.

In the rough and tumble days, when the doney express and then the overnight stage were the only means of transportation across the great slow freight wagon trains, the moving of large amounts of cumbersome metal money from the Philadelphia mint was not feasible. So the San Francisco mint started coin-

Gold coin gone, led in by the government in 1933, but westerners still prefer the silver dollar because of the demand and because of the metal sound of the wealth in many western states.

The silver dollar stepped in a banker pointed out, adding that for each dollar silver certificate it required an ounce of silver.

True, some customers start with bills, but they are quickly satisfied by the slicer who helps the operator conduct the game.

The slicer, clerk in any western city can testify to the sad decline of the big silver coin.

One nationally spread stationer, checking out, bass plastered abundantly with "Singapore," "Big Six," "Pittsburgh" and other stickers, drew back when her change included some of those silver dollars.

It isn't cars for that, haven't you some paper?

Most establishments have learned through the tourist that a good idea to have a bundle of dollar bills handy that the impresario persists that they call for the pushing the circulation of silver.

However, it is common for many of those to retain at least one silver dollar as a souvenir of their vacation.

In fact, western bankers report they put into circulation many more silver dollars than are ever paid back in. The tourists carry them out with them, and spending them elsewhere, or saving a few to return the proper or the attraction conductor when they return to paper-dollar country.

Just as the western clerk who the silver dollar right at the next stationer, the eastern businessman, on the rare occasions when a "cartwheel" shows up, puts the metal stranger in with his bank deposit and leaves it in circulation.

It is strange to the westerner, brought up with a wad of wad of silver dollars in his trousers pockets, that mere cents should come such as law.

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

Yesterday: Miss Lucia West, (teacher of physical culture) was the first to fall down a flight of stairs. Mack Adams (local Miss North) was the second to answer to a track producer's prayer. Dad Nott (is not easily content) was the third to be a radio man. (2) a meter reader.

Chapter Five
Hard Head—Cold Heart
The meter in the cellar, said Miss Patricia North. "At least I suppose it is the cellar."
"So the meter in the cellar?" asked Thacks brightly. "Well—er—yes, it is the cellar."
Packs for a little.
"I'd suggest," said the coldly, "that if you can't find the cellar, you go downstairs. That's just a thought, but take it for what it's worth."
Thacks grinned. "I think I would be surprised if you were right. Well, I guess I'd better be going down there."
"I guess you had. If you want to reach the meter."
"Well, goodbye," said Thacks. "And think a million."
"Don't mention it!" Goodbye.
The door came peevishly close to shutting. Thacks stopped it just in time by exclaiming: "Oh, just a minute, please."
Packs' head came around the door. "What now?"
"I just wanted to tell you," said Thacks anxiously, "that I had certainly heard you stating you were going to get a well wish."
"Thank you," he said.
"I'm all right," Thacks answered, "I'm going over again for me, would you?"
"Well, why shouldn't you? Look here, if you can bring a little sunshine into the life of one who is to spend his days in dusty, dirty cellars reading meters."
"I think," Packs interrupted, "that you are a little bit too much for me. But with you to go with, I'll try."
Thacks took a sadder's chance. "You could stand the door in my face?"
"I'm just told you didn't want to be impolite," as Packs said this a whole lot of grinning. "You began dancing in my mind, mocking me. Unwillingly and willy-nilly, I was beginning to admit that she liked talking to this person. He was the broad-shouldered, slim, well-to-do, well-dressed, well-to-do about him. He might, she guessed, have been a doctor, but she remembered him more closely, he didn't seem at all like a doctor."
"Please!" Thacks said.
"Please what? Please the door?"
"No," Thacks said.
"Most decidedly not! You've got plenty of nerve! I had a right to tell the superintendent and have you throw out!"
Thacks grinned.
"Now just between us," he said, "do you honestly think the superintendent could throw me out?"
Packs looked hard. "I'm sure of it. But she was in the heart of the superintendent's office, and around, fat and bald-headed."
Thacks summed up the situation quickly. "This man," he said, "had actually been talking to him for some minutes when there was no visible reason why he should have. At any time during the conversation he could have closed the door and let him standing out in the cruel world. But he had done a different thing. He had been talking to him. What that could be therefore concluded that she liked talking to him. I'm just a little bit more interested. But, if you want an offhand answer, I'd say you are a young man with more nerve than I have."
"Those are hard words, Miss North."
"I meant them to be hard. You deserve them."
"You think I should be punished for being curious?"
"Oh, Good Heavens, I don't think anything about you. Won't you please get about your business?"
"It's my business to keep you from thinking badly of me. Listen, I'll tell you what I see. I'm just a fellow who's been hit so hard he doesn't know whether he's coming or going."
"I'm very sorry."
"You ought to be. You hit me. I hit you. What on earth do you mean?"
"Well," Packs said, "it's like this: The first time I saw you I made up my mind that I simply had to get to know you."
"A quick make-up, I'd say. Considering that the first time you saw me was ten minutes ago."
"You have? Where?"

"What street?"
"This street."
"Last night?"
"Oh!" Packs looked at him sharply. "You saw me last night?"
"Absolutely," said Thacks slyly. "You were going into this house. And just a minute! What was I wearing?"
"Wearing? Gee, I don't know. Your clothes, probably. It was sort of dark and I couldn't see you well."
Packs nodded meaningly. "Not very well, I expect. So I was coming this house, was I? Last night?"
"Exactly."
"You can confirm something?"
Packs said. "Yesterday was Sunday, wasn't it?"
"You are one hundred per cent right, Sunday. And when I saw you—"
"Something stopped him. It was the look in Packs' eyes."
"Later, Mister 'I-don't-know-your-name,'" she said. "I can't have any business with you. But, for your information, I left New York very late on Saturday night for the weekend and I didn't get back until ten o'clock this morning. I'm sorry to disappoint you, but, if you see some girl coming into this house last evening, it wasn't I. And now, having tried for a long time not to be impolite, I'm going to give in and let you see me as I am. I'm not just as impolite as I am now, but—"
"Combustion!"

As Hollywood correspondent of the "Feature Service" and Twin Falls News, Robin Cooney recently selects another movie of the month—"MAN IN THE IRON MASK".

(A) Feature Service Writer
"HOLLYWOOD—It's the juvenile in me—I never could resist the idea of seeing a story that had been turned out—And when there's a movie about it, I'm in. This one is interesting as far as the story goes. It's the story of a man who is captured and put in the iron mask. The story is told in a very interesting way. The movie is well acted and the story is well told. It's a good movie to see."

Today's the day for those conventioners, here for the thirteenth annual convention of the Idaho Federated Postal Employees, who like the out-of-door beginning at 10:30 o'clock this morning, a schedule of athletic events planned around at Harmon park with a gala picnic lunch planned for noon.

Last night delegates and their wives attended the annual banquet at 7 o'clock at the Odd Fellows hall. James Nail of Boise, competent master of ceremonies, presided and E. K. Dillingham, magician, was program headliner.

Swimming, soft ball and porcechoe pitching are numbered among the diversions scheduled for this morning, and in the afternoon the delegates will be afforded the opportunity to attend the baseball game between the Cowboys and the Poozello Cardinals.

Figuring prominently in arranging details for the auxiliary activities have been Mrs. Ed Lewis, president; Mrs. Ed Lester, vice-president; Mrs. Fred Sanger, president of the local branch of the post office clerks' auxiliary; Mrs. Wm. Taylor, vice-president; and Mrs. W. H. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the local branch of the letter carrier's auxiliary.

Local Teacher Is Married in San Francisco

WENDELL, July 8.—Miss Alva Jane Glavin, who taught in the Twin Falls schools the past year, and Wesley James Adams, of San Francisco, were married at the Olive Presbyterian Church in San Francisco Sunday, June 18.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Gates of Wendell and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Adams of San Francisco. He is engaged in the paint business with his father's firm.

The bride came to the altar on the arm of her brother, Charles T. Adams, assistant manager of Adams, as master of honor. Hattie Adams, head of the home, was best woman. The single ring was worn by Lane, Methodist minister. They will reside in San Francisco.

The bride was graduated from the Wendell high school and from Albion State Normal school. She taught in the Twin Falls schools before entering the Twin Falls academy.

Jerome Couple Eeted at Shower

VERMONT, July 8.—Mrs. and Mrs. Dwight Thompson, recently married couple, were honored at a luncheon of showers given for them at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson. Assisting was Mrs. Edgar Stratton, the bride's mother.

Decorations were bouquets of carnations and sweet peas.

Gifts were piled high upon a mahogany table in the back of the building, and the couple, by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Thompson.

Supper was served to one hundred four guests.

American Falls Banker Visits

G. W. Adams, Richfield cashier of the American Falls bank, is to be opened about Aug. 1, next, with the Twin Falls branch.

The new institution, he said, will give Power county its first bank in several years. It will occupy a building that now is being remodeled for the purpose.

Capital stock of $25,000 and $12,500 surplus has been subscribed and 20 stockholders have elected directors. They are: W. N. Davis, vice president; W. N. Davis, vice president; C. W. Adams, cashier; L. E. Barnard and H. C. Allen.

With the exception of Mr. Adams, are long-time residents of American Falls. Mr. Adams, who has been associated with the Richfield bank the past 20 years, will move with his family to American Falls.

Railmen Denied Jobless Benefits

BOISE, July 8.—Unemployed railroad workers are no longer eligible for out-of-work benefits from the state but must rely on payments by the Federal Railroad Retirement board. Laurence Lyman, unemployment compensation director, said today that the state's unemployment benefits are being discontinued.

Lyman said that the state's unemployment benefits are being discontinued because of the federal law which provides that the state must pay for the unemployment benefits of non-railroad employees.

Dinner was served in the garden, a bouquet of cut flowers centering the table. Mr. and Mrs. Hanson were Friday afternoon Mrs. Mammert entertained at a smartly appointed dinner.

Appendix

Appendicitis is caused from germs or some substance becoming lodged in the appendix, and setting up an infection. The first symptom of appendicitis is a "stomach ache," and not necessarily in the right side, which persists and progresses into the more acute stage.

It is a dangerous condition and should be treated immediately. If the pain persists more than an hour, call your doctor and follow his advice implicitly and promptly.

Moving Pictures Presented as Climax to Evening of Pinochle

As a delightful climax to an evening of pinochle, Friday, Mrs. Tony Bohler showed moving pictures taken at the boat races earlier this summer at Thousand Springs, and of an outing earlier in the season at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Borg Street in Sun Valley.

To begin the evening, members of the pinochle club and their husbands were guests at a smartly arranged dinner party at the Rogerson Hotel coffee shop, and later went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bohler where pinochle was the diversion of the evening.

HOOVER AROUSES NEW CONJECTURE

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Former President Herbert Hoover's proposal for a virtual league of neutrals in war time to exert moral force against belligerent food blockades and bombing of civilians came in circumstances to arouse new speculation in political circles as to his contemplated role in the 1940 presidential campaign.

His idea was advanced this week in a Christian endeavor convention, not a political gathering. Nevertheless, it had enough of the aspect of a bid for return to Republican leadership next year on the prime issue of foreign policy in its fresh conjectures as to whether the former president is at least a receptive candidate for a third nomination.

Government to Resettle Salmon

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The government, announced plans today to resettle 2,000 salmon.

Salmon have been spawning up the Sacramento river in California, but their way will be blocked by a dam by construction of the Shasta dam. So experts of the Bureau of Fisheries will trap them all with barries below the dam site and transport them to another spot to lay 70,000,000 eggs.

IDAHO'S LIQUOR LAW AT STAKE

By WALTER R. BOTTCHER
BOISE, Idaho, July 8 (AP)—The fate of Idaho's liquor law, which does a business of $40,000,000 annually, now rests in the hands of the state supreme court. Does the state have the constitutional right to sell liquor in the question—one of the momentous in recent years. If the state does not have the right, in the eyes of the supreme court, a governmental emergency will arise to require the attention of an extraordinary session of the state legislature, observers say. The question grew out of an innkeeper appearing in court which was filed with the supreme court on Dec. 23, 1932. In that action, on the face of it, an investigator for the liquor control commission which was organized by a board early in 1929, sought to collect $20 in wages and $720 in expense as an investigator for the commission. Little was written or said about it.

Taylor Demurs
But gradually, during the months that has followed, the case has taken more definite shape.

First, Attorney General J. W. Taylor filed an innocent looking demurrer to the state's complaint, and a little more elaborate amended demurrer was filed, and finally, on June 20, a reply brief was filed.

In the brief Taylor declared Albrecht's claim "void" because the law under which he was sued was unconstitutional.

Previously, the state board of examiners—composed of Attorney General Taylor, Governor C. A. Holt and Secretary of State George Shoup—had declared the law invalid on the grounds the law did not provide for payment of salaries.

The 1932 legislature accepted the law, in substance, but turned right around and enacted another law, almost identical with the old one—only both are in the same category.

Key to Case
To get the complete picture, one must turn back to the November day in 1926 when the voters of Idaho voted $4,400,000 to build 100 highway miles—amendment to the state constitution.

The legislature of the state of Idaho should have full power and authority to permit control and regulate or prohibit the manufacture, sale, offering for sale and transportation for sale, of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.

The amendment is the highest law; all other law must comply with it. But that amendment doesn't give the legislature the right, Taylor contends, to sell liquor.

Taylor further argued that, 1. The liquor law created a corporation and therefore violates another provision of the state constitution. 2. The law unconstitutionally delegates judicial and legislative authority to a board.

The court probably will hear arguments on the case in October or November, possibly in September. Then it will take the arguments under advisement and hand down its decision.

NOT ENOUGH DOCTORS
MOSCOW (AP)—Some Idaho's doctors still are overworked, but their number is rapidly increasing. Latest statistics show more than 110,000 physicians and surgeons looking after the health of the 700,000 inhabitants of the U.S.S.R. In 70 medical colleges 100,000 students are preparing to enter the profession.

At Twin Falls Playgrounds

Playgroups were for the safety present. "The Road to Safety" which was given at Harmon and Drury parks on June 23 were decorated with red, white, and blue paper and bouquets of summer flowers.

The mascot was built around the safety rules observed by 70 people in all occupations. The "spirit of safety" which ruled the day, is depicted in a long white gown with a gold crown on her head, holding a floral spray, and surrounded by her ladies-in-waiting.

Boys and girls participating in the mascot received membership cards into the Playground Safety League of the Idaho state recreation program.

HUNT FOR IDAHO SLAYER NARROWS

Horseshoe Bend Manhunt Leaders Won't Tell Developments

HORSHOE BEND, Idaho, July 8—Search for the slayer of J. W. Clark, elderly Horseshoe Bend service station operator, was being narrowed today but law enforcement officers declined to disclose developments.

Harry M. Rayner, law enforcement commissioner, directed the search that centered "in this rural community on the edge of a rugged Idaho mountain region."

Rayner said he believed the crime was committed by "some lawless drunken youngster."

He said encouraging clues had been uncovered but declined to disclose their nature.

Clark was found shot to death with a .22-caliber gun the morning of July 6.

An automobile was reported seen at the station at about the time the shooting was believed to have taken place and Rayner said that car had been "definitely located" although he declined to say where it had been found.

Rayner and state police officers are cooperating with Sheriff Jack Tucker of Blaine county in search for Clark's slayer.

COURT LAYS DOWN RULE IN LARGELY PROSECUTION'S CASE HELD DEFECTIVE IN POCA TELLO TRIAL

Prosecution's Case Held Defective in Pocatello Trial

BOISE, July 8 (AP)—The Idaho supreme court ruled today, in one of five opinions handed down, that "evident conscious possession of the gun of the accused may be inferred."

The decision was in the re-hearing of an appeal by Clarence Darrah from his conviction of burglary in district court at Pocatello.

During the trial the state introduced testimony of a police officer that Darrah said he bought a watch. Identified an having been stolen from the home of Mrs. A. T. Gennell at Pocatello August 13, 1938.

The court ruled two months ago that the state introduced no evidence purporting to show Darrah's story was false.

It ordered a new trial and today, after the re-hearing, reaffirmed the order.

Justice Alfred Budge wrote the opinion in which Chief Justice James P. Albright and Justice Edwin M. Holden concurred. Justice Raymond W. Gilman dissented and Justice William M. Morgan did not participate.

The court, in an opinion written by Justice Holden and concurred in by his associates, affirmed dismissal by District Judge Miles S. Johnson of Lewiston of an action brought by Harmon Woodley, West Pierce county farmer, in an effort to collect $2,000 from the state department of public works.

Norbury asserted property on his farm adjacent to the Lewiston, Idaho highway was damaged by fire in June, 1938, by a fire that allegedly started on the highway right-of-way.

It is settled law in this state, in the absence of an express statute to that effect, the state is not liable for damages for negligent acts of its officers and employees performed in the discharge of a mandatory, governmental duty, Justice Holden wrote.

Three other opinions related to north Idaho civil suits.

OLD OPERA REVIVED
MOSCOW (AP)—One of the great patriotic operas of the pre-revolutionary era, Michael Ivanovich Glinka's "A Life for the Czar," will be revived here in January. It's new Soviet name is "Yvan Semyonov." Semyonov was a peasant who, in the seventeenth century, saved the Czar from assassination by sacrificing his own life.
