SALT LAKE CITY, July 24 (AP)—The Salt Lake City Bees

scored a 10-0 victory over the Boise Pilots in the first game of the doubleheader today by taking both ends of a doubleheader with the Boise Pilots, 10-0 and 8-3.

Scoring two runs each in the first, fourth, fifth and eighth innings, the Bees were able to drive choppers for 13 hits in the night game while Jack Andrews guided the Bees to a 10-0 victory.

Larry Reed, starting Boise hurler, was replaced by Pedemeyer in the seventh.

Johnny Larrieu led the Bees attack getting a triple and two singles. Mattie Lee, starting pitcher, was replaced by Pedemeyer in the seventh.

In the day's opening, Pilot pitcher Fredie, apparently holding the Mustang men well in hand, pitched in the last half of the ninth. So did the hitting of the Bees. When the period was over the Bees had scored six runs.

They attacked the first three men to face him. That, along with another pass, singles by George Byrd, Stanley Bushman and the pitcher's son plus an error by Tony Gomez, meant the error.

Managers Andy Harrington, playing as second, was removed from the game and replaced by Gomez after the third after the pilot pitcher had protested umpire Harry's decision to close play at home.

CONFESSION OF MURDER

INDIAN GREENS KEEPER ALLEGED SLAYER OF 11-YEAR-OLD CHILD

ATTICA, Ind., July 24.—Thomas Powell, 20-year-old golf course employee and father of three boys, confessed orally today, police authorities said, that he killed 11-year-old Elizabeth DeBrieker, Attica school girl, and buried her body near the Harrison Hills Country club.

Sheriff William H. Ramsey said Powell admitted strangling the girl's 4-11 club member Friday afternoon, but added the man denied actually assisting her.

The girl's body, buried in a shallow grave near the golf course where DeBrieker was found Saturday afternoon and 'hoys was arrested a few hours later. She had been missing after attending a meeting of her 4-11 club Friday.

State Policeman Paul Rube of the West Lafayette barracks 'recruited this city of the crime.

'Hoys told us that he saw the girl walk across the sixth green at the golf course Friday afternoon and that he called her to walk to the other side of the course with him.

'Hoys sat down on a hillside and he said he became familiar with her and that when blood appeared on her face he became suspicious.

'Hoys carried her to a small pond and held her face under the water until he was satisfied she had drowned. He said he buried her in the place where her body was found.

The girl's shoes, which 'Hoys said he had thrown in the pond, were found there this afternoon.

ROOSEVELT MUM ON FARLEY TALK

President Deems Farley's with Party's Chief 'Effective'

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 24 (AP)—A conference between President Roosevelt and William G. Farley, Democratic Chairman James A. Farley ended today in an atmosphere of secrecy, leaving unanswered the political questions about a third term in the 1940 campaign, and the personal relationship of the two men of the Democratic party.

A significant inter-partying pronouncement came from the president, that he thought his talks with Farley would continue to be effective.

Farley said that at his home here where Farley was a guest last night, the two men had had another of the regular conversations they had been having since 1928.

They continued along the same line, Farley said, and there wasn't much story in it except that the people at the house had been fairly effective, and he thought they would continue to be effective.

If there were a third party, Farley said, he thought he would be the third term candidate.

Reporters noted especially the remark about the talks continuing in the same form. In previous parties through the last eleven years, Mr. Roosevelt and Farley have canvassed political conditions from coast to coast and mapped out their own political destinies.

But whether Farley asked about the president's 1940 intentions, or got an answer, was a question which only they could answer. They remained silent.

Farley listened. The only word he had for the correspondents was that he had had an "interesting" chat with his chief and that any statement about it must come from the president.

His manner was serious while Mr. Roosevelt was speaking and he listened intently. Remarks were overheard, among some of those present to which the deed signified that Farley looked none too happy.

Yet, he said, the president was just about the European trip and their faces broke into broad grins when Farley extended a hand and said:

'Goodbye, boys. I'll keep in touch with you.'

TAYLOR RAISES TAX QUESTIONS

Attorney General Challenges Legality of Idaho's Ad Valorem Levy

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—Attorney General J. W. Taylor urged the state board of equalization today to consider legal questions about the state's ad valorem tax law, affecting 1929 ad valorem tax legislation which he said "affects the entire financial operation of the state."

Taylor, in an opinion prepared for the board, said the state's ad valorem tax law is unconstitutional because it is a tax on the value of property, and not on the value of the property.

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

Yesterday several arms of the law had their eyes on the bill for creating a disturbance in Henderson's domain. The bill there is known as the "Aunt Vera" law.

Chapter 11 found of Hill "Deli" quoted Tacks, stating "Love" "Deli" confirmed Mrs. Sackville's law. Two four-letter words each moving a state of liberty. Now then, another since it can't be a backward law, it doesn't give you any more than any young creature ought to have. The chances are you'll be in debt. Consequently, you must be content with your own bill."

Tacks would have liked to advise Mrs. Sackville that he not, even his blood relation, could refer to Tacks' mother as a "didi" and get away with it. But in his wisdom, he perceived that such advice would add to the confusion of the law, and he distinctly did not want Aunt Vera to know anything about that glum young man's law. Tacks was a self-confident champion of the Adams name and the Adams rights. Heaven alone knew what he might do if he were to learn that a lady in a night club had taken the name of her favorite law and tied it in with the Butterfield district.

"You're the law now, acting in a derisive tone. Why, her, who would I be in love with? I don't know many girls, and you're—well, all the girls are away for the summer. It was a weak finish, he realized.

Aunt Vera attended to a practically before going to further inquire. "Do you want dessert?" she inquired.

"Oh, no. I have a cup of coffee, thank, Black."

Mrs. Sackville introduced a small, slender, lawyer-like man, who looked as if he should have been the Archbishop of Canterbury, but he was not.

thirty infested with mothers, burrows, co-arts, small dogs and a wide and variegated assortment of children with and without "slices."

"With plenty and unending eyes he piloted his bound through his jungle, occasionally pinning a detritus and suspect from a stable proposition of the smaller breeds of dogs that loitered in his factories.

He brushed more easily when he had gained the comparative isolation of the walk that leads to the entrance of the reservoir.

With the howling multitude behind him, Tacks was again free to himself in the wilderness of his condition. As he saw it, his reasons for choosing were about as numerous as antelope in southern New Jersey.

Today was Tuesday. On the following day, Wednesday, the 25th of North, South, East and West was scheduled to end amidst honor and distinction in the history of the Lone Island, and what sort of a figure Mr. Adams demanded of Mr. Adams was he going to cut at that gala affair?

Wreched Condition

"If you finished your coffee," said Mrs. Sackville, "let's get your hat. You're taking Lily around in the park."

"What?" cried Tacks, horrified. "Am I to walk that way?"

"I refuse," Tacks said in a low voice, "I flatly refuse to be seen in broad daylight with that notorious 'Deli'."

"Don't argue with me, Johanson," said Tacks, "I know it's never any use. Come along."

She sailed out of the room and he followed. "This—this is terrible," he said. "I'm completely."

"Oh, yes, you're," said Mrs. Sackville, "but you're not. You're just a little bit out of your mind. You're just a little bit out of your mind."

Dog Leads Rescue To Missing Toits

A. J. O'Hara, Ore., July 24 (AP)—A small black mongrel dog led searchers to two tiny toits who had been lost overnight in the Reikland river waters. They were hungry and tired, but uninjured by their experience.

As more than 200 CCC workers, peace officers, lumberjacks and other searchers were called upon, the dog led them to the toits. The toits were found in a small pool of water, and they were rescued.

Mrs. J. W. Whimpering at Williston, N. D., said that her dog had led her to the toits. She said that the dog had been with her for many years, and she was sure that it would find them.

They said they heard their father call to them during the night, and they answered, but he apparently did not hear them.

His mother, Mrs. Elsie Graf, has returned to the Mercy hospital in Los Angeles, where she is a patient nurse, after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Applebaum.

Home—Mrs. August Brandt returned Sunday from Salt Lake where she received medical treatment. Sister—Mrs. J. W. Lundquist, of Starling, Salt Lake, is leaving for Salt Lake during the night, and she answered, but he apparently did not hear them.

Russell estimates each gets about two half-days a week free.

—And No Expenses

Mrs. Russell admits it's a little job looking out for her neighbors' youngsters, but she'd rather do it and get her share of free time. It's something like running a small-sized nursery school, she says. But with this satisfying difference: There's no expense involved.

"None of us can afford to help in the house, so we converted this cooperative scheme, and it works beautifully for us. We're all old friends and no one takes advantage of the system. Perhaps it wouldn't work in every case, but we've tried it and our co-operative store in the town is operated. The benefits are the same for all of us."

Several ranch homes in the path of the flames were threatened at times but the fire was turned away from all of them and only rangeland was burned over.

Some fencing was destroyed but little cropland was burned, Bailey said.

COUNTIES SHARE GAS TAX SPLIT

State Auditor to Distribute $450,000 Under New Law

BOISE, July 24.—Warfare will be the end tomorrow, State Auditor Calvin E. Wright said tonight, to distribute to the 44 counties $400,000 in state gas tax revenue.

The funds will be distributed under provisions of 1933 legislation, which declared constitutional, diverting $1,000,000 in gas tax receipts to the counties to make up for their losses from reduced automobile license fees.

Distribution of the first $200,000 was due last April 25 but was held up pending supreme court review. A second distribution of $200,000 is due tomorrow and Wright said warrants for both would be sent out together.

"I have been advised that the law requires me only to distribute the funds to the counties," he said. "It is up to me to determine the method to be used by the counties in spending the money. That is up to them."

The state board of examiners ruled Saturday that claims against the counties for road work must be approved by the board before they legally may be paid from funds received from the state.
