IDAHO'S GAME BOARD NAMES DIRECTOR
Three Members of Commission Announce Selection of Owen Morris as Successor to Harold Harvey

(By The Associated Press)
BOISE, July 31.—Three members of the Idaho state fish and game commission elected Owen Morris of Boise, assistant Idaho agent for the U. S. Biological Survey, today to succeed Harold Harvey, director of Buhl as director of the state fish and game department.
Morris, who will take up his new duties tomorrow is the fourth man to occupy the position of director since last Jan. 1.
Harvey was elected director in 1927. He held the position for several months; then Dr. A. B. Hatch of Moscow was elected to the post. Finally Harvey was chosen to succeed Hatch about two months ago.

Britain's Premier Admits Concern Over Far East

Chamberlain Expresses Hope of Escape From 'Nightmare' in Review of International Questions
Hope "we may find a way to escape from this nightmare" framed a gloomy picture of the international scene sketched by Great Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain Monday.
He braced that hope on better rulers and people alike were resulting just what horrors a war would inflict.
"One must admit," he concluded, "the situation in which the accumulation of questions he has made in the past few days on so many sides and at such a pace is one which can be met only with anxiety."
While he seemed to see what the solution of this problem can be unless it is to be resolved by war.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Cowboy and Bride Will Wed At Home Plate August 16

When Miss Lila Ling of Pullman, Wash., becomes the bride of Ernest L. Bishop, who plays second base on the Twin Falls Cowboy team, the evening of August 16, the couple will be carrying out a popular baseball tradition. Many of the "big leaguers" have said "I do" at home plate.

Bishop announced yesterday that the marriage will be solemnized at 8 o'clock the evening of August 16 at the Jaycee ball park here, and that all southern Idaho friends of the Cowboys are invited to be wedding guests.

The marriage will culminate a campus romance. Miss Ling and her fiance met at Washington State college at Pullman. She attended the college three years, and was affiliated with Alpha Delta Pi.

Bishop, a graduate of Washington State college, class of 1938, is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. The bride-elect has asked her sister, Mrs. Eubela Parrott of Seattle, Wash., to be her matron of honor.

Accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ling of Pullman, and her brother-in-law and sister, the Parrotts, of Seattle, Miss Ling is expected to arrive in Twin Falls August 14. In Twin Falls to assist in making final arrangements for the wedding.

Mrs. Mabel L. Bishop of Klamath Falls, Ore., also will be among the wedding guests. She is the mother of the bridegroom-elect.

Vows will be pledged before a portable impromptu altar to be erected for the occasion by Wilton Peck.

Farwell Party Arranged for Mrs. F. E. Hatch

Honor guest at a delightfully arranged farwell party yesterday at the attractive country home of Mrs. Frank Kreuzer was Mrs. F. E. Hatch. She will leave sometime this week for Rock Springs, Wyo., to make her home.

Her husband, F. E. Hatch, district supervisor in the American Lumber company, has already been transferred to Rock Springs.

To make sure that the coming back offers for a visit, the honoree was presented with a savings bank in the form of a miniature ship.

A profusion of garden flowers decorated the home of the hostess, and place cards and favors were all in the form of miniature ships.

Pineapple and bridge precede provided the diversion for guests during the afternoon with the honoree presiding in the latter.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at quartet table.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Dugan, Mrs. Oliver Neely, Mrs. Pence of Othello, and Mrs. Olive Smith of Burley.

Other guests were Mrs. O. K. Barton, Mrs. Leonard Stitt, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Fobush and Mrs. Kinder.

The occasion was the reading of a Norwegian newspaper, "Frondeingen," edited in Trondheim, Norway. The paper was quite interesting to the three guests, Mrs. Ellen Rutherford, Miss Dinitz and Mrs. N. E. Engebretsen. One of the items covered admirability to membership in the Norwegian Business and Professional Women's club. Arrangements for a picnic were presented, and the group arrived at the decision that housewives were not eligible to membership. The sports interest of Norwegian women was reflected in the pictures of women playing football against a men's team. There were also pictures of the midsummer festival and students, and attendants, together with a story of the event. Numerous letters and foreign news were also contained in the newspaper. The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing Cuban checkers and refreshments were served, picnic style, by Mrs. Rutherford. Mrs. Dillingham and Mrs. Jensen were present, and the hostesses were not eligible to membership. Mrs. N. E. Engebretsen will be program chairman.

GENTLE BUSINESS RISE Wall Street is said to be "entranced" by current upturn figures. In a recent week London news contained these interesting and cheering items:

Electric power consumption and rail traffic reached a 1939 high. Wholesale textile markets experienced a wave of foreign orders.

There was a rising tendency in steel scrap, copper and basic textiles and other industrial materials.

None of these gulps was spectacular, but they were none the less encouraging.

LESS PHILANTHROPY A study of the American cities shows that private bequests and gifts for philanthropic purposes are diminishing.

Most of the private gifts, however, are now for education and religious purposes.

OPERA PROBLEM The Metropolitan Opera Company is trying to finance itself, get its debts paid and arrive at a sound financial basis.

WARSAW EXPLOSIONS The agreement undertaken in Westchester County, N. Y., which uses Asiatic wasps in the war against Japanese beetles, will be watched with interest.

over the whole country. Five thousand of the wasps were released a few days ago. The technique of this natural beetle-exterminator is interesting.

Without carrying the analogy too far, or taking it too literally, many Americans could well have been eating wasps in China to eliminate the human beetles that have swarmed over that country.

"SOMETHING FOR SOMETHING" A paraphrase of an old saying, "Something for nothing" expresses the claim which has occurred in 1939 among the nation's sportsmen.

With this in mind, it may be said that such an example of what these organizations are doing the country over for a time of year.

It is this fall that the nation's sportsmen will be able to enjoy the fruits of the 1939 season.

CITY APPROVES BARBERING LAW

Ordinance Sets $2 License Fee and Specifies Closing Hours

A uniform closing ordinance regulating hours when barbering might be done in the city was adopted by the city council last evening when a large delegation of barbering owners and employees appeared at the meeting and presented the proposed statute.

E. E. Kall, spokesman for the group, presented a petition signed by 34 shop owners and employees urging adoption of the ordinance. "Seventy-five per cent of the owners and employees here have signed the petition," Kall asserted. "Two shop owners, refused and two were not contacted."

Briefly, the ordinance provides each barber in the city must secure a license from the city clerk at a cost of $2.

Barbers Hours

During the months of January through April of each year, barbering may operate from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m. on weekdays and until 8 p. m. on Saturdays. From May to December inclusive, the shops may open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on weekdays and until 9:30 p. m. on Saturdays.

All shops will be closed on New Year day, Decoration day, July 4, Labor-day, and Christmas day. If such holidays fall on Sunday, the following Monday will be observed as a holiday.

Ordinance will be in effect in thirty days.

Non-compliance with the ordinance will constitute a misdemeanor with penalties being set at a fine of $10 and court costs on first offense and $25 and court costs on second offense.

Departmental reports approved by the council and ordered filed included that of Municipal Judge J. O. Punhrey, listing fines, costs, citations and assessments of $10,500; J. J. Harty, 60 plumbing violations; six condemnations and $71 collected; Charles E. Howell, collections of $43,100 on city watermeters; C. W. Kelly, 110 electrical inspections; 12 condemnations and $250 collected; and Fred Berry, fire chief, whose department announced all alarms and made all necessary general inspections.

Local ordinance was modeled on one now in effect at Boise.

Legion Convention

The 17th annual convention of the American Legion post was held at the city hall here August 13 to 15.

Subject of getting up a low cost housing program for Twin Falls was discussed. The program is to provide improved, sanitary housing for the low income bracket at a lower rent.

Mayor Joe Koehler said that the Twin Falls survey on inadequate or unsanitary housing was two-thirds complete.

Decision as to whether the council will appropriate enough money to complete the survey is deferred until the next meeting of the city council.

Representatives of the Hantley Manufacturing company were present and discussed with the council sale of steel pipe to replace the wooden line at the paper plant. No agreement was reached.

Townsendites at Picnic, Program

A picnic house at the Odd Fellows hall Sunday heard Orlan A. Scott, of Coeur d'Alene, state Townsend representative, and James W. Johnson, of Boise, secretary of the Townsend club, discuss the Townsend club and what it accomplished at the recent national convention at Indianapolis.

Present for the picnic at 12:30 p. m. were: J. O. Punhrey—delegate—from Townsend clubs throughout southern Idaho.

Address of welcome was given by Mayor Joe Koehler. Ed Schneider, business manager of the city, presided.

Group singing was conducted. Mrs. Albert Pappert presided.

County Deals for Fuel for Winter

Magic City Fuel and Feed company, Leonard Avant, sales manager, will supply to Twin Falls county 500 tons of slack coal under terms of a bid which county commissioners accepted yesterday. The contract price was $5.64 per ton—A-half dozen bids were considered.

Deliveries will be made to the court house, county general hospital and county farm.

The county specified must be supplemented by additional purchases if next winter's fuel requirements are those of an ordinary winter season, members of the county board said.

Livestock Demand Good at Auction

Demand was good on all classes of livestock with top bulls bringing $43 per hundred.

Reported on the weekly auction held Saturday at his sales yards south of town.

Three hundred head of cattle were sold on the block and 200 head of hogs were more.

Buyers from Boise, Rupert, Pocatello and American Falls attended the sale.

Penguin Characteristics

OSCAR is not a trained courier but because a quirk of nature causes him to walk erect like a penguin, he has adopted the characteristics of the Arctic bird. The Rhode Island Red rooster bears no man and has the appearance of the penguin. The News photographer caught Oscar in a pose on one of the composing room tables when Miss Annette Carlson, age 16, of Twin Falls, brought him to the shop for a visit. Her uncle, Lloyd Carlson of California, purchased the rooster at Vale, Oregon, and brought him to Twin Falls.

Bustle Influence Figures In Fashion Conversations

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Fashion Editor

Most talked-of fashion influence of the moment is the bustle. It's apparent not only in early fall frocks decked with back flounces and ruffles, but even in "bustle hats" to wear with them. Smartest are modified pill-boxes with large ribbed back bows.

The hats are putting up a stiff fight for existence this year. Smartest New Yorkers, disliking the cozy look of the hibernated ones and finding the flat-crowned variety "old looking," are wearing small chapeaux instead. Favorite is a flower-queue built of about six gardenias and a long-tailed bow that hangs down the back.

Mad-money slips are lingerie's latest whim. They're tailored versions of crepe with a fabric envelope sewn inside the bra's top. Its flap fastens with a snap so money tucked inside will stay there.

"Next news in lingerie is wool underwear for 'orchid women' this fall—London, Designer, Leslie Moss showed in New York ethereal-silks of pink nu's veiling, bound with satin ribbon, and a shirt and blouse combination of thin plaid wool to wear under tweeds.

Black is back as a smart mid-summer town hue. Massachusetts wear it in rayon jersey or linen sometimes cold-creamed, sometimes frosted with white to give that cool look. Runner-up is navy blue.

Flower jackets are making a comeback. And there is a bright spray spilling from a white back, gay cloches swinging from a white neck cord, rubber neosays on a bathing suit. Finally a necklace of plastic beads with ice cream colors which wear a flower—the whole thing making a hit.

Summer hand fashions include white mill polish with the faintest possible pinkish—finger-tips—color for the women who prefer brighter lingerie. Later, also, possibly a slip-on of white, unadorned ballet to match your petticoat ruffie.

And fashions inspired by the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth: a lipstick in vivid "burning coral pink."

He walked through the lobby with his party, his head ducked at first, as though he hoped nobody would recognize him. Several people did, however, and they turned back to his conversation. He seemed to sense that after all nobody was recognizing him. There's Lindbergh, he thought by the time he was strutting through the lobby on the terrace his head was up and he was looking about at the hundreds waiting under the stars.

There was a little flurry of whispering and neck-cranning when an airplane dinner, Iris Wayne, spotted him. But that was all. He returned to this conversation as a couple parted his way.

"There's Lindbergh," said the woman.

"It is so," said the man.

"Well, what would he be doing here?"

"Often he jumps out of town by plane. He's using an army pursuit ship that's put up at Bolling field, about five miles across town from his office. At the field he's just another flyer. They notice though that he's the cautious old Lindbergh. When a careful look at the engine reveals a sign that he's beginning to un-lax. Because he's easily spotted on the sidewalk when he gets out of his taxi. But to the hundreds that work with him he's just another government man. However, as a country crowd to shift the entrance he gets, again just in case his habits get too well known so he'll be a crowd of curious eyes.

"He lives about three miles out, at the Shuamun hotel, a handsome pile of bricks with several wings. It stands on a hill at the edge of Rock Creek park. The hotel management is like a gentleman and says he isn't there. That's because he has a habit of changing hotels if he's loved catches on.

"The army air corps people say they know nothing about him at all, except when he's at work. He even gets his mail somewhere else. One day a registered letter came for him, and just banged around until it showed up.

"At the hotel some of his meals are sent up. But he eats out for lunch with other air corps officers. He doesn't go often to the restaurant, again crowd-dodging. He's seen to be a humdrum private dinner with flying friends.

"Most of the time at the hotel he uses an elevator that drops right to the underground garage where he gets his taxi. But, so do other guests. Sometimes he just arrives and disappears into the hotel, but the people who happen to see him always aren't interested much, or they're looking at something else.

"Once he barged out of an elevator, no flight on something he was thinking that his long six feet nearly fell flat over a tiny Chiltonson on 15 feet.

PRINCE FACING LOSS OF ESTATE

Hungarian Land Owner Reads as Nazis Glamor for Huge Holdings

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BUDAPEST (Correspondent of the Associated Press)—While the politician's glamor for laws to strip him of his ancestral acres, Hungary's heretofore landowner reads in his quiet library.

His name is Prince Paul Esterházy. He is a member of the upper house of parliament, he reads speeches there once a year. He has no interest in Hungary's legislative machinery.

Calmly, he has even bought more land in the rate of 1,000 acres annually.

An anxious scholar, Prince Paul prefers books to human companionship. His hobby is medicine. He has given 50 scholarships to medical students. His reading in this field is enormous for a layman.

He has a picture gallery of old masters that would be the pride of any museum, but he has never opened it to the public. Besides, he owns a palace in Vienna and another in Budapest. Three times as his direct relatives and his riches seem destined to pass on to them or their children.

Social reformers point to the thin, clean-shaven, solitary prince as a symbol of Hungary's "feudalism." All that is left of the great party is leveled at him.

—In his cluttered study, however, Prince Paul is content to sit tight.

LINDBERGH WALKS ALONE AMID CAPITAL'S HUBBUB

By SIGMUND ARNE
(Associated Press Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—Looks as if this faded town in the place Charles Lindbergh has been looking for since 1927. He's been holding down a 9-5 government job here since April, and, as yet, no mob has collected to paw at him.

He still keeps up some of his phantasmic habits to escape the crowds, just in case. But he looks more relaxed. He's put on weight, his face is rousier, and he seems freer to stop and talk with people. He's even eaten out at a popular night spot.

He's been turning out a report on the country's research facilities for aviation. Working with the army air corps and the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

His office is down on Constitution avenue in the wartime barracks-like mansions building. It's one of the best, pretentious buildings here.

Warren Gray halls, doors with frosted glass windows, filmy partitions and old oak furniture. There's a casual sort of cafeteria where Lindbergh gets his milk-and-egg sandwiches and he's busy, sends down for it, and eats at his desk. But the order comes, with a smile, from the executive office, or even if the cafeteria's dish-washer was a government hunter she wouldn't know which tray to choose.

Half the time he shows up at the office in his army flying uniform. That's his "motto" with the long-haired men in the aviation cap. That security is a sign that he's beginning to un-lax. Because he's easily spotted on the sidewalk when he gets out of his taxi. But to the hundreds that work with him he's just another government man. However, as a country crowd to shift the entrance he gets, again just in case his habits get too well known so he'll be a crowd of curious eyes.

MAN GETS IN TROUBLE WITH MAY AS SMOKE

BILLINGS, Mont. (P)—The big Negro was just about ready to plead guilty to a charge of smoking cigarettes made from hay.

"I didn't know it was against the law," he explained to the judge, who was ready to send him to jail for 30 days if thought that the body could smoke hay if they wanted to.

"Hay?" asked the judge. "That's a new name for marijuana."

The Negro wasn't sure what kind of hay it was, but he thought it was marijuana; he never heard of marijuana hay.

Finally the Negro convinced them he was serious. Any way the cigarettes to a chemist for analysis. Sure enough they were alfalfa!

Leading Traffic Authorities Agree:-

"SHARE THE ROAD" will reduce STOP-and-GO driving 25%

"Discourteous driving habits are responsible for much of today's traffic congestion and many needless accidents. Yet by courteous driving, that is, simply by sharing the road, I would say at least 25% of all stop-and-go could be eliminated."

"A big part of traffic congestion—25%—could be wiped out. An improvement in motoring manners won't cost a cent and will pay immediate dividends in time and fuel savings."

"Aside from the danger to life and limb, discourteous driving habits are a major cause of today's traffic congestion. I believe about 25% of all stop-and-go could be eliminated by courteous driving—by sharing the road."

"Discourteous, thoughtless driving practices are one of the major causes of our present day stop-and-go. A movement that will cure them will, in my opinion, reduce stop-and-go by fully 25%."

AVIATORS LAUD PLANE HOSTESS

Nellie Granger Wins in Battle with Fear Following Air Crash

By CHARLES McHURTY KANSAS CITY, July 31—To the men who fly—those aviators... Nellie Granger is the bravest girl in the air.

Nellie was thrown clear, stunned, bruised, she slipped her way over... She refused to eat or rest...

Four hours later, a blood-stained, mud-caked, nearly frozen... She returned to eat or rest...

Nellie was famous. Letters from TWA officials, from friends... She rejected all offers. She had one goal—fly again.

June 1936 she returned to the Airways as pilot N. Granger... "See, it's well to be back!" she exclaimed.

She thought she had conquered fear. She might have, but for thoughts... Friends pampered her, trying in their own way to make things easier.

Just two months later, Nellie reported for duty as a "usual." "What's your name?" "Nellie?" someone asked. "What friends of yours are flying?"

Only then was she told it was another line plane. Nellie's heart stopped, her nerves calmed. She started to get up...

She could have married, but I couldn't live with myself. I had to fly. I was disgusted with myself...

She thought of giving up, but I couldn't go back to college. I had to fly. I was disgusted with myself...
